Supreme Court on PENAL CODE

Surendra Malik
Sudeep Malik

3

Eastern Book Company
India's leading law information provider

About the Book

This three volume Digest gives the most comprehensive coverage of law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court on Indian Penal Code, 1860 from its inception till date. It has been conceived and planned to enable the discovery of all the rulings, easily and quickly. It is based on the time-tested SCC index system that is now widely accepted and used.

Special Features

- For important sections, the rulings have been placed under numerous topic headings under a synopsis.
- Case law on closely related sections like Ss. 96-106 (Private defence), Ss. 299-304 (Culpable Homicide and Murder), and Ss. 415-420 (Cheating) has been synopsised collectively i.e. under one synopsis.
- Another novel feature is the treatment of Ss. 299-304 on which the case law spans almost two volumes out of the three-volume set. Entire case law on Ss. 299-304 can be studied in a unified manner under four major parts:
  - A. Culpable Homicide and Murder – Basic Principles
  - B. Culpable Homicide or Murder Involving Multiple Accused
  - C. Particular kinds of Culpable Homicide, Murder And/Or Other Offences
  - D. Trial, Sentencing and Other Issues
- Interconnection between the sub-headings under a section or a set of sections of the Penal Code is indicated by internal cross-references. There are also external cross-references to relevant provisions of CrPC, the Constitution, and also to cognate headings under Criminal Trial.
- Besides using the topic and the statute approach, it is also possible to conduct search through the Table of Cases Digested of all the three volumes.
- The Digest also contains annotations, editorial notes and comments and coram details.

यतो धर्मस्ततो जयः

SUPREME COURT ON
INDIAN PENAL CODE, 1860

Case law since 1950 till date

VOLUME 3

§§ [7401] to [11101]

(Ss. 299 to 304 (contd.) & Ss. 304-A to End)

"The law is the last interpretation of the law given by the last Judge." —Anon.

"Precedents keep the law predictable and so more or less ascertainable." —Lord Devlin

"There is no such thing as a judicial precedent on facts though counsel, and even judges, are sometimes prone to argue and to act as if they were." —Bose, J., (1955) 2 SCR 1140, 1169

"The law declared by the Supreme Court is the law of the land; it is precedent for itself and for all the courts/tribunals and authorities in India." —Syed Shah Mohammed Quadri, J., (2002) 4 SCC 388

"The better wisdom of the Court below must yield to the higher wisdom of the Court above." —O. Chinnappa Reddy, J., (1985) 1 SCC 260, 268

"... the judicial system only works if someone is allowed to have the last word and if that last word, once spoken, is loyally accepted." —Lord Diplock, (1972) 1 All ER 801, 874

"Most of the decisions of the Supreme Court are of significance not merely because they constitute an adjudication on the rights of the parties and resolve the disputes between them but also because in doing so they embody a declaration of law operating as a binding principle in future cases."

—N. Santosh Hegde, J., (2002) 4 SCC 234, para 22

"... a decision is not an authority for a proposition which did not fall for its consideration."

—S.B. Sinha, J., (2005) 4 SCC 649, para 256

"The only thing binding as an authority upon a subsequent Judge is the principle upon which the case was decided." —Arijit Pasayat, J., (2003) 7 SCC 197

"The trend of judicial opinion is that stare decisis is not a dogmatic rule allergic to logic and reason; it is a flexible principle of law operating in the province of precedents providing room to collaborate with the demands of changing times dictated by social needs, State policy and judicial conscience."

— R.C. Lahoti, C.J., (2005) 8 SCC 534, para 112

"The doctrine of binding precedent has the merit of promoting a certainty and consistency in judicial decisions, and enables an organic development of the law, besides providing assurance to the individual as to the consequence of transactions forming part of his daily affairs." —Pathak, C.J., (1989) 2 SCC 754, 766

"A decision is available as a precedent only if it decides a question of law."

—L.M. Sharma, J., (1992) 1 SCC 489, 491

"... the law is, what the judges say it is since the power to interpret the law vests in the judges."

—S. Ratnavel Pandian, J., (1994) 3 SCC 569, 625

"Precedent law must be followed by all concerned; deviation from the same should be only on a procedure known to law. A subordinate court is bound by the enunciation of law made by the superior courts." —N. Santosh Hegde, J., (2000) 1 SCC 644, para 12

"The doctrine of binding precedent is of utmost importance in the administration of our judicial system. It promotes certainty and consistency in judicial decisions. Judicial consistency promotes confidence in the system, therefore, there is this need for consistency in the enunciation of legal principles in the decisions of the Supreme Court." —N. Santosh Hegde, J., (2002) 4 SCC 234, para 22

"... a judgment should be understood in the light of facts of that case and no more should be read into it than what it actually says." —B.P. Jeevan Reddy, J., (1993) 2 SCC 368, 393

"Judicial propriety, dignity and decorum demand that being the highest judicial tribunal even obiter dictum of the Supreme Court should be accepted as binding. ... But statements on matters other than law have no binding force." —Krishna Iyer, J., (1975) 1 SCC 794

"Taking recourse to the doctrine of stare decisis would be an imperative necessity to avoid uncertainty and confusion." —U.C. Banerjee, J., (1999) 4 SCC 11, para 16

"It is not everything said by a Judge while giving judgment that constitutes a precedent. ... The enunciation of the reason or principle on which a question before a court has been decided is alone binding as a precedent" —K. Ramaswamy, J., (1996) 6 SCC 44, 51, 52

Supreme Court on Indian Penal Code, 1860

containing

case law since 1950 till date
in THREE VOLUMES

SURENDRA MALIK
B.Sc.(Hons.), LL.B.(Del.), LL.M.(Columbia)
Gold Medalist
Advocate, Supreme Court
Chief Editor : 'Supreme Court Cases™'

SUDEEP MALIK
B.A.(Hons.), M.A.(Cantab.)
Advocate
Associate Editor : 'Supreme Court Cases™'

Vol. 3

INDIAN PENAL CODE, 1860

[From Sections 299 to 304 (contd.)
&
Sections 304-A to End]

EASTERN BOOK COMPANY

Purchased: Approval:
Gratis:
Acc No.: 027190
Price:
"Narayan Rao Melgiri
National Law Library
Bangalore

Available from

EASTERN BOOK COMPANY™

Website: www.ebc.co.in, E-mail: sales@ebc-india.com

• Lucknow:
34, Lalbagh, Lucknow - 226 001
Phones: +91-522-4033600 (30 lines),
Fax: +91-522-4033633

• Delhi:
1267, Kashmere Gate
Old Hindu College Building,, Delhi - 110 006
Phones: +91-11-23917616, +91-9313080904
Fax: +91-11-23921656

• New Delhi:
5-B, Atma Ram House, 5th Floor 1
Tolstoy Marg, Connaught Place,
New Delhi - 110 001
Phones: +91-11-45752323, +91-9871197119
Fax: +91-11-41504440

• Bangalore:
25/1, Anand Nivas, 3rd Cross
6th Main, Gandhinagar, Bangalore - 560 009
Phones: +91-80-41225368

• Allahabad:
Manav Law House, 8/10, M.G. Marg
Opp. Bishop Johnson School, Allahabad - 211 001
Phones: +91-532-2560710, 2422023
Fax: +91-532-2623584

Find us on facebook www.facebook.com/easternbookcompany
Follow us on twitter www.twitter.com/ebcindia
Shop online at: www.ebcwebstore.com

Reprinted from Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn., Vols. 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25, with additional case-law covered up to (2011) 6 SCC

Full Set in 3 Vols.

2012

₹3600.00

345.54
MAL-III

ISBN Vol. 3: 93-5028-242-9
9 789350 282427

ISBN Full Set: 93-5028-243-7
9 789350 282434

All rights reserved. No part of this work may be copied, reproduced, adapted, abridged or translated, stored in any retrieval system, computer system, photographic or other system or transmitted in any form by any means whether electronic, mechanical, digital, optical, photographic or otherwise without a prior written permission of the copyright holders, EBC Publishing (P) Ltd., Lucknow. Any breach will entail legal action and prosecution without further notice.

This book is sold subject to the condition that it, or any part of it, shall not by way of trade or otherwise, be sold, lent, re-sold, displayed, advertised or otherwise circulated, without the publishers' prior written consent, in any form of binding, cover or title other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser(s). Any breach of any of these rights or conditions will entail civil and criminal action without further notice.

While every effort has been made to avoid any mistake or omission, this publication is being sold on the condition and understanding that neither the author nor the publishers or printers would be liable in any manner to any person by reason of any mistake or omission in this publication or for any action taken or omitted to be taken or advice rendered or accepted on the basis of this work. For any error in the text or any defect in printing or binding, the publishers will be liable only to replace the defective copy by another corrected copy of this work then available.

All disputes subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of courts, tribunals and forums at Lucknow only.

Copyright © 2012—EBC Publishing Pvt. Ltd., Lucknow

PUBLISHERS : EBC PUBLISHING (P) LTD., 34-A, LALBAGH, LUCKNOW—226 001
PRINTERS : ARMY PRINTING PRESS, LUCKNOW

Supreme Court on Indian Penal Code, 1860

PREFACE

Amongst the abiding principles of our Constitution is the one stated in Article 141 that the law declared by the Hon'ble Supreme Court is binding on all courts within India. It is therefore imperative for everyone concerned with law within our legal system to know and understand what this binding law is. For this the rulings lying embedded in the learned judgments and orders of the Hon'ble Judges are to be culled out and made accessible, with proper citations to locate them in authentic law reports. Since one may discover many rulings on the same point, bench strength and the date of decision are also relevant under the doctrine of precedent.

Coverage and Method

The present digest, covering the law laid down on the Indian Penal Code, 1860 by the Supreme Court since 1950 to date, has been designed particularly to meet the above need. It has been conceived and planned to enable the discovery of all the rulings, easily and quickly. It is based on the time-tested SCC index system that is now widely accepted and used.

Synopsisation and Systematic arrangement of case law where number of rulings on a section or set of sections is very large

But the search for the relevant rulings would still be tedious if they were not systematically arranged. Particularly for those sections where the number of rulings is large, the same have been placed under numerous sub-headings mentioned in the synopsis. Interconnection between the sub-headings is indicated by cross-references. Also no effort has been spared in making this digest most comprehensive and detailed.

Table of Cases Digested: Looking at dockets nearby

Besides using the topic and the statute approach, it is also possible to conduct a search through the Table of Cases Digested (of all three Volumes) provided in Vol. 1. Since digest notes on the same or similar points are naturally placed close to each other, by locating the digest notes on any known case from the Table of Cases Digested, other relevant rulings on that point can easily be located nearby. For convenience the docket numbers are indicated at the top corners of the pages. The Table of Cases Digested is also a convenient source for finding the citation and cross-citations of any decision.

Annotations, notes and comments

This Digest also contains annotations under some digest notes with respect to earlier connected cases of the Supreme Court and the High Courts, especially those appealed against, and some editorial notes and comments.

Coram details: Names of Hon'ble Judges and author(s) of the opinion(s)

Another feature of interest is that below each ruling are given the names of the Hon'ble Judges who constituted the Bench which heard the matter, with the name of the Hon'ble Judge(s) who has/have given the opinion(s) indicated in bold. In case of several opinions in a case, the superscript numbers after the names of Judges indicate the sequence of the opinions as well as which other Judges signed each of those opinions.

Updation

For case-law of the future the readers are advised to consult the Supreme Court Criminal Digest, 2011 or the Supreme Court Yearly Digest, 2011; and similarly for later years.

Acknowledgement

An analytical, systematic and comprehensive work such as this necessarily involves the combined effort of several persons. Each one of them has contributed in his own way. The merit and accuracy of this work therefore is the result of their dedication, commitment, sustained effort and team work. We warmly appreciate their efforts and contribution and they can justly feel proud of this publication.

Appreciation, and our commitment

We equally appreciate and value the goodwill and continued support received from our subscribers and readers. In trying to provide through Supreme Court Cases™ (SCC) and various digests all the rulings of the Supreme Court we seek to fulfil our own commitment to serve the legal profession as well as the cause of justice.

— Authors and Publishers

CONTENTS

Pages

- Preface I-5
- Detailed Contents . . . I-9
- Table of Cases Digested . . . I-41 (See Vol. 1)

OVERVIEW

Digest of Case Law

1. Ss. 1 to 298 & Ss. 299 to 304 (contd. in Vol. 2) Pp. 1 to 929 (Vol. 1)
2. Ss. 299 to 304 (contd.) Pp. 1 to 1300 (Vol. 2)
3. Ss. 299 to 304 (contd.) & Ss. 304-A to End Pp. 1 to 1244 (Vol. 3)

Detailed Contents*

INDIAN PENAL CODE, 1860

*Page

Volume 1

PENAL CODE, 1860

Section 1 . . . . 3
Section 2 . . . . 3
Section 3 . . . . 4
Section 4 . . . . 6
Section 5 8
Section 6 8
Section 7 8
Section 8 . . . . 8
Section 9 9
Section 10 9
Section 11 . . . . 9
Section 14 11
Section 17 11
Section 19 . . . . 12
Section 20 12
Section 21 . . . . 12
Section 22 29
Section 23 29
Section 24 . . . . 29
Section 25 . . . . 30
Section 26 . . . . 37
Section 27 . . . . 38
Section 28 . . . . 38
Section 29 39
Section 29-A 39
Section 30 . . . . 39
Section 32 39
Section 33 . . . . 39

---

* Sub-headings and corresponding synopses have been created only for Sections with voluminous case law.

 Page number in bold type indicates that the subject has been dealt with on that page in this work. Normal type, therefore, indicates that only cross-references are given on that page. This is not applicable to the Bird's eye view.

Page

Section 34 40
- (1) Generally 41
- (2) Nature of liability under: Vicarious or constructive liability. 41
- (3) The charge and S. 34 48
- (4) Ingredients for establishing liability under S. 34. 54
  - (i) Broadly 54
  - (ii) Animus 61
  - (iii) "Common intention" — What is — Prior concert. 62
  - (iv) Development of common intention on the spot 73
  - (v) "Act" 75
  - (vi) Participation/Overt acts 76
  - (vii) Presence 89
  - (viii) Exhortation or incitement. 91
- (5) Common intention — Proof or inference of 95
- (6) Acquittal/Conviction/Sentence of other accused 106
- (7) Common intention and individual motive 116
- (8) S. 34 and S. 149 116
- (9) S. 34 and other sections 122
- (10) Common intention established 125
- (11) Common intention not established 127
- (12) Common intention to murder 128

Section 35 156
Section 37 156
Section 38 156
Section 39 156
Section 40 156
Section 43 159
Section 45 159
Section 46 160
Section 52 161
Section 52-A 164
Section 53 164
Section 53-A 176
Section 54 177
Section 55 179
Section 57 179
Section 58 180
Section 60 180
Section 61 180
Section 62 180
Section 63 180
Section 64 180
Section 65 182

Page

Section 66 183
Section 67 183
Section 68 183
Section 69 183
Section 70 183
Section 71 184
Section 72 187
Section 73 187
Section 75 187
Chapter IV 188
Section 76 188
Section 77 189
Section 78 191
Section 79 191
Section 80 193
Section 81 194
Section 82 195
Section 83 195
Section 84 195
Section 85 210
Section 86 211
Section 87 212
Section 88 212
Section 89 212
Section 90 212
Section 91 213
Section 92 213
Section 93 213
Section 94 213
Section 95 213

Ss. 96-106: Right of private defence 215

(1) Generally — Nature and Scope of right. 217
(2) Defence of another person 239
(3) Commencement and continuation of right of private defence. 240
(4) Attack on unarmed persons/women 242
(5) Time to have recourse to public authorities 243
(6) Protection to public servants 244
(7) Non-availability of the defence to aggressors 245
(8) Determination of aggressor 247
(9) Sudden fight/Free fight 253
(10) Private defence established/not established on facts — Right when exceeded . 254
(11) Only some accused exceeding the right 288
(12) Injuries on accused 288
(13) Pleadings and particulars 301

SECTIONS 96-106: RIGHT OF PRIVATE DEFENCE

Page

(14) Burden and onus of proof . . . 305
(15) Relief when private defence established . . . 319
(16) Private defence of property . . . 320
(17) Section 98. . . . 331
(18) Section 106 . . . 331
(19) Other issues . . . 331

Section 107 . . . 332
Section 108 . . . 339
Section 109 . . . 339
Section 114 . . . 344
Section 119 . . . 345
Section 120 . . . 347

Sections 120-A and 120-B . . . 348
(1) Nature and scope of offence of conspiracy . . . 350
(2) Abetment and conspiracy . . . 354
(3) Conviction for substantive offence other than the conspiracy . . . 355
(4) Two or more persons required . . . 359
(5) Ingredients of conspiracy . . . 361
(6) Charge/Averments in complaint. . . . 382
(7) Procedural aspects . . . 383
(8) Sanction/Immunity . . . 389
(9) Quashment . . . 395
(10) Bail . . . 407
(11) Proof of conspiracy . . . 411
(12) Testimony, confession or actions of co-conspirators . . . 422
(13) Acquittal or conviction of co-conspirator(s) . . . 427
(14) Particular instances of conspiracy . . . 429
(15) Multiple conspiracies . . . 443
(16) Corruption cases . . . 443
(17) Sentence . . . 461

Section 121 . . . 466
Section 121-A. . . . 475
Section 122 . . . 476
Section 123 . . . 476
Section 124 . . . 477
Section 124-A. . . . 477
Section 127 . . . 479
Section 129 . . . 479
Section 132 . . . 479
Section 136 . . . 479
Section 141 . . . 479

Page

Section 142 483
Section 143 483
Section 144 486
Section 146 486
Section 147 486
Section 148 497

Section 149 508
- (1) Generally 509
- (2) Nature of liability under 514
- (3) The charge and S. 149 517
- (4) Ingredients for establishing liability under S. 149 525
  - (i) Broadly 525
  - (ii) Unlawful assembly — What is — Prior concert or on spur of moment 541
  - (iii) Common object — What is. 546
  - (iv) Common object distinct from offence caused 548
  - (v) Change in common object 551
  - (vi) Membership of unlawful assembly. 552
  - (vii) Participation/Overt act/Specific role. 557
  - (viii) Presence 565
  - (ix) Knowledge of offence likely to be committed 567
- (5) Common object — Proof or inference of 570
- (6) Section 149 and Section 34 — Common object and common intention 582
- (7) Section 149 and other sections 586
- (8) Common object and private defence 587
- (9) Sudden or free fight. 588
- (10) Rioting 593
- (11) Murder as common object 595
- (12) Guilt under S. 149 established 610
- (13) Guilt under S. 149 not established 611
- (14) Acquittal of other accused 612
- (15) Conviction of less than five persons 614
- (16) Sentence 623
- (17) Other Issues 623

Section 152 623
Section 153 623
Section 153-A. 626
Section 153-B. 633
Section 157 634

Section 161 635
- (1) Nature, scope and ingredients 635
- (2) Public servant. 640
  - (i) Generally 640
  - (ii) Sanction for prosecution 643

SECTION 161

Page

(3) Nature of charge 646
(4) Cognizance of offence/Jurisdiction 646
(5) Acceptance of illegal gratification 648
(6) Presumption of acceptance of bribe 654

(7) Proof 661
  (i) Generally 661
  (ii) Traps and trap witnesses 662
  (iii) Other witnesses 672

(8) S. 161 and PC Act 674
(9) Guilt established 675
(10) Guilt not established 676
(11) Co-accused/Approver/Conspiracy 678
(12) Sentence 679
(13) Miscellaneous. 683

Section 162 684
Section 163 684
Section 164 685
Section 165 685
Section 165-A. 686
Section 166 688
Section 167 690
Section 168 691
Section 169 691
Section 170 693
Section 171 693
Section 171-A. 693
Section 171-B. 693
Section 171-C 694
Section 171-D 695
Section 171-E. 695
Section 171-F. 695
Section 171-G 695
Section 171-H 695
Section 171-I 695
Section 172 695
Section 173 696
Section 174 696
Section 175 697
Section 176 699
Section 177 700
Section 178 702
Section 179 702

Page
Section 180 703
Section 181 703
Section 182 703
Section 183 705
Section 184 705
Section 185 705
Section 186 705
Section 187 706
Section 188 706
Section 189 706
Section 190 706
Chapter XI 706
Section 191 707
Section 192 713
Section 193 719
Section 194 730
Section 195 730
Section 196 731
Section 197 731
Section 198 731
Section 199 732
Section 200 733
Section 201 734
Section 202 749
Section 203 750
Section 204 750
Section 205 750
Section 206 751
Section 207 751
Section 208 751
Section 209 751
Section 210 752
Section 211 752
Section 212 755
Section 213 755
Section 214 755
Section 216 755
Section 217 756
Section 218 756
Section 219 757
Section 220 757
Section 221 758
Section 224 758
Section 225 758

SECTIONS 228 TO 297

Page
Section 228 759
Section 228-A. 761
Section 232 763
Section 239 763
Section 240 763
Section 242 763
Section 243 763
Section 246 763
Section 247 763
Section 248 763
Section 249 763
Section 250 763
Section 251 763
Section 252 763
Section 253 763
Section 255 763
Section 256 763
Section 257 763
Section 258 763
Section 259 764
Section 260 764
Section 261 764
Section 263-A. 764
Section 264 764
Section 265 764
Section 266 764
Chapter XIV 764
Section 268 764
Section 269 766
Section 270 768
Section 272 768
Section 277-A. 769
Section 279 769
Section 282 773
Section 285 773
Section 290 774
Section 291 774
Section 292 774
Section 293 788
Section 294 788
Section 295 790
Section 295-A. 790
Section 297 794

Page

SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER

Bird's eye view

In Vol. 1

A. CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — BASIC PRINCIPLES 802

1. Culpable Homicide or Murder — Determination of 802

(a) Broadly 803
(b) Knowledge and Intention — What are and proof of 818
(c) Causation. 823
(d) S. 300 Firstly — Intention to cause death. 828
(e) S. 300 Secondly — Knowledge that bodily injury caused is likely to cause death 858
(f) S. 300 Thirdly — Bodily injury caused sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death 869
(g) S. 300 Fourthly — Imminently dangerous act, in all probability would lead to death, etc. 926

In Vol. 2

(h) S. 300 Exception 1 — Grave and Sudden Provocation 10
(i) S. 300 Exception 2 — Exceeding Right of Private Defence 30
(j) S. 300 Exception 3 — Public Servant or Aiding Public Servant 61
(k) S. 300 Exception 4 — Sudden Fight in Heat of Passion upon Sudden Quarrel without Premeditation 63
(l) S. 300 Exception 5 — Taking on Risk of Death 119
(m) S. 301 — Culpable Homicide or Murder of Person other than whose death intended 119
(n) S. 303 — Murder by Life Convict. 124
(o) Single Blow or Injury 130
(p) Other issues 149

2. Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder 150

(a) Broadly (Ss. 299 and 304) 150
(b) Explns. to S. 299 155
(c) S. 304 Pt. I or Pt. II — Applicability and/or Determination of 156

3. Mental insanity/Intoxication. 183

B. CULPABLE HOMICIDE OR MURDER INVOLVING MULTIPLE ACCUSED. . . 184

1. Generally 185
2. Charge/Acquittal under S. 302 r/w S. 34 or S. 149 but conviction under S. 302 simpliciter . 186
3. Common intention (S. 34). 191
4. Common object (Ss. 141 to 149) 281
5. Conspiracy (Ss. 120-A and 120-B) 370
6. Abetment (Ss. 107-120). 378
7. Free Fight 379
8. Group rivalry/Mob fight 383

C. PARTICULAR KINDS OF CULPABLE HOMICIDE, MURDER AND/OR OTHER OFFENCES. 386

In Vols. 2 & 3

D. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES. 572

Page

Detailed Contents

SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER

A. CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — BASIC PRINCIPLES 802

1. Culpable Homicide or Murder — Determination of 802
   - (a) Broadly 803
   - (b) Knowledge and Intention — What are and proof of 818
   - (c) Causation 823
   - (d) S. 300 Firstly — Intention to cause death 828
     - (i) Intention — What is and Proof thereof 828
     - (ii) Cumulative effect when attack by group vis-à-vis individual action(s) 844
     - (iii) Murder proved 847
     - (iv) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 851
     - (v) Even lesser offence proved 857
   - (e) S. 300 Secondly — Knowledge that bodily injury caused is likely to cause death 858
     - (i) Generally 858
     - (ii) Knowledge — What is and proof thereof 859
     - (iii) Cumulative effect when attack by group vis-à-vis individual action(s) 864
     - (iv) Murder proved 865
     - (v) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 867
   - (f) S. 300 Thirdly — Bodily injury caused sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death 869
     - (i) Generally 869
     - (ii) Sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death 870
     - (iii) Cumulative effect when attack by group vis-à-vis individual action(s) 896
     - (iv) Murder proved 902
     - (v) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 914
     - (vi) Even lesser offence proved 924
     - (vii) Outright Acquittal 926
   - (g) S. 300 Fourthly — Imminently dangerous act, in all probability would lead to death, etc. 926

Volume 2

   - (h) S. 300 Exception 1 — Grave and Sudden Provocation 10
     - (i) Generally 10
     - (ii) Grave and Sudden Provocation 10
     - (iii) Exceptions 1 and 4 compared and contrasted 18
     - (iv) Murder proved 25
     - (v) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 27

SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER

Page

(i) S. 300 Exception 2 — Exceeding Right of Private Defence. 30
- (i) Generally 31
- (ii) Commencement and Continuation of Right of Private Defence 31
- (iii) Attack on Unarmed Persons/Women 31
- (iv) Non-availability of the Defence to Aggressors 31
- (v) Determination of Aggressor 34
- (vi) Acting in a Cruel and Unusual Manner 34
- (vii) Private Defence Established/Not Established on Facts — Right when exceeded 34
- (viii) Injuries on Accused 46
- (ix) Pleadings and particulars 49
- (x) Burden and Onus of proof 49
- (xi) Private defence of property 50
- (xii) Other issues 51
- (xiii) Murder proved 51
- (xiv) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 53
- (xv) Even lesser offence proved 60
- (xvi) Outright Acquittal 60

(j) S. 300 Exception 3 — Public Servant or Aiding Public Servant. 61

(k) S. 300 Exception 4 — Sudden Fight in Heat of Passion upon Sudden Quarrel without Premeditation 63
- (i) Generally 63
- (ii) Exceptions 4 and 1 compared and contrasted. 64
- (iii) Ingredients of Exception 4 65
- (iv) Murder proved 81
- (v) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 89
- (vi) Even lesser offence proved 117
- (vii) Outright Acquittal 118

(l) S. 300 Exception 5 — Taking on Risk of Death. 119
- (i) Generally 119
- (ii) Ingredients of Exception 5 119

(m) S. 301 — Culpable Homicide or Murder of Person other than whose death intended 119

(n) S. 303 — Murder by Life Convict 124

(o) Single Blow or Injury 130
- (i) Generally 130
- (ii) Murder proved 135
- (iii) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 140

(p) Other issues 149

2. Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder. 150

(a) Broadly (Ss. 299 and 304) 150

(b) Explns. to S. 299 155

A. CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — BASIC PRINCIPLES (contd.)

2. Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder (contd.)

(c) S. 304 Pt. I or Pt. II — Applicability and/or Determination of 156
  (i) Generally 156
  (ii) S. 304 Pt. I proved 158
  (iii) S. 304 Pt. II proved 160
  (iv) Even lesser offence proved 169
  (v) Outright Acquittal 169
  (vi) Sentence under S. 304 Pts. I/II 172

3. Mental insanity/Intoxication 183

B. CULPABLE HOMICIDE OR MURDER INVOLVING MULTIPLE ACCUSED 184

1. Generally 185
2. Charge/Acquittal under S. 302 r/w S. 34 or S. 149 but conviction under S. 302 simpliciter 186
3. Common intention (S. 34) 191
  (a) Nature of liability under: Vicarious or constructive liability. 192
  (b) The Charge and S. 34 193
  (c) Ingredients for establishing liability under S. 34. 200
    (i) Broadly 200
    (ii) "Common intention" — What is — Prior concert. 200
    (iii) Development of common intention on the spot 201
    (iv) Participation/Overt acts/Specific role 201
    (v) Presence 205
    (vi) Exhortation or Incitement 206
  (d) Common intention — Proof or inference of 208
  (e) Acquittal/Conviction/Sentence of some or all other accused — Conviction of main assailant(s) 220
  (f) Common intention and individual motive 232
  (g) Common intention to murder if present 233
  (h) Conviction for murder with aid of S. 34 justified. 242
  (i) Conviction for culpable homicide not amounting to murder or lesser offence 263
  (j) Outright Acquittal justified. 266
  (k) Sentence 275
4. Common object (Ss. 141 to 149) 281
  (a) Nature of liability under 282
  (b) The Charge and S. 149 284
  (c) Ingredients for establishing liability under S. 149 287
    (i) Unlawful assembly — What is — Prior concert or on spur of moment 287
    (ii) Common object distinct from offence caused 287
    (iii) Participation/Overt Act/Specific Role 288

(iv) Presence . . . 294
(v) Exhortation or Incitement . . . 295
(vi) Knowledge of offence likely to be committed . . . 295

(d) Common object — Proof or inference of . . . 298
(e) Section 149 and Section 34 — Common object and common intention . . . 307
(f) Large group involved . . . 307
(g) Acquittal/Conviction/Sentence of some or all other accused — Conviction of main assailant(s) . . . 311
(h) Conviction of less than five persons . . . 328
(i) Murder as common object if present . . . 330
(j) Conviction for murder with and under Ss. 141-149 justified. . . . 336
(k) Conviction for culpable homicide not amounting to murder . . . 353
(l) Outright Acquittal justified . . . 355
(m) Sentence . . . 365

5. Conspiracy (Ss. 120-A and 120-B) . . . 370
(a) Conviction for substantive offence other than the conspiracy . . . 370
(b) Proof of conspiracy . . . 370
(c) Testimony, confession or actions of co-conspirators . . . 375
(d) Acquittal or Conviction of co-conspirator(s) . . . 376
(e) Conviction confirmed . . . 376

6. Abetment (Ss. 107-120) . . . 378
7. Free Fight. . . . 379
8. Group rivalry/Mob fight . . . 383

C. PARTICULAR KINDS OF CULPABLE HOMICIDE, MURDER AND/OR OTHER OFFENCES 386

1. Abetment of suicide (S. 306) . . . 387
2. Acid attack/death . . . 388
3. Asphyxia/Throttling/Strangulation/Hanging . . . 389
4. Attempted murder (S. 307) . . . 391
5. Burning — Death by . . . 392
6. Communal or other riot . . . 395
7. Concealment of evidence (S. 201) . . . 400
8. Criminal negligence/Motor vehicle accident (S. 304-A) . . . 401
9. Dowry death/Bride burning (S. 304-B) . . . 404
Sentence . . . 436
10. Murder of wife . . . 438
11. Family murders . . . 462
12. Hurt, grievous or not, with or without dangerous weapons or means (Ss. 319 to 338) . . . 480
13. Kidnapping . . . 491
14. Poisoning . . . 495
15. Police atrocities/Custodial violence/death . . . 498

C. PARTICULAR KINDS OF CULPABLE HOMICIDE, MURDER AND/OR OTHER OFFENCES (contd.)

16. Police/defence personnel's murder 517
17. Political rivalry/Murder 520
18. Public duty — Discharge of — Death arising out of 525
19. Rape & other sexual offences 526
20. Social/Communal murders 537
21. Robbery/Dacoity/Theft 552
22. Terrorism/Organised crime 562
23. Other 570

D. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES 572

1. Accused 576
2. Acquittal 577
  (a) Generally 577
  (b) Acquittal justified 577
  (c) Acquittal reversed 587
  (d) Acquittal of co-accused/Some accused/Benefit of their acquittal 594
  (e) Benefit of acquittal in another case/of other offences 597
3. Appeal 598
  (a) Generally 598
  (b) Appeal against acquittal 599
  (c) Appeal against conviction 607
  (d) Reference to Third Judge 612
  (e) Appeal to Supreme Court 612
  (f) Absence of appeal by State 617
4. Appreciation of Evidence 621
  (a) Generally 621
  (b) Appellate court's power and approach 623
  (c) Conjectures and surmises 624
  (d) Contradictions, inconsistencies, exaggerations or embellishments 626
  (e) Credibility of witness 646
  (f) Medical evidence vis-à-vis Ocular evidence 662
  (g) Reappreciation/Reappraisal of Evidence 668
5. Bail/Suspension of sentence 669
6. Charge 677
7. Circumstantial Evidence 685
  (a) Generally 685
  (b) Abscondence 693
  (c) Benefit of doubt 694

(d) Clues and Tell-Tale Signs/Forensics 695
  (i) Bloodmarks/Trail and Bloodstains 695
  (ii) Fingerprints and footprints 698
(e) Conduct of accused 698
(f) Confession 702
  Extra-judicial confession/Hearsay 702
(g) Custodial death 704
(h) Defence 705
  Alibi 705
(i) Failure to explain incriminating circumstances 705
(j) Injuries on accused 708
(k) Injuries on victim 708
(l) Kidnapping 708
(m) Last seen together 713
(n) Links in the chain of circumstances 726
(o) Miscellaneous 726
(p) Missing links but strong motive 727
(q) Motive 728
(r) Murder proved 734
(s) Murder not proved 747
(t) Poisoning 756
(u) Rape 763
(v) Recovery of crime articles/incriminating articles/other articles 772
(w) Recovery of dead body/corpus delicti 781
(x) Robbery/Dacoity/Theft 785
(y) Sentence 793

8. Clues and Tell-Tale Signs/Forensics 795
(a) Bloodmarks/Trail and Bloodstains 795
(b) Fingerprints and footprints 801

9. Co-accused 802
  Parity between co-accused 802

10. Cognizance 802

11. Conduct of accused, complainant, witnesses, etc. 803
(a) Conduct of accused 803
(b) Abscondence 804
(c) Conduct/Reaction/Behaviour of witness 805

12. Confession 813
(a) Generally 813
(b) Confession of accused 816

SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER

Page

D. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES (contd.)

12. Confession (contd.)

- (c) Confession of co-accused 818
- (d) Extra-judicial confession/Hearsay. 821
- (e) Confession under special statutes 826
- (f) Retracted confession 829

13. Conviction confirmed 832

14. Defence. 840
- (a) Generally 840
- (b) Alibi 840
- (c) Defence version/story. 843
- (d) Falsity of defence plea/Adverse Inference 843
- (e) False implication/accusation 844

15. Dying declaration 847

16. Examination 886
- (a) Examination of accused. 886
- (b) Delayed examination of witnesses 891
- (c) Non-examination/failure to examine witness 892

17. Expert evidence 895
- (a) Generally 895
- (b) Handwriting 896

18. FIR 896
- (a) Generally 896
- (b) Delay in lodging/filing FIR. 901

19. Genesis of the occurrence 906

20. Identification 908
- (a) Generally 908
- (b) Identification by voice 908
- (c) Identification of accused 909
- (d) Identification of accused at night/darkness 916
- (e) Identification of dead body/corpus delicti 921
- (f) Identification by photograph/effect of having seen photograph 926
- (g) Test identification parade 926
- (h) Identification of articles 930

21. Injuries, Wounds and Weapons 930
- (a) Generally 930
- (b) Discrepancies. 931
- (c) Injuries on accused 933
- (d) Injuries on deceased 93

Page

(e) Blunt weapons/Blunt side of sharp weapon 939
(f) Firearm/Bomb/Gunshot injuries/wounds/Ballistics/Ballistic expert 941
(g) Incised/lacerated wound/Sharp weapons 960
(h) Particular Injuries/Offences 966

22. Investigation 966
(a) Generally 966
(b) Defective or Illegal Investigation 967
(c) Delay in Investigation 973
(d) Fresh/Additional Investigation/Re-investigation 973

(e) Documents, etc. relating to Investigation 975
(i) Inquest Report/Panchnama 975
(ii) Police Station Daily Diary 976
(iii) Site Plan 976

(f) Right against Torture/Testimonial Compulsion 977

23. Jury 977

24. Juvenile/Child Accused 977

25. Medical Jurisprudence/Evidence 986
(a) Generally 987
(b) Acid 988
(c) Age 988
(d) Asphyxia/Throttling/Strangulation/Hanging 989
(e) Burn Injuries/Death by Burning 995
(f) Cause of Death 998
(g) Drowning 1002
(h) Drunkenness/Sleep potion 1002
(i) Medical/Expert Opinion 1002
(j) Medico-Legal Cases/Doctors 1004
(k) Medico-Legal Report/Certificate 1004
(l) Mental Illness/Unsoundness of Mind/Insanity 1005
(m) Particular Diseases and Conditions 1007
(n) Poisoning 1009
(o) Post-mortem examination/report 1015
(p) Skeletonising of Dead Body 1015
(q) Suicide or homicide/murder 1016
(r) Time of Death/Rigor Mortis 1027

26. Motive 1030

27. Practice and Procedure 1040
(a) Documents 1040
Non-Production of Documents 1040
(b) Joint Trial 1040

D. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES (contd.)

27. Practice and Procedure (contd.)

(c) Maintainability/Jurisdiction 1040
(d) Natural Justice 1041
(e) Pleadings 1041
(f) Recall/Review. 1041
(g) Remand. 1042
(h) Transfer of case. 1043
(i) Writ petition 1044

28. Precedents 1044

29. Proof 1045
(a) Generally 1045
(b) Admissibility of Evidence 1047
(c) Benefit of Doubt. 1048
(d) Cause of Death 1053
(e) Corroboration 1053
(f) Falsus in Uno, Falsus in Omnibus 1054

(g) Presumptions 1057
(i) Presumption of Innocence 1057
(ii) Presumption of Guilt 1057
(iii) Other Presumptions 1060

(h) Proof beyond Reasonable Doubt 1060
(i) Recovery of crime/incriminating material/other articles 1061
(j) Recovery of Dead Body/Corpus Delicti 1068
(k) Suspicion 1072
(l) Place of Occurrence 1073

30. Prosecution. 1074
31. Quashment 1074
32. Revision 1076
33. Sanction for trial 1080
34. Search and Seizure. 1080

35. Sentence 1081
(a) Generally 1082
(b) Clemency/Remission by Executive. 1083
(c) Premature Release/Probation. 1085
(d) Compensation to Victim/Suit for damages 1085
(e) Compromise/Compounding/Redressal of Harm/Pardon by victim's family 1088

(f) Death Sentence. 1088
(i) General principles for imposition of death sentence. 1089

(ii) Aggravating and mitigating circumstances. 1109
1. Broadly 1109
2. Age of accused 1128

Page

3. Brutality of murder and Victims — Number, age, helplessness of persons killed 1133
4. Co-accused not sentenced to death/already sentenced to death — Death sentence based on vicarious liability 1143
5. Concurrence lacking as to imposition of death sentence (at different stages or amongst Judges at same stage). 1154
6. Delay in execution of death sentence 1158
7. Domestic servant/person in trust committing brutal murder 1165
8. Dowry death/Bride burning 1168
9. Duress or compulsion/Co-accused inducing participation 1171
10. Evidence and Proof — Nature and quality of — If circumstantial 1174
11. Family murders/feud/eradication of family 1181
12. Greed/Financial status/Need of accused/Robbery/Dacoity and murder. 1200
13. Kidnapping and murder 1207
14. Life convict committing murder/Previous conviction for murder 1209
15. Manner of murder/disposal of body 1211
16. Mental state and intention: Provocation/Irresistable impulse to kill, enmity, etc. or Premeditated/Cold-blooded murder, etc.. 1212
17. Political murders/Assassinations 1223
18. Professional murderers and Organised crime 1229
19. Public servants' murder 1231

20. Rape and murder 1233
    20.1. Generally 1233
    20.2. Rape and murder of minor 1233
    20.3. Other cases of rape and murder 1248

21. Rehabilitation/reform of accused — Scope 1251
22. Revenge/Vengeance 1253
23. Social/Communal/Caste reasons for committing murder/Communal riot 1257
24. Societal threat/menace/Serial/Sociopathic murders 1270
25. Terrorism and murder 1274
26. Other aggravating or mitigating circumstances 1276

27. Instances 1277
    27.1. Death upheld 1277
    27.2. Death commuted 1277

(iii) Commutation to imprisonment of specified term. 1278
(iv) Enhancement of life imprisonment to death sentence. 1287
(v) Sentence hearing/Confirmation proceedings 1288
(vi) Review petition against death sentence 1294
(vii) Clemency petition before Executive against death sentence. 1299
(viii) Other issues 1300

Volume 3

(g) Fine 10
(h) Life sentence 10
(i) Minimum sentence/Minimum statutory sentence 11

Page

D. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES (contd.)

35. Sentence (contd.)

(j) Plea bargaining 11
(k) Principles for sentencing 11
(i) Generally 12
(ii) Age of accused/Juvenile/State of accused 12
(iii) Delay/pendency in proceedings/execution of sentence 13
(iv) Nature of Offence 14
(v) Provocation/Irresistable impulse to kill 14
(vi) Sentence not reduced/enhanced 14
(l) Particular cases 15
(i) Dowry death/Bride burning 15
(ii) Rape and other sexual offences 15
(iii) Other 15
(m) Sentence already undergone 15
(n) Set-off 16

36. Time of Occurrence 16
37. Transfer of Malice 18
38. Witnesses 23
(a) Accomplice/Approver 24
(b) Antecedent Character/Background/Status of Witness 29
(c) Chance witness 29
(d) Child/Young witness 32
(e) Eyewitness 40
(f) Hostile witness 43
(g) Independent witness 46
(h) Inimical witness 47
(i) Injured witness 49
(j) Interested/Partisan witness 53
(k) Material witness 59
(l) Medical witness 59
(m) Natural witness 59
(n) Witness Protection and Support 62
(o) Related witness 62
(p) Rustic/Village/Rural Witness 72
(q) Sole/Solitary witness 73
(r) Tutored/Pressurised witness 83

Section 304-A — Causing Death by Negligence 84
(1) Generally — Nature, Scope and Applicability 84
(2) "Rash or negligent act" — What is 89
(3) Causation 93

Page

(4) Proof of criminal negligence 94
(5) Medical negligence 97
(6) Motor vehicle accidents 103
(7) Other situations 114
(8) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/Relief to victim 117
(9) Effect on civil proceedings for compensation/damages 122
(10) Other issues 122

Section 304-B — Dowry Death 123

(1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability 123
(2) History of S. 304-B and Abuse of dowry laws 124
(3) Pre-S. 304-B dowry deaths 124
(4) Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A IPC and Ss. 113-A/113-B, Evidence Act — Relative scope 125
(5) The charge and S. 304-B 130

(6) Ingredients of dowry death and presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act . . . 131
    (i) Broadly 131
    (ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises 145
    (iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance 157
    (iv) "Within seven years of marriage" 159
    (v) Cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand 165
    (vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.] 166
    (vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation 171
    (viii) Husband or any relative of husband — Who are and their culpability 179

(7) Trial, Proof and Other issues 181
    (i) Acquittal justified 181
    (ii) Appeal/Revision 185
    (iii) Appreciation of evidence 187
    (iv) Bail 187
    (v) Cause of death — Suicide or homicide 189
    (vi) Circumstantial evidence 191
    (vii) Conviction justified 194
    (viii) Dying declaration 199
    (ix) Other issues relating to proof 205
    (x) Witnesses 206

(8) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment 207

(9) Death sentence — When warranted 211

(10) Other issues 212

Page

Section 306 — Abetment of Suicide 214
- (1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability 214
- (2) Ss. 306, 304-B and 498-A — Relative scope 215
- (3) The charge and S. 306 216
- (4) Ingredients of abetment of suicide 220
  - (i) Broadly 220
  - (ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of 222
  - (iii) Presumption of abetment of suicide (S. 113-A, Evidence Act) 233
  - (iv) Temperament of person committing suicide 238
- (5) Trial, Proof and Other issues 240
  - (i) Acquittal justified 240
  - (ii) Circumstantial evidence 242
  - (iii) Conviction justified 242
  - (iv) Dying declaration 243
  - (v) Other issues 243
  - (vi) Quashment or continuance of proceedings 245
  - (vii) Relatives of husband 248
  - (viii) Suicide note 249
- (6) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief 251

Section 307 — Attempt to Murder 252
- (1) S. 307 or Ss. 302/304 253
- (2) S. 307 and other offences 254
- (3) Ingredients of attempt to murder 258
- (4) Trial, Proof and Other issues 269
  - (i) Acquittal justified 269
  - (ii) Appeal/Revision/Writ petition 271
  - (iii) Appreciation of evidence 272
  - (iv) Bail 273
  - (v) Conviction justified 274
  - (vi) Other issues 280
  - (vii) Witnesses 282
- (5) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief 282

Section 308 289
Section 309 291
Section 310 295
Section 311 295
Section 312 295
Section 313 295
Section 314 295
Section 315 298
Section 316 298

Page

Section 317 298
Section 318 298
Section 319 298
Section 320 298
Section 321 300
Section 322 300
Section 323 300
Section 324 310
Section 325 321
Section 326 327
Section 327 344
Section 328 344
Section 330 345
Section 331 350
Section 332 350
Section 333 351
Section 334 351
Section 335 351
Section 336 351
Section 337 351
Section 338 352
Section 339 353
Section 340 354
Section 340-A 355
Section 341 356
Section 342 360
Section 343 363
Section 344 363
Section 346 363
Section 347 363
Section 348 364
Section 349 365
Section 351 365
Section 352 365
Section 353 365
Section 354 367
Section 355 378
Section 359 378
Section 360 379
Section 361 379
Section 362 384
Section 363 385
Section 363-A. 390
Section 364 390

Page
Section 364-A. 396
Section 365 403
Section 366 405
Section 366-A. 413
Section 366-B. 416
Section 367 416
Section 368 417
Section 369 417
Section 370 417
Section 372 417
Section 373 417
Section 374 417

Sections 375-376-D — Rape 419

A. RAPE — BASIC PRINCIPLES 421

1. Generally — Meaning and Scope 421
2. Abuse or misuse of rape laws. 429
3. Ingredients of rape 429
   (a) Broadly 430
   (b) "Against her will" and "without her consent" 430
   (c) Presumption against consent under S. 114-A, Evidence Act 448
   (d) Penetration/Intercourse 448
   (e) Ss. 376-A to 376-D. 454
   (f) Habituated to Sex 455
4. Prior sexual history/conduct — Relevance, if any. 457
5. Prosecution of woman for rape 459

B. PARTICULAR KINDS OF RAPE AND WITH OTHER OFFENCES 461

1. Rape and murder/death. 461
2. Rape by person in authority. 477
3. Rape of servant 485
4. Gang rape/Rape by multiple accused/Conspiracy 485
5. Rape of pregnant woman 506
6. Rape of minor/Statutory rape 506
7. Abduction/Kidnapping/Trafficking and rape 543
8. Incest and rape 551
9. Attempt to rape 555
10. Rape or outraging modesty/indecent assault/other lesser sexual offences 559
11. Rape of mentally deficient woman 565
12. Other offences and rape 565

C. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES 568

1. Treatment of prosecutrix 569
2. Acquittal justified 571
3. Appeal 575
4. Appreciation of Evidence 577
   (a) Generally 578
   (b) Appellate court's approach 579
   (c) Contradictions, inconsistencies, exaggerations or embellishments 580
   (d) Credibility of prosecutrix/witness 584
   (e) Medical evidence vis-à-vis evidence of prosecutrix 585
   (f) Reappreciation/Reappraisal of evidence 586
5. Bail/Suspension of sentence 586
6. Charge 588
7. Circumstantial Evidence 590
   (a) Generally 590
   (b) Clues and Tell-Tale Signs/Forensics 591
   (c) Acquittal justified 593
   (d) Conviction justified 594
   (e) Injuries on accused 598
   (f) Last seen together 599
   (g) Motive 601
   (h) Recovery of crime articles/incriminating articles/other articles 601
   (i) Recovery of dead body/corpus delicti 602
8. Conduct of accused, prosecutrix, witnesses, etc. 602
9. Confession 603
10. Conviction justified 603
11. Conviction on sole testimony of prosecutrix 607
12. Defence 607
13. Dying declaration 608
14. Examination 608
15. FIR 610
    (a) Generally 610
    (b) Delay in lodging/filing FIR 610
16. Identification 621
17. Investigation 625
    (a) Generally 625
    (b) Defective or illegal or delayed investigation 626
    (c) Tests which can be conducted on accused or prosecutrix 627
18. Judge/Presiding Judge/Court — Role of in rape cases 628
19. Juvenile/Child accused 630

Page

C. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES (contd.)

20. Medical Jurisprudence/Evidence . . . 631
    - (a) Age of prosecutrix or accused . . . 631
    - (b) DNA test . . . 637
    - (c) Injuries on prosecutrix or absence thereof . . . 638
    - (d) Medical/Expert opinion . . . 651
    - (e) Medical examination of prosecutrix . . . 651
    - (f) Medical examination of accused . . . 651
    - (g) Medico-legal report/Doctor . . . 651
    - (h) Time of rape . . . 652
    - (i) Medical evidence of sex/rape . . . 653

21. Practice and Procedure . . . 659

22. Proof . . . 659
    - (a) Generally . . . 659
    - (b) Corroboration . . . 660
    - (c) Laboratory Test . . . 661
    - (d) Recovery of crime/incriminating material/other articles . . . 661
    - (e) Testimony of prosecutrix and also S. 114-A, Evidence Act . . . 662

23. Revision . . . 695

24. Sentence . . . 696
    - (a) Generally . . . 696
    - (b) Premature release/Probation . . . 702
    - (c) Compensation to rehabilitation of victim/Suit for damages . . . 702
    - (d) Death Sentence . . . 706
        - (i) Generally . . . 706
        - (ii) Death upheld . . . 706
        - (iii) Commutation to life when warranted . . . 707
    - (e) Fine and Imprisonment in default . . . 710
    - (f) Minimum sentence/Minimum statutory sentence — Ss. 376(1) & (2) provisos . . . 711
        - (i) Generally . . . 711
        - (ii) Adequate and Special reasons . . . 711
            - (1) Generally . . . 711
            - (2) Reasons that may be considered special and adequate . . . 718
        - (iii) Instances . . . 727
    - (g) Principles for sentencing . . . 733
        - (i) Generally . . . 734
        - (ii) Age/Health state of accused/Juvenile . . . 734
        - (iii) Accused marrying prosecutrix . . . 735
        - (iv) Delay/Pendency in proceedings/execution of sentence . . . 735
        - (v) Proportionality . . . 737
        - (vi) Background/station/education of accused . . . 737
        - (vii) Other . . . 738

Page

(viii) Sentence reduced 739
(ix) Sentence not reduced/enhanced 740
25. Witnesses 740

Section 377 741
Section 378 745
Section 379 751
Section 380 754
Section 381 756
Section 382 756
Section 383 756
Section 384 757
Section 385 761
Section 386 761
Section 387 761
Section 388 762
Section 389 762
Section 390 762
Section 391 762
Section 392 763
Section 393 769
Section 394 769
Section 395 775
Section 396 788
Section 397 799
Section 398 805
Section 399 806
Section 400 808
Section 401 808
Section 402 808
Section 403 808
Section 404 811

Sections 405-409 — Criminal Breach of Trust 812
(1) Generally — Nature, Scope and Applicability 813
(2) Ss. 405-409 and other provisions 813
(3) The charge and Ss. 405-409 815

(4) Ingredients of criminal breach of trust 818
(i) Broadly 818
(ii) Dishonest intention — Mens rea — Civil dispute(s) only 823
(iii) Property — What is 826
(iv) Entrustment of or dominion over property 829
(v) Misappropriation, use, disposal, etc.. 839
(vi) Temporary deprivation or retention of property/Suffering of loss 844
(vii) Violation of direction of law or express or implied legal contract 846
(viii) Wilfully suffers another to commit criminal breach of trust. 851

SECTIONS 405-409 — CRIMINAL BREACH OF TRUST

Page

(5) Vicarious or constructive liability — Offences by company 852
(6) Default in payment of employee's EPF or ESI contribution by employer (S. 405 Explns.) 856
(7) Criminal breach of trust by clerk or servant, etc. (S. 408). 858
(8) Criminal breach of trust by public servant (S. 409) — Corruption cases. 861
  (i) Broadly 861
  (ii) Relative scope vis-à-vis Prevention of Corruption Act 873
  (iii) Sanction for prosecution 874
  (iv) Instances 878
  (v) Sentence 889
(9) Criminal breach of trust by banker, merchant, factor, broker or agent, etc. (S. 409) . 892
(10) Criminal breach of trust re dowry articles/stridhan 900
(11) Criminal breach of trust by partner 905
(12) Trial, Proof and Other issues 906
  (i) Acquittal justified 906
  (ii) Appeal/Revision 906
  (iii) Appreciation of evidence and proof 908
  (iv) Bail 909
  (v) Circumstantial evidence 911
  (vi) Double jeopardy 911
  (vii) Expert evidence 912
  (viii) Investigation, Cognizance, Summons, etc. 912
  (ix) Joint trial/Re-trial/Consolidation/Transfer of cases 915
  (x) Jurisdiction 917
  (xi) Limitation 918
  (xii) Other issues 919
  (xiii) Quashment/Stay/Civil proceedings 919
  (xiv) Witnesses 933
(13) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief 934

Section 410 934
Section 411 935
Section 412 941
Section 413 944
Section 414 944

Sections 415-420 — Cheating 945
(1) Ss. 415-420 and other provisions of law 947
(2) The charge and Ss. 415-420 950
(3) Ingredients of cheating 951
  (i) Broadly 951
  (ii) Property — What is 957
  (iii) Deceiving any person — Deception — What is 957

- (iv) Dishonest concealment of facts (S. 415 Expln.) 958
- (v) Mens rea — If civil offence(s) only — Dishonest intention when must exist . . . 959
- (vi) Fraudulently or dishonestly inducing delivery or retention of property by or with consent of deceived person. 964
- (vii) Intentionally inducing deceived person to commit act or omission likely to cause harm or damage to him 966

(4) Cheating by personation (Ss. 416 & 419) 967

(5) Cheating person whose interest offender is bound by law or legal contract to protect (S. 418) 972

(6) Cheating and dishonestly inducing delivery of property (S. 420) 973

- (i) Broadly 973
- (ii) Property — What is 976
- (iii) Cheating and dishonestly inducing — Proof of dishonest intention 976
- (iv) Inducing delivery of property — S. 420 vis-à-vis mere cheating 978
- (v) Inducing making of, alteration or destruction of valuable security or signed or sealed thing convertible into valuable security 980
- (vi) Mens rea — If civil offence(s) only — Dishonest intention when must exist . . . 980

(7) Fraudulent financial schemes — What are 990

(8) Tax evasion and cheating 993

(9) Attempt to cheat 998

(10) Trial, Proof and Other issues 999

- (i) Acquittal justified 1000
- (ii) Appeal/Revision. 1000
- (iii) Bail 1001
- (iv) Circumstantial evidence. 1005
- (v) Cognizance, Summons, Investigation. 1005
- (vi) Conspiracy/Multiple accused/Abetment. 1010
- (vii) Conviction justified 1015
- (viii) Jurisdiction 1015
- (ix) Juvenile accused 1019
- (x) Limitation 1019
- (xi) Quashment 1019
- (xii) Sanction for prosecution 1041
- (xiii) Transfer/Consolidation of Cases 1042
- (xiv) Vicarious liability — Offence by company. 1043
- (xv) Witnesses. 1046

(11) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief 1046

Section 421 1049

Section 422 1049

Section 423 1049

Section 424 1049

SECTIONS 425 TO 479

Page

Section 425 . . . 1049
Section 426 . . . 1050
Section 427 . . . 1050
Section 428 . . . 1051
Section 429 . . . 1051
Section 430 . . . 1051
Section 435 . . . 1051
Section 436 . . . 1051
Section 438 . . . 1053
Section 439 . . . 1053
Section 440 . . . 1053
Section 441 . . . 1053
Section 447 . . . 1055
Section 448 . . . 1056
Section 449 . . . 1056
Section 450 . . . 1058
Section 451 . . . 1059
Section 452 . . . 1060
Section 453 . . . 1066
Section 454 . . . 1066
Section 455 . . . 1066
Section 456 . . . 1066
Section 457 . . . 1068
Section 458 . . . 1069
Section 459 . . . 1069
Section 460 . . . 1069
Section 461 . . . 1070
Section 462 . . . 1070
Section 463 . . . 1070
Section 464 . . . 1076
Section 465 . . . 1078
Section 466 . . . 1081
Section 467 . . . 1085
Section 468 . . . 1092
Section 469 . . . 1096
Section 470 . . . 1097
Section 471 . . . 1097
Section 472 . . . 1104
Section 473 . . . 1104
Section 474 . . . 1104
Section 475 . . . 1104
Section 476 . . . 1104
Section 477 . . . 1104
Section 477-A. . . . 1105
Section 479 . . . 1107

Page

Section 482 1107
Section 485 1107
Section 486 1107
Section 489-A. 1107
Section 489-B. 1109
Section 489-C 1109
Section 489-D 1109
Section 489-E. 1109
Section 491 1109
Section 493 1110
Section 494 1112
Section 496 1131
Section 497 1131
Section 498 1133

Section 498-A — Cruelty by Husband or his Relatives 1134
(1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability 1135
(2) Ss. 498-A, 304-B & 306 — Relative scope 1136
(3) Abuse of S. 498-A 1140

(4) Ingredients of S. 498-A 1144
  (i) Broadly 1144
  (ii) Husband — Who is 1147
  (iii) Women protected under S. 498-A 1148
  (iv) Relative of husband — Who is 1148
  (v) Cruelty — Meaning of. 1150
    1. Broadly 1150
    2. Wilful conduct likely to drive woman to commit suicide 1157
    3. Wilful conduct likely to cause grave injury or danger to health (mental or physical) of woman 1163
    4. Harassment to meet unlawful demand for property or valuable security — Dowry demand. 1164
    5. Presumption under Ss. 113-A/113-B, Evidence Act 1167

(5) Implication of or relief to relative of husband 1170
(6) Trial, Proof and Other issues 1177
  (i) Generally 1178
  (ii) Acquittal justified 1180
  (iii) Appeal/Revision. 1181
  (iv) Bail 1183
  (v) Circumstantial evidence. 1185
  (vi) Cognizance, Summons, Investigation, Charge-sheet, etc. 1186
  (vii) Conviction justified 1188
  (viii) Dying declaration 1190
  (ix) FIR 1193
  (x) Jurisdiction 1193

SECTION 498-A — CRUELTY BY HUSBAND OR HIS RELATIVES

(6) Trial, Proof and Other issues (contd.)

(xi) Limitation 1194
(xii) Quashment 1196
(xiii) Suicide note. 1203
(xiv) Transfer of case. 1203
(xv) Witnesses. 1204

(7) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief 1205
(8) Other issues 1209

Section 499 . . . . 1210
Section 500 . . . . 1229
Section 501 1233
Section 502 1233
Section 503 . . . . 1234
Section 504 . . . . 1234
Section 505 1235
Section 506 . . . . 1235
Section 506-B 1237
Section 507 1237
Section 509 . . . . 1237
Section 511 . . . . 1238

Supreme Court on
Indian Penal Code, 1860

Volume 3

SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER

Brief Bird's eye view

In Vols. 1 & 2

A. Culpable Homicide and Murder — Basic Principles 802
- 1. Culpable Homicide or Murder — Determination of (Clauses and Exceptions to S. 300 and S. 299, etc.) 802

In Vol. 2

- 2. Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder 150
- 3. Mental insanity/Intoxication 183

B. Culpable Homicide or Murder Involving Multiple Accused 184

C. Particular Kinds of Culpable Homicide, Murder and/or Other Offences 386

In Vols. 2 & 3

D. Trial, Sentencing and Other Issues 572

SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER

Detailed Bird's eye view

In Vol. 1

A. CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — BASIC PRINCIPLES 802

1. Culpable Homicide or Murder — Determination of 802
   - (a) Broadly 803
   - (b) Knowledge and Intention — What are and proof of 818
   - (c) Causation 823
   - (d) S. 300 Firstly — Intention to cause death 828
   - (e) S. 300 Secondly — Knowledge that bodily injury caused is likely to cause death 858
   - (f) S. 300 Thirdly — Bodily injury caused sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death 869
   - (g) S. 300 Fourthly — Imminently dangerous act, in all probability would lead to death, etc. 926

In Vol. 2

   - (h) S. 300 Exception 1 — Grave and Sudden Provocation 10
   - (i) S. 300 Exception 2 — Exceeding Right of Private Defence 30
   - (j) S. 300 Exception 3 — Public Servant or Aiding Public Servant 61
   - (k) S. 300 Exception 4 — Sudden Fight in Heat of Passion upon Sudden Quarrel without Premeditation 63
   - (l) S. 300 Exception 5 — Taking on Risk of Death 119
   - (m) S. 301 — Culpable Homicide or Murder of Person other than whose death intended 119
   - (n) S. 303 — Murder by Life Convict 124
   - (o) Single Blow or Injury 130
   - (p) Other issues 149
2. Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder 150
   - (a) Broadly (Ss. 299 and 304) 150
   - (b) Explns. to S. 299 155
   - (c) S. 304 Pt. I or Pt. II — Applicability and/or Determination of 156
3. Mental insanity/Intoxication 183

B. CULPABLE HOMICIDE OR MURDER INVOLVING MULTIPLE ACCUSED 184

1. Generally 185
2. Charge/Acquittal under S. 302 r/w S. 34 or S. 149 but conviction under S. 302 simpliciter 186
3. Common intention (S. 34) 191
4. Common object (Ss. 141 to 149) 281
5. Conspiracy (Ss. 120-A and 120-B) 370
6. Abetment (Ss. 107-120) 378
7. Free Fight 379
8. Group rivalry/Mob fight 383

C. PARTICULAR KINDS OF CULPABLE HOMICIDE, MURDER AND/OR OTHER OFFENCES 386

In Vols. 2 & 3

D. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES 572

In Vol. 1

A. CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — BASIC PRINCIPLES 802

1. Culpable Homicide or Murder — Determination of 802
- (a) Broadly 803
- (b) Knowledge and Intention — What are and proof of 818
- (c) Causation 823
- (d) S. 300 Firstly — Intention to cause death 828
  - (i) Intention — What is and Proof thereof 828
  - (ii) Cumulative effect when attack by group vis-à-vis individual action(s) 844
  - (iii) Murder proved 847
  - (iv) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 851
  - (v) Even lesser offence proved 857
- (e) S. 300 Secondly — Knowledge that bodily injury caused is likely to cause death 858
  - (i) Generally 858
  - (ii) Knowledge — What is and proof thereof 859
  - (iii) Cumulative effect when attack by group vis-à-vis individual action(s) 864
  - (iv) Murder proved 865
  - (v) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 867
- (f) S. 300 Thirdly — Bodily injury caused sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death 869
  - (i) Generally 869
  - (ii) Sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death 870
  - (iii) Cumulative effect when attack by group vis-à-vis individual action(s) 896
  - (iv) Murder proved 902
  - (v) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 914
  - (vi) Even lesser offence proved 924
  - (vii) Outright Acquittal 926
- (g) S. 300 Fourthly — Imminently dangerous act, in all probability would lead to death, etc. 926

In Vol. 2

- (h) S. 300 Exception 1 — Grave and Sudden Provocation 10
  - (i) Generally 10
  - (ii) Grave and Sudden Provocation 10
  - (iii) Exceptions 1 and 4 compared and contrasted 18
  - (iv) Murder proved 25
  - (v) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 27
- (i) S. 300 Exception 2 — Exceeding Right of Private Defence 30
  - (i) Generally 31
  - (ii) Commencement and Continuation of Right of Private Defence 31
  - (iii) Attack on Unarmed Persons/ Women 31
  - (iv) Non-availability of the Defence to Aggressors 31
  - (v) Determination of Aggressor 34
  - (vi) Acting in a Cruel and Unusual Manner 34
  - (vii) Private Defence Established/Not Established on Facts — Right when exceeded 34
  - (viii) Injuries on Accused 46
  - (ix) Pleadings and particulars 49
  - (x) Burden and Onus of proof 49
  - (xi) Private defence of property 50
  - (xii) Other issues 51
  - (xiii) Murder proved 51
  - (xiv) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 53
  - (xv) Even lesser offence proved 60
  - (xvi) Outright Acquittal 60
- (j) S. 300 Exception 3 — Public Servant or Aiding Public Servant 61
- (k) S. 300 Exception 4 — Sudden Fight in Heat of Passion upon Sudden Quarrel without Premeditation 63
  - (i) Generally 63
  - (ii) Exceptions 4 and 1 compared and contrasted 64
  - (iii) Ingredients of Exception 4 65
  - (iv) Murder proved 81
  - (v) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 89
  - (vi) Even lesser offence proved 117
  - (vii) Outright Acquittal 118

Vol. 2

Synopsis (contd.)

- (l) S. 300 Exception 5 — Taking on Risk of Death 119
  - (i) Generally 119
  - (ii) Ingredients of Exception 5 119
- (m) S. 301 — Culpable Homicide or Murder of Person other than whose death intended 119
- (n) S. 303 — Murder by Life Convict 124
- (o) Single Blow or Injury 130
  - (i) Generally 130
  - (ii) Murder proved 135
  - (iii) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder proved 140
- (p) Other issues 149

2. Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder 150
- (a) Broadly (Ss. 299 and 304) 150
- (b) Explns. to S. 299 155
- (c) S. 304 Pt. I or Pt. II — Applicability and/or Determination of 156
  - (i) Generally 156
  - (ii) S. 304 Pt. I proved 158
  - (iii) S. 304 Pt. II proved 160
  - (iv) Even lesser offence proved 169
  - (v) Outright Acquittal 169
  - (vi) Sentence under S. 304 Pts. I/II 172

3. Mental insanity/Intoxication 183

B. CULPABLE HOMICIDE OR MURDER INVOLVING MULTIPLE ACCUSE 184

1. Generally 185

2. Charge/Acquittal under S. 302 r/w S. 34 or S. 149 but conviction under S. 302 simpliciter 186

3. Common intention (S. 34) 191
- (a) Nature of liability under: Vicarious or constructive liability 192
- (b) The Charge and S. 34 193
- (c) Ingredients for establishing liability under S. 34 200
  - (i) Broadly 200

Vol. 2

  - (ii) "Common intention" — What is — Prior concert 200
  - (iii) Development of common intention on the spot 201
  - (iv) Participation/Overt acts/ Specific role 201
  - (v) Presence 205
  - (vi) Exhortation or Incitement 206
- (d) Common intention — Proof or inference of 208
- (e) Acquittal/Conviction/Sentence of some or all other accused — Conviction of main assailant(s) 220
- (f) Common intention and individual motive 232
- (g) Common intention to murder if present 233
- (h) Conviction for murder with aid of S. 34 justified 242
- (i) Conviction for culpable homicide not amounting to murder or lesser offence 263
- (j) Outright Acquittal justified 266
- (k) Sentence 275

4. Common object (Ss. 141 to 149) 281
- (a) Nature of liability under 282
- (b) The Charge and S. 149 284
- (c) Ingredients for establishing liability under S. 149 287
  - (i) Unlawful assembly — What is — Prior concert or on spur of moment 287
  - (ii) Common object distinct from offence caused 287
  - (iii) Participation/Overt Act/Specific Role 288
  - (iv) Presence 294
  - (v) Exhortation or Incitement 295
  - (vi) Knowledge of offence likely to be committed 295
- (d) Common object — Proof or inference of 298
- (e) Section 149 and Section 34 — Common object and common intention 307
- (f) Large group involved 307

Vol. 2

4. Common object (Ss. 141 to 149) (contd.)
- (g) Acquittal/Conviction/Sentence of some or all other accused — Conviction of main assailant(s) 311
- (h) Conviction of less than five persons 328
- (i) Murder as common object if present 336
- (j) Conviction for murder with and under Ss. 141-149 justified 336
- (k) Conviction for culpable homicide not amounting to murder 353
- (l) Outright Acquittal justified 355
- (m) Sentence 365

5. Conspiracy (Ss. 120-A and 120-B) 370
- (a) Conviction for substantive offence other than the conspiracy 370
- (b) Proof of conspiracy 370
- (c) Testimony, confession or actions of co-conspirators 375
- (d) Acquittal or Conviction of co-conspirator(s) 376
- (e) Conviction confirmed 376

6. Abetment (Ss. 107-120) 378

7. Free Fight 379

8. Group rivalry/Mob fight 383

C. PARTICULAR KINDS OF CULPABLE HOMICIDE, MURDER AND/OR OTHER OFFENCES 386

1. Abetment of suicide (S. 306) 387
2. Acid attack/death 388
3. Asphyxia/Throttling/Strangulation/Hanging 389
4. Attempted murder (S. 307) 391
5. Burning — Death by 392
6. Communal or other riot 395
7. Concealment of evidence (S. 201) 400
8. Criminal negligence/Motor vehicle accident (S. 304-A) 401
9. Dowry death/Bride burning (S. 304-B) 404
   Sentence 436
10. Murder of wife 438
11. Family murders 462

Vol. 2

12. Hurt, grievous or not, with or without dangerous weapons or means (Ss. 319 to 338) 480
13. Kidnapping 491
14. Poisoning 495
15. Police atrocities/Custodial violence/death 498
16. Police/defence personnel's murder 517
17. Political rivalry/Murder 520
18. Public duty — Discharge of — Death arising out of 525
19. Rape & other sexual offences 526
20. Social/Communal murders 537
21. Robbery/Dacoity/Theft 552
22. Terrorism/Organised crime 562
23. Other 570

D. TRIAL, SENTENCING AND OTHER ISSUES 572

1. Accused 576

2. Acquittal 577
- (a) Generally 577
- (b) Acquittal justified 577
- (c) Acquittal reversed 587
- (d) Acquittal of co-accused/Some accused/Benefit of their acquittal 594
- (e) Benefit of acquittal in another case/of other offences 597

3. Appeal 598
- (a) Generally 598
- (b) Appeal against acquittal 599
- (c) Appeal against conviction 607
- (d) Reference to Third Judge 612
- (e) Appeal to Supreme Court 612
- (f) Absence of appeal by State 617

4. Appreciation of Evidence 621
- (a) Generally 621
- (b) Appellate court's power and approach 623
- (c) Conjectures and surmises 624
- (d) Contradictions, inconsistencies, exaggerations or embellishments 626
- (e) Credibility of witness 646

Vol. 2

Synopsis (contd.)

4. Appreciation of Evidence (contd.)
- (f) Medical evidence vis-à-vis Ocular evidence 662
- (g) Reappreciation/Reappraisal of Evidence 668

5. Bail/Suspension of sentence 669

6. Charge 677

7. Circumstantial Evidence 685
- (a) Generally 685
- (b) Abscondence 693
- (c) Benefit of doubt 694
- (d) Clues and Tell-Tale Signs/ Forensics 695
  - (i) Bloodmarks/Trail and Bloodstains 695
  - (ii) Fingerprints and footprints 698
- (e) Conduct of accused 698
- (f) Confession 702
  - Extra-judicial confession/Hearsay 702
- (g) Custodial death 704
- (h) Defence 705
  - Alibi 705
- (i) Failure to explain incriminating circumstances 705
- (j) Injuries on accused 708
- (k) Injuries on victim 708
- (l) Kidnapping 708
- (m) Last seen together 713
- (n) Links in the chain of circumstances 726
- (o) Miscellaneous 726
- (p) Missing links but strong motive 727
- (q) Motive 728
- (r) Murder proved 734
- (s) Murder not proved 747
- (t) Poisoning 756
- (u) Rape 763
- (v) Recovery of crime articles/ incriminating articles/other articles 772
- (w) Recovery of dead body/corpus delicti 781
- (x) Robbery/Dacoity/Theft 785
- (y) Sentence 793

Vol. 2

8. Clues and Tell-Tale Signs/Forensics 795
- (a) Bloodmarks/Trail and Bloodstains 795
- (b) Fingerprints and footprints 801

9. Co-accused 802
- Parity between co-accused 802

10. Cognizance 802

11. Conduct of accused, complainant, witnesses, etc. 803
- (a) Conduct of accused 803
- (b) Abscondence 804
- (c) Conduct/Reaction/Behaviour of witness 805

12. Confession 813
- (a) Generally 813
- (b) Confession of accused 816
- (c) Confession of co-accused 818
- (d) Extra-judicial confession/ Hearsay 821
- (e) Confession under special statutes 826
- (f) Retracted confession 829

13. Conviction confirmed 832

14. Defence 840
- (a) Generally 840
- (b) Alibi 840
- (c) Defence version/story 843
- (d) Falsity of defence plea/Adverse Inference 843
- (e) False implication/accusation 844

15. Dying declaration 847

16. Examination 886
- (a) Examination of accused 886
- (b) Delayed examination of witnesses 891
- (c) Non-examination/failure to examine witness 892

17. Expert evidence 895
- (a) Generally 895
- (b) Handwriting 896

18. FIR 896
- (a) Generally 896
- (b) Delay in lodging/filing FIR 901

Vol. 2

19. Genesis of the occurrence 906

20. Identification 908
- (a) Generally 908
- (b) Identification by voice 908
- (c) Identification of accused 909
- (d) Identification of accused at night/darkness 916
- (e) Identification of dead body/corpus delicti 921
- (f) Identification by photograph/effect of having seen photograph 926
- (g) Test identification parade 926
- (h) Identification of articles 930

21. Injuries, Wounds and Weapons 930
- (a) Generally 930
- (b) Discrepancies 931
- (c) Injuries on accused 933
- (d) Injuries on deceased 938
- (e) Blunt weapons/Blunt side of sharp weapon 939
- (f) Firearm/Bomb/Gunshot injuries/wounds/Ballistics/Ballistic expert 941
- (g) Incised/lacerated wound/Sharp weapons 960
- (h) Particular Injuries/Offences 966

22. Investigation 966
- (a) Generally 966
- (b) Defective or Illegal Investigation 967
- (c) Delay in Investigation 973
- (d) Fresh/Additional Investigation/Re-investigation 973
- (e) Documents, etc. relating to Investigation 975
  - (i) Inquest Report/Panchnama 975
  - (ii) Police Station Daily Diary 976
  - (iii) Site Plan 976
- (f) Right against Torture/Testimonial Compulsion 977

23. Jury 977

24. Juvenile/Child Accused 977

Vol. 2

25. Medical Jurisprudence/Evidence 986
- (a) Generally 987
- (b) Acid 988
- (c) Age 988
- (d) Asphyxia/Throttling/Strangulation/Hanging 989
- (e) Burn Injuries/Death by Burning 995
- (f) Cause of Death 998
- (g) Drowning 1002
- (h) Drunkenness/Sleep potion 1002
- (i) Medical/Expert Opinion 1002
- (j) Medico-Legal Cases/Doctors 1004
- (k) Medico-Legal Report/Certificate 1004
- (l) Mental Illness/Unsoundness of Mind/Insanity 1005
- (m) Particular Diseases and Conditions 1007
- (n) Poisoning 1009
- (o) Post-mortem examination/report 1015
- (p) Skeletonising of Dead Body 1015
- (q) Suicide or homicide/murder 1016
- (r) Time of Death/Rigor Mortis 1027

26. Motive 1030

27. Practice and Procedure 1040
- (a) Documents 1040
  - Non-Production of Documents 1040
- (b) Joint Trial 1040
- (c) Maintainability/Jurisdiction 1040
- (d) Natural Justice 1041
- (e) Pleadings 1041
- (f) Recall/Review 1041
- (g) Remand 1042
- (h) Transfer of case 1043
- (i) Writ petition 1044

28. Precedents 1044

29. Proof 1045
- (a) Generally 1045
- (b) Admissibility of Evidence 1047
- (c) Benefit of Doubt 1048
- (d) Cause of Death 1053
- (e) Corroboration 1053

Vol. 2

Synopsis (contd.)

29. Proof (contd.)

- (f) Falsus in Uno, Falsus in Omnibus 1054
- (g) Presumptions 1057
  - (i) Presumption of Innocence 1057
  - (ii) Presumption of Guilt 1057
  - (iii) Other Presumptions 1060
- (h) Proof beyond Reasonable Doubt 1060
- (i) Recovery of crime/incriminating material/other articles 1061
- (j) Recovery of Dead Body/Corpus Delicti 1068
- (k) Suspicion 1072
- (l) Place of Occurrence 1073

30. Prosecution 1074

31. Quashment 1074

32. Revision 1076

33. Sanction for trial 1080

34. Search and Seizure 1080

35. Sentence 1081

- (a) Generally 1082
- (b) Clemency/Remission by Executive 1083
- (c) Premature Release/Probation 1085
- (d) Compensation to Victim/Suit for damages 1085
- (e) Compromise/Compounding/Redressal of Harm/Pardon by victim's family 1088
- (f) Death Sentence 1088
  - (i) General principles for imposition of death sentence 1089
  - (ii) Aggravating and mitigating circumstances 1109
    1. Broadly 1109
    2. Age of accused 1128
    3. Brutality of murder and Victims — Number, age, helplessness of persons killed 1133
    4. Co-accused not sentenced to death/already sentenced to death — Death sentence based on vicarious liability 1143
    5. Concurrence lacking as to imposition of death sentence (at different stages or amongst Judges at same stage) 1154

Vol. 2

    6. Delay in execution of death sentence 1158
    7. Domestic servant/person in trust committing brutal murder 1165
    8. Dowry death/Bride burning 1168
    9. Duress or compulsion/Co-accused inducing participation 1171
    10. Evidence and Proof — Nature and quality of — If circumstantial 1174
    11. Family murders/feud/eradication of family 1181
    12. Greed/Financial status/Need of accused/Robbery/Dacoity and murder 1200
    13. Kidnapping and murder 1207
    14. Life convict committing murder/Previous conviction for murder 1209
    15. Manner of murder/disposal of body 1211
    16. Mental state and intention: Provocation/Irresistable impulse to kill, enmity, etc. or Premeditated/Cold-blooded murder, etc. 1212
    17. Political murders/Assassinations 1223
    18. Professional murderers and Organised crime 1229
    19. Public servants' murder 1231
    20. Rape and murder 1233
        - 20.1. Generally 1233
        - 20.2. Rape and murder of minor 1233
        - 20.3. Other cases of rape and murder 1248
    21. Rehabilitation/reform of accused — Scope 1251
    22. Revenge/Vengeance 1253
    23. Social/Communal/Caste reasons for committing murder/Communal riot 1257
    24. Societal threat/menace/Serial/Sociopathic murders 1270
    25. Terrorism and murder 1274
    26. Other aggravating or mitigating circumstances 1276
    27. Instances 1277
        - 27.1. Death upheld 1277
        - 27.2. Death commuted 1277
  - (iii) Commutation to imprisonment of specified term 1278
  - (iv) Enhancement of life imprisonment to death sentence 1287
  - (v) Sentence hearing/Confirmation proceedings 1288
  - (vi) Review petition against death sentence 1294

Vol. 2

35. Sentence (contd.)

(f) Death Sentence (contd.)

- (vii) Clemency petition before Executive against death sentence 1294
- (viii) Other issues 1300

In Vol. 3

- (g) Fine 10
- (h) Life sentence 10
- (i) Minimum sentence/Minimum statutory sentence 11
- (j) Plea bargaining 11
- (k) Principles for sentencing 11
  - (i) Generally 12
  - (ii) Age of accused/Juvenile/State of accused 12
  - (iii) Delay/pendency in proceedings/ execution of sentence 13
  - (iv) Nature of Offence 14
  - (v) Provocation/Irresistable impulse to kill 14
  - (vi) Sentence not reduced/enhanced 14
- (l) Particular cases 15
  - (i) Dowry death/Bride burning 15
  - (ii) Rape and other sexual offences 15
  - (iii) Other 15
- (m) Sentence already undergone 15
- (n) Set-off 16

36. Time of Occurrence 16

37. Transfer of Malice 18

Vol. 3

38. Witnesses 23

- (a) Accomplice/Approver 24
- (b) Antecedent Character/ Background/Status of Witness 29
- (c) Chance witness 29
- (d) Child/Young witness 32
- (e) Eyewitness 40
- (f) Hostile witness 43
- (g) Independent witness 46
- (h) Inimical witness 47
- (i) Injured witness 49
- (j) Interested/Partisan witness 53
- (k) Material witness 59
- (l) Medical witness 59
- (m) Natural witness 59
- (n) Witness Protection and Support 62
- (o) Related witness 62
- (p) Rustic/Village/Rural Witness 72
- (q) Sole/Solitary witness 73
- (r) Tutored/Pressurised witness 83

(g) Fine

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(j) Fine', pp. 111 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7401] — S. 302 — Fine— Deceased murdered in a brutal manner — Award of life imprisonment — Imposition of a fine of Rs 25,000 by the High Court on application by complainant for enhancement of sentence, held, not unjustified in the facts and circumstances of the case. Ram Kumar v. State of Haryana, 1997 SCC (Cri) 1087: AIR 1996 SC 3185: 1996 Cri LJ 2441.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and S.B. Majmudar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-4-1996]

[7402] — S. 302 — Sentence — For conviction under S. 302, appellant sentenced to life imprisonment and fine of Rs 50,000 imposed with default stipulation, by the trial court — High Court in appeal, confirming the conviction and sentence — Neither the trial court nor the High Court recording any reason for awarding such exemplary fine — Hence, fine reduced to Rs 1000 with default stipulation (Paras 3 and 4). Omanakuttan v. State of Kerala, (2006) 10 SCC 197: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 481.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-2006]

[7403] — Ss. 302/34 — On facts, held, that after imposing the death sentence it was not necessary to further impose a fine of Rs 2000. Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 4 SCC 332: 1979 SCC (Cri) 968: AIR 1979 SC 1173: 1979 Cri LJ 700.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1979]

[7404] — Ss. 304 Pt. II and 309 — Sentence under — Steep sentence of fine when preferable to imprisonment — Appellant, a young man, along with his companion, unaware of deafness of the victim, beating him to unconsciousness for making noise despite protest — A few days (eight days in this case) later the beating culminating in death, the victim leaving behind his widow and an unmarried daughter — Feeling remorse both the accused unsuccessfully attempting to commit suicide — The present appellant already remaining in jail for about seven months — In such circumstances, in appeal by appellant alone, sentence under S. 304 reduced from five years' R.I. to the sentence already undergone but fine enhanced from Rs 3000 to Rs 1,00,000 out of which Rs 75,000 directed to be paid to the victim's widow and Rs 25,000 to the daughter — Sentence of six months' R.I. under S. 309, upheld. Venkatesh v. State of T.N., 1993 Supp (3) SCC 301: 1993 SCC (Cri) 995: AIR 1993 SC 1230: 1993 Cri LJ 61: 1993 (1) MWN (Cr) 317.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Sawant and N. Venkatachala, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-9-1992]

(h) Life Sentence

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(l) Life sentence', pp. 114 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7405] — S. 302 — Award of life imprisonment for offence under Ss. 302/34 is proper being the minimum sentence which could be imposed. Dilip Kumar Sharma v. State of M.P., (1976) 1 SCC 560: 1976 SCC (Cri) 85: AIR 1976 SC 133: (1976) 2 SCR 289: 1976 Cri LJ 184.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud[1], P.N. Bhagwati[1] and R.S. Sarkaria[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-1975]

[7406] — S. 302 — Life imprisonment justified — Appeal against reversal of acquittal by High Court — Conviction upheld — FIR immediately lodged — Strong motive to commit murder, established — Nothing to prove false implication — High Court properly appreciating evidence without any manifest error — Simply because there are some minor discrepancies in the evidence of witnesses A, RP and SA with regard to time of incident, held, are not sufficient grounds to believe that appellant had been booked in a false case — CrPC, 1973, S. 379. Mahesh v. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 13 SCC 271: (2008) 67 AIC 219 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 3602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.P. Naolekar and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-2008]

[7407] — S. 302 — Sentence of imprisonment for life — Propriety — Gruesome murder — Perpetrated in cold-blood, premeditated and a well-organised manner — Accused murdering his father-in-law, mother-in-law and their three minor children with a view to grab their property — Held, deterrent punishment called for — The ends of justice warranted that accused should be in jail in terms of S. 57 IPC — He shall not entitled to get the benefit of any remission either by the State or by the Government of India (Paras 9 and 10). Reddy Sampath Kumar v. State of A.P., (2005) 7 SCC 603: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1710: AIR 2005 SC 3478: 2005 Cri LJ 4131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.K. Sema and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-9-2005]

[7408] — Ss. 302 and 57 — Sentence — Life imprisonment — Means imprisonment for the whole of the remaining period of the convicted person's natural life unless the appropriate Government chooses to exercise its discretion to remit either the whole or a part of the sentence under Section 401 CrPC — In the peculiar circumstances of the case, apprehending imminent danger to the life of the eyewitness (PW 2) and his family in future, taking on record the statement made on behalf of A-1 that if he is sentenced to life imprisonment, instead of being awarded death sentence, he would never claim his premature release or commutation of his sentence on any ground, held, for him the imprisonment for life shall be imprisonment in prison for the rest of his life — He shall not be entitled to any commutation or premature release under S. 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, Prisoners Act, Jail Manual or any other statute and the rules made for the purposes of grant of commutation and remissions (Paras 21, 23 and 19). Subash Chander v. Krishan Lal, (2001) 4 SCC 458: 2001 SCC (Cri) 735: AIR 2001 SC 1903: 2001 Cri LJ 1825.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-3-2001]

Gopal Vinayak Godse v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1961 SC 600: (1961) 1 Cri LJ 736: (1961) 3 SCR 440; State of M.P. v. Ratan Singh, (1976) 3 SCC 470: 1976 SCC (Cri) 428; Sohan Lal v. Asha Ram, (1981) 1 SCC 106; Bhagirath v. Delhi Admn., (1985) 2 SCC 580: 1985 SCC (Cri) 280; Zahid Hussein v. State of W.B., (2001) 3 SCC 750, relied on

(i) Minimum Sentence/Minimum Statutory Sentence

> See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(m) Minimum sentence/Minimum statutory sentence', pp. 117 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7409] — Ss. 302 and 201 — Murder trial — Circumstantial evidence — Guilt established — Murder of wife after quarrel — Minimum sentence of 20 years' RI directed — Accused-petitioner and his wife (deceased victim) quarrelled in evening and in night, on hearing cries of their child, when accused tried to wake up victim and she did not wake up, he assaulted her with a stick, causing severe internal and external injuries, resulting in her death — High Court affirming his conviction — Sustainability — Held, no direct and ocular evidence in the case, but fact that deceased found dead and petitioner informed villagers that she died of pain in her stomach, confirms fact that he was with her at time of her death — Furthermore, PW 1 (father of deceased) found face of deceased in swollen condition and clotted blood present on her mouth, on which he asked petitioner to report matter to police before burying dead body — However, conduct of petitioner in burying body of victim in disregard of such direction, created suspicion — Only on insistence of PW 1 body of victim exhumed, and thereafter, subjected to post-mortem examination which revealed fact that it was not simply a stomach pain which caused death of victim but several injuries which had been inflicted on her — Weapon of assault also recovered at instance of petitioner — Again, very fact that petitioner tried to hide evidence, resulted in his conviction under S. 201 also — In such circumstances, High Court justified in affirming petitioner's conviction — Minimum sentence of 20 years' RI directed (Paras 3 to 5). Ramraj v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2010) 1 SCC 573.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-12-2009]

(j) Plea Bargaining

> See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(n) Plea bargaining', pp. 121 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7410] — Ss. 304 and 307 — Plea bargaining — When can lead to miscarriage of justice — Where a High Court Judge, relying on own earlier judgment as binding precedent, offering opportunity of plea bargaining to persons whose appeals against conviction and sentence under Ss. 304 or 307 IPC and other serious offences pending in High Court, and dangling bait of reduction of sentence to period already undergone, even if very short, held, such action would open a gate leading to serious miscarriage of justice — Use of Allahabad High Court judgment dated 15-10-1996 in Criminal Appeal No. 3407 of 1979, as a binding precedent suspended (Para 1). State of U.P. v. Nasruddin, (2000) 10 SCC 336.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and M.B. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1999]

(k) Principles for Sentencing

Synopsis

(i) Generally
(ii) Age of accused/Juvenile/State of accused
(iii) Delay/Pendency in proceedings/ Execution of sentence
(iv) Nature of Offence
(v) Provocation/Irresistable impulse to kill
(vi) Sentence not reduced/ Enhanced

35.(k) Principles for Sentencing

(i) Generally

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(o)(i) Principles for sentencing — Generally', pp. 123 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7411] — S. 302 — Sentence — Considerations for determining

The determination of sentence in a given case depends on a variety of considerations, the more important being, the nature of the crime, the manner of its commission, the motive which impelled it and the character and antecedents of the accused. Apren Joseph v. State of Kerala, (1973) 3 SCC 114: 1973 SCC (Cri) 195: AIR 1973 SC 1: 1973 Cri LJ 185: (1973) 2 SCR 16.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, Acting C.J.[1] and I.D. Dua[1] and H.R. Khanna[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 1-9-1972]

[7412] — S. 304 Pt. II — Appellate or revisional courts — Power to reduce sentence — Tendency of reducing sentence to period already undergone without any application of mind, taken note of and seriously deprecated — Discretion in passing sentence, held, is not absolute or whimsical — It is controlled by law and to some extent by judicial discretion, applicable to the facts of the case — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386, 401 and 399

It has been noticed by the Supreme Court that the appellate or revisional courts reduce the sentence while maintaining the conviction to sentence already undergone without even noticing what is the period already undergone. There is a need for the courts to apply its mind while imposing sentence. The courts should bear in mind that there is a requirement in law that every conviction should be followed by an appropriate sentence within the period stipulated in law. Discretion in this regard is not absolute or whimsical. It is controlled by law and to some extent by judicial discretion, applicable to the facts of the case. (Para 18)

In the instant case, the High Court while convicting the respondent for an offence punishable under Section 304 Part II IPC which has maximum sentence up to ten years thought it fit to impose the sentence already undergone without even applying its mind as to why it should be less than ten years or for that matter, what is the sentence already undergone. Such misplaced generosity on the part of the courts while imposing sentence is seriously deprecated. (Para 18). State of Rajasthan v. Dhool Singh, (2004) 12 SCC 546: AIR 2004 SC 1264: 2004 Cri LJ 931.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-2003]

(ii) Age of accused/Juvenile/State of accused

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(o)(ii) Age of accused/Juvenile', pp. 151 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also under '(f)(ii)(2) Death Sentence — Age of accused', Vol. 2

[7413] — S. 302 — Sentence — Reduction of — Old age and sickness — Regard to — Appellant-accused A-10, aged 87 years and suffering from Parkinson's disease, hypertension, diabetes with severe calcific AV stenosis, mild AR, moderate MR and anaemia of some degree — Moreover, he in jail for about three years — Hence, prayer to reduce his sentence of life imprisonment to period already undergone — Prayer rejected on ground that he was held guilty for being a member of unlawful assembly and sharing common intention with A-1, A-2, A-10, A-11 and A-12 to commit the murder of Deceased 2 (Para 57). Bathula Nagamalleswara Rao v. State, (2008) 11 SCC 722: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 898.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.P. Naolekar and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-2008]

[7414] — Ss. 302/34 — Age — Appellant 55 at the time of offence now 70 — Conviction for Ss. 302/34, IPC upheld — Murder bearing features of ruthlessness, unrelenting and determined vindictiveness — Retributive more than therapeutic approach in awarding punishment in the present facts essential — No interference with award of life imprisonment called for — CrPC, 1973, S. 354. Guvala China Venkatesu v. State of A.P., 1991 Supp (2) SCC 727: AIR 1991 SC 1926: 1991 Cri LJ 2326.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.N. Saikia and M.M. Punchhi, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-12-1990]

Stephen: A History of the Criminal Law of England, (1883) pp 81-82, relied on [7415] — Ss. 304 Pt. II & 323 — Appreciation of evidence — Appellant and his father (who died during pendency of trial) — Charged with committing murder and assaulting PW 5, wife of the deceased — Deceased, aged 65 years, was suffering from ailments like tuberculosis, lung disease, etc. and cause of his death, which took place 10 days after the assault, was cumulative effect of the injuries suffered by him as well as his illness — Trial court convicted appellant under S. 304 Pt. II and S. 323 and sentenced him to 7 years' RI and one year's RI, respectively — High Court concurred with the trial court — Held, no reason to interfere with concurrent findings of fact — However, having regard to the fact that appellant at the time of the incident was in his late teens and also having regard to the age, physical condition of the deceased and cause of his death, 7 years' RI under S. 304 Pt. II being on the higher side, reduced to 3 years' RI but one year's RI under S. 323 maintained (Paras 2, 3 and 4). Lal Babu Jha v. State of Bihar, (2007) 15 SCC 748.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-2003]

(iii) Delay/Pendency in Proceedings/ Execution of sentence

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(o)(v) Delay/Pendency in proceedings/execution of sentence', pp. 159 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7416] — S. 302 — Alternate sentence — Delay relevant factor for imposing lesser sentence

The extremely excessive delay in the disposal of the case of the appellant would by itself be sufficient for imposing a lesser sentence of imprisonment for life under S. 302, IPC, prescribes two alternate sentences, namely, death sentence or imprisonment for life. When there has been inordinate delay in the disposal of the appeal by the High Court it seems to us that it is a relevant factor for the High Court to take into consideration for imposing the lesser sentence. The appellant was committed to trial by the Presidency Magistrate as early as July 31, 1963 and he was convicted by the Trial Judge on September 4, 1964. It is now January 1971 and the appellant has been for more than six years under the fear of sentence of death. This must have caused him unimaginable mental agony. It would be inhuman to make him suffer till the Government decides the matter on a mercy petition. This is a fit case for awarding the sentence of imprisonment for life. Accordingly the order of the High Court awarding death sentence is set aside and sentence of imprisonment for life awarded. Vivian Rodrick v. State of W.B., (1971) 1 SCC 468: 1971 SCC (Cri) 192: AIR 1971 SC 1584: 1971 Cri LJ 1171.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-1-1971]

[7417] — Ss. 302 & 201 — Sentence — Remission of, claimed on ground of delay in disposal of appeal — Appeal against acquittal — Trial court's order of conviction under Ss. 302 and 201 IPC and sentence of life imprisonment and 3 years' RI (to run concurrently) upset and accused acquitted by High Court — Appeal against acquittal allowed by Supreme Court 14 years thereafter — Plea not to disturb High Court's judgment by asking the accused to serve out the sentence after such a long lapse of time not acceptable as that would amount to perpetration of injustice — Mere delay in disposal of appeal not sufficient to warrant non-interference with illegal, erroneous and perverse finding of the High Court. State of U.P. v. Dr. Ravindra Prakash Mittal, (1992) 3 SCC 300: 1992 SCC (Cri) 642: AIR 1992 SC 2045.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1992]

[7418] — Ss. 304 Pt. I/34 — Conviction under, held, justified having regard to overwhelming prosecution evidence to prove the case against the accused-respondents — Incident occurring in 1992 — Several years lapsed since respondents were acquitted by High Court — Held, it would be just and proper to reduce their sentence of imprisonment from ten years to five years each (Paras 5 and 6). State of Rajasthan v. Maharaj Singh, 2005 SCC (Cri) 90: AIR 2004 SC 4205: (2004) 98 Cut LT 686: 2004 Cri LJ 4195.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-9-2004]

[7419] — S. 304 Pt. II — Sentence — Reduction of — Ground of delayed adjudication — Case pending for 26 years — Though accused's conviction under S. 302 Pt. II was justified, sentence reduced from 10 years' RI to 5 years' RI (Para 15). Umapada Kayal v. State of W.B., (2010) 1 SCC 161.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-2009]

[7420] — S. 304 Pt. II — Sentence of five years' RI under — Delay in proceedings — Effect — Sentence of five years is not unduly harsh, considering that a life was lost and that too without any justification (Para 29). Bhagwati Prasad v. State of M.P., (2010) 1 SCC 697.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.V. Raveendran, V.S. Sirpurkar and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-2009]

[7421] — S. 304 Pt. II r/w S. 149 and S. 147 — Factors/Considerations — Incident taking place long time back — Death of victim due to injuries inflicted on him by five accused persons with lathis/dandas — All accused (including three appellant-accused herein) convicted under S. 304 Pt. II r/w S. 149 and S. 147 and sentenced to four years' RI — Defence contention before Supreme Court that since incident took place about 28 years back, sentence of four years' RI was harsh punishment —

35.(k)(iv) Principles for Sentencing — Nature of Offence

Tenability — Held, in fact, punishment was on lenient side, as one young life was lost at the age of 22 years — While considering sentence, merely because appeal remained pending and merely because incident took place long back, would not by itself justify any interference with punishment, particularly, when punishment itself is a lenient one (Para 13). Sunil Kumar v. State of U.P., (2010) 2 SCC 5.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-1-2010]

(iv) Nature of Offence

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(o)(vi) Nature of offence', pp. 171 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'A.2.(c)(vi) Sentence under S. 304 Pts. I/II',

'B.3.(k) Common intention (S. 34) — Sentence', and

'B.4.(m) Common object (Ss. 141 to 149) — Sentence' in Vol. 2

[7422] — Ss. 302, 149 and 147 — Intention to kill — Sentence — Two fatal injuries on head sustained by deceased resulting in extensive fractures of scalp and injury to the brain tissues — Other injuries on vital as well as non-vital parts, some of which grievous being fractures, also sustained by deceased — Held, intention to kill was writ large — Accused persons not entitled to lesser sentence. Juthel v. State of M.P., (1996) 11 SCC 282: 1997 SCC (Cri) 190: AIR 1995 SC 1455.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1995]

[7423] — Ss. 302/34 — Sentence — Use of weapons not indiscriminate — Effect — Early release could be considered where accused had already served more than 14 years (Para 4). Jayaram Shiva Tagore v. State of Maharashtra, 1991 Supp (2) SCC 677: AIR 1991 SC 1735: 1991 Cri LJ 2192.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1990]

[7424] — S. 304 Pt. I or Pt. II — Offence being under Part II and not Part I, sentence of 3 years' RI instead of 7 years' RI considered proper, while maintaining fine of Rs 10,000 to be given to dependants of the deceased — But considering the circumstance that the accused had to pass mental and financial ordeal for more than a decade when the occurrence had taken place, his substantive term of imprisonment reduced to the period of imprisonment of more than a year already undergone — Sentence of fine however, maintained. Mohinder Pal Jolly v. State of Punjab, (1979) 3 SCC 30: 1979 SCC (Cri) 635: AIR 1979 SC 577: 1979 Cri LJ 584: 1979 MLJ (Cri) 413.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1978]

(v) Provocation/Irresistable impulse to kill

See also '(f)(ii)16. Death Sentence — Aggravating and mitigating circumstances — Mental state and intention: Provocation/ Irresistable impulse to kill, enmity, etc. or Premeditated/Cold-blooded murder, etc.', in Vol. 2

[7425] — S. 300, Exception 1 — Plea of irresistible impulse — Though not a defence to the charge it can be considered in the award of punishment

The previous history of the accused which shows a certain amount of lack of control and a sense of grievance together with certain abnormalities of mind which had been noted in documents long before the incident, give a feeling that it was an act of a person who was easily excited and therefore likely to be moved by irresistible impulses. Although under our present law the plea of irresistible impulse is not yet accepted as a defence to a charge of murder, it may be taken into account in assessing the true punishment to be given in a given case.

It is not necessary to lay down any law on the subject of awarding of death penalty and imprisonment for life. All that can be said is that both the sentences are legal and the courts have a discretion in the matter in the light of the circumstances existing in each case. Brij Kishore Pandey v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 931(2): 1972 SCC (Cri) 179(2).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-2-1970]

[7426] — Ss. 300, Exception 1 & 302 — Murder under provocation — Provocation though not grave enough to justify the killing would justify award of lesser penalty — Murder of mistress on suspicion of infidelity. Vasant Laxman More v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 4 SCC 778: 1974 SCC (Cri) 688: AIR 1974 SC 1697: 1974 Cri LJ 1166.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-7-1974]

(vi) Sentence not Reduced/Enhanced

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(o)(xi) Sentence not reduced/enhanced', pp. 196 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7427] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Appeal to High Court against conviction under S. 302 and sentence of life imprisonment — Held, High Court not justified in enhancing the sentence by imposing additional sentence of fine of Rs 5000 and in default 2 years' RI without issuing show cause notice to the accused and without affording the accused opportunity to the heard — Hence the additional sentence set aside — CrPC, 1973 — Ss. 374 and 386. Surjit Singh v. State of Punjab, 1984 Supp SCC 518: 1985 SCC (Cri) 90: AIR 1984 SC 1910(2).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and Ranganath Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-8-1984]

(l) Particular cases

(i) Dowry death/Bride burning

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(p)(i) Dowry death', pp. 198 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See '(f)(ii)18. Death Sentence — Aggravating and mitigating circumstances — Dowry death/Bride burning', and

'C.9. Dowry death/Bride burning (S. 304-B)' in Vol. 2, and

See also S. 304-B IPC

(ii) Rape and Other Sexual Offences

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(p)(vii) Rape and other sexual offences', pp. 206 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See '(f)(ii)20. Death Sentence — Aggravating and mitigating circumstances — Rape and murder', and

'C.19. Rape & other sexual offences' in Vol. 2, and

See also Ss. 375 to 375-D

(iii) Other

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(p)(viii) Other offences', pp. 218 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7428] — Ss. 302 & 304 Pt. I — Accused, Director of Physical Education, firing gunshots at a body of unruly students when they had surrounded him asking for fulfilment of their demand — Held, on facts, the gun was brought by the accused for his protection against the aggressive posture of the students and its firing was caused by the accused losing nerve in the face of the students' fury — Life sentence reduced to imprisonment for seven years. Jagat Singh v. State of Haryana, (1977) 1 SCC 225: 1977 SCC (Cri) 95: AIR 1976 SC 2619: 1976 Cri LJ 2002.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, A.C. Gupta and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-1976]

(m) Sentence already undergone

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '220.(q) Sentence already undergone', pp. 219 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7429] — S. 304 Pt. II — Appellate or revisional courts — Power to reduce sentence — Tendency of reducing sentence to period already undergone without any application of mind, taken note of and seriously deprecated — Discretion in passing sentence, held, is not absolute or whimsical — It is controlled by law and to some extent by judicial discretion, applicable to the facts of the case — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386, 401 and 399

It has been noticed by the Supreme Court that the appellate or revisional courts reduce the sentence while maintaining the conviction to sentence already undergone without even noticing what is the period already undergone. There is a need for the courts to apply its mind while imposing sentence. The courts should bear in mind that there is a requirement in law that every conviction should be followed by an appropriate sentence within the period stipulated in law. Discretion in this regard is not absolute or whimsical. It is controlled by law and to some extent by judicial discretion, applicable to the facts of the case. (Para 18)

In the instant case, the High Court while convicting the respondent for an offence punishable under Section 304 Part II IPC which has maximum sentence up to ten years thought it fit to impose the sentence already undergone without even applying its mind as to why it should be less than ten years or for that matter, what is the sentence already undergone. Such misplaced generosity on the part of the courts while imposing sentence is seriously deprecated. (Para 18). State of Rajasthan v. Dhool Singh, (2004) 12 SCC 546: AIR 2004 SC 1264: 2004 Cri LJ 931.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-2003]

(n) Set-off

[7430] — Ss. 302, 307 and 333 — Benefit of set-off — Entitlement to — Appellant-accused convicted under Ss. 302, 307 and 333 IPC and sentenced to life imprisonment — While sentencing him, trial court, on basis of Kartar Singh case, (1982) 3 SCC 1, did not grant him benefit of set-off under S. 428 CrPC — Sustainability — Held, Kartar Singh specifically overruled by Bhagirath case, (1985) 2 SCC 580 — Hence, appellant entitled to benefit of set-off under S. 428 CrPC— CrPC, 1973, S. 428 (Paras 3 and 4). Ranjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2010) 12 SCC 506.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2010]

Bhagirath v. Delhi Admn., (1985) 2 SCC 580: 1985 SCC (Cri) 280, relied on

Kartar Singh v. State of Haryana, (1982) 3 SCC 1: 1982 SCC (Cri) 522, held, overruled

36. Time of Occurrence

See also 'D.25.(r) Medical Jurisprudence/Evidence — Time of Death/Rigor Mortis', in Vol. 2

[7431] — S. 302 — Eyewitness, himself severely injured in the incident deposing that the murder of his father took place at 5.00 or 5.30 p.m. — Having accepted his evidence for convicting some of the accused persons for assaulting the said eyewitness, held, the High Court could not have concluded that the incident took place between 6.30 and 7.00 p.m. and thereby discrediting the prosecution case — More so when the fact was corroborated by the evidence of other witnesses — Further, even if there was an unexplained gap of 1 or 1½ hours, held, the High Court could not refix the time of incident which was not even the case of defence at the trial

Having accepted the evidence of PWs 1 and 2, who categorically stated that the incident took place at 5.00 or 5.30 p.m., and, relying thereupon, having convicted A-1, A-2 and A-3 (for assaulting PW 1) the High Court could not have concluded that it took place between 6.30 and 7.00 p.m. That apart, when read in the context of the evidence of PW 2 and PW 5 regarding the sequence of events and the sense of time of unsophisticated villagers the reasoning of the High Court to draw the above conclusion is wholly unsustainable. According to the above witnesses, after the incident took place PW 2 first went to the village to inform PW 5, father-in-law of PW 1. PW 5 came to the spot, saw the condition of PW 1, went back to the village, fetched a cart and took PW 1 to his house in the village. Thereafter he and PW 2 went out and brought a taxi and then took PW 1 to hospital which was at a distance of 35 kms and took them 45 minutes to reach in a jeep. When the above facts are taken into consideration the conclusion is inevitable that the prosecution story that the incident took place either at 5.00 or 5.30 p.m. cannot be doubted nor can it be said with precision that there was an unexplained gap of at least 1 to 1½ hours. Even if there was such an unexplained gap, the High Court could not have by back calculation, refixed the time of the incident at 6.30 p.m. or 7 p.m. (after sunset) which was not even the case of the defence during trial. Kovvuri Surya Bhaskara Reddy v. State of A.P., (1998) 9 SCC 504: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1047: AIR 1998 SC 1570.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.S.M. Quadri, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1998]

[7432] — S. 302 — Murder in daytime — High Court raising question as to why somebody would choose such time to commit a murder — Propriety — Said question, held, hypothetical — What is in the mind of a person and the reason for doing a thing is an aspect within the special knowledge of the accused — The prosecution is not supposed to meet every hypothetical question raised by the defence — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 106 and 101

The High Court has raised a question of conjectures as to why somebody would choose day break time to commit a murder. Since the question is hypothetical, the answer to it would also be hypothetical. What is in the mind of a person and the reason for doing a thing is an aspect within the special knowledge of the accused. The prosecution is not supposed to meet every hypothetical question raised by the defence. If the prosecution is required to meet every fanciful plea, it would be a clear case of deflecting the course of justice. If crime is to be punished in a glossemic way, niceties must yield to realistic appraisal. Law would fail to protect the community if it admitted fanciful possibilities to deflect the course of justice. (Para 14). State of Punjab v. Phola Singh, (2003) 11 SCC 58: 2004 SCC (Cri) 276: AIR 2003 SC 4407.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-9-2003]

[7433] — S. 302 — Time of death — Dispute regarding — Murder trial — On facts, appellant-accused convicted under S. 302 IPC — Appellant's contention that it was duty of the prosecution to establish the timing of injury and death of the victim and that it had failed to establish the exact hour — Whether justified — Held, on facts, this contention cannot be agreed to — Once this basic argument is rejected, the rest of the arguments based on this very aspect predominantly must fall and the argument that the deceased was already dead at night and only was found to be shown dead in the morning has to be rejected

The defence argued that in the post-mortem report, it was indicated that the timing of injury and death could be about 24 hours to 36 hours earlier from the time of post-mortem. The post-mortem was conducted on 2-2-1997 i.e. the next day at 9.00 a.m. From this, the defence argued that if 36 hours have to be counted backwards from 9.00 a.m. on 2-2-1997, then the death of C, the deceased, could not have occurred in the morning but it must be somewhere at night between 31-1-1997 and 1-2-1997. It was on this basis that the defence tried to develop its theory of false implication as also the wrong timing of filing of FIR. (Para 12)

This basic premise about the hour of death is wholly incorrect. The post-mortem report clearly suggests that the death must have occurred between 24 to 36 hours earlier. Therefore, if the death is 24 hours prior to the post-mortem with a difference of about 2-3 hours as admitted by the doctor in his cross-examination then it is obvious that the death might have occurred in the morning of 1-2-1997 which completely matches the testimony of PW 4 (father of the deceased). It is nowhere tried to be brought out in the cross-examination that the death had not occurred 24 hours prior to the post-mortem examination or that it had occurred much before that i.e. about 36 hours. No suggestion was put to the doctor nor was the post-mortem report assailed in the cross-examination on that particular aspect. (Para 13)

The appellant argued that it was the duty of the prosecution to establish the timing of injury and the death and that it had failed to establish the exact hour. This contention cannot be agreed to inasmuch as the post-mortem report specifically states that the death had occurred 24 hours prior to the post-mortem was conducted. Therefore, this contention of the appellant is rejected that the death must have occurred much more than 24 hours earlier to the hour of the post-mortem, nearabout 36 hours. Once this basic argument is rejected, the rest of the arguments based on this very aspect predominantly must fall and the argument that C was already dead at night and only was found to be shown dead in the morning has to be rejected. (Para 14). Munna v. State of M.P., (2009) 1 SCC 202: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 491: AIR 2009 SC 1344: (2009) 2 ECrN 535 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.K. Jain and V.S. Sirpurkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-2008]

[7434] — S. 302 r/w S. 34 — Variation in evidence relating to time of occurrence — Effect — Held, some allowance has to be given for such variation — But where the variation was so vast (7 p.m. to 10 p.m.), it could not be attributed merely to the inability of the witnesses hailing from the village to give correct time — Besides the witnesses were not illiterate — Hence the discrepancy was fatal (Para 9). Harjinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 11 SCC 253: AIR 2004 SC 3962: (2004) 21 AIC 887 (SC): 2004 Cri LJ 3854.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-2004]

[7435] — Ss. 302/34 — Discrepancy as to time of occurrence — Effect — Nine months old baby who was the only child of informant, PW 11 killed before her eyes by respondent and one K — PW 11 immediately lodging FIR stating the time of occurrence to be about 7 p.m. — During trial PW 11 stating the time of occurrence of the incident to be about 2 a.m. to 3 a.m. — Held, tested in the light of background facts of the case evidence of PW 11 had no other discrepancy except time factor to warrant rejection of her evidence — Hence, order of High Court acquitting respondent set aside

Even the evidence of a solitary witness can be sufficient to record conviction if the same is wholly reliable. No particular number of witnesses is necessary to prove any fact, as statutorily provided in Section 134 of the Evidence Act. It is the quality and not the quantity of the evidence that matters. The court cannot take a closed view in such matters. The evidence of PW 11 has to be tested in the light of the background facts. She was running from pillar to post to find a shelter for herself and her child who was nine months old. The evidence of PW 11 has no deficiency except the time factor. There is no other discrepancy in her evidence to warrant rejection of her evidence. It is to be noted that PW 11 was a rustic illiterate lady before whose eyes her only child was killed. If the accused's version is accepted, she was a total stranger to him. There is no particular reason as to why she would falsely implicate the accused. When the factum of death has been recorded in the FIR and the time given is around 7.00 p.m., the question of the incident taking place in the morning hours of the next day does not arise. There has been no question raised about the authenticity of the FIR. The judgment of the High Court is set aside and that of the trial court is restored. (Paras 9 to 13). State of M.P. v. Laakhan, (2009) 14 SCC 433.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-4-2009]

37. Transfer of Malice

> See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '241. Transfer of malice', p. 229 in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'A.1.(n) S. 303 — Murder by Life Convict', in Vol. 2

[7436] — Ss. 300 Firstly, Thirdly & Exception 4, 301 and 304 Pt. II — Death caused by infliction of spear blow on the chest when deceased tried to intervene to save victims of assault — No animosity between accused and deceased — Intention to cause death, held, absent even if transmission of malice is inferred — S. 300 Firstly thus inapplicable — Though injury proved to be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, intention to cause such injury absent and as such S. 300 Thirdly also inapplicable — In the circumstances, held, S. 304 Pt. II applicable and sentence of 5 years' RI proper

In a dispute between the accused persons on the one hand and 'B' and 'G' on the other, the accused gave several blows with their respective weapons on the non-vital parts of the body of 'B' and 'G'. On hearing the commotion when 'T', the nephew of 'B' and 'G', tried to intervene to save them, accused 1 gave a blow with his spear on the chest of 'T' resulting in his death. The injury was an incised wound of 4 cms. x 2 cms. going down deep up to the chest cavity which was proved to be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. The Sessions Judge convicted accused 1 under S. 302, IPC and accused 2 to 4 under S. 302 read with S. 34, IPC and sentenced them to RI for life and also imposed fine. The High Court, however, held that the prosecution failed to prove that accused 1 caused the single injury which proved fatal to 'T' in furtherance of common intention of all the accused. Partly allowing the appeal the Supreme Court,

Held :

The accused had no animosity with 'T' as their dispute was with 'B' and 'G'. 'T' appeared on the scene after the accused assaulted 'B' and 'G'. Although there could be presumption of transmission of malice but in absence of any evidence and in the facts found it could not be said that accused 1 intended to commit murder of 'T'. Therefore, Para 1 of S. 300 would not be attracted.

On the established facts of the case it also could not be said that accused 1 intended to cause that particular bodily injury which in fact was found to have been caused resulting in death of 'T'. Therefore, Para 3 of S. 300 is also not attracted.

When accused 1 had wielded a weapon like a barchha he must be presumed to know that he was likely to cause an injury which was likely to cause death. Having regard to all the circumstances and facts of the case including the very young age (about 19 years) of accused 1, it may be said that he was shown to have committed an offence under S. 304 Pt. II, IPC. The sentence of five years' rigorous imprisonment would be adequate. Gurmail Singh v. State of Punjab, (1982) 3 SCC 185: 1982 SCC (Cri) 680: AIR 1982 SC 1466: 1982 Cri LJ 1946.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and Baharul Islam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1982]

[7437] — Ss. 300 Exception 2, 304 Pt. II & 301 — Exceeding right of private defence — Doctrine of transferred malice — Applicability — Even after right of private defence ceased to be available to accused persons, one of the accused R firing gunshot at one of the members of the prosecution party but that accidentally hitting an outsider causing her death — Held, act of the accused was covered by S. 304 and in view of accidental injury caused to an outsider, doctrine of transferred malice under S. 301 attracted — Court should lean in favour of convicting the accused under Pt. II of S. 304 if it is in doubt as to which one of the two parts of S. 304 IPC would be attracted as this would be consistent with the basic tenet of extending benefit of doubt in criminal jurisprudence — Accordingly, held, accused R guilty under S. 304 Pt. II (Para 31). Kashiram v. State of M.P., (2002) 1 SCC 71: 2002 SCC (Cri) 68: AIR 2001 SC 2902.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand, C.J. and R.C. Lahoti and Ashok Bhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-2001]

Dev Raj v. State of H.P., 1994 Supp (2) SCC 552: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1489: AIR 1994 SC 523; Yogendra Morarji v. State of Gujarat, (1980) 2 SCC 218: 1980 SCC (Cri) 394: AIR 1980 SC 660; Tarachand v. State of Haryana, (1971) 2 SCC 579: 1971 SCC (Cri) 593: AIR 1971 SC 1891, relied on [7438] — S. 300 Exception 4 — Applicability — Sudden fight must be with person who is killed. Narayanan Nair Raghavan Nair v. State of Travancore-Cochin, AIR 1956 SC 99: 1956 Cri LJ 278, 280.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-1955]

[7439] — Ss. 301 and 100 — Causing death of a person other than person whose death was intended — Appellant firing one shot from his gun in exercise of his right of private defence — Bullet missing the target and hitting an innocent person fatally — Held, S. 301 does not apply and the appel- lant is protected under S. 100. Wassan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1996) 1 SCC 458: 1996 SCC (Cri) 119: (1996) 1 An LT (Cri) 17.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.B. Majmudar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-11-1995]

[7440] — Ss. 301 and 302, 304 — Scope and application — Grave and sudden provocation — What is — B remarking that father and uncle of the accused were dishonest — Accused rushing to his house at some distance and bringing a loaded gun — Firing at B and missing the aim; again firing at B and hitting his own uncle who while trying to pacify the accused came in between causing his death — Held, accused's act cannot be attributed to any grave and sudden provocation — Offence not under S. 304 (Pt. I), but one under S. 302 r/w S. 301 IPC

In a Dharmada Committee B made derogatory remarks against father and uncle of the accused, inasmuch as he stated that they were monopolising all the seats and were dishonest. The accused got excited, said that B was creating trouble and it was necessary to look to him, left the meeting and brought a loaded double-barrelled gun from his house a furlong away from the place of meeting. By that time the meeting had ended and B and others were moving at the road. Accused shot at B, but missed his aim. In the meantime M, the uncle of the accused rushed towards his nephew (the accused) in order to prevent him from using the gun. The accused pushed him back and fired at B. Unfortunately M came between the gun and B and was shot in the back, later dying as a result of the injury.

Held :

It is true that what is grave provocation in one set of society may not be grave provocation in another. But the words uttered by B to the effect that they were dishonest cannot be regarded as grave provocation under the circumstances. In any case the provocation was far from being sudden. The appellant goes to his house which is about a furlong away and fetches the gun. There was sufficient time for him to cool down. His action was deliberate. He asked those who were near B to move away because he wanted to shoot B. One shot missed its aim. M came up to prevent him from firing another shot. The appellant pushed him and then fired the second shot. All this cannot be attributed to any grave and sudden provocation. The offence, therefore, is not one under S. 304, Part I. Gyanendra Kumar v. State of U.P., (1972) 4 SCC 819: AIR 1972 SC 502: 1972 Cri LJ 308.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-1971]

[7441] — S. 301 [S. 302 r/w S. 34] — Transfer of malice — Failure to establish identity of unintended victim, despite ample opportunity and means to do so — Effect

Dismissing the appeals,

Held :

The trial court had convicted all the appellants on the primary charge under Section 302 read with Section 120-B IPC, but the High Court has acquitted them under that provision and convicted them under Sections 302/34, etc. IPC instead. This aspect would have to be examined in the background of the defence story that had been projected and as the entire police operation had been conducted in a secret manner as no outsider had any access to what was going on in the matter relating to M. (Para 57)

Admittedly, the target was M, concededly a notorious criminal with a bounty on his head, as he had been involved in a large number of very serious criminal matters. The incident happened on account of a mistake as to the identity of J who could pass off as M and it is nobody's case that the police party had intended to eliminate J and his friends. The courts below have been very clear on this score and have observed that keeping in mind the background in which the incident happened it was not the outcome of an act in self-defence but was pursuant to the common intention to kill M. The possibility of a hefty cash reward and accelerated promotion acted as a catalyst and spurred the police party to rash and hasty action. (Para 58)

As to the role of ACP R and Inspector A, the High Court has found that it was R who was the leader of the police party in his capacity as ACP and therefore, it was not necessary for him to be in the forefront of the attack on the Esteem car (in which J, P and T were sitting) and Inspector A who had admittedly knocked at the window could be treated likewise as being the next officer in the hierarchy. The site plan has been seen and it is noticed that ACP R was sitting in his Police Gypsy about 15 m away from the car when the incident happened. It has come in evidence that when Inspector A had conveyed the fact of J's and T's presence at Patparganj, the ACP had got together a police party of heavily armed officers, briefed them, and they had thereafter moved on to Connaught Place. It has been found as a matter of fact that when Inspector A had followed the car to Dena Bank, J had been left behind in the car alone for quite some time but Inspector A and his two associates had made absolutely no attempt to apprehend him at that stage or to countercheck his identity as Inspector A had M's photograph with him. Even more significantly the Inspector made no attempt to identity the other two occupants P and T whatsoever, although admittedly he was in close wireless contact with ACP. This is the pre-incident conduct which is relevant. (Para 59)

The facts as brought out reveal a startling state of affairs during the incident. It is the case of the defence that the car had been surrounded to immobilise the inmates and to prevent them from escaping and that it was with this intention that Inspector A had knocked on the driver's window asking the inmates to get out but he had been answered by firing from inside the car. This plea cannot be accepted for the reason that the defence has already been rejected. Moreover, PW 37 testified that there were no bullet marks on the tyres and they remained intact even after the incident, despite 34 shots being fired at the car, and 29 bullet holes, most of them of entry thereon. On the other hand, the appellants presupposed that one of the inmates was M, the wanted criminal and that the firing was so insensitive and indiscriminate that some of the shots had hit Constables C and K comprising the attacking police party. The post facto conduct of the appellants is again relevant. Inspector A gave a report on 1-4-1997 immediately after the incident, which was followed by a report by ACP R the next day giving the counter-version. This has been found to be completely untenable. (Paras 60 and 61)

The High Court was, therefore, justified in holding that in the light of the above facts, it was not necessary to assign a specific role to each individual appellant as the firing at the car was undoubtedly with a clear intent to annihilate those in it and was resorted to in furtherance of the common intention of all the appellants. Therefore the appellants were liable to conviction under Sections 302/34, etc. IPC. (Paras 61 and 62)

The cumulative effect of the evidence reveals the starkly patent fact that the defence story as projected was a palpably false one and the police officials involved having realised almost immediately after the incident that they had made a horrific mistake, immediately set about creating a false defence. The trial court and the High Court have accordingly opined on the basis of the overall assessment that the defence version was a concoction and that the prosecution story that it was the unprovoked firing by the appellants which had led to the death of J and P and grievous gunshot injuries to T had been proved on record. This finding also completely dislodges the defence case that the accused were nevertheless entitled to claim the benefit of Exception 3 to Section 300 of the Penal Code. Section 300 Exception 3 presupposes that a public servant who causes death, must do so in good faith and in due discharge of his duty as a public servant and without ill will towards the person whose death is caused. In the light of the fact that the positive case set up by the defence has been rejected by the trial court and the High Court, the question of any good faith does not arise. On the contrary, the appellants had fired without provocation at the car killing two innocent persons and injuring one. The obligation to prove an Exception is on the preponderance of probabilities but it nevertheless lies on the defence. Even on this touchstone the defence cannot succeed. (Paras 43 and 44)

There is no fault with the judgments of the trial court and the High Court. (Para 106). Satyavir Singh Rathi, ACP v. State, (2011) 6 SCC 1.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision : 2-5-2011]

Abdul Sayeed v. State of M.P., (2010) 10 SCC 259: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1262, relied on

[Ed.: It would seem that once the common intention to murder M was established on the part of the accused police officers, the actions of the police party certainly falling under clauses Secondly to Fourthly of Section 300 (if not Section 300 Firstly), then by application of Section 301 they stood guilty under Section 302 r/w S. 34 of murdering J and P.]

[7442] — Ss. 301, 302 and 307 — Transfer of malice — Accused raiding house of PW 2 with the intention to kill him — PW 2 taking shelter in another house — Accused going in front of that house and opening fire hitting deceased who was then standing by the side of a door of a room and causing her death — While PW 2 admitting that he could not state as to who shot at the deceased, PW 3 deposing that it was appellant 1 — Husband of the deceased however categorically stating that the deceased was not shot at by any of the accused-appellants and that both PWs 2 and 3 were not in his house at the time of the occurrence — But trial court and High Court without placing any reliance on the evidence of deceased's husband convicting all the appellants under Ss. 302/149, 307/149 and 148 — Held on facts, appellant 1 had shot at the deceased even though he aimed at only PW 2 — Therefore, under the doctrine of transfer of malice under S. 301, appellant 1 alone must be convicted under Ss. 302 and 307 simpliciter and sentenced to life imprisonment — Remaining appellants entitled to be acquitted. Jagpal Singh v. State of Punjab, 1991 Supp (1) SCC 549: 1991 SCC (Cri) 721: AIR 1991 SC 982.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-12-1990]

[7443] — S. 301 and S. 302 r/w S. 301 or 304-A — Firing gun towards fleeing persons in a locality with shops and houses killing an innocent boy and causing injuries to another person — Held, S. 301 clearly attracted — Evidence of independent natural eyewitnesses corroborated by other eyewitnesses and also from injuries suffered by the deceased and injured person and site plan — Existence of petromax lamp near about the place of occurrence proved by positive evidence — Reason given by the complainant for not mentioning the existence of petromax lamp in FIR found to be convincing and natural — In circumstances appellant rightly held guilty of offence under S. 302 r/w S. 301 — Plea that the gun was fired in the air just to frighten the complainant and his companions not maintainable. Abdul Ise Suleman v. State of Gujarat, 1994 Supp (2) SCC 9: 1994 SCC (Cri) 668: AIR 1994 SC 1910: (1994) 2 Crimes 962: (1994) 1 GCD 467.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-1994]

[7444] — Ss. 301, 304-A and 307 — Accused intending to kill 'A' killed 'B' who came in the way — Conviction under S. 301 for murder held proper — Case did not lie under S. 304-A or S. 307 in such situation. Hari Shankar v. State of Mysore, (1979) 4 SCC 501: 1980 SCC (Cri) 107.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1979]

[7445] — S. 301 r/w Ss. 302/307 [Ss. 300 Firstly to Fourthly] r/w S. 34 — Police killings by staging fake encounter — Transfer of malice — Common intention/object to murder one M, established — One J and another P accidentally killed instead in furtherance of common intention to murder M in a case of mistaken identify — Conviction of accused police officers for murder with aid of S. 34, held, justified — Transfer of malice — Failure to establish identity of unintended victim, despite ample opportunity and means to do so — Effect — Team of 15 heavily armed police personnel headed by appellant ACP R, on mistakenly identifying victim J as a notorious criminal M, surrounding car in which J, P and T were travelling as it stopped at a red light, fired into it indiscriminately from all sides, shooting dead innocent occupants of the car J and P and causing grievous injuries to third occupant, T — Police taking stand of firing in self-defence — High Court holding that though conviction of ten police personnel (appellants) under Ss. 302/120-B by trial court could not be sustained, but convicting them under Ss. 302/34 and maintaining sentences awarded by trial court — Sustainability of — Held, courts below were very clear that incident was not the outcome of an act in self-defence but was pursuant to common intention to kill a notorious criminal, M — Possibility of a hefty cash reward and accelerated promotion acted as a catalyst and spurred the police party to rash and hasty action — On examination of site plan, evidence, pre-incident conduct, state of affairs during the incident and post facto conduct of appellants, plea of self-defence rejected — Appellants presupposed that one of the inmates of the car was M, the wanted criminal, and firing was so insensitive and indiscriminate that some of the shots had hit two constables comprising their own party — Moreover, there had been no attempt by accused prior to firing, though there was ample opportunity to do so, to cross-check identity of J, and even of P and T, though Inspector A had a photo of M with him — 34 shots were fired at the car, and 29 bullet holes were discovered thereon, most of them of entry — Post-incident conduct i.e. appellant Inspector A's report immediately after the incident followed by a report by appellant ACP the next day, gave the counter-version — Cumulative evidence reveals defence story was palpably false and police officials involved having realised almost immediately after the incident that they had made a horrific mistake, immediately set about creating a false defence — Trial court and High Court rightly held that defence version was a concoction and prosecution story of unprovoked firing by appellants, which had led to deaths of two persons and grievous gunshot injuries to one, had been proved on record — Regarding role of appellants, ACP R and Inspector A, High Court found that ACP was leader of police party and therefore, it was not necessary for him to be in forefront of attack on car; and Inspector A who had admittedly knocked at window of car before the firing began could be treated likewise as being next officer in hierarchy — Hence, High Court rightly held that it was not necessary to assign a specific role to each individual appellant as firing at car was undoubtedly with a clear intent to annihilate those in it and was resorted to in furtherance of common intention of all appellants — Therefore appellants liable to conviction under Ss. 302/34, etc.

Dismissing the appeals,

Held :

The trial court had convicted all the appellants on the primary charge under Section 302 read with Section 120-B IPC, but the High Court has acquitted them under that provision and convicted them under Sections 302/34, etc. IPC instead. This aspect would have to be examined in the background of the defence story that had been projected and as the entire police operation had been conducted in a secret manner as no outsider had any access to what was going on in the matter relating to M. (Para 57)

Admittedly, the target was M, concededly a notorious criminal with a bounty on his head, as he had been involved in a large number of very serious criminal matters. The incident happened on account of a mistake as to the identity of J who could pass off as M and it is nobody's case that the police party had intended to eliminate J and his friends. The courts below have been very clear on this score and have observed that keeping in mind the background in which the incident happened it was not the outcome of an act in self-defence but was pursuant to the common intention to kill M. The possibility of a hefty cash reward and accelerated promotion acted as a catalyst and spurred the police party to rash and hasty action. (Para 58)

As to the role of ACP R and Inspector A, the High Court has found that it was R who was the leader of the police party in his capacity as ACP and therefore, it was not necessary for him to be in the forefront of the attack on the Esteem car (in which J, P and T were sitting) and Inspector A who had admittedly knocked at the window could be treated likewise as being the next officer in the hierarchy. The site plan has been seen and it is noticed that ACP R was sitting in his Police Gypsy about 15 m away from the car when the incident happened. It has come in evidence that when Inspector A had conveyed the fact of J's and T's presence at Patparganj, the ACP had got together a police party of heavily armed officers, briefed them, and they had thereafter moved on to Connaught Place. It has been found as a matter of fact that when Inspector A had followed the car to Dena Bank, J had been left behind in the car alone for quite some time but Inspector A and his two associates had made absolutely no attempt to apprehend him at that stage or to countercheck his identity as Inspector A had M's photograph with him. Even more significantly the Inspector made no attempt to identity the other two occupants P and T whatsoever, although admittedly he was in close wireless contact with ACP. This is the pre-incident conduct which is relevant. (Para 59)

The facts as brought out reveal a startling state of affairs during the incident. It is the case of the defence that the car had been surrounded to immobilise the inmates and to prevent them from escaping and that it was with this intention that Inspector A had knocked on the driver's window asking the inmates to get out but he had been answered by firing from inside the car. This plea cannot be accepted for the reason that the defence has already been rejected. Moreover, PW 37 testified that there were no bullet marks on the tyres and they remained intact even after the incident, despite 34 shots being fired at the car, and 29 bullet holes, most of them of entry thereon. On the other hand, the appellants presupposed that one of the inmates was M, the wanted criminal and that the firing was so insensitive and indiscriminate that some of the shots had hit Constables C and K comprising the attacking police party. The post facto conduct of the appellants is again relevant. Inspector A gave a report on 1-4-1997 immediately after the incident, which was followed by a report by ACP R the next day giving the counter-version. This has been found to be completely untenable. (Paras 60 and 61)

The High Court was, therefore, justified in holding that in the light of the above facts, it was not necessary to assign a specific role to each individual appellant as the firing at the car was undoubtedly with a clear intent to annihilate those in it and was resorted to in furtherance of the common intention of all the appellants. Therefore the appellants were liable to conviction under Sections 302/34, etc. IPC. (Paras 61 and 62)

The cumulative effect of the evidence reveals the starkly patent fact that the defence story as projected was a palpably false one and the police officials involved having realised almost immediately after the incident that they had made a horrific mistake, immediately set about creating a false defence. The trial court and the High Court have accordingly opined on the basis of the overall assessment that the defence version was a concoction and that the prosecution story that it was the unprovoked firing by the appellants which had led to the death of J and P and grievous gunshot injuries to T had been proved on record. This finding also completely dislodges the defence case that the accused were nevertheless entitled to claim the benefit of Exception 3 to Section 300 of the Penal Code. Section 300 Exception 3 presupposes that a public servant who causes death, must do so in good faith and in due discharge of his duty as a public servant and without ill will towards the person whose death is caused. In the light of the fact that the positive case set up by the defence has been rejected by the trial court and the High Court, the question of any good faith does not arise. On the contrary, the appellants had fired without provocation at the car killing two innocent persons and injuring one. The obligation to prove an Exception is on the preponderance of probabilities but it nevertheless lies on the defence. Even on this touchstone the defence cannot succeed. (Paras 43 and 44)

There is no fault with the judgments of the trial court and the High Court. (Para 106). Satyavir Singh Rathi, ACP v. State, (2011) 6 SCC 1.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision : 2-5-2011]

Abdul Sayeed v. State of M.P., (2010) 10 SCC 259: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1262, relied on

[Ed.: It would seem that once the common intention to murder M was established on the part of the accused police officers, the actions of the police party certainly falling under clauses Secondly to Fourthly of Section 300 (if not Section 300 Firstly), then by application of Section 301 they stood guilty under Section 302 r/w S. 34 of murdering J and P.]

[7446] — Ss. 302/301 or 304 Pt. I/Pt. II — Motive — Intention to cause death — Apparent from facts though on failure to attack intended victim his brother was attacked — The malice was merely diverted from one brother to the other — Appellant armed with a sword chased A and when A escaped, he inflicted a serious abdominal injury to A's brother who was standing there, as a result of which his intestine came out of the wound and the victim succumbed to the injury subsequently in hospital — Held, appellant was rightly convicted under S. 302 — Alteration of conviction under S. 304 Pt. I or Pt. II not called for — Appellant chased A with a sword only with the intention to cause his death but A having escaped, his malice changed from one brother to another and he struck the fatal sword-blow in the abdominal region of A's brother with the same intention of causing death

The fact of voluntarily causing injury to the deceased by the accused has been fully substantiated by the relevant evidence. The only question is whether offence under Section 302 IPC is made out or Section 304-I or 304-II IPC is made out. (Para 7)

Here the intention of the accused-appellant is apparent. He chased A with a sword with the intention to inflict serious injury but on his failure to catch hold of A, he caused death of his brother. Nobody chases any person with a sword for any benevolent purpose. Infliction of fatal abdominal injury to the deceased was nothing but change of malice from one brother to another brother. It is the intention which was predominantly present in his mind when the accused chased A and therefore, this intention he satisfied by inflicting the murderous blow on the deceased on a vital part of his body. Therefore, under these circumstances, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 IPC is well founded and there is no ground to interfere in this appeal. Under these circumstances, there is no merit to convert the offence under Section 302 IPC to either under Section 304-I IPC or under Section 304-II IPC. (Paras 8 to 10). Rahimbux v. State of M.P., (2008) 12 SCC 270: AIR 2008 SC 3111.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.K. Mathur and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-5-2008]

Kulwant Rai v. State of Punjab, (1981) 4 SCC 245: 1981 SCC (Cri) 826; Randhir Singh v. State of Punjab, (1981) 4 SCC 484: 1981 SCC (Cri) 856; Jagtar Singh v. State of Punjab, (1983) 2 SCC 342: 1983 SCC (Cri) 459; Gokul Parashram Patil v. State of Maharashtra, (1981) 3 SCC 331: 1981 SCC (Cri) 731; Chowa Mandal v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 231: 2005 SCC (Cri) 154; Ramu v. State of U.P., (2004) 12 SCC 250: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 214; Balbir Singh v. State of Punjab, 1995 Supp (3) SCC 472: 1995 SCC (Cri) 951; Virsa Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1958 SC 465: 1958 SCR 1495, distinguished [7447] — Ss. 304 Pt. I and 302 — Accused giving knife blow to the deceased resulting in his death — Injury sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death but evidence showing that the blow was aimed at another person but it landed on the stomach of the deceased — Accused having no dispute with the deceased — Held, in the circumstances of the case, the accused is liable to be convicted under S. 304 Pt. I and not under S. 302 — Sentence of 7 years' RI imposed. State of Rajasthan v. Satyanarayan, (1998) 8 SCC 404: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1539: AIR 1998 SC 2060: 1998 Cri LJ 2911.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-1-1998]

38. Witnesses

See also 'D.4.(e) Appreciation of Evidence — Credibility of witness', and

'D.11.(c) Conduct/Reaction/Behaviour of witness', in Vol. 2

Synopsis

(a) Accomplice/Approver
(b) Antecedent Character/Background/Status of Witness
(c) Chance witness
(d) Child/Young witness
(e) Eyewitness
(f) Hostile witness
(g) Independent witness
(h) Inimical witness
(i) Injured witness
(j) Interested/Partisan witness
(k) Material witness
(l) Medical witness
(m) Natural witness
(n) Witness Protection and Support
(o) Related witness
(p) Rustic/Village/Rural Witness
(q) Sole/Solitary witness
(r) Tutored/Pressurised witness

(a) Accomplice/Approver

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(b) Accomplice/Approver', pp. 233 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'B.5.(c) Testimony, confession or actions of co-conspirators', in Vol. 2

[7448] — S. 302 — Accused with a co-accused getting a knife prepared — Injuries could be caused to the deceased by the knife — The murder committed 9 weeks after the knife was got prepared — Knife recovered at the pointing out of the co-accused with blood stains over it — Approver's statement about the guilt of the accused is not corroborated

Where there is evidence of a witness that a knife with which the injuries found on the body of the deceased could be caused was got prepared by the appellant and a co-accused 9 weeks before the murder and the knife was recovered with blood stains at the instance of the co-accused the approver's evidence is not corroborated for the conviction of the appellant under Ss. 302/34. Bhiva Doulu Patil v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 599: (1963) 3 SCR 830: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 489.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-8-1962]

[7449] — S. 302 — An accomplice competent to give evidence but it is almost always unsafe to convict on his testimony alone

The combined effect of Ss. 133 and 114, Illustration (b) of the Evidence Act is that according to the former, which is a rule of law, an accomplice is competent to give evidence and according to the latter which is a rule of practice it is almost always unsafe to convict upon his testimony alone. Therefore though the conviction of an accused on the testimony of an accomplice cannot be said to be illegal yet the Courts will, as a matter of practice, not accept the evidence of such a witness without corroboration in material particulars. Bhiva Doulu Patil v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 599: (1963) 3 SCR 830: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 489.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision : 29-8-1962]

[7450] — S. 302 — Approver's evidence — Approver though a competent witness is not always a reliable witness — Approver's statement inconsistent with his statement made to the police about the part played by one of the accused in the commission of the murder — Held, approver though a competent witness could not be relied upon

If this was a case where the statements made by the approver on subsequent occasions merely added details which were not included in the first statement, it may perhaps have been a different matter. It is true that omissions have not always the same significance as contradictions; but in the present case it is patent that the two sets of statements are wholly inconsistent and irreconcilable and that obviously leads to a very serious infirmity in the character of the witness. Every person who is a competent witness is not a reliable witness and the test of reliability has to be satisfied by an approver all the more before the question of corroboration of his evidence is considered by criminal Courts. Sarwan Singh Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 637: 1957 SCR 953: 1957 Cri LJ 1014.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision : 10-4-1957]

See also AIR 1959 SC 1199: 1959 Cri LJ 1492

[7451] — S. 302 — Approver's evidence — Test for appreciation — Before relying on approver's evidence it must be shown that he is a reliable witness and receives sufficient corroboration

An accomplice is undoubtedly a competent witness under the Indian Evidence Act. There can be, however, no doubt that the very fact that he has participated in the commission of the offence introduces a serious stain in his evidence and Courts are naturally reluctant to act on such tainted evidence unless it is corroborated in material particulars by other independent evidence. Such independent corroboration need not cover the whole of the prosecution story or even all the material particulars. On the other hand, it would not be safe to act upon such evidence merely because it is corroborated in minor particulars or incidental details because, in such a case, corroboration does not afford the necessary assurance that the main story disclosed by the approver can be reasonably and safely accepted as true.

The appreciation of an approver's evidence has to satisfy a double test. His evidence must show that he is a reliable witness and that is a test which is common to all witnesses. If this test is satisfied the second test which still remains to be applied is that the approver's evidence must receive sufficient corroboration. This test is special to the cases of weak or tainted evidence like that of the approver. Sarwan Singh Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 637: 1957 SCR 953: 1957 Cri LJ 1014.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision : 10-4-1957]

R. v. Baskerville, (1916) 2 KB 658, approved

This was noticed in AIR 1963 SC 1850: 1963 (2) Cri LJ 671, 694 and AIR 1966 SC 1273: 1966 Cri LJ 949, 956

See also AIR 1967 SC 792: 1967 Cri LJ 671 and (1970) 2 SCC 122

Explained in Jnanendra Nath case, AIR 1959 SC 1199: 1959 Cri LJ 1492 that the situation is different if the approver is not unreliable but his testimony is merely tainted

Again in Major E. Barsay v. State of Bombay, (1962) 2 SCR 195: AIR 1961 SC 1762: 1961 (2) Cri LJ 828, explaining the latter part of the above observations it was stated that:

> In Sarwan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 637, the Supreme Court did not lay down that the evidence of an approver and the corroborating pieces of evidence should be treated in two different compartments, that is to say, the courts shall have first to consider the evidence of the approver do hors the corroborated pieces of evidence and reject it if it comes to the conclusion that his evidence is unreliable; but if it comes to the conclusion that it is reliable then it will have to consider whether that evidence is corroborated by any other evidence. In most of the cases the said two aspects would be so interconnected that it would not be possible to give a separate treatment, for as often as not the reliability of an approver's evidence, though not exclusively, would mostly depend upon the corroborative support it derives from other unimpeachable pieces of evidence

[7452] — S. 302 — Approver's evidence must be corroborated in material particulars and must be shown to be reliable — Such corroboration must be concerning the crime and approver's story connecting the accused with crime

The approver's evidence must show that he is a reliable witness and that is the test which is common to all witnesses. The moment there is corroborative evidence which connects or tends to connect an accused with the crime such corroborative evidence relates to the identity of the accused in connection with that crime. It is the approver's evidence which is the direct evidence of the crime. There should be corroboration in materials particulars not only concerning the crime but corroboration of the approver's story by evidence which connects or tends to connect an accused with the crime. It is this corroborative evidence which determines the mind of the Court or a jury that the approver's evidence that the accused committed the crime is true. Jnanendra Nath Ghose v. State of W.B., AIR 1959 SC 1199: (1960) 1 SCR 126: 1959 Cri LJ 1492.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Syed Jafer Imam and J.L. Kapur, JJ. [Date of decision : 8-5-1959]

[7453] — S. 302 — Approver's statement — Corroboration in material particulars and qua each accused is essential — Approver making confessional statement to S — Statement of S is no corroboration of the approver's statement. Bhiva Doulu Patil v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 599: (1963) 3 SCR 830: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 489.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : J.L. Kapur, A.K. Sarkar and M. Hidayatullah, JJ. [Date of decision : 29-8-1962]

[7454] — S. 302 — Conviction of appellant under, by trial court and High Court — No eyewitness to the occurrence — Prosecution case based solely on uncorroborated testimony of approver which on facts appearing to be involuntary — Evidence regarding recovery of deceased's wearing apparel doubtful — Deceased's body could not be traced — Various discrepancies found in evidence led by prosecution — Held on facts, conviction not proper — Accused-appellant entitled to acquittal — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374 and 386. Abdul Sattar v. UT, Chandigarh, 1985 Supp SCC 599: 1985 SCC (Cri) 505: AIR 1986 SC 1438.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Sen and Ranganath Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1985]

[7455] — S. 302 — Evidence of accomplice — Accomplice a competent witness and conviction can in theory be based on his sole testimony and is not illegal — S. 114, Illustration (b) of Evidence Act incorporates a rule of prudence — This rule of prudence regarding corroboration of evidence of an accomplice has become rule of law — Corroboration to the evidence of accomplice on material particulars is therefore necessary

The Evidence Act in S. 133 provides that an accomplice is a competent witness against an accused person and that a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. The effect of this provision is that the court trying an accused may legally convict him on the single evidence of an accomplice. To this there is a rider in Illustration (b) to S. 114 of the Act which provides that the Court may presume that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless he is corroborated in material particulars. This cautionary provision incorporates a rule of prudence because an accomplice, who betrays his associates, is not a fair witness and it is possible that he may, to please the prosecution, weave false details into those which are true and his whole story appearing true, there may be no means at hand to sever the false from that which is true. It is for this reason that courts, before they act on accomplice evidence, insist on corroboration in material respects as to the offence itself and also implicating in some satisfactory way, however small, each accused named by the accomplice. In this way the commission of the offence is confirmed by some competent evidence other than the single or unconfirmed testimony of the accomplice and the inclusion by the accomplice of an innocent person is defeated. This rule of caution or prudence has become so ingrained in the consideration of accomplice evidence as to have almost the standing of a rule of law.

38.(a) Accomplice/Approver (contd.)

Every detail of the story of the accomplice need not be confirmed by independent evidence although some additional independent evidence must be looked for to see whether the approver is speaking the truth and there must be some evidence, direct or circumstantial which connects the co-accused with the crime independently of the accomplice. One such circumstance may be the making of a number of confessions without a chance for prior consultation between the confessing co-accused. But before even a number of such confessions can be used each such confession must inspire confidence both in its content and in the manner and circumstances of its making. If there be any suspicion of false implication the confession must be discarded as of no probative value. This may result from a variety of circumstances. Where there is a single retracted confession corroborating other accomplice evidence, the caution must necessarily be still greater and the probative value smaller. Even if there is more than one such confession and they are proved to be given independently and without an opportunity for a prior concert, the probative value may increase but the need for caution remains because a number of suspects may be prompted by the same or different motives to embroil a particular individual. It is only when false implication is excluded after close scrutiny that confession of a co-accused can be used to lend assurance to other evidence. Haroon Haji Abdulla v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 832: (1968) 2 SCR 641: 1968 Cri LJ 1017.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision : 14-12-1967]

[7456] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Accomplice's evidence as basis of conviction for murder — Practice of requirement of corroboration — Tests — Whether, on facts, justified — Evidence Act, 1872 — Ss. 133 & 114, Ill. (b)

An approver is a most unworthy friend, if at all, and he, having bargained for his immunity, must prove his worthiness for credibility in court. This test is fulfilled, firstly, if the story he relates involves him in the crime and appears intrinsically to be a natural and probable catalogue of events that had taken place. The story if given of minute details according with reality is likely to save it from being rejected brevi manu. Secondly, once that hurdle is crossed, the story given by an approver so far as the accused on trial is concerned, must implicate him in such a manner as to give rise to a conclusion of guilt beyond reasonable doubt. In a rare case taking into consideration all the factors, circumstances and situations governing a particular case, conviction based on the uncorroborated evidence of an approver confidently held to be true and reliable by the Court may be permissible. Ordinarily, however, an approver's statement has to be corroborated in material particulars bridging closely the distance between the crime and the criminal. Certain clinching features of involvement disclosed by an approver appertaining directly to an accused, if reliable, as determined by the touchstone of other independent credible evidence, would give the needed assurance for acceptance of his testimony on which a conviction may be based.

Every approver comes to give evidence in some such manner seeking to purchase his immunity and that is why to start with he is an unreliable person and the rule of caution calling for material corroboration is constantly kept in mind by the Court by time-worn judicial practice.

On facts, there is nothing in the approver's evidence to show that his statement otherwise is unreliable, unnatural or improbable. There is nothing to show that he had on any earlier occasion made any contradictory statement on any material point. His story while revealing the actual incidents stands amply corroborated by the facts deposed to by the independent witnesses in certain material and clinching aspects connecting the accused with the crime. In fact the approver's evidence is not only reliable but the same stands corroborated in several material parts by other reliable evidence from an independent source. Motive for the crime is also shown . Ravinder Singh v. State of Haryana, (1975) 3 SCC 742: 1975 SCC (Cri) 202: AIR 1975 SC 856: (1975) 3 SCR 453: 1975 Cri LJ 765.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer, P.K. Goswami and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1975]

[7457] — S. 302 — Sentence — Conviction based on approver's evidence corroborated by independent sources — Tendency of accomplices to minimise their role and shift and assign the dominant role to the accused present in the present case

— Death sentence reduced to life imprisonment. Subramanian v. State of T.N., (1975) 3 SCC 414: 1975 SCC (Cri) 40: AIR 1975 SC 139: 1975 Cri LJ 226.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-11-1974]

[7458] — Ss. 302 and 34 — Approver — Approver's testimony against the accused, absolving himself and appearing unnatural and incapable of inspiring confidence — Such testimony in absence of independent corroboration, held, cannot sustain conviction — Evidence Act, 1872 — Ss. 133 and 114 Ill. (b)

It is established as a rule of prudence that conviction can be based on the testimony of accomplice only if it is thought reliable as a whole being intrinsically natural and reliable and if it is corroborated by independent evidence, either direct or circumstantial, connecting the accused with the crime.

In the present case the only evidence against the accused was that of the approver. He claimed to be a spectator at every moment but did not participate at any stage. Apart from it the initial story appears also to be absolutely unnatural as according to him, he did not know anyone of the accused persons but a month before the incident they took him into confidence and told him to join them. The evidence of the witness as a whole does not appear to be natural and does not inspire confidence. Apart from it as there was no corroboration at all from any other independent circumstance or source of evidence, the conviction of the appellants could not be maintained. Chandan v. State of Rajasthan, (1988) 1 SCC 696: 1988 SCC (Cri) 238: AIR 1988 SC 599: 1988 Cri LJ 842.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and L.M. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1988]

[7459] — Ss. 302 and 34 — Approver's evidence — Found reliable and trustworthy by the trial court and affirmed by High Court — Supreme Court in appeal by special leave not to take a different view when the discrepancies pointed out have been considered and disposed of by the courts below — Further, held, that the approver's evidence was adequately corroborated from independent sources against both the appellants — Convictions upheld — Evidence Act, 1872 — Ss. 133 and 114, Ill. (b). Subramanian v. State of T.N., (1975) 3 SCC 414: 1975 SCC (Cri) 40: AIR 1975 SC 139: 1975 Cri LJ 226.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-11-1974]

[7460] — Ss. 302 and 120-B — Accomplice — Independent corroboration in respect of material particulars of evidence of accomplice needed as a rule of law and practice — Nature and extent of corroboration would depend on facts and circumstances of each case — On facts, accused could not be convicted solely on the basis of uncorroborated testimony of accomplice and accused entitled to benefit of doubt — Evidence Act, 1872 — Ss. 133 and 114 Ill. (b)

The appellant and two other persons 'N' and 'R' were arrested and charged under Ss. 302 and 120-B, IPC for murder of the appellant's husband. 'R' later became approver. The facts which required sequentially to be established were that appellant's married life was in a serious disarray; that she and 'N' were on terms of illicit intimacy; that she also submitted herself to 'R' in an extra-marital relation; that on the day preceding the day of occurrence she implored 'N' and 'R' to free her from her cruel husband by doing away with him; that she agreed that she would, thereafter, live with 'N' as his wife, and that after coming to know of the death of her husband she deliberately misled her mother-in-law into making a report to the police containing false and misleading information in an attempt to draw a red herring across the trail. The evidence of prosecution witnesses on the first two points stated above had been discarded by the Sessions Court. It was also not suggested that after the murder of the deceased, the appellant began to live with 'N'. There was considerable lapse of time between the death of the deceased and their arrest. There was no evidence to show that, in the interregnum, there was any liaison between the two. Moreover, the incriminating testimony of the approver pertaining to the case that on the day preceding the day of the occurrence appellant wept and implored 'N' and 'R' to do away with her husband and that appellant also agreed that she would, thereafter live with 'N' had not been put to the appellant in the course of her examination under S. 313, CrPC. Though the appellant was about 15½ years of age at the time of the occurrence, the trial court on the basis of the approver's testimony as corroborated by other evidence, held her as well as 'N' guilty of the offences they were charged with and sentenced them to imprisonment for life. The High Court dismissed their appeals and confirmed the convictions and the sentences. Before the Supreme Court it was urged on behalf of the appellant that the evidence of the approver insofar as the complicity of appellant was concerned, lacked corroboration on material particulars and that no conviction could be sustained on such uncorroborated testimony of accomplice. Allowing the appeal

38.(a) Accomplice/Approver (contd.)

Held :

An accomplice, by long legal tradition, is a notoriously infamous witness, one who being particeps criminis, purchases his immunity by accepting to accuse others. In indictments, particularly of serious crimes, the counsel of caution and the rule of prudence enjoin that it is unsafe to rest a conviction on the evidence of a guilty partner in a crime without independent corroboration on the material particulars. Judicial experience was thus, elevated to a rule of law. "It is a practice which deserves all the reverence of law". However, the nature and extent of the corroboration must necessarily vary with the nature and circumstances of each case. Enunciation of any general rule, valid for all occasions, is not practicable.

In the present case the controversy is whether the approver's testimony as to the appellant's complicity in the conspiracy could safely be held to have been corroborated by independent evidence on the material particulars. On a consideration of the entire matter it appears that the approver's evidence in that regard lacks corroboration on certain material particulars necessary to connect the appellant. A little more reassurance than is afforded by the state of evidence in the case is perhaps, necessary to convict the appellant. Moreover, the incriminating circumstances in the evidence of the approver appearing against the appellant should have been put to the appellant in her examination under S. 313, CrPC. Appellant was not afforded an opportunity to submit an explanation to it. That part of the evidence must for that reason, be excluded from consideration. Appellant, in the circumstances, would be entitled to the benefit of doubt. Balwant Kaur v. UT, Chandigarh, (1988) 1 SCC 1: 1988 SCC (Cri) 1: AIR 1988 SC 139: 1988 Cri LJ 398.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and M.N. Venkatachaliah, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1987]

[7461] — Ss. 302 and 201 — Appreciation of evidence — Accomplice's evidence — If corroborated in material particulars, can constitute the basis for conviction — Accomplice becoming approver having been validly granted pardon under S. 306 CrPC, and withstanding cross-examination in committal as well as sessions court — His testimony regarding causing death of the deceased by A-1 corroborated in material particulars by other evidence — Circumstantial evidence sufficient to connect A-1 with commission of the crime — Held on facts, courts below rightly convicted A-1 under S. 302 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 133 — CrPC, 1973, S. 306

PW 1 has been proved to have been validly granted the pardon under Section 306 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the appellant-accused afforded sufficient opportunity of cross-examining him both in the committal as well as in the sessions case. He has withstood the cross-examination and proved the factum of the death of the deceased by A-1 and the destruction of his body by all the accused persons. An accomplice is a competent witness and a conviction can be based upon his testimony if it is otherwise corroborated in material particulars. Both the trial court as well as the High Court have found on facts that the death of the deceased was a case of homicide for which A-1 was responsible. The whole of the deposition of PW 1 is a vivid explanation of the manner in which the offence was committed by A-1 in the presence of A-2 and A-3. There is no reason to disbelieve the statement of PW 1. Besides his ocular testimony there is sufficient corroborative evidence which connects A-1 with the commission of the crime of murder of the deceased. Counsel appearing for A-1 could not refer to any alleged weak link to the circumstances relied upon by the courts below to show that the testimony of PW 1, an approver, had not been corroborated. The circumstantial evidence produced in the case is sufficient to connect the accused with the commission of the crime. It does not lead to any other inference than one of his involvement in the crime. There is no reason to disagree with the findings of the trial court as well as the High Court insofar as the involvement of A-1 in the commission of the crime of murder is concerned. (Paras 18 and 19). State of Kerala v. P. Sugathan, (2000) 8 SCC 203: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1474: AIR 2000 SC 3323.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.P. Mohapatra and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-2000]

[7462] — Ss. 302/34, 120-B, 364 & 201 — Case based on approver's evidence which was weak and untenable — Approver kept improving his story from time to time — Only conviction under S. 201 can stand based on recovery of dead body at the instance of the accused. Baldev Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 4 SCC 145: 1979 SCC (Cri) 929: AIR 1979 SC 1280: 1979 Cri LJ 871.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Jaswant Singh, P.S. Kailasam and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-1978]

(b) Antecedent Character/Background/ Status of Witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(c) Antecedent character/Background/status of witness', pp. 239 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7463] — Ss. 302, 325, 323 r/w S. 149, Ss. 147 & 148 — Murder trial — Conviction justified — Credibility of witnesses — Related witness and witness with criminal antecedents — Seven accused alleged to have formed unlawful assembly and in pursuance of common object thereof murdered the deceased and also caused injuries to his brother, PW 1 — Prosecution relying on testimonies of PWs 1 & 2 to support its version — FIR lodged immediately after occurrence by PW 1, wherein A-1 & A-2 (appellants) were clearly named, even their father's name, caste and town they belonged to was clearly mentioned, and specific acts attributed to each of them — PW 1 knew A-1 & A-2 even before the incident and was candid enough to admit that except for those two, he could not say as to which weapons were wielded by other accused — Besides, PW 1 had clearly identified all accused in court — Further, substantive part of his evidence had remained unshaken throughout viz. when he was examined in 1989 for the first time and ten years later in 1998, and his cross-examination in 1999 — Furthermore, he had lost his brother, and hence, could not be expected to let off persons, who were, in fact, guilty of assaulting his brother — As far as PW 2 is concerned, there was nothing to disbelieve insofar as his evidence relating to main incident was concerned — He had no dispute with accused but was rather friendly with them — He candidly admitted that he did not go to police station which was probably because PW 1 had already gone there — Material omissions found in his testimony insignificant — Source of light in which he identified the accused was categorically stated by him and his testimony had remained unshaken throughout — Thus, even when he was of criminal character, and his statement was recorded later, his evidence was inspiring confidence, hence, keeping caution in mind, same could not be rejected — Besides, testimonies of PWs 1 and 2 found corroborating each other where active role played by A-1 and A-2 was obvious — Hence, impugned judgment convicting A-1 and A-2 under S. 302 calls for no interference (Paras 2, 19 to 30 and 38). Murli v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 9 SCC 417: (2009) 81 AIC 43 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-2009]

(c) Chance witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(d) Chance witness', pp. 241 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'D.38.(m) Natural witness', below

[7464] — S. 302 — Chance witness — Murder on road — Testimony of independent witnesses — Challenge to, on the ground that they did not explain how they happened to be at the alleged place of occurrence — Held, not maintainable

PWs 4 and 9 were independent witnesses. There was not even a suggestion to the witnesses that they had any animosity towards any of the accused. (Para 13)

In a murder trial by describing the independent witnesses as "chance witnesses" it cannot be implied thereby that their evidence is suspicious and their presence at the scene doubtful. Murders are not committed with previous notice to witnesses, soliciting their presence. If murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a street, only passers-by will be witnesses. Their evidence cannot be brushed aside or viewed with suspicion on the ground that they are mere "chance witnesses". (Para 13)

The expression "chance witness" is borrowed from countries where every man's home is considered his castle and everyone must have an explanation for his presence elsewhere or in another man's castle. It is quite unsuitable an expression in a country where people are less formal and more casual, at any rate in the matter explaining their presence. (Para 13). State of A.P. v. K. Srinivasulu Reddy, (2003) 12 SCC 660: AIR 2004 SC 3305.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision : 18-12-2003]

[7465] — S. 302 — Chance witnesses — PW 3 and PW 7 (two young girls) not ordinarily residents of the village though in all likelihood could be visiting it — Therefore, they can be called chance witnesses — Further, PW 3 and PW 7, accompanying the deceased while he was going to lodge a complaint — Such unusual behaviour of young girls instead of men accompanying the deceased not explained by prosecution — Further, the witnesses stating that all the accused were hiding behind a nullah, thereby trying to hide their identity and then subsequently stating that the accused suddenly coming in front of the deceased and shooting him — Witnesses also contradicting their own statement as to the manner in which the deceased was shot, whether sitting or standing — No reliance placed on their evidence (Para 7). Bhim Singh v. State of Haryana, (2002) 10 SCC 461: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1469: AIR 2003 SC 693: 2003 Cri LJ 857.

38.(c) Chance witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 3. Coram : N. Santosh Hegde, Shivaraj V. Patil and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision : 11-12-2002]

[7466] — S. 302 — Long-standing enmity of serious nature existing between the two eyewitnesses (PWs 3 and 4) and family of accused persons — Murder of brother of PW 3 — Conviction of appellants under S. 302 based on testimony of chance witnesses PWs 3 and 4 — Propriety — I and his six sons including the two appellants charged under S. 302 r/w S. 120-B IPC for having hatched a conspiracy to commit murder of P — Trial court disbelieving the part of story related to hatching conspiracy and acquitting all accused persons except the appellants — Testimony regarding the manner in which the gunshots were fired, found inconsistent with medical evidence — Delay in sending FIR to Magistrate not explained — Both the eyewitnesses were chance witnesses — Grave doubt expressed about their presence at the place of the incident — Further, testimony of defence witnesses, held on facts, could not just be thrown overboard — Thus, conviction of appellants set aside — CrPC, 1973, S. 157(1)

PWs 3 and 4, the two eyewitnesses, deposed that they were going to Shivpuri on their bicycles and when they reached Agra-Bombay Road at about 1.30 or 2 p.m., they saw that the motorcycle on which the deceased P was coming was hit by the jeep driven by the appellant B. They further stated that when P fell down with the motorcycle, appellant G fired a shot from his rifle on the chest of P and appellant B fired a gunshot on P placing his gun just below the temporal region of the deceased.

Allowing the appeal and setting aside the conviction under Section 302 IPC,

Held :

PW 3 is the brother of the deceased. There is a long-standing enmity of a serious nature existing between the two eyewitnesses and the family of the accused persons. The incident is of the month of June in its latter part. In the part of the country related to the instant case, June-end suffers from scorching heat. Ordinarily, people do not come out and travel long distances under the midday sun, except in cases of urgency or dire need. There was no such reason with either of the two witnesses to go to Shivpuri on bicycles in the hot summer season during the scorching heat of the midday sun. It is a strange coincidence that as soon as they reach the road they find P on a motorcycle followed by the two accused in a jeep coming from the opposite direction. Having been hit and injured, the deceased would get up and run away from the accused persons and if he was to be shot at, he would be hit from behind and not from the front as the injury on the chest suggests. Considering the distance from which .315 bore Mauser rifle is stated to have been fired by the accused G, it is held that in the ordinary course the bullet would not remain embedded in the body and the wound of entry must have been followed by a wound of exit unless the gun was fired from a long distance but that is not the prosecution case as narrated by the eyewitnesses. According to PW 3, B had fired his .12 bore gun by placing the barrel just below the temporal region of the deceased. But the injury is found on the neck and not below the temporal region. Further, the witnesses deposed to having pointed out their cycles fallen on the ground and the bushes behind which the witnesses were hiding themselves to SHO, but the site plan does not show the presence of cycles or the bushes although it mentions the place wherefrom the two witnesses claim to have seen the incident. (Para 13)

According to SHO, it was a telephonic message received by him at Shivpuri Police Station which prompted him to move to the place of the incident. There is no record of such telephonic message. That apart, no explanation is forthcoming why there was a delay of two days in forwarding the copy of the FIR to the Area Magistrate. (Para 14)

The eyewitnesses claim the motorcycle to have been hit by the left side of the bumper of the jeep but the report of the forensic science laboratory is indicating that the dent caused by the motorcycle is on the right side of the bumper. (Para 15)

Both the eyewitnesses are chance witnesses. They do not assign any convincing reason for being at the place of the incident at that abnormal hour of the day in full summer. PW 4 was suffering from pain in the legs. He would not cycle to Shivpuri except for urgency or pressing need, which there was none. (Para 16)

Further, having examined the testimony of the defence witnesses, four in number, originating from the residents of the village, it is held that the same cannot just be thrown overboard. (Para 18)

In view of the abovesaid circumstances, the conviction of the two accused-appellants, which rests on the testimony of the said two witnesses, cannot be sustained. (Para 18). Baldev Singh v. State of M.P., (2003) 9 SCC 45: AIR 2003 SC 2098: 2003 Cri LJ 880.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.C. Lahoti and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-1-2003]

[7467] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Chance witness — Murder on road — Testimony of independent witness, a rickshaw-puller — Challenge to, on the ground that he did not explain how he happened to be at the alleged place of occurrence — Held, not maintainable

In a murder trial by describing the independent witnesses as "chance witnesses" it cannot be implied thereby that their evidence is suspicious and their presence at the scene doubtful. Murders are not committed with previous notice to witnesses soliciting their presence. If murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a street, only passers-by will be witnesses. Their evidence cannot be brushed aside or viewed with suspicion on the ground that they are mere "chance witnesses". The expression "chance witness" is borrowed from countries where every man's home is considered his castle and everyone must have an explanation for his presence elsewhere or in another man's castle. It is quite an unsuitable expression in a country where people are less formal and more casual. (Para 17)

On facts, PW 5 was an independent witness. There was not even a suggestion to the witness that he had any animosity towards any of the accused. (Para 17). Chanakya Dhibar v. State of W.B., (2004) 12 SCC 398.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision : 19-12-2003]

[7468] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Chance witnesses — Where incident taking place on street, passersby such as milk and vegetable vendors are natural witnesses and not chance witnesses

If a murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a brothel, prostitutes and paramours are natural witnesses. If murder is committed on a street, only passersby will be witnesses. The evidence of street hawkers and street vendors cannot be discarded or viewed with suspicion merely on the ground that they are chance witnesses. Rana Partap v. State of Haryana, (1983) 3 SCC 327: 1983 SCC (Cri) 601: AIR 1983 SC 680: 1983 Cri LJ 1272.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-5-1983]

[7469] — S. 302 r/w S. 34 — Case based on testimony of chance eyewitnesses (PWs 3 and 4) — Also closely related — Conviction — Propriety — Land dispute between PW 4 and appellant's cousin (J) — Deceased S helping PW 4 whereas appellant helping J — Informant PW 3 (father of S) receiving information at about 7 p.m. from his wife (PW 6) that S left the house with accused at 5 p.m., but did not return — PW 3 becoming apprehensive of safety of S — Searching for S along with PW 4 — On the way, they witnessing the murder of S between 9 to 10 p.m. — Information given to police at 11.20 p.m. — PW 4 stating the time of occurrence to be 7 p.m. — PW 5 at the instance of PW 3 making announcement over loudspeaker before 5.30 p.m. about missing of S — Non-examination of persons gathered after occurrence — Serious doubt about PWs 3 and 4 observing details of attack in the manner narrated — Evidence of PW 6 about what she stated to PW 3, doubtful — On such facts, held, PWs 3 and 4 were introduced as eyewitnesses only after the dead body was found — Conviction and sentence against appellant set aside

It remains unexplained as to why the prosecution came forward with an inconsistent and distorted version of the time at which PW 3 came to know about his missing son and the actual timing of the occurrence. It may be that some allowance has to be given for the variation in time but the variation in this case is so vast (7.00 p.m. to 10.00 p.m.) that it cannot be attributed merely to the inability of the witnesses hailing from the village to give correct time. PWs 3 and 4 are not illiterate persons, though living in a village. It is difficult to assume that they will not have the idea of time. (Paras 8 and 9)

The time of incident assumes some importance in the instant case for the reason that the report was given to the police at about 11.20 p.m. If the occurrence had been witnessed at 7.00 p.m. as per PW 4's version, there would then be a gap of 3½ hours to 4 hours. Probably to cover up this delay, PW 3 has come forward with the story that the incident happened between 9.00 and 10.00 p.m. (Para 10)

The evidence of the persons who gathered immediately after the occurrence on hearing the alleged cries of PWs 3 and 4 would have been a valuable piece of evidence to serve as corroboration of the account given by the direct witnesses, especially when the presence of the alleged eyewitnesses at the spot was too much of a coincidence. No reason is forthcoming for not examining them. This is another serious lapse which casts a doubt on the prosecution case. (Para 11)

Further, there is serious doubt whether PWs 3 and 4 could have observed the details of attack in the manner in which they narrated. Standing at a respectable distance for fear of being assaulted, it is doubtful whether they were in a position to observe each and every detail of the alleged occurrence, that too in the moonlight. As far as PW 3 is concerned, there is any amount of doubt as regards his eyesight. (Para 12)

38.(c) Chance witness (contd.)

If the version of PW 6 (wife of PW 3) is truthful, one would expect PW 3 contacting the two accused or their leader. It was nobody's case that PW 3 went to the houses of those persons and tried to make inquiries. That apart, the statement of PW 6 was recorded about three months later, for which no explanation is forthcoming. (Para 13)

Thus, the overall picture on a critical examination of the prosecution evidence is that PWs 3 and 4 were introduced as eyewitnesses only after the dead body was found. (Para 14). Harjinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 11 SCC 253: AIR 2004 SC 3962: (2004) 21 AIC 887 (SC): 2004 Cri LJ 3854.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-2004]

[7470] — Ss. 302/149 — PW 2 happened to see the incident while he was going to his guava orchard situated on the western side of the place where the incident occurred — High Court rejecting his testimony on the ground that he would not have passed through the place of occurrence — On facts, held, it could not be said that the attention of PW 2 would not have been drawn to the incident taking place on the next compound — Hence, High Court erred in rejecting his testimony. State of U.P. v. Shiv Charan, (2002) 9 SCC 381.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-1-2002]

(d) Child/Young witness

> See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(e) Child/Young witness', pp. 250 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also under 'D.38.(q) Sole/Solitary witness', below

[7471] — S. 302 — Child witness — Belated disclosure of the incident by — Conviction confirmed — Deceased strangulated and buried under floor of his own house by his nephew (A-1 appellant) and deceased's wife (A-2) — Incident seen by deceased's ten year old daughter (PW 2) who was threatened by accused of dire consequences if she revealed the occurrence to anybody — Ten days after, when deceased's father (PW 1) came and asked about deceased, PW 2 narrated entire incident to him and also showed place where deceased was buried — FIR lodged thereafter — Body of deceased was then exhumed by police in presence of witnesses and panchayatdars — In post-mortem report, doctor opined that deceased died due to manhandling and throttling about 10-15 days prior to date of autopsy and that skull of the dead body could have belonged to a male whose photograph was shown (deceased) — Held, dead body of deceased having been discovered at instance of child witness and post-mortem report being in consonance with prosecution case regarding causing death by strangulation and throttling, testimony of child witness which stood test of cross-examination, cannot be disbelieved — There was no reason why child would falsely implicate her mother also in murder of her father. Balaji v. State, (2010) 12 SCC 545: AIR 2010 SC 278: (2010) 85 AIC 209 (SC).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Altamas Kabir, Cyriac Joseph and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-2009]

[7472] — S. 302 — Child witness — Evidence of — Conviction on the basis of — Held, permissible if such witness is found competent to testify and the court after careful scrutiny of its evidence is convinced about the quality and reliability of the same — PW 11, a child witness, saw the appellant committing murder of two persons — Nothing to show that PW 11 or her father had any animosity against the appellant — PW 11 describing in detail the scenario implicating the appellant — Testimony of PW 11 found credible — Appellant's conviction placing reliance thereupon, held, justified — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118

In the present case, the learned trial Judge has elaborately analysed the evidence of PW 11 (child witness). There is no reason as to why she would falsely implicate the accused. Nothing has been brought on record to show that she or her father had any animosity so far as the accused is concerned. The prosecution has been able to bring home its accusations beyond the shadow of a doubt. Further, the trial court on careful examination was satisfied about the child's capacity to understand and to give rational answers. That being the position, it cannot be said that the witness (PW 11) had no maturity to understand the import of the questions put or to give rational answers. This witness was cross-examined at length and in spite thereof she had described in detail the scenario implicating the accused to be the author of the crime. The mere fact that the child was asked to say about the occurrence and as to what she saw, is no reason to jump to a conclusion that it amounted to tutoring and that she was deposing only as per tutoring what was not otherwise what she actually saw. (Para 8)

Evidence of PW 11 has credibility which reveals a truthful approach and her evidence to put it mildly, has the ring of truth. There are no exaggerations and she has stuck to her statement made during investigation in all material particulars. That being so, the trial court and the High Court were justified in placing implicit reliance on her testimony. In addition, the evidence to recovery and the report of the Forensic Science Laboratory provide additional support to the prosecution version. (Para 9). Ratansinh Dalsukhbhai Nayak v. State of Gujarat, (2004) 1 SCC 64: 2004 SCC (Cri) 7: AIR 2004 SC 23: 2004 Cri LJ 19.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision : 29-10-2003]

Arbind Singh v. State of Bihar, 1995 Supp (4) SCC 416: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1418, distinguished

[7473] — S. 302 — Child witness — Evidence of — Not disclosing names of accused at an early stage — Recoveries not corroborating the evidence — Held, unsafe to rely on the evidence — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118

M, a female child aged about 11 years, the niece of the deceased, who it is alleged was sleeping close to the cot of the deceased on another cot at the time of murder stated that she saw her aunt being killed and that there was a threat to her life as well when one of the assailants suggested that she should also be killed while the other pleaded that she being a child be spared. According to her statement she all along kept pretending that she was sleeping. She did not disclose the names of the assailants who were known to her when she informed one B in the morning that her aunt had been killed. She disclosed the names of the assailants 4 days after the incident after she was interrogated by the police at the police station for two days. Her statement did not also corroborate certain recoveries made by the police.

Held :

A child witness aged about 11 years, who is alleged to be an eyewitness of an occurrence of murder can often be expected to give out a true version because of her innocence, there is always the danger in accepting the evidence of such a witness that, under influence, she might have been coached to give out a version by person who may have influence on her.

In this case there are a number of circumstances which show that her evidence is not reliable. It does not seem likely that a girl when her aunt was being killed and her own life was threatened could have continued to pretend that she was asleep. She did not name the assailants at the earliest opportunity, but named them 4 days after the incident and when she remained confined in the police station for two days. Her statement was also not corroborated by certain recoveries made. The witness cannot therefore be held to be reliable. State of Bihar v. Kapil Singh, AIR 1969 SC 53: (1968) 3 SCR 810: 1969 Cri LJ 279.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision : 18-4-1968]

[7474] — S. 302 — Child witness — Testimony of — Evidentiary value — Murder case — J doing construction work at his house in a village asking his brother G to assist him — According to R, 11 or 12-year-old son of G, he along with G had gone to the construction site to sleep there — That at 11.00 p.m. he heard some noise and saw the two accused persons armed with guns coming towards them and that on being exhorted by one of them the other one shot G dead from a close range — That meanwhile J reached there and fired in the air through his licensed gun, the assailants fled but on seeing the dead body of G, R became unconscious and fell down — Having seen the assailants from a distance J being unable to identifying them not naming them in the FIR which he lodged the next morning — R regaining consciousness only after J had left for lodging FIR and thereafter R disclosing the names of the assailants — The said statement of R recorded under S. 161 of CrPC and reaffirmed by him before trial court — R searchingly cross-examined but no material found to discredit his testimony — In such circumstances, held, the trial court rightly accepted the evidence of R as truthful and credible and the absence of the names of the assailants in the FIR or in the inquest panchnama or absence of medical evidence regarding R's unconsciousness was inconsequential as at 11.00 p.m. in a village no medical help could be expected. Nikka Singh v. State of Punjab, (1996) 11 SCC 283: 1997 SCC (Cri) 67: AIR 1997 SC 3676.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1996]

[7475] — S. 302 — Child witness — Tutoring — Inference regarding — Mere fact that the child was asked to say about the occurrence and as to what she saw, held, did not amount to tutoring — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118 (Para 8). Ratansinh Dalsukhbhai Nayak v. State of Gujarat, (2004) 1 SCC 64: 2004 SCC (Cri) 7: AIR 2004 SC 23: 2004 Cri LJ 19.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision : 29-10-2003]

Arbind Singh v. State of Bihar, 1995 Supp (4) SCC 416: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1418, distinguished

38.(d) Child/Young witness (contd.)

[7476] — S. 302 — Murder — Prosecution case mainly based on testimony of minor son of deceased as eyewitness — Inconsistencies and contradictions found in his testimony in certain crucial aspects — Two different versions given by the boy in respect of actual spot of offence — Further, while according to the boy he was examined and taken to the spot by police only 4-5 days after the incident, it was made to appear on police record that he was examined on the same day of the incident — Version of the boy also inconsistent with that of the IO as regards the actual time when police had reached the spot after the incident — Moreover, although in the FIR the informant had mentioned about the boy's presence, he had not mentioned therein that the boy had told him that the accused had killed his father — Held, though by itself, it may not be a significant omission, but coupled with other doubtful features emerging from the evidence of the boy and the IO, this aspect cannot be brushed aside — In view of the doubtful features and other infirmities in the prosecution evidence, it was not safe to rely on the evidence of the boy whose evidence needs to be scrutinised with due care and caution — Offence not made out. Zafar v. State of U.P., (2003) 3 SCC 51: 2003 SCC (Cri) 730: AIR 2003 SC 931: 2003 Cri LJ 1218: 2003 All LJ 555.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu and P. Venkatarama Reddi, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-1-2003]

Zafar v. State of U.P., 2000 Cri LJ 3786: 2000 All LJ 1583, reversed

[7477] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Child witness — Reliability of testimony of — Competent, unless court considers otherwise — Court may rely upon evidence of child witness, in case her deposition inspires confidence of court and there is no embellishment or improvement — Every witness is competent to depose unless court considers that she is prevented from understanding the question put to her due to tender age, extreme old age, disease whether of body or mind — Only in case there is evidence on record to show that a child has been tutored, can court reject her statement partly or fully — An inference as to whether child has been tutored or not, can be drawn from contents of her deposition — Statement of PW 1 was affirmed by statements of other witnesses, proved circumstances and medical evidence — Her deposition being precise, concise, specific and vivid without any improvement or embroidery, is worth acceptance in toto — Conviction based on her testimony, restored — Oaths Act, 1873, S. 5 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118 (Paras 7 to 14 and 23). State of M.P. v. Ramesh, (2011) 4 SCC 786.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-2011]

Rameshwar v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1952 SC 54: 1952 Cri LJ 547; Mangoo v. State of M.P., AIR 1995 SC 959: 1995 Cri LJ 1461; Panchhi v. State of U.P., (1998) 7 SCC 177: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1561; Nivrutti Pandurang Kokate v. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 12 SCC 565: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 454; Ratansinh Dalsukhbhai Nayak v. State of Gujarat, (2004) 1 SCC 64: 2004 SCC (Cri) 7; Himmat Sukhadeo Wahurwagh v. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 6 SCC 712: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1; State of U.P. v. Krishna Master, (2010) 12 SCC 324: (2011) 1 SCC (Cri) 381; Gagan Kanojia v. State of Punjab, (2006) 13 SCC 516: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 109, relied on [7478] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Testimony of child witness when needs corroboration — Child witness is prone to tutoring and hence court should look for corroboration particularly when the evidence betrays traces of tutoring — Husband charged with murder of his wife by hanging — Entire case hinging on the evidence of daughter of deceased aged 5 years at the time of the incident and 9 years at the date of deposition — Trial judge not undertaking a 'voir dire' though he noted that the witness was capable of understanding and answering questions — Witness not consistent in her version — Traces of tutoring found on certain aspects of case — Held, implicit faith and reliance cannot be placed on the evidence of such child witness as it was not corroborated by any independent and reliable evidence — Conviction under S. 302 and sentence of life imprisonment imposed by lower courts set aside — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118. Arbind Singh v. State of Bihar, 1995 Supp (4) SCC 416: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1418: AIR 1994 SC 1068.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi, M.M. Punchhi and K. Ramaswamy, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1992]

[7479] — S. 302 — Reliability of testimony of — Testimony of PW 1, minor son of deceased corroborated in all material particulars — The reason of PW 1 not disclosing to PW 3, his father and husband of deceased as to who the accused was, satisfactorily explained by PW 3 himself — Testimony of PW 1, held, cogent and credible

The reason as to why PW 1 (the minor son) did not tell PW 3 (his father) has been explained by PW 3 himself. The said witness stated that PW 1 did not disclose him as to how the deceased (mother of PW 1 and wife of PW 3) caught fire because he himself had no time to ask about it and was busy in making arrangement for taking the injured to the hospital where she subsequently breathed her last. In view of the credible and cogent evidence of PW 1 and the dying declaration, there is no merit in the present appeal which deserves dismissal, which is directed. (Paras 13 and 15). Kalawati v. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 4 SCC 37: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 49: AIR 2009 SC 1932.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-2009]

P.V. Radhakrishna v. State of Karnataka, (2003) 6 SCC 443; Mohan Lal v. State of Haryana, (2007) 9 SCC 151: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 94, relied on [7480] — S. 302 — Sole testimony of son of the deceased aged 16 years found reliable — Minor contradictions regarding number of blows inflicted and which side of pharsa used immaterial — Medical evidence not in entire conflict with the ocular version — Mere fact that the witness was taken by the police to be produced as a witness, is not a ground to come to the conclusion that he was tutored — Held, in the circumstances, High Court was justified in reversing the acquittal. Mangoo v. State of M.P., AIR 1995 SC 959: 1995 Cri LJ 1461.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1995]

[7481] — S. 302 — Village girl aged 11 years witnessing ghastly murder of her father — Her agitated mental state should be kept in mind by court — Minor inconsistencies in her evidence inconsequential — Court should be cautious to find whether her testimony was tutored — Trial court finding her to be in a position to discern truth and falsehood — Hence failure to administer oath would not render her testimony unreliable — She having no motive against the accused, her testimony should be accepted

A child witness being of tender age, court should be cautious of the possibility of tutoring. In the present case the trial court had found that the child witness was in a position to discern as to what was truth and what was falsehood, the failure to administrator oath would be of no consequence. She witnessed a ghastly murder where her father himself was killed. One cannot brush aside the agitated mood and the mind in which the tender child would have been. It must have been the rudest shock of her life. To expect her in that situation to give the details as to who chased accused 1 or 2 or to expect her to go to the scene of occurrence on that very night would be asking for too much. When she stated that two persons chased the accused, that should be enough. Her failure to inform her mother is not a factor which would make her evidence not creditworthy, because by then the mother had come to know of the murder. If it was a false case being foisted on the accused such natural imperfections would not have surfaced. Merely because she did not give details as to whether the deceased caught hold of the hair of the accused 1 etc. does not give rise to any doubt as to the occurrence. It will be too much to expect from a child to give such intricate details. She being a child witness and having no motive against the accused her evidence ought to have been accepted. State of T.N. v. Karuppusamy, 1993 Supp (1) SCC 78: 1993 SCC (Cri) 123.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi and S. Mohan, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-1992]

[7482] — S. 302 — Witness — Child witness — Reliability — Age 11 years

While such a child witness can often be expected to give out a true version because of her innocence, there is always the danger in accepting the evidence of such a witness that, under influence, she might have been coached to give out a version by persons who may have influence on her. State of Bihar v. Kapil Singh, AIR 1969 SC 53, 56: (1968) 3 SCR 810: 1969 Cri LJ 279.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision : 18-4-1968]

[7483] — Ss. 302 and 34 — Bride burning — Witnesses — Eyewitnesses — Natural witness — Child witness — Deceased's brother aged 12 years deposing that when the accused persons sprinkled kerosene on the body of his sister and threw upon her a lit matchstick, he poured some water on her and thereafter rushed to inform his parents — Accused-appellants contending that it was not natural that the said witness would be staying with her sister — They further contending that he was a child witness and had stated as taught by his parents — Evidence on record showing that the deceased's husband and members of his family were hostile to her — Deceased's husband had been staying at the house of the deceased's parents after they had got him released from jail — In such circumstances, held, there was nothing unnatural in the sending of the deceased's brother by his father to be there with his daughter at her in-laws' house — Moreover, the statement of the deceased's brother having been recorded by the police on the date of the incident itself when he was alone in the house, the latter part of the appellants' contention also rejected — Further held, nothing could be shown in his cross-examination that although aged about 12 there was any infirmity in his understanding of the facts perceived and his ability to narrate the same correctly — This observation, held, was also applicable to the statement of PW 2 who was a student of 8th standard — These days a child of 8th standard acquires sufficient understanding to perceive the facts and to narrate the same — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118

The evidence on record shows that R, the husband of Sindhubai and members of his family had been unhappy with her and they had been quarrelling with her. Prior to the incident, R was staying at the house of the parents of the deceased after he was got released from jail by her father. In such circumstances there was nothing unnatural if the parents sent PW 1 U also to be there with their daughter at her in-laws' house. So far as the other criticism, that his father had told him whatever he had to depose in the court, it is relevant that the witness has stated that he was interrogated by the police and his statement was recorded on the date of incident itself and that he was alone in the house since his parents had gone to Amravati Hospital. In case any different statement was given by the witness in court it could very well be brought to the notice of the witness and he could be confronted with his previous statement. Nothing has been brought in his cross-examination that being aged about 12 years there was any infirmity in his understanding of the facts perceived and his ability to narrate the same correctly. This observation shall also hold good insofar as the statement of PW 2 is concerned, since he was then studying in 8th standard. As a matter of fact, a student of 8th standard, these days acquires sufficient understanding to perceive the facts and to narrate the same. (Para 7). Dhanraj v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 7 SCC 425: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1775: AIR 2002 SC 3302.

38.(d) Child/Young witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.C. Lahoti and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-2002]

[7484] — Ss. 302 & 201 — Murder of wife by appellant husband in his house alleged — Prosecution case mainly based on evidence of two children of the deceased, aged 6 years and 10 years, claimed to be eyewitneses — But there was strong reason to infer from the facts that the prosecution suppressed the earliest version of the two child witnesses — That apart, an analysis of the version of these witnesses revealed that the same was against the natural course of conduct and probabilities and, therefore, their evidence did not inspire confidence and was unsafe to act upon — Evidence of other witnesses which was in the nature of corroborating evidence also found to be untrustworthy — Moreover, their earliest statements had been suppressed — Held, once evidence of the eyewitnesses is discarded as unworthy of credence, it is difficult to sustain the conviction of the accused even though circumstances raise strong suspicion against him — Hence accused appellant entitled to benefit of doubt

The accused appellant was charged under Section 302 IPC for the alleged murder of his wife at their house by hanging her from the beam with a rope. The trial court convicted him under Sections 302 and 201 IPC and sentenced him to life imprisonment. On appeal, the High Court confirmed the conviction and sentence and dismissed the appeal. The High Court as well as the Sessions Court mainly relied on the evidence of their two children aged 6 years and 10 years on the date of the incident. The High Court only observed that the evidence of the child witnesses inspired confidence and their testimony remained unshaken in cross-examination. It was further observed that the evidence of these witnesses is corroborated by medical evidence without appreciating the fact that the doctor was unable to say from the ligature marks or other features whether the death was suicidal or homicidal.

On reappreciation of evidence, allowing the accused's appeal,

Held :

The evidence of the two children who claimed to be the eyewitnesses does not inspire confidence. The judgment of the High Court is sketchy and slipshod. There was no critical evaluation of the evidence of the two child witnesses and there was no consideration of material aspects bearing on the veracity of the version given by the two child witnesses. In these circumstances, it is not possible to approve the conclusions of High Court though concurrent they are. Accordingly, the appellant's conviction and sentence is set aside. (Paras 8, 11 and 12). Orsu Venkat Rao v. State of A.P., (2004) 13 SCC 243: 2005 SCC (Cri) 166: AIR 2004 SC 4961: (2005) 99 Cut LT 72: 2004 Cri LJ 4656: (2005) 1 Mah LJ 371.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-2004]

[7485] — Ss. 302 & 307 — Murder by gunshot firing — Material omissions found in evidence of PWs — Identification of accused persons by PW not acceptable — Evidence of another PW, a child witness, regarding identification of the accused in absence of corroboration, would be risky to accept — No explanation given for non-examination of a material witness who was injured in the incident — Presence of two police officers on the ground floor when the incident occurred on the first floor of the building of the deceased not acceptable as their failure to make proper inquiries, or to go upstairs and to see the place of occurrence was contrary to natural human conduct — Medical evidence not supporting the evidence of the eyewitnesses — According to ballistic expert metallic bullets recovered from the body of deceased were not fired from the pistols recovered from possession of accused —

One of the accused, one PW and another person also sustaining gunshot injuries — No explanation forthcoming from prosecution for these discrepancies — In the circumstances held, the occurrence did not take place as alleged by the prosecution

Evidence of a child witness must be evaluated carefully as a child may be swayed by what others tell him and is an easy prey to tutoring. Wisdom requires that evidence of a child witness must find adequate corroboration before it is relied on. In the present case it was difficult to accept that the deceased's daughter who was aged 9½ years could have identified the other accused, who was not known to her, during the occurrence. (Para 9). State of U.P. v. Ashok Dixit, (2000) 3 SCC 70: 2000 SCC (Cri) 579: AIR 2000 SC 1066: 2000 Cri LJ 1436: 2000 All LJ 700.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-2000]

Panchhi v. State of U.P., (1998) 7 SCC 177: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1561, relied on [7486] — Ss. 302 and 307 r/w S. 34 — Injured child eyewitness — Murder trial — On facts, trial court relying on the evidence of PW 2, injured child eyewitness, convicting respondent-accused under Ss. 302 and 307 r/w S. 34 IPC — High Court directing acquittal primarily on the basis that PW 2 was not in the condition to give statement — Reference was made to the seriousness of the injuries sustained by him — Sustainability — Held, High Court proceeded on surmises — Evidence of PW 17, the doctor, showed that PW 2 was in a position to give statement as he had regained consciousness — Herein, High Court had not indicated any plausible reason to discard evidence of PW 2 — It did not examine the acceptability, credibility and truthfulness or otherwise of PW 2's evidence by analysing evidence vis-à-vis other factors and materials on record — In the circumstances, impugned judgment of High Court set aside and matter remitted for consideration afresh (Paras 4, 5 and 8 to 10). State v. Rakiappan, (2008) 15 SCC 715: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1166: (2009) 74 AIC 162 (SC).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat, C.K. Thakker and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-10-2008]

[7487] — Ss. 302 and 323 — Conduct of minor son on murder of his mother and brother by his father — Appellant attacking his wife and two sons with knife — Wife and one son A died on spot — Other son, PW 1 received injuries — Appellant running away when PW 1 raised hue and cry and neighbours and relatives arrived there — Appellant remained absconding — Held, PW 1 lodged complaint giving full details and naming his father as accused — Complaint was written by PW 10 an independent witness from neighbouring village — Conduct of PW 1 is natural, probable and convincing — Cross-examination not shaking credibility of PW 1 — Denial by PW 1 that he named his father under suspicion — PWs 2, 3, 4, 6, 7 and 8 stating that they rushed to spot on hearing hue and cry and stating that they were informed by PW 1 that his father attacked with knife — PW 4 stating that A telling him before his death that appellant attacked him — PW 4 could be first person to have visited spot — IO submitting charge-sheet showing appellant as absconder — Ocular evidence supported by medical evidence — No material to show that appellant was falsely implicated or that appellant's neighbours and relatives deposing falsely against him — Motive is irrelevant when direct evidence is available (Paras 13 to 18, 20 and 21). Bipin Kumar Mondal v. State of W.B., (2010) 12 SCC 91: AIR 2010 SC 3638: 2010 Cri LJ 3880.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-7-2010]

Matru v. State of U.P., (1971) 2 SCC 75: 1971 SCC (Cri) 391; Rahman v. State of U.P., (1972) 4 SCC (N) 6; State of M.P. v. Paltan Mallah, (2005) 3 SCC 169: 2005 SCC (Cri) 674, relied on

[7488] — Ss. 302/34 — Appellant husband killing his wife — Daughter and son of the appellant appearing as eyewitnesses — Son reaching the place of occurrence only after the appellant had run away — Witnesses not informing anybody about the appellant having stabbed the deceased — Their evidence showing that they were tutored and under the influence of the police — Daughter gave evidence in accordance with her statement recorded under S. 162, CrPC — Held, no reliance can be placed on their evidence. Chhagan Dame v. State of Gujarat, 1995 SCC (Cri) 182: AIR 1994 SC 454.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-3-1993]

[7489] — Ss. 302/34 — Competence of witness to testify — Age, whether a determinative factor — Testimony of child witness — Admissibility of — Murder trial — Held, Evidence Act does not prescribe any particular age as a determinative factor to treat a witness to be a competent one — Child of tender age can be allowed to testify if he or she has intellectual capacity to understand questions and give rational answers thereto — Evidence of child witness is not required to be rejected per se, but the court, as a rule of prudence, should consider such evidence with close scrutiny and only on being convinced about the quality and reliability thereof, can

38.(d) Child/Young witness (contd.)

record conviction based thereon — Herein, testimony of PW 1 (eyewitness and wife of deceased) stands corroborated by testimony of PW 2 (eyewitness and daughter of deceased), aged 14 years, on all material points — Prompt answers from PW 2, to the questions put to her during cross-examination, can be accepted, even though she was aged about 14 years as to when the occurrence had taken place — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118 (Paras 18 to 23)

In the present case, a perusal of the statement of PW 2 (eyewitness and daughter of the deceased) goes to show that she had no idea of directions, distance, area, etc. She remained silent to some questions put to her such as what was the area of her father's field or whose fields were situate around the field of her father. However, she was a rustic village girl aged about 14 years and such a girl cannot always be expected to have an alert mind so as to be able to answer all questions such as directions, area, and distance with precision. (Paras 18, 19, 22 and 23)

It is not the case of the prosecution that the conviction has to be based on the sole testimony of PW 2. The testimony of PW 2 was used by the prosecution only to the extent that the same corroborates the evidence led by the prosecution through PW 1 (eyewitness and wife of the deceased) and was also in conformity with the medical evidence. From her deposition it appears that PW 2 had deposed whatever she had seen and the same corroborated the testimony of PW 1 on all material points. (Para 23). Virendra v. State of U.P., (2008) 16 SCC 582: (2008) 71 AIC 33 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-2008]

Dattu Ramrao Sakhare v. State of Maharashtra, (1997) 5 SCC 341: 1997 SCC (Cri) 685; Ratansinh Dalsukhbhai Nayak v. State of Gujarat, (2004) 1 SCC 64: 2004 SCC (Cri) 7, relied on [7490] — Ss. 302/34 — Credibility of witnesses — Murder of three persons — Appellant convicted by courts below under Ss. 302/34 and sentenced to death while co-accused absconded and declared proclaimed offender — Sole eyewitness was a girl aged 7 years injured in the same incident who deposed before the trial court 5 years after the incident — Her evidence regarding involvement of appellant was doubtful in absence of anything to show that she had ever seen or known him prior to the occurrence and in view of unexplained delay of 3 days in examining her under S. 161 CrPC and in view of non-mention by her as to how the third deceased was killed when appellant had no motive to kill him — As regards evidence of father of the child witness, not only most of his statements made in examination-in-chief were not stated when he was examined under S. 161 CrPC, assertions made by him in the course of his deposition were also false, hence his evidence must be discarded — Another PW was declared hostile and though he had lodged FIR but nothing much turned on his evidence as he was not an eyewitness — Though a motorcycle and a wristwatch were seized from the place of occurrence, but no evidence produced to connect appellant with those items — Held, it would be unsafe to convict the appellant on the sole testimony of the child witness — Though the girl might have witnessed the occurrence, she did not know the appellant — CrPC, 1973, S. 161 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118 (Paras 24 to 29). Jagjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2005) 3 SCC 689: 2005 SCC (Cri) 893: AIR 2005 SC 913: 2005 Cri LJ 955.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-2005]

[7491] — Ss. 302/34 — Evidence of child witness — Minor son (aged 11 years) eyewitness of the incident in which his mother was killed and his father sustained injuries — He was taken by three persons (including one related to the accused) where he was purported to have made a statement on the basis of which FIR was recorded — According to that statement, there was a quarrel between his parents followed by assaults as a result of which both of them were injured and his mother succumbed to the injuries — But subsequently a supplementary statement of the boy recorded by a police officer of the rank of Dy SP wherein he disclosed that accused-appellants had assaulted his parents and his mother succumbed to the injuries — Before trial court he denied to have made the first statement and stated that at the police station his signature was obtained on a blank piece of paper — His statement made before the Dy SP was supported by medical evidence and also evidence of his father — Held, that statement was his correct version and acceptable — Courts below having recorded a clear finding that previous enmity between the parties was the motive of the crime, there was no material to disturb the concurrent finding that the appellants were the perpetrators of the crime — Hence conviction and sentence under Ss. 302/34 upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118. Majid v. State of Haryana, (2001) 10 SCC 6: AIR 2002 SC 382: 2002 Cri LJ 938.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-12-2001]

[7492] — Ss. 302/34 and 201/34 — Charge of murder against wife of the deceased (appellant) and her paramour — Testimony of sole eyewitness, son of the deceased and the appellant, found to be consistent, cogent and trustworthy — Injury on the nose of the child witness caused by the co-accused when he raised alarm seeing his father being assaulted by his mother and the co-accused corroborating his testimony — Medical evidence also lending credence to his testimony — No merit in the plea that the child having seen his mother having sexual intercourse with the co-accused, being angry, falsely implicated them — Recovery of dead body on disclosure statements made by the appellant and her co-accused — Deceased last seen alive with the appellant — False information given by the appellant to the villagers that her husband had gone back to his unit — Extra-judicial confessions of the appellant and her co-accused — Held, in the circumstances of the case, the prosecution has established the case against the appellant and her paramour. Sewa Kaur v. State of Punjab, 1997 SCC (Cri) 252: AIR 1997 SC 1843: 1997 Cri LJ 1833.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-11-1996]

[7493] — Ss. 302/120-B — Murder of five members of a family in their home — Prosecution case based on testimony of child witness who claimed to have seen the occurrence — Testimony of child witness having several material contradictions — Testimony sought to be corroborated by the evidence regarding recovery of the crime weapon from accused — But such recovery in the case of this nature would not be of much consequence — In the circumstances held, prosecution evidence insufficient and therefore, appellant entitled to benefit of doubt — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 27. Nirmal Kumar v. State of U.P., 1993 Supp (1) SCC 510: 1993 SCC (Cri) 289: AIR 1992 SC 1131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : K. Jayachandra Reddy and R.C. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision : 18-2-1992]

[7494] — Ss. 302/149 and 436/149 — Sentence — Death sentence — Commutation of — Conviction based on sole testimony of child witness — Murder of six persons to take revenge for a carnage involving the kith and kin of the appellants — Sole eyewitness a 9 years' old child whose parents, uncle and sisters killed in the incident — Such child witness could not tell the names of four out of eight appellants — Murder committed in a premeditated and calculated manner with extreme cruelty and brutality for which normally sentence of death is wholly justified — But in the specials facts of the case sentence of death commuted to the sentence of imprisonment for life — Rule of rarest of rare cases considered — Appellants also awarded 6 years' RI for offence under Ss. 436/149 and a composite fine of Rs 15,000 against each of the appellants for offences under Ss. 302 and 436/149 — Sentences directed to run consecutively — Amount of fine, if realised, directed to be paid to the child — Victimology — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118. Raja Ram Yadav v. State of Bihar, (1996) 9 SCC 287: AIR 1996 SC 1613.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-4-1996]

Suresh v. State of U.P., (1981) 2 SCC 569: 1981 SCC (Cri) 559: AIR 1981 SC 1122, followed

[7495] — Ss. 304 Pt. I or 302 — Causing death of wife by hitting a single blow with a hammer on her face — Incident taking place in the early hours of the day and the sole child eyewitness, deceased's son PW 1, rushing to his uncle's (PW 2's) house in the night and narrating what he had seen — PW 2 giving information and FIR registered — PW 1 deposing before the court that while he was in the room appellant demanded earrings of the deceased and on her refusal he snatched and put them in his trouser pocket and that pursuant to the quarrel, appellant hit his mother with the hammer — During course of investigation bloodstained hammer and earrings recovered — Medical report showing that though deceased suffered multiple injuries on her nose, chin and upper part of the face but they could have been caused by a single blow and doctor who conducted post-mortem not disputing this fact — Held, evidence of the child, PW 1 reliable and the contention that he was tutored by relatives cannot be accepted — Evidence regarding recovery of the hammer and earrings corroborated the evidence of PW 1, and PW 2 supported the case of PW 1 — On facts held, it was possible that there had been a sudden quarrel and in the heat of passion appellant hit the deceased which resulted in her death — Therefore, the offence would fall under S. 304 Pt. I and not under S. 302 — Appellant having already undergone imprisonment for seven years and nine months, sentence already undergone would be sufficient to meet the ends of justice (Paras 2, 3 and 4). Jasram v. State of M.P., (2005) 12 SCC 176.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-2005]

(e) Eyewitness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(i) Eyewitness', pp. 274 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'D.4.(e) Appreciation of Evidence — Credibility of witness', in Vol. 2

[7496] — S. 302 — Generally — Oral testimony of eyewitnesses must be corroborated in some way by circumstantial evidence

As a matter of prudence and caution, the trial court may require some sort of corroboration to the testimony of the eyewitnesses before convicting the accused for murder. Such corroboration is not to be of the kind required in the case of an approver or accomplice but corroboration by some circumstances which would lend assurance to the evidence before the court and satisfy it that the particular accused persons were really concerned with the murder. Lachhman Singh v. State, AIR 1952 SC 167: 1952 SCR 839: 1952 Cri LJ 863, 865.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision : 21-3-1952]

Followed in 1954 Cri LJ 580, 581: AIR 1954 SC 204

Explained in AIR 1965 SC 328: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 350 as not laying down a rule that in all cases the testimony of interested witnesses must be corroborated*

[7497] — S. 302 — Eyewitness — Presence of PW at the time and place of occurrence — Proof — Name of PW was Raja @ Perumal while name of his elder brother was only Raja — FIR mentioning name of Raja as eyewitness — Contention by appellant that it was the elder brother who had witnessed the occurrence but was not examined by the prosecution — Immediately after the incident Raja @ Perumal referred to as an eyewitness by IO in inquest report — During course of investigation, police also recording statement of Raja @ Perumal — Statement of PW disclosing his presence at the spot of the occurrence — Held, PW was witness to the occurrence (Para 5). Seeman v. State, (2005) 11 SCC 142: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1893: AIR 2005 SC 2503: 2005 Cri LJ 2618.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-5-2005]

[7498] — S. 302 — Eyewitness version would be preferable to medical evidence unless the medical evidence completely rules out the eyewitness version. Solanki Chimanbhai Ukabhai v. State of Gujarat, (1983) 2 SCC 174: 1983 SCC (Cri) 379: AIR 1983 SC 484: 1983 Cri LJ 822: (1983) 2 GLR 870.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : D.A. Desai and R.B. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision : 22-2-1983]

[7499] — S. 302 — Eyewitness, brother of the deceased, throughout asserting that he knew the appellant by name and face — His statement corroborated by another witness who brought him along with the victim on his rickshaw to the hospital — Injury received by the eyewitness during same occurrence establishing his presence at the scene of occurrence — Recovery of knife at the instance of appellant during investigation — No motive on the part of the eyewitness suggested for falsely implicating the appellant as the assailant of his brother — In facts and circumstances of the case High Court perfectly justified in setting aside the acquittal of the appellant — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. Ramsinh Bavaji Jadeja v. State of Gujarat, (1994) 2 SCC 685: 1994 SCC (Cri) 609: 1994 Cri LJ 3067: (1994) 2 Punj LR 671: (1994) 1 MWN (Cri) 130: (1994) 1 GLH 329.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : K. Jayachandra Reddy and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision : 1-3-1994]

[7500] — S. 302 — Eyewitnesses — Place of residence of — Relevance — Submission that the eyewitnesses examined by the prosecution were not residents of the locality where the incident took place and as such their presence on the spot at the time of the occurrence was highly doubtful — Suit for arrears of rent and eviction had been decreed in favour of the father of the deceased against accused SK — SK's movable properties also attached and given in custody of PW 1 but were not removed from the house — On the day of occurrence PW 1, PW 2 and PW 3 (brother and brother-in-law respectively of the deceased) had gone to see the house (where the deceased was alleged to have been murdered by the accused) — Held, the house belonged to the father of the deceased and there is nothing unnatural if his two sons went to see it as it was locked and nobody resided therein — Similarly, presence of PW 1 was also very natural as he was the "supurdgar" of movable properties and was responsible for its safety — Presence of these eyewitnesses at the place of occurrence was very natural and the mere fact that they did not belong to the same "mohalla" cannot be a ground to discard their testimony — Moreover, PWs 1 and 3 were residents of same police station and consequently their houses would not be at a great distance from the place of occurrence (Para 6). Munney v. State of U.P., (2006) 12 SCC 697: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 363: AIR 2006 SC 2902: (2006) 5 All LJ 690: (2006) 45 AIC 65 (SC): 2006 Cri LJ 4064.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : G.P. Mathur and R.V. Raveendran, JJ. [Date of decision : 3-8-2006]

[7501] — S. 302 — Eyewitnesses — Unnatural conduct of — Their presence at the time of occurrence — Doubt in respect of — Accused B and deceased R walking with Forest Officer (PW 4) and Forest Guards (PWs 5 and 6) — As per the said PWs, B suddenly firing on the back of R — B also seen twisting and pressing the neck of R — PWs getting scared and instead of informing the villagers of the nearest village, running towards another village — After reaching that village, they boarding a bus and reaching a police station (which was 16 km away from place of occurrence) to lodge the report — They did not stop to inform the villagers of the villages through which they passed — Nor did they visit the place of occurrence after B had left — Thus, their conduct highly unnatural — Absence of motive to commit offence — No altercation between B and R on the way — No injury mark on the neck of R — Firing alleged to have been done by placing the gun on the back — But no blackening or charring of skin around the wounds — Concealment of true facts by the said PWs — Special report reaching the Magistrate ten days after its alleged dispatch — Prosecution case and veracity of eyewitnesses doubtful — Possibility of R, a history-sheeter, having been killed by one of his enemies not ruled out — On facts, held, B entitled to benefit of doubt

It appears unnatural that the three eyewitnesses who were no other than Forest Officer and forest guards got so scared that they started running in such a manner that they did not even bother to go to the nearest Village Bandala, two furlongs away or to inform the villagers. Nor did they stop to inform the villagers of the villages through which they passed, so that they may visit the place of occurrence and find out whether the deceased was really dead. Normally, one would have expected them to visit the place of occurrence after the appellant had left if only to verify whether the victim was really dead, and to render help if necessary, since the deceased was known to them. In any event, their natural conduct would have been to inform the villagers of the nearest village so that they could go to the place of occurrence and render whatever help was possible. Their version that they kept on running and did not inform anyone about the occurrence, is not believable. The possibility therefore of having come to the place of occurrence much later, and being told about the occurrence by others, cannot be ruled out. (Para 17)

PWs 4 and 5 stated that the accused-appellant placed his gun on the back of the deceased and fired. But the medical evidence on record discloses that there was no blackening and charring of the skin around the wounds. Although PW 6 tried to salvage the situation by stating that at the time of firing the barrel of the gun was about 4-5 feet away from the back of the deceased, but this is inconsistent with the testimony of the other eyewitnesses. (Para 18)

That apart, there was no motive for the appellant to kill the deceased. Further, no mark of injury has been found on the neck of the deceased by the doctor. (Paras 20 and 21)

There is evidence on record led by the prosecution itself that the appellant and the deceased were with the eyewitnesses from the evening of the earlier day, and that the appellant had slept with the eyewitnesses at the house of one AS. However, the prosecution has projected a case through the eyewitnesses that they met accidentally while they were on their way from Kachnaria to Achhroni. Thus, the eyewitnesses have tried to conceal the true facts from the court. Moreover, from the evidence on record it does not appear that any altercation took place between the appellant and the deceased while on their way to Village Achhroni. (Para 22)

The prosecution has also failed to explain the delay in receipt of the special report by the Magistrate concerned. (Para 23)

The facts and circumstances create a serious doubt about the truthfulness of the prosecution case as well as the veracity of the eyewitnesses. The deceased had many enemies, and it appears that he may have been murdered by one of them, but the appellant was falsely implicated. (Para 24). Badam Singh v. State of M.P., (2003) 12 SCC 792: AIR 2004 SC 26: 2004 Cri LJ 22.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-2003]

[7502] — S. 302 — Murder at railway platform before a large number of persons — Eyewitnesses deposing that the appellant inflicted the injury and with the knife in hand rushed and boarded the train — Their presence at railway platform admitted by hostile witness — No reason to discard evidence of the eyewitnesses — Reversal of acquittal by High Court justified — No interference by Supreme Court called for. Vinay Kumar v. State of M.P., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 559: 1994 SCC (Cri) 719: AIR 1994 SC 830: 1994 Cri LJ 942.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1993]

[7503] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Mere failure of eyewitness to disclose name of assailant to doctor would not discredit him as an eyewitness — Doctors are primarily not concerned with the culprit but with medical aid to the deceased — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 45

38.(e) Eyewitness (contd.)

A doctor is not at all concerned as to who committed the offence or whether the person brought to him is a criminal or an ordinary person, his primary effort is to save the life of the person brought to him and inform the police in medico-legal cases. Doctors before whom dead bodies are produced or injured persons are brought, either themselves take the dying declaration or hold the post-mortem immediately and if they start examining the informants they are likely to become witnesses of the occurrence which is not permissible. In the state of confusion the eyewitnesses in the present case may not have chosen to give details of the murder to the doctor. But that would not render their testimony unreliable. Pattipati Venkaiah v. State of A.P., (1985) 4 SCC 80: 1985 SCC (Cri) 464: AIR 1985 SC 1715.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-8-1985]

[7504] — S. 302 — Presence of eyewitnesses at the place of occurrence found to be quite natural — Their depositions amply corroborated by the evidence of doctor and post-mortem report — Delay in lodging FIR explained — On facts, plea of accidental firing because of the scuffle between the appellant and the deceased not acceptable — Merely because prosecution case against the co-accused was not accepted to be fully proved, the case against the appellant could not be dismissed — Conviction upheld — Arms Act, 1959, S. 27. Pupinder Pal Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 SCC (Cri) 1153.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1994]

[7505] — S. 302 — Rule of corroboration cannot be introduced merely because the eyewitnesses are two women and the fate of seven men hangs on their testimony — Nor the fact that the witnesses were related to the deceased material — Each case to be judged on its own facts. Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 364: 1954 SCR 145: 1953 Cri LJ 1465, 1467.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision : 15-5-1953]

AIR 1952 SC 54, 59: 1952 Cri LJ 547, followed

[7506] — S. 302 — Testimony of the eyewitnesses who also suffered injuries in the incident, wholly reliable and not suffering from any inconsistency can be the basis of conviction. Labhu Ram v. State of Punjab, 1995 Supp (4) SCC 17: 1996 SCC (Cri) 15.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : G.N. Ray and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision : 26-9-1995]

[7507] — Ss. 302 and 34 — Bride burning — Witnesses — Eyewitnesses — Eyewitnesses (PW 2 and PW 5) deposing that when they arrived near the house of the deceased, they found her lying in the verandah — Since the said witnesses were not far away from the place of the incident (PW 2's house being only 50 ft away from the deceased's), the accused-appellants' contention that the said witnesses had not seen the main incident, rejected

PW 2 has stated that his house is about 50 ft away from the house of Sindhubai. It cannot be said that the witness could not see the incident from a distance of fifty paces. They may have actually gone near the house of the deceased seeing the incident and may have seen her falling in the varandah while a little away from her house. It does not mean that they did not see the incident from the place where even they were stationed when the incident took place. There is therefore, no ground to discard the testimony of the three eyewitnesses examined in the case nor on the ground that other persons who may have collected at the spot were not examined by the prosecution as it is not always possible. (Para 8). Dhanraj v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 7 SCC 425: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1775: AIR 2002 SC 3302.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.C. Lahoti and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-2002]

[7508] — Ss. 302 & 34 — Firing incident taking place suddenly and ending within a couple of minutes — In the circumstances, persons present at the time of and around the place of occurrence cannot be expected to get a clear and lasting impression of all that happened — Hence, minor inconsistencies in their statements will not make them unreliable. Kedar v. State of M.P., (1982) 2 SCC 112: 1982 SCC (Cri) 367.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : R.S. Pathak and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision : 19-3-1980]

[7509] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Murder inside a factory — Presence of eyewitness (employee of that factory) at the place and time of occurrence — Proof — Sufficient materials produced to prove his presence — Fact that some more records which could have been produced, but not shown to be deliberately withheld, held, could not by itself cast any shadow of doubt on the veracity of the prosecution version (Para 7). Kamaljit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2003) 12 SCC 155: AIR 2004 SC 69: 2004 Cri LJ 28.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-2003]

[7510] — Ss. 302/34 — Eyewitness — Testimony of — Credibility — Person witnessing incident from some distance, going to place where deceased had fallen after being shot, after few minutes — Whether this discredited possibility of his being an eyewitness — Defence submission that PW 6 was not an eyewitness, as he had come to the place of occurrence 7-8 mins. after occurrence — Tenability — Held, defence submission is not based on accurate reading of deposition of witness — Witness had clearly stated that he saw deceased going on motorcycle on date of occurrence and that appellant-accused S had brought his motorcycle to left of motorcycle of deceased, whereupon appellant-accused U, pillion rider, had shot deceased in the head — Version given by witness does not admit of being understood to suggest that witness reached place of occurrence after occurrence had taken place — What witness had stated was that he went to place where deceased had fallen, 5-7 mins. after occurrence was over — Witnessing occurrence cannot be confused with going to place where deceased had fallen — On a careful reading of deposition of PW 6, no infirmity in the same is found, that may justify rejection of his version — Both courts below rightly accepted testimony of PW 6, while finding appellants guilty — Arms Act, 1959, S. 27 (Paras 65 and 70). Sheo Shankar Singh v. State of Jharkhand, (2011) 3 SCC 654.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and T.S. Thakur, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-2011]

Jagmohan Singh v. State of U.P., (1973) 1 SCC 20: 1973 SCC (Cri) 169; Bachan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1980) 2 SCC 684: 1980 SCC (Cri) 580; Machhi Singh v. State of Punjab, (1983) 3 SCC 470: 1983 SCC (Cri) 681; Farooq v. State of Kerala, (2002) 4 SCC 697: 2002 SCC (Cri) 876; Santosh Kumar Satishbhushan Bariyar v. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 6 SCC 498: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1150; State of Maharashtra v. Prakash Sakha Vasave, (2009) 11 SCC 193: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1289, followed

[7511] — Ss. 302/149, 201 and 148 — Brutal murder by a gang of seven persons — Disbelieving the evidence of eyewitnesses relied on by trial court, High Court acquitting the four accused persons only on an extraneous ground which was not based on any evidence and was raised before the High Court for the first time — The said ground on which the presence of the two eyewitnesses at the time of occurrence considered doubtful by High Court was that there was fog at the time of occurrence due to which the eyewitnesses, who were said to be at a distance from the deceased, could not have seen what was actually happening — Held, the basic fact about the presence of fog leading to blurring of the vision of the eyewitnesses without being put to the witnesses during their cross-examination could not have been taken into consideration by the High Court — Further, the instantaneous recovery of the dead body of the deceased from the river by the eyewitnesses, held, showed that they had seen the spot where the dead body had been thrown into the river — Considering the said facts coupled with the trustworthy testimony of the eyewitnesses and medical evidence, the judgment of the trial court convicting the accused persons upheld — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386 and 374(2) (Paras 10, 11 and 12)

The deceased along with PW 1, PW 2 and one D left his house for his fields to start the diesel engine of his pumping set in order to irrigate his field. The said three persons were following the deceased and were about 15-20 paces behind him. While the deceased was proceeding towards his field, seven accused persons suddenly emerged from behind the noonars (tilas i.e. big mounds of earth). They were all armed with weapons. The accused fired gunshots at the deceased who on receiving the injuries fell down. The accused severed the head of the deceased and threw his dead body into a river. PW 1, PW 2 and D, on the basis of the trail of blood, reached the place wherefrom the dead body of the deceased was thrown into the river. PWs 1 and 2 were examined as eyewitnesses to the incident. The trial court convicted all the accused persons under Ss. 148, 302/149 and 201 IPC. In appeal, the High Court disbelieved the presence of the eyewitnesses to the incident at the scene, rejected their evidence and acquitted all the accused on an extraneous ground, which was based on no evidence and was raised before the High Court for the first time.

Allowing the appeals, the Supreme Court decided as above. State of U.P. v. Man Singh, (2002) 8 SCC 435: 2003 SCC (Cri) 82: AIR 2003 SC 62.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Shivaraj V. Patil and Arun Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-10-2002]

(f) Hostile witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(I) Hostile witness', pp. 293 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7512] — S. 302 — Hostile witness — Statement to police — Use of — Held, statement to police is ordinarily not admissible in evidence in view of S. 162(1) CrPC, but as mentioned in proviso to S. 162(1) CrPC, it can be used to contradict testimony of witness — Herein, mother of appellant- accused also appeared as witness before trial court, and in her cross-examination, she was confronted with her statement to police, to whom she had stated that her son (appellant) had told her that he had killed his daughter — On being so confronted with her statement to police, she denied that she had made such a statement — Held, her statement to police can be taken into consideration in view of proviso to S. 162(1), and her subsequent denial in court is not believable, because she obviously had afterthoughts and wanted to save her son (appellant) from punishment — In fact, in her statement to police, she had stated that dead body of deceased was removed from bed and placed on floor — Hence, her statement to police can be taken into consideration in view of proviso to S. 162(1) CrPC — CrPC, 1973, S. 162(1) and proviso thereto (Paras 15 and 16). Bhagwan Dass v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2011) 6 SCC 396.

38.(f) Hostile witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision : 9-5-2011].

[7513] — S. 302 — Murder — Hostile witness — Effect of — Appellant's father PW 4 and brother-in-law, PW 3 had turned hostile — Their evidence would have been merely to effect that appellant had found fault in his deceased stepmother's behaviour — PW 5 admitted in her statement that appellant was annoyed with deceased as he suspected her of being of low character — Held, factum of PWs 4 and 3 having turned hostile did not adversely affect prosecution story (Para 13). Arumugam v. State, (2010) 12 SCC 155.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-7-2010]

[7514] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Witnesses — Hostile witness — When may be relied on — Principles summarised — Held, evidence of a hostile witness cannot be discarded as a whole, and relevant parts thereof which are admissible in law, can be used by the prosecution or the defence

The evidence of a hostile witness cannot be discarded as a whole, and relevant parts thereof which are admissible in law, can be used by the prosecution or the defence. In the instant case, some of the material witnesses PWs 86 and 51 turned hostile. Their evidence has been taken into consideration by the courts below strictly in accordance with law. PW 51 photographer, deposed that he was contacted by A-6 to cover the agitation. The photographs and negatives were exhibited in the court. He also photographed the burning bus. He reached the spot when the bus was burning. Students were shouting. These photographs were exhibited as Ext. P-78 and Ext. P-80. He watched the video prepared by him in the court and identified the same. In the cross-examination, he denied knowing some accused persons. However, they were shown in the photographs taken by him. He was declared hostile. (Paras 83, 84 and 76). C. Muniappan v. State of T.N., (2010) 9 SCC 567: (2010) 5 CTC 794 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.S. Singhvi and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-2010]

Bhagwan Singh v. State of Haryana, (1976) 1 SCC 389: 1976 SCC (Cri) 7; Rabindra Kumar Dey v. State of Orissa, (1976) 4 SCC 233: 1976 SCC (Cri) 566; Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59; Khujji v. State of M.P., (1991) 3 SCC 627: 1991 SCC (Cri) 916; State of U.P. v. Ramesh Prasad Misra, (1996) 10 SCC 360: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1278; Balu Sonba Shinde v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 7 SCC 543: 2003 SCC (Cri) 112; Gagan Kanojia v. State of Punjab, (2006) 13 SCC 516: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 109; Radha Mohan Singh v. State of U.P., (2006) 2 SCC 450: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 661; Sarvesh Narain Shukla v. Daroga Singh, (2007) 13 SCC 360: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 188; Subbu Singh v. State, (2009) 6 SCC 462: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1106, relied on

[7515] — S. 302 — PW 1 (hostile witness) denying incident altogether and PW 2 eyewitness' evidence being ambivalent and uncertain — Effect

PW 1 driver of the alleged van had turned hostile, denied the incident altogether and did not support PW 2's ambivalent and uncertain evidence. The other ocular evidence too did not support the prosecution case. (Para 10). Anil Kumar v. State, (2009) 17 SCC 537.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-8-2009]

[7516] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Conviction confirmed — All eyewitnesses turning hostile — Effect, if any — Appellant-accused killed three persons (his real brother and two nephews) and injured three others (his father and nephews PWs 1 and 2), with a gun, on being denied his share in the immovable property by his father — Evidently, PWs 1 and 2 have no regard for truth and concealed material facts from court in order to protect appellant by resiling from their original stand, for reasons best known to them — Such unwarranted attitude of eyewitnesses disentitles any benefit to appellant, who committed a heinous crime — Again, gun used in crime recovered at appellant's behest — In spite of extensive cross-examination of PW 8 (investigating officer), defence could not elicit anything to discredit his deposition — Medical evidence shows that appellant caused very large number of injuries — Again, not putting certain questions to appellant under S. 313 CrPC did not materially prejudice appellant — Herein, FIR lodged promptly, naming appellant as person who committed offence — All eyewitnesses, including injured witnesses (before turning hostile), attributed commission of offence only to appellant in their statements under S. 161 CrPC — Complainant and eyewitnesses could not have falsely named appellant as being responsible for offence at initial stage itself — Conviction confirmed — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 27 (Paras 35 to 59). Paramjeet Singh v. State of Uttarakhand, (2010) 10 SCC 439.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-2010]

[7517] — S. 302 r/w S. 34 and S. 498-A r/w S. 34 — Murder trial — Hostile witness — Corroborated evidence severed from uncorroborated parts — Admissibility — Corroborated part of evidence of hostile witness PW 4 regarding commission of offence, held, admissible

As rightly observed by the High Court, though, PW 4 did not support the entire case of the prosecution and he had been treated as hostile witness, his evidence to the extent A-2 and A-4 participating in the commission of offence is proved. To this extent, the High Court has rightly accepted his testimony. (Paras 17 and 16). Govindappa v. State of Karnataka, (2010) 6 SCC 533.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : P. Sathasivam and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision : 11-5-2010]

[7518] — S. 302 r/w Ss. 149, 148, 147, 323/ 149 and 395 — Appreciation of evidence — Dacoity and murder — Hostile witnesses — Related witness — Closely related eyewitnesses turning hostile — Effect — Two eyewitnesses closely related to deceased (widow and daughter of deceased) turning hostile — Held, that could not per se be a ground to discard the evidence of other eyewitnesses (PWs 1 and 3) — High Court did not discuss the evidence of PWs 1 and 3 to point out any vulnerability — High Court acted on surmises and conjectures — Acquittal by High Court, held, liable to be set aside (Paras 8, 5 and 11). State of U.P. v. Babu, (2003) 11 SCC 280: 2004 SCC (Cri) 144: AIR 2003 SC 3408.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-2003]

Shakti Patra v. State of W.B., 1981 Supp SCC 24: 1981 SCC (Cri) 644; Aher Pitha Vajshi v. State of Gujarat, 1983 SCC (Cri) 607; George v. State of Kerala, (1998) 4 SCC 605: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1232, relied on [7519] — Ss. 302/34 — Hostile witness — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction confirmed based principally on testimony of hostile eyewitness corroborated by other reliable evidence — Appellant-accused (A-2 and A-3), along with others, shot deceased dead, on account of some previous enmity — Conviction of appellants under Ss. 302/34, upheld by High Court — Sustainability — Held, presence of PWs 7, 8 and 11 (eyewitnesses) at the time and place of occurrence, not doubtful — Evidence of PW 11 (eyewitness and brother of deceased) clearly nails appellants for murder of deceased — He is a truthful witness who can be safely relied upon, though he had turned hostile — His evidence is corroborated, insofar as A-2 is concerned, by PWs 7 and 8 — His evidence also gets corroborated from evidence of PWs 5 and 24 (doctor conducting post-mortem of deceased and SI, respectively) — Complicity of A-3 is also established by evidence of PW 11, which is duly corroborated by medical and other evidence, although PWs 7 and 8 have not specifically named him — Concurrent finding of courts below, that prosecution evidence is sufficient to establish guilt of A-3 as well, beyond any reasonable doubt, reliable — Fact that PW 11's statement was taken down by PW 24 (SI) at the place of occurrence within 20-25 minutes of incident, clearly established — Although defence pointed out certain discrepancies and omissions in PW 11's deposition, but, such discrepancies and omissions are only minor and not very material and do not shake his trustworthiness — Conclusions recorded by trial court and confirmed by High Court, concerning appellants, do not suffer from any factual or legal error — Hence, conviction of appellants, confirmed (Paras 18 to 31). Himanshu v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2011) 2 SCC 36.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Aftab Alam and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2011]

Prithi v. State of Haryana, (2010) 8 SCC 536: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 960, relied on [7520] — Ss. 302/34 — Hostile witnesses — Witnesses found hostile against some accused, if natural and independent, held their testimony can be relied upon for sustaining conviction — These witnesses had refused to support the prosecution of other accused who stood acquitted but were unwavering regarding involvement of the appellants — Their testimony unaffected by release of two more accused on technical ground of their names not finding mention in the FIR — No reason to falsely implicate the appellants suggested — Appellants therefore rightly convicted (Para 5). Alma v. State of M.P., 1991 Supp (2) SCC 409: 1991 SCC (Cri) 1052: AIR 1991 SC 1519.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi, V. Ramaswami and K. Ramaswamy, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1991]

[7521] — Ss. 302/34 and 326/34 — Hostile witness — Testimony of, merely to the effect that he saw the four accused going away — Evidentiary value — In absence of any direct and reliable evidence of participation of all the four accused, such testimony, held, of no use. Kathi Odhabhai Bhimabhai v. State of Gujarat, 1993 Supp (3) SCC 421: 1993 SCC (Cri) 1049: AIR 1993 SC 1193: 1993 Cri LJ 187.

38.(f) Hostile witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram : K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision : 5-8-1992]

[7522] — Ss. 302/109 — Negative evidence of witness regarding presence of accused — Held can be overweighed by independent positive evidence of others corroborated by dying declaration — Conviction upheld. Arumuga Nadar v. State of T.N., (1977) 1 SCC 466: 1977 SCC (Cri) 124: AIR 1976 SC 2588: 1977 Cri LJ 1998.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, V.R. Krishna Iyer and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-10-1976]

[7523] — Ss. 302/149, 147 and 148 — Murder trial — Conviction confirmed — Opinion of doctor declared hostile — When reliable — PWs 1 and 3 (wife and daughter of deceased) and PW 2 (independent witness), clearly stated that it was appellants along with other accused persons who assaulted deceased with farsa, lathi, etc. — Further, PW 6 (doctor who conducted post-mortem) found contusion and incised wounds on person of deceased — Merely because PW 6 declared hostile, held, his entire evidence is not wiped out, if otherwise worthy of reliance, and for purpose of nature of injuries and cause of death, his evidence was reliable — Also, eyewitnesses' accounts consistent and no material contradiction in their evidence to discredit their truthfulness — Appellants' conviction, hence confirmed (Paras 10 to 14). Suraj v. State of U.P., (2010) 7 SCC 515.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : G.S. Singhvi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision : 6-7-2010]

[7524] — Ss. 302/149, 307/149 and S. 148 — Conviction based on the testimony of two eyewitnesses (PWs 1 and 7) who did not support the prosecution case — No statement of PW 1 regarding actual participation of appellants in attack and absence of identification of accused persons by PW 7 — No acceptable explanation for the delay of about 50 days in recording the statement of PWs 1 and 7 after the incident — There was hardly any evidence worth acceptance regarding identification of the dead body — Thus, the findings of the courts below that the prosecution through the evidence of PWs 1 and 7 succeeded in establishing beyond reasonable doubt that the appellants were responsible for the murder of the deceased, held, could not be sustained — CrPC, 1973, S. 161 (Paras 4 to 6). Jai Pal v. State of U.P., (2003) 9 SCC 41: AIR 2003 SC 1012: 2003 Cri LJ 1243.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-2003]

(g) Independent witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(n) Independent witness', pp. 312 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also D.16.(c) Non-examination/failure to examine witness', in Vol. 2

[7525] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Witnesses — Independent witnesses not examined — Natural witnesses, friends of deceased conclusively proving murder — Three-wheeler driver carrying the deceased to hospital and brother of deceased who only coming to see the deceased after the incident at hospital not examined

On 13-1-2000, at about 10.30 p.m., when PWs 1 to 3, one S and the deceased (all friends) were having a party in PW 3's house, the accused knocked at the door, upon which, it was opened by S. The respondent-accused entered the room and asked as to who had called his name. Being so asked, PW 1 stated that nobody had called him and the respondent was asked to leave the room. While going out of the room, the respondent further told PW 1 to make the deceased understand otherwise his head would be smashed. Saying so, the respondent left the room. Thereafter, they bolted the room from inside and danced till 12 to 12.30 a.m. in the midnight when the deceased opened the door to go out for urination. As soon as the deceased stepped out, he was stabbed by the respondent-accused with a sharp-edged weapon in the chest. Thereafter the accused fled away before their attempt to nab him. PW 1 at that stage asked S to press the chest of the deceased so as to control the bleeding. He also brought cotton from the nearby house and gave first aid to the deceased. He also rushed out to arrange for a three-wheeler. The deceased was then taken to the hospital where he died at around 1.30 a.m. The High Court by the impugned order set aside the order of conviction passed by the Sessions Court for offences under Section 302 IPC.

Held :

It was submitted that the driver of the three-wheeler and also the brother of the deceased who had gone to the hospital were not examined and that the order of acquittal should not be interfered with as no independent witness was examined. There is no reason as to why and how the evidence of the aforesaid two persons was relevant. The brother of the deceased went to the hospital where the deceased was being given medical treatment and, therefore, whatever he heard of the occurrence was from a third party was, therefore, hearsay. So far as the driver of the three-wheeler is concerned, he only carried the deceased to the hospital and, therefore, his evidence was also not material. The order of conviction and sentence against the respondent in terms of the order passed by the trial court is therefore, restored. (Paras 27 and 30). State of H.P. v. Rakesh Kumar, (2009) 6 SCC 308: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1028: 2009 Cri LJ 3060.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

[7526] — S. 302 — Prosecution failing to produce independent witnesses because they were afraid to give evidence — Evidence adduced not to be disbelieved on that ground alone

It is well known that in villages where murders are committed as a result of factions existing in the village or in consequence of family feuds, independent villagers are generally reluctant to give evidence because they are afraid that giving evidence might invite the wrath of the assailants and might expose them to very serious risks. It is quite true that it is the duty of a citizen to assist the prosecution by giving evidence and helping the administration of criminal law to bring the offender to book, but it would be wholly unrealistic to suggest that if the prosecution is not able to bring independent witnesses to the Court because they are afraid to give evidence, that itself should be treated as an infirmity in the prosecution case so as to justify the defence contention that the evidence actually adduced should be disbelieved on that ground alone without examining its merits. Darya Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328: (1964) 3 SCR 397: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 350.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1963]

[7527] — Ss. 302 & 100 — Murder in daylight on public road in inhabited area — No independent witness examined — Effect — Accused and his brother belaboured the deceased's younger brother — Next day on appearing before the deceased's house asked to go away by the deceased which they did — Deceased and his brother following them and about 125 yds. away allegedly shot by the accused — Deceased and his brother alleged to be unarmed but kirpan recorded on deceased's person by doctor who conducted the autopsy — Defence plea of having acted in self-defence plausible — No independent witness examined by prosecution though murder occurred in daylight on public road in an inhabited area — Acquittal by High Court to stand. State of Punjab v. Sohan Singh, 1993 Supp (1) SCC 312: 1993 SCC (Cri) 114: AIR 1992 SC 1247.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi and M.M. Punchhi, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1992]

[7528] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Murder trial — Independent witnesses — No witness from immediate neighbourhood examined — Effect of — So-called independent witnesses tend to stay far away — Prosecution has to depend upon witnesses who are friends or family members of victim — House of complainants was only 100 ft from place of occurrence — Presence of all witnesses was natural — F (injured) was a stamped witness, against whom no suspicion could be raised — Non-examination of witness from immediate neighbourhood held immaterial (Para 21). Mohd. Mian v. State of U.P., (2011) 2 SCC 721.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision : 16-12-2010]

(h) Inimical witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(p) Inimical witness', pp. 318 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7529] — S. 302 — Evidence of inimical witness should be scrutinised with caution — If it is supported by other evidence, it cannot be discarded merely because of witnesses being inimically disposed towards the accused

The evidence of the injured eyewitnesses cannot be discarded in toto on the ground of inimical disposition towards the accused or the improbability of narrating the details of actual attack. True, their evidence has to be scrutinized with caution taking into account the factum of previous enmity and the tendency to exaggerate and to implicate as many as possible. But on a perusal of the evidence tested in the light of the broad probabilities, the High Court was justified in reaching the conclusion that the prosecution witnesses are natural witnesses and they could not have concocted the case against the accused without any basis. The fact that the FIR was lodged almost immediately after the occurrence naming the appellant as the main assailant lends positive assurance to the credibility of the prosecution case as unfolded by the eyewitnesses, most of whom were injured. Both the trial court and the High Court found that there was sufficient light emitted by the tubelight in front of the house to identify the accused who were known persons. The fact that the incident occurred outside and inside the house cannot be doubted as there was blood both at the steps where the dead body lay and inside the house and weapons stained with human blood were found lying in the adjoining narrow lane and the injuries were found on almost all the inmates of the house. It is highly unlikely that within a short time of the occurrence the prosecution party could have come forward with a false version implicating the persons who were not at all seen, while leaving out the real culprits. The eyewitnesses' account of the attack by the appellant is quite consistent. Though certain doubts are sought to be created as to the genesis of the incident and the manner of attack, but the prosecution case is not belied on account of such factors. (Para 6). Suresh Sitaram Surve v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 10 SCC 28: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1392: AIR 2003 SC 344: 2003 Cri LJ 475.

38.(h) Inimical witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu, P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-2002]

[7530] — S. 302 and S. 149 — Murder trial — Inimical witness — Testimony of — Reliability — Solitary eyewitness to the occurrence — 11 persons belonging to Khati community variously armed alleged to have assaulted the deceased and complainant resulting in death of the deceased — Long-standing enmity between complainant and his family members on one side and persons of Khati community on the other established — Complainant able to get only a momentary glimpse of the accused in scooter light — Active participation of only four accused established through testimony of the complainant — Specific roles assigned to them by him and injuries sustained by him and the deceased could have been caused by the weapons with which the aforesaid four accused were alleged to have been armed — Held, in such circumstances, conviction of only these accused can be maintained — Further clarified that though the prosecution case is not doubted in its entirety but benefit of doubt is given to the remaining accused by way of abundant caution — Benefit of judgment also given to the non-appealing accused since no specific role had been attributed to him (Paras 7 to 11). Dev Narayan v. State of M.P., (2006) 13 SCC 187: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 672: (2006) 47 AIC 19 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision : 11-10-2006]

[7531] — Ss. 302/34 — Witness inimical to one of the accused — He deliberately omitting the name of other accused — His evidence found by High Court to be discrepant in material particulars — Held, in the circumstances of the case testimony of sole eyewitness not reliable — Conviction set aside. Jagdish Prasad v. State of M.P., 1995 SCC (Cri) 160: AIR 1994 SC 1251: 1994 Cri LJ 1106.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : S. Ratnavel Pandian and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision : 25-3-1992]

[7532] — Ss. 302/149 — Conviction justified — Eyewitnesses who were inimical towards the accused and his family members — Testimony of — Evidentiary value — Although should not to be thrown out ipso facto, held, it should be scrutinised with caution — On facts, in view of various contradictions in the statements of such witnesses in respect of D and SS, Supreme Court giving them benefit of doubt and acquitting them — However, since two of the three such witnesses implicated M by categorically stating him to be first to assault the deceased with sword and causing injury which, according to the medical evidence, was sufficient in the ordinary course to cause death, conviction of M under Ss. 302/149 IPC upheld — In view of the said evidence, the inability of the third of such witnesses to say whether the first to assault the deceased was M or B and to identify either of them, held, inconsequential. Sajjan Singh v. State of M.P., (1999) 1 SCC 315: 1999 SCC (Cri) 44: AIR 1998 SC 2756.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and D.P. Wadhwa, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1998]

[7533] — Ss. 302/149 — Prosecution evidence based on interested and inimical witnesses — Their evidence suffering from material contradictions and inconsistencies — Evidence regarding presence of light at the scene of occurrence found to be highly suspicious — Sole eyewitness of murder committing mistake in identifying the accused persons in court — Held, in the circumstances of the case, High Court not justified in reversing order of acquittal passed by the trial court. Radhakrishnan Nair v. State of Kerala, 1995 Supp (1) SCC 217: 1995 SCC (Cri) 345.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-12-1994]

[7534] — Ss. 302/149 — Testimony of inimical witness — Reliability, to sustain conviction — Appellants alleged to have abducted S on 19-11-1989 and since thereafter none had seen him — Prosecution proceeding on the basis that he was murdered — Intense enmity between the parties resulting in several murders — PW 1 (informant, eyewitness and sister of S) stating that soon after the occurrence she returned to her village and reported the matter to N and C (and none other) who accompanied her to the police station but PW 6 (SHO) refused to record the information because he was favouring appellants on political considerations — She also claiming to have sent a letter to the President on 22-11-1989 (waiting for the police to take action) — She thereafter filing a written complaint to SSP on 4-12-1989 on basis of which a case was registered by PW 6 — However, PW 6 categorically stating that he had received no complaint prior to registration of the case and that neither N nor C had met him prior to that — N and C not examined by the prosecution — Apart from the vague allegations that police were favouring the appellants no evidence brought forth to establish that — On the contrary, some of the appellants illegally detained by the police were ultimately released by the warrant officer appointed by the High Court in the habeas corpus petition — Defence specifically pleading that S was mentally handicapped and may have gone somewhere and taking advantage of his disappearance they had been falsely implicated on account of the enmity — Held, considering the intense enmity existing between the two groups, this was pre-eminently a case in which the rule of caution must strictly be applied — Further, in case of inconsistent evidence between two PWs benefit thereof must go to the accused — Besides non-examination of N and C creates a serious doubt whether any effort had been made by PW 1 on the date of occurrence to lodge the report at the police station, and that too when N belonged to the same group — Moreover, conduct of PW 1 in waiting 3 days before sending the telegram to the President and thereafter for 12 days before filing a written complaint to SSP creates serious doubt as to whether any occurrence took place as alleged by the prosecution — Hence held, though S had disappeared on 19-11-1989 but the circumstances of the case indicate that PWs 1 and 2 may not have seen the occurrence in which he had been either abducted or killed, and taking advantage of his disappearance a false case was belatedly concocted against the appellants — Appellants entitled to benefit of doubt (Paras 24 to 30). Avtar Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 12 SCC 524: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 105: AIR 2007 SC 31: (2006) 47 AIC 941 (SC): 2007 Cri LJ 13.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : B.P. Singh and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision : 13-10-2006]

Distinguished in Hari v. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 11 SCC 96 at p. 101*

(i) Injured witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(q) Injured witness', pp. 328 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7535] — S. 302 — Murder — Injuries received by eyewitnesses establishing their presence at the scene of the occurrence — Eyewitnesses specifically stating that after reaching the spot on hearing cries they prevented the accused from giving further blows to the deceased — Such part of statement not contradicted by their police statements — Merely because the witnesses had not specifically stated before the police that the appellant gave fatal blow to the deceased their testimony cannot be discarded — Conviction of the appellant sustained. Amrik Singh v. State of Punjab, 1998 SCC (Cri) 944.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-1998]

[7536] — S. 302 — Murder by inflicting barchha blows and injuries caused to the father and mother of the victim — Prompt lodging of the FIR and receipt of its copy by the Magistrate within 3 hours of its lodging indicating that the witnesses received injuries at the time of the occurrence and assault on the deceased — Injured witnesses examined by the doctor within two hours of the assault and there being no time or occasion for the witnesses to have manufactured the injuries on themselves — In the circumstances of the case, finding of the trial court that injuries on eyewitnesses could be manufactured not justified — Evidence of injured father of the deceased found to be cogent and consistent with the earlier version contained in the FIR — His testimony corroborated by the medical evidence and recovery of the weapon of offence on the basis of disclosure statement of the accused — Nature of weapon and seat of injury indicating that the intention of the accused was to commit murder — Conviction of accused, held, well merited and calls for no interference by the Supreme Court. Inder Singh v. State of Punjab, 1995 Supp (2) SCC 124: 1995 SCC (Cri) 542: 1995 Cri LJ 2627.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision : 23-2-1995]

[7537] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Conviction based on the testimony of injured eyewitnesses — Held, testimony of an injured witness is credible and has significant relevance — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 3 and 5 — CrPC, 1973, S. 164

38.(i) Injured witness (contd.)

There is no substance in the plea that the prosecution version is not acceptable. It is to be noted that the trial court and the High Court found the evidence of the injured eyewitnesses to be credible. The testimony of an injured witness has significant relevance. Though they were examined at length nothing brittle in their testimony could be noticed. The evidence of DW 1 is highly improbable as was rightly held by the trial court and the High Court. If she had been injured in the incident, it was not explained as to why she did not report the matter to the police immediately and the medical examination was done after about two days. This conduct of DW 1 who happened to be the wife of the accused has been rightly taken note of by the trial court and the High Court. (Para 7). Sukhdev v. State of Punjab, (2007) 15 SCC 364.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-6-2007]

[7538] — S. 302 — Related injured eyewitnesses (wife and sister of deceased) — Their presence at the scene of occurrence was not disputed, describing the incident in a clear and graphic manner and categorically asserting that respondent gave three blows with his axe on the head of the deceased — Though the witnesses were subject to searching cross-examination nothing material could be elicited from them which may cast a doubt on their credibility — Trial Judge who had the opportunity of marking their demeanour in the court assessed their evidence and did not find any good reason to discard their testimony — According to the doctor who conducted post-mortem examination, injury found on the head of the deceased was possible if the blow was struck with the blunt side of the axe and the said injury was sufficient in ordinary course of nature to cause death — Besides, small abrasions on the left side of forehead and on the roof of nose were also found by the doctor — Reading the statement of the two eyewitnesses that the respondent had inflicted three axe-blows on the head of the deceased and the evidence of the doctor, held, there was no serious contradiction between the two which may form the basis of discarding testimony of the eyewitnesses — High Court erred in rejecting the ocular evidence on ground of contradiction with medical evidence as well as on ground that the eyewitnesses were highly interested persons — Trial court, on discussion of the evidence of the witnesses examined on behalf of the defence had rightly discarded the defence version — Accordingly, judgment of trial court convicting respondent under S. 302 IPC and sentencing him to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life and a fine of Rs 1000 restored (Paras 7, 9, 11 and 12). State of Rajasthan v. Hanuman, (2001) 1 SCC 337: 2001 SCC (Cri) 143: AIR 2001 SC 282: 2001 Cri LJ 485.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.S.M. Quadri and D.P. Mohapatra, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-2000]

[7539] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Appreciation of evidence — Reliability of evidence of murder and injuries to another person by gunshot firing — Motive being refusal to meet the ransom demand — Testimony of sole injured eyewitness (PW 7) corroborated by medical evidence as well as by his father (PW 1) and two brothers (PWs 3 and 5) who had rushed to the hospital immediately on receipt of the information about the incident and before whom PW 7 had disclosed about the occurrence and name of the accused-appellant — PWs 1, 3 and 5 examined by police on the same day in the hospital — Incident taking place in broad daylight and appellant having been introduced to PW 7 about 5-6 days before the incident, there was no improbability in identification of the appellant by PW 7 — Held, evidence of the injured eyewitness cannot be discarded merely because another eyewitness had not supported the prosecution case and was declared hostile — On the basis of such evidence, conviction of appellant under Ss. 302 and 307 upheld (Paras 5, 6, 7 and 9). Surendra Singh Rautela v. State of Bihar, (2002) 1 SCC 266: 2002 SCC (Cri) 165: AIR 2002 SC 260: 2002 Cri LJ 555.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.B. Shah and B.N. Agrawal, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-11-2001]

[7540] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Merciless assault — R and B succumbed to their injuries whereas PW 1 suffered as many as 24 injuries — Conviction of appellants under Ss. 302 and 307 whereas acquittal of all the other accused persons — Propriety of — Testimony of the eyewitnesses disbelieved due to considerable inconsistency in their evidence — Participation of appellants in the commission of the crime established by the evidence of PW 1 — Held, High Court rightly found the appellants guilty on the basis of the evidence of PW 1 ignoring that part of his evidence which appeared to be in the nature of embellishment — But on facts, conviction of the appellants under S. 302 IPC altered to that under Ss. 302/34 IPC

The High Court rightly disbelieved the evidence of the witnesses and came to the conclusion that they had not witnessed the occurrence. The High Court, however, found that so far as PW 1 was concerned, his presence at the place of occurrence could not be disputed. He was subjected to merciless assault and had suffered as many as 24 injuries. Both the courts have concurrently found PW 1 to be a reliable witness and even though he sought to make an improvement in the course of his deposition by naming the other accused persons, for that reason his entire evidence cannot be rejected. The High Court has rightly ignored that part of his evidence which appears to be in the nature of embellishment. (Paras 7, 8 and 10)

027190

However, considering the facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellants under Section 302 IPC is altered to that under Section 302 r/w Section 34 IPC. Chittarmal v. State of Rajasthan, (2003) 2 SCC 266: 2003 SCC (Cri) 514: AIR 2003 SC 796: 2003 Cri LJ 889.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-2003]

[7541] — Ss. 302, 307, 326, 324, 148 r/w S. 34 — Murder — Injured witnesses (PWs 1 and 2) — Consistent and natural testimony of — Creditworthiness of PWs 1 and 2 considered bearing in mind the deficiencies pointed out by the defence — No material contradiction pointed out in the evidence of PWs 1 and 2 — Acquittal of other accused by High Court was on the basis that they were unarmed and not on ground of evidence of PWs 1 and 2 being fake — Evidence of PWs 1 and 2 regarding the involvement of accused A-1 and appellants, held on facts, reliable — Conviction of appellants, upheld (Para 13). Balram Singh v. State of Punjab, (2003) 11 SCC 286: 2004 SCC (Cri) 149: AIR 2003 SC 2213.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde, Ashok Bhan and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-2003]

[7542] — Ss. 302, 307, 452 r/w S. 34 — Value of evidence of injured witness — Held, evidence of such witness lends more credence as normally he would not falsely implicate a person thereby protecting the actual assailant — Hence, trial court was not justified in holding that since PW 11 was an injured witness, he may have reason to falsely implicate the accused (Para 9). Vijay Shankar Shinde v. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 2 SCC 670: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 535: AIR 2008 SC 1198: 2008 Cri LJ 1632.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-1-2008]

[7543] — Ss. 302 and 307 r/w S. 34 — Injured child eyewitness — Murder trial — On facts, trial court relying on the evidence of PW 2, injured child eyewitness, convicting respondent-accused under Ss. 302 and 307 r/w S. 34 IPC — High Court directing acquittal primarily on the basis that PW 2 was not in the condition to give statement — Reference was made to the seriousness of the injuries sustained by him — Sustainability — Held, High Court proceeded on surmises — Evidence of PW 17, the doctor, showed that PW 2 was in a position to give statement as he had regained consciousness — Herein, High Court had not indicated any plausible reason to discard evidence of PW 2 — It did not examine the acceptability, credibility and truthfulness or otherwise of PW 2's evidence by analysing evidence vis-à-vis other factors and materials on record — In the circumstances, impugned judgment of High Court set aside and matter remitted for consideration afresh (Paras 4, 5 and 8 to 10). State v. Rakiappan, (2008) 15 SCC 715: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1166: (2009) 74 AIC 162 (SC).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat, C.K. Thakker and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-10-2008]

[7544] — Ss. 302 and 324 — Acquittal by trial court reversed by High Court — Killing of deceased by gunshot wounds — Prosecution witnesses also injured by gunshots — Their testimony consistent excepting minor discrepancies — Fact of their having suffered injuries thus sustained, absence of medical evidence therefore inconsequential — Alibi evidence adduced by accused not inspiring confidence — On facts, held, reversal by High Court of acquittal justified. Kashiram v. State of M.P., (1998) 7 SCC 450: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1683.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-1998]

[7545] — Ss. 302 & 325 r/w S. 149 — Murder — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction based on corroborated testimony of injured eyewitnesses — Wife of deceased sustaining several injuries — She stating to have suffered those injuries while trying to rescue her husband from attack by throwing herself into a vortex — Assailants were ill-disposed towards the deceased — Incident taking place at 4.00 p.m. and hence there was sufficient light — FIR lodged by the wife promptly which reaching the Magistrate on the same night — Her testimony corroborated in material particulars by PWs to whom she had narrated the incident as soon as possible — Held, such evidence is admissible under S. 157 of Evidence Act — She was a witness of the occurrence — High Court was justified in convicting the assailants on the basis of her evidence — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 157

The importance of the evidence of PW 10, the wife of the deceased, is that no court can possibly hold that she would not have witnessed the occurrence, for she herself sustained as many as eight

LIBRARY
National Law School

38.(i) Injured witness (contd.)

injuries, some of them serious, during the occurrence. The fact that she gave the police prompt information which has reached the Magistrate on the very same night adds further credence to her version. Added to that, she narrated the incident to two PWs who reached the spot soon after the occurrence. Thus her testimony had been corroborated in all material particulars by those PWs and such evidence is admissible under Section 157 of the Evidence Act. (Para 3)

PW 11 was cited as an eyewitness and he turned hostile and the Public Prosecutor confronted him with his own previous statements and contradicted him. It is not safe to jettison the evidence of a witness like PW 10 as important as she is in the syndrome of the facts of this case, with the aid of a hostile witness's stance in the court. Such a course adopted by the trial court had been rightly deprecated by the High Court. (Para 4)

The defence suggestion that PW 10 would have possibly sustained those injuries at some other place and at some other time and not when she was accompanying her husband at the place of occurrence is too unconvincing and very far-fetched. No court can give any weight to such a theory. It is not possible to countenance the contention that PW 10 would have absolved those who have attacked her and turned against the five accused falsely. Such a theory will not fit in with logic and common sense. But unfortunately that version was found acceptable to the trial court and therefore the High Court has rightly repelled it. (Para 5)

PW 10 was a witness to the occurrence and if so she was able to see the assailants whose identity she knew even earlier. It is an admitted fact that the assailants were ill-disposed to the deceased as that is stated as a reason for false implication. The incident happened at 4.00 p.m. and hence there can be no possible contention that there was paucity of light for PW 10 to identify the assailants. The fact that PW 10 has so many injuries would probabilise her version that when she found her husband in great danger being attacked by the assailants she threw herself into a vortex for rescuing the father of all her little children from being killed like that. Such an instinctive protective reaction on the part of a wife is a highly probable conduct in the given situation. That accounts for the large number of injuries which she sustained at the spot itself. (Para 6)

Therefore, it is not possible to interfere with the conviction of the assailants under Sections 302, 325 r/w 149 and 148 and sentence of life imprisonment on the first count and lesser sentences for the lesser offence. (Para 1). Jangir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2000) 10 SCC 261.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and D.P. Mohapatra, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-10-1999]

State of T.N. v. Suresh, (1998) 2 SCC 372: 1998 SCC (Cri) 751, relied on [7546] — S. 302 r/w S. 149 — Murder trial — Injured witness — Not placing on record their medical reports — Effect — Injured witnesses PW 7 and PW 8 narrated incident about how accused chased and ultimately caused death of A — Their evidence was corroborated by PW 9 and PW 12 — Their presence at spot proved — Presence of injured witnesses cannot be doubted because they did not place on record medical reports of their injuries (Para 14). Moniruddin Ahmed v. State of W.B., (2010) 12 SCC 238: 2010 Cri LJ 3448: (2010) 90 AIC 24 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-5-2010]

[7547] — Ss. 302/34 — Murder — Even though the witnesses were related to the deceased and thus interested witnesses but they having sustained injuries in the incident, which was proved by the medical certificates issued by doctor who examined them, their presence at the place of occurrence cannot be doubted — Their evidence being consistent, held, there was no infirmity therein (Para 5). Majju v. State of M.P., (2001) 9 SCC 449: AIR 2001 SC 2939.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-10-2001]

[7548] — Ss. 302/34, 302/149, 307/149, 326/149, 324/149, 147, 148 — Consistency in evidence — Sustainability of conviction — Attack on prosecution party by accused party with swords and iron bars causing death and injuries to others — Testimony of injured eyewitnesses as well as independent witnesses before court consistent with their statements made before police and also corroborated by medical evidence — On facts held, conviction of such accused justified — This despite the fact that where testimony of injured witnesses was neither supported by medical evidence nor corroborated by it, their testimony was rejected (Paras 22, 10 and 11). Abdul Rashid Abdul Rahiman Patel v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 9 SCC 1: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 323.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.N. Agrawal, P.P. Naolekar and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-7-2007]

[7549] — Ss. 302/148 and 307/149 — Eyewitness — Injured witness — Seriously injured but surviving witness — Testimony of, very reliable. Appabhai v. State of Gujarat, 1988 Supp SCC 241: 1988 SCC (Cri) 559: AIR 1988 SC 696: 1988 Cri LJ 848: (1988) 1 Crimes 606.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Dutt and K. Jagannatha Shetty, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-2-1988]

[7550] — Ss. 302/149 and 323/149 — Injured witness — Eyewitnesses residing near the place of occurrence — Injuries received by them establishing their presence at the scene of occurrence — Their evidence found to be consistent and reliable — Their evidence cannot be discarded merely because they described the sticks in the hands of the assailants as 'shingadas' (a log of wood or a thick wooden stick) — So also their evidence cannot be discarded on ground that they stated generally about the assault and they did not specifically state which particular blow was given by which particular assailant

When a person is attacked by a number of assailants it may become difficult for that person to say exactly whose blow had caused an injury to him. When a witness deposes generally about the assault on him and others it may become necessary to scrutinise his evidence carefully and to find out whether all the accused had taken part in the assault or not; but his evidence cannot be discarded altogether if otherwise it is believable. (Para 5). Gajanan Amrut Gaykwad v. State of Maharashtra, 1995 Supp (3) SCC 607: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1081: AIR 1996 SC 3332.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and G.T. Nanavati, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-9-1995]

[7551] — S. 304 Pt. I r/w S. 34 — Evidence of injured witness — Conviction based on confirmed — On facts, held, no fault can be found with conviction of appellant-accused, in light of the fact that prosecution story rests on evidence of three injured witnesses (Para 11). Gurdial Singh v. State of Punjab, (2011) 2 SCC 768.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : H.S. Bedi, P. Sathasivam and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision : 24-1-2011]

(j) Interested/Partisan witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(r) Interested/Partisan witness', pp. 347 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'D.4.(e) Appreciation of Evidence — Credibility of witness', in Vol. 2, and

'D.38.(o) Related witness', below

[7552] — S. 302 — Conviction for murder based on sole testimony of interested witness (a relative) corroborated by medical and circumstantial evidence upheld. State of U.P. v. Vinod Kumar, (1992) 2 SCC 536: 1992 SCC (Cri) 505: AIR 1992 SC 1011: 1992 Cri LJ 1115.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : S. Ratnavel Pandian, M. Fathima Beevi and Yogeshwar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision : 12-3-1992]

[7553] — S. 302 — Eyewitnesses interested — Need for corroboration — The proposition that evidence of interested eyewitnesses needs corroboration is not of universal application. Mangal Singh v. State of M.B., AIR 1957 SC 199: 1957 Cri LJ 325.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : N.H. Bhagwati, Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision : 19-9-1956]

[7554] — S. 302 — Interested witness — Appreciation of evidence of witnesses belonging to the faction of the victims — Evidence cannot be discarded on this ground alone — Judicial approach in dealing with such evidence has to be cautions

There is no doubt that when a criminal Court has to appreciate evidence given by witnesses who are partisan or interested, it has to be very careful in weighing such evidence. Whether or not there are discrepancies in the evidence; whether or not evidence strikes the Court as genuine; whether or not the story disclosed by the evidence is probable, are all matters which must be taken into account. But it would be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by the witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses. Often enough where factions prevail in villages and murders are committed as a result of enmity between such factions, criminal Courts have to deal with evidence of a partisan type. The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how much evidence should be appreciated. Judicial approach has to be cautious in dealing with such evidence, but the plea that such evidence should be rejected because it is partisan cannot be accepted as correct. Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202: (1964) 8 SCR 133: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 226.

Bench Strength 4. Coram : P.B. Gajendragadkar, C.J. and K.N. Wanchoo, K.C. Das Gupta and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision : 4-5-1964]

38.(j) Interested/Partisan witness (contd.)

[7555] — S. 302 — Interested witness — Approach — While admitting evidence of interested witness, standard of caution and precaution to be adopted by court, stated

In cases where the court is called upon to deal with the evidence of the interested witnesses, the approach of the court, while appreciating the evidence of such witnesses must not be pedantic. The court must be cautious in appreciating and accepting the evidence given by the interested witnesses but the court must not be suspicious of such evidence. The primary endeavour of the court must be to look for consistency. The evidence of a witness cannot be ignored or thrown out solely because it comes from the mouth of a person who is closely related to the victim. (Para 23). Jayabalan v. UT, Pondicherry, (2010) 1 SCC 199.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-2009]

[7556] — S. 302 — Interested witnesses — Sons and daughter of the deceased in a murder trial — Evidence admissible — Cannot be discarded on the sole ground of their close interest in the deceased

The circumstance that the eyewitnesses in a murder trial are sons and daughter of the deceased does not detract from the value to be attached to their evidence, because, naturally enough, they are interested in seeing that the real murderer of their father is convicted of the offence and they cannot be expected to adopt a course by which some innocent person would be substituted for the person really guilty of the murder. None of these witnesses had any such enmity with the appellant as could induce him to give false evidence and to substitute him as the murderer in place of the person really guilty. In fact, their feelings would be strongest against the real culprit and, consequently, their evidence cannot be discarded on the mere ground of their close interest in the deceased. Bhupendra Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1968 SC 1438: (1968) 3 SCR 404: 71 Punj LR 98: 1969 Cri LJ 6.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision : 5-3-1968]

[7557] — S. 302 — Prejudiced witnesses — Appreciation of — Witnesses normally convincing themselves that the accused were responsible for the crime — It is always possible for them to later satisfy themselves factually and make a false statement

It is a case of moral certainty from the surrounding circumstances developing into the factual certainty in the minds of the prosecution witnesses that the accused were concerned with the murder. It is a case of the witnesses convincing themselves, however honest they may have been, that the accused were concerned with the crime without having clearly seen them or being able to see them. Mohinder Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1955 SC 762: 1955 Cri LJ 1542.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision : 13-9-1955]

[7558] — S. 302 — Prosecution case based on evidence of highly interested witnesses — Their presence at the scene of occurrence doubtful — Witnesses making certain improvements regarding nature of weapon used — No other person of locality examined by the prosecution — Evidence of defence witness who resided near the place of occurrence found reliable — Held, in the circumstances, it is highly unsafe to convict the accused in appeal against acquittal — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. State of Haryana v. Inderaj, 1995 SCC (Cri) 151: AIR 1994 SC 115.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1993]

[7559] — S. 302 — Reliance on testimony of interested witness — Wife of deceased present at the occurrence — Receiving injuries in the same incident which were corroborated by the injury record and by the doctor who examined her — Her testimony further corroborated by the deceased's nephew — Held, testimony need not be discarded. Ramji Singh v. State of Bihar, (2001) 9 SCC 528: AIR 2001 SC 3853.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.C. Lahoti and Ashok Bhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2001]

[7560] — S. 302 — Reversal of acquittal by Supreme Court, on facts held, not justified where the main testimony against the respondent-accused was partisan and suffered from material omissions. Rajagopal v. Sadaya Gounder, 1984 Supp SCC 619: 1983 SCC (Cri) 128.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.D. Tulzapurkar and Baharul Islam, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1982]

[7561] — Ss. 302 and 34 — Interested or Partisan witness — Persons in employment and related persons — Witnesses if interested — Credibility of testimony of — Murder case — Shop owner murdered for cash, while returning home with cash bag at night after closing shop —

PW 1 (salesman of deceased shop owner) accompanying deceased to his house and attack taking place near house of deceased — PW 2 (wife of deceased) present at home, sitting on first floor, who saw deceased and PW 1 coming home, as well as altercation of deceased with accused — Held, PWs 1 and 2 cannot be stated to be interested witnesses and should not be disbelieved merely because PW 1 was in employment of deceased and PW 2 was wife of deceased — It is but natural that deceased employer, who was carrying cash, would normally ask some of his trusted employees to come with him — Also, as per evidence, wife and daughter had come down to open the door for deceased, however, when they opened the door, firing had already taken place and deceased was lying on ground — In such circumstances, testimony of PWs 1 and 2, held, credible — Conviction upheld (Paras 11, 12 and 6). Maqbool v. State of A.P., (2010) 8 SCC 359: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 867.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. B.S. Chauhan and Swatanter Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-7-2010]

Manu Sharma v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2010) 6 SCC 1: (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 1385, relied on [7562] — S. 302 and S. 34 — Partisan witness — Who is not — Eyewitness belonging to the same village and being friends of the deceased — Held, not necessarily partisan witnesses. Naresh Mohanlal Jaiswal v. State of Maharashtra, (1996) 11 SCC 547: AIR 1997 SC 1523.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1996]

[7563] — Ss. 302 and 34 — Testimony of interested witness, cannot be rejected on the sole ground of interestedness but should be subjected to close scrutiny — False implication of one of the accused by them made their evidence highly suspicious — Their version that three of the accused caught hold of the deceased while the remaining three inflicted 11 knife blows indiscriminately all over the body not acceptable — In the circumstance held, it was unsafe to rely on their evidence against any of the accused as that would result in miscarriage of justice — Hence conviction and sentences against all the accused set aside — Bombay Police Act, 1951 (22 of 1951), S. 135. B.N. Singh v. State of Gujarat, (1990) 2 SCC 154: 1990 SCC (Cri) 283: AIR 1990 SC 1628: 1990 Cri LJ 1601: (1990) 1 GLH 256.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1990]

[7564] — Ss. 302, 147, 148 and 149 r/w S. 34 — Murder trial — Witnesses — Evidence by partisan eyewitnesses — Admissibility — Accused party having landed dispute and litigation with prosecution party — Accused party coming to fields of B and upon being obstructed, exchange of words taking place and accused murdering B's two sons (S and PR) in presence of B and other eyewitnesses — Evidence by partisan eyewitnesses, held, admissible (Para 40.2). Adalat Pandit v. State of Bihar, (2010) 6 SCC 469.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : V.S. Sirpurkar and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision : 14-5-2010]

Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 226, relied on

Maranadu v. State, (2008) 16 SCC 529, distinguished

[7565] — Ss. 302, 148 and 302/149 — FIR lodged by partisan witness — That by itself not a ground to reject the entire prosecution case — Version given in FIR assumes importance for scrutinizing later deposition in which other witnesses come forward with more details — On facts, presence of first informant at the scene of occurrence not in doubt — His evidence can be accepted in respect of those accused to whom overt acts have been attributed in the FIR — Mere delay in lodging FIR or conduct of the first informant in not informing the relatives of the deceased immediately cannot be a ground for rejecting his evidence outright (Paras 5 and 6). Mallappa v. State of Karnataka, 1995 Supp (1) SCC 767: 1995 SCC (Cri) 414.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-1994]

[7566] — S. 302 and S. 302 r/w S. 149 — Conviction based upon evidence of interested eyewitnesses, held on facts — Presence of eyewitnesses, who were the relatives of the deceased, at the place of murder, which was not a public place, satisfactorily explained and subsequently believed by the courts below — Dubious evidence of defence witnesses — Prosecution case having been proved beyond reasonable doubt, conviction of appellants relying upon evidence of interested witnesses, held, was not liable to be interfered with. Rampukar Yadav v. State of Bihar, (2002) 9 SCC 680.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-2000]

[7567] — Ss. 302 and 302/34 — Murder — Doubt regarding the presence of eyewitnesses at the spot — Highly interested witnesses — Entire dispute, in regard to the land, was with PW 1 (father of the deceased), but accused-respondents attacking

38.(j) Interested/Partisan witness (contd.)

the deceased only and sparing PW 1 who was also present at the spot — Inconsistency between oral and medical evidence — Independent witnesses, though available, not examined — Bloodstained earth not collected from the place of the incident by IO — On facts, held, it was not safe to rely upon the evidence led by the prosecution to base conviction of the respondents — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 134

It is difficult to place reliance on the evidence of PWs 1, 2 and 4 because they are highly interested witnesses. (Para 7)

The entire dispute in regard to the land was with PW 1 and not with the deceased. Assuming that the assault started because of the questioning by the deceased in regard to the presence of the respondents in the field, the respondents had come prepared for an attack, armed with lathis and double-barrelled gun, hence, would not have gone on attacking only the deceased and used the firearm four times over and over on the deceased when PW 1 who should have been the main target of the attack was spared. This version of the prosecution case creates a serious doubt as to the presence of PW 1 at the spot. This coupled with the fact that the oral evidence is not in conformity with the medical evidence, compounds the suspicion of the Court as to the presence of PW 1 at the place of incident. The fact that the other eyewitnesses are partisan witnesses cannot be ruled out. Hence, any other independent witnesses not having been examined, even though available, further supports the suspicion as to the presence of these witnesses at the time of incident. (Para 7)

The defence has seriously questioned the prosecution case in regard to the place of incident as also the time of incident based on the stomach contents of the deceased. The investigating agency has not done their required job of collecting the bloodstained earth from the place of incident. (Para 7)

Thus, it is not safe to rely upon the evidence led by the prosecution to base conviction of the respondents. (Para 7). State of U.P. v. Bhagwant, (2003) 10 SCC 74: AIR 2003 SC 2293: 2003 Cri LJ 2337.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-2003]

[7568] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Murder trial — Conviction reversed — Credibility of witnesses — Interested witness — Motive to falsely implicate — Appellant alleged to have hacked and attempted to kill PW 3 (wife of deceased), and when she fell down, he rushed towards the deceased who was sleeping and hacked him to death — Motive for crime alleged to be some land dispute — FIR merely stating that two unknown persons had entered the house and committed the crime — Statement (Ext. P-21) of PW 3 recorded by Judicial Magistrate in hospital wherein she did not name appellant but positively stated that she was attacked by some unknown persons aged about 20 years — Appellant at the relevant time was aged 50 years and well known to PW 3 — Thus, Ext. P-21 not corroborating testimony of PW 3, and it was obvious that she had later improvised and roped in appellant — Enmity between her husband (deceased) and appellant could be one possible reason for her to implicate appellant after deliberation — PW 4, daughter of deceased, and acquainted with appellant, also not revealing name of appellant at any point of time prior to her evidence in court — Moreover, her evidence found vague and unacceptable — Held, courts below failed to critically evaluate evidence of PWs 3 & 4, and to consider material contradictions having crucial bearing on veracity of their evidence — Hence, impugned judgment convicting appellant on basis of their evidence unsustainable (Paras 2, 3, 10, 11, 14, 17, 18, 22 and 23). Gajula Surya Prakasarao v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 88.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Sudershan Reddy and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-11-2009]

[7569] — Ss. 302, 307, 143, 148, 504 and 149 — Murder trial — Admissibility of evidence of interested witnessess — Held, truly, all three prosecution witnesses, relied upon by courts below, were interested witnesses — However, despite existence of their animosity, keeping in view relationship between rival parties (first informant and accused persons were cousins), it was unlikely that they would be falsely implicated (Paras 5, 10 and 29). Gurunath Donkappa Keri v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 13 SCC 34: 2009 Cri LJ 2995.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

Donkappa Venkappa Keri v. State of Karnataka, Criminal Appeal No. 1254 of 2002 decided on 11-8-2005 (Kant), affirmed

[7570] — S. 302 & S. 436 r/w S. 34 — Credibility of witness — Interested/Related/Partisan witness — Conviction — Sustainability — FIR lodged by PW 7 to the effect that her sons S & B were belaboured by seven accused and done to death and thereafter accused set fire to the tractor trolley, stack of onion and groundnut — PW 7 claiming to have witnessed the incident from distance but graphically describing roles played by appellants — She also assigning specific role to acquitted Accused 6 and some others — As far as injuries on person of accused KC were concerned, doctor had specifically certified that none of the injuries was serious in nature nor was any one of them sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature and they were simple — In such circumstances, non-explanation thereof insignificant — Besides, PW 7 in her cross-examination had stated that she had not noticed any injury on accused KC and that he was not injured with sharp-edged weapon — Hence, doubtful as to whether the injuries had been caused at the time of occurrence as such — Also significant to note that accused KC chose to go to hospital after five hours of occurrence and the incident was reported not at the police station in which jurisdiction it had occurred — Besides, no sword was recovered, and if the deceased S & B were carrying the same and both of them had died, it could not have disappeared — Furthermore, recoveries made from appellant-accused and report of FSL sufficiently corroborating evidence of PW 7 — Hence, held, impugned judgment convicting appellant-accused on basis of evidence of PW 7 calls for no interference (Paras 4, 12 to 17, 21, 23, 33 and 34). Bheru Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 9 SCC 119: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1059: (2009) 81 AIC 33 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 4118: (2009) 3 APLJ 127 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2009]

[7571] — Ss. 302, 452 and 324 — Benefit of doubt — Non-corroboration of testimony of interested witnesses by any independent witness — Effect — Murder of four inmates of a house by an outsider by using a hacksaw blade — Some lacuna found in prosecution case remaining unexplained — Prosecution examining 8 witnesses of which 3 were doctors, two formal witnesses, investigating officer and two brothers of the deceased family — No independent witness examined by prosecution to corroborate the evidence of the two brothers, who were interested witnesses — Though independent witnesses were available at the place of occurrence but no explanation given for their non-examination — On facts held, evidence on record not leading to the only conclusion of guilt of the accused and a doubt arising regarding the prosecution case — Trial court erred in convicting the accused under Ss. 302, 452 and 324 and sentencing him to death and High Court also erred in confirming the conviction though it altered the sentence of death to that of imprisonment for life — Accused-respondent entitled to acquittal. Deepak Kumar v. Ravi Virmani, (2002) 2 SCC 737: 2002 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 2002 SC 1320.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-2002]

Malempati Pattabhi Narendra v. Ghattamaneni Maruthi Prasad, (2000) 5 SCC 226: 2000 SCC (Cri) 953, relied on [7572] — S. 302 r/w S. 149 — Murder trial — Interested witness — Testimony of — Conviction on the basis of — Sixteen accused including the appellants alleged to have beaten the deceased indiscriminately with sticks, rods and axes — PW 2 (his father) also injured in the occurrence — When deceased managed to run inside the house they breaking open the door and assaulting him — He was even chased and beaten when he fled from the house — Deceased succumbing to the injuries while undergoing treatment — Trial court holding each accused guilty — However, in appeal filed thereagainst High Court upholding conviction of A-1, A-3, A-7, A-8, A-9, A-12 & A-13 and sentence of LI imposed by trial court, while acquitting the rest — Submission by appellants (A-7, A-8, A-9 & A-13) that conviction is based primarily on evidence of interested witnesses and hence unsustainable — Further, even if accusations were accepted in toto, offence under S. 302 not made out — Discussing the case law relating to interested- ness of witnesses to sustain conviction, such submission rejected — However, following the judgment in appeal filed by some of the co-accused wherein conviction was altered to S. 304 Pt. I r/w S. 149 IPC conviction of appellants in instant appeal also similarly altered (Paras 3, 5 and 11 to 13). Ponnam Chandraiah v. State of A.P., (2008) 11 SCC 640: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 993: 2008 Cri LJ 4298: (2008) 69 AIC 269 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-7-2008]

S. Sudershan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2006) 10 SCC 163: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 503, considered and relied on

[7573] — Ss. 302/149, 147, 148 and 325 — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction based on testimony of eyewitnesses (PWs 3 and 4) — Interested/Partisan witness — Careful approach adopted while analysing the evidence of — PW 3 saw the accused person including the two appellants attacking deceased K — Apprehending danger to his life, PW 3 took refuge in the house of one S — Accused came there, dragged him out and assaulted him causing injuries to him —

38.(j) Interested/Partisan witness (contd.)

Unwarranted delay in recording the statement of PW 3 — Non-mention of names of appellants in the said statement — Testimony of PW 3, held on facts, not reliable — Further, considering the conduct of PW 4 (a close relative of K) in not informing anybody about his having witnessed the incident and the delay in recording his statement, held, no reliance could be placed on his testimony — Recovery of weapons from a place easily accessible by other people and that too nine days after the incident, on facts, not reliable — Appellants acquitted (Para 6). Maruti Rama Naik v. State of Maharashtra, (2003) 10 SCC 670: AIR 2003 SC 3884: 2003 Cri LJ 4326.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-9-2003]

[7574] — Ss. 302/149 and 148 — Interested/Partisan witness — Only if evidence of, on careful sifting is found to be materially probable and reliable, held, can it form the basis of conviction without any further corroboration

Interested evidence is not necessarily unreliable evidence. Even partisanship by itself is not a valid ground for discrediting or rejecting sworn testimony. Nor can it be laid down as an invariable rule that interested evidence can never form the basis of conviction unless corroborated to a material extent in material particulars by independent evidence. All that is necessary, is that the evidence of interested witnesses would be subjected to careful scrutiny and accepted with caution. If on such scrutiny, the interested testimony is found to be intrinsically reliable or inherently probable, it may, by itself, be sufficient, in the circumstances of the particular case, to base a conviction thereon. Although in the matter of appreciation of evidence, no hard and fast rule can be laid down, yet, in most cases, in evaluating the evidence of an interested or even a partisan witness, it is useful as a first step to focus attention on the question, whether the presence of the witness at the scene of the crime at the material time was probable. If so, whether the substratum of the story narrated by the witness, being consistent with the other evidence on record, the natural course of human events, the surrounding circumstances and inherent probabilities of the case, is such which will carry conviction with a prudent person. If the answer to these question be in the affirmative, and the evidence of the witness appears to the court to be almost flawless, and free from suspicion, it may accept it, without seeking corroboration from any other source. Since perfection is seldom to be found, and the evidence of a witness, more so of an interested witness, is generally fringed with embellishment and exaggerations, however true in the main, the court may look for some assurance, the nature and extent of which will vary according to the circumstances of the particular case, from independent evidence, circumstantial or direct, before finding the accused guilty on the basis of his interested testimony. However, these are only broad guide-lines which may often be useful in assessing interested testimony, and are not ironcased rules uniformly applicable in all situations.

On facts of the present case, the testimony of PW 1, the maternal uncle of the deceased and of PW 2, the son of the person who was being prosecuted along with the deceased for the murder of a person belonging to the opposing faction of the accused, was found to be reliable. Hari Obula Reddy v. State of A.P., (1981) 3 SCC 675: 1981 SCC (Cri) 795: AIR 1981 SC 82.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria, A.C. Gupta and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1980]

[7575] — Ss. 302/149 and 148 — Reliability of testimony — Murder trial — Appellants contending that PWs 1 and 4 (eyewitnesses) were interested witnesses and as such no implicit reliance should be placed on their testimony — Held, undoubtedly, PW 1 is father of the deceased and PW 4 is a co-villager of PW 1 who corroborated testimony of PW 1 on all material aspects of the case and clearly recognised the accused persons who committed murder of the deceased — However, testimony of PWs 1 and 4 found to be satisfactory, consistent and credible by High Court — Both witnesses were subjected to searching cross-examination by defence, but no tangible material extracted from their evidence to create any shadow of doubt to disbelieve and discard their truthful testimony — Hence conviction justified — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378(1) and 386(a) (Para 34). Indra Pal Singh v. State of U.P., (2008) 16 SCC 648: AIR 2009 SC 958: (2009) 74 AIC 244 (SC): (2009) 1 All LJ 666: 2009 Cri LJ 942.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: L.S. Panta and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-2008]

[7576] — Ss. 302/149 and 148 — Testimony of partisan witness — Reliability — Held, High Court erred in not placing reliance upon the evidence of eyewitnesses on the ground that they were interested and partisan witnesses — In a murder trial, sworn testimony of a witness cannot be rejected on this ground alone when the same is con- sistent with the prosecution case and supported by medical evidence as well as the objective finding of the investigating officer (Para 9). Kamma Otukunta Ram Naidu v. Chereddy Pedda Subba Reddy, (2003) 11 SCC 293: 2004 SCC (Cri) 155: AIR 2003 SC 3342.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : B.N. Agrawal and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision : 19-9-2003]

(k) Material witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(t) Material witness', pp. 386 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7577] — S. 302 — Material witness — Witness reaching the place of occurrence after the actual incident — Later taking part in fight which was an entirely different incident — Is not a material witness in the case relating to the first incident. Narain v. State of Punjab, AIR 1959 SC 484: 1959 Supp (1) SCR 724: 61 Punj LR 509: 1959 Cri LJ 537.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : P.B. Gajendragadkar and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision : 4-12-1958]

[7578] — S. 302 — Material witnesses — Meaning of and test — Effect of non-production in a criminal trial

The test whether a witness is material for the present purpose is not whether he would have given evidence in support of the defence. The test is whether he is a witness "essential to the unfolding of the narrative on which the prosecution is based". Whether a witness is so essential or not would depend on whether he could speak to any part of the prosecution case or whether the evidence led disclosed that he was so situated that he would have been able to give evidence of the facts on which the prosecution relied. It is not however that the prosecution is bound to call all witnesses who may have seen the occurrence and so duplicate the evidence. But apart from this, the prosecution should call all material witnesses. If a material witness has been deliberately or unfairly kept back, then a serious reflection is cast on the propriety of the trial itself and the validity of the conviction resulting from it may be open to challenge. Narain v. State of Punjab, AIR 1959 SC 484: 1959 Supp (1) SCR 724: 61 Punj LR 509: 1959 Cri LJ 537.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : P.B. Gajendragadkar and A.K. Sarkar, JJ. [Date of decision : 4-12-1958]

(l) Medical witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(u) Medical witness', pp. 387 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'D.25.(i) Medical/Expert Opinion', and

'D.25.(j) Medico-Legal Cases/Doctors', in Vol. 2

[7579] — Ss. 302/34, 379/34 and 201 — Medical witness — Inconsistency — Doctor who conducted the post-mortem opining that the deceased died due to asphyxia as a result of drowning — Professor of Forensic Medicines opining that the deceased died due to shock and haemorrhage — His opinion based on post-mortem certificate, inquest report and questionnaire — Held, in the circumstances, medical evidence inconclusive as to the cause of death and it would be highly unsafe to sustain the convictions on the basis of circumstantial evidence of this nature — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 45. Budha Satya Venkata S. Rao v. State of A.P., 1994 Supp (3) SCC 639: 1995 SCC (Cri) 127.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.M. Punchhi, N. Venkatachala and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-1994]

(m) Natural witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(v) Natural Witness', pp. 388 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'D.38.(c) Chance Witness', above

[7580] — S. 302 — Appreciation of evidence — Murder of a young girl aged 17 years — Motive being frustration in love — In the circumstances of the case, High Court justified in relying on the evidence of the sister and maidservant of the deceased — Nature and dimension of injuries caused to the deceased and also the manner in which they were inflicted indicating that the intention of the appellant was to cause death of the deceased — Conviction under S. 302 recorded by the High Court upheld. Ashok Kumar Barik v. State of Orissa, (1998) 8 SCC 539: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1520.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-11-1997]

[7581] — S. 302 — Conviction for murder upheld when based on the disinterested testimony of an eyewitness who was accompanying the deceased. Shri Ram v. State of U.P., (1975) 3 SCC 495: 1975 SCC (Cri) 87: AIR 1975 SC 175: 1975 Cri LJ 240: 1976 MLJ (Cri) 78.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud and P.N. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-1974]

38.(m) Natural witness (contd.)

[7582] — S. 302 — Murder — Evidence of eyewitness found reliable and unshaken — Being a resident of the building in the precincts of which the incident took place he was a natural, probable and disinterested witness — Evidence adduced by the defence found unreliable — No interference by the Supreme Court with the conviction of the accused is called for. Surajdeo Yadav v. State of Bihar, 1997 SCC (Cri) 1070: AIR 1996 SC 3157: 1996 Cri LJ 2302.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-4-1996]

[7583] — S. 302 — Murder by firing gunshots — Motive as disclosed in FIR being land dispute — Medical evidence, objective finding of investigating officer and ocular version of eyewitnesses supporting the prosecution case in material particulars — Presence of eyewitnesses not in doubt as the occurrence had taken place in the street in front of their houses — Their evidence consistent inter se as well as with the prosecution case as disclosed in FIR and in their statements before police — Held on facts, prosecution succeeded in proving its case beyond reasonable doubt. State of Punjab v. Mela Singh, (2003) 12 SCC 464: AIR 2004 SC 257: 2004 Cri LJ 368.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and B.N. Agrawal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-2003]

[7584] — S. 302 — Murder inside a house — Evidence of inmates — Evidentiary value — Accused and a girl R developing a love affair but at the instance of her father R refusing to marry the accused — Accused, on the pretext of continuing parleys over their affair, taking R to the house of a lady S who was a family friend — Accused introducing R to S as his fiancee — S welcoming them in her drawing room and after supplying coffee withdrawing from there so as to enable them to have undisturbed talks — Accused whipping out a chopper from his bag and inflicting murderous blows on R — Overhearing R*'s cry,* S rushing to the drawing room and finding R bleeding — Accused admitting before S to have killed R and thereafter fleeing away — In such circumstances, held, S was the most natural and most probable witness to speak about the murder of R — Mere non-arrival of any neighbour to the scene or silence on the part of S*, held, would not reduce the credibility of her evidence nor would justify to term her reaction as unnatural — In view of the evidence of the said eyewitness corroborated by other evidence, conviction of respondent by trial court under S. 302, restored. State of Karnataka* v. K. Yarappa Reddy, (1999) 8 SCC 715: AIR 2000 SC 185.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and A.P. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1999]

Rana Pratap v. State of Haryana, (1983) 3 SCC 327: 1983 SCC (Cri) 601; Appabhai v. State of Gujarat, 1988 Supp SCC 241: 1988 SCC (Cri) 559, relied on

[7585] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Chance witnesses — Where incident taking place on street, passersby such as milk and vegetable vendors are natural witnesses and not chance witnesses

If a murder is committed in a dwelling house, the inmates of the house are natural witnesses. If murder is committed in a brothel, prostitutes and paramours are natural witnesses. If murder is committed on a street, only passersby will be witnesses. The evidence of street hawkers and street vendors cannot be discarded or viewed with suspicion merely on the ground that they are chance witnesses. Rana Partap v. State of Haryana, (1983) 3 SCC 327: 1983 SCC (Cri) 601: AIR 1983 SC 680: 1983 Cri LJ 1272.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-5-1983]

[7586] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Murder — Natural witnesses — Held, the evidence of the eyewitnesses PWs 6 and 7, two ladies who lived in the vicinity, was cogent and convincing — Defence suggestion that the entire thing had been fabricated by the police and that these two witnesses were put up as eyewitnesses was without any substance — This was a simple case where the occurrence had taken place in the village at about evening time — PWs 6 and 7 who lived in the vicinity figured as natural witnesses — There was no reason why the police put up only two ladies as eyewitnesses — Hence the High Court was right in reversing the order of acquittal of the trial court and convicting the appellant under S. 302 IPC and sentencing him to imprisonment for life. Jaskaran Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 SCC (Cri) 1468: AIR 1994 SC 157.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1992]

[7587] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Natural witness — Conviction confirmed — Families of accused and complainant close neighbours though living on different floors in small-sized flats — Incident occurring on third floor while PWs 1 & 2 (mother and father of deceased) residing on fourth floor — However, attack preceded by scuffle and cries for help by victim which immediately attracted PWs 1 & 2 out of their apartment and they witnessing appellant inflicting knife-blows on deceased — Incident occurring between 8.30-9.00 p.m., hence, presence of witnesses at home natural — Moreover, appellant was thrown out of employment by PW 1 and thus, motive for commission of offence established — Plea that medical evidence falsified prosecution story since PWs stated that two injuries had been inflicted on deceased but doctor who conducted post-mortem had found eight injuries, rejected as there were only two effective injuries as internal injuries were result of two knife-blows — Thus, conviction of appellant under S. 302, who was main accused, calls for no interference (Paras 13, 15 to 17 and 19). Dilpesh Balchandra Panchal v. State of Gujarat, (2010) 11 SCC 714: (2010) 3 Guj LR 1912: (2010) 90 AIC 98 (SC): (2010) 3 UPLJ 27 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-4-2010]

[7588] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Natural witness — Persons present with deceased during time of fatal assault — Such witnesses, held, are natural witnesses

On 13-1-2000, at about 10.30 p.m., when PWs 1 to 3, one S and the deceased (all friends) were having a party in PW 3's house, the accused knocked at the door, upon which, it was opened by S. The respondent-accused entered the room and asked as to who had called his name. Being so asked, PW 1 stated that nobody had called him and the respondent was asked to leave the room. While going out of the room, the respondent further told PW 1 to make the deceased understand otherwise his head would be smashed. Saying so, the respondent left the room. Thereafter, they bolted the room from inside and danced till 12 to 12.30 a.m. in the midnight when the deceased opened the door to go out for urination. As soon as the deceased stepped out, he was stabbed by the respondent-accused with a sharp-edged weapon in the chest. Thereafter the accused fled away before their attempt to nab him. PW 1 at that stage asked S to press the chest of the deceased so as to control the bleeding. He also brought cotton from the nearby house and gave first aid to the deceased. He also rushed out to arrange for a three-wheeler. The deceased was then taken to the hospital where he died at around 1.30 a.m. The High Court by the impugned order set aside the order of conviction passed by the Sessions Court for offences under Section 302 IPC.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

PWs 1 to 3 are the natural witnesses who have categorically deposed about the involvement of the accused in the incident. The bloodstained knife was also recovered at the instance of the accused from his house on the basis of the disclosure statement made by the respondent-accused. (Para 28)

The trial court found that the statements given by all the three witnesses corroborated each other on material particulars, that the flow of their version appeared to be quite natural and that there was no major discrepancy. (Para 13). State of H.P. v. Rakesh Kumar, (2009) 6 SCC 308: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1028: 2009 Cri LJ 3060.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

[7589] — Ss. 302/34 and 326 — Homicidal death — Appeal against conviction by courts below — Natural witnesses — Reliable and convincing evidence of eyewitnesses — Prompt lodging of FIR — Accused had strong motive for the commission of offence — Further, cautious approach adopted by High Court as it convicted only those persons against whom there was direct evidence of overt act so as to exclude any possibility of false implication — Fact that PWs were related to each other, not affecting the prosecution case adversely — There being no good reason to disturb the concurrent findings of courts below, conviction of appellants upheld

The accused had a strong motive for the commission of the offence because it is not disputed that Accused 13 and others were being tried for the murder of the father and two uncles of PW 1. The case of the prosecution is that they were pressurising the members of the prosecution party to settle the dispute out of court while the prosecution witnesses were not willing to do so having regard to the fact that three of their family members had been murdered. (Para 9)

The prosecution examined as many as 6 eyewitnesses, namely, PWs 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 11. PW 1 is the first informant while PWs 2 and 3 are injured witnesses. They have fully supported the case of the prosecution and there is hardly anything in their testimony to discredit them. Further, there was no scope for fabricating a false case having regard to promptitude with which the first information report was lodged. The witnesses are natural witnesses as they all belong to the same family and were working together in the same field. (Paras 8 and 9)

In view of the natural presence of the prosecution witnesses and the consistency in their evidence, the mere fact that they are related to each other does not impress the Court. After all the deceased were also related to the witnesses as they belonged to the same family. Similarly many of the accused are also interrelated. (Para 10)

The approach of the High Court has been very cautious, and it has convicted only those persons against whom there is direct evidence of overt act so as to exclude any possibility of false implication. In fact the High Court gave the benefit of doubt to some of the accused persons on the slightest inconsistency in the evidence of the witnesses. The trial court as well as the High Court, after detailed consideration of the evidence on record, have recorded the conviction of the appellants and there is no good reason to disturb the concurrent findings of courts below so far as the appellants are concerned. (Paras 8 and 10). G. Laxmanna v. State of A.P., (2002) 8 SCC 333: 2003 SCC (Cri) 10: AIR 2002 SC 3685.

38.(m) Natural witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-2002]

[7590] — Ss. 302/149 — Conviction based on reliable testimony of neighbour who had witnessed the murder and of another person — Infirmity in identification parade of the witness having earlier seen the accused in police lock-up, held, therefore immaterial — No other infirmity in the reasoning and conclusion of High Court — Conviction upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 9. Mullagiri Vajram v. State of A.P., 1993 Supp (2) SCC 198: 1993 SCC (Cri) 496: AIR 1993 SC 1243: 1993 Cri LJ 169: 1993 (2) ALT (Cri) 242: (1992) 3 Crimes 671.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and N.M. Kasliwal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-1992]

[7591] — Ss. 304 Pt. II and 302 — Independent witness — Testimony of — Evidentiary value — Trial under S. 302 — Father dying of "suja" injury given by son — Alarm raised by another son of the deceased, who was present there, attracting another person who was not connected with that family, to the spot — That person not having seen the actual occurrence but told about the same by the son who had raised the alarm — Being natural and independent witness, evidence of the said person accepted — However, on facts the accused, held, guilty under S. 304 Pt. II and not under S. 302 IPC. State of U.P. v. Hari Om, (1998) 9 SCC 63: 1998 SCC (Cri) 979.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1997]

(n) Witness Protection and Support

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(ze) Witness protection and support', pp. 416 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7592] — Ss. 302 and 34 — Deficiency in criminal justice system in India to protect witnesses from being threatened by accused — Anguish expressed by Supreme Court therefor — Instant case of brutal murder of college girl inside college campus by running a jeep over her by prime accused-appellant S and co-accused-appellants present in the jeep allegedly exhorting S for the same — Eyewitnesses, all classmates of deceased victim, present with her at the time of incident — They backing out from what was stated during investigation and statement made before police — PW 8 (eyewitness), at the end of her evidence, cried and requested the court not to call her again for evidence since they were disturbed for the entire year — Close reading of evidence showed that PW 8 was under tremendous pressure not to speak the truth — Held, unfortunately, in cases involving influential people, common experience is that witnesses do not come forward because of fear and pressure — Herein, plight of eyewitness girls, who were under pressure, depicts tremendous need for witness protection in the country if criminal justice administration has to be a reality

It is a classic case of deficiency in the criminal justice system to protect the witnesses from being threatened by the accused. As appears from the record, the witnesses are the classmates of the deceased who were there with her. As it appeared from the evidence of witnesses, they backed out from what was stated during investigation. The statement made before the police during investigation is no evidence. Unfortunately, in cases involving influential people the common experience is that witnesses do not come forward because of fear and pressure. In a brutal manner, the accused S (prime accused), who was driving the vehicle, ran it over the girl and she lost her life. (Para 15). Javed Alam v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2009) 6 SCC 450: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1085.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-2009]

(o) Related witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(zh) Related witness', pp. 423 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

See also 'D.38.(d) Child/Young witness', and

'D.38.(j) Interested/Partisan witness', above

See also under 'D.38.(q) Sole/Solitary witness', below

[7593] — S. 302 — Eyewitness a close relative of the injured or the deceased — Mere fact of relationship far from being the foundation of criticism of the evidence is often a sure guarantee of truth because ordinarily a close relation would be the last person to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 364: 1954 SCR 145: 1953 Cri LJ 1465, 1468.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : M.C. Mahajan, Vivian Bose and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision : 15-5-1953]

[7594] — S. 302 — Murder — Conviction based on ocular evidence of PW 2 (brother of deceased) and PW 6 — Strained relations were existing between PW 2 and his family members on one hand and accused-appellant and his family members on the other — Criminal litigation was also pending between the two families — In such circumstances, Supreme Court carefully scrutinizing the evidence of both the eyewitnesses and finding it to be reliable — Contradictions and inconsistencies pointed out by the defence in the statements of the eyewitnesses were not material ones and, hence, not affecting the prosecution case — Injuries 1 and 2 were individually sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death — Recovery of crime article at the instance of accused — Medical evidence supporting the prosecution case — On facts, conviction of appellant under S. 302 upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 27

PW 1 and R were two real brothers. PW 2, PW 4, J and S (deceased who died in the incident) were all sons of PW 1. The accused-appellant was one out of the five surviving sons of R. The relationship between the families of PW 1 and R was not harmonious and criminal litigation was also pending between their families. On the date of the incident, PW 2 had gone to his field at about 5.30 a.m. for performing agricultural operations and engaging labour. At about 7.30 a.m., on the arrival of PW 4 (brother of PW 2) on the field, while PW 2 was returning to his home, he was intercepted by the appellant and his father who were armed with a tabbal and an axe respectively. PW 2 came back to his field and told PW 4 about the same. PW 4 asked PW 2 to go to the village through a different route. PW 2 while going through the different route saw the appellant jumping into a nala on that way. He also saw his brother S coming out of that nala. At this point of time the appellant dealt blows by tabbal on the person of S. Having dealt three blows on the person of S, the appellant ran towards PW 2. On seeing this, PW 2 ran for his life and entered the house of one K. On the appellant having escaped from the scene of the crime PW 2 came out and reached near his brother S who by that time had died. PW 6, whose field was situated close to the place of the occurrence, told that she had also seen the assault from her own field. Relying on the testimony of PWs 2 and 6, the Sessions Court convicted the appellant under S. 302 IPC and the High Court affirmed the same.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

A tabbal (crime article) was recovered at the instance of the accused from a place near the nala where it was hidden by him. Injuries 1 and 2 were individually sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death of S. (Paras 7 and 6)

The conviction rests on the ocular evidence of PW 2 and PW 6. It is true that the relationship between PW 2 and his family members on the one hand and the accused and his family members on the other was strained and criminal litigation was also pending between the two. The testimony of PW 2, therefore, needs to be subjected to careful scrutiny. Having done so, PW 2 is held to be a witness of truth. (Para 8)

The version of PW 2 regarding the assault on his brother S and thereafter his having reached the house of K to save himself from a likely assault by the appellant on him finds support from the testimony of K. PW 6 could have seen the incident from her field situated near the place of occurrence. (Para 8)

The statements of both the eyewitnesses find support from the medical evidence. The learned Sessions Judge has carefully scrutinized the evidence of both the eyewitnesses and found it worthy of reliance. The High Court too has though in a very brief judgment observed that the guilt of the accused was proved beyond reasonable doubt by overwhelming evidence adduced by the prosecution. Thus, the conviction of the accused-appellant is well founded and cannot be interfered with. It is true that during the cross-examination of PW 2 and PW 6 the attention of the witnesses was invited to certain portions of the FIR and their police statements in an effort to demonstrate that there were inconsistencies. But, such contradictions and inconsistencies are not material. When an incident is narrated by the same person to different persons on different occasions some difference in the mode of narrating the incident is bound to arise. However, such differences do not militate against the trustworthiness of the narration unless the variations can be held to be so abnormal or unnatural as would not occur if the witness would have really witnessed what he was narrating. (Para 9). Shyam Sunder v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2002) 8 SCC 39: AIR 2002 SC 3292.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.C. Lahoti and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-2002]

38.(o) Related witness (contd.)

[7595] — S. 302 — Murder — Related witness — Corroborated testimony of related witness — Reliability — Within 15 minutes of the occurrence police arrived at the scene and within 15 minutes thereof statement of an eyewitness recorded and on the basis of the same FIR registered — In the circumstances held, fact that one of the eyewitnesses named only two out of 15 accused who were known to him and could not name the accused-appellants would not show false implication of appellants — On the contrary, it would show that his testimony was natural, truthful and reliable — Merely because another eyewitness was related to the deceased, his testimony cannot be discarded when the same was corroborated by other PWs — Further, in view of shock in the minds of the eyewitnesses, if in the process when a large number of accused were involved, names of some not mentioned by one while the same mentioned by the other witness or there was slight variation in the role of the accused, that by itself would not result in failure of the prosecution — Prosecution case of dragging the dead body by the accused persons cannot also be disbelieved on ground of absence of several injuries showing such dragging as when a large number of persons were dragging the body after catching hold of the same, only a small portion may be touching the ground as a result whereof there may not be a large number of injuries on account of dragging — Factum of dragging stood established from evidence on record with corroboration from sketch map along with explanatory notes — Manner and vengeance with which the crime was committed shows that the accused were not bothered about others watching them and therefore, submission that the accused who were large in number having not caused any injuries to the eyewitnesses would show the improbability of their presence at the scene, has no substance — Hence, conviction and sentence upheld. Mundrika Mahto v. State of Bihar, (2002) 9 SCC 183: AIR 2002 SC 2042: 2002 Cri LJ 2810.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and Y.K. Sabharwal, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-4-2002]

[7596] — S. 302 — Murder of two persons and injuries to another — Presence of injured witness, daughter of the deceased established beyond doubt — Her evidence found natural and corroborated from medical evidence — Evidence of son of the deceased who rushed to the scene of offence after hearing the shouts of his father also found reliable — Assailants known to the witnesses — Evidence of son of the deceased corroborated from evidence of another witness who rushed to the scene of offence after getting information from son of the deceased — Held, in the circumstances, order of acquittal passed by the High Court liable to be quashed (Para 5). State of Rajasthan v. Major Singh, (1999) 9 SCC 106: 1999 SCC (Cri) 467: AIR 1999 SC 1073: 1999 Cri LJ 1631.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik and M.B. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-2-1999]

[7597] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction confirmed — Prior dispute between deceased and A-3 and some quarrel between children of deceased and grandsons of A-3 — On date of incident, A-3, along with his three sons, accosting deceased, returning with his wife and son from jungle, and on exhortation by A-3 to kill deceased, appellant-accused (son of A-3) shot deceased with his gun, resulting in his death — Held, deceased died a homicidal death — PW 1 (informant eyewitness and wife of deceased) searchingly cross-examined, however, nothing could be elicited from her to establish false implication of appellant because of enmity — Her testimony gets complete corroboration from contents of FIR promptly lodged by her and by testimony of PW 2 (eyewitness and son of deceased) — PWs 1 and 2 being close relatives of deceased, would not allow real culprits to go scot-free and falsely implicate appellant — Moreover, appellant was also closely related to PW 1, therefore, she would never make an attempt to falsely implicate appellant — No major discrepancy could be brought to notice of court which would render testimony of eyewitnesses unreliable — Though defence examined three witnesses, evidence of none of them was of any assistance for establishing innocence of appellant — Hence, conviction confirmed (Paras 15 to 25). Kirpal Singh v. State of U.P., (2010) 3 SCC 347.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Sudershan Reddy and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-2010]

[7598] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Credibility of injured/related witnesses — Intensive cross-examination not shaking the evidence of related/injured witnesses — Held, relationship is not a factor to discard prosecution version and render it suspect — Trial court did its duty of analysing evidence in detail to rule out false implication

The accused party and the prosecution party had political grudges against each other and it had intensified after CP(a member of the prosecution party) got elected as Sarpanch. On 14-1-1998 at about 7.00 a.m., A-6 and K and CV went to the fields to graze their cattle. After some time at about 7.30 a.m., CS, *MU*and *MA*also went to same fields for answering the calls of nature and they met A-6 and *K*and CV there. A quarrel and scuffle started between them over a cricket match. At about 12.00 noon, PW 3 father of PW 6 quarrelled with A-6 as A-2 had kicked his son in relation to the quarrel that took place in the fields.

PW 1, PW 2 and the deceased were trying to convince PW 3 to adjust the matter and not to quarrel. A-3 who was passing through the street heard the cries of PW 3 and picked up quarrel. At about 1.00 p.m., A-l and A-3 to A-19 armed with deadly weapons beat the deceased and also injured PWs 1 to 3. A-1 beat PW 1 with an iron rod on his head. A-12 also beat PW 1 with a stick on his shoulder. A-5 beat PW 2 with a stick on his head and hands. A-1 beat PW 3 with an axe on his head and A-11 beat PW 3 with a stick on his eyebrows. A-2 beat the deceased with a stick on his back. A-1 also beat the deceased with an iron rod on his head and all over the body. As a result, the deceased fell down with injuries and became unconscious. PWs 1 to 3 fell down with injuries. All the accused hurled stones against PWs 1 to 3 and the deceased. All the accused left the place thereafter.

By the impugned order, the High Court upheld the conviction of the appellants under Sections 147, 148, 323, 324, 307 and 302 IPC read with Section 149 IPC.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

The prosecution version is sufficient to fasten the guilt on the appellant-accused. Though the father of the deceased was not examined, three of the injured witnesses who had sustained injuries during the occurrence were examined. Though they were subjected to incisive cross-examination, nothing material was elicited to discard their evidence. Great emphasis was laid on the fact that PWs 1 to 3 are related to the deceased. Relationship is not the factor to discard the prosecution version and render it suspect. At the most, what the court is required to do is to analyse the evidence in some detail to rule out the possibility of false implication. In the instant case, the trial court has done that. Though it was urged that there was delay in lodging the FIR, the trial court and the High Court found that in fact there was no delay and Ext. P-1 was lodged promptly. The appeal is without merit, deserves dismissal. (Paras 12 to 14). Kilari Malakondiaah v. State of A.P., (2008) 15 SCC 311: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 974: (2008) 72 AIC 13 (SC): (2009) 1 ECrN 910 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-2008]

State of M.P. v. Deshraj, (2004) 13 SCC 199, relied on [7599] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Family members of deceased — On facts held, natural witnesses, occurrence having taken place in front of their house — Mere fact that their testimony that they fell over the body of the deceased for protecting him from further attack by the accused and that their clothes which became stained with blood were seized by police was an improvement of the case by the prosecution, would not, on facts, improbabilise their presence at the scene of occurrence. Ram Avtar Rai v. State of U.P., (1985) 2 SCC 61: 1985 SCC (Cri) 156: AIR 1985 SC 880: 1985 Cri LJ 902.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A. Varadarajan and Ranganath Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1985]

[7600] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Husband and sons of the witness murdered — But no evidence of her previous ill-will or hostility against or a motive to falsely implicate the accused — Injuries sustained by her lending assurance of her presence at the time and place of the murder — Medical evidence supporting her testimony in regard to nature of weapons with which fatal injuries were inflicted — Other circumstances also corroborating her testimony — Held, testimony of the witness reliable. Govt. of A.P. v. Boya Jaggapuram Venkateswarlu, 1980 Supp SCC 480: 1981 SCC (Cri) 444: AIR 1980 SC 1876: 1980 Cri LJ 1301.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1980]

[7601] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Related witnesses — Mother (PW 2, complainant) and son (PW 6) witnessing attack on the deceased — Case law relied upon to show that merely because eyewitnesses were family members, their evidence cannot be discarded (Para 14). Santosh Devidas Behade v. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 13 SCC 680: (2009) 2 ECrN 1011 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-3-2009]

Vinay Kumar Rai v. State of Bihar, (2008) 12 SCC 202; Sonelal v. State of M.P., (2008) 14 SCC 692; Mohabbat v. State of M.P., (2009) 13 SCC 630, relied on

[7602] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Related witness — Testimony of — Conviction on basis of — Held, sustainable — In the instant case, evidence of PW 3 (informant, eyewitness and son of deceased) and PW 5 was found cogent, credible and reliable — Hence, submission that PWs 3 and 5 being interested, their evidence should be discarded, rejected — Merely because the eyewitnesses are family members, their evidence cannot per se be discarded

38.(o) Related witness (contd.)

Merely because the eyewitnesses are family members, their evidence cannot per se be discarded. When there is an allegation of interestedness, the same has to be established. Mere statement that being relatives of the deceased they are likely to falsely implicate the accused cannot be a ground to discard the evidence which is otherwise cogent and credible. (Paras 8 and 10 to 12). Daulatram v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2008) 17 SCC 112: 2008 Cri LJ 4587: (2009) 1 ECrN 470 (SC): (2008) 70 AIC 1 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-2008]

Babulal Bhagwan Khandare v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 10 SCC 404: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1553; Salim Sahab v. State of M.P., (2007) 1 SCC 699: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 425; Vinay Kumar Rai v. State of Bihar, (2008) 12 SCC 202: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 406; State of Rajasthan v. Teja Ram, (1999) 3 SCC 507: 1999 SCC (Cri) 436, relied on [7603] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Witnesses — Related to deceased — Testimony of — Reliability — Held, it is well settled that evidence of a witness is not to be rejected merely on grounds of being related to the deceased, in the absence of any infirmity in the said evidence (Para 22). Dharam Pal v. State of U.P., (2008) 17 SCC 337: AIR 2008 SC 920: (2008) 62 AIC 65 (SC): (2008) 1 All LJ 721: 2008 Cri LJ 1016.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2008]

State of H.P. v. Mast Ram, (2004) 8 SCC 660: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1165, followed [7604] — S. 302 — PW, mother before whom all her four sons were dragged out and set on fire — Her failure to give all the details of the occurrence when she gave statement to police — In that statement police officer recording only two sentences as she was then not in a mood to speak out details, the interval of time then being not sufficient for a mother to regain mental equanimity — In the circumstances, held, it would be unfair and uncharitable to her if that cryptic statement made by her before police is used to discredit the valuable testimony of this most natural eyewitness (Para 7). Manohar Lal v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2000) 2 SCC 92: 2000 SCC (Cri) 333: AIR 2000 SC 420: 2000 Cri LJ 581.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and D.P. Mohapatra, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-1999]

[7605] — S. 302 — Related witness — Dying declaration and incriminating evidence by related witnesses (brother and sisters) corroborated by injuries found on deceased — Reliability of — Dying declaration and evidence by related witness, held, reliable — Dying declaration was not tutored, prompted or product of imagination — Hence, conviction upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32(1)

With regard to the issue of dying declaration raised by the appellant, it is a well-established legal position that a dying declaration can be made the sole basis of conviction of an accused provided the dying declaration is found to be true and voluntary and is not a result of tutoring or prompting or a product of imagination. The deceased was stated to be conscious when she was lifted from the bathroom. When PW 1 asked the deceased as to what had happened, she stated that the appellant-accused, her husband had beaten her and had, after pouring kerosene oil on her, set her on fire. They brought her to the hall and there she died. A fresh injury was also noticed on the forehead of the deceased just above her left eye on the face and her body was completely burnt. (Para 20)

The evidence of PWs 1 to 4 is clear and categorical in reference to the frequent quarrels between the deceased and the appellant. The marital life of the couple was not smooth and cordial but strained. These witnesses clearly stated that the appellant did not allow the deceased to spend her money (which she earned as a nurse). The appellant used to suspect her fidelity. (Paras 24 and 19)

PWs 1 to 4 have clearly and consistently supported the prosecution version with regard to the beating and the ill-treatment meted out to the deceased by the appellant on several occasions which compelled the deceased to leave the appellant's house and take shelter in her parental house with an intention to live there permanently. However, her parents persuaded her to return back. PWs 1 to 4 have unequivocally stated that the deceased feared threat to her life from the appellant. The aforesaid version narrated by the prosecution witnesses viz. PWs 1 to 4 also finds corroboration from the facts stated in the complaint. (Paras 24 and 19)

As per PWs 1 to 4, fifteen days prior to the occurrence, there was a quarrel between the couple with reference to the ear-piercing ceremony of their children. The appellant wanted to spend lavishly for that ceremony and wanted it to be conducted along with his brother's children, which the deceased objected to as she wanted it to be a simple affair involving minimal expenditure. (Para 19). Jayabalan v. UT, Pondicherry, (2010) 1 SCC 199.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-2009]

Paniben v. State of Gujarat, (1992) 2 SCC 474: 1992 SCC (Cri) 403; Jai Karan v. State of Delhi (NCT), (1999) 8 SCC 161: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1385; Muthu Kutty v. State, (2005) 9 SCC 113: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1202; Sham Shankar Kankaria v. State of

Maharashtra, (2006) 13 SCC 165: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 663; Mohanlal v. State of Haryana, (2007) 9 SCC 151: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 94; Vikas v. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 2 SCC 516: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 486, relied on

[7606] — S. 302 — Related witness — Relations of victim in a murder trial giving eyewitness account — Account given has to be carefully scrutinized — Corroboration on material particulars not necessary — Principles governing the appreciation of evidence of relation witnesses detailed

There can be no doubt that in a murder case when evidence is given by near relatives of the victim and the murder is alleged to have been committed by the enemy of the family, criminal Courts must examine the evidence of the interested witnesses, like the relatives of the victim, very carefully. But a person may be interested in the victim, being his relation or otherwise, and may not necessarily be hostile to the accused. In that case the fact that the witness was related to the victim or was his friend, may not necessarily introduce any infirmity in his evidence. But where the witness is a close relation of the victim and is shown to share the victim's hostility to his assailant, that naturally makes it necessary for the criminal Courts to examine the evidence given by such witness very carefully and scrutinise all the infirmities in that evidence before deciding to act upon it. In dealing with such evidence, Courts naturally begin with the enquiry as to whether the said witnesses were chance-witnesses or whether they were really present on the scene of the offence. If the offence has taken place, as in the present case, in front of the house of the victim, the fact that on hearing his shouts, his relations rushed out of the house cannot be ruled out as being improbable, and so, the presence of the three eyewitnesses cannot be properly characterised as unlikely. If the criminal Court is satisfied that the witness who is related to the victim was not a chance-witness, then his evidence has to be examined from the point of view of probabilities and the account given by him as to the assault has to be carefully scrutinised. In doing so, it may be relevant to remember that though the witness is hostile to the assailant, it is not likely that he would deliberately omit to name the real assailant and substitute in his place the name of the enemy of the family out of malice. The desire to punish the victim would be so powerful in his mind that he would unhesitatingly name the real assailant and would not think of substituting in his place the enemy of the family though he was not concerned with the assault. It is not improbable that in giving evidence, such a witness may name the real assailant and may add other persons out of malice and enmity and that is a factor which has to be borne in mind in appreciating the evidence of interested witnesses. On principle, however, it is difficult to accept the plea that if a witness is shown to be a relative of the deceased and it is also shown that he shared the hostility of the victim towards the assailant, his evidence can never be accepted unless it is corroborated on material particulars. We do not think it would be possible to hold that such witnesses are no better than accomplices and that their evidence, as a matter of law, must receive corroboration before it is accepted. Darya Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1965 SC 328: (1964) 3 SCR 397: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 350.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : P.B. Gajendragadkar, K.N. Wanchoo and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision : 25-4-1963]

[7607] — S. 302 — Related witnesses — Conviction — Propriety — Appellant G, along with his friend L, killing 13 members of his family including small kids when they were sleeping at night — Offence committed as family of G objected to the visits and stay of L at their house due to suspicion regarding unnatural relationship between L and wife of G — Evidence of three surviving eyewitnesses (one brother of G and two children of brothers who were killed) found reliable — Medical report supporting attack by the weapon used — On facts, held, conviction and sentence of G was proper (Paras 5 and 7). Gurmeet Singh v. State of U.P., (2005) 12 SCC 107: 2005 Cri LJ 4384.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Arun Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-2005]

[7608] — S. 302 — Related witnesses — Testimony of — Can be acted upon if it is otherwise reliable

The close relationship of witnesses to the deceased is no ground for not acting upon that testimony if it is otherwise reliable in the sense that the witnesses were competent witnesses who could be expected to be near about the place of occurrence and could have seen the incident. Gurcharan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1956 SC 460: 1956 Cri LJ 827.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : N.H. Bhagwati, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision : 2-11-1955]

[7609] — S. 302 — Related witnesses — Testimony of — Conviction on basis of — Sustainability — Submission by appellant- accused that when independent witnesses had not supported the prosecution version, evidence of PWs 6 and 9 (son and wife respectively of deceased) should not be relied upon to sustain the conviction — Held, merely because the eyewitnesses are family members their evidence cannot per se be discarded — Mere statement that being relatives of the deceased they are likely to falsely implicate the accused cannot be a ground to discard the evidence which is otherwise cogent and credible — In the instant case evidence of PWs 6 and 9 was corroborated by medical evidence — Blood found on the knife seized from the accused matched with the blood found on the underwear of the deceased — PW 6 in his evidence stated that he had sustained injuries at the hands of the accused — Impugned judgment confirming conviction under S. 302 calls for no interference (Paras 2, 3 and 12 to 16). Sone Lal v. State of M.P., (2008) 14 SCC 692: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 417: AIR 2009 SC 760.

38.(o) Related witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-7-2008]

State of Punjab v. Jagir Singh, (1974) 3 SCC 277: 1973 SCC (Cri) 886; Lehna v. State of Haryana, (2002) 3 SCC 76: 2002 SCC (Cri) 526; Gangadhar Behera v. State of Orissa, (2002) 8 SCC 381: 2003 SCC (Cri) 32; Babulal Bhagwan Khandare v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 10 SCC 404: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1553; Salim Sahab v. State of M.P., (2007) 1 SCC 699: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 425; State of Rajasthan v. Teja Ram, (1999) 3 SCC 507: 1999 SCC (Cri) 436, relied on [7610] — S. 302 — Relations as witnesses — Prejudice of witness against accused — Witnesses morally convincing that accused were responsible for the murder — Always possible for them to later satisfy themselves factually and make a false statement. Mohinder Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1955 SC 762: 1955 Cri LJ 1542.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : Vivian Bose, T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision : 13-9-1955]

[7611] — S. 302 — Relative as witness — Corroboration — Nature and extent of

To base conviction on the sole testimony of a witness who was related to the deceased, the corroboration that is required in such cases is not what would be necessary to support the evidence of an approver but what would be sufficient to "lend assurance to the evidence before them, and satisfy them that the particular persons were really concerned in the murder of the deceased". Karnail Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1954 SC 204: 1954 SCR 904: 1954 Cri LJ 580, 581.

Bench Strength 3. Coram : N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision : 29-1-1954]

See also AIR 1952 SC 167, 169: 1952 Cri LJ 863
Followed in AIR 1965 SC 328: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 850

[7612] — S. 302 — Wife of deceased — Credibility of her testimony — Her presence at place of occurrence cannot be disputed — It is highly improbable that she would shield the real culprit who murdered her husband and would falsely rope in another person. Dharamwati v. Jaibir, 1990 Supp SCC 275: 1990 SCC (Cri) 708.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Kuldip Singh, P.B. Sawant and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-8-1990]

[7613] — Ss. 302, 149, 147 and 148 — First informant — Non-examination of — Effect — All the prosecution witnesses repeating the version given in FIR — First informant not examined on the ground of being abroad — In such circumstances, the evidence of the said witnesses, who were all relatives and whose evidence suffered from many infirmities, held, not acceptable — Hence, interference with acquittal refused. Miran Bux v. Laloo, 1993 Supp (3) SCC 379: 1993 SCC (Cri) 1041: AIR 1994 SC 1612.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision : 23-7-1993]

[7614] — Ss. 302 and 201 r/w S. 149 — Gruesome murder of three persons — Dead bodies thrown in river — Related eyewitnesses — Common object to murder the victims, held on facts, stood proved by convincing and cogent evidence — Defence plea that impartial and independent witnesses were withheld, on facts, lacking substance — Evidence of PWs convincingly, cogently and sufficiently establishing the participation and direct involvement of seven out of the twelve appellants in the crime — Hence, their conviction and sentence upheld — Benefit of doubt extended to five appellants as their presence not proved beyond reasonable doubt

Common object has been always considered to be different from common intention and that it does not require prior concert and common meeting of minds before the attack. Common object could develop eo instanti and being a question of fact it can always be inferred and deduced from the facts and circumstances of a case projected and proved in a given case. The evidence on record sufficiently established that there was some prior animosity and there were faction-ridden groups in existence apparently over the exercise of right to fish in the area. From the nature of the weapons like lathi, dagger, spear-like iron rods, which seem to have been liberally used by the appellants, the chasing of the victims who ran for their lives and killing three of them by merciless attack and throwing their dead bodies in the running river rendering it almost difficult to retrieve immediately their bodies and some of them absconding from the locality for nearly about twelve days, would go to inevitably prove that by their joint armed attack, the common object to murder the victims was obvious and stood proved by convincing and cogent evidence. (Para 5)

There is no rule of any presumption that the evidence of a related witness will always be an interested one or that such witness will have only a hostile attitude towards the accused facing trial. The witnesses were said to be living in and around the place of occurrence and therefore their presence at the time, seems to be not only normal and natural, but their claim that they rushed to the place of occurrence on hearing the halla appears to be genuine and acceptable. Keeping in view the faction-ridden groups in the surrounding, no independent or impartial witness was likely to volunteer to give evidence even if there was anyone present at or near the place of occurrence and it is only the relatives, who were otherwise nearby and could have witnessed as legitimately claimed by them, would come to depose boldly. Except making a bald cry that independent and impartial witnesses were withheld, it was not even brought on record in some form or the other as to who such persons could be and who according to the defence stand, were otherwise present nearby, but were not examined and otherwise withheld. (Para 5)

The evidence of PWs 2, 8 and 9 convincingly, cogently and sufficiently establishes the participation and direct involvement of Appellants 1, 2, 4, 7, 8, 10 and 12 in the crime. Hence, their conviction and sentence is confirmed. But, the benefit of doubt is extended to Appellants 3, 5, 6, 9 and 11 in respect of whom the evidence of PWs 2 and 9 is sketchy and does not make out their presence beyond reasonable doubt. (Para 7). Amzad Ali v. State of Assam, (2003) 6 SCC 270: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1338: AIR 2003 SC 3587: 2003 Cri LJ 3545.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-7-2003]

[7615] — Ss. 302 and 300 — Charge of committing murder of wife — Appreciation of evidence — Wife allegedly burnt at parents' house at dead of night — Father and mother waking up and finding her to be completely burnt — Mother and sister stating that the deceased had made an oral dying declaration to them that her husband had set her on fire after pouring petrol on her — Mother further claiming to have seen the accused when she got up — No eyewitness to the occurrence — Medical report showing five burn injuries and mentioning the same to be the cause of death — In view of such extensive injuries and the occurrence of the death during the same night, the said evidence of the mother and elder sister, held, unacceptable. State of Orissa v. Parasuram Naik, (1997) 11 SCC 15: 1997 SCC (Cri) 1177: AIR 1997 SC 3569.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-8-1997]

[7616] — Ss. 302 and 300 — Testimony of mother eyewitness — On facts, held, acceptable — Murder case — Victim lying on a cot in the verandah, his mother in kitchen in the same verandah at a distance of only 10 feet — The mother seeing the accused persons including M standing near the victim — The mother stating that the accused persons abused the victim and then on being exhorted by some of them to kill the victim because of being the cause of all the litigation between them, M fired at, and injured, the victim — In view of the shortness of distance and that the abuses and the exhortation were bound to attract the mother's attention, her statement, held, acceptable — Omission on the part of the complainant, to whom she had narrated the incident soon after occurrence, to specifically state in his evidence that she had named M to have fired the shot, held, inconsequential as the FIR did mention the same and the victim's mother was the complainant's only source of information. Mohan Singh v. State of U.P., 1998 SCC (Cri) 389.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and G.B. Pattanaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1997]

[7617] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Testimony of son of deceased — Analysed with great care and caution — Found credible — Held, High Court was justified in acting upon the same (Para 7). Kamaljit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2003) 12 SCC 155: AIR 2004 SC 69: 2004 Cri LJ 28.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-2003]

[7618] — Ss. 302 and 449 — Related witness — Testimony of, cannot be discarded on ground of being related if his testimony is otherwise acceptable — On facts, testimony of brother who witnessed the occurrence trustworthy and acceptable — Corroborated by recovery of driving licence of appellant from the scene of crime — Identity of accused not mistaken — Conviction for murder upheld on sole testimony of such related witness. Mohinder Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), 1991 Supp (2) SCC 715: AIR 1991 SC 1045: 1991 Cri LJ 739.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-1991]

38.(o) Related witness (contd.)

[7619] — Ss. 302, 452 and 504 — Murder trial — Related witness — Conviction upheld — Eyewitness being close relative of deceased — Evidentiary value of — In the murder trial, trial court relying on evidence of prosecution witnesses being the widow and son of deceased holding appellants guilty of murder — Held, presence of wife and son at the spot is quite natural because the occurrence took place inside the house of the deceased — Except for some minor discrepancies, nothing substantial has been brought in the cross-examination to discard their evidence — Medical evidence clearly substantiated the injuries at the places indicated by the wife

G, author of the FIR heard hue and cry of S as a result of which he came out from his house and saw the appellant carrying a knife in his hand coming out of the house of the deceased and was running away. Behind him the co-accused was also running away. Thereafter, this person came to the house of the deceased and asked S, who is wife of the deceased, that how the incident had occurred, on which she replied that the co-accused had caught hold of the hands of the deceased and thereafter the appellant dealt several blows of knife on the person of the deceased as a result of which he died. During the trial nine witnesses were examined to further the prosecution version. Of them, PW 2 was the widow of the deceased and PW 3 his son, who claimed to be eyewitnesses. The trial court found the evidence of the eyewitnesses credible and cogent and held both the accused persons guilty. It did not find any substance in the plea of the accused persons that the evidence of eyewitnesses should be discarded as they are related to the deceased. The stand of innocence and the plea to discard the evidence of PWs 2 and 3 on the ground that they are related to the deceased were reiterated before the High Court which dismissed the appeals.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

The presence of PWs 2 (wife) and 3 (son) at the spot is quite natural because the occurrence took place inside the house of the deceased. Additionally, PWs 1 and 7 are immediate post-occurrence witnesses who have stated that when they reached the house of the deceased on hearing the cries for help of PWs 2 and 3, PW 2 told them that her husband has been assaulted by the present appellant. It is to be noted that except some minor discrepancies, nothing substantial has been brought in the cross-examination of PWs 2 and 3 to discard their evidence. PW 2's evidence is specific and clear to the extent that the present appellant gave first blow in the abdomen of the deceased and then near the navel and, thereafter, on the chest and in the neck. The medical evidence clearly shows the existence of the injuries at the places indicated by PW 2. (Para 10). Ram Singh v. State of M.P., (2008) 15 SCC 798: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1223: AIR 2009 SC 282: (2008) 72 AIC 220 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-10-2008]

Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 364; State of Rajasthan v. Teja Ram, (1999) 3 SCC 507: 1999 SCC (Cri) 436, relied on [7620] — Ss. 302/34 — FIR mentioning all necessary details about the assault including the role and weapon used by each accused — Evidence of the brother of the deceased found reliable and no material brought out during cross-examination to discredit him — His evidence corroborated by his uncle who narrated the entire story in the same sequence without any omission or mistake — Held, in the circumstances of the case, the High Court was not justified in reversing conviction of all the four accused persons — Judgment and order passed by the trial court restored — However, in view of passage of time death sentence awarded to one of the accused commuted to imprisonment for life — CrPC, 1973, S. 354. State of U.P. v. Abdul, (1997) 10 SCC 135: 1997 SCC (Cri) 804: AIR 1997 SC 2512: 1997 All LJ 1432: 1997 Cri LJ 2997.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1997]

[7621] — Ss. 302/34 — Murder — Longstanding enmity — Witnesses close relatives — Effect — Death caused by firearm injuries — Incident taking place in a hospital — FIR lodged by the eyewitness within half an hour — His evidence corroborated from the FIR itself where the date and time correctly recorded — His going straightway to the police station not unnatural — Plea of antedating the FIR not tenable — Non-production of the report of the doctor sent to the police not material because crime was already registered and police reached the place of incident within a short time — There being sufficient light it was not difficult for the witness, who had only one eye, to identify the assailants — Motive and issue of enmity rightly held proved in favour of the prosecution — Evidence of the eyewitnesses found trustworthy and rightly accepted notwithstanding the fact that they were close relatives of the deceased — Conviction upheld. Darshan v. State of U.P., 1997 SCC (Cri) 1207.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-9-1997]

[7622] — Ss. 302/34 — Related eyewitnesses — Circumstance of sustaining injuries establishing their presence at the place and time of occurrence — Also, their presence at the scene was natural — Testimony of related witness could be relied upon

Presence of witnesses at the time of occurrence is beyond question having regard to the fact that all the three of them have sustained injuries by pellets on account of the gunshots fired at them in the course of the very same transaction at the very time and place of occurrence. The fact that they were related to the deceased victim does not detract from the value of their evidence having regard to the fact that their presence at the scene of offence was natural and their presence near the deceased has been established beyond doubt by reason of the fact that they themselves had sustained injuries attributable to firearms at the same time and on the same spot. Therefore, the concurrent findings of the trial court and High Court that the evidence of the three witnesses as regards their presence was reliable must be upheld. Gurnek Singh v. State of Punjab, 1988 Supp SCC 807: 1989 SCC (Cri) 10: AIR 1988 SC 2249.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.P. Thakkar and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1988]

[7623] — Ss. 302/34 — Related witness — Testimony of — Evidentiary value — Wife of the deceased witnessing the accused grappling with, and giving, the deceased axe blows — Held, most natural witness. Baboo v. State of M.P., 1993 Supp (3) SCC 411: 1993 SCC (Cri) 1047: AIR 1994 SC 1712.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision : 23-7-1993]

[7624] — Ss. 302/34 — Testimony of sole eyewitness, the father of the deceased — Witness stating that he had given two reports, one at police station and other after the Thanedar came to the place of occurrence — Earlier report not brought on record nor any explanation offered for the same — No plausible explanation offered as to how the dead body was brought from the place of occurrence near the well to the babool tree near the school where post-mortem examination was conducted — Witness making several omissions and contradictions from his earliest version under S. 161 CrPC — Held, in the circumstances of the case, prosecution failed to prove charge of murder beyond reasonable doubt. Mohan Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (1999) 9 SCC 209: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1144: AIR 2000 SC 3441.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik and N. Santosh Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-4-1999]

[7625] — Ss. 302/34, 120-B, 147 and 148 — Murder of M — Sole eyewitness PW 3 (an independent witness) who was close to M — Testimony of — Reliability — Just being close to the deceased, held, said witness in the ordinary circumstances would not depose falsely against the accused — Further, he consistently deposed during the trial what he stated in FIR — Defence contending that PW 3 deposed that G and B fired at M, whereas medical evidence indicating only one gunshot injury — Statement-in-chief of PW 3 showing that out of the two shots fired, only one hit the deceased — Two empty cartridges seized by IO corroborating the testimony of PW 3 that two shots were fired — In the circumstances of the case, discrepancy appearing in statement-in-chief and cross-examination of PW 3 regarding the number of shots hitting M, held, was too tenuous a ground to reject or even doubt otherwise the credibility and truthful testimony of PW 3 — Place of occurrence established — Delay in lodging FIR, held on facts, inconsequential — Conviction of A-1, A-5, A-6 and A-7 upheld — But A-2, A-3 and A-4 acquitted as prosecution failed to prove its case against them beyond reasonable doubts (Paras 3 and 8 to 13). Gaya Yadav v. State of Bihar, (2003) 9 SCC 122: AIR 2003 SC 1759: 2003 Cri LJ 1564.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-2-2003]

[7626] — Ss. 302/34 and 201 — Testimony of related witness — Reliability — Evidence of a such witness cannot be rejected merely because he is a close relative of the victim — Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is raised — Then in such case, court has to adopt a careful approach while analysing the evidence

Relationship is not a factor to affect the credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible. (Para 13)

Hence, the ground that the witness being a close relative and consequently, being a partisan witness, should not be relied upon, has no substance. (Para 16). Sucha Singh v. State of Punjab, (2003) 7 SCC 643: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1697: AIR 2003 SC 3617: 2003 Cri LJ 3876.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-2003]

38.(o) Related witness (contd.)

Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1953 SC 364: 1953 Cri LJ 1465; Guli Chand v. State of Rajasthan, (1974) 3 SCC 698: 1974 SCC (Cri) 222; Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614: 1957 Cri LJ 1000; Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 226; State of Punjab v. Jagir Singh, (1974) 3 SCC 277: 1973 SCC (Cri) 886; Lehna v. State of Haryana, (2002) 3 SCC 76: 2002 SCC (Cri) 526; State of Rajasthan v. Teja Ram, (1999) 3 SCC 507: 1999 SCC (Cri) 436, relied on

[7627] — Ss. 302/149 — Murder — Reliability of related/injured witness — Close relatives and injured witnesses would definitely not shield real culprits of crime, and name somebody else because of enmity

Undoubtedly, all the eyewitnesses including the injured witnesses are closely related to the deceased. Thus, in such a fact situation, the law requires the court to examine their evidence with care and caution. Such close relatives and injured witnesses would definitely not shield the real culprits of the crime, and name somebody else because of enmity. The defence did not ask the injured witnesses as to how they received the injuries mentioned in the medical reports. (Para 41). Ranjit Singh v. State of M.P., (2011) 4 SCC 336.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-10-2010]

Dinesh Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, (2008) 8 SCC 270: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 472; Arjun Mahato v. State of Bihar, (2008) 15 SCC 604: (2010) 4 SCC (Cri) 695; Akhtar v. State of Uttaranchal, (2009) 13 SCC 722: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1223, relied on [7628] — Ss. 302/149 and 323 to 325 — Eyewitnesses — Related eyewitness — Inimical eyewitness — Testimony of, should be scrutinised with great care and caution — Evidentiary value, on facts — Prosecution for causing injuries to two brothers one of whom later dying — Enmity between the deceased and one of the three eyewitnesses on one hand and the accused on the other, the other two eyewitnesses being the injured brother and the son of the deceased — FIR found fabricated and all the three witnesses making identical statements suffering from the same contradictions and omissions — In such circumstances, evidence of the said eyewitnesses, held, unreliable. Dharam Singh v. State of Punjab, 1993 Supp (3) SCC 532: 1993 SCC (Cri) 1059: AIR 1993 SC 319: 1993 Cri LJ 150.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision : 22-10-1992]

[7629] — Ss. 302/149/34, 324 and 326 — Related witness — Murder and hurt — Injured daughter of the deceased present on the scene naming all the seven accused but attributing specific acts to only three, while the presence of the fourth one admitted by all prosecution witnesses — Participation of the accused in crime as well as manner of assault and nature of weapons corroborated by medical evidence and recovery of blood-stained clothes and earth — FIR lodged promptly — Rest three of the accused although known to prosecution witnesses not identified by them — Parties on inimical terms — Mukhiya (one of the PWs) hostile to the accused, all the accused closely related to each other and the prosecution witnesses also related to each other — In such circumstances, the first mentioned four persons, held, guilty and the rest three granted benefit of doubt. Kapildeo Singh v. State of Bihar, 1993 Supp (3) SCC 372: 1993 SCC (Cri) 1034.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dr. A.S. Anand and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision : 7-4-1993]

[7630] — S. 304 Pt. II — Related witnesses — Testimony — Conviction — Sustainability — Submission that evidence of PWs 1, 2 and 5 should not be accepted as they were related to deceased — Held, relationship of PWs to deceased is of no consequence — Besides, PWs 6 and 10 were independent witnesses and there was no reason for them to falsely implicate the appellant — Evidence on record clearly showing that appellant was the author of crime — No infirmity in impugned order convicting appellant under S. 304 Pt. II discernible — Case law discussed (Paras 6 to 8). Thukaram v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 15 SCC 493.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-2008]

Babulal Bhagwan Khandare v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 10 SCC 404: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1553; Salim Sahab v. State of M.P., (2007) 1 SCC 699: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 425, relied on [7631] — Ss. 304 Pt. II and 302 — Evidence of real brother against the accused, held, reliable — Albeit on facts, held, S. 304 Pt. II attracted and not S. 302. State of U.P. v. Hari Om, (1998) 9 SCC 63: 1998 SCC (Cri) 979.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-1997]

(p) Rustic/Village/Rural witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(zi) Rustic/village/rural witness', pp. 480 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7632] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Rustic woman witness of ghastly murder — Her agitated mental state should be kept in mind — Inconsequential and immaterial mistakes in identi- fication of any PW or as to who chased the accused would only show that she was not a tutored witness. State of T.N. v. Karuppusamy, 1993 Supp (1) SCC 78: 1993 SCC (Cri) 123.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi and S. Mohan, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-1992]

(q) Sole/Solitary witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(zm) Sole/Solitary witness', pp. 487 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7633] — S. 302 — Causing head injuries resulting in death — Prosecution case based on testimony of sole eyewitness closely related to deceased — According to his testimony while one accused assaulted the deceased on head with crowbar two other accused also assaulted him with their respective weapons (crooked dao and kupi dao) — Deceased sustaining only two head injuries of almost same dimension — Held on facts, possibility of only one accused causing the head injuries with crowbar cannot be ruled out and therefore his conviction under S. 302 confirmed — But having regard to unnatural conduct of the sole eyewitness and infirmities in his evidence in respect of other two accused, it would be unsafe to rely upon his testimony without seeking independent corroboration and corroboration furnished by prosecution being negative in character, the two accused entitled to benefit of doubt. Anil Phukan v. State of Assam, (1993) 3 SCC 282: 1993 SCC (Cri) 810: AIR 1993 SC 1462: 1993 Cri LJ 1796: 1993 (2) ALT (Cri) 54: (1993) 1 Crimes 1180.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-1993]

[7634] — S. 302 — Conviction based on testimony of sole eyewitness — Rule of caution explained — Minor discrepancies not fatal — On facts, testimony corroborated and no reason for false implication shown — Conviction upheld

Where the prosecution rests on the sole testimony of an eyewitness, the same should be wholly reliable. However, that does not mean that each and every type of infirmity or minor discrepancies would render the evidence of such witness unreliable. (Para 2)

On facts, even after carefully going through the evidence no serious infirmity is seen on the basis of which the testimony of the sole eyewitness could be rejected outright. Her testimony is amply corroborated. No reason for false implication is shown. (Paras 2 and 3). Jayaram Shiva Tagore v. State of Maharashtra, 1991 Supp (2) SCC 677: AIR 1991 SC 1735: 1991 Cri LJ 2192.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision : 7-12-1990]

[7635] — S. 302 — Conviction on evidence of solitary witness — Evidence to be weighed not counted

Court may convict if the evidence is wholly reliable. Court need not insist upon plurality of witnesses for, conviction for murder depends on the facts and circumstances of the case. The following propositions may be safely stated as firmly established:

(1) As a general rule, a court can and may act on the testimony of a single witness though uncorroborated. One credible witness outweighs the testimony of a number of other witnesses of indifferent character.

(2) Unless corroboration is insisted upon by statute, courts should not insist on corroboration except in cases where the nature of the testimony of the single witness itself requires as a rule of prudence, that corroboration should be insisted upon, for example in the case of child witness, or of a witness whose evidence is that of an accomplice or of an analogous character.

(3) Whether corroboration of the testimony of a single witness is or is not necessary, must depend upon facts and circumstances of each case and no general rule can be laid down in a matter like this and much depends upon the judicial discretion of the Judge before whom the case comes.

The matter thus must depend upon the circumstances of each case and the quality of the evidence of the single witness whose testimony has to be either accepted or rejected. If such a testimony is found by the court to be entirely reliable, there is no legal impediment to the conviction of the accused person on such proof. Even as the guilt of an accused person may be proved by the testimony of a single witness, the innocence of an accused person may be established on the testimony of a single witness, even though a considerable number of witnesses may be forthcoming to testify to the truth of the case for the prosecution. Hence, it is a sound and well-established rule of law that the court is concerned with the quality and not with the quantity of the evidence necessary for proving or disproving a fact. Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614: 1957 SCR 981: 1957 Cri LJ 1000, 1005.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas, B.P. Sinha and P.B. Gajendragadkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-4-1957]

Mohd. Sugal Esa v. The King, AIR 1946 PC 3: 222 IC 304 (PC) and Vemireddy Satyanarayan Reddy v. State of Hyderabad, 1956 SCR 247: AIR 1956 SC 379: 1956 Cri LJ 777, distinguished

Followed in AIR 1962 SC 424: 1962 (1) Cri LJ 473

Held, not applicable on facts in (1974) 3 SCC 397: 1973 SCC (Cri) 962

38.(q) Sole/Solitary witness (contd.)

[7636] — S. 302 — Conviction under, on the basis of testimony of an eyewitness — Attack on deceased witnessed by an uninterested and independent witness, apart from others — Kirpan snatched from accused by that witness but while accused escaping, accused's turban remaining in his hand — FIR naming the accused and describing the incident lodged by him within 15 minutes and kirpan and turban deposited in police station — His testimony not shaken in cross-examination — Accused being known to him question of identification of no consequence — Held, his testimony cannot be discarded on the ground that he being an old and weak person could not have apprehended the armed accused — Conviction under S. 302 can be founded on the testimony of such witness alone. Narendra Singh v. State of U.P., (1987) 2 SCC 236: 1987 SCC (Cri) 350: AIR 1987 SC 1337: 1987 Cri LJ 1070.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : V. Khalid and G.L. Oza, JJ. [Date of decision : 10-3-1987]

[7637] — S. 302 — Murder — Omission of vital details in FIR — Effect — Deceased allegedly assaulted and pushed into a dry well — First informant, although real brother of the deceased and claiming to be sole eyewitness, not mentioning in the FIR the manner of assault or the occurrence relating to pushing into the well — In such circumstances, his evidence as eyewitness, held, unreliable — More so, when according to other prosecution witnesses he had enquired from the deceased as to how he had fallen in the well — He was falsely introduced as an ocular witness. Govind Narain v. State of Rajasthan, 1993 Supp (3) SCC 343: 1993 SCC (Cri) 1012: AIR 1993 SC 2457: 1993 Cri LJ 2598.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dr. A.S. Anand and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision : 31-3-1993]

[7638] — S. 302 — Murder by knocking down the deceased by car — Motive and genesis of occurrence admitted by defence — Injuries sustained by the deceased consistent only with prosecution case — Evidence of sole eyewitness found to be straightforward giving every detail of the incident — His testimony fully corroborated by damaged car found in the premises of the accused with missing plastic strip 'Maruti 800' which was found on the spot — Held, prosecution has proved its case beyond all reasonable doubt — Reversal of acquittal by High Court not justified. State of Haryana v. Manoj Kumar, (1994) 1 SCC 495: 1994 SCC (Cri) 93: AIR 1994 SC 147: (1994) 1 Crimes 102: (1994) 31 ACC 34.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Ramaswamy and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-11-1993]

[7639] — S. 302 — Murder of S — Sole eyewitness PW 1 (wife of S) — Conviction of A-1 (father of S) and A-2 (brother of S) on the basis of testimony of PW 1 — Acquittal by High Court — Propriety of — Doubt whether PW 1 witnessed the actual attack or she acted on suspicion, maybe strong suspicion, about the involvement of A-1 and A-2 — Her testimony quite artificial and highly improbable — Further, her conduct in implicating all the family members (A-1 to A-5) en bloc excepting the mother of S who was mentally unsound, held on facts, indicated her vindictiveness and tendency to implicate innocent persons as well — Thus, it was not safe to convict A-1 and A-2 on the basis of testimony of PW 1 — Acquittal upheld (Para 17). State of Orissa v. Babaji Charan Mohanty, (2003) 10 SCC 57: AIR 2003 SC 3926: 2003 Cri LJ 3744.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu and P. Venkatarama Reddi, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-2003]

[7640] — S. 302 — Murder of a child to appease deities — Prosecution case based on the sole testimony of an employee of one of the accused (A-1), according to whom he was the mute spectator of the entire incident — However, evidence showing that he was deputed by the accused to watch and inform the accused if anybody comes there while the accused persons were engaged in killing the boy — According to him, he did so out of fear and also because of his being an employee — He did not narrate the incident to anyone for 19 days even when he was away to his village — Without going into question whether he was an accomplice and as such his evidence could not be relied upon to convict the accused, held, on facts and in the circumstances of the case, it would be unsafe to convict the accused, other than the main accused A-3, on the sole testimony of that witness which remained uncorroborated on any of the material aspects — Therefore, such accused persons (A-1, A-2 and A-4) would be entitled to benefit of doubt. Kalpana Mazumdar v. State of Orissa, (2002) 6 SCC 536: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1417: AIR 2002 SC 2826.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.P. Mohapatra and Y.K. Sabharwal, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-7-2002]

[7641] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Evidence of solitary and related witness — Conviction on the basis of — Sustainability — Need for corroboration of — Respondent alleged to have murdered his wife due to old quarrel — Evidence of PW 1 (younger brother of deceased) not shaken in spite of incisive cross-examination — Ground on which High Court had discarded his evidence was that he had graphically described his movements with the accused and the deceased and/or inference that photogenic memory was necessary, held, erroneous — Improvements in his evidence found inconsequential — Irrelevant details which do not in any way corrode the credibility of a witness cannot be levelled as omissions or contradictions — Moreover, unnatural conduct of respondent in not lodging the report, if he subsequently entered the house where his wife (deceased) breathed her last, was unnatural, strengthening the prosecution version — Acquittal recorded by High Court set aside and conviction under S. 302 and sentence of life imprisonment imposed by trial court restored (Paras 2, 11, 12, 13 and 14). State of Rajasthan v. Om Prakash, (2007) 12 SCC 381: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 411: AIR 2007 SC 2257: (2007) 55 AIC 9 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dr. Arijit Pasayat and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision : 13-6-2007]

[7642] — S. 302 — Murder Trial — Sole witness — Conviction based on testimony of single witness upheld where it was straightforward, cogent, enough to prove the prosecution case and stood corroborated by medical evidence — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 134

There is no rule of law that the testimony of a single witness cannot be accepted and the conviction cannot be based on such evidence, if believed. The testimony of a single witness if it is straightforward, cogent and if believed is sufficient to prove the prosecution case, the conviction can be made on the testimony of such a single witness.

On facts, the testimony of the sole witness was cogent and trustworthy and stood corroborated by medical evidence. Vahula Bhushan v. State of T.N., 1989 Supp (1) SCC 232: 1989 SCC (Cri) 353: AIR 1989 SC 236: 1989 Cri LJ 799.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.C. Ray and N.D. Ojha, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1988]

Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614: 1957 SCR 981: 1957 Cri LJ 1000, followed [7643] — S. 302 — Murder trial — Solitary related witness — Testimony — Conviction on the basis of — Sustainability — Appellant-accused A-1 to A-4 armed with choppers alleged to have chased the deceased and hacked him to death at the very place of occurrence — Incident witnessed by PW 1 (elder brother of deceased), PW 2 and PW 3 — Some of the witnesses resiling from their earlier statements and appellants convicted on sole testimony of PW 1, which was found to the cogent and credible by trial court, as well as High Court — Submission that conviction should not be based on sole testimony of interested/partisan witness — Based on well-settled principle that there was no legal impediment in convicting a person on sole testimony of a solitary witness, provided he is wholly reliable, held, no interference with impugned judgment called for — Moreover, in the instant case, various recoveries were made on basis of confessional statement of A-1 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 134 (Paras 15 and 19 to 21). Ravi v. State, (2008) 15 SCC 115: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 736: AIR 2009 SC 214: (2009) 1 ECrN 464 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-9-2008]

Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614: 1957 SCR 981; Joseph v. State of Kerala, (2003) 1 SCC 465: 2003 SCC (Cri) 356; Yakub Ismailbhai Patel v. State of Gujarat, (2004) 12 SCC 229: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 196; Bhimapa Chandappa Hosamani v. State of Karnataka, (2006) 11 SCC 323: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 456; Kunju v. State of T.N., (2008) 2 SCC 151: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 331, relied on [7644] — S. 302 — On facts, testimony of sole eyewitness not reliable — Conviction set aside — No law point laid down. Jaising Waman Patil v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1994 SC 1683.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-8-1992]

[7645] — S. 302 — Proof against accused — Solitary eyewitness, closely related to deceased, produced by prosecution — His acquaintance with accused not established — His testimony not corroborated — Held on facts, prosecution failed to establish link between the incident and the accused — Hence conviction under S. 302 cannot be sustained — High Court justified in acquitting accused. State of U.P. v. Satish Chandra, 1985 Supp SCC 596: 1985 SCC (Cri) 508: AIR 1986 SC 313.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : A.N. Sen and Ranganath Misra, JJ. [Date of decision : 25-9-1985]

[7646] — S. 302 — Prosecution case based on evidence of solitary eyewitness — Evidence must be wholly reliable so as to record conviction on that basis — Though the witness was an injured witness and his presence at the time and place of occurrence may not be doubtful but his evidence found to be in conflict with other evidence — Held on facts, it would be unsafe to convict the accused-appellant solely on the basis of such witness — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 134

When there is a sole witness to the incident his evidence has to be accepted with an amount of caution and after testing it on the touchstone of the evidence tendered by other witnesses or evidence as recorded. Section 134 of the Indian Evidence Act provides that no particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact and, therefore, it is permissible for a court to record and sustain a conviction on the evidence of a solitary eyewitness. But, at the same time, such a course can be adopted only if the evidence tendered by such witness is cogent, reliable and in tune with probabilities and inspires implicit confidence. By this standard, when the prosecution case rests mainly on the sole testimony of an eyewitness, it should be wholly reliable. Even though such witness is an injured witness and his presence may not be seriously doubted, when his evidence is in conflict with other evidence, the view taken by the trial court that it would be unsafe to convict the accused on his sole testimony cannot be stated to be unreasonable. Particularly, when the trial court had given cogent reasons to acquit the accused, the High Court ought not to have interfered with the same merely because another opinion is possible and not that the finding concluded by the trial court was impossible. The High Court did not follow the aforesaid standard but went on to analyse evidence as if the material before them was given for the first time and not in appeal. (Paras 12 and 13). Joseph v. State of Kerala, (2003) 1 SCC 465: AIR 2003 SC 507.

38.(q) Sole/Solitary witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu and Arun Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-2002]

[7647] — S. 302 — Prosecution case based on sole testimony of brother of the deceased — Absence of his name from rukka sent by the doctor to the police station immediately after arrival of dead body in the hospital creating doubt about his presence at the scene of occurrence — Identification of the deceased by him the next day cannot cure the defect — Delay in sending special report to the Magistrate — Stomach and bladder of the deceased found empty suggesting, though not conclusively, that contrary to the prosecution case the deceased had answered the call of nature before he was shot at — Non-examination of other eyewitnesses who had removed the deceased to the hospital — Failure to send empty cartridges recovered from the spot and pistol and cartridges seized from the accused to the ballistic expert — Held in the circumstances of the case, conviction of the appellant not sustainable (Paras 5, 6 and 21). Sukhwant Singh v. State of Punjab, (1995) 3 SCC 367: 1995 SCC (Cri) 524: AIR 1995 SC 1601: (1995) 2 An LT(Cri) 201.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-1995]

[7648] — S. 302 — Single witness — Conviction based on testimony of, others having resiled — The single witness, mother of deceased knowing the accused well — Accused armed with dangerous weapons like knife, sword, etc. alleged to have chased the deceased and indiscriminately attacked him resulting in his instantaneous death — High Court finding evidence of PW 1 sufficient to convict the accused even though PWs 2 to 8 resiled from their statements — Hence, submission that since almost all the eyewitnesses had not supported the prosecution case, conviction should not have been recorded — PW 1 (mother of deceased) stating that in the previous night of occurrence accused had come and threatened to kill the deceased, and the next day when again they had come armed variously she told the deceased to run away and hide — But, he was chased and assaulted while she and PW 2 (her daughter-in-law) followed — Her testimony corroborating the complaint filed and thus strengthening prosecution version — Hence held, her evidence was found to be trustworthy and reliable and rightly acted upon — Further argument of the accused that in the murder case of her other son, since the accused though implicated had been set free PW 1 implicated the accused falsely in the present case also, rejected — PW 1 knew the accused from their childhood and due to the enmity they killed her sons within a span of 5-6 months — It was not a case of false implication (Paras 8 to 13). Mani v. State, (2009) 12 SCC 288: 2009 Cri LJ 2268.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-2-2009]

Syed Ibrahim v. State of A.P., (2006) 10 SCC 601: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 34, relied on [7649] — S. 302 — Sole and related witness — Son of deceased — Conviction can be founded on the only testimony of, if otherwise found to be reliable and free from infirmity — Held on facts, there was no reason to refuse to act upon testimony of the sole prosecution witness merely on the ground that he was the son of the deceased when his testimony was otherwise reliable and acceptable . Brijbasilal v. State of M.P., 1991 Supp (1) SCC 200: 1991 SCC (Cri) 546.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian, M. Fathima Beevi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-11-1990]

[7650] — S. 302 — Sole eyewitness — Reliance on for conviction — Held, court can act solely on evidence of reliable single witness to record conviction — If evidence of single witness is doubtful, then same has to be corroborated by other evidence — It is not quantity, but quality of evidence that is material — On the other hand, if testimony of several witnesses is not reliable, then accused may be acquitted — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 134 (Paras 31 to 33). Bipin Kumar Mondal v. State of W.B., (2010) 12 SCC 91: AIR 2010 SC 3638: 2010 Cri LJ 3880.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-7-2010]

Sunil Kumar v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2003) 11 SCC 367: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1055, followed

Namdeo v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 14 SCC 150: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 773; Kunju v. State of T.N., (2008) 2 SCC 151: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 331; Jagdish Prasad v. State of M.P., 1995 SCC (Cri) 160; Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614: 1957 Cri LJ 1000, relied on [7651] — S. 302 — Sole eyewitness not claiming to have seen the entire attack but categorically deposing about having seen the initial attack by appellant and co-accused with sharp-edged weapons on deceased's neck — Thereafter he running away to save his own life — He was not inimical to accused and there was no reason to implicate appellant falsely — Held, factum of his friendship with deceased would not reduce him to the position of being an interested witness — His act of running away to save his own life instead of going forward to save deceased from the attack by accused persons who were armed with deadly weapons was a most probable and natural human conduct and cannot be a circumstance or a ground to disbelieve his testimony particularly when rest of his testimony was tested with cross-examination (Paras 34 to 36). Yakub Ismailbhai Patel v. State of Gujarat, (2004) 12 SCC 229: AIR 2004 SC 4209: 2004 Cri LJ 4205.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-8-2004]

[7652] — S. 302 — Sole prosecution witness — Gunshot firing — On hearing the gunshot, witness turning to that side and noticing the deceased collapsing and accused appellant standing with the rifle — On being chased accused escaping and absconding for few days — Circumstances under which complaint lodged by the witness, narration of events and conduct of the appellant considered together revealing truthfulness of evidence of the sole witness and falsity of explanation given by appellant — Broad facts deposed by the witness convincing though there may be variations regarding postures of the victim, position of the appellant and even place where the witness was at the time of occurrence — Medical evidence not in conflict with testimony of the witness — Having regard to the entire evidence, held, prosecution case true and the charge of murder against the appellant proved to the hilt by circumstances established in the case — Hence trial court erred in acquitting the appellant of charge of murder and High Court in appeal justified in interfering with the acquittal — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. Ram Kumar v. State of U.P., 1992 Supp (1) SCC 438(II): 1992 SCC (Cri) 297: AIR 1992 SC 1602: 1992 ALJ 629: 1992 Cri LJ 2421.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-12-1991]

[7653] — S. 302 — Sole related eyewitness in a murder trial — Acceptability of — Level of scrutiny — Evidence of, should be more carefully scrutinised by court and if on such scrutiny his evidence is found reliable, same cannot be discarded merely because of his relationship with the deceased — Further, mere non-production of an independent witness mentioned in the FIR by prosecution cannot be a circumstance to discredit the evidence of the related and interested witness — Quality and not quantity of the witness is important — Where testimony of the related sole eyewitness (PW 2) was corroborated by medical evidence and trial court as well as High Court found his evidence reliable and Supreme Court also found no discernible discrepancy in his evidence, held, conviction of accused rightly recorded under S. 302 IPC

The evidence of witness cannot be discarded merely on the ground that he is a related witness or the sole witness, or both, if otherwise the same is found credible. The witness could be a relative but that does not mean his statement should be rejected in totality. In such a case, it is the paramount duty of the court to be more careful in the matter of scrutiny of evidence of the interested witness, and if, on such scrutiny it is found that the evidence on record of such interested sole witness is worth credence, the same would not be discarded merely on the ground that the witness is an interested witness. Caution is to be applied by the court while scrutinising the evidence of the interested sole witness. The prosecution's non-production of one independent witness who had been named in the FIR by itself cannot be taken to be a circumstance to discredit the evidence of the interested witness and disbelieve the prosecution case. It is well settled that it is the quality of the evidence and not the quantity of the evidence which is required to be judged by the court to place credence on the statement. In this case, on scrutiny of the evidence of PW 2 and the medical evidence, it must be held that medical evidence corroborates the statement of eyewitness, PW 2. Both, the Sessions Court and the High Court, after scrutiny of the evidence of PW 2 have relied upon the statement and there is no discernible discrepancy in the evidence of PW 2 not to place reliance on his evidence. (Paras 4 and 6). Seeman v. State, (2005) 11 SCC 142: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1893: AIR 2005 SC 2503: 2005 Cri LJ 2618.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-5-2005]

38.(q) Sole/Solitary witness (contd.)

[7654] — S. 302 — Sole testimony of son of the deceased aged 16 years found reliable — Minor contradictions regarding number of blows inflicted and which side of pharsa used immaterial — Medical evidence not in entire conflict with the ocular version — Mere fact that the witness was taken by the police to be produced as a witness, is not a ground to come to the conclusion that he was tutored — Held, in the circumstances, High Court was justified in reversing the acquittal. Mangoo v. State of M.P., AIR 1995 SC 959: 1995 Cri LJ 1461.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1995]

[7655] — S. 302 — Solitary eyewitness (PW 3) — Unnatural conduct of — Conviction based solely upon the testimony of PW 3, if on facts sustainable — Accused residing near the houses of PW 3 and deceased — Occurrence taking place during night just outside the house of accused — PW 3 stating that he saw the occurrence while he was proceeding towards his house — Not clear from the record as to when exactly the occurrence took place — No electric light — Absence of sufficient light at the time of occurrence to enable the witness to identify the accused — Name of PW 3 not mentioned as eyewitness in FIR — Although several persons came to the place where the deceased was lying, PW 3 did not disclose to them about his having seen the occurrence — PW 3 disclosing the fact of his being an eyewitness to IO on the next day of the incident — Doubt about PW 3 witnessing the incident — No convincing explanation for the delay in arresting the accused — On facts, held, it was unsafe to sustain the conviction of the accused-appellant on the sole testimony of PW 3

Further, the conduct of PW 3 appears to be rather unnatural. He did not talk about the incident to anyone after the occurrence, and for the first time on the next day at about 4.00 p.m. he disclosed the fact of his being an eyewitness to the investigating officer. His keeping silent for such a long period and not disclosing the fact that he was an eyewitness to the brothers of the deceased and others, who had come to the place where the deceased was lying injured just next to his house, creates a serious doubt about this witness being an eyewitness. No doubt, PW 3 stated that when the brothers of the deceased had come he had told one of the brothers, namely, B, that he had seen the occurrence. He further asserted that when he told the said fact to B, PW 1 was also present. PW 1 does not say that PW 3 had disclosed the name of the assailant to him or to any other person. What is of considerable significance is the fact that in the FIR lodged by PW 1, the name of PW 3 is not mentioned as an eyewitness, nor is it stated that he had disclosed that he had seen the occurrence. (Para 16)

It is unsafe to sustain the conviction of the appellant on the sole testimony of PW 3. (Para 19). Joseph v. State of Kerala, (2003) 11 SCC 223: 2004 SCC (Cri) 93: 2003 Cri LJ 2543: (2003) 2 KLT 756.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-2003]

[7656] — S. 302 — Solitary witness — Conviction based solely on testimony of — Held, maintainable — If the evidence is unblemished and beyond all possible criticism and the court is satisfied that the witness was speaking the truth then on his evidence alone conviction can be maintained — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 134 (Para 10). Ramesh Krishna Madhusudan Nayar v. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 14 SCC 491: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 759: AIR 2008 SC 927: (2008) 62 AIC 25 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 1023.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-2008]

Sridhar Bhuyan v. State of Orissa, (2004) 11 SCC 395: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 98; Parkash Chand v. State of H.P., (2004) 11 SCC 381: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 87; Sachchey Lal Tiwari v. State of U.P., (2004) 11 SCC 410: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 105; Sandhya Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 4 SCC 653: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 394; Lachman Singh v. State of Haryana, (2006) 10 SCC 524: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 123, relied on [7657] — S. 302 — Statement of a single eyewitness brought in evidence under S. 288, CrPC — Witness close relation of the accused — Accused charged for murdering his wife — Accused not questioning anyone about murder but attempting to commit suicide — Conduct indicating a feeling of remorse — Statement under S. 288, CrPC coupled with the circumstances conclusively proved charge of murder. Periyasami v. State of Madras, AIR 1967 SC 1027: (1967) 2 SCR 122: 1967 Cri LJ 975, 977.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : M. Hidayatullah and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision : 25-11-1966]

[7658] — S. 302 — Testimony of sole eye witness found wholly unreliable, his conduct being highly unnatural and suspicious — His testimony also contradicted by medical evidence — Testimony of other witnesses insufficient to bring home the guilt of the accused — Apart from such direct evidence the only incriminating circumstance was that deceased was last seen in the company of the accused — Held, accused's conviction under S. 302 cannot be sustained on the basis of such circumstance alone. Madhumoy Madhusudan Boul v. State of W.B., 1992 Supp (2) SCC 247: 1992 SCC (Cri) 909.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision : 12-9-1991]

[7659] — S. 302 — Wife of deceased sole witness of murderous assault on her husband — Non-disclosure of name of assailant by wife to all present and to police is a highly unnatural conduct — Even her statement recorded by police later on entirely different from that stated at the trial — Held, prosecution failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt the case against the accused-appellant on the basis of sole testimony of the deceased's wife — Hence accused entitled to benefit of doubt. Shivaji Dayanu Patil v. State of Maharashtra, 1989 Supp (1) SCC 758: 1989 SCC (Cri) 621: AIR 1989 SC 1762.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Natarajan and Kuldip Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-7-1989]

[7660] — S. 302 — Witnesses — Sole eyewitness — Testimony of — Reliability of evidence of — PW 3's name did not figure in the FIR — His testimony assailed on that ground and the fact that he being a student aged 15 years was taking an examination on the day of the incident — Held, explanation offered by witnesses for non-mention of PW 3's name plausible — Plea that his testimony doubtful lacks substance — Further held, evidence of PW 3 comes out unscathed in the acid test of credibility and reliability — His alleged appearance at the examination hall factually negated by the trial court and the High Court — Conviction upheld (Paras 7 and 8). Chittar Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2003) 6 SCC 397: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1377: AIR 2003 SC 3590: 2003 Cri LJ 3548.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-7-2003]

Shri Bhagwan v. State of Rajasthan, (2001) 6 SCC 296: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1095, relied on

[Ed.: See in this context State of U.P. v. Lalla Singh, (1978) 1 SCC 142: 1978 SCC (Cri) 70; Babu Singh v. State of Punjab, (1996) 8 SCC 699.]

[7661] — S. 302 and S. 149 — Murder trial — Inimical witness — Testimony of — Reliability — Solitary eyewitness to the occurrence — 11 persons belonging to Khati community variously armed alleged to have assaulted the deceased and complainant resulting in death of the deceased — Long-standing enmity between complainant and his family members on one side and persons of Khati community on the other established — Complainant able to get only a momentary glimpse of the accused in scooter light — Active participation of only four accused established through testimony of the complainant — Specific roles assigned to them by him and injuries sustained by him and the deceased could have been caused by the weapons with which the aforesaid four accused were alleged to have been armed — Held, in such circumstances, conviction of only these accused can be maintained — Further clarified that though the prosecution case is not doubted in its entirety but benefit of doubt is given to the remaining accused by way of abundant caution — Benefit of judgment also given to the non-appealing accused since no specific role had been attributed to him (Paras 7 to 11). Dev Narayan v. State of M.P., (2006) 13 SCC 187: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 672: (2006) 47 AIC 19 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram : G.P. Mathur and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision : 11-10-2006]

[7662] — Ss. 302 and 149 — Sole and interested witness — Testimony of, must be wholly reliable — Conduct of the witness found to be highly unnatural and testimony in conflict with medical evidence — On this kind of evidence it is highly dangerous to convict as many as nine persons when there were strong circumstances showing that many of them would not have participated in the incident — Hence conviction and sentence set aside. Mangilal v. State of M.P., 1990 Supp SCC 529: 1991 SCC (Cri) 134.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1990]

[7663] — S. 302 and Ss. 302/149 — Murder trial — Solitary eyewitness — Unnatural conduct of — Effect — High Court finding that the sole eyewitness had not offered any basis for his presence in the alleged occurrence; nor did he disclose about the incident for about 10 days and suddenly according to him, his conscious pricked him and he came forward to speak about the incident to the police; his silence was most unusual because he was closely related to the deceased — Furthermore, the explanation offered that suddenly he became conscious of his constitutional duties to see that guilty persons get punishment, was hardly believable — His evidence about the manner of assault attributed to the various accused persons was too hollow to have any credence — It was quite unnatural that the manner in which the assaults were made could be stated with such precision when the accused persons were many as was the number of injuries — Held, in such circumstances, no interference with the order of acquittal so far as the offences relatable to S. 302 or Ss. 302/149 IPC are concerned, called for (Paras 1, 3, 8 and 9). State of Punjab v. Rajinder Singh, (2008) 17 SCC 68.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-11-2008]

38.(q) Sole/Solitary witness (contd.)

[7664] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Merciless assault — R and B succumbed to their injuries whereas PW 1 suffered as many as 24 injuries — Conviction of appellants under Ss. 302 and 307 whereas acquittal of all the other accused persons — Propriety of — Testimony of the eyewitnesses disbelieved due to considerable inconsistency in their evidence — Participation of appellants in the commission of the crime established by the evidence of PW 1 — Held, High Court rightly found the appellants guilty on the basis of the evidence of PW 1 ignoring that part of his evidence which appeared to be in the nature of embellishment — But on facts, conviction of the appellants under S. 302 IPC altered to that under Ss. 302/34 IPC

The High Court rightly disbelieved the evidence of the witnesses and came to the conclusion that they had not witnessed the occurrence. The High Court, however, found that so far as PW 1 was concerned, his presence at the place of occurrence could not be disputed. He was subjected to merciless assault and had suffered as many as 24 injuries. Both the courts have concurrently found PW 1 to be a reliable witness and even though he sought to make an improvement in the course of his deposition by naming the other accused persons, for that reason his entire evidence cannot be rejected. The High Court has rightly ignored that part of his evidence which appears to be in the nature of embellishment. (Paras 7, 8 and 10)

However, considering the facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellants under Section 302 IPC is altered to that under Section 302 r/w Section 34 IPC. Chittarmal v. State of Rajasthan, (2003) 2 SCC 266: 2003 SCC (Cri) 514: AIR 2003 SC 796: 2003 Cri LJ 889.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-2003]

[7665] — Ss. 302 and 307 — Writ petition by a third party challenging conviction and sentences awarded to certain convicts on ground of violation of their fundamental rights — Petitioner claiming to be a leader of a recognised political party and as such having interest in future of the convicts — Held, petition not maintainable. Simranjit Singh Mann v. Union of India, (1992) 4 SCC 653: 1993 SCC (Cri) 22: AIR 1993 SC 280.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi and K. Ramaswamy, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1992]

[7666] — Ss. 302 and 323 — Sole witness — Conviction can be safely based on reliable evidence of a single witness — Prosecution based on testimony of sole eye witness who sustained injury in the occurrence and the dying declaration recorded by Naib Tehsildar — Presence of the witness at the scene of occurrence cannot be doubted in view of injuries sustained by him — His close relationship with the deceased would also not render his testimony unreliable when both the parties were closely related to each other — Mere mention of presence of accused's brother at the scene of occurrence in the dying declaration would not whittle down its veracity on ground of false implication — Held, prosecution made out the case against accused appellant by leading formidable evidence and High Court rightly relied on eye witness version and dying declaration in reversing acquittal order of trial court — Hence conviction and sentence recorded by High Court confirmed. Sohrabkhan v. State of M.P., 1992 Supp (2) SCC 173: 1992 SCC (Cri) 658.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : S. Ratnavel Pandian and M.M. Punchhi, JJ. [Date of decision : 14-1-1992]

Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614: 1957 SCR 981: 1957 Cri LJ 1000, relied on [7667] — S. 302 r/w S. 34 — Deliberate improvement made by sole eyewitness as regards injuries caused by accused to make his version consistent with medical opinion — His testimony in regard to presence of other witnesses at the scene of occurrence as well as in regard to disposal of the dead body also found to be thoroughly unacceptable — In the circumstances held, it would be unsafe to convict accused-appellant under S. 302/34 by placing implicit reliance on testimony of the only witness in absence of any independent and dependable corroboration — Accordingly a serious doubt arose as regards involvement of the appellant in the crime and hence appellant entitled to benefit of doubt. Mahendra Singh v. State of Rajasthan, 1989 Supp (1) SCC 338: 1989 SCC (Cri) 447: AIR 1989 SC 982: 1989 Cri LJ 886.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : S. Natarajan and A.M. Ahmadi, JJ. [Date of decision : 19-1-1989]

[7668] — S. 302 r/w S. 149 — Murder trial — Solitary witness — Conviction on basis of, upheld — PW 1, sister of the deceased watched the incident from 12 ft distance, accused persons known to her from childhood, described the role of each of accused persons in detail — Her testimony unshaken despite detailed cross-examination — Despite 14 witnesses not supporting the prosecution case, held, testimony of PW 1 could still be relied upon — Accused persons rightly convicted — Order of conviction passed by lower court and confirmed by High Court, upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 134 (Paras 11 to 16)

The appellant faced trial along with 8 others. The appellant was the first accused (A-1). The trial court held that all the accused persons were guilty and they were awarded life sentence in respect of offence punishable under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC.

The trial court after analysing the evidence of PW 1 found her to be a trustworthy witness and relied on her evidence and rejected the plea of the accused persons that the prosecution version cannot be accepted only on the basis of PW 1's evidence. In appeals, the High Court affirmed the conclusions of the guilt and the sentences imposed.

Primarily it was submitted that when there is a solitary witness's evidence it would be unsafe to rest the conviction thereon.

Dismissing the appeal, the Supreme Court held as above. Vitthal Pundalik Zendge v. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 17 SCC 239: AIR 2009 SC 1110.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-2008]

Sunil Kumar v. State Govt. (NCT of Delhi), (2003) 11 SCC 367, applied

Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614; Joseph v. State of Kerala, (2003) 1 SCC 465: 2003 SCC (Cri) 356; Yakub Ismailbhai Patel v. State of Gujarat, (2004) 12 SCC 229: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 196; Bhimapa Chandappa Hosamani v. State of Karnataka, (2006) 11 SCC 323: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 456; Kunju v. State of T.N., (2008) 2 SCC 151: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 331, relied on [7669] — Ss. 302/34 — Conviction under, based on uncorroborated testimony of a single witness — Witness disclosing the incident about 6 months after its occurrence — Before the committing Court, prosecution declaring him hostile and in the Sessions Court he appearing as a court witness — His evidence discrepant and infirm — Held, it is wholly unsafe to found conviction on such a witness. Mahadeo v. State of Maharashtra, (1980) 1 SCC 490: 1980 SCC (Cri) 254: AIR 1980 SC 102.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision : 26-4-1979]

[7670] — Ss. 302/34 — Credibility of witnesses — Murder of three persons — Appellant convicted by courts below under Ss. 302/34 and sentenced to death while co-accused absconded and declared proclaimed offender — Sole eyewitness was a girl aged 7 years injured in the same incident who deposed before the trial court 5 years after the incident — Her evidence regarding involvement of appellant was doubtful in absence of anything to show that she had ever seen or known him prior to the occurrence and in view of unexplained delay of 3 days in examining her under S. 161 CrPC and in view of non-mention by her as to how the third deceased was killed when appellant had no motive to kill him — As regards evidence of father of the child witness, not only most of his statements made in examination-in-chief were not stated when he was examined under S. 161 CrPC, assertions made by him in the course of his deposition were also false, hence his evidence must be discarded — Another PW was declared hostile and though he had lodged FIR but nothing much turned on his evidence as he was not an eyewitness — Though a motorcycle and a wristwatch were seized from the place of occurrence, but no evidence produced to connect appellant with those items — Held, it would be unsafe to convict the appellant on the sole testimony of the child witness — Though the girl might have witnessed the occurrence, she did not know the appellant — CrPC, 1973, S. 161 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 118 (Paras 24 to 29). Jagjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2005) 3 SCC 689: 2005 SCC (Cri) 893: AIR 2005 SC 913: 2005 Cri LJ 955.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-2005]

[7671] — Ss. 302/34 — Held, on facts, High Court rightly not accepted the evidence of the sole eyewitness — No law point laid down. State of Rajasthan v. Bhola Singh, AIR 1994 SC 542.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision : 25-8-1993]

[7672] — Ss. 302/34 — Murder trial — Sole eyewitness — Appreciation of evidence — Concurrent findings upheld and conviction confirmed — Evidence of solitary eyewitness PW 1 (wife of deceased) being corroborated by post-mortem report of PW 6 and evidence of IO (PW 8) and found to be trustworthy and reliable by concurrent findings — PW 1 on receiving information from one U, rushing to spot and witnessing her husband who was tied by rope being dragged and assaulted by the accused persons in the house of A-1 — PW 3 witnessing deceased in serious condition and informing police over telephone — PW 7 a tea shop owner accompanying police to the house of A-1 and witnessing deceased tied with a rope in the verandah of A-1 and confirming seizure of a chain, lathi, dao and rope — PW 8 (IO) immediately reaching spot and taking victim to hospital but victim dying — Not finding any good reasons for interference, concurrent findings upheld. Sambhu Das v. State of Assam, (2010) 10 SCC 374: AIR 2010 SC 3300.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. M.K. Sharma and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-2010]

38.(q) Sole/Solitary witness (contd.)

Dhananjay Shanker Shetty v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 6 SCC 596: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1444; Ravinder Parkash v. State of Haryana, (2002) 8 SCC 426: 2002 SCC (Cri) 74; Bharat v. State of M.P., (2003) 3 SCC 106: 2003 SCC (Cri) 738; Mousam Singha Roy v. State of W.B., (2003) 12 SCC 377: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 429; Ganga Kumar Srivastava v. State of Bihar, (2005) 6 SCC 211: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1424; Basudev Hazra v. Matiar Rahaman Mandal, (1971) 1 SCC 433: 1971 SCC (Cri) 189, relied on [7673] — Ss. 302/34 — Testimony of a solitary witness — Held, can be the basis of conviction but while doing so the court must be satisfied that his testimony is of such sterling quality that the court finds it safe to base a conviction solely on that — Credibility of the witness is to be tested by reference to the quality of his evidence which must be free of any blemish or suspicion, must impress the court as wholly truthful, must appear to be natural and so convincing that the court has no hesitation in recording a conviction solely on that basis — On facts held, evidence of PW 1 (mother of the deceased and an alleged eyewitness) fell short of that quality because (i) she invented a false story about existence of motive; (ii) narration of events as they took place before actual murder also found untrue; (iii) considerable doubt as to whether the FIR was recorded on her saying at 8/8.30 a.m.; and (iv) her evidence creating suspicion as regards her being an eyewitness — Hence, in absence of any reliable corroboration of her testimony, appellants entitled to benefit of doubt (Paras 24, 25 and 26). Bhimapa Chandappa Hosamani v. State of Karnataka, (2006) 11 SCC 323.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Singh and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-9-2006]

Followed in Namdeo v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 14 SCC 150*

[7674] — Ss. 302/34 and 460 — Conviction under the said sections as well as S. 30, Arms Act by courts below — Propriety — Land dispute — Gruesome murder engineered by accused B — S and H (both brothers of B) killed along with their wives and children — Testimony of PW 3 (the brother of the wife of S and the sole eyewitness to the incident) corroborated with material particulars by the proved recovery and seizure memos and the same was found quite natural, trustworthy and wholly reliable — On facts, conviction of appellants upheld. Bachittar Singh v. State of Punjab, (2002) 8 SCC 125: AIR 2002 SC 3473.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-2002]

[7675] — Ss. 302/149 — Political rivalry — Criminal cases between the parties pending — Accused persons variously armed with choppers and knives attacking the deceased and inflicting injuries — FIR lodged by a person who was not an eyewitness — Nine days later police coming to know about the sole eyewitness — Explanation submitted by the said eyewitness for not coming forward as witness for such a long time found to be unacceptable — His evidence suffering from important omissions and material discrepancies — Held, in the circumstances of the case, it is highly unsafe to rely on the sole testimony of such eyewitness to base the conviction. Supramanian v. State of Kerala, (1996) 7 SCC 77: 1996 SCC (Cri) 176.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-1994]

[7676] — Ss. 302/149 and 148 — Appeal before Supreme Court against conviction recorded by trial court and High Court — Concurrent conviction — Murder pursuant to land dispute in village — Genesis of the incident not known — Sole eyewitness, an interested person being brother of the deceased and inimically disposed against accused — His evidence highly exaggerated and not wholly reliable — Investigation defective — Trial court's approach not proper — Held on facts, accused entitled to acquittal

The law of evidence does not require any particular number of witnesses to be examined in proof of a given fact. However, faced with the testimony of a single witness, the court may classify the oral testimony into three categories, namely, (i) wholly reliable, (ii) wholly unreliable, and (iii) neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable. In the first two categories there may be no difficulty in accepting or discarding the testimony of the single witness. The difficulty arises in the third category of cases. The court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, direct or circumstantial, before acting upon the testimony of a single witness. In the present case, it is not possible for the court either to place implicit reliance on or to totally discard the testimony of the deceased's brother (PW 9), who was the sole eyewitness, as it can neither be called wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable.(Paras 10 and 11)

All these aspects of the case, specially the infirmities in the prosecution evidence and the investigation, have not received the attention of the trial court as also the High Court. On the state of evidence available the accused persons could not have been held guilty of the offences charged. (Para 15). Lallu Manjhi v. State of Jharkhand, (2003) 2 SCC 401: 2003 SCC (Cri) 544: AIR 2003 SC 854: 2003 Cri LJ 914.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.C. Lahoti and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-2003]

Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614: 1957 Cri LJ 1000, relied on

[7677] — Ss. 302/149 and 148 — Unlawful assembly involving a very large number of persons — Sole eyewitness — Credibility — No rule of law that states that there cannot be any conviction on testimony of a sole eyewitness — In a fit case court may believe a reliable sole eyewitness if in his testimony he makes specific reference to identity of individual and his specific overt acts in the incident — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 134

In a case involving an unlawful assembly with a very large number of persons, there is no rule of law that states that there cannot be any conviction on the testimony of a sole eyewitness, unless court is of the view that testimony of such sole eyewitness is not reliable. Though generally it is a rule of prudence followed by the courts that a conviction may not be sustained if it is not supported by two or more witnesses who give a consistent account of the incident, in a fit case the court may believe a reliable sole eyewitness if in his testimony he makes specific reference to the identity of the individual and his specific overt acts in the incident. The rule of requirement of more than one witness applies only in a case where a witness deposes in a general and vague manner, or in the case of a riot. (Para 27)

In the instant case two persons lost their lives and three were injured. The complainant died before the trial could commence and thus, the contents of the FIR could not be substantiated by him as he could not be examined. However, the two injured witnesses, PW 24 and PW 25 had deposed along with other eyewitnesses about the incident. PWs 2, 3 and 8 were examined. The injuries on the persons of the deceased, as well as on the injured persons had been noted by the courts below. All these witnesses had faced gruelling cross-examinations by the defence, but nothing could be elicited from either of them which may discredit their testimony. Out of these witnesses, PWs 24 and 25 are injured witnesses. The injuries found on the person of PW 25 were of a grievous nature. Their evidence had to be given due weightage as they are the stamped witnesses. (Paras 34 and 38). Ranjit Singh v. State of M.P., (2011) 4 SCC 336.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-10-2010]

Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 226; Muthu Naicker v. State of T.N., (1978) 4 SCC 385: 1979 SCC (Cri) 14; Binay Kumar Singh v. State of Bihar, (1997) 1 SCC 283: 1997 SCC (Cri) 333; Kamaksha Rai v. State of U.P., (1999) 8 SCC 701: 2000 SCC (Cri) 52; Chandra Shekhar Bind v. State of Bihar, (2001) 8 SCC 690: 2002 SCC (Cri) 90, followed

Sarwan Singh v. State of Punjab, (2003) 1 SCC 240: 2003 SCC (Cri) 282; State of U.P. v. Jagdeo, (2003) 1 SCC 456: 2003 SCC (Cri) 351; State of U.P. v. Kishan Chand, (2004) 7 SCC 629: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2021; Krishan v. State of Haryana, (2006) 12 SCC 459: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 214; Annareddy Sambasiva Reddy v. State of A.P., (2009) 12 SCC 546: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 630; Balraje v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 6 SCC 673: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 211, relied on [7678] — Ss. 302/201 — Appreciation of evidence — Murder — Sole eyewitness, who was a natural witness, clearly deposed about the incident in detail — His testimony found to be believable — Prosecution version corroborated by evidence of incharge of the police station who had inspected the spot as well as post-mortem report — Held, in view of clear evidence of the eyewitness, conviction of the accused, as recorded by courts below, must be upheld, even assuming that evidence of the other witness was not acceptable (Para 11). Major Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 10 SCC 499: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 118.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-10-2006]

(r) Tutored/Pressurised witness

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL — '251.(zp) Tutored/Pressurised witness', pp. 513 et seq. in Vol. 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7679] — Ss. 302 and 34 — Murder trial — Applicability of S. 34 — Crucial eyewitness prevaricating in her stand (though evidently under pressure from the accused) — Instant case of brutal murder of college girl P inside college campus by running a jeep over her by prime accused-appellant S and co-accused-appellants present in the jeep allegedly exhorting S for the same — High Court upholding conviction of appellant S under S. 302 for committing murder of P and co-accused-appellants J, R and G, under Ss. 302/34 for causing death of P in furtherance of their common intention with the appellant S — Sustainability — Held, trial court and High Court highlighted certain aspects which clearly brought out guilt of accused S — Significant were the evidence of PWs 7 and 8 — However, there was no evidence, much less credible, which was salvaged from onslaught on witnesses which suggested that there was any meeting of minds, because everything appears to have happened suddenly — Evidence of PW 8 (eyewitness), on which prosecution placed strong reliance for the purpose of attracting S. 34, gave prevaricating statements so far as co-accused-appellants J, R and G were concerned, though her statement was sufficient to fasten guilt on S — Therefore, considering background facts, S. 34 has no application — Hence, while dismissing appeal filed by S, conviction recorded qua co-accused-appellants, set aside (Paras 16, 22 and 23). Javed Alam v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2009) 6 SCC 450: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1085.

38.(r) Tutored/Pressurised witness (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-2009]

State of M.P. v. Deshraj, (2004) 13 SCC 199; Chimanbhai Jagabhai Patel v. State of Gujarat, (2009) 11 SCC 273, relied on

[Ed.: See also Mahbub Shah v. Emperor, AIR 1945 PC 118.]

[7680] — S. 302 r/w S. 34 — As per prosecution witnesses, accused-appellant, who was a Muslim, addressing his father as "Pitaji" while asking him to shoot the deceased — Held, the said fact indicating that the witnesses were wrongly tutored as it is not the language of a Muslim to so address his father — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 3

The courts below did take note of the discrepancies found in the statements of the witnesses as to the exhortation or the language used in regard to the same. There is force in the contention of the appellant that the use of the word "Pitaji" by the appellant to exhort his father itself indicates that these witnesses have been tutored to make this statement because it is not the language of a Muslim to address his father as "Pitaji". This thing could only have happened when a witness is wrongly tutored by somebody. (Paras 5 and 6). Abdul Wahid v. State of Rajasthan, (2004) 11 SCC 241: AIR 2004 SC 3211: 2004 Cri LJ 2850.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-4-2004]

Abdul Wahid v. State of Rajasthan, 1998 Cri LJ 3423 (Raj), reversed

SECTION 304-A — CAUSING DEATH BY NEGLIGENCE

Synopsis

(1) Generally — Nature, Scope and Applicability 84
(2) "Rash or negligent act" — What is 89
(3) Causation 93
(4) Proof of criminal negligence 94
(5) Medical negligence 97
(6) Motor vehicle accidents 103
(7) Other situations 114
(8) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/Relief to victim 117
(9) Effect on civil proceedings for compensation/damages 122
(10) Other issues 122

— S. 304-A See also Ss. 40, 304-A and 338
See also Ss. 88, 92, 370 and 304-A
See also Ss. 279 and 304-A
See also under Ss. 299 to 304
See also Ss. 299, 300 and 304-A
See also Ss. 299 and 304 Pt. II and 300 Firstly and Thirdly, 302 and 304-A
See also S. 301 and S. 302 r/w Ss. 301 or 304-A
See also Ss. 301, 304-A and 307
See also Ss. 302, 304 and 304-A
See also Ss. 302/34 and 304-A
See also Ss. 304 Pt. II and 304-A
See also Ss. 304 Pt. II, 326, 324 and 429 and 304-A, 336, 337 and 338
See also Ss. 337, 338 and 304-A

(1) Generally — Nature, Scope and Applicability

See also '(2) "Rash or negligent act" — What is', below

[7681] — S. 304-A — Nature and scope — Held, S. 304-A is not limited to rash or negligent driving — Any rash or negligent act whereby death of any person is caused becomes punishable — Two elements either of which or both of which may be proved to establish the guilt of an accused are rashness and negligence — A person may cause death by rash or negligent act which may have nothing to do with driving at all — Negligence and rashness to be punishable in terms of S. 304-A must be attributable to a state of mind wherein the criminality arises because of no error in judgment but of a deliberation in mind risking crime as well as life of person who may lose his life as a result of crime — S. 304-A discloses that criminality may be that apart from any mens rea, there may be no motive or intention still a person may venture or practise such rashness or negligence which may cause death of other — Death so caused is not the determining factor — On facts, bus driven by appellant was hit by a train at railway crossing resulting in death and injuries to passengers — Charges were framed under S. 302 and alternatively under Ss. 304, 325 and 323 IPC — Criminal revision filed by appellant questioning correctness of charges framed, dismissed — Appellant contending that S. 302 IPC had no application herein as he had no intention to kill passengers and at the most it may be S. 304-A — Held, in the instant case, S. 302 IPC prima facie has no application —

Accordingly, charges stand altered to S. 304-A along with Ss. 279 and 337 IPC — CrPC, 1973, S. 401

Section 304-A IPC applies to cases where there is no intention to cause death and no knowledge that the act done in all probability will cause death. The provision is directed at offences outside the range of Sections 299 and 300 IPC. Section 304-A applies only to such acts which are rash and negligent and are directly the cause of death of another person. Negligence and rashness are essential elements under Section 304-A. (Para 7)

Section 304-A carves out a specific offence where death is caused by doing a rash or negligent act and that act does not amount to culpable homicide under Section 299 or murder under Section 300. If a person wilfully drives a motor vehicle into the midst of a crowd and thereby causes death to some person, it will not be a case of mere rash and negligent driving and the act will amount to culpable homicide. Doing an act with the intent to kill a person or knowledge that doing an act was likely to cause a person's death is culpable homicide. When intent or knowledge is the direct motivating force of the act, Section 304-A has to make room for the graver and more serious charge of culpable homicide. The provision of this section is not limited to rash or negligent driving. Any rash or negligent act whereby death of any person is caused becomes punishable. Two elements either of which or both of which may be proved to establish the guilt of an accused are rashness/negligence; a person may cause death by a rash or negligent act which may have nothing to do with driving at all. Negligence and rashness to be punishable in terms of Section 304-A must be attributable to a state of mind wherein the criminality arises because of no error in judgment but of a deliberation in the mind risking the crime as well as the life of the person who may lose his life as a result of the crime. Section 304-A discloses that criminality may be that apart from any mens rea, there may be no motive or intention still a person may venture or practise such rashness or negligence which may cause the death of other. The death so caused is not the determining factor. (Para 8)

What amounts to negligence depends on the facts of each particular case. It may consist in omitting to do something which ought to be done or in doing something which ought to be done either in a different manner or not at all. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which can be reasonably foreseen to be likely to cause physical injury to persons or property. The degree of care required in the particular case depends on the surrounding circumstances, and may vary according to the amount of the risk to be encountered and to the magnitude of the prospective injury. The duty of care is owed only to those persons who are in the area of foreseeable danger; the fact that the act of the defendant violated his duty of care to a third person does not enable the plaintiff who is also injured by the same act to claim unless he is also within the area of foreseeable danger. The same act or omission may accordingly in some circumstances involve liability as being negligent, although in other circumstances it will not do so. The material considerations are the absence of care which is on the part of the defendant owed to the plaintiff in the circumstances of the case and damage suffered by the plaintiff, together with a demonstrable relation of cause and effect between the two. (Para 9)

Negligence is conduct which falls below the standard established for the protection of others against unreasonable risk of harm, this standard of conduct is ordinarily measured by what the reasonable man of ordinary prudence would do under the circumstances. In order to objectify the law's abstractions like "care", "reasonableness" or "foreseeability" the man of ordinary prudence was invented as a model of the standard of conduct to which all men are required to conform. (Para 11)

"Reckless" means "careless", regardless or heedless of the possible harmful consequences of one's acts. It presupposes that if thought was given to the matter by the doer before the act was done, it would have been apparent to him that there was a real risk of its having the relevant harmful consequences; but, granted this, recklessness covers a whole range of states of mind from failing to give any thought at all to whether or not there is any risk of those harmful consequences, to recognising the existence of the risk and nevertheless deciding to ignore it. (Para 13). Naresh Giri v. State of M.P., (2008) 1 SCC 791: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 324: (2007) 60 AIC 15 (SC): (2007) 4 KLT 1115.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-11-2007]

Director of Public Prosecutions v. Camplin, 1978 AC 705: (1978) 2 WLR 679: (1978) 2 All ER 168 (HL); Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59; R. v. Briggs, (1977) 1 WLR 605: (1977) 1 All ER 475 (CA); R. v. Caldwell, 1982 AC 341: (1981) 2 WLR 509: (1981) 1 All ER 961 (HL); R. v. Lawrence, 1982 AC 510: (1981) 2 WLR 524: (1981) 1 All ER 974 (HL), relied on [7682] — S. 304-A — Applicability — Held, applies only to such acts which are rash and negligent and are directly the cause of death of another person — Further held, in such cases there is no intention to cause death and no knowledge that the act done in all probability will cause death (Para 7). Rathnashalvan v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 3 SCC 474: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 84: AIR 2007 SC 1064: 2007 Cri LJ 1451: (2007) 52 AIC 240 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-2007]

Followed in Prabhakaran v. State of Kerala, (2007) 14 SCC 269*

[7683] — S. 304-A — Applicability of — Held, applies to cases where death is caused by doing a rash or negligent act — Not applicable where the act is done with intention or knowledge to cause death

Section 304-A applies only to such acts which are rash and negligent and are directly the cause of death of another person. Rashness and negligence are essential elements under Section 304-A. It carves out a specific offence where death is caused by doing a rash or negligent act and that act does not amount to culpable homicide under Section 299 or murder in Section 300 IPC. Doing an act with the intent to kill a person or knowledge that doing an act was likely to cause a person's death is culpable homicide. When the intent or knowledge is the direct motivating force of the act, Section 304-A IPC has to make room for the graver and more serious charge of culpable homicide. (Para 18)

Thus, in order to be encompassed by the protection under Section 304-A there should be neither intention nor knowledge to cause death. When any of these two elements is found to be present, Section 304-A has no application. (Para 19)

In the present case, the accused-appellant not only picked up the gun, unlocked it for use but also put the cartridges and fired from very close range, aiming at a very vital part of the body (chest). Hence, the inevitable conclusion is that Section 304-A has no application in the instant case. (Paras 19 and 20). Shankar Narayan Bhadolkar v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 9 SCC 71: 2005 SCC (Cri) 22: AIR 2004 SC 1966: 2004 Cri LJ 1778.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-2004]

*Sadhu Singh Harnam Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1954 SC 271: 1954 Cri LJ 727, explained and distinguished on facts

[7684] — S. 304-A — Liability under — When attracted — Held, it is necessary that death should have been the direct result of a rash and negligent act of accused, and that act must be the proximate and efficient cause without the intervention of another's negligence — It must be the causa causans — It is not enough that it may have been the causa sine qua non

On 15-2-1995, the informant's father, late Jiwan Lal Sharma was admitted as a patient in a private ward of CMC Hospital, Ludhiana. On 22-2-1995 at about 11 p.m., Jiwan Lal felt difficulty in breathing. The complainant's elder brother, Vijay Sharma who was present in the room contacted the duty nurse, who in her turn called some doctor to attend to the patient. No doctor turned up for about 20 to 25 minutes. Then, Dr. Jacob Mathew, the appellant and Dr. Allen Joseph came to the room of the patient. An oxygen cylinder was brought and connected to the mouth of the patient but the breathing problem increased further. The patient tried to get up but the medical staff asked him to remain in bed. The oxygen cylinder was found to be empty. There was no other gas cylinder available in the room. Vijay Sharma went to the adjoining room and brought a gas cylinder therefrom. However, there was no arrangement to make the gas cylinder functional and in-between, 5 to 7 minutes were wasted. By this time, another doctor arrived who declared that the patient was dead. On the abovesaid report, an offence under Sections 304-A/34 IPC was registered and investigated. On charges having been filed against the two doctors, and their failure to obtain quashment thereof in all the forums below, the appellant was before the Supreme Court by special leave.

To impose criminal liability under Section 304-A, the Penal Code, it is necessary that the death should have been the direct result of a rash and negligent act of the accused, and that act must be the proximate and efficient cause without the intervention of another's negligence. It must be the causa causans; it is not enough that it may have been the causa sine qua non. [Paras 48(6) and 38]. Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

[7685] — S. 304-A — Requirements of — Rash and negligent act must be the proximate cause of the death

Requirements of S. 304-A are that the death of any person must have been caused by the accused by doing any rash or negligent act. In other words, there must be proof that the rash or negligent act of accused was the proximate cause of the death. There must be direct nexus between the death of a person and the rash or negligent act of the accused. Suleman Rahiman Mulani v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 829: (1968) 2 SCR 515: 1968 Cri LJ 1013.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-12-1967]

[7686] — Ss. 304-A, 299 and 300 — S. 304-A, applies to offences outside the range of Ss. 299 and 300 — Intentionally or knowingly inflicted violence resulting in death excluded — Death must be direct result of rash or negligent act of the accused — Rashness or negligence — Determination of — Quarrel between two villagers and police officials — Appellant constable, as ordered by Head Constable, firing his rifle without any aim and to scare away the people killing two innocent bystanders — He acted in haste, rashly and without circumspection and due care and caution with regard to safety of other innocent people — Held, on facts, provisions of S. 304-A attracted

The provisions of S. 304-A apply to cases where there is no intention to cause death and no knowledge that the act done in all probabilities will cause death. Therefore this provision is directed at offences outside the range of Ss. 299 and 300 IPC and obviously contemplates those cases into which neither intention nor knowledge enters. The words "not amounting to culpable homicide" in the section are very significant and it must therefore be understood that intentionally or knowingly inflicted violence directly and wilfully caused is excluded. The section applies only to such acts which are rash or negligent and are directly the cause of death of another person. In other words, a rash act is primarily an overhasty act as opposed to a deliberate act but done without due care and caution. Then the question whether the conduct of the accused amounted to culpable rashness or negligence depends on the amount of care and circumspection which a prudent and reasonable man would consider it to be sufficient and this depends on the circumstances in each case.

In the instant case the appellant did not aim at the two deceased persons who were away. It was night time and it cannot definitely be said that the appellant could have seen them. In fact the two persons who started assaulting the Head Constable and the appellants were not hit by the shots fired by the appellant. That itself shows that the appellant fired his rifle without any aim and obviously to scare away the people and he did so as directed by the Head Constable who was in command of the police party. However, even in such a situation, he had to act in a prudent manner. But when he acted in such a haste, rashly and without circumspection and due care and caution with regard to the safety of other innocent people, then the only inference is that his rash act amounted to culpable rashness attracting the provisions of S. 304-A IPC. Balwant Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (2) SCC 67: 1994 SCC (Cri) 844.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-2-1994]

Sadhu Singh Harnam Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1954 SC 271: 1954 Cri LJ 727, relied on

Meera Puri v. State of Nagaland, 1971 Cri LJ 539: Assam LR (1971) Assam 22; Emperor v. Nga San Win, AIR 1933 Rang 326: 147 IC 60: 1933 CrC 1284; Emperor v. Morgan, (1909) 9 Cri LJ 393: 13 CWN 362: 9 CLJ 204, approved

[7687] — Ss. 304-A, 304 or S. 302 — Death caused by rash and negligent act

The deceased Mahant went to the house of the accused who was having a liquor party. The accused was very respectful to the Mahant and was overanxious to show all hospitality to him. He was anxious that the Mahant should not go away from his house without taking meals and spending the night with him, and seeing that the Mahant was going away, in all probability he let go his gun without aiming it at the Mahant in order to prevent him from leaving his place by terrifying him to some extent. The deceased was hit by the gunshot in the chest and he died of the gun injuries later on.

From the evidence of the eyewitnesses and the different statements made by them it was quite clear that the incident happened in a very short time and suddenly, and story that the accused took aim before firing at the Mahant or that he said that he had never allowed in the past anybody to go like that from his house was subsequent introduction in the case to add gravity to the offence committed by the accused.

Held :

On the materials placed on the record it could not be held proved that he had any intention of firing at the Mahant. He seems to have pulled the trigger without aiming at the Mahant in a state of intoxication in order to see that by the gunfire the Mahant was prevented from leaving his place. It was a wholly rash and negligent act on his part or at the worst was an act which would amount to manslaughter. It could not be held to constitute an offence of murder. No intention of causing death or an intention of causing such bodily injury as being sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death could be ascribed to the accused or readily inferred in the circumstances of this case. Therefore, the accused was held guilty of an offence under S. 304-A, IPC. Sadhu Singh Harnam Singh v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1954 SC 271: 1954 Cri LJ 727, 732.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.C. Mahajan, B.K. Mukherjea and B. Jagannadhadas, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1953]

[7688] — Ss. 304-A & 304 Pt. II — Relative scope of — On facts, offence under S. 304-A made out

The deceased along with the Head Constable and two constables was resting on a cot at a hotel situated on a kutcha road by the side of the highway. The appellant came to the spot on his tractor. A truck which was formerly driven by him was parked there with only the conductor present. The appellant is alleged to have wilfully driven the truck at full speed against the deceased's cot overthrowing him and causing his death. The version of the appellant was that he lost control over the vehicle resulting in the accident. The Sessions Court convicted him under S. 304 Part II which was altered to that under S. 304-A by the High Court.

Section 304-A carves out a specific offence where death is caused by doing a rash or negligent act and that act does not amount to culpable homicide under S. 299 IPC or murder under S. 300 IPC. If a person wilfully drives a motor vehicle into the midst of a crowd and thereby causes death to some persons, it will not be a case of mere rash and negligent driving and the act will amount to culpable homicide. Each case will, therefore, depend upon the particular facts established against the accused.

Section 304-A by its own definition totally excludes the ingredients of S. 299 or S. 300, IPC. Doing an act with the intent to kill a person or knowledge that doing of an act was likely to cause a person's death are ingredients of the offence of culpable homicide. When intent or knowledge as described above is the direct motivating force of the act complained of, S. 304-A has to make room for the graver and more serious charge of culpable homicide.

The facts disclosed in the prosecution evidence do not make out a case of any wilful or deliberate act on the part of the accused in order to cause the death of the deceased by driving the truck in the way he did.

On facts, the tangential track of the speeding truck coming in contact with the corner of the cot throwing it over and thereby throwing the deceased out of it resulting in fatal injuries, would not reveal the accused's intention or any deliberate act with the requisite knowledge for an offence of culpable homicide. The facts and circumstances disclosed in this case fit in more reasonably with the theory of loss of control by the accused of the vehicle in high speed trying to take a turn for the kutcha road. State of Gujarat v. Haidarali Kalubhai, (1976) 1 SCC 889: 1976 SCC (Cri) 211: AIR 1976 SC 1012: 1976 Cri LJ 732.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.K. Goswami and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-2-1976]

[7689] — S. 304-A or S. 304 Pt. II — Interpretation of judgment — Permissible interpretations — Interpretation so as to nullify express provisions of a statute or CrPC — Impermissibility — Bhopal Gas tragedy — 1996 judgment, (1996) 6 SCC 129, delivered at stage of framing of charge, and on basis of materials produced by prosecution till that stage reducing charges from Ss. 304 Pt. II, 324, 326 & 429 IPC to S. 304-A IPC — After conclusion of trial, Magistrate refusing to enhance charge under S. 216 CrPC — State approaching appellate and revisional forums with prayer for enhancement of charge — State also filing present curative petition in Supreme Court under Art. 137 believing that 1996 judgment stood in the way of appellate and revisional forums for enhancing charge — Precedents, held, cannot be read in a manner as to nullify the express provisions of an Act or CrPC — If according to curative petitioners, Magistrate failed to appreciate correct legal position and misread 1996 judgment as tying his hands from exercising power under S. 323 or S. 216 CrPC, it can certainly be corrected by appellate/Revisional Court — 1996 judgment is not a fetter on proper exercise of powers by a court of competent jurisdiction under relevant provisions of CrPC — 1996 judgment was rendered at stage of Ss. 209/228/240 CrPC and it cannot be said that it removed from CrPC Ss. 323, 216, 386, 397, 399, 401 CrPC, etc. or denuded a competent court of powers under those provisions — Constitution of India, Arts. 141 and 137 (Paras 10 to 12). CBI v. Keshub Mahindra, (2011) 6 SCC 216.

Bench Strength 5. Coram : S.H. Kapadia, C.J. and Altamas Kabir, R.V. Raveendran, B. Sudershan Reddy and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision : 11-5-2011]

Keshub Mahindra v. State of M.P., (1996) 6 SCC 129: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1124, clarified

[7690] — S. 304-A or S. 304 Pt. II — Sessions Court framing a charge under S. 304 Pt. II while the High Court in the criminal application filed thereagainst giving a finding as to non-existence of sufficient material to frame such a charge and proceeding to frame charge under S. 304-A —

Metropolitan Magistrate though proceeding under S. 304-A, held, would not be hindered by the finding of the High Court in case it comes to a different conclusion

The next question that requires determination is whether the charge under Section 304 Part II IPC should be sustained or the one under Section 304-A, as framed by the High Court should be retained. Fresh charges under Section 304-A and other provisions mentioned above have been framed by the Metropolitan Magistrate and the trial has already commenced. Any interference at this stage would not further the cause of justice and hence it is appropriate that the proceedings before the said Magistrate's Court should continue and the trial should proceed on the basis of the charges framed by it. But in case the Magistrate comes to the conclusion that there is sufficient material to charge the respondent for a more serious offence than the one punishable under Section 304-A, he shall proceed to do so, without in any manner being hindered or influenced by the observations or findings of the High Court in the impugned order or by the order of the Sessions Court which framed the charge punishable under Section 304 Part II IPC. Such decision of the Magistrate shall be purely based on the material brought in evidence at the trial. (Para 15)

It is made clear that no opinion is expressed on merits of the case. (Para 16). State of Maharashtra v. Salman Salim Khan, (2004) 1 SCC 525: 2004 SCC (Cri) 337: AIR 2004 SC 1189: 2004 Cri LJ 920.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-2003]

(2) "Rash or negligent act" — What is

See also SECTION 304-A — CAUSING DEATH BY NEGLIGENCE — '(1) Generally — Nature, Scope and Applicability', above

[7691] — S. 304-A — Nature of negligence required under — Phrase "rash or negligent act" — Scope of — Held, though word "gross" has not been used in S. 304-A, expression "rash and negligent act" in S. 304-A has to be read as qualified by word "grossly" — Reasons for, discussed

The word "gross" has not been used in Section 304-A IPC, yet it is settled that in criminal law negligence or recklessness, to be so held, must be of such a high degree as to be "gross". The expression "rash or negligent act" as occurring in Section 304-A IPC has to be read as qualified by the word "grossly". To impose criminal liability under Section 304-A, the Penal Code, it is necessary that the death should have been the direct result of a rash and negligent act of the accused, and that act must be the proximate and efficient cause without the intervention of another's negligence. [Paras 48(6) and 38]. Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

[7692] — S. 304-A — Negligence — What amounts to

If a person, who is not an engineer chooses to decide for himself the width of a pipe for a chimney of a bakery, with two ovens, of the height of about 75 feet and entrusts the alteration of the chimney to a mason who has not designed chimneys before, and does not completely stop the fixing of an oven during the construction of the chimney, he does negligent acts within the meaning of S. 304-A. Rustom Sherior Irani v. State of Maharashtra, 1969 ACJ 70.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-4-1968]

[7693] — S. 304-A — On facts motor accident caused owing to misjudgment and not negligence — Maxim res ipsa loquitur, held, not applicable

A woman accompanied by her 4-year-old daughter came out of her village to cross the highway. While crossing the road the mother asked the child to go back home, but when the mother had crossed the road and descended into the deep ditch on the other side, the child suddenly dashed across the road to join her mother and was caught under the left front wheel of a passenger bus driven by the accused and was crushed to death. According to the eyewitness account of the four passengers of the bus, at the material time the accused was driving the bus slowly as a narrow bridge was 30 feet ahead and when the child suddenly appeared on the road, he immediately swerved the vehicle to the extreme right side of the road in order to save the collision. It was also clear that if he had moved the bus further to the right it would have fallen in the ditch endangering the lives of the passengers. The prosecution, however, treated all the eyewitnesses as hostile and with the permission of the court cross-examined them to impeach their credit. The Public Prosecutor only contradicted the police statement of the eyewitnesses that the accident took place due to the negligence of the accused and not by statements relating to each of the facts. The trial Court disbelieved the evidence of the eyewitnesses. On appeal, the Sessions Judge while agreeing with the unreliability of the eyewitnesses, upheld his conviction applying the principle of res ipsa loquitur and the High Court endorsed that view.

Held :

On facts the circumstances of taking the vehicle suddenly to the extreme right of the road, did not bespeak negligence or dereliction of duty to exercise due care and control, on the part of the accused, in clear and unambiguous voice. Nor could it be said, that the cause of swerving the vehicle to the right, was unknown. The accused gave a reasonably convincing explanation of his conduct in doing so, and his version was fully supported by four prosecution witnesses who had seen the occurrence. In these circumstances, the maxim res ipsa loquitur could have no manner of application.

The accident happened due to an error of judgment, and not negligence or want of driving skill on the part of the accused. An error of judgment of the kind such as the one in the instant case which comes to light only on post-accident reflection, but could not be foreseen by the accused in that fragmented moment before the accident is not a sure index of negligence, particularly, when in taking and executing that decision the accused was acting with the knowledge and in the belief that this was the best course to be adopted in the circumstances for everyone's safety.

The prosecution had failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the appellant had caused the death of the child by negligent or rash driving. All happened in fraction of a moment; and even if the worst was assumed against the appellant, the highest that could be said was that it was a misjudgment on his part too slight to be branded as culpable negligence. Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59: AIR 1979 SC 1848: 1979 Cri LJ 1374: 1980 MLJ (Cri) 265.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and R.S. Pathak, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-1979]

[7694] — S. 304-A — Rash and negligent driving — What amounts to culpable rashness and criminal negligence — Passenger, while boarding a bus, falling down therefrom when the bus moved forward and run over by the rear wheel of the bus resulting in her death — When can driver of the bus be held to be guilty of culpable negligence — Negligence of the driver cannot always be presumed — In absence of any evidence showing that the driver moved the vehicle before getting signal from the conductor to move, held, it cannot be presumed that the passenger fell down due to negligence of the driver — Hence conviction under S. 304-A not sustainable

The appellant was driving a bus of the Andhra Pradesh Road Transport Corporation. A passenger was boarding the bus. When the bus moved forward she fell out of the vehicle and its rear wheel ran over her. She died of the injuries sustained in that accident. The conductor of the bus did not say how the accident happened. However, he admitted that while the bus was in motion he heard the sound of an accident and the bus was then stopped. The only other witness in his examination-in-chief merely deposed that the said passenger "was boarding the bus and the bus moved; and she fell down beneath the bus and died on the spot; the bus stopped at some distance" and that he saw the bus driver at that time. The driver of the bus was held guilty of culpable negligence in that episode. He now stands convicted under Section 304-A of the Indian Penal Code and was sentenced to imprisonment for three months. All the three courts, the trial court, the Sessions Court and the High Court in revision, took the same stand. The only question which survives for decision is whether on such facts a conclusion that the appellant is guilty of negligent driving must necessarily follow. Answering in the negative and allowing the appeal of the driver,

Held :

A rash act is primarily an overhasty act. It is opposed to a deliberate act. Still a rash act can be a deliberate act in the sense that it was done without due care and caution. Culpable rashness lies in running the risk of doing an act with recklessness and with indifference as to the consequences. Criminal negligence is the failure to exercise duty with reasonable and proper care and precaution guarding against injury to the public generally or to any individual in particular. It is the imperative duty of the driver of a vehicle to adopt such reasonable and proper care and precaution. (Para 9)

It is a wrong proposition that for any motor accident negligence of the driver should be presumed. An accident of such a nature as would prima facie show that it cannot be accounted to anything other than the negligence of the driver of the vehicle may create a presumption and in such a case the driver has to explain how the accident happened without negligence on his part. Merely because a passenger fell down from the bus while boarding the bus, no presumption of negligence can be drawn against the driver of the bus. (Para 7)

In the present case the possible explanation of the driver is that he was unaware of even the possibility of the accident which happened. It could be so. When he moved the vehicle forward his focus normally would have been towards what was ahead of the vehicle. He is not expected to move the vehicle forward when passengers are in the process of boarding the vehicle. But when he gets a signal from the conductor that the bus can proceed he is expected to start moving the vehicle. To fasten the liability with the driver for negligent driving when a passenger falls down from a moving vehicle, there should be evidence that he moved the bus suddenly before the passenger could get into the vehicle or that the driver moved the vehicle even before getting any signal from the rear side. Here no witness has said, including the conductor, that the driver moved the vehicle before getting a signal to move forward. The evidence in this case is too scanty to fasten him with criminal negligence. Some further evidence is indispensably needed to presume that the passenger fell down due to the negligence of the driver of the bus. Such further evidence is lacking in this case. Therefore, the Court is disabled from concluding that the victim fell down only because of the negligent driving of the bus. The corollary thereof is that the conviction of the appellant of the offence is unsustainable. (Paras 9, 5 and 10). Mohd. Aynuddin v. State of A.P., (2000) 7 SCC 72: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1281: AIR 2000 SC 2511: 2000 Cri LJ 3508.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-7-2000]

[7695] — S. 304-A — Rashness and negligence — Distinction between

There is a distinction between a rash act and a negligent act. In the case of a rash act the criminality lies in running the risk of doing such an act with recklessness or indifference as to the consequence. Criminal negligence is the gross and culpable neglect or failure to exercise that reasonable and proper care and precaution to guard against injury either to the public generally or to an individual in particular, which having regard to all the circumstances out of which the charge has arisen, it was the imperative duty of the accused person to have adopted. Negligence is an omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon those considerations which ordinarily regulate the conduct of human affairs would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. A culpable rashness is acting with the consciousness that the mischievous and illegal consequences may follow, but with the hope that they will not, and often with the belief that the actor has taken sufficient precautions to prevent their happening. The imputability arises from acting despite the consciousness. Culpable negligence is acting without the consciousness that the illegal and mischievous effect will follow, but in circumstances which show that the actor has not exercised the caution incumbent upon him and if he had he would have had the consciousness. The imputability arises from the neglect of the civic duty of circumspection.

In the instant case the appellant was driving his car at a speed of 35 miles an hour, the speed permissible under the rules. No other circumstance was pointed out to show that he was driving in a reckless manner. Therefore, he cannot be said to have been running the risk of doing an act with recklessness or indifference as to the consequences. But he was undoubtedly guilty of negligence. He had a duty to look ahead and see whether there was any pedestrian in the pedestrian crossing. It is likely that while driving the car he was engrossed in talking with the person who was sitting by his side. By doing so, he failed to exercise the caution incumbent upon him. His culpable negligence and failure to exercise that reasonable and proper care and caution required of him resulted in the occurrence. He was therefore guilty of offence under S. 304-A. Bhalachandra Waman Pathe v. State of Maharashtra, 1968 ACJ 38: 1968 Mah LJ 423: 1968 MPLJ 371.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1967]

Kamruddin v. King, 1905 Pun Re 29: 2 Cri LJ 207, R. v. Pittwood, 19 TLR 37; Queen v. Bhutan, 1894 ILR 16 All 472: 1894 All WN 182; R. v. David Dant, (1865) 169 ER 1517 and Empress v. Indu Beg. (1881) ILR 3 All 776: 1881 AWN 132, approved

[7696] — S. 304-A — Requirement of culpable rashness in driving under, held, is more drastic than negligence sufficient to create liability under tort law. N.K.V. Bros. (P) Ltd. v. M. Karumai Ammal, (1980) 3 SCC 457: 1980 SCC (Cri) 774: AIR 1980 SC 1354: (1980) 41 FLR 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1980]

[7697] — Ss. 304-A, 88, 92 and 93 — Criminal negligence — Ingredients of — Mens rea in respect of, what is — Nature, scope and instances of, discussed — Held, for negligence to amount to a criminal offence, element of mens rea must be shown to exist — Further held, it is recklessness that constitutes the mens rea in criminal negligence

For negligence to amount to a criminal offence, the element of mens rea must be shown to exist. It is recklessness that constitutes mens rea in criminal law as far as negligence is concerned. The moral culpability of recklessness is not located in a desire to cause harm. It resides in the proximity of the reckless state of mind to the state of mind present when there is an intention to cause harm. There is, in other words, a disregard for the possible consequences. The consequences entailed in the risk may not be wanted, and indeed the actor may hope that they do not occur, but this hope nevertheless fails to inhibit the taking of the risk. Certain types of violation, called optimising violations, may be motivated by thrill-seeking. These are clearly reckless. [Paras 12, 13 and 48(5)]. Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

[7698] — Ss. 304-A, 88, 92 and 93 — Criminal negligence — When actionable — Held, to hold existence of criminal negligence it shall have to be found that the rashness was of such a degree as to amount to taking a hazard knowing that the hazard was of such a degree that injury was most likely imminent

In order to hold the existence of criminal rashness or criminal negligence it shall have to be found out that the rashness was of such a degree as to amount to taking a hazard knowing that the hazard was of such a degree that injury was most likely imminent. The element of criminality is introduced by the accused having run the risk of doing such an act with recklessness and indifference to the consequences. The negligence to be established by the prosecution must be culpable or gross and not the negligence merely based upon an error of judgment. (Paras 14 and 15). Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

R. v. Lawrence, (1981) 1 All ER 974: 1982 AC 510: (1981) 2 WLR 524 (HL); R. v. Caldwell, (1981) 1 All ER 961: 1982 AC 341: (1981) 2 WLR 509 (HL); Andrews v. Director of Public Prosecutions, 1937 AC 576: (1937) 2 All ER 552 (HL); Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59; Bhalchandra Waman Pathe v. State of Maharashtra, 1968 Mah LJ 423 (SC): 1968 ACJ 38: 1968 MPLJ 371 (SC), relied on

Empress of India v. Idu Beg, ILR (1881) 3 All 776: (1881) 1 AWN 132, held approved

[7699] — Ss. 304-A, 88, 92 and 93 — Criminal negligence and negligence in tort/civil law — Meanings of — Degrees of negligence — Held, are jurisprudentially different — To fasten liability in criminal law, degree of negligence has to be higher than negligence enough to fasten liability for damages in civil law i.e. gross or of a higher degree

The jurisprudential concept of negligence differs in civil and criminal law. What may be negligence in civil law may not necessarily be negligence in criminal law. Generally speaking, it is the amount of damages incurred which is determinative of the extent of liability in tort; but in criminal law it is not the amount of damages but the amount and degree of negligence that is determinative of liability. To fasten liability in criminal law, the degree of negligence has to be higher than that of negligence enough to fasten liability for damages in civil law i.e. gross or of a very high degree. Negligence which is neither gross nor of a higher degree may provide a ground for action in civil law but cannot form the basis for prosecution. [Paras 12, 13, 38 and 48(5)]

While negligence is an omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon those considerations which ordinarily regulate the conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do; criminal negligence is the gross and culpable neglect or failure to exercise that reasonable and proper care and precaution to guard against injury either to the public generally or to an individual in particular, which having regard to all the circumstances out of which the charge has arisen, it was the imperative duty of the accused person to have adopted. A clear distinction exists between "simple lack of care" incurring civil liability and "very high degree of negligence" which is required in criminal cases. (Paras 16, 14 and 17). Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

Riddell v. Reid, (1942) 2 All ER 161: 1943 AC 1 (HL), relied on [7700] — Ss. 304-A and 337 — Culpable negligence or rashness — Held, depends directly on the question as to what is the amount of care and circumspection which a prudent and reasonable man would consider it to be sufficient considering circumstances of the case — "Rashness" consists in hazarding a dangerous or wanton act with the knowledge that it is so, and that it may cause injury — Criminality in such case lies in running the risk of doing such an act with recklessness or indifference as to the consequences — Criminal negligence on the other hand, is the gross and culpable neglect or failure to exercise that reasonable and proper care and precaution to guard against injury either to the public generally or to an individual in particular, which, having regard to all the circumstances out of which the charge has arisen it was the imperative duty of the accused person to have adopted — In the instant case, the revision petitioner-accused was alleged to have driven the lorry in a rash and negligent manner dashing against a tree resulting in death of three persons and causing grievous injuries to three others travelling in it — PW 10 (RTO) explicitly stating that the accident was not on account of mechanical failure — Eyewitnesses to the occurrence also stating that the vehicle was being driven at a very high speed and that the road was quite wide and there was no traffic at the time of accident — Hence, conviction under Ss. 304-A and 337 sustainable — Sentence of 6 months' simple imprisonment and fine of Rs 300 affirmed — Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, Ss. 183, 184 and 187 (Paras 2, 6, 7 and 8). Rathnashalvan v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 3 SCC 474: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 84: AIR 2007 SC 1064: 2007 Cri LJ 1451: (2007) 52 AIC 240 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-2007]

Nidamarti Nagabhushanam, In re, 7 Mad HCR 119, approved

[7701] — Ss. 304-A, 337 and 338 — Meaning of culpable negligence for the purpose of the sections — Collision between bus and goods train at level crossing — Culpability of bus driver in the circumstances not found

Culpable negligence lies in the failure to exercise reasonable and proper care and the extent of its reasonableness will always depend upon the circumstances of each case.

In a case of accident on a railway level crossing where the gate is open and there is no train scheduled to pass at the time, the driver would be justified in driving his vehicle through the level crossing. Passenger trains have a time schedule and if a train is expected to come at about the time the appellant reached the level crossing, a regular driver of motor vehicles on that route may, perhaps, be found negligent in crossing the railway track, if by any mischance, the gate was open. But in the case where a goods train not scheduled to pass the level crossing, comes just about the time the bus reached the spot and an accident takes place, the appellant cannot be held guilty of criminal negligence because he may not have known that a goods train would be coming at that moment. In such circumstances the appellant will not be guilty merely because he did not stop when the road signal wanted him to stop. Such a case will be a case of unavoidable accident because of the negligence of the gateman in keeping the gate open and inviting the vehicles to pass. S.N. Hussain v. State of A.P., (1972) 3 SCC 18: 1972 SCC (Cri) 254: AIR 1972 SC 685: 1972 Cri LJ 496.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-1972]

[7702] — Ss. 304-A, 337 and 338 — Rash act compared with criminal negligence

Rashness consists in hazarding a dangerous or wanton act with the knowledge that it is so, and that it may cause injury. The criminality lies in such a case in running the risk of doing such an act with recklessness or indifference as to the consequences. Criminal negligence on the other hand, is the gross and culpable neglect or failure to exercise that reasonable and proper care and precaution to guard against injury either to the public generally or to an individual in particular, which, having regard to all the circumstances out of which the charge has arisen, it was the imperative duty of the accused person to have adopted. S.N. Hussain v. State of A.P., (1972) 3 SCC 18: 1972 SCC (Cri) 254: AIR 1972 SC 685: 1972 Cri LJ 496.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-1972]

(3) Causation

[7703] — S. 304-A — Scope — Charge for negligently and rashly manufacturing glucose solution in normal saline causing death — Accused-appellant giving batch number to all the lots manufactured on same day and using a chemical component from source unknown — Questions to be determined by the court — Evidence disclosing prevailing practice of giving single batch number to several lots — Analyst's duty to test the materials before issuing for injection — Total dereliction of duty by analysts — Non-compliance of drug rules does not make appellant's act alone causa causans of the deaths

In a prosecution for an offence under S. 304-A of IPC, the court has to examine whether the alleged act of the accused is the direct result of a rash and negligent act and that act was the proximate and efficient cause of the death without intervention of another's negligence. The mere fact that an accused contravenes certain rules or regulations in doing of an act does not establish an offence under S. 304-A, IPC.

The act causing deaths must be the causa causans; it is not enough that it may have been the causa sine qua non. The court has to determine whether the act of the accused is the causa causans or there has been a cause intervening which has broken the chain of causation so as to make the act of the accused, though a negligent one, not the immediate cause or whether it amounts to an act of gross negligence or recklessly negligent conduct. The fact that twelve lives have been lost, however shocking and regrettable it may be, ought not to allow the mind to be boggled while appreciating the evidence. Ambalal D. Bhatt v. State of Gujarat, (1972) 3 SCC 525: 1972 SCC (Cri) 618: AIR 1972 SC 1150: 1972 Cri LJ 727.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-3-1972]

Emperor v. Omkar Rampratap, (1902) 4 Bom LR 679, approved

[7704] — S. 304-A — Death caused by rash or negligent act — Death must be direct or proximate result of rash or negligent act of accused

Where the appellant allowed the manufacture of wet paints in the same room where varnish and turpentine were stored and the fire resulted because of the proximity of the burners to the stored varnish and turpentine, he cannot be held responsible for the death of the seven workmen who were burnt in the fire. The direct or proximate cause of the fire which resulted in seven deaths was the act of H who was apparently in a hurry and, therefore, he did not perhaps allow the rosin to cool down sufficiently and poured turpentine too quickly. It was found that H was not as careful as he should have been and probably did not wait sufficiently for bitumen or rosin to cool down and added turpentine too quickly.

The mere fact that the appellant allowed the burners to be used in the same room in which varnish and turpentine were stored, even though it might be a negligent act, would not be enough to make the appellant responsible for the fire which broke out. The cause of the fire was not merely the presence of burners in the room in which varnish and turpentine were stored, though this circumstance was indirectly responsible for the fire which broke out. What S. 304-A requires is causing of death by doing any rash or negligent act, and this means that death must be the direct or proximate result of the rash or negligent act. The mere fact that the fire would not have taken place if the appellant had not allowed burners to be put in the same room in which turpentine and varnish were stored, would not be enough to make him liable under S. 304-A, for the fire would not have taken place, with the result that seven persons were burnt to death, without the negligence of H. The death in this case was, therefore, not directly the result of a rash or negligent act on the part of the appellant and was not the proximate and efficient cause without the intervention of another's negligence. Kurban Hussein Mohamedalli Rangawalla v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1965 SC 1616: (1965) 2 SCR 622: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 550, 551.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.N. Wanchoo and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-12-1964]

(4) Proof of criminal negligence

See also generally under CRIMINAL TRIAL in Vols. 18, 19 and 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

[7705] — S. 304-A — Causing death by rash and negligent driving — Burden of proof — Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur applied — Death of passengers in bus accident — Fact admitted that the appellant driver was driving the vehicle when accident occurred — Held, in view of the facts, burden was on appellant to prove that the accident happened due to causes other than negligence on his part — In absence of the said proof, conviction of appellant by trial court and subsequent confirmation of it by High Court upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 101 and 103 (Para 4). Thakur Singh v. State of Punjab, (2003) 9 SCC 208.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-2000]

[7706] — S. 304-A — Non-cross-examination on crucial aspects by the defence — Effect

Where evidence clearly discloses that: (1) the truck was being driven at a very high speed, (2) it was having no lights, (3) it was being driven without the driver sounding the horn, and (4) the visibility was very poor at that time, and there is no cross-examination on the above crucial aspects by the defence, the finding that the accident happened due to rash and negligent driving of the truck is justified. Amar Singh v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 273: 1971 SCC (Cri) 530.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1971]

[7707] — S. 304-A — On facts motor accident caused owing to misjudgment and not negligence — Maxim res ipsa loquitur, held, not applicable

A woman accompanied by her 4-year-old daughter came out of her village to cross the highway. While crossing the road the mother asked the child to go back home, but when the mother had crossed the road and descended into the deep ditch on the other side, the child suddenly dashed across the road to join her mother and was caught under the left front wheel of a passenger bus driven by the accused and was crushed to death. According to the eyewitness account of the four passengers of the bus, at the material time the accused was driving the bus slowly as a narrow bridge was 30 feet ahead and when the child suddenly appeared on the road, he immediately swerved the vehicle to the extreme right side of the road in order to save the collision. It was also clear that if he had moved the bus further to the right it would have fallen in the ditch endangering the lives of the passengers. The prosecution, however, treated all the eyewitnesses as hostile and with the permission of the court cross-examined them to impeach their credit. The Public Prosecutor only contradicted the police statement of the eyewitnesses that the accident took place due to the negligence of the accused and not by statements relating to each of the facts. The trial Court disbelieved the evidence of the eyewitnesses. On appeal, the Sessions Judge while agreeing with the unreliability of the eyewitnesses, upheld his conviction applying the principle of res ipsa loquitur and the High Court endorsed that view.

Held :

On facts the circumstances of taking the vehicle suddenly to the extreme right of the road, did not bespeak negligence or dereliction of duty to exercise due care and control, on the part of the accused, in clear and unambiguous voice. Nor could it be said, that the cause of swerving the vehicle to the right, was unknown. The accused gave a reasonably convincing explanation of his conduct in doing so, and his version was fully supported by four prosecution witnesses who had seen the occurrence. In these circumstances, the maxim res ipsa loquitur could have no manner of application.

The accident happened due to an error of judgment, and not negligence or want of driving skill on the part of the accused. An error of judgment of the kind such as the one in the instant case which comes to light only on post-accident reflection, but could not be foreseen by the accused in that fragmented moment before the accident is not a sure index of negligence, particularly, when in taking and executing that decision the accused was acting with the knowledge and in the belief that this was the best course to be adopted in the circumstances for everyone's safety.

The prosecution had failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the appellant had caused the death of the child by negligent or rash driving. All happened in fraction of a moment; and even if the worst was assumed against the appellant, the highest that could be said was that it was a misjudgment on his part too slight to be branded as culpable negligence. Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59: AIR 1979 SC 1848: 1979 Cri LJ 1374: 1980 MLJ (Cri) 265.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and R.S. Pathak, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-1979]

[7708] — S. 304-A — Res ipsa loquitur — Nature and scope of — Applicability of the said principle in criminal law — Held, said rule cannot be pressed into service for determining per se the liability for negligence in criminal law and case under S. 304-A cannot be decided solely by applying the said rule — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 114

Res ipsa loquitur is only a rule of evidence and operates in the domain of civil law, specially in cases of tort and helps in determining the onus of proof in actions relating to negligence. Inference as to negligence may be drawn from proved circumstances by applying the rule if the cause of the accident is unknown and no reasonable explanation as to the cause is coming forth from the defendant. The said rule cannot be pressed in service for determining per se the liability for negligence within the domain of criminal law. Res ipsa loquitur has, if at all, a limited application in trial on a charge of criminal negligence. In criminal proceedings, the burden of proving negligence as an essential ingredient of the offence lies on the prosecution. Such ingredient cannot be said to have been proved or made out by resorting to the said rule. A case under Section 304-A IPC cannot be decided solely by applying the rule of res ipsa loquitur. [Paras 48(8) and 27]. Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59, relied on

Krishnan v. State of Kerala, (1996) 10 SCC 508: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1375, explained

[7709] — S. 304-A — Whether accused guilty of negligence and if his negligence caused the death, held, are questions of fact — Such questions fall outside the High Court's jurisdiction in revision and Supreme Court's jurisdiction in special leave. Duli Chand v. Delhi Admn., (1975) 4 SCC 649: 1975 SCC (Cri) 663: AIR 1975 SC 1960: 1975 Cri LJ 1732: 1976 MLJ (Cri) 345.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-8-1975]

[7710] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Dead body of the deceased child found 2 feet away from the bus and 3 feet away from the pavement on the right side of the road — No mechanical failure — Appellant-accused admittedly did not err in judging — Spot mahazar revealed that bus was dragged for about 20 to 25 feet after brake was applied — Contents of mahazar not challenged — Post-mortem report and evidence of PW 1 (eyewitness) similar as regards several injuries — PW 1's statement that the bus was driven at a high speed, held, credible — Ascription of slow speed (i.e. 15-20 km per hour) by another witness, held, was rightly rejected

A bus callously driven by appellant-accused dashed against a girl of 7 years and she got killed. His conviction for rash and negligent driving under Sections 304-A and 279 IPC was upheld by the High Court by modifying the jail sentence and quantum of fine.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

The evidence of PW 1 alone was sufficient to hold that the appellant was guilty of the said offences. According to PW 1 the child sustained grievous injuries on head and other parts of the body. In answer to a question put to him in cross-examination, he stated that the bus was being driven at a high speed. The mahazar, was marked as Ext. P-2. The contents of the mahazar were not challenged. The spot mahazar disclosed that there was a break mark for about 20-25 feet on the road. The post-mortem report also proved by PW 12 revealed that the deceased sustained several external injuries. Depressed wound and normal clots were present in right temporal region. The dead body of the girl was found 2 feet away from the bus. It was only 3 feet away from the pavement on the right side of the road. The bus admittedly did not have any mechanical failure. The appellant did not say that there was an error of judgment on his part. Reliance by the appellant on the deposition of one of the prosecution witnesses that the bus was being driven at a speed of 15-20 kilometres per hour, has rightly not been accepted. (Paras 8 to 11). B. Nagabhushanam v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 5 SCC 730: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 61: AIR 2008 SC 2557: (2007) 67 AIC 42(2) (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

[7711] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Res ipsa loquitur (the thing speaks for itself) — Held, applicable in criminal cases

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur would apply to criminal cases. In Syad Akbar case, (1980) 1 SCC 30 the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur was not applied having regard to the fact of a said case and on the finding that it was a case of error of judgment and the accused gave a reasonable, convincing explanation of his conduct. However, the said principle was applied in a case under the Prevention of Corruption Act in C. Uma Maheswara Rao case, (2004) 4 SCC 399. (Para 12). B. Nagabhushanam v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 5 SCC 730: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 61: AIR 2008 SC 2557: (2007) 67 AIC 42(2) (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

State of A.P. v. C. Uma Maheswara Rao, (2004) 4 SCC 399: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1276, applied

Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59, distinguished

[7712] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Sufficiency of proof

The driver of a bus was prosecuted under Ss. 304-A and 279, IPC for carrying on the roof of his bus some corrugated iron sheets which fell owing to jolting of the bus on a kutcha road resulting in injuries to some persons and death of one.

Held :

Although the accused was said to have been carrying corrugated iron sheets on the roof of his bus, no attempt was made by the prosecution to find out if at all any corrugated iron sheets were being carried by the accused nor did the prosecution care to find out who the owner of the bus was and who had loaded the iron sheets. Unless there was proof that the iron sheets were put by the accused in a negligent manner or that he did not tie them properly, it is difficult to sustain his conviction under S. 304-A of the Indian Penal Code.

The accused could not also be convicted for rash driving under S. 279 of the Indian Penal Code because there was hardly any evidence worth the name from which it could be inferred that the speed of the bus was such that any iron sheets even if it be assumed that they were loaded on the roof of the bus fell down because of driving at a high speed. Baijnath Singh v. State of Bihar, (1972) 2 SCC 264: 1972 SCC (Cri) 667: AIR 1972 SC 1485: 1972 Cri LJ 919: (1972) 9 ACC 275.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1972]

(5) Medical negligence

See also under CONSUMER PROTECTION in Vol. 12, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vols. 1 and 2 of SC on Consumer Protection

[7713] — S. 304-A — Scope — Whether accused liable under the circumstances

On facts it cannot be said that the death of the deceased was the direct result of any act of the accused nor was his driving the proximate and efficient cause. Kishan Chand v. State of Haryana, (1970) 3 SCC 904: (1971) 73 Punj LR 191.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-1970]

[7714] — S. 304-A — Criminal medical negligence — Medical negligence — Criminal negligence — Essence of — Held, criminal negligence involves rashness of a degree amounting to taking of a hazard knowing that it was of such a degree that injury was most likely imminent — Element of criminality is introduced by running the risk of doing such act with recklessness and indifference to consequences thereof

Negligence is the breach of a duty exercised by omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided by those considerations which ordinarily regulate the conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. [Paras 89(I) and 86]

Negligence is an essential ingredient of the offence under Section 304-A IPC. The negligence to be established by the prosecution must be culpable or gross and not the negligence merely based upon an error of judgment. [Paras 89(II) and 86]

The medical professional is expected to bring a reasonable degree of skill and knowledge and must exercise a reasonable degree of care. Neither the very highest nor a very low degree of care and competence judged in the light of the particular circumstances of each case is what the law requires. [Paras 89(III) and 57]

A medical practitioner would be liable only where his conduct fell below that of the standards of a reasonably competent practitioner in his field. [Para 89(IV)]

In the realm of diagnosis and treatment there is scope for genuine difference of opinion and one professional doctor is clearly not negligent merely because his conclusion differs from that of other professional doctors. [Para 89(V)]

The medical professional is often called upon to adopt a procedure which involves higher element of risk, but which he honestly believes as providing greater chances of success for the patient rather than a procedure involving lesser risk but higher chances of failure. Just because a professional looking to the gravity of illness has taken higher element of risk to redeem the patient out of his/her suffering which did not yield the desired result may not amount to negligence. [Para 89(VI)]

Negligence cannot be attributed to a doctor so long as he performs his duties with reasonable skill and competence. Merely because the doctor chooses one course of action in preference to the other one available, he would not be liable if the course of action chosen by him was acceptable to the medical profession. [Para 89(VII)]

The present case is concerned with criminal negligence. To determine the same, the question that needs to be determined is whether the rashness was of such a degree as to amount to taking a hazard knowing that the hazard was of such a degree that injury was most likely imminent. The element of criminality is introduced by the accused having run the risk of doing such an act with recklessness and indifference to the consequences. (Para 62)

To prosecute a medical professional for negligence under criminal law it must be shown that the accused did something or failed to do something which in the given facts and circumstances no medical professional in his ordinary senses and prudence would have done or failed to do. The hazard taken by the accused doctor should be of such a nature that the injury which resulted was most likely imminent. (Para 87)

A clear distinction exists between "simple lack of care" incurring civil liability and "very high degree of negligence" which is required in criminal cases. (Para 63)

To defend himself against a charge of medical negligence it is enough for the defendant to show that the standard of care and the skill attained was that of the ordinary competent medical practitioner exercising an ordinary degree of professional skill. The fact that in the present case the respondent charged with negligence acted in accordance with the general and approved practice is enough to clear him of the charge. Two things are pertinent. Firstly, the standard of care, when assessing the practice as adopted, is judged in the light of knowledge available at the time (of the incident), and not at the date of trial. Secondly, when the charge of negligence arises out of failure to use some particular equipment, the charge would fail if the equipment was not generally available at that point of time on which it is suggested as should have been used. (Para 72)

A mere deviation from normal professional practice is not necessarily evidence of negligence. (Para 73)

The medical texts speak of both the approaches for adrenalectomy as adopted in the present case. Nowhere has the appellant been able to support her contention that posterior approach was the only possible and proper approach and Respondent 3 was negligent in adopting the anterior approach. (Para 18)

Dr. K, Respondent 3 who performed the operation had reasonable degree of skill and knowledge. In the instant case, expert opinion is in favour of the procedure adopted by Respondent 3 at the time of surgery. The test is the standard of ordinary skilled man exercising and professing to have that special skill. (Paras 54 and 57)

Therefore, it has to be held that the appellants have failed to make out any case of medical negligence against the respondents. The National Commission was justified in dismissing the complaint of the appellants. (Paras 91 and 92). Kusum Sharma v. Batra Hospital, (2010) 3 SCC 480.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dalveer Bhandari and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision : 10-2-2010]

Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1, reiterated

Ratanlal & Dhirajlal: Law of Torts; Charlesworth & Percy on Negligence (10th Edn., 2001), Para 1.13; Charlesworth & Percy on Negligence (10th Edn., 2001), Paras 8.03, 8.04; Halsbury's Laws of England (4th Edn., Vol. 30, para 35); Peritoneum, Retroperitoneum and Mesentery, Section IV; Principles of Surgery, 18th Edn., p. 560; Clive S. Grant and Jon A. Van Heerden: Technical Aspects of Adrenalectomy, Ch. 35; Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th Edn., Vol. 26 pp. 17-18, referred to

R. v. Lawrence, 1982 AC 510: (1981) 2 WLR 524: (1981) 1 All ER 974 (HL); Metropolitan Police Commr. v. Caldwell, 1982 AC 341: (1981) 2 WLR 509: (1981) 1 All ER 961 (HL), followed

Achutrao Haribhau Khodwa v. State of Maharashtra, (1996) 2 SCC 634; Spring Meadows Hospital v. Harjol Ahluwalia, (1998) 4 SCC 39; Whitehouse v. Jordan, (1981) 1 WLR 246: (1981) 1 All ER 267 (HL); C.P. Sreekumar (Dr.) v. S. Ramanujam, (2009) 7 SCC 130; Andrews v. Director of Public Prosecutions, 1937 AC 576: (1937) 2 All ER 552 (HL); Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59; Bhalchandra v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 1319: 1968 Cri LJ 1501; Bolam v. Friern Hospital Management Committee, (1957) 1 WLR 582: (1957) 2 All ER 118; Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369; Eckersley v. Binnie, (1988) 18 Con LR 1; Hucks v. Cole, (1968) 118 New LJ 469; Maynard v. West Midlands Regl. Health Authority, (1984) 1 WLR 634: (1985) 1 All ER 635 (HL); Hunter v. Hanley, 1955 SLT 213; Chin Keow v. Govt. of Malaysia, (1967) 1 WLR 813 (PC), relied on

Bolam v. Friern Hospital Management Committee, (1957) 1 WLR 582: (1957) 2 All ER 118, explained

Roe v. Minister of Health, (1954) 2 QB 66: (1954) 2 WLR 915: (1954) 2 All ER 131 (CA), approved

State of Haryana v. Santra, (2000) 5 SCC 182, distinguished

Poonam Verma v. Ashwin Patel, (1996) 4 SCC 332, considered

70 Corpus Juris Secundum (1951) 952, 953, Para 44; Black's Law Dictionary, cited

[7715] — S. 304-A — Death due to criminal medical negligence — Liability of doctors under — When attracted — Death due to administration of medicine of which knowledge not possessed by doctor, though professed expressly or impliedly, held, prima facie constitutes criminal medical negligence

A doctor who administers a medicine known to or used in a particular branch of medical profession impliedly declares that he has knowledge of that branch of science and if he does not, in fact, possess that knowledge, he is prima facie acting with rashness or negligence. (Para 40). Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

[7716] — S. 304-A — Death due to criminal medical negligence — Liability of doctors under — When attracted — Test to be applied — Special treatment of doctors — Rationale for, discussed in detail — Held, it must be shown that accused doctor did something or failed to do something which in the given facts and circumstances no medical professional in his ordinary senses and prudence would have done or failed to do — Hazard taken by accused doctor should be of such a nature that injury which resulted was most likely imminent — On facts, aged patient in advanced stage of terminal cancer experiencing breathing difficulties about 11 p.m. at night and succumbing due to unavailability of oxygen cylinders with oxygen, which was sought to be administered by appellant-accused doctor — Held, it is a case of non-availability of oxygen cylinders for which hospital may be liable in tort, but appellant cannot be proceeded against under S. 304-A on parameters of Bolam test, (1957) 2 All ER 118, 121 D-F [set out in para 19 in SCC]

On 15-2-1995, the informant's father, late Jiwan Lal Sharma was admitted as a patient in a private ward of CMC Hospital, Ludhiana. On 22-2-1995 at about 11 p.m., Jiwan Lal felt difficulty in breathing. The complainant's elder brother, Vijay Sharma who was present in the room contacted the duty nurse, who in her turn called some doctor to attend to the patient. No doctor turned up for about 20 to 25 minutes. Then, Dr. Jacob Mathew, the appellant and Dr. Allen Joseph came to the room of the patient. An oxygen cylinder was brought and connected to the mouth of the patient but the breathing problem increased further. The patient tried to get up but the medical staff asked him to remain in bed. The oxygen cylinder was found to be empty. There was no other gas cylinder available in the room. Vijay Sharma went to the adjoining room and brought a gas cylinder therefrom. However, there was no arrangement to make the gas cylinder functional and in-between, 5 to 7 minutes were wasted. By this time, another doctor arrived who declared that the patient was dead. On the abovesaid report, an offence under Sections 304-A/34 IPC was registered and investigated. On charges having been filed against the two doctors, and their failure to obtain quashment thereof in all the forums below, the appellant was before the Supreme Court by special leave.

Allowing the appeals,

Held:

Indiscriminate prosecution of medical professionals for criminal negligence is counter-productive and does no service or good to society. A medical practitioner faced with an emergency ordinarily tries his best to redeem the patient out of his suffering. He does not gain anything by acting with negligence or by omitting to do an act. Obviously, therefore, it will be for the complainant to clearly make out a case of negligence before a medical practitioner is charged with or proceeded against criminally. A surgeon with shaky hands under fear of legal action cannot perform a successful operation and a quivering physician cannot administer the end-dose of medicine to his patient. If the hands be trembling with the dangling fear of facing a criminal prosecution in the event of failure for whatever reason — whether attributable to himself or not, neither can a surgeon successfully wield his life-saving scalpel to perform an essential surgery, nor can a physician successfully administer the life-saving dose of medicine. Discretion being the better part of valour, a medical professional would feel better advised to leave a terminal patient to his own fate in the case of emergency where the chance of success may be 10% (or so), rather than taking the risk of making a last ditch effort towards saving the subject and facing a criminal prosecution if his effort fails. Such timidity forced upon a doctor would be a disservice to society. (Paras 28, 29 and 47)

The criminal law has invariably placed medical professionals on a pedestal different from ordinary mortals. The Penal Code enacted as far back as in the year 1860 sets out a few vocal examples, in Sections 88, 92 and 93. (Para 34)

The word "gross" has not been used in Section 304-A IPC, yet it is settled that in criminal law negligence or recklessness, to be so held, must be of such a high degree as to be "gross". The expression "rash or negligent act" as occurring in Section 304-A IPC has to be read as qualified by the word "grossly". To impose criminal liability under Section 304-A, the Penal Code, it is necessary that the death should have been the direct result of a rash and negligent act of the accused, and that act must be the proximate and efficient cause without the intervention of another's negligence. It must be the causa causans; it is not enough that it may have been the causa sine qua non. [Paras 48(6) and 38]

To prosecute a medical professional for negligence under criminal law it must be shown that the accused did something or failed to do something which in the given facts and circumstances no medical professional in his ordinary senses and prudence would have done or failed to do. The hazard taken by the accused doctor should be of such a nature that the injury which resulted was most likely imminent. [Para 48(7)]

In the present case all the averments made in the complaint, even if held to be proved, do not make out a case of criminal rashness or negligence on the part of the accused-appellant. It is not the case of the complainant that the accused-appellant was not a doctor qualified to treat the patient whom he agreed to treat. It is a case of non-availability of oxygen cylinders either because of the hospital having failed to keep available a gas cylinder or because of the gas cylinder being found empty. Then, probably the hospital may be liable in civil law or may be not, but the accused-appellant cannot be proceeded against under Section 304-A IPC on the parameters of the Bolam test, (1957) 2 All ER 118, at p. 121 D-F [set out in para 19 in SCC]. (Para 53). Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

Suresh Gupta (Dr.) v. Govt. (NCT of Delhi), (2004) 6 SCC 422: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1785, affirmed

John Oni Akerele v. R., AIR 1943 PC 72: 44 Cri LJ 569; Kurban Hussein Mohammedali Rangwalla v. State of Maharashtra, (1965) 2 SCR 622: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 550; Kishan Chand v. State of Haryana, (1970) 3 SCC 904; Juggankhan v. State of M.P., (1965) 1 SCR 14: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 763, relied on

Emperor v. Omkar Rampratap, (1902) 4 Bom LR 679, held, approved

[Ed.: The Supreme Court has made an extensive discussion of the various issues that may arise in cases of civil medical negligence as noted under Short Note J. It would seem that all the conclusions in respect thereof would be applicable mutatis mutandis to cases of criminal medical negligence, the difference being that all rulings would have to be considered in the context of the higher level of negligence necessary to constitute criminal negligence.]

[7717] — S. 304-A — Degree of medical negligence necessary to attract provisions of — Death due to negligence in performance of rhinoplasty — Cause of death stated to be non-introduction of endotracheal tube of proper size to prevent aspiration of blood from wound in respiratory passage — Held, such act, even if attributed to be true, can be described as a negligent act as there was lack of due care and precaution, which may attract liability in tort but the carelessness or want of due attention and skill cannot be described to be so reckless or grossly negligent as to attract criminal liability

No doubt, in the present case, the patient was a young man with no history of any heart ailment. The operation to be performed for nasal deformity was not so complicated or serious. He was not accompanied even by his own wife during the operation. From the medical opinions produced by the prosecution, the cause of death is stated to be "not introducing a cuffed endotracheal tube of proper size as to prevent aspiration of blood from the wound in the respiratory passage". This act attributed to the doctor, even if accepted to be true, can be described as negligent act as there was lack of due care and precaution. For this act of negligence he may be liable in tort but his carelessness or want of due attention and skill cannot be described to be so reckless or grossly negligent as to make him criminally liable. (Para 24). Suresh Gupta (Dr.) v. Govt. (NCT of Delhi), (2004) 6 SCC 422: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1785: AIR 2004 SC 4091: (2004) 3 KLT 14: (2004) 112 DLT 866.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and D.M. Dharmadhikari, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-8-2004]

Affirmed in Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1

[7718] — S. 304-A — Delay on the part of the doctor to attend on the patient — Held, it may at worst be a case of civil negligence and not one of culpable negligence — That apart death of patient being due to poisoning and there being no allegation against the doctor that he administered poison to the patient no prima facie case of rash or negligent act on the part of the doctor made out — Charge-sheet quashed — CrPC, 1973, S. 482. Rakesh Ranjan Gupta v. State of U.P., (1999) 1 SCC 188: 1999 SCC (Cri) 76: AIR 1999 SC 2115: 1999 ACJ 807.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.M. Punchhi, C.J. and K.T. Thomas and S. Rajendra Babu, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1998]

[7719] — S. 304-A — Liability of doctors under, for death due to medical negligence — Degree of negligence required to be proved — Held, where a patient dies due to negligent medical treatment of a doctor, if the degree of negligence is so gross and the act of the doctor was so reckless as to endanger the life of the patient, the doctor would be made criminally liable, in addition to any civil liability in tort — For every mishap or death during medical treatment however, the medical man cannot be proceeded against for punishment — Reason therefor set out

The legal position is almost firmly established that where a patient dies due to the negligent medical treatment of the doctor, the doctor can be made liable in civil law for paying compensation and damages in tort and at the same time, if the degree of negligence is so gross and his act was so reckless as to endanger the life of the patient, he would also be made criminally liable for offence under Section 304-A IPC. (Para 12)

For fixing criminal liability on a doctor or surgeon, the standard of negligence required to be proved should be so high as can be described as "gross negligence" or "recklessness". It is not merely lack of necessary care, attention and skill. Thus, when a patient agrees to go for medical treatment or surgical operation, every careless act of the medical man cannot be termed as "criminal". It can be termed "criminal" only when the medical man exhibits a gross lack of competence or inaction and wanton indifference to his patient's safety and which is found to have arisen from gross ignorance or gross negligence. Where a patient's death results merely from error of judgment or an accident, no criminal liability should be attached to it. Mere inadvertence or some degree of want of adequate care and caution might create civil liability but would not suffice to hold him criminally liable. For every mishap or death during medical treatment, the medical man cannot be proceeded against for punishment. Criminal prosecutions of doctors without adequate medical opinion pointing to their guilt would be doing great disservice to the community at large because if the courts were to impose criminal liability on hospitals and doctors for everything that goes wrong, the doctors would be more worried about their own safety than giving all best treatment to their patients. This would lead to shaking the mutual confidence between the doctor and the patient. Every mishap or misfortune in the hospital or clinic of a doctor is not a gross act of negligence to try him for an offence of culpable negligence. (Paras 20 to 23, 25 and 26). Suresh Gupta (Dr.) v. Govt. (NCT of Delhi), (2004) 6 SCC 422: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1785: AIR 2004 SC 4091: (2004) 3 KLT 14: (2004) 112 DLT 866.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and D.M. Dharmadhikari, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-8-2004]

R. v. Adomako, (1994) 3 All ER 79 (HL), relied on

Affirmed in Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1

[7720] — S. 304-A — Medical negligence — Negligence — Concepts of, in civil law and criminal law — Distinction between — Held, "simple lack of care" attracts civil liability whereas "very high degree of negligence" is required in criminal cases — Consumer Protection Act, 1986, Ss. 2(c), (g) and (o) (Para 73). Kusum Sharma v. Batra Hospital, (2010) 3 SCC 480.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dalveer Bhandari and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision : 10-2-2010]

[7721] — S. 304-A — Medical negligence — Requirement to obtain independent medical opinion before investigation is initiated against a doctor — Direction given in Jacob Mathew case, (2005) 6 SCC 1, para 52 — Held, is meant for criminal cases and not for civil cases filed in Consumer Fora for the purpose of determining civil liability — General directions given in Martin F. D'Souza case, (2009) 3 SCC 1, para 106 extending the same to civil cases, held, are per incuriam and not binding — Consumer Forum can give appropriate relief on the basis of summary trial on affidavits — Consumer Forum can also, in its discretion, permit expert evidence but it is not bound by views expressed by expert because medical negligence is a mixed question of law and fact, to be resolved finally by Forum — In complicated civil cases requiring expert evidence, parties are also free to approach civil court instead of Consumer Forum — Consumer Protection Act, 1986, Ss. 1(o), 3, 13 and 14 — CPC, 1908, S. 9 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 45

Directions given in para 52 of Jacob Mathew case, were not given in respect of complaints filed before the Consumer Fora under the Consumer Protection Act wherein medical negligence is treated as civil liability for payment of damages. This distinction has been overlooked in Martin F. D'Souza case. The directions given in D'Souza are not consistent with the law laid down by the larger Bench in Mathew. The direction in Mathew for consulting the opinion of another doctor before proceeding with criminal investigation was confined only in cases of criminal complaint and not in respect of cases before the Consumer Fora. The reason why the larger Bench in Mathew did not equate the two is obvious in view of the jurisprudential and conceptual difference between cases of negligence in civil and criminal matter. This has been elaborately discussed in Mathew. This distinction has been accepted in the judgment in Malay Kumar Ganguly case, (2009) 9 SCC 221. (Paras 30 to 33)

When a judgment is rendered by ignoring the provisions of the governing statute and earlier larger Bench decisions on the point such decisions are rendered per incuriam. The two-Judge Bench in D'Souza case, (2009) 3 SCC 1, has taken note of the decisions in Indian Medical Assn. case, (1995) 6 SCC 651 and Mathew case, (2005) 6 SCC 1, but even after taking note of those two decisions, D'Souza gave those general directions in para 106 which are contrary to the principles laid down in both those larger Bench decisions. The larger Bench decision in J.J. Merchant case, (2002) 6 SCC 635 has not been noted in D'Souza. Apart from that, the directions in para 106 in D'Souza are contrary to the provisions of the governing statute. That is why those directions cannot be accepted as constituting a binding precedent in cases of medical negligence before the Consumer Fora. Those directions are also inconsistent with the avowed purpose of the said Act. (Paras 54 and 55)

Those directions are also contrary to the avowed purposes of the Act. In this connection we must remember that the Act was brought about in the background of a worldwide movement for consumer protection. It is clear from the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Act that it is to provide a forum for speedy and simple redressal of consumer disputes. Such avowed legislative purpose cannot be either defeated or diluted by superimposing a requirement of having expert evidence in all cases of medical negligence regardless of factual requirement of the case. If that is done the efficacy of remedy under the Act will be substantially curtailed and in many cases the remedy will become illusory to the common man. (Paras 43 and 45)

The directions given in para 106 of D'Souza are contrary to (a) the law laid down in para 37 of Indian Medical Assn., (b) and para 19 in J.J. Merchant, (c) those directions in para 106 of D'Souza equate medical negligence in criminal trial and negligence fastening civil liability whereas the earlier larger Bench in Mathew elaborately differentiated between the two concepts, (d) those directions in D'Souza are contrary to the Consumer Protection Act which is the governing statute, (e) those directions are also contrary to the avowed purpose of the Act, which is to provide a speedy and efficacious remedy to the consumer. If those general directions are followed then in many cases the remedy under the said Act will become illusory, (f) those directions run contrary to the principle of res ipsa loquitur which has matured into a rule of law in some cases of medical negligence where negligence is evident and obvious. (Paras 35, 36, 38 and 53)

In the facts and circumstances of this case, expert evidence was not required and the District Forum rightly did not ask the appellant to adduce expert evidence. (Para 59). V. Kishan Rao v. Nikhil Super Speciality Hospital, (2010) 5 SCC 513.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : G.S. Singhvi and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision : 8-3-2010]

Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369, clarified and followed

Malay Kumar Ganguly v. Dr. Sukumar Mukherjee, (2009) 9 SCC 221: (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 299; Indian Medical Assn. v. V.P. Shantha, (1995) 6 SCC 651; J.J. Merchant (Dr.) v. Shrinath Chaturvedi, (2002) 6 SCC 635; R. v. Lawrence, 1982 AC 510: (1981) 2 WLR 524: (1981) 1 All ER 974 (HL); Andrews v. Director of Public Prosecutions, 1937 AC 576: (1937) 2 All ER 552 (HL); Potts (or Riddell) v. Reid, 1943 AC 1: (1942) 2 All ER 161 (HL), relied on

Martin F. D'Souza v. Mohd. Ishfaq, (2009) 3 SCC 1: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 958, held per incuriam on this point

[7722] — Ss. 304-A, 88, 92 and 93 — Prosecution of criminal offences against doctors — Detailed guidelines laid down to protect interest of doctors, and to save them from unwarranted and malicious proceedings — Rationale for, discussed in detail — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 204, 201-203 and 70

The investigating officer and the private complainant cannot always be supposed to have knowledge of medical science so as to determine whether the act of the accused medical professional amounts to a rash or negligent act within the domain of criminal law under Section 304-A IPC. The criminal process once initiated subjects the medical professional to serious embarrassment and sometimes harassment. He has to seek bail to escape arrest, which may or may not be granted to him. At the end he may be exonerated by acquittal or discharge but the loss which he has suffered to his reputation cannot be compensated by any standards. Many a complainant prefer recourse to criminal process as a tool for pressurising the medical professional for extracting uncalled for or unjust compensation. Such malicious proceedings have to be guarded against. The service which the medical profession renders to human beings is probably the noblest of all, and hence there is a need for protecting doctors from frivolous or unjust prosecutions. (Paras 50 and 51)

Statutory rules or executive instructions incorporating certain guidelines need to be framed and issued by the Government of India and/or the State Governments in consultation with the Medical Council of India. So long as it is not done, the following guidelines will be in force which shall govern the prosecution of doctors for offences of which criminal rashness or criminal negligence is an ingredient. A private complaint may not be entertained unless the complainant has produced prima facie evidence before the court in the form of a credible opinion given by another competent doctor to support the charge of rashness or negligence on the part of the accused doctor. The investigating officer should, before proceeding against the doctor accused of rash or negligent act or omission, obtain an independent and competent medical opinion preferably from a doctor in government service, qualified in that branch of medical practice who can normally be expected to give an impartial and unbiased opinion applying the Bolam test, (1957) 2 All ER 118, at p. 121 D-F [set out in para 19 in SCC], to the facts collected in the investigation. A doctor accused of rashness or negligence, may not be arrested in a routine manner (simply because a charge has been levelled against him). Unless his arrest is necessary for furthering the investigation or for collecting evidence or unless the investigating officer feels satisfied that the doctor proceeded against would not make himself available to face the prosecution unless arrested, the arrest may be withheld. (Para 52). Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369: AIR 2005 SC 3180: (2005) 3 CPR 70 (SC): (2005) 122 DLT 83: (2005) 3 CPJ 9 (II) (SC): 2005 Cri LJ 3710.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2005]

[7723] — Ss. 304-A, 88, 92 and 93 — Prosecution of criminal offences against doctors — Need for restraint and circumspection — Reasons for given

A doctor, in essence, needs to be inventive and has to take snap decisions especially in the course of performing surgery when some unexpected problems crop up or complication sets in. If the medical profession, as a whole, is hemmed in by threat of action, criminal and civil, the consequence will be loss to the patients. No doctor would take a risk, a justifiable risk in the circumstances of a given case, and try to save his patient from a complicated disease or in the face of an unexpected problem that confronts him during the treatment or the surgery. Therefore the setting in motion of the criminal law or claims in tort against the medical profession should be done cautiously and on the basis of reasonably sure grounds. (Para 33). State of Punjab v. Shiv Ram, (2005) 7 SCC 1: AIR 2005 SC 3280.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and C.K. Thakker and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-8-2005]

Jacob Mathew v. State of Punjab, (2005) 6 SCC 1: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1369, affirmed

[Ed.: See also Shortnotes A, C and J in Jacob Mathew case, (2005) 6 SCC 1.]

(6) Motor vehicle accidents

See also S. 279 IPC, in Vol. 1

See also Ss. 337 and 338 IPC

See also Ss. 141 et seq. in Motor Vehicles Act, 1988

[7724] — S. 304-A — Scope — Whether accused liable under the circumstances

On facts it cannot be said that the death of the deceased was the direct result of any act of the accused nor was his driving the proximate and efficient cause. Kishan Chand v. State of Haryana, (1970) 3 SCC 904: (1971) 73 Punj LR 191.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-1970]

[7725] — S. 304-A — Nature and scope — Held, S. 304-A is not limited to rash or negligent driving — Any rash or negligent act whereby death of any person is caused becomes punishable — Two elements either of which or both of which may be proved to establish the guilt of an accused are rashness and negligence — A person may cause death by rash or negligent act which may have nothing to do with driving at all — Negligence and rashness to be punishable in terms of S. 304-A must be attributable to a state of mind wherein the criminality arises because of no error in judgment but of a deliberation in mind risking crime as well as life of person who may lose his life as a result of crime — S. 304-A discloses that criminality may be that apart from any mens rea, there may be no motive or intention still a person may venture or practise such rashness or negligence which may cause death of other — Death so caused is not the determining factor — On facts, bus driven by appellant was hit by a train at railway crossing resulting in death and injuries to passengers — Charges were framed under S. 302 and alternatively under Ss. 304, 325 and 323 IPC — Criminal revision filed by appellant questioning correctness of charges framed, dismissed — Appellant contending that S. 302 IPC had no application herein as he had no intention to kill passengers and at the most it may be S. 304-A — Held, in the instant case, S. 302 IPC prima facie has no application — Accordingly, charges stand altered to S. 304-A along with Ss. 279 and 337 IPC — CrPC, 1973, S. 401

Section 304-A IPC applies to cases where there is no intention to cause death and no knowledge that the act done in all probability will cause death. The provision is directed at offences outside the range of Sections 299 and 300 IPC. Section 304-A applies only to such acts which are rash and negligent and are directly the cause of death of another person. Negligence and rashness are essential elements under Section 304-A. (Para 7)

Section 304-A carves out a specific offence where death is caused by doing a rash or negligent act and that act does not amount to culpable homicide under Section 299 or murder under Section 300. If a person wilfully drives a motor vehicle into the midst of a crowd and thereby causes death to some person, it will not be a case of mere rash and negligent driving and the act will amount to culpable homicide. Doing an act with the intent to kill a person or knowledge that doing an act was likely to cause a person's death is culpable homicide. When intent or knowledge is the direct motivating force of the act, Section 304-A has to make room for the graver and more serious charge of culpable homicide. The provision of this section is not limited to rash or negligent driving. Any rash or negligent act whereby death of any person is caused becomes punishable. Two elements either of which or both of which may be proved to establish the guilt of an accused are rashness/negligence; a person may cause death by a rash or negligent act which may have nothing to do with driving at all. Negligence and rashness to be punishable in terms of Section 304-A must be attributable to a state of mind wherein the criminality arises because of no error in judgment but of a deliberation in the mind risking the crime as well as the life of the person who may lose his life as a result of the crime. Section 304-A discloses that criminality may be that apart from any mens rea, there may be no motive or intention still a person may venture or practise such rashness or negligence which may cause the death of other. The death so caused is not the determining factor. (Para 8)

What amounts to negligence depends on the facts of each particular case. It may consist in omitting to do something which ought to be done or in doing something which ought to be done either in a different manner or not at all. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which can be reasonably foreseen to be likely to cause physical injury to persons or property. The degree of care required in the particular case depends on the surrounding circumstances, and may vary according to the amount of the risk to be encountered and to the magnitude of the prospective injury. The duty of care is owed only to those persons who are in the area of foreseeable danger; the fact that the act of the defendant violated his duty of care to a third person does not enable the plaintiff who is also injured by the same act to claim unless he is also within the area of foreseeable danger. The same act or omission may accordingly in some circumstances involve liability as being negligent, although in other circumstances it will not do so. The material considerations are the absence of care which is on the part of the defendant owed to the plaintiff in the circumstances of the case and damage suffered by the plaintiff, together with a demonstrable relation of cause and effect between the two. (Para 9)

Negligence is conduct which falls below the standard established for the protection of others against unreasonable risk of harm, this standard of conduct is ordinarily measured by what the reasonable man of ordinary prudence would do under the circumstances. In order to objectify the law's abstractions like "care", "reasonableness" or "foreseeability" the man of ordinary prudence was invented as a model of the standard of conduct to which all men are required to conform. (Para 11)

"Reckless" means "careless", regardless or heedless of the possible harmful consequences of one's acts. It presupposes that if thought was given to the matter by the doer before the act was done, it would have been apparent to him that there was a real risk of its having the relevant harmful consequences; but, granted this, recklessness covers a whole range of states of mind from failing to give any thought at all to whether or not there is any risk of those harmful consequences, to recognising the existence of the risk and nevertheless deciding to ignore it. (Para 13). Naresh Giri v. State of M.P., (2008) 1 SCC 791: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 324: (2007) 60 AIC 15 (SC): (2007) 4 KLT 1115.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-11-2007]

Director of Public Prosecutions v. Camplin, 1978 AC 705: (1978) 2 WLR 679: (1978) 2 All ER 168 (HL); Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59; R. v. Briggs, (1977) 1 WLR 605: (1977) 1 All ER 475 (CA); R. v. Caldwell, 1982 AC 341: (1981) 2 WLR 509: (1981) 1 All ER 961 (HL); R. v. Lawrence, 1982 AC 510: (1981) 2 WLR 524: (1981) 1 All ER 974 (HL), relied on

[7726] — S. 304-A — Accused holding a learner's license driving a car without a trainer by his side — Car striking a man who later succumbed to the injuries caused — No evidence that the accused did not know driving or that death was caused due to rash and negligent act on his part — Held, accused is not guilty under S. 304-A. Suleman Rahiman Mulani v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 829: (1968) 2 SCR 515: 1968 Cri LJ 1013.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-12-1967]

[7727] — S. 304-A — Accused making no attempt to save the victim even when there was sufficient space on either side of the road — Rash and negligent driving proved. Baldevji Bhathiji Thakore v. State of Gujarat, (1980) 1 SCC 320: 1980 SCC (Cri) 163: AIR 1979 SC 1327: 1979 Cri LJ 1136.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1979]

[7728] — S. 304-A — Causing death by negligence — Conviction reversed — Accused, driver of a A.P. SRTC bus alleged to have driven at high speed in a rash and negligent manner and dashed against T who succumbed to the injuries while undergoing treatment in the hospital — Submission by appellant that evidence on record did not establish that he was driving the offending vehicle, or that he was driving it in a rash or negligent manner — PWs 4 and 11 stated that at the time of occurrence it was dark but in FIR name of the appellant-accused and the bus number was indicated — However, it was the accepted case of PWs 4, 5 and 11 that the offending vehicle after the occurrence sped away from the place — Hence, improbable that PWs 4 and 5 could have noted the long registration number of the bus — IO stating that he could know the details of the bus after about four days of the occurrence — Evidence showing that the bus hit the victim on the right side and the boy was in the middle of the road — Discrepancies in evidence of eyewitnesses pertaining to other material particulars also discernible — Held, in view of the aforesaid unsatisfactory nature of evidence, the prosecution cannot be said to have established the accusations — Conviction recorded by the courts below set aside (Paras 2, 6 and 7). Renu Kunta Mallaiah v. State of A.P., (2008) 10 SCC 220.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-10-2008]

[7729] — S. 304-A — Causing death by negligence — Rash driving — Substantiation of charge — Duty of investigation

In order to substantiate the charge of rash driving investigation should be conducted on scientific line, for instance, there should be examination of the tyre-marks of vehicle on the road with the object of finding out the approximate speed and the manner of application of brakes at the time of the collision and photographs should be taken of the position of the site soon after the occurrence. Jagdish Chander v. State of Delhi, (1973) 2 SCC 203: 1973 SCC (Cri) 770: AIR 1973 SC 2127: 1973 Cri LJ 1393: (1974) 1 SCR 204.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1973]

[7730] — S. 304-A — Causing death by rash and negligent driving — Burden of proof — Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur applied — Death of passengers in bus accident — Fact admitted that the appellant driver was driving the vehicle when accident occurred — Held, in view of the facts, burden was on appellant to prove that the accident happened due to causes other than negligence on his part — In absence of the said proof, conviction of appellant by trial court and subsequent confirmation of it by High Court upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 101 and 103 (Para 4). Thakur Singh v. State of Punjab, (2003) 9 SCC 208.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-2000]

[7731] — S. 304-A — Compensation — Accident owing to rash driving of bus — Acquittal in criminal case will not defeat the claim for damages — Requirement of culpable rashness under S. 304-A, Indian Penal Code is more drastic than negligence sufficient to create liability under tort law — Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, Ss. 115, 116, 110-A, 110-B & 110-D. N.K.V. Bros. (P) Ltd. v. M. Karumai Ammal, (1980) 3 SCC 457: 1980 SCC (Cri) 774: AIR 1980 SC 1354: (1980) 41 FLR 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1980]

[7732] — S. 304-A — Death caused by car accident — Rash or negligent — Distinction explained — Sentence — Discretion of Court — Whether fine enough — Facts and circumstances. Balchandra Waman Pathe v. State of Maharashtra, 1968 Mah LJ 423: 1968 MPLJ 371.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1967]

[7733] — S. 304-A — Deceased stopping at the mid-road to let the vehicular traffic pass and then suddenly taking a step backward before trying to cross-over the road — Accused motorcyclist, while trying to overtake a bus, knocking down the deceased when he took the back-step and the bus running over him causing his death — Held, accused not guilty under S. 304-A as he could have by-passed both the bus and the deceased, had the deceased not taken the fatal erratic step. State of Maharashtra v. Vijay Sadanand Shenoy, (1981) 3 SCC 524: 1981 SCC (Cri) 741.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.D. Koshal, V. Balakrishna Eradi and R.B. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1981]

[7734] — S. 304-A — Drunkenness — Cannot be said to be conclusively proved unless urine or blood test carried out — Mere smelling of alcohol, unsteady gait, dilation of pupils and incoherence in speech not enough. Bachubhai Hassanalli Karyani v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 3 SCC 930: 1972 SCC (Cri) 178: 1971 ACJ 116.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-1970]

[7735] — S. 304-A — Negligence — Pedestrian crossings — Duty of driver of car — Held, driver must look ahead and see whether there was any pedestrian in the crossing and if there was one to wait till he crossed the carriage way. Bhalachandra Waman Pathe v. State of Maharashtra, 1968 ACJ 38: 1968 Mah LJ 423: 1968 MPLJ 371.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1967]

[7736] — S. 304-A — Negligence — Statement of witness that bus was coming at high speed not sufficient to justify conviction — To one man a speed of even 10 or 20 miles per hour may appear to be high while to another even a speed of 25 to 30 miles per hour may appear to be reasonable speed — In the absence of evidence of negligence conviction could not be upheld. Mohanta Lal Saha v. State of W.B., 1968 ACJ 124.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and V. Bhargava, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1968]

[7737] — S. 304-A — Negligent driving — Proof — Truck hitting and killing cyclist — On facts negligence on the part of driver, held, proved — Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, S. 168(1) — Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, S. 110-B

The accident was due to the fault of the truck driver. The truck was proceeding from North to South and the deceased was coming on a cycle from South to North. There was a rickshaw standing or moving in front of the truck. It is in the evidence of the witnesses that the truck driver which was coming from the opposite side swerved to the right to take over the rickshaw. If that is so then the truck would be almost on its right side and in front of the deceased who was driving the cycle on the left side of the road. The truck driver in the process saved the rickshaw but killed the deceased. Therefore, the High Court fell into patent error in holding that there was no negligence on the part of the driver of the vehicle. Haji Zainullah Khan v. Nagar Mahapalika, (1994) 5 SCC 667: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1568.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-7-1994]

[7738] — S. 304-A — On facts motor accident caused owing to misjudgment and not negligence — Maxim res ipsa loquitur, held, not applicable

A woman accompanied by her 4-year-old daughter came out of her village to cross the highway. While crossing the road the mother asked the child to go back home, but when the mother had crossed the road and descended into the deep ditch on the other side, the child suddenly dashed across the road to join her mother and was caught under the left front wheel of a passenger bus driven by the accused and was crushed to death. According to the eyewitness account of the four passengers of the bus, at the material time the accused was driving the bus slowly as a narrow bridge was 30 feet ahead and when the child suddenly appeared on the road, he immediately swerved the vehicle to the extreme right side of the road in order to save the collision. It was also clear that if he had moved the bus further to the right it would have fallen in the ditch endangering the lives of the passengers. The prosecution, however, treated all the eyewitnesses as hostile and with the permission of the court cross-examined them to impeach their credit. The Public Prosecutor only contradicted the police statement of the eyewitnesses that the accident took place due to the negligence of the accused and not by statements relating to each of the facts. The trial Court disbelieved the evidence of the eyewitnesses. On appeal, the Sessions Judge while agreeing with the unreliability of the eyewitnesses, upheld his conviction applying the principle of res ipsa loquitur and the High Court endorsed that view.

Held :

On facts the circumstances of taking the vehicle suddenly to the extreme right of the road, did not bespeak negligence or dereliction of duty to exercise due care and control, on the part of the accused, in clear and unambiguous voice. Nor could it be said, that the cause of swerving the vehicle to the right, was unknown. The accused gave a reasonably convincing explanation of his conduct in doing so, and his version was fully supported by four prosecution witnesses who had seen the occurrence. In these circumstances, the maxim res ipsa loquitur could have no manner of application.

The accident happened due to an error of judgment, and not negligence or want of driving skill on the part of the accused. An error of judgment of the kind such as the one in the instant case which comes to light only on post-accident reflection, but could not be foreseen by the accused in that fragmented moment before the accident is not a sure index of negligence, particularly, when in taking and executing that decision the accused was acting with the knowledge and in the belief that this was the best course to be adopted in the circumstances for everyone's safety.

The prosecution had failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the appellant had caused the death of the child by negligent or rash driving. All happened in fraction of a moment; and even if the worst was assumed against the appellant, the highest that could be said was that it was a misjudgment on his part too slight to be branded as culpable negligence. Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59: AIR 1979 SC 1848: 1979 Cri LJ 1374: 1980 MLJ (Cri) 265.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and R.S. Pathak, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-1979]

[7739] — S. 304-A — Rash and negligent driving — Motor vehicle dashing against a boy standing on kutcha portion of the right side of the road who later succumbed to the injuries caused by the accident — Held, the very fact that the accident occurred on kutcha portion of the right side of the road is indicative of the negligent manner in which the vehicle was being driven — On facts, reversal of acquittal by the High Court justified — Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, Ss. 166 and 168. A.P. Raju v. State of Orissa, 1995 Supp (2) SCC 385: 1995 SCC (Cri) 675.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1994]

[7740] — S. 304-A — Rash and negligent driving — Factors to determine — Investigation conducted in a very casual and superficial manner and important evidence which was available and should easily have been forthcoming not brought before the court for wholly inadequate, if not flimsy, reasons — No evidence adduced regarding examination of marks of wheels on the road and the state of traffic at the relevant time — Held, it cannot be said that the accused was driving his vehicle rashly or negligently. Nageshwar Shri Krishna Ghobe v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 4 SCC 23: 1973 SCC (Cri) 664: AIR 1973 SC 165: 1973 Cri LJ 235: 1973 Bom LR 483: (1973) 2 SCR 377.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-9-1972]

[7741] — S. 304-A — Rash and negligent driving — On facts, the finding of lower courts that the appellant was grossly negligent even though his speed was not fast or excessive upheld. Duli Chand v. Delhi Admn., (1975) 4 SCC 649: 1975 SCC (Cri) 663: AIR 1975 SC 1960: 1975 Cri LJ 1732: 1976 MLJ (Cri) 345.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-8-1975]

[7742] — S. 304-A — Rash and negligent driving — What amounts to culpable rashness and criminal negligence — Passenger, while boarding a bus, falling down therefrom when the bus moved forward and run over by the rear wheel of the bus resulting in her death — When can driver of the bus be held to be guilty of culpable negligence — Negligence of the driver cannot always be presumed — In absence of any evidence showing that the driver moved the vehicle before getting signal from the conductor to move, held, it cannot be presumed that the passenger fell down due to negligence of the driver — Hence conviction under S. 304-A not sustainable

The appellant was driving a bus of the Andhra Pradesh Road Transport Corporation. A passenger was boarding the bus. When the bus moved forward she fell out of the vehicle and its rear wheel ran over her. She died of the injuries sustained in that accident. The conductor of the bus did not say how the accident happened. However, he admitted that while the bus was in motion he heard the sound of an accident and the bus was then stopped. The only other witness in his examination-in-chief merely deposed that the said passenger "was boarding the bus and the bus moved; and she fell down beneath the bus and died on the spot; the bus stopped at some distance" and that he saw the bus driver at that time. The driver of the bus was held guilty of culpable negligence in that episode. He now stands convicted under Section 304-A of the Indian Penal Code and was sentenced to imprisonment for three months. All the three courts, the trial court, the Sessions Court and the High Court in revision, took the same stand. The only question which survives for decision is whether on such facts a conclusion that the appellant is guilty of negligent driving must necessarily follow. Answering in the negative and allowing the appeal of the driver,

Held :

A rash act is primarily an overhasty act. It is opposed to a deliberate act. Still a rash act can be a deliberate act in the sense that it was done without due care and caution. Culpable rashness lies in running the risk of doing an act with recklessness and with indifference as to the consequences. Criminal negligence is the failure to exercise duty with reasonable and proper care and precaution guarding against injury to the public generally or to any individual in particular. It is the imperative duty of the driver of a vehicle to adopt such reasonable and proper care and precaution. (Para 9)

It is a wrong proposition that for any motor accident negligence of the driver should be presumed. An accident of such a nature as would prima facie show that it cannot be accounted to anything other than the negligence of the driver of the vehicle may create a presumption and in such a case the driver has to explain how the accident happened without negligence on his part. Merely because a passenger fell down from the bus while boarding the bus, no presumption of negligence can be drawn against the driver of the bus. (Para 7)

In the present case the possible explanation of the driver is that he was unaware of even the possibility of the accident which happened. It could be so. When he moved the vehicle forward his focus normally would have been towards what was ahead of the vehicle. He is not expected to move the vehicle forward when passengers are in the process of boarding the vehicle. But when he gets a signal from the conductor that the bus can proceed he is expected to start moving the vehicle. To fasten the liability with the driver for negligent driving when a passenger falls down from a moving vehicle, there should be evidence that he moved the bus suddenly before the passenger could get into the vehicle or that the driver moved the vehicle even before getting any signal from the rear side. Here no witness has said, including the conductor, that the driver moved the vehicle before getting a signal to move forward. The evidence in this case is too scanty to fasten him with criminal negligence. Some further evidence is indispensably needed to presume that the passenger fell down due to the negligence of the driver of the bus. Such further evidence is lacking in this case. Therefore, the Court is disabled from concluding that the victim fell down only because of the negligent driving of the bus. The corollary thereof is that the conviction of the appellant of the offence is unsustainable. (Paras 9, 5 and 10). Mohd. Aynuddin v. State of A.P., (2000) 7 SCC 72: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1281: AIR 2000 SC 2511: 2000 Cri LJ 3508.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-7-2000]

[7743] — S. 304-A — Rash and negligent driving causing death — 2 years' RI awarded by courts below — Although the accused driver supporting large family and the proprietor of vehicle failing to compensate the family, no compassion can be shown and no interference with the sentence called for — Conventional defences, except under compelling evidence, must be given short shrift. Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 4 SCC 719: 1980 SCC (Cri) 17: AIR 1980 SC 84: 1980 Cri LJ 11.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-1979]

[7744] — S. 304-A — Rash or negligent driving — Deceased suddenly crossing the road without taking note of approaching bus — Driver not driving at high speed or on wrong side — Deceased dashing against the bus and dying — Held, bus driver not negligent

If the deceased suddenly crossed the road from West to East without taking note of the approaching bus there was every possibility of his dashing against the bus without the driver becoming aware of his crossing till it was too late. If a person suddenly crosses the road the bus driver, however slowly he may be driving, may not be in a position to save the accident. Therefore, the bus driver cannot be held to be negligent. Mahadeo Hari Lokre v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 4 SCC 758: AIR 1972 SC 221: 1972 Cri LJ 49.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1971]

[7745] — S. 304-A — Rashness and negligence — Distinction between

There is a distinction between a rash act and a negligent act. In the case of a rash act the criminality lies in running the risk of doing such an act with recklessness or indifference as to the consequence. Criminal negligence is the gross and culpable neglect or failure to exercise that reasonable and proper care and precaution to guard against injury either to the public generally or to an individual in particular, which having regard to all the circumstances out of which the charge has arisen, it was the imperative duty of the accused person to have adopted. Negligence is an omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon those considerations which ordinarily regulate the conduct of human affairs would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. A culpable rashness is acting with the consciousness that the mischievous and illegal consequences may follow, but with the hope that they will not, and often with the belief that the actor has taken sufficient precautions to prevent their happening. The imputability arises from acting despite the consciousness. Culpable negligence is acting without the consciousness that the illegal and mischievous effect will follow, but in circumstances which show that the actor has not exercised the caution incumbent upon him and if he had he would have had the consciousness. The imputability arises from the neglect of the civic duty of circumspection.

In the instant case the appellant was driving his car at a speed of 35 miles an hour, the speed permissible under the rules. No other circumstance was pointed out to show that he was driving in a reckless manner. Therefore, he cannot be said to have been running the risk of doing an act with recklessness or indifference as to the consequences. But he was undoubtedly guilty of negligence. He had a duty to look ahead and see whether there was any pedestrian in the pedestrian crossing. It is likely that while driving the car he was engrossed in talking with the person who was sitting by his side. By doing so, he failed to exercise the caution incumbent upon him. His culpable negligence and failure to exercise that reasonable and proper care and caution required of him resulted in the occurrence. He was therefore guilty of offence under S. 304-A. Bhalachandra Waman Pathe v. State of Maharashtra, 1968 ACJ 38: 1968 Mah LJ 423: 1968 MPLJ 371.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1967]

[7746] — S. 304-A — Requirement of culpable rashness in driving under, held, is more drastic than negligence sufficient to create liability under tort law. N.K.V. Bros. (P) Ltd. v. M. Karumai Ammal, (1980) 3 SCC 457: 1980 SCC (Cri) 774: AIR 1980 SC 1354: (1980) 41 FLR 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1980]

[7747] — S. 304-A — Revision — Where a bus driver was convicted under S. 304-A in connection with an accident which resulted in the death of one person, held, High Court erred in allowing respondent bus driver's revision petition and upsetting concurrent findings of fact of lower courts without considering evidence on record and without indicating how lower courts were wrong in reaching their conclusions and without giving any reasons as to why the revision was being allowed— CrPC, 1973, S. 397 (Para 4). State of A.P. v. Rajagopala Rao, (2000) 10 SCC 338.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Kirpal and S. Rajendra Babu, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-2-1999]

[7748] — S. 304-A — Sentence — Interference with by High Court — Head-on collision of lorry driven by accused-respondent with a car resulting in death of four occupants of the car — High Court in revision awarding a lesser sentence while maintaining the conviction — Trial Magistrate and appellate court finding rash and negligent driving by accused — High Court taking the view that negligence was only to the extent that accused did not make any effort to avoid the collision — High Court's view not based on evidence — Having regard to serious nature of the accident, held, High Court's interference with the sentence was not warranted

A car had a head-on collision with a mini lorry driven by the accused-respondent. As a result of the collision, the right front tyre of the car burst and the driver of the car lost control of the vehicle and it dashed against a nearby tree. The driver and three other occupants of the car died in the accident. The respondent raised a plea before the trial Magistrate as well as before the appellate court that the accident might have occurred due to the bursting of the right front tyre of the car as a result of which the car went to the right side of the road and dashed against the lorry. But this plea was not accepted. A suggestion to this effect was put to the Motor Vehicles Inspector who had examined the vehicle after the accident. However, the Inspector also declined the suggestion. The possibility of the car having gone to the extreme right side stood also ruled out by the evidence. The trial Magistrate and the appellate court found the respondent guilty of offences under Sections 279, 337, 338 and 304-A IPC. However, on revision a Single Judge of the High Court, while confirming the conviction of the respondent, modified the sentence taking the view that the collision had taken place when due to bursting of the front tyre, the car went to the right side of the road. The Single Judge observed:

"While to this extent the petitioner could be said to be innocent and while that aspect of innocence could certainly influence the decision relating to sentence, I am of the opinion that the accident having taken place at 7.00 a.m., with no other vehicles being on the road and when it is as wide a road as of 40 feet width totally, the negligence on the part of the petitioner lies in the fact that he did not make any efforts to avoid the collision."

For this reason the Single Judge reduced the sentence for the offence under Section 304-A to payment of a fine of Rs 5000 and in default thereof simple imprisonment for 3 months. The Single Judge imposed a sentence for the offence under Section 337 IPC with a fine of Rs 500, in default to simple imprisonment for 15 days; and for the offence under Section 338 IPC with a fine of Rs 550, in default to simple imprisonment for 15 days. No separate sentence was awarded for the offence punishable under Section 279 IPC. Allowing the State's appeal,

Held :

The observation made by the revisional court is not based on the evidence on record. Having regard to the serious nature of the accident, which resulted in the death of four persons, the learned Single Judge should not have interfered with the sentence imposed by the courts below. It may create and set an unhealthy precedent and send wrong signals to the subordinate courts which have to deal with several such accident cases. If the accused are found guilty of rash and negligent driving, courts have to be on guard to ensure that they do not escape the clutches of law very lightly. The sentence imposed by the courts should have a deterrent effect on potential wrongdoers and it should commensurate with the seriousness of the offence. Of course, the courts are given discretion in the matter of sentence to take stock of the wide and varying range of facts that might be relevant for fixing the quantum of sentence, but the discretion shall be exercised with due regard to larger interest of the society and it is needless to add that passing of sentence on the offender is probably the most public face of the criminal justice system. (Paras 5 and 6)

In the facts and circumstances of the case, interference with the judgment of the Single Judge of the High Court is called for and the respondent is liable to undergo the sentence imposed by the trial Magistrate and affirmed by the appellate court. Consequently, it is directed that for the offence punishable under Section 304-A, the respondent be taken into custody to undergo simple imprisonment for six months. As regards offences under Sections 279, 337 and 338 IPC, no separate sentence has been awarded by the trial Magistrate. The direction of the trial Magistrate is maintained. (Para 7). State of Karnataka v. Sharanappa Basanagouda Aregoudar, (2002) 3 SCC 738: 2002 SCC (Cri) 704: AIR 2002 SC 1529.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.P. Sethi and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-2002]

[7749] — S. 304-A — Sentence — Mitigating circumstances — Accident between truck and auto-rickshaw killing a child — Both drivers to blame for accident — Proceedings against driver of auto-rickshaw going on for 8 years — Sentence reduced to 6 months. Jagdish Chander v. State of Delhi, (1973) 2 SCC 203: 1973 SCC (Cri) 770: AIR 1973 SC 2127: 1973 Cri LJ 1393: (1974) 1 SCR 204.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1973]

[7750] — S. 304-A — Sentence — Rash and negligent driving resulting in death of a boy — Occurrence taking place about 15 years ago — Appellant remaining on bail for the last more than 8 years — Held, in the circumstances, the appellant directed to be released under S. 360 CrPC on probation of good conduct, be of good behaviour and keep peace for a period of one year — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4. A.P. Raju v. State of Orissa, 1995 Supp (2) SCC 385: 1995 SCC (Cri) 675.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1994]

[7751] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Applicability of Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 — Causing death by rash and negligent driving — Provisions of S. 4 PO Act not attracted — Held, in view of galloping rate of road accidents in India and its devastating consequences, lenience cannot be shown and the benevolent provisions of S. 4 PO Act cannot be treated as applicable to the offence under S. 304-A IPC — Further, held, when deciding quantum of sentence deterrence ought to be the prime consideration — Every driver should fear that, if convicted, courts will not treat him leniently — Appellant bus driver knocking down cyclist in front of office gate in town area — Injuries fatal — Trial court and appellate court both finding appellant guilty of rash and negligent driving and convicting him under Ss. 279 and 304-A IPC — Held, High Court rightly dismissed the revision petition filed by appellant — S. 4 PO Act not attracted to case of appellant — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4

The appellant, while driving a bus, knocked down a cyclist in front of the main gate of an office building in the town of Bhiwani, Haryana. The time was around 6:15 p.m. and the victim was just leaving his place of work. After being hit he was dragged by the bus for some distance. The unfortunate young man thus died a horribly painful death. The appellant was tried and convicted under Sections 279 and 304-A IPC; he was sentenced to imprisonment for three months and 1 year, respectively, for the two offences.

The trial court and Sessions Court both noted that there was a greater need for caution when driving in urban areas, which have large numbers of people in limited spaces. They observed that the appellant, ignoring this simple, but critical rule, had driven very carelessly and rashly and caused the death of a man in front of his own office building. The High Court dismissed the appellant's revision petition.

Before the Supreme Court, the benevolent provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 were sought to be invoked on behalf of the appellant. Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

When automobiles have become death traps any leniency shown to drivers who are found guilty of rash driving would be at the risk of further escalation of road accidents. All those who are manning the steering of automobiles, particularly professional drivers, must be kept under constant reminders of their duty to adopt utmost care and also of the consequences befalling them in cases of dereliction. One of the most effective ways of keeping such drivers under mental vigil is to maintain a deterrent element in the sentencing sphere. Any latitude shown to them in that sphere would tempt them to make driving frivolous and a frolic. (Para 1)

Courts must bear in mind that when any plea is made based on Section 4 of the PO Act for application to a convicted person under Section 304-A IPC, that road accidents have proliferated to an alarming extent and the toll is galloping day by day in India, and that no solution is in sight nor suggested by any quarter to bring them down. (Para 11)

Bearing in mind the galloping trend in road accidents in India and the devastating consequences visiting the victims and their families, criminal courts cannot treat the nature of the offence under Section 304-A IPC as attracting the benevolent provisions of Section 4 of the PO Act. While considering the quantum of sentence to be imposed for the offence of causing death by rash or negligent driving of automobiles, one of the prime considerations should be deterrence. A professional driver should not take a chance thinking that even if he is convicted he would be dealt with leniently by the court. He must always keep in his mind the fear psyche that if he is convicted of the offence for causing death of a human being due to his callous driving of the vehicle he cannot escape from a jail sentence. This is the role which the courts can play, particularly at the level of trial courts, for lessening the high rate of motor accidents due to callous driving of automobiles. (Para 13). Dalbir Singh v. State of Haryana, (2000) 5 SCC 82: AIR 2000 SC 1677: 2000 Cri LJ 2283.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-2000]

State of Karnataka v. Krishna, (1987) 1 SCC 538: 1987 SCC (Cri) 198; Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 4 SCC 719: 1980 SCC (Cri) 17, relied on

Aitha Chander Rao v. State of A.P., 1981 Supp SCC 17: 1981 SCC (Cri) 637, distinguished [7752] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Hit-and-run case — Contents of FIR — Absence of name of witness — Effect — Hit-and-run motor accident case — Name of witness who disclosed number of offending vehicle and name of driver not disclosed in FIR — Held, it is but natural for a relative under traumatic condition of giving immediate medical aid to victim not to be conscious enough of the presence of any person in vicinity — Courts below were wrong in holding that if name of witness is not mentioned in FIR, it was not possible for him to have witnessed the incident — Reiterated, in a case relating to motor accident compensation claims, claimants are not required to prove the case as it is required to be done in a criminal trial — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 14 and 101 — Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, Ss. 166 and 163-A — CrPC, 1973, S. 154 (Paras 8 and 9). Kusum Lata v. Satbir, (2011) 3 SCC 646.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.S. Singhvi and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-2011]

Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002, applied

National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297: 2004 SCC (Cri) 733, followed

Bimla Devi v. Himachal RTC, (2009) 13 SCC 530: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1101, relied on [7753] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Hit-and-run cases — Death in road accident — Denial of compensation — Non-mention of registration number of car and name of driver in FIR — Tribunal denied compensation on ground that involvement of offending vehicle in question not proved because number of vehicle and name of driver were not mentioned in FIR — Held, not noting down number of offending vehicle and instead taking victim for medical aid is normal human conduct (especially of one such as brother of deceased) — High Court was wrong in justifying findings of Tribunal on this account — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 8 and 14 — Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, Ss. 163-A, 166, 168 and 173 (Para 5). Kusum Lata v. Satbir, (2011) 3 SCC 646.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.S. Singhvi and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-2011]

Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002, applied

National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297: 2004 SCC (Cri) 733, followed

Bimla Devi v. Himachal RTC, (2009) 13 SCC 530: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1101, relied on [7754] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Deceased crossing the road at a distance of 50 feet away from the running car — Accused could have applied brakes — Number of injuries showing impact to be severe — Circumstance that the appellant without stopping the car sped avway shows that he acted rashly and negligently — Having regard to the fact that incident took place about 13 years back sentence reduced from 6 months' RI to 3 months' RI. Chandramohanan Nair v. State of Kerala, 1994 SCC (Cri) 1750.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-1993]

[7755] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Dead body of the deceased child found 2 feet away from the bus and 3 feet away from the pavement on the right side of the road — No mechanical failure — Appellant-accused admittedly did not err in judging — Spot mahazar revealed that bus was dragged for about 20 to 25 feet after brake was applied — Contents of mahazar not challenged — Post-mortem report and evidence of PW 1 (eyewitness) similar as regards several injuries — PW 1's statement that the bus was driven at a high speed, held, credible — Ascription of slow speed (i.e. 15-20 km per hour) by another witness, held, was rightly rejected

A bus callously driven by appellant-accused dashed against a girl of 7 years and she got killed. His conviction for rash and negligent driving under Sections 304-A and 279 IPC was upheld by the High Court by modifying the jail sentence and quantum of fine.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

The evidence of PW 1 alone was sufficient to hold that the appellant was guilty of the said offences. According to PW 1 the child sustained grievous injuries on head and other parts of the body. In answer to a question put to him in cross-examination, he stated that the bus was being driven at a high speed. The mahazar, was marked as Ext. P-2. The contents of the mahazar were not challenged. The spot mahazar disclosed that there was a break mark for about 20-25 feet on the road. The post-mortem report also proved by PW 12 revealed that the deceased sustained several external injuries. Depressed wound and normal clots were present in right temporal region. The dead body of the girl was found 2 feet away from the bus. It was only 3 feet away from the pavement on the right side of the road. The bus admittedly did not have any mechanical failure. The appellant did not say that there was an error of judgment on his part. Reliance by the appellant on the deposition of one of the prosecution witnesses that the bus was being driven at a speed of 15-20 kilometres per hour, has rightly not been accepted. (Paras 8 to 11). B. Nagabhushanam v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 5 SCC 730: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 61: AIR 2008 SC 2557: (2007) 67 AIC 42(2) (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

[7756] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Res ipsa loquitur (the thing speaks for itself) — Held, applicable in criminal cases

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur would apply to criminal cases. In Syad Akbar case, (1980) 1 SCC 30 the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur was not applied having regard to the fact of a said case and on the finding that it was a case of error of judgment and the accused gave a reasonable, convincing explanation of his conduct. However, the said principle was applied in a case under the Prevention of Corruption Act in C. Uma Maheswara Rao case, (2004) 4 SCC 399. (Para 12). B. Nagabhushanam v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 5 SCC 730: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 61: AIR 2008 SC 2557: (2007) 67 AIC 42(2) (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

State of A.P. v. C. Uma Maheswara Rao, (2004) 4 SCC 399: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1276, applied

Syad Akbar v. State of Karnataka, (1980) 1 SCC 30: 1980 SCC (Cri) 59, distinguished

[7757] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Sentence of imprisonment — Rationale of punishment — Case law emphasising deterrent effect of punishment on lax and inattentive drivers, relied upon — A seven years old child was killed due to rash and negligent driving — Simple imprisonment for six months plus one month and fine of Rs 1000 plus Rs 500, held, proper

Six months' simple imprisonment and a direction to the appellant to pay a fine of Rs 1000 for commission of the offence punishable under Section 304-A IPC and simple imprisonment for one month and to pay a fine of Rs 500 for the offence punishable under Section 279 IPC cannot be said to be shocking. While considering the quantum of sentence to be imposed for the offence of causing death by rash or negligent driving of automobiles, one of the prime considerations should be deterrence. The driver must always keep in his mind the fear psyche that if he is convicted of the offence for causing death of a human being due to his callous driving of the vehicle he cannot escape from a jail sentence. (Paras 14 and 15). B. Nagabhushanam v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 5 SCC 730: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 61: AIR 2008 SC 2557: (2007) 67 AIC 42(2) (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

Dalbir Singh v. State of Haryana, (2000) 5 SCC 82: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1208; Ratan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 4 SCC 719: 1980 SCC (Cri) 17, relied on

[7758] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Sufficiency of proof

The driver of a bus was prosecuted under Ss. 304-A and 279, IPC for carrying on the roof of his bus some corrugated iron sheets which fell owing to jolting of the bus on a kutcha road resulting in injuries to some persons and death of one.

Held :

Although the accused was said to have been carrying corrugated iron sheets on the roof of his bus, no attempt was made by the prosecution to find out if at all any corrugated iron sheets were being carried by the accused nor did the prosecution care to find out who the owner of the bus was and who had loaded the iron sheets. Unless there was proof that the iron sheets were put by the accused in a negligent manner or that he did not tie them properly, it is difficult to sustain his conviction under S. 304-A of the Indian Penal Code.

The accused could not also be convicted for rash driving under S. 279 of the Indian Penal Code because there was hardly any evidence worth the name from which it could be inferred that the speed of the bus was such that any iron sheets even if it be assumed that they were loaded on the roof of the bus fell down because of driving at a high speed. Baijnath Singh v. State of Bihar, (1972) 2 SCC 264: 1972 SCC (Cri) 667: AIR 1972 SC 1485: 1972 Cri LJ 919: (1972) 9 ACC 275.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Grover and M.H. Beg, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-1972]

[7759] — S. 304-A or S. 304 Pt. II — Rash and negligent act — Appellant, bus driver running over a boy aged 10 years crossing the road along with other school children in a queue — Appellant ignoring passengers' and pedestrians' cries cautioning him to stop, drove the bus at reckless speed resulting in death of the boy — Trial court and High Court holding appellant guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder punishable under S. 304 Pt. II on the basis that the accused acted with the knowledge that it was likely to cause death — Sustainability of — Held, S. 304-A speaks of causing death by negligence — It applies to rash and negligent acts and does not apply to cases where death has been voluntarily caused — Obviously it does not apply to cases where there is an intention to cause death or knowledge that the act will in all probability cause death — It only applies to cases in which without any such intention or knowledge death is caused by what is described as a rash and negligent act — Hence, appropriate conviction in the present case would be under S. 304-A IPC and not S. 304 Pt. II IPC

A boy aged 10 years while he was a student of 4th standard in a nearby school, was run over in the middle of the road by a bus driven by the appellant. The investigation by the police revealed that there was evidence to the effect that even the passengers in the bus were alarmed at the enormous speed at which it was being driven and had cautioned the driver to stop, even crying, as they had seen the school children crossing the road in a queue. The investigation also revealed that even the children crossing the road had raised both hands for stopping the vehicle. The passengers and pedestrians were of the view that the bus was being driven at a high speed and that they had cried aloud to stop the bus. It was, in spite of all these, that the bus ran over the said student on his head and the bus could be stopped only 15 to 20 feet ahead of the spot of occurrence.

In the light of this evidence, the investigating officer felt that there was real intention on the part of the appellant driver of the bus to cause the death of persons to whom harm may be caused by reason of hitting the bus and he was charged with offence punishable under Section 302 IPC. The court below found that no intention had been proved in the case. But, at the same time, the accused acted with the knowledge that it was likely to cause death. So, the act committed by the appellant was culpable homicide not amounting to murder punishable under Section 304 Part II IPC. Convicting him for the said offence, he was sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for five years and to pay a fine of Rs 15,000 with a default sentence of imprisonment for three years. This was assailed in appeal.

The High Court did not find any substance in the plea of the appellant that the case was covered under Section 304-A IPC. It accepted the stand of the respondent State that conviction was to be for culpable homicide. The appellant was before the Supreme Court thereagainst by special leave.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

Section 304-A speaks of causing death by negligence. This section applies to rash and negligent acts and does not apply to cases where death has been voluntarily caused. This section obviously does not apply to cases where there is an intention to cause death or knowledge that the act will in all probability cause death. It only applies to cases in which without any such intention or knowledge death is caused by what is described as a rash and negligent act. (Para 5)

When the factual scenario of the present case is analysed, it is crystal clear that the appropriate conviction would be under Section 304-A IPC and not Section 304 Part II IPC. Conviction is accordingly altered. The maximum sentence which can be imposed for offence punishable under Section 304-A is two years or fine or with both. The custodial sentence, therefore, is reduced to the maximum i.e. two years. (Para 8)

[The Court agreed on the inadequacy of sentence it could award, considering the increasing number of vehicular accidents resulting in death of large number of innocent persons. It is for the legislature to provide for an appropriate sentence. But the statute presently provides for a maximum sentence of two years.] (Para 9). Prabhakaran v. State of Kerala, (2007) 14 SCC 269: AIR 2007 SC 2376: (2007) 3 KLT 400: (2007) 56 AIC 258 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-6-2007]

Andrews v. Director of Public Prosecutions, 1937 AC 576: (1937) 2 All ER 552; Rathnashalvan v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 3 SCC 474, followed

[7760] — Ss. 304-A and 337 — Sentence — Heavy sentence imposed by trial court on ground that appellant was found to have been drunk — Conclusion of doctor who examined accused based merely on the facts that appellant's breath was smelling alcohol, that his gait was unsteady that his speech was incoherent and that his pupils were dilated — Urine and blood reports not brought on record — Appellant could not be held to have been drunk at the time of accident — Sentence of 18 months' RI and fine of Rs 1000 reduced to imprisonment already undergone. Bachubhai Hassanalli Karyani v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 3 SCC 930: 1972 SCC (Cri) 178: 1971 ACJ 116.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-1970]

[7761] — Ss. 304-A, 337 and 338 — Criterion for deciding whether driving was rash and negligent — Speed not the sole criterion

The main criterion for deciding whether the driving which led to the accident was rash and negligent is not only the speed but the width of the road, the density of the traffic, and the attempt as in the case, to overtake the other vehicles resulting in going to the wrong side of the road and being responsible for the accident. Even if the accident took place in the twinkling of an eye it is not difficult for an eyewitness to notice a car overtaking other vehicles and going to the wrong side of the road and hitting a vehicle travelling on that side of the road. Shakila Khader v. Nausheer Cama, (1975) 4 SCC 122: 1975 SCC (Cri) 379: AIR 1975 SC 1324: 1975 Cri LJ 1105.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A. Alagiriswami and N.L. Untwalia, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1975]

[7762] — Ss. 304-A, 337 and 338 — Meaning of culpable negligence for the purpose of the sections — Collision between bus and goods train at level crossing — Culpability of bus driver in the circumstances not found

Culpable negligence lies in the failure to exercise reasonable and proper care and the extent of its reasonableness will always depend upon the circumstances of each case.

In a case of accident on a railway level crossing where the gate is open and there is no train scheduled to pass at the time, the driver would be justified in driving his vehicle through the level crossing. Passenger trains have a time schedule and if a train is expected to come at about the time the appellant reached the level crossing, a regular driver of motor vehicles on that route may, perhaps, be found negligent in crossing the railway track, if by any mischance, the gate was open. But in the case where a goods train not scheduled to pass the level crossing, comes just about the time the bus reached the spot and an accident takes place, the appellant cannot be held guilty of criminal negligence because he may not have known that a goods train would be coming at that moment. In such circumstances the appellant will not be guilty merely because he did not stop when the road signal wanted him to stop. Such a case will be a case of unavoidable accident because of the negligence of the gateman in keeping the gate open and inviting the vehicles to pass. S.N. Hussain v. State of A.P., (1972) 3 SCC 18: 1972 SCC (Cri) 254: AIR 1972 SC 685: 1972 Cri LJ 496.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-1972]

[7763] — Ss. 304-A/336 and 201 — Offences under — Sentence — Rigorous imprisonment for one year and three months — Adequacy of — One L, head of the family, had allegedly taken illegal electric connection from a tubewell — Death of two ladies due to falling of electric wire on them — Allegation against appellants that they removed the electric wire and poles from the place of occurrence with a view to destroy the evidence against L — Out of four appellants, two were brothers of L, third was son of L and fourth was residing with family of L — On such facts, held, sentence of one year and three months imposed on appellants was not justified — Since occurrence took place about 14 or 15 years back and the appellants in custody for the past 8½ months, sentence reduced to period already undergone. Birendra Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2005) 10 SCC 460: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1585.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Singh and Arun Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-3-2005]

(7) Other situations

[7764] — S. 304-A — Scope — Charge for negligently and rashly manufacturing glucose solution in normal saline causing death — Accused-appellant giving batch number to all the lots manufactured on same day and using a chemical component from source unknown — Questions to be determined by the court — Evidence disclosing prevailing practice of giving single batch number to several lots — Analyst's duty to test the materials before issuing for injection — Total dereliction of duty by analysts — Non-compliance of drug rules does not make appellant's act alone causa causans of the deaths

In a prosecution for an offence under S. 304-A of IPC, the court has to examine whether the alleged act of the accused is the direct result of a rash and negligent act and that act was the proximate and efficient cause of the death without intervention of another's negligence. The mere fact that an accused contravenes certain rules or regulations in doing of an act does not establish an offence under S. 304-A, IPC.

The act causing deaths must be the causa causans; it is not enough that it may have been the causa sine qua non. The court has to determine whether the act of the accused is the causa causans or there has been a cause intervening which has broken the chain of causation so as to make the act of the accused, though a negligent one, not the immediate cause or whether it amounts to an act of gross negligence or recklessly negligent conduct. The fact that twelve lives have been lost, however shocking and regrettable it may be, ought not to allow the mind to be boggled while appreciating the evidence. Ambalal D. Bhatt v. State of Gujarat, (1972) 3 SCC 525: 1972 SCC (Cri) 618: AIR 1972 SC 1150: 1972 Cri LJ 727.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-3-1972]

Emperor v. Omkar Rampratap, (1902) 4 Bom LR 679, approved

[7765] — S. 304-A — Drunkenness — Cannot be said to be conclusively proved unless urine or blood test carried out — Mere smelling of alcohol, unsteady gait, dilation of pupils and incoherence in speech not enough. Bachubhai Hassanalli Karyani v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 3 SCC 930: 1972 SCC (Cri) 178: 1971 ACJ 116.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-1970]

[7766] — S. 304-A — Fixing live electric wire across passage to latrine in order to prevent ingress of trespassers — No warning that wire was live — Deceased, a trespasser, getting shock and dying soon after — Accused held guilty of offence under S. 304-A

Other Situations

In order to prevent the ingress of persons like the deceased into his latrine by making such ingress dangerous the accused fixed up a copper wire across the passage leading up to his latrine. This wire was naked and uninsulated and carried current from the electrical wiring of his house to which it was connected. There was no warning that the wire was live. The deceased managed to pass into the latrine without contacting the wire but that as she came out her hand happened to touch it and she got a shock as a result of which she died soon after.

Held :

A trespasser is not an outlaw, a caput lupinem. The mere fact that the person entering land is a trespasser does not entitle the owner or occupier to inflict on him personal injury by direct violence and the same principle would govern the infliction of injury by indirectly doing something on the land the effect of which he must know was likely to cause serious injury to the trespasser. Thus in England it has been held that one who sets spring-guns to shoot at trespasser is guilty of a tort and that the person injured is entitled to recover. The laying of such a trap, and there is little difference between the spring-gun which was the trap with which the English Courts had to deal and the naked live wire in the present case, is in truth "an arrangement to shoot a man without personally firing a shot". It is, no doubt, true that the trespasser enters the property at his own risk and the occupier owes no duty to take any reasonable care for his protection, but at the same time the occupier is not entitled to do wilfully acts such as set a trap or set a naked live wire with the deliberate intention of causing harm to trespasser or in reckless disregard of the presence of the trespassers. The voltage of the current fed into the wire precludes any contention that it was merely a reasonable precaution for the protection of private property. There is no force in the contention that the deceased was a trespasser and that there was no duty owed by an occupier like the accused towards the trespasser and therefore the latter would have had no cause of action for damages for the injury inflicted and that if the act of the accused was not a tort, it could not also be a crime. Cherubin Gregory v. State of Bihar, AIR 1964 SC 205: (1964) 4 SCR 199: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 138, 139: 1965 MLJ (Cri) 236.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, C.J. and J.C. Shah and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-1963]

[7767] — S. 304-A — Negligence — Probabilities and broader consideration — Collision of trains — Prosecution of Stationmaster for negligence — Crucial issue not to be determined on a mere balance of oral evidence — Correct approach is to determine the crucial issues on the broader considerations and clear probabilities — Case under S. 101, Railways Act, 1890

In the case, where the Stationmaster was being prosecuted under S. 101 of Indian Railways Act in connection with a head-on collision the main question for determination was whether the Stationmaster was negligent and failed to observe the rules, by getting the signals on the down side lowered for reception of the down train without getting the points on the down side reset from the inner loop line to the main line.

The correct approach in a matter of this kind was to determine the crucial issue not on a mere balance of oral evidence but on broader considerations and probabilities.

Assuming that in some unexplained way the levers on the down side were found to have been lowered at the very time of the collision, the actual physical act of lowering is not done by the Stationmaster, but is done by the signalman who has been acquitted. There is absolutely no indication in the evidence that the signalman had by then received instructions, from the Stationmaster to lower the down side signals or had received the necessary keys from him to enable him to operate the down side signals. There is, therefore, no reason to attribute the negligence to the appellant Stationmaster and not to somebody else such as the pointsman. Awadh Behari Sharma v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 738: 1956 Cri LJ 1372.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-5-1956]

[7768] — S. 304-A — Negligence of teachers to take due care of students — Teachers entrusted by the school for escorting minor students to a picnic organised by the school at a place near a river — Due to negligence of the teachers, some of the students while playing near the river falling into a dibber and dying due to drowning — Conviction of the teachers under S. 304-A upheld

While the parent owes his child a duty of care in relation to the child's physical security, a teacher in a school is expected to show such care towards a child under his charge as would be exercised by a reasonably careful parent. Duty of care varies from situation to situation — whereas it would be the duty of the teacher to supervise the children in the playground but the supervision, as the children leave the school, may not be required in the same degree as is in the playfield. While it is true that if the students are taken to another school building for participation in certain games, it is sufficient exercise of diligence to know that the premises are otherwise safe and secure but undoubtedly if the students are taken out to a playground near a river for fun and a swim, the degree of care required stands at a much higher degree and no deviation therefrom can be had on any count whatsoever. Mere satisfaction that the river is otherwise safe for a swim by reason of popular sayings will not be a sufficient compliance. As a matter of fact the degree of care required to be taken, especially against the minor children, stands at a much higher level than adults: children need much stricter care. (Paras 15 and 16)

Negligence is an independent tort and has its own strict elements especially in the matter of children — the liability is thus absolute vis-à-vis the children. The school authorities in the contextual facts attributed negligence to the two teachers who stand convicted under Section 304-A of the Indian Penal Code. (Para 17). M.S. Grewal v. Deep Chand Sood, (2001) 8 SCC 151: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1426: AIR 2001 SC 3660.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Misra and U.C. Banerjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-8-2001]

Prince v. Gregory, (1959) 1 WLR 177: (1959) 1 All ER 133 (CA); Ricketts v. Erith Borough Council, (1943) 2 All ER 629: 113 LJKB 269: 169 LT 396, relied on

[7769] — Ss. 304-A, 299 and 300 — Prescribing poisonous medicines without studying their probable effect is a rash and negligent act

Where the accused who was a registered Homoeopathic medical practitioner, administered 24 drops of mother tincture stramonium and leaf of dhatura to his patient without studying their effects and the patient died of poisoning

Held :

S. 299, IPC does not apply. It cannot be held that the appellant administered the stramonium drops and the dhatura leaf with the knowledge that he was likely by such an act to cause the death of the deceased.

According to the evidence on the record, in no system of medicine except perhaps in the Ayurvedic System, the dhatura leaf is given as cure for guinea worms. It seems that the appellant prescribed the medicine without thoroughly studying what would be the effect of giving 24 drops of stramonium and a leaf of dhatura. It is a rash and negligent act to prescribe poisonous medicines without studying their probable effect.

It is true, that care should be taken before imputing criminal negligence to a professional man acting in the course of his profession, but even taking this care there is no doubt that the appellant was guilty of a rash and negligent act. Juggankhan v. State of M.P., AIR 1965 SC 831: (1965) 1 SCR 14: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 763, 765.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and S.M. Sikri, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-1964]

[7770] — Ss. 304-A and 337 — Applicability — Firework factory situate in close proximity to residential quarters — Prohibited explosives with highly sensitive composition stored in the premises — Owner's employing women who brought young children to the factory — Young children below the age of 18 employed — Explosion in the factory causing death and injuries to persons — Cause of explosion not known — Held, license holders displayed a high degree of negligence and were guilty under the sections

The appellants, who were licence holders for manufacturing explosive had displayed a high degree of negligence by allowing or causing to be used dangerous and prohibited compositions and substances which must be held to have been the efficient cause of the explosion. They were, therefore, guilty under Ss. 304-A and 337, IPC. Bhalchandra v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1968 SC 1319: (1968) 3 SCR 766: 1968 Cri LJ 1501, 1505.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-4-1968]

(8) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/Relief to victim

[7771] — S. 304-A — Accidental death of a family man — Accused being responsible for the accident convicted and already in jail for four and a half months — In the circumstances of the case sentence of imprisonment reduced to that already undergone and instead fine of Rs 2000 enhanced to Rs 10,000 to be paid to the family members of the deceased. Sukhdev Singh v. State of Punjab, (1982) 2 SCC 439: 1982 SCC (Cri) 467.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, E.S. Venkataramiah and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-1982]

[7772] — S. 304-A — Compensation — Accident owing to rash driving of bus — Acquittal in criminal case will not defeat the claim for damages — Requirement of culpable rashness under S. 304-A, IPC is more drastic than negligence sufficient to create liability under tort law. N.K.V. Bros. (P) Ltd. v. M. Karumai Ammal, (1980) 3 SCC 457: 1980 SCC (Cri) 774: AIR 1980 SC 1354: (1980) 41 FLR 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1980]

[7773] — S. 304-A — Conviction under confirmed but sentence of imprisonment reduced and fine enhanced — Fine directed to be paid over to the deceased's widow as compensation. Nand Ballabh Pant v. State (Union Territory of Delhi), (1976) 4 SCC 512: 1977 SCC (Cri) 9: AIR 1977 SC 892: 1977 Cri LJ 549.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, V.R. Krishna Iyer and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-9-1976]

[7774] — S. 304-A — Death caused by car accident — Rash or negligent — Distinction explained — Sentence — Discretion of Court — Whether fine enough — Facts and circumstances. Balchandra Waman Pathe v. State of Maharashtra, 1968 Mah LJ 423: 1968 MPLJ 371.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1967]

[7775] — S. 304-A — Plea-bargaining — Enhancement or imposition of sentence in revision or appeal after the accused had plea-bargained for a lighter sentence or mere fine in the trial court, held, would not be reasonable, just or fair and thereby offend Art. 21 — Proper course in such instances is to order retrial giving opportunity to the accused to defend himself — Constitution of India, Art. 21 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 229, 241 and 368, 399 & 401. Thippaswamy v. State of Karnataka, (1983) 1 SCC 194: 1983 SCC (Cri) 160: AIR 1983 SC 747: 1983 Cri LJ 1271.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, R.S. Pathak and A.N. Sen, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-1982]

[7776] — S. 304-A — Probation — On the peculiar facts and circumstances, held, the appellant found guilty under S. 304-A should be released on probation on executing bond for good behaviour. Aitha Chander Rao v. State of A.P., 1981 Supp SCC 17: 1981 SCC (Cri) 637.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-1981]

[7777] — S. 304-A — Sentence — Delay in final disposal — Trial finally disposed of by Supreme Court 18 years after the date of occurrence — Sentence of 6 months' imprisonment and Rs 250 fine for offence under S. 304-A, IPC — Inadvisable to send the accused to imprisonment after such delay — Sentence converted into fine of Rs 2000 payable to parents/relatives of the girl (the victim) — Constitution of India, Art. 136. Parkash Chandra Agnihotri v. State of M.P., 1990 Supp SCC 764: 1991 SCC (Cri) 146.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1990]

[7778] — S. 304-A — Sentence — Interference with by High Court — Head-on collision of lorry driven by accused-respondent with a car resulting in death of four occupants of the car — High Court in revision awarding a lesser sentence while maintaining the conviction — Trial Magistrate and appellate court finding rash and negligent driving by accused — High Court taking the view that negligence was only to the extent that accused did not make any effort to avoid the collision — High Court's view not based on evidence — Having regard to serious nature of the accident, held, High Court's interference with the sentence was not warranted

A car had a head-on collision with a mini lorry driven by the accused-respondent. As a result of the collision, the right front tyre of the car burst and the driver of the car lost control of the vehicle and it dashed against a nearby tree. The driver and three other occupants of the car died in the accident. The respondent raised a plea before the trial Magistrate as well as before the appellate court that the accident might have occurred due to the bursting of the right front tyre of the car as a result of which the car went to the right side of the road and dashed against the lorry. But this plea was not accepted. A suggestion to this effect was put to the Motor Vehicles

Inspector who had examined the vehicle after the accident. However, the Inspector also declined the suggestion. The possibility of the car having gone to the extreme right side stood also ruled out by the evidence. The trial Magistrate and the appellate court found the respondent guilty of offences under Sections 279, 337, 338 and 304-A IPC. However, on revision a Single Judge of the High Court, while confirming the conviction of the respondent, modified the sentence taking the view that the collision had taken place when due to bursting of the front tyre, the car went to the right side of the road. The Single Judge observed:

"While to this extent the petitioner could be said to be innocent and while that aspect of innocence could certainly influence the decision relating to sentence, I am of the opinion that the accident having taken place at 7.00 a.m., with no other vehicles being on the road and when it is as wide a road as of 40 feet width totally, the negligence on the part of the petitioner lies in the fact that he did not make any efforts to avoid the collision."

For this reason the Single Judge reduced the sentence for the offence under Section 304-A to payment of a fine of Rs 5000 and in default thereof simple imprisonment for 3 months. The Single Judge imposed a sentence for the offence under Section 337 IPC with a fine of Rs 500, in default to simple imprisonment for 15 days; and for the offence under Section 338 IPC with a fine of Rs 550, in default to simple imprisonment for 15 days. No separate sentence was awarded for the offence punishable under Section 279 IPC. Allowing the State's appeal,

Held:

The observation made by the revisional court is not based on the evidence on record. Having regard to the serious nature of the accident, which resulted in the death of four persons, the learned Single Judge should not have interfered with the sentence imposed by the courts below. It may create and set an unhealthy precedent and send wrong signals to the subordinate courts which have to deal with several such accident cases. If the accused are found guilty of rash and negligent driving, courts have to be on guard to ensure that they do not escape the clutches of law very lightly. The sentence imposed by the courts should have a deterrent effect on potential wrongdoers and it should commensurate with the seriousness of the offence. Of course, the courts are given discretion in the matter of sentence to take stock of the wide and varying range of facts that might be relevant for fixing the quantum of sentence, but the discretion shall be exercised with due regard to larger interest of the society and it is needless to add that passing of sentence on the offender is probably the most public face of the criminal justice system. (Paras 5 and 6)

In the facts and circumstances of the case, interference with the judgment of the Single Judge of the High Court is called for and the respondent is liable to undergo the sentence imposed by the trial Magistrate and affirmed by the appellate court. Consequently, it is directed that for the offence punishable under Section 304-A, the respondent be taken into custody to undergo simple imprisonment for six months. As regards offences under Sections 279, 337 and 338 IPC, no separate sentence has been awarded by the trial Magistrate. The direction of the trial Magistrate is maintained. (Para 7). State of Karnataka v. Sharanappa Basanagouda Aregoudar, (2002) 3 SCC 738: 2002 SCC (Cri) 704: AIR 2002 SC 1529.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.P. Sethi and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-2002]

[7779] — S. 304-A — Sentence — Mitigating circumstances — Accident between truck and autorickshaw killing a child — Both drivers to blame for accident — Proceedings against driver of autorickshaw going on for 8 years — Sentence reduced to 6 months. Jagdish Chander v. State of Delhi, (1973) 2 SCC 203: 1973 SCC (Cri) 770: AIR 1973 SC 2127: 1973 Cri LJ 1393: (1974) 1 SCR 204.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-1973]

[7780] — S. 304-A — Sentence — Rash and negligent driving resulting in death of a boy — Occurrence taking place about 15 years ago — Appellant remaining on bail for the last more than 8 years — Held, in the circumstances, the appellant directed to be released under S. 360 CrPC on probation of good conduct, be of good behaviour and keep peace for a period of one year — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4. A.P. Raju v. State of Orissa, 1995 Supp (2) SCC 385: 1995 SCC (Cri) 675.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1994]

[7781] — S. 304-A — Sentence — Reduction of, on offer to compensate heirs of deceased, and serious ailment of accused plus fact that incident took place 18 years back — Imposition of sentence of 1½ years — Incident took place 18 years back — Appellant suffering from serious ailment — He offering to pay Rs 15,000 as compensation to the heirs of the deceased — In such circumstances, held, it would be just and proper to reduce the sentence of appellant to six months — Constitution of India, Art. 136 (Paras 2 and 4). Munni Kachhi v. State of M.P., (2005) 13 SCC 386: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 330.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-7-2005]

[7782] — S. 304-A — Sentence of imprisonment imposed for offence under, set aside and instead a substantial amount of fine imposed by High Court having regard to various mitigating circumstances — Held, High Court should consider the matter afresh as regards sentence alone in the light of decisions of Supreme Court in Krishna case, (1987) 1 SCC 538 and Sharanappa case, (2002) 3 SCC 738 and then pass appropriate orders, taking into consideration facts and circumstances of the case. State of Karnataka v. K. Rajeeva Shetty, (2004) 13 SCC 401.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Shivaraj V. Patil and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-12-2004]

State of Karnataka v. Krishna, (1987) 1 SCC 538: 1987 SCC (Cri) 198; State of Karnataka v. Sharanappa Basanagouda Aregoudar, (2002) 3 SCC 738: 2002 SCC (Cri) 704, relied on

[7783] — S. 304-A — Sentence of imprisonment is not a must — Court has discretion to punish either with imprisonment or with fine or with both

The High Court appears to have been influenced by the fact that a human life had been lost. If that is so it had clearly lost sight of the fact that causing death is a necessary ingredient of an offence under S. 304-A, Indian Penal Code. Yet the legislature in its wisdom has left it to the discretion of the Courts to punish an offence under that section either with imprisonment or with fine or both. From that it is clear that the legislature did not consider that for an offence under S. 304, Indian Penal Code, a term of imprisonment is a must. On the other hand it did visualise the possibility of an offence falling under that provision being penalised by mere fine. Bhalachandra Waman Pathe v. State of Maharashtra, 1968 ACJ 38: 1968 Mah LJ 423: 1968 MPLJ 371.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, J.M. Shelat and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1967]

[7784] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Applicability of Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 — Causing death by rash and negligent driving — Provisions of S. 4 PO Act not attracted — Held, in view of galloping rate of road accidents in India and its devastating consequences, lenience cannot be shown and the benevolent provisions of S. 4 PO Act cannot be treated as applicable to the offence under S. 304-A IPC — Further, held, when deciding quantum of sentence deterrence ought to be the prime consideration — Every driver should fear that, if convicted, courts will not treat him leniently — Appellant bus driver knocking down cyclist in front of office gate in town area — Injuries fatal — Trial court and appellate court both finding appellant guilty of rash and negligent driving and convicting him under Ss. 279 and 304-A IPC — Held, High Court rightly dismissed the revision petition filed by appellant — S. 4 PO Act not attracted to case of appellant — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4

The appellant, while driving a bus, knocked down a cyclist in front of the main gate of an office building in the town of Bhiwani, Haryana. The time was around 6:15 p.m. and the victim was just leaving his place of work. After being hit he was dragged by the bus for some distance. The unfortunate young man thus died a horribly painful death. The appellant was tried and convicted under Sections 279 and 304-A IPC; he was sentenced to imprisonment for three months and 1 year, respectively, for the two offences.

The trial court and Sessions Court both noted that there was a greater need for caution when driving in urban areas, which have large numbers of people in limited spaces. They observed that the appellant, ignoring this simple, but critical rule, had driven very carelessly and rashly and caused the death of a man in front of his own office building. The High Court dismissed the appellant's revision petition.

Before the Supreme Court, the benevolent provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 were sought to be invoked on behalf of the appellant. Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

When automobiles have become death traps any leniency shown to drivers who are found guilty of rash driving would be at the risk of further escalation of road accidents. All those who are manning the steering of automobiles, particularly professional drivers, must be kept under constant reminders of their duty to adopt utmost care and also of the consequences befalling them in cases of dereliction. One of the most effective ways of keeping such drivers under mental vigil is to maintain a deterrent element in the sentencing sphere. Any latitude shown to them in that sphere would tempt them to make driving frivolous and a frolic. (Para 1)

Courts must bear in mind that when any plea is made based on Section 4 of the PO Act for application to a convicted person under Section 304-A IPC, that road accidents have proliferated to an alarming extent and the toll is galloping day by day in India, and that no solution is in sight nor suggested by any quarter to bring them down. (Para 11)

Bearing in mind the galloping trend in road accidents in India and the devastating consequences visiting the victims and their families, criminal courts cannot treat the nature of the offence under Section 304-A IPC as attracting the benevolent provisions of Section 4 of the PO Act. While considering the quantum of sentence to be imposed for the offence of causing death by rash or negligent driving of automobiles, one of the prime considerations should be deterrence. A professional driver should not take a chance thinking that even if he is convicted he would be dealt with leniently by the court. He must always keep in his mind the fear psyche that if he is convicted of the offence for causing death of a human being due to his callous driving of the vehicle he cannot escape from a jail sentence. This is the role which the courts can play, particularly at the level of trial courts, for lessening the high rate of motor accidents due to callous driving of automobiles. (Para 13). Dalbir Singh v. State of Haryana, (2000) 5 SCC 82: AIR 2000 SC 1677: 2000 Cri LJ 2283.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-2000]

State of Karnataka v. Krishna, (1987) 1 SCC 538: 1987 SCC (Cri) 198; Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 4 SCC 719: 1980 SCC (Cri) 17, relied on

Aitha Chander Rao v. State of A.P., 1981 Supp SCC 17: 1981 SCC (Cri) 637, distinguished

[7785] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Rash and negligent driving — Sentence of imprisonment — Rationale of punishment — Case law emphasising deterrent effect of punishment on lax and inattentive drivers, relied upon — A seven years old child was killed due to rash and negligent driving — Simple imprisonment for six months plus one month and fine of Rs 1000 plus Rs 500, held, proper

Six months' simple imprisonment and a direction to the appellant to pay a fine of Rs 1000 for commission of the offence punishable under Section 304-A IPC and simple imprisonment for one month and to pay a fine of Rs 500 for the offence punishable under Section 279 IPC cannot be said to be shocking. While considering the quantum of sentence to be imposed for the offence of causing death by rash or negligent driving of automobiles, one of the prime considerations should be deterrence. The driver must always keep in his mind the fear psyche that if he is convicted of the offence for causing death of a human being due to his callous driving of the vehicle he cannot escape from a jail sentence. (Paras 14 and 15). B. Nagabhushanam v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 5 SCC 730: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 61: AIR 2008 SC 2557: (2007) 67 AIC 42(2) (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

Dalbir Singh v. State of Haryana, (2000) 5 SCC 82: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1208; Ratan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 4 SCC 719: 1980 SCC (Cri) 17, relied on [7786] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Sentence — Interference when justified — Supervening circumstances — Held, normally the Supreme Court would not interfere with the sentence imposed — But, due to certain supervening circumstances (calamity which had overtaken accused-appellant and his family), Supreme Court justified in doing so — Appellant sentenced to one year's imprisonment in respect of offences under Ss. 304-A and 279 IPC — Subsequently, his family becoming victims of disaster of tsunami tidal waves — His wife and one son not traceable nor their dead bodies recovered till date — Appellant's eldest son V living separately since his marriage and keeping no relations with appellant and his family — X was the only surviving dependent son of the appellant — He left in complete destitution having neither parents nor brother nor any source of livelihood and shelter — In view of the above, held, it would not be proper to direct the appellant to serve the sentence for further period — Sentence already undergone (about 5 months) treated as substantive punishment — However, fine of Rs 5000 imposed with default stipulation — Constitution of India, Art. 136 (Paras 3 and 2). T. Gurumurthy v. State, (2005) 10 SCC 208: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1506.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-2005]

[7787] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Sentence — Reduction of — Leniency for a convict under (offence not being compoundable under S. 320 CrPC) — Factual considerations and extent of leniency — Appellant-accused willing to pay mother of deceased rupees one lakh (mother having no grievance against accused) — Appellant not under the influence of any drug or intoxicant while driving — High Court awarding sentence of one year simple imprisonment and fine of Rs 5000 for offence under S. 279 IPC and simple imprisonment for six months and a fine of Rs 5000 for the offence under S. 304-A IPC — On facts, held, lenient view can be taken — Sentence of imprisonment reduced to period already undergone with the condition of payment of rupees one lakh to the mother of the deceased failing which S. 431 CrPC would be attracted — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 357, 320, 431 and 428

The appellant dashed against a Kinetic Honda scooter, being driven by the deceased, who fell down and was run over by the left wheel of the tanker. The deceased succumbed to the injuries on the way to the hospital. Both the courts below have found the appellant guilty of the offence under Sections 279 and 304-A IPC. The trial court sentenced him to undergo simple imprisonment for one year and to pay fine of Rs 5000 for both the offences and in default to undergo simple imprisonment for two months. On appeal, the impugned order of High Court maintained the conviction and awarded simple imprisonment for one year and a fine of Rs 5000 for the offence under Section 279 IPC and simple imprisonment for six months and a fine of Rs 5000 for the offence under Section 304-A IPC.

Partly allowing the appeal,

Held :

The prayer for compounding of offences was rejected as offences punishable under Sections 279 and 304-A IPC are not compoundable under Section 320 CrPC. Having regard to the fact that the mother of the victim has no grievance against the appellant and has prayed for some compensation, a lenient view can be taken in the matter and the sentence of imprisonment can be reduced. Ends of justice would be met if the sentence of imprisonment is reduced to the period already undergone but in addition thereto, the appellant who was willing to pay an amount of Rs 1,00,000 to the mother of the deceased by way of compensation should be directed to pay the amount. Accordingly, the conviction of the appellant under Sections 279 and 304-A IPC is maintained. However, the substantive sentence of imprisonment is reduced to the period already undergone. If the appellant fails to pay the said amount within the stipulated time of three months, the same shall be recovered as per the procedure prescribed under Section 431 CrPC and be paid to the mother of the deceased. (Paras 7, 17 and 18)

True that in the instant case the appellant has been found to be guilty of offences punishable under Sections 279 and 304-A IPC for driving rashly and negligently on a public street and his act unfortunately resulted in the loss of a precious human life. But it is pertinent to note that there was no allegation against the appellant that at the time of accident he was under the influence of liquor or any other substance impairing his driving skills. It was a rash and negligent act simpliciter and not a case of driving in an inebriated condition which is, undoubtedly despicable aggravated offence warranting stricter and harsher punishment. (Para 16). Manish Jalan v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 8 SCC 225: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 456: AIR 2008 SC 3074: (2008) 3 KLT 390: (2008) 68 AIC 124 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 3941.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-7-2008]

[7788] — Ss. 304-A, 279 and 337 — Sentence — Rash and negligent driving of motor vehicle causing death of one person and injuries to another and failure to secure medical aid to the victims and to make a report of the accident to police — Sentences of fine of Rs 250 and in default simple imprisonment for one month under S. 304-A, fine of Rs 25 and in default simple imprisonment for one week under S. 279 and fine of Rs 50 and in default simple imprisonment for 25 days under S. 337 besides fine of Rs 10 and in default simple imprisonment for 5 days under Ss. 89(a)/112 as also under Ss. 89(b)/112 of Motor Vehicles Act imposed by trial court — Held, sentences unconscionably lenient — High Court gravely erred in refusing to enhance the sentences under S. 377, CrPC — While sentence for the most serious charges under S. 304-A enhanced to 6 months' RI with fine of Rs 1000 and in default 2 months' RI, the remaining sentences left undisturbed by Supreme Court — Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, Ss. 89(a) & (b) and 112. State of Karnataka v. Krishna, (1987) 1 SCC 538: 1987 SCC (Cri) 198: AIR 1987 SC 861: 1987 Cri LJ 776.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and S. Natarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-1-1987]

[7789] — Ss. 304-A and 337 — Culpable negligence or rashness — Held, depends directly on the question as to what is the amount of care and circumspection which a prudent and reasonable man would consider it to be sufficient considering circumstances of the case — "Rashness" consists in hazarding a dangerous or wanton act with the knowledge that it is so, and that it may cause injury — Criminality in such case lies in running the risk of doing such an act with recklessness or indifference as to the consequences — Criminal negligence on the other hand, is the gross and culpable neglect or failure to exercise that reasonable and proper care and precaution to guard against injury either to the public generally or to an individual in particular, which, having regard to all the circumstances out of which the charge has arisen it was the imperative duty of the accused person to have adopted — In the instant case, the revision petitioner-accused was alleged to have driven the lorry in a rash and negligent manner dashing against a tree resulting in death of three persons and causing grievous injuries to three others travelling in it — PW 10 (RTO) explicitly stating that the accident was not on account of mechanical failure — Eyewitnesses to the occurrence also stating that the vehicle was being driven at a very high speed and that the road was quite wide and there was no traffic at the time of accident — Hence, conviction under Ss. 304-A and 337 sustainable — Sentence of 6 months' simple imprisonment and fine of Rs 300 affirmed — Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, Ss. 183, 184 and 187 (Paras 2, 6, 7 and 8). Rathnashalvan v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 3 SCC 474: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 84: AIR 2007 SC 1064: 2007 Cri LJ 1451: (2007) 52 AIC 240 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-2007]

Nidamarti Nagabhushanam, In re, 7 Mad HCR 119, approved

[7790] — Ss. 304-A and 337 — Sentence — Heavy sentence imposed by trial court on ground that appellant was found to have been drunk — Conclusion of doctor who examined accused based merely on the facts that appellant's breath was smelling alcohol, that his gait was unsteady that his speech was incoherent and that his pupils were dilated — Urine and blood reports not brought on record — Appellant could not be held to have been drunk at the time of accident — Sentence of 18 months' RI and fine of Rs 1000 reduced to imprisonment already undergone. Bachubhai Hassanalli Karyani v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 3 SCC 930: 1972 SCC (Cri) 178: 1971 ACJ 116.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, V. Bhargava and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-1970]

[7791] — Ss. 304-A and 338 — Reduction of sentence to period already undergone — Convictions under with sentences of SI for six and three months imposed, to run concurrently — On appellant having remained in custody for more than three months, sentence reduced to period already undergone. Uthem Rajanna v. State of A.P., (2005) 11 SCC 531.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-2005]

(9) Effect on civil proceedings for compensation/damages

[7792] — S. 304-A — Compensation — Accident owing to rash driving of bus — Acquittal in criminal case will not defeat the claim for damages — Requirement of culpable rashness under S. 304-A IPC is more drastic than negligence sufficient to create liability under tort law — Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, Ss. 115, 116, 110-A, 110-B & 110-D. N.K.V. Bros. (P) Ltd. v. M. Karumai Ammal, (1980) 3 SCC 457: 1980 SCC (Cri) 774: AIR 1980 SC 1354: (1980) 41 FLR 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and D.A. Desai, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1980]

(10) Other issues

[7793] — S. 304-A — Conviction — Conviction confirmed by High Court under S. 304-A — Observation by High Court that charge should have been under S. 340 — Observation not serious in view of confirmation by High Court — Conviction upheld. Natha Singh v. State of J&K, (1971) 3 SCC 719: 1972 SCC (Cri) 38.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-1971]

[7794] — S. 304-A — Revision — Where a bus driver was convicted under S. 304-A in connection with an accident which resulted in the death of one person, held, High Court erred in allowing respondent bus driver's revision petition and upsetting concurrent findings of fact of lower courts without considering evidence on record and without indicating how lower courts were wrong in reaching their conclusions and without giving any reasons as to why the revision was being allowed — CrPC, 1973, S. 397 (Para 4). State of A.P. v. Rajagopala Rao, (2000) 10 SCC 338.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Kirpal and S. Rajendra Babu, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-2-1999]

[7795] — S. 304-A — Revision — Powers of High Court under S. 401 CrPC — High Court, without any reference to the evidence on record or findings of the subordinate courts in respect of the evidence, upsetting the concurrent findings of the courts below — Revisional jurisdiction being supervisory in nature, High Court's interference with the concurrent findings of the courts below, without assigning any reason for such an interference, held, was not proper — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 401 and 374. State of A.P. v. Pituhuk Sreeinvanasa Rao, (2000) 9 SCC 537: 2001 SCC (Cri) 642: AIR 2000 SC 3515(2).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and M.B. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-3-2000]

[7796] — Ss. 304-A and 279 — Accused acquitted of offence under S. 89(a) and (b) of Motor Vehicles Act, 1939 but convicted under Ss. 304-A and 279 IPC — No appeal against acquittal — In appeal against conviction under Ss. 304-A and 279, IPC, High Court has no jurisdiction to convict the accused under S. 89(a) and (b) and acquit him of offence under Ss. 304-A and 279 IPC — Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, S. 89(a) and (b) — CrPC, 1973 — Ss. 374 and 386. Gurudeth v. State of Kerala, 1990 Supp SCC 148: 1990 SCC (Cri) 641.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-7-1988]

— S. 304-A Pt. I See also Ss. 300 Exception 4 and 304-A Pt. I

SECTION 304-B — DOWRY DEATH

See also SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — 'C.9. Dowry death/Bride burning (S. 304-B)', in Vol. 2

Synopsis

(1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability 123
(2) History of S. 304-B and Abuse of dowry laws 124
(3) Pre-S. 304-B dowry deaths 124
(4) Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A IPC and Ss. 113-A/113-B, Evidence Act — Relative scope 125
(5) The charge and S. 304-B 130
(6) Ingredients of dowry death and presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act 131
  (i) Broadly 131
  (ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises 145
  (iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance 157
  (iv) "Within seven years of marriage" 159
  (v) Cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand 165
  (vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.] 166
  (vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation 171
  (viii) Husband or any relative of husband — Who are and their culpability 179
(7) Trial, Proof and Other issues 181
  (i) Acquittal justified 181
  (ii) Appeal/Revision 185
  (iii) Appreciation of evidence 187
  (iv) Bail 187
  (v) Cause of death — Suicide or homicide 189
  (vi) Circumstantial evidence 191
  (vii) Conviction justified 194
  (viii) Dying declaration 199
  (ix) Other issues relating to proof 205
  (x) Witnesses 206
(8) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/Relief to victim 207
(9) Death sentence — When warranted 211
(10) Other issues 212

(1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability

See also '(2) History of S. 304-B and Abuse of dowry laws', below

[7797] — S. 304-B — Object and philosophy behind enactment of (Paras 41, 42 and 46). Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 166: AIR 2006 SC 2855: 2006 Cri LJ 4070.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-8-2006]

Soni Devrajbhai Babubhai v. State of Gujarat, (1991) 4 SCC 298: 1991 SCC (Cri) 959, relied on

[7798] — S. 304-B — Object behind insertion of S. 304-B IPC and S. 113-B, Evidence Act, restated

Both Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act were inserted by the Dowry Prohibition (Amendment) Act 43 of 1986 with a view to combat the increasing menace of dowry deaths. Keeping in view the impediment in the pre-existing law in securing evidence to prove dowry-related deaths, the legislature thought it wise to insert a provision relating to presumption of dowry death on proof of certain essentials. It is in this background that presumptive Section 113-B in the Evidence Act has been inserted. (Para 10). Kunhiabdulla v. State of Kerala, (2004) 4 SCC 13: 2004 SCC (Cri) 907: AIR 2004 SC 1731: (2004) 2 KLT 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-2004]

[7799] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Object behind insertion of S. 304-B IPC and S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Restated — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Para 16). Tarsem Singh v. State of Punjab, (2008) 16 SCC 155: AIR 2009 SC 1454: (2009) 73 AIC 50 (SC): (2009) 2 ECrN 520 (SC).
Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-12-2008]

[7800] — Ss. 304-B and 302 — Bride burning for dowry — Remedy to eliminate the evil of, suggested — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961

Dowry killing is a crime of its own kind where elimination of daughter-in-law becomes immediate necessity if she or her parents are no more able to satiate the greed and avarice of her husband and their family members, to make the boy available once again in the marriage market. Eliminate it and much may stand resolved automatically. Social reformist and legal jurists may evolve a machinery for debarring such a boy from remarriage irrespective of the member of family who committed the crime and in violation penalise the whole family including those who participate in it. That is, social ostracisation is needed to curtail increasing malady of bride burning. (Para 4). Ashok Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, (1991) 1 SCC 166: 1991 SCC (Cri) 126: AIR 1990 SC 2134: 1990 Cri LJ 2276.
Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and R.M. Sahai, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1990]

(2) History of S. 304-B and Abuse of dowry laws

See also SECTION 304-B — DOWRY DEATH — '(1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability', above

[7801] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A — Dowry demand — Plausibility of — Abuse of dowry laws — Alleged dowry demand raised for first time six years after marriage, and that too involving a trivial amount considering socio-economic status of the parties — Held, such allegation unnatural and improbable — It was a clear-cut case of gross abuse of dowry laws — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 4 and 3 (Paras 57 to 59). Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta (Dr.) v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 13 SCC 657.
Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-11-2010]

(3) Pre-S. 304-B dowry deaths

[7802] — S. 304-B — Applicability — Offence committed prior to coming into force of S. 304-B — Evidence showing death could be suicide — Held, S. 304-B not applicable. Lakhjit Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 173: 1994 SCC (Cri) 235.
Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-1993]

[7803] — S. 304-B — Inserted by Dowry Prohibition (Amendment) Act, 1986 (43 of 1986) prospectively w.e.f. November 19, 1986 by creating a new substantive offence more stringent than S. 498-A — Where incident occurred prior to that date, held, accused-respondents rightly tried under S. 498-A, as their trial under S. 304-B would be hit by Art. 20(1) — However, respondents can be tried under any more stringent pre-existing provision if alleged offence can fall thereunder — Constitution of India, Art. 20(1)

The offence punishable under S. 304-B, known as dowry death, was a new offence created with effect from November 19, 1986 by insertion of the provision in the Indian Penal Code providing for a more stringent offence than S. 498-A. Section 304-B is a substantive provision creating a new offence and not merely a provision effecting a change in procedure for trial of a pre-existing substantive offence. The contention that S. 304-B contains merely a rule of evidence is untenable. The rule of evidence to prove the offence of dowry death is contained in S. 113-B of the Indian Evidence Act. The fact that the Evidence Act was so amended simultaneously with the insertion of S. 304-B in the Penal Code by the same Amendment Act is another pointer in this direction. (Paras 9 and 10)

The death in question in the present case took place when S. 498-A was in operation and the respondents were being tried in the Court of Magistrate of the First Class under that provision. The respondents could not be tried and punished for offence under the new S. 304-B as that had been inserted in IPC subsequent to the commission of the offence attributed to the respondents. Section 304-B cannot be held to have retrospective operation as that would amount to holding that the respondents can be tried and punished for the offence under S. 304-B with the minimum sentence of seven years' imprisonment for an act done by them prior to creation of the new offence of dowry death. This would clearly deny them the protection under Art. 20(1). (Para 9)

However, in case the accusation against the respondents discloses commission of any other more stringent pre-existing offence by the respondents than S. 498-A of the Indian Penal Code, the appellant would be entitled to raise that question and the court will then consider and decide it on that basis. (Para 11). Soni Devrajbhai Babubhai v. State of Gujarat, (1991) 4 SCC 298: 1991 SCC (Cri) 959: AIR 1991 SC 2173.
Bench Strength 2. Coram: L.M. Sharma and J.S. Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1991]

(4) Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A IPC and Ss. 113-A/113-B, Evidence Act — Relative scope

See also under S. 306 and S. 498-A, below

[7804] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Difference in legal position between — Effect on S. 306 of enactment of S. 113-A, Evidence Act, 1872 in 1983

There is difference in legal position between Section 304-B and Section 306 IPC which was merely an offence of abetment of suicide earlier. The section remained in the statute-book without any practical use till 1983. But by the introduction of Section 113-A in the Evidence Act the said offence under Section 306 IPC has acquired wider dimensions and has become a serious marriage-related offence. Section 113-A of the Evidence Act says that under certain conditions, almost similar to the conditions for dowry death the court may presume having regard to the circumstances of the case, that such suicide has been abetted by her husband etc. When the law says that the court may presume the fact, it is discretionary on the part of the court either to regard such fact as proved or not to do so, which depends upon all the other circumstances of the case. As there is no compulsion on the court to act on the presumption, the accused can persuade the court against drawing a presumption adverse to him. But the peculiar situation in respect of an offence under Section 304-B IPC, as discernible from the distinction pointed out above in respect of the offence under Section 306 IPC is this: Under the former the court has a statutory compulsion, merely on the establishment of the two factual positions, namely, (1) death of a wife should have occurred otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage; (2) soon before her death she should have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by the accused in connection with any demand for dowry, to presume that the accused has committed dowry death. If any accused wants to escape from the said catch the burden is on him to disprove it. If he fails to rebut the presumption the court is bound to act on it. (Paras 29 and 30). Shamnsaheb M. Multtani v. State of Karnataka, (2001) 2 SCC 577: 2001 SCC (Cri) 358: AIR 2001 SC 921.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.T. Thomas, R.P. Sethi and B.N. Agrawal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-1-2001]

[7805] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Framing of charge — Omission/defect in — When material — Held, mere omission or defect in framing charge would not disable court from convicting accused for offence which has been found to be proved on basis of evidence on record — In such circumstances, matter would fall within purview of S. 221 CrPC — In instant case of bride committing suicide, there was no failure of justice, when High Court, on close scrutiny of evidence, converted conviction of appellant-accused (husband of deceased) under S. 304-B IPC to one under S. 306 IPC, even though specific charge had not been framed under S. 306 IPC — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 221 and 464(1) (Paras 22 and 23). Narwinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2011) 2 SCC 47.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Sudershan Reddy and S.S. Nijjar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2011]

Sangaraboina Sreenu v. State of A.P., (1997) 5 SCC 348: 1997 SCC (Cri) 690; Shamnsaheb M. Multtani v. State of Karnataka, (2001) 2 SCC 577: 2001 SCC (Cri) 358, distinguished [7806] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Presumptions under Ss. 113-A and 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 compared — Burden to prove innocence is more on the accused under S. 113-B than under S. 113-A, which places a far lighter burden on the accused — In S. 113-A, which relates to S. 306 IPC, the court "may presume", "having regard to all the other circumstances of the case", but in S. 113-B, which is relatable to S. 304-B, the court "shall presume" and further there is no reference to the circumstances of the case — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-A, 113-B and 4 (Para 13). Anand Kumar v. State of M.P., (2009) 3 SCC 799: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 28: AIR 2009 SC 2155.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-2-2009]

[7807] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Standard of proof under — Contrasted — Held, the onus on the accused under S. 306 is not as heavy as in the case of a dowry death (Para 14). Anand Kumar v. State of M.P., (2009) 3 SCC 799: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 28: AIR 2009 SC 2155.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-2-2009]

[7808] — S. 304-B or S. 306 — Applicability of either section — Determining factor — Bride committing suicide — Absence of dowry demands — Effect — Held, cruelty or harassment sans any dowry demands, which drives bride to commit suicide, attracts offence of "abetment of suicide" under S. 306 and not S. 304-B, which defines offence and punishment for "dowry death" (Para 21). Narwinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2011) 2 SCC 47.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Sudershan Reddy and S.S. Nijjar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2011]

Sangaraboina Sreenu v. State of A.P., (1997) 5 SCC 348: 1997 SCC (Cri) 690; Shamnsaheb M. Multtani v. State of Karnataka, (2001) 2 SCC 577: 2001 SCC (Cri) 358, distinguished [7809] — S. 304-B or S. 306 — Bride committing suicide — Appreciation of evidence — Commission of suicide not on account of demands for dowry but due to harassment caused by accused husband — Conversion of conviction to one under S. 306, affirmed — High Court converting conviction of appellant-accused (husband of deceased) from one under S. 304-B to S. 306 — Sustainability — Held, High Court, upon meticulous scrutiny of entire evidence on record, rightly concluded that there was no evidence to indicate commission of offence under S. 304-B — It also observed that deceased had committed suicide due to harassment meted out to her by appellant husband, but there was no evidence on record to suggest that such harassment or cruelty was made in connection to any dowry demands — Hence, High Court very appropriately converted conviction of appellant under S. 304-B to one under S. 306 — Therefore, no interference warranted (Paras 14 to 23). Narwinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2011) 2 SCC 47.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B. Sudershan Reddy and S.S. Nijjar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2011]

Sangaraboina Sreenu v. State of A.P., (1997) 5 SCC 348: 1997 SCC (Cri) 690; Shamnsaheb M. Multtani v. State of Karnataka, (2001) 2 SCC 577: 2001 SCC (Cri) 358, distinguished

[7810] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A — Death by burning — Deceased committing suicide within 11 months after her marriage with Appellant 1 — No direct evidence — Appellants not attempting to save the deceased — Trial court acquitting Appellant 1 and his mother, Appellant 2, of all the charges on the grounds that the dying declaration was not recorded in the language in which it was made, there were some minor contradictions in the dying declaration and the report made to the Head Constable, and that there was doubt whether the deceased was in a fit condition to make the dying declaration — Further, the trial court held that the scolding and taunting of the deceased for not preparing proper food or that she was not good-looking was not such a cruelty so as to push her to commit suicide — Where the dying declaration was recorded and signed by the Magistrate, endorsement was made thereon by the doctor that the deceased made the statement in a fit state of mind, and the deceased put a thumb impression on her declaration which was made in Urdu and recorded in English and thereafter explained in Hindi to the deceased, held on facts, the appellants were rightly convicted under Ss. 306 and 498-A by the High Court — Further, High Court rightly held that the continuous taunting or teasing of the deceased by the appellants on one ground or the other amounted to mental cruelty drawing her to end her life — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386 and 378

PW 1, the Magistrate has certified that he had signed the dying declaration and had taken the endorsement of the doctor on duty that the deceased was in a fit state of mind to make a statement; the deceased had made the dying declaration in question-answer form in Urdu and he had translated the version and recorded the declaration in English. After recording her statement, he explained the statement in Hindi to the deceased who admitted its correctness. Thereafter, he took the thumb impression of the deceased on her declaration. In cross-examination, he has stated that he could read and speak in Hindi; the deceased had made statement in Urdu which he could understand as Urdu and Hindi languages are almost similar and in Hyderabad, Urdu and Hindi languages are spoken in the same way, there being not much difference. PW 11, the doctor, corroborated the statement of PW 1 to the effect that the deceased was in a fit mental condition to make statement and that he was present when the statement was recorded by the Magistrate. (Para 5)

Whether one spouse has been guilty of cruelty to the other is essentially a question of fact. The impact of complaints, accusations or taunts on a person amounting to cruelty depends on various factors like the sensitivity of the individual victim concerned, the social background, the environment, education etc. Further, mental cruelty varies from person to person depending on the intensity of sensitivity and the degree of courage or endurance to withstand such mental cruelty. Each case has to be decided on its own facts to decide whether the mental cruelty was established or not. In the facts and circumstances of the case, the High Court rightly concluded that the continuous taunting or teasing of the deceased by the appellants on one ground or the other amounted to mental cruelty drawing her to end her life. Out of 11 months of married life, the deceased was forced to live in her parents' house and could live with her husband for a period of two months in different spells. The High Court also took note of the fact that the appellants did not try to save the deceased although they were present when the burn injuries were caused to her. (Para 6)

Having regard to the evidence brought on record and looking to the reasons recorded by the High Court, the trial court committed manifest error in disbelieving the dying declaration and the evidence of PWs 3 to 7. The High Court was right and justified in reversing the order of acquittal and convicting and sentencing the appellants for the offences under Sections 306 and 498-A IPC. However, having regard to the fact that both the appellants were in imprisonment for about two months, the incident took place on 9-3-1988, Appellant 2 is the mother of Appellant 1 and she is aged 60 years, it would be just and appropriate to modify the sentence of imprisonment to the period already undergone. (Para 8). Mohd. Hoshan v. State of A.P., (2002) 7 SCC 414: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1765: AIR 2002 SC 3270.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-2002]

[7811] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A — Dowry suicide-death — Sustainability of conviction — Direct and reasonable nexus between suicide and cruelty meted out — Death of the bride within four months of her marriage — Harassment and cruelty meted out to the deceased demanding more dowry/tape recorder immediately after her marriage proved — Reluctance of the deceased to return to her matrimonial home established — Held, there was direct and reasonable nexus of the commission of suicide by the deceased with the act of cruelty to which the deceased was subjected to by the accused-appellants — Hence, conviction of the appellants under Ss. 306 and 498-A sustainable — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A (Paras 14 to 22). Sahebrao v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 9 SCC 794: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 408: AIR 2006 SC 2002: 2006 Cri LJ 2881.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-2006]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740; Gananath Pattnaik v. State of Orissa, (2002) 2 SCC 619: 2002 SCC (Cri) 461; Mohd. Hoshan v. State of A.P., (2002) 7 SCC 414: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1765; Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; Hans Raj v. State of Haryana, (2004) 12 SCC 257: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 217, relied on

[7812] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Applicability — Adequacy of evidence — In the present case, a neighbour was examined and that too after about two months of the alleged date of occurrence to bring in application of S. 304-B — Held, there is sufficient evidence relating to demand of dowry to bring in application of S. 498-A but the same not sufficient to attract S. 304-B — Hence, conviction under S. 304-B set aside and that in relation to S. 498-A maintained — Custodial sentence of 3½ years already served, held adequate

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

The only evidence relatable to Section 304-B was that of a neighbour who was examined after about two months of the alleged date of occurrence. Though the evidence appears to be sufficient to bring in application of Section 498-A and there is sufficient evidence relating to demand of dowry, there is definite inadequacy to attract Section 304-B IPC. In that view of the matter the conviction so far it relates to Section 304-B IPC was set aside and that in relation to Section 498-A IPC maintained. (Paras 9 and 10). D. Jayana v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 6 SCC 575: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 75.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

[7813] — S. 304-B and S. 498-A — Charge under S. 304-B but conviction under S. 498-A — Sustainability of — Whether after discarding the testimony of PW 1, PW 6 and PW 7 and acquitting the appellant of the charge under S. 304-B IPC, the High Court could convict him under S. 498-A IPC — Held, although impugned judgment does not contain elaborate discussion with reference to the ingredients of S. 498-A, but on reconsideration of evidence of PWs 1, 6, 7, 14 and 26, offence of cruelty within the meaning of cl. (a) of the Explanation appearing below S. 498-A stood proved — Mere fact that the statements of three witnesses were not found convincing by High Court for sustaining the conviction of the appellant and his other co-accused on the premise that all the ingredients of S. 304-B IPC have not been established, held, is not sufficient to discard the prosecution case as a whole — PW 1, PW 6 (both sisters), PW 7 (mother) and PW 26 (brother) have categorically deposed that immediately after marriage the deceased was given beating by the appellant, his brothers and was subjected to harassment and taunting by mother-in-law and sister-in-law for being dark complexioned and illiterate/not fluent in English — Their statements also show that the appellant had hit the deceased with a brick resulting in wound on her head which had to be stitched — On the date of death also, the deceased was subjected to physical torture and harassment — Both the sisters narrated that when they met the deceased, she was weeping and her eyes were swollen — Their testimony was substantially corroborated by PW 14 who had that the deceased was subjected to beating by her husband and she had suffered injury on her head — This part of the prosecution case has not been disbelieved by High Court which found discrepancy only on the issue of demand of dowry — Beating given to the deceased and harassment to which she was subjected had direct bearing on her committing suicide — Hence, conviction of appellant under S. 498-A sustainable (Paras 23, 29 to 31). Dinesh Seth v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2008) 14 SCC 94: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 783: 2008 Cri LJ 4345: (2008) 153 DLT 535.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and G.S. Singhvi, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-2008]

State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107; Satpal v. State of Haryana, (1998) 5 SCC 687: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1372; Pyare Lal v. State of Haryana, (1997) 11 SCC 552: 1998 SCC (Cri) 197, relied on

Dinesh Seth v. State, ILR (2003) 1 Del 433: 2003 Cri LJ 4532 (Del), affirmed

[7814] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Comparative scope — Held, width and scope of the two sections is different — S. 304-B deals with cases of death as a result of cruelty or harassment within seven years of marriage — S. 498-A has a wider spectrum and it covers all cases in which the wife is subjected to cruelty by her husband or relative of the husband which may result in death by way of suicide or cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) or even harassment caused with a view to coerce the woman or any person related to her to meet unlawful demand for property or valuable security — For convicting a person under S. 304-B prosecution is required to establish that the death of the woman has been caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and soon before her death, the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relative — On the other hand, for conviction under S. 498-A it is sufficient to prove that the woman was subjected to cruelty, as elucidated in the Explanation, by her husband or his relative (Paras 26 and 27). Dinesh Seth v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2008) 14 SCC 94: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 783: 2008 Cri LJ 4345: (2008) 153 DLT 535.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and G.S. Singhvi, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-2008]

[7815] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Conviction under Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Legality — Dowry death — Death within the time-limit mentioned in S. 304-B, when not amounts to — Accused-appellant making demands of property and cash which partially met by his father-in-law — Appellant, however, turning out his wife and one month old child and consequently the wife staying with her father — Cross-litigation under S. 9 of Hindu Marriage Act and S. 125 of CrPC between the appellant and wife — However, compromise effected between the parties and the wife going to the appellant's house — After a few months two problems arising, viz. the appellant starting to beat the wife and the appellant's father refusing to accommodate the spouses in his own house — The spouses shifting to a rented house — The wife, due to the harassment and maltreatment meted out to her by the appellant, asking her father to accommodate her but her father refusing to do so — Impending delivery of a child in these very circumstances having a further depressing effect on her — These circumstances leading her to commit suicide by taking poison — Having been occasioned not by any demand of dowry but by other factors, the wife's death although within seven years of marriage, held, not dowry death so as to attract S. 304-B — However, the cruelty otherwise inflicted upon her, held, a relevant factor to maintain the appellant's conviction under S. 498-A — Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, S. 13(i-a). Pyare Lal v. State of Haryana, (1997) 11 SCC 552: AIR 1999 SC 1563.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-2-1997]

[7816] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Bride burning — Acquittal under S. 304-B but conviction under S. 498-A IPC and Ss. 3 & 4, Dowry Prohibition Act — Permissibility — Examining ingredients of Ss. 304-B and 498-A, held, these are both distinct and separate offences — Therefore, even if there is acquittal under S. 304-B, still conviction under S. 498-A can be recorded under law — Again, examining ingredients of Ss. 3 and 4, Dowry Prohibition Act, held, ambit and scope of these sections is different from that of S. 304-B IPC — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3 and 4

Sections 304-B and 498-A IPC are both distinct and separate offences. The "cruelty" is a common essential ingredient of both the offences. Under Section 304-B, it is the "dowry death" that is punishable and such death should have occurred within seven years of the marriage. In the statute, no such period is mentioned in Section 498-A IPC. The husband or his relative would be liable for subjecting the woman to "cruelty" any time after the marriage. The demand of dowry is an essential ingredient to attract Section 304-B IPC, whereas under Section 498-A IPC the demand of dowry is not the basic ingredient of the offence. Therefore, even if there is acquittal under Section 304-B IPC, still conviction under Section 498-A can be recorded under the law. (Paras 32 and 33)

The object of Section 4, Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 is to discourage the very demand for property or valuable security as consideration for a marriage between the parties thereto. Section 4 prohibits the demand for "giving" property or valuable security which demand, if satisfied, would constitute an offence under Section 3 read with Section 2 of the Act. Thus, the ambit and scope of Sections 3 and 4 of the 1961 Act is different from the ambit and scope of Section 304-B IPC. (Paras 35 to 37)

Hence, the ingredients of Section 498-A IPC and Sections 3 and 4, Dowry Prohibition Act, are different from the ingredients of Section 304-B IPC. The High Court gravely erred in coming to the finding that once the charge under Section 304-B IPC could not be proved, then conviction under Section 498-A IPC and Sections 3 & 4 of the 1961 Act also cannot be recorded. (Paras 18 and 31). State of U.P. v. Santosh Kumar, (2009) 9 SCC 626.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-9-2009]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191, relied on

State of Karnataka v. Balappa, 1999 Cri LJ 3064 (Kant), approved

[7817] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Two dying declarations — First declaration indicating that the deceased died of accidental burns while the second one indicating that the deceased on being unable to bear the dowry demand and harassment meted out by the appellants, committed suicide by setting herself ablaze — Conviction by courts below relying on second declaration and rejecting the first one — Propriety — First declaration recorded by Magistrate after following proper procedure and taking necessary precautions, held, reliable — No reason to discard the same — Second declaration recorded by a police constable about 10 minutes after the first one — Doubt as to the need for recording of — That apart, no proper procedure followed and necessary precautions taken while recording it — Held, it was more appropriate to place reliance on the first declaration — Thus, presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act, stood rebutted by contents of the first declaration — Even a harassed wife can get burnt accidentally, and so her death would not attract S. 304-B — Conviction under S. 304-B set aside — However, charge under S. 498-A, held, established — Conviction thereunder upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-B and 32(1) — CrPC, 1973, S. 428

The second dying declaration (Ext. P-25) recorded by PW 11, the Head Constable came into existence about 10 minutes after the first dying declaration (Ext. P-28) was recorded by the Munsif Magistrate. There is doubt as to the need for recording the statement when the Munsif Magistrate on a request made by the doctor had already recorded a dying declaration as per Ext. P-28. Further, when PW 11 recorded the statement, he did not take the precautions which the Munsif Magistrate took in sending the relatives of the victim out of the room. He also did not put preliminary questions to find out whether the patient was in a fit state of mind to make the said statement. The doctor in Ext. P-25 only states that the patient is conscious. In the said statement, the victim had stated that she set fire to herself being unable to bear the harassment meted out to her by her husband and in-laws. This part of the statement in Ext. P-25 directly contradicts her earlier statement made to the Munsif Magistrate as per Ext. P-28. Ext. P-28 is a document which exculpates the accused person of an offence under Section 304-B IPC. The Magistrate by the preliminary questions had satisfied himself that the victim was in a fit condition to make the statement. From the questions put by the Munsif Magistrate, and from the answers given by the victim to the said questions as recorded by the Munsif Magistrate, there is no reason to come to any conclusion other than that this statement is made voluntarily and must be reflecting the true state of facts. The courts below have fallen in error in rejecting Ext. P-28 and preferring to place reliance on Ext. P-25; more so in the background of the fact that no suggestion whatsoever has been made either to the Munsif Magistrate or to the doctor as to the correctness of Ext. P-28. On facts, it is more appropriate to place reliance on Ext. P-28 rather than on Ext. P-25. If that be so, the death of the deceased will have to be related to her having suffered burn injuries accidentally and succumbed to the same. Since the death of the deceased occurred within 3 years of her marriage, a presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is available to the prosecution, but as the contents of Ext. P-28 have been accepted as true, that presumption stands rebutted. In such a case unless the prosecution is able to establish that the cause of death was not accidental, by evidence other than the dying declarations, the prosecution case under Section 304-B IPC as against the appellants must fail. (Paras 6 and 8)

However, the prosecution has established frequent demands for dowry as also harassment of the victim because of the non-payment of dowry. Hence, the material produced by the prosecution is sufficient to base a conviction under Section 498-A IPC. (Para 9). Nallam Veera Stayanandam v. Public Prosecutor, High Court of A.P., (2004) 10 SCC 769: AIR 2004 SC 1708.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-2004]

[7818] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Not mutually exclusive provisions — Accused charged but acquitted under S. 304-B can be convicted under S. 498-A even in absence of any charge under S. 498-A — So also acquittal under S. 498-A will not prevent finding conviction under S. 304-B — Better practice would be to frame charge under both sections and also convict under both though no separate sentence may be awarded under S. 498-A

Sections 304-B and 498-A cannot be held to be mutually exclusive. These provisions deal with two distinct offences. Under S. 304-B it is the "dowry death" that is punishable and such death should have occurred within seven years of the marriage. No such period is mentioned in S. 498-A and the husband or his relative would be liable for subjecting the woman to "cruelty" any time after the marriage. Further a person charged and acquitted under S. 304-B can be convicted under S. 498-A without charge being there, if such a case is made out. But from the point of view of practice and procedure and to avoid technical defects it is necessary in such cases to frame charges under both the sections and if the case is established they can be convicted under both the sections but no separate sentence need be awarded under S. 498-A in view of the substantive sentence being awarded for the major offence under S. 304-B. (Para 6). Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191: AIR 1991 SC 1226.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1990]

[7819] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Relative scope — Held, not mutually exclusive — "Cruelty" by itself is an offence under S. 498-A, and there is no limiting time period thereunder within which the offence must be committed, unlike S. 304-B — Ss. 304-B and 498-A deal with two distinct offences, and if the case is established, there can be a conviction under both sections (Para 12). Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511: AIR 2005 SC 785: 2005 Cri LJ 1418.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-2005]

[7820] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Relative scope — Held, cannot be held to be mutually inclusive — Further held, though cruelty is a common essential to both the sections and needs to be proved, these provisions deal with two distinct offences (Para 16). Noorjahan v. State, (2008) 11 SCC 55: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 915: AIR 2008 SC 2131: (2008) 66 AIC 79 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-4-2008]

[7821] — Ss. 304-B/34 and S. 498-A — Appellant charged under S. 304-B r/w S. 34, but convicted under S. 498-A — Submission by appellant that omission of the trial court to frame specific charge under S. 498-A IPC had prejudiced him or that failure of justice had been occasioned on that count — Specific charge levelled against the accused was that they had subjected the deceased to cruelty for or in connection with demand for dowry and she had died unnatural death within seven years of her marriage — Cross-examination of PWs also unmistakably showing that the defence had made concerted effort to discredit the testimony of mother, sisters and brother of the deceased in the context of allegation of cruelty — Besides, in his statement under S. 313 of the Code, the appellant denied the allegation that he had subjected his wife to cruelty — Held, it is thus evident that the appellant was not only aware of the charge of cruelty but he got and availed the opportunity to defend himself with reference to that charge — Hence, submission of prejudice rejected — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 221, 222 and 464 (Paras 6 and 10 to 22). Dinesh Seth v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2008) 14 SCC 94: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 783: 2008 Cri LJ 4345: (2008) 153 DLT 535.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and G.S. Singhvi, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-2008]

Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116; Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623; Lakhjit Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 173: 1994 SCC (Cri) 235; Dalbir Singh v. State of U.P., (2004) 5 SCC 334: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1592, relied on

Sangaraboina Sreenu v. State of A.P., (1997) 5 SCC 348: 1997 SCC (Cri) 690, held, overruled

(5) The charge and S. 304-B

See also '(4) Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A IPC and Ss. 113-A/113-B, Evidence Act — Relative scope', above

[7822] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Addition of charge relating to dowry death [S. 304-B] during trial — Death certificate already filed indicating probable cause of death to be cardio-respiratory failure due to acute respiratory failure — Production of another death certificate by prosecution which was issued by same doctor indicating a different cause of death — Objection raised against, by accused — Matter relating to production of subsequent certificate kept in abeyance to be decided after examination of doctor — However, on the same date, trial court allowing application filed for addition of charge under S. 304-B — Presence of certain chemicals in viscera was noted by trial court — Effect of, was to be considered in the background of both the certificates, in case the latter certificate was taken on record — Hence held, it would be proper for trial court to defer the question of framing charge under S. 304-B after examination of the doctor and relevance of the subsequent certificate and its acceptability — CrPC, 1973, S. 216

There is no quarrel with the proposition that the charge can be altered at any stage. But the question is whether in view of the order passed on the same date the order relating to alteration of charge has been passed by the trial court. The trial court itself noted that as per the first certificate the cause of death was cardio-respiratory failure due to acute respiratory failure. It, however, noted that some chemicals were noted in the viscera. The effect of the presence of those chemicals has necessarily to be considered in the background of both the certificates, in case the latter certificate is taken on record. That being so, it would be proper for the trial court to defer the question of framing charge under Section 304-B after examination of the doctor and relevance of the subsequent certificate and its acceptability. (Para 7). Ishwarchand Amichand Govadia v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 322: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 554.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-10-2006]

[7823] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A & 201 r/w S. 34 — Conviction of accused under though he was charged only under S. 201 r/w S. 34 — Permissibility of — Held, since the offences under Ss. 304-B and 498-A IPC were not minor offences in relation to that under S. 201 IPC and all the said three offences were distinct and belonged to different categories, S. 222 CrPC had no application in present case — Hence, the said conviction was not permissible — CrPC, 1973, S. 222

The only charge framed against A-2 was for an offence punishable under Section 201 read with Section 34 IPC. True that Section 222 CrPC clothes the court with the power to convict a person of an offence which is minor in comparison to the one for which he is charged and tried, but by no stretch of imagination, offences under Sections 304-B and 498-A IPC, under which appellant A-2 was convicted by the trial court, could be said to be minor offences in relation to that under Section 201 IPC, for which he was charged. In fact, the three offences are distinct and belong to different categories. The ingredients of the offences under the said sections are vastly different. Therefore, Section 222 CrPC had no application to the facts in hand. (Para 14). Sukhram v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 7 SCC 502: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 426: AIR 2007 SC 3050: (2007) 57 AIC 90 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-2007]

[7824] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A/34 — Dowry death — Appeal against framing of charge — Held, in the circumstances, material appearing on the record was not sufficient for proceeding against the three appellants for charge framed against them under Ss. 304-B, 498-A/34 IPC — Further held that the High Court committed no error in quashing the charge against the father-in-law of the deceased — Constitution of India, Art. 136. Anita v. State of M.P., 1997 SCC (Cri) 566.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-1997]

(6) Ingredients of dowry death and presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act

Synopsis

(i) Broadly 131
(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises 145
(iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance 157
(iv) "Within seven years of marriage" 159
(v) Cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand 165
(vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.] 166
(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation 171
(viii) Husband or any relative of husband — Who are and their culpability 179

(i) Broadly

See also SECTION 304-B — DOWRY DEATH — '(1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability', and

'(2) History of S. 304-B and Abuse of dowry laws', above

See also '(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises', and

'(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation', below

[7825] — S. 304-B — S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Object of — Restated — "Dowry death" — Dowry — Meaning of — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2 (Para 10). State of Rajasthan v. Jaggu Ram, (2008) 12 SCC 51: AIR 2008 SC 982: (2008) 63 AIC 183 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 1039.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and G.S. Singhvi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2008]

(6)(i) Broadly (contd.)

[7826] — S. 304-B — Object behind enactment of — Essential requirements for invoking the said section — Victim dying within 7 years of her marriage — Subjected to cruelty and harassment both for and in connection with demand for dowry — Proximate and live link between cruelty and death established — Conviction under S. 304-B, held, was proper

Section 304-B IPC was mainly introduced having regard to the increasing menace of dowry deaths by burns and bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances and the insufficiency of the existing provisions of law to combat them effectively and also with the laudable object of curbing the menace of dowry deaths with a firm hand. In order to attract Section 304-B IPC the court must be satisfied that: (i) the death of a woman must have been caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances; (ii) such death must have occurred within seven years of her marriage; (iii) soon before her death, the woman must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or by the relatives of her husband; (iv) such cruelty or harassment must be for, or in connection with, demand for dowry; and (v) such cruelty or harassment is shown to have been meted out to the woman soon before her death meaning thereby the proximity in point of time and not too remote or stale in point of time and relevance. (Para 6)

The materials on record in this case amply prove that soon before her unnatural death, which took place within seven years of her marriage, the victim was subjected to cruelty and harassment both for and in connection with a demand for dowry. The facts brought on record further prove the existence of a proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty related to dowry demand and the death concerned. (Para 6). Vidhya Devi v. State of Haryana, (2004) 9 SCC 476: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1473: AIR 2004 SC 1757.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-2004]

[7827] — S. 304-B — Applicability — Held, imperative for prosecution to prove cruelty or harassment meted out to deceased "soon before her death" and marriage within period of seven years preceding her death (Paras 22 to 25). Suresh Kumar Singh v. State of U.P, (2009) 17 SCC 243: (2009) 3 ECrN 451 (SC): (2009) 4 All LJ 662.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

[7828] — S. 304-B — Conditions precedent for establishing offence under S. 304-B — Drawing of presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act — Proof of date of marriage — Onus — Held, it is for the prosecution to prove the said fact — In the instant case, prosecution failed to do so — Courts below erred in shifting the onus of proving the date of marriage on the defence and drawing a presumption against it merely on the basis of allegation of death of victim within seven years — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

The conditions precedent for establishing an offence under Section 304-B IPC are as follows: (a) that a married woman had died otherwise than under normal circumstances; (b) such death was within seven years of her marriage; and (c) the prosecution has established that there was cruelty and harassment in connection with demand for dowry soon before her death. (Para 8)

Section 113-B of the Evidence Act permits a presumption to be drawn against the accused in regard to dowry death provided the prosecution establishes that soon before her death the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment. (Para 9)

On a conjoint reading of Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act it is clear that for drawing a presumption under Section 113-B firstly, there should be death of a woman otherwise than in normal circumstances, within seven years of marriage and the prosecution having shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment in connection with any demand for dowry by persons accused of having committed the offence. Unless and until these preliminary facts are established by the prosecution, it is not open to the courts to draw a presumption against the accused invoking Section 113-B. (Para 10)

Thus, the law requires the prosecution to establish first by cogent evidence that the death in the case occurred within seven years of the marriage. (Para 17)

On facts, the prosecution has failed to produce the available evidence regarding the date of marriage of the deceased thereby failing to discharge its initial onus of proof. The question whether the defence has been able to establish its version of the date of marriage is immaterial because in the first instance it was for the prosecution to establish this fact. (Para 17)

Hence, both the courts below erred in shifting the onus of proving the date of marriage on the defence and drawing a presumption against it. (Para 17). Baljeet Singh v. State of Haryana, (2004) 3 SCC 122: 2004 SCC (Cri) 692: AIR 2004 SC 1714.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-2004]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088, explained and followed

[7829] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients to sustain conviction for: (i) Demand for dowry and consequent harassment for non-fulfilment thereof; (ii) Death of the deceased; and (iii) Death under unnatural circumstances within 7 years of marriage — Even in case of suicide S. 304-B attracted (Para 35). Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 166: AIR 2006 SC 2855: 2006 Cri LJ 4070.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-8-2006]

[7830] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Applicability — Held, mere evidence of cruelty and harassment is not sufficient to bring in application of S. 304-B IPC but it needs to be established that "soon before death", deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband for, or "in connection with demand for dowry" (Para 35). Narayanamurthy v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 16 SCC 512: AIR 2008 SC 2377.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

[7831] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Conviction — Ingredients for — Restated (Paras 24 and 25). Kishan Singh v. State of Punjab, (2007) 14 SCC 204: AIR 2008 SC 233: (2007) 60 AIC 206 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

[7832] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients

The essential ingredients of the offence under Section 304-B are (i) death of a woman must have been caused by any burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances; (ii) such death must have occurred within seven years of marriage; (iii) soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or relative of her husband; (iv) such cruelty or harassment must be in connection with the demand of dowry; and (v) such cruelty is shown to have been meted out to the woman soon before her death. (Para 29). T. Aruntperunjothi v. State, (2006) 9 SCC 467: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 528: AIR 2006 SC 2475: 2006 Cri LJ 3290: (2006) 102 Cut LT 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-2006]

[7833] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients — On facts, conviction not sustainable — Subjecting the deceased to cruelty and harassment must be shown to be for or in connection with the demand for dowry — In absence of such evidence in the instant case, held, conviction of accused cannot be upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

The deceased was married to the appellant on 6-3-1992. According to prosecution, the appellant and his family members were not satisfied with the dowry items given to the appellants at the time of marriage and the deceased was put under pressure to bring more dowry. The deceased time and again reported about the persistent demand of the appellants to her father and brothers. The deceased's brother on different occasions requested the appellants not to harass the deceased for not satisfying the dowry demands. The deceased committed suicide at the house of the appellants by consuming poison on 27-7-1992. The trial court convicted the appellants (deceased's husband, her father-in-law and mother-in-law) under Sections 304-B/34 and 498-A/34 IPC and also under Sections 3 and 4 of the DP Act.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

The basic ingredients to attract the provisions of Section 304-B are as follows:

(1) the death of a woman should be caused by burns or fatal injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances;

(2) such death should have occurred within seven years of her marriage;

(3) she must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband; and

(4) such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with demand for dowry. (Para 10)

Alongside insertion of Section 304-B in IPC, the legislature also introduced Section 113-B of the Evidence Act. If Section 304-B IPC is read together with Section 113-B of the Evidence Act, a comprehensive picture emerges that if a married woman dies in unnatural circumstances at her matrimonial home within 7 years from her marriage and there are allegations of cruelty or harassment upon such married woman for or in connection with demand of dowry by the husband or relatives of the husband, the case would squarely come under "dowry death" and there shall be a presumption against the husband and the relatives. (Paras 11 and 13)

In this case there is practically no evidence to show that there was any cruelty or harassment for or in connection with the demand of dowry. There is also no finding in that regard. This deficiency in evidence proves fatal for the prosecution case. Even otherwise mere evidence of cruelty and harassment is not sufficient to bring in application of Section 304-B IPC. It has to be shown in addition that such cruelty or harassment was for or in connection with the demand for dowry. Since the prosecution failed to prove that aspect, the conviction as recorded cannot be maintained. (Para 14). Biswajit Halder v. State of W.B., (2008) 1 SCC 202: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 172: (2007) 54 AIC 136 (SC): 2007 Cri LJ 2300.

(6)(i) Broadly (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-2007]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191; Kanchy Komuramma v. State of A.P., 1995 Supp (4) SCC 118: 1996 SCC (Cri) 31, relied on

[7834] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients and applicability of S. 304-B IPC and S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Essentials required to be proved in respect thereof, restated — Expression "soon before" used in both sections, held, is very relevant — Thus, prosecution must show that soon before the occurrence the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment — Further, no straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of "soon before" the occurrence — It has to be determined by courts, depending upon facts and circumstances of each case — Existence of a proximate and live link between cruelty and death, held, essential

The essential ingredients to attract the application of Section 304-B IPC are that (i) the death of a woman should be caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances, (ii) such a death should have occurred within seven years of her marriage, (iii) she must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband, (iv) such cruelty or harassment should be for, or in connection with, demand for dowry, and (v) such cruelty or harassment is shown to have been meted out to the woman soon before her death. (Para 9)

Further, presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is a presumption of law. On proof of the essentials mentioned therein, it becomes obligatory on the court to raise a presumption that the accused caused the dowry death. The essentials required to be proved for raising the said presumption are that: (i) the question before the court must be whether the accused has committed the dowry death of a woman, (ii) the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives, (iii) such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, and (iv) such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death. (Para 10)

Thus, one of the essential ingredients, amongst others, in both the provisions i.e. Sections 304-B and 113-B is that the woman concerned must have been "soon before her death" subjected to cruelty or harassment "for, or in connection with, the demand for dowry". There must be material to show that soon before her death the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment. The prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within the purview of "death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances". The expression "soon before" is very relevant where Section 113-B of the Evidence Act and Section 304-B IPC are pressed into service. The prosecution is obliged to show that soon before the occurrence there was cruelty or harassment and only in that case the presumption operates. Evidence in that regard has to be led by the prosecution. (Para 10)

"Soon before" is a relative term and it would depend upon circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of soon before the occurrence. It would be hazardous to indicate any fixed period, and that brings in the importance of a proximity test both for the proof of an offence of dowry death as well as for raising a presumption under Section 113-B. The expression "soon before her death" used in the substantive Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is present with the idea of proximity test. No definite period has been indicated and the expression "soon before" is not defined. The determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before" is left to be determined by the courts, depending upon facts and circumstances of each case. Suffice, however, to indicate that the expression "soon before" would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question. There must be existence of a proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned. If alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb the mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, it would be of no consequence. (Para 11). Kunhiabdulla v. State of Kerala, (2004) 4 SCC 13: 2004 SCC (Cri) 907: AIR 2004 SC 1731: (2004) 2 KLT 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-2004]

[7835] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients of — It being a deeming provision and having regard to gravity of punishment prescribed, court should take greater care and caution in examining the evidence and reaching its conclusion — On facts held, prosecution failed to establish two essential ingredients viz. soon before death, the deceased had been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or relatives and the same was for or in connection with demand of dowry — Hence accused husband cannot be convicted under S. 304-B

The prosecution case was that the appellant was married to S in 1991. He used to ask S to bring money from her parents and her parents were giving money to her from time to time. In June 1995 S told her mother that the appellant was demanding Rs 20,000 and that he had illegal relations with girls of doubtful character and used to bring those girls to his house who had beaten her. The appellant was ill-treating and harassing her and subjecting her to cruelty with the result that within a period of seven years of marriage, S committed suicide by burning herself by sprinkling kerosene on herself. The trial court convicted the appellant under Section 304-B IPC on the basis of evidence of PWs 4, 5, 6 and 9 (being mother, father and brother of S and the doctor who conducted post-mortem examination on the dead body respectively) as well as a letter written by S to her father (Ext. P-9) before her death and sentenced the appellant to 7 years' RI. The High Court in a summary way without discussing the oral evidence of the said PWs confirmed the conviction and sentence. Allowing the accused's appeal on reappreciation of evidence

Held :

In order to convict an accused for an offence under Section 304-B IPC, the following essentials must be satisfied:

(1) the death of a woman must have been caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances;

(2) such death must have occurred within 7 years of her marriage;

(3) soon before her death, the woman must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or by relatives of her husband;

(4) such cruelty or harassment must be for or in connection with demand of dowry. (Para 5)

It is only when the aforementioned ingredients are established by acceptable evidence such death shall be called "dowry death" and such husband or his relative shall be deemed to have caused her death. (Para 6)

Normally, in a criminal case the accused can be punished for an offence on establishment of commission of that offence on the basis of evidence, maybe direct or circumstantial or both. But in case of an offence under Section 304-B IPC, an exception is made by deeming provision as to nature of death as "dowry death" and that the husband or his relative, as the case may be, is deemed to have caused such death, even in the absence of evidence to prove these aspects but on proving the existence of the ingredients of the said offence by convincing evidence. Hence, there is need for greater care and caution, that too having regard to the gravity of the punishment prescribed for the said offence, in scrutinizing the evidence and in arriving at the conclusion as to whether all the abovementioned ingredients of the offence are proved by the prosecution. (Para 6)

In the present case there was no dispute that the first two ingredients of Section 304-B mentioned above were satisfied. Question was whether the remaining two ingredients were also satisfied or not.

From the evidence on record it was clear that there was no evidence of demand of dowry or subjecting S to cruelty for or in connection with dowry other than general, vague and inconsistent statements of interested and motivated witnesses PWs 4, 5 and 6, being the parents and brother of S. It had come in the evidence of these witnesses that the appellant and his family members were well-placed financially and the parents of S have a big family, were not that comfortable financially. There was no demand of dowry either at the time of marriage or subsequently. There was no evidence as to how the father of S arranged the money said to have been demanded by the appellant. There were contradictions and serious omissions in the statements of PWs 4, 5 and 6. The conduct of the appellant bringing girls of bad character to his house and those girls troubling S appeared to be the cause of her misery. But there was nothing to establish that this mental cruelty was for and in connection with demand of dowry; maybe S could not withstand and tolerate the conduct of her husband of being in the company of other girls of bad character and maybe on account of the same she has put an end to her life. PWs 4, 5 and 6, on account of S having died of burns, obviously were angry against the appellant and had every reason to involve the appellant in the offence under Section 304-B IPC. (Para 10). Sunil Bajaj v. State of M.P., (2001) 9 SCC 417: AIR 2001 SC 3020.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-10-2001]

(6)(i) Broadly (contd.)

[7836] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients to be proved by prosecution for establishing offence of "dowry death" under S. 304-B, reiterated

For making out an offence of "dowry death" under Section 304-B IPC, the following ingredients have to be proved by the prosecution:

(a) death of a woman must have been caused by any burns or bodily injury or her death must have occurred otherwise than under normal circumstances;

(b) such death must have occurred within seven years of her marriage;

(c) soon before her death, she must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband; and

(d) such cruelty or harassment must be in connection with the demand for dowry. (Para 12). Bachni Devi v. State of Haryana, (2011) 4 SCC 427.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Aftab Alam and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-2011]

[7837] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients to sustain conviction — Restated (Paras 16 and 17). G.V. Siddaramesh v. State of Karnataka, (2010) 3 SCC 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : P. Sathasivam and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision : 5-2-2010]

V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat, (1994) 1 SCC 337, relied on

[7838] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Object behind insertion of S. 304-B IPC and S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Ingredients and applicability of said sections — Essentials required to be proved in respect of, restated — Expression "soon before" used in both sections, held, is very relevant — Thus, prosecution must show that soon before the occurrence the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment — Further, no straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of "soon before the occurrence" — It has to be determined by the courts, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case — Existence of a proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned, held, essential — If the alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb the mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, held, it would be of no consequence — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act were inserted by Dowry Prohibition (Amendment) Act 43 of 1986 with a view to combat the increasing menace of dowry deaths. Keeping in view the impediment in the pre-existing law in securing evidence to prove dowry-related deaths, the legislature thought it wise to insert a provision relating to presumption of dowry death on proof of certain essentials. It is in this background presumptive Section 113-B in the Evidence Act has been inserted. (Para 4)

The essential ingredients to attract application of Section 304-B are that (i) the death of a woman should be caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances, (ii) such a death should have occurred within seven years of her marriage, (iii) she must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband, (iv) such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with demand for dowry, and (v) such cruelty or harassment is shown to have been meted out to the woman soon before her death. (Para 4)

Further, presumption under Section 113-B is a presumption of law. On proof of the essentials mentioned therein, it becomes obligatory on the court to raise a presumption that the accused caused the dowry death. The essentials required to be proved for raising the said presumption are that (i) the question before the court must be whether the accused has committed the dowry death of a woman, (ii) the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives, (iii) such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with any demand for dowry, and (iv) such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death. (Para 4)

Thus, one of the essential ingredients, amongst others, in both the provisions i.e. Sections 304-B and 113-B is that the woman concerned must have been "soon before her death" subjected to cruelty or harassment "for or in connection with the demand for dowry". There must be material to show that soon before her death the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment. The prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within the purview of the "death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances". The expression "soon before" is very relevant where Section 113-B of the Evidence Act and Section 304-B IPC are pressed into service. The prosecution is obliged to show that soon before the occurrence there was cruelty or harassment and only in that case presumption operates. Evidence in that regard has to be led in by the prosecution. "Soon before" is a relative term and it would depend upon circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of soon before the occurrence. It would be hazardous to indicate any fixed period, and that brings in the importance of a proximity test both for the proof of an offence of dowry death as well as for raising a presumption under Section 113-B. The expression "soon before her death" used in the substantive Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is present with the idea of proximity test. No definite period has been indicated and the expression "soon before" is not defined. The determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before" is left to be determined by the courts, depending upon facts and circumstances of each case. Suffice, however, to indicate that the expression "soon before" would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question. There must be existence of a proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned. If the alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb the mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, it would be of no consequence. (Paras 4 and 5)

On facts, the appellant father-in-law has been rightly convicted for offence punishable under Section 304-B and Section 498-A. So far as the appellant mother-in-law is concerned, there is inadequacy of material to attract culpability under Section 304-B. (Para 12). Kaliyaperumal v. State of T.N., (2004) 9 SCC 157: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1417: AIR 2003 SC 3828: 2003 Cri LJ 4321.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-2003]

[7839] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Object behind insertion of S. 304-B IPC and S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Ingredients and applicability of said sections — Essentials to be proved for raising the legal presumption as to dowry death — Expression "soon before" occurring in both sections, held, is very relevant — Proximity test — Prosecution must show that soon before the occurrence the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment — No straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what could constitute a period of "soon before" the occurrence — It has to be determined on the facts and circumstances of each case — Existence of a proximate and live link between cruelty and death, held, essential — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

The deceased and A-3 were married on 6-7-1989. The deceased committed suicide at about 11.30 a.m. on 2-4-1990. Three persons i.e. A-1 (brother-in-law of the deceased), A-2 (mother-in-law of the deceased) and A-3 faced trial in relation to the said suicidal death. The trial court found the evidence of PWs 2, 3, 4 and 6 about the demand of dowry made by A-1 and A-2 cogent and credible. A-3 was held guilty as he extended tacit support, albeit indirectly.

In the appeal before the High Court the primary stand taken was that there was no evidence to show about any agreement or demand for payment of dowry before the marriage. Even if any subsequent demand was made, as alleged, that could not bring in application of Section 304-B IPC. Considering the grounds urged by the accused persons, the High Court held that the conviction of the accused under Sections 304-B and 498-A IPC could not be maintained. The High Court observed that if there was no agreement between the parties to give or take any property or valuable security or where the property or valuable security had been given or taken but thereafter further amounts were demanded after the marriage, such demands would not fall within the meaning of dowry.

During the pendency of the appeal before the High Court, A-2 expired and the appeal was held to have abated so far as she was concerned.

Allowing the appeal in relation to A-1, but dismissing the same in respect of A-3,

Held :

Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act were inserted by the Dowry Prohibition (Amendment) Act 43 of 1986 with a view to combat the increasing menace of dowry deaths. Keeping in view the impediment in the pre-existing law in securing evidence to prove dowry-related deaths, the legislature thought it wise to insert a provision relating to presumption of dowry death on proof of certain essentials. It is in this background that presumptive Section 113-B in the Evidence Act has been inserted. (Para 10)

Presumption under Section 113-B is a presumption of law. On proof of the essentials mentioned therein, it becomes obligatory on the court to raise a presumption that the accused caused the dowry death. The essentials required to be proved for raising the said presumption are that (i) the question before the court must be whether the accused has caused the dowry death of a woman, (ii) the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives, (iii) such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, and (iv) such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death. (Para 10)

(6)(i) Broadly (contd.)

Now, one of the essential ingredients, amongst others, in both the provisions i.e. Sections 304-B and 113-B is that the woman concerned must have been "soon before her death" subjected to cruelty or harassment "for, or in connection with, the demand for dowry". There must be material to show that soon before her death the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment. The prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within the purview of "death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances". The expression "soon before" is very relevant where Section 113-B of the Evidence Act and Section 304-B IPC are pressed into service. The prosecution is obliged to show that soon before the occurrence there was cruelty or harassment and only in that case the aforesaid presumption operates. Evidence in that regard has to be led by the prosecution. "Soon before" is a relative term and it would depend upon the circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of soon before the occurrence. It would be hazardous to indicate any fixed period, and that brings in the importance of a proximity test both for the proof of an offence of dowry death as well as for raising a presumption under Section 113-B. The expression "soon before her death" used in the substantive Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is present with the idea of proximity test. No definite period has been indicated and the expression "soon before" is not defined. The determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before" is left to be determined by the courts, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case. Suffice, however, to indicate that the expression "soon before" would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question. There must be existence of a proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned. If alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, it would be of no consequence. (Paras 10 and 11). State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306: AIR 2004 SC 1933: 2004 Cri LJ 1791.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-2004]

Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016; Vidhya Devi v. State of Haryana, (2004) 9 SCC 476, relied on

[7840] — S. 304-B — Essential conditions for applicability of stated

Section 304-B has the following essentials:

"(1) The death of a woman should be caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances;

(2) Such death should have occurred within seven years of her marriage;

(3) She must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband;

(4) Such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with demand for dowry." (Para 4). Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191: AIR 1991 SC 1226.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1990]

[7841] — S. 304-B — Essential ingredients of — Listed — Words "soon before her death" — Scope of — Necessity of insertion of S. 304-B IPC and S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Held, prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within purview of "death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances" — Expression "soon before her death" is very relevant — Prosecution is obliged to show that soon before the occurrence there was cruelty or harassment and only in that case does the presumption under S. 113-B operate — "Soon before" is a relative term and it would depend upon circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down — Analogy drawn with S. 114 Ill. (a), Evidence Act, 1872 — "Soon before" would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question — There must be a proximate and live link between the effects of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned — If alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb mental equilibrium of woman concerned, it would be of no consequence — On facts, no evidence was led to show that death was due to normal reasons — Evidence of PWs amply establishing demand of dowry and ill-treatment of deceased shortly before date of occurrence — Held, courts below were justified in drawing conclusion of guilt of accused — Attempt to get treatment for deceased by appellants shortly after incident was nothing more than an attempt to create a smokescreen — Appeal dismissed — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

In order to attract application of Section 304-B IPC, the essential ingredients are as follows:

(i) The death of a woman should be caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under a normal circumstance.

(ii) Such a death should have occurred within seven years of her marriage.

(iii) She must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband.

(iv) Such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with demand of dowry.

(v) Such cruelty or harassment is shown to have been meted out to the woman soon before her death. (Para 10)

Presumption under Section 113-B is a presumption of law. On proof of the essentials mentioned therein, it becomes obligatory for the court to raise a presumption that the accused caused the dowry death. The presumption shall be raised only on proof of the following essentials:

(i) The question before the court must be whether the accused has committed the dowry death of a woman. (This means that the presumption can be raised only if the accused is being tried for the offence under Section 304-B IPC.)

(ii) The woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives.

(iii) Such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry.

(iv) Such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death. (Para 10)

A conjoint reading of Section 113-B of the Evidence Act and Section 304-B IPC shows that there must be material to show that "soon before her death", the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment "for or in connection with the demand of dowry". Prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within the purview of "death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances". The expression "soon before her death" is very relevant where Section 113-B of the Evidence Act and Section 304-B IPC are pressed into service. Prosecution is obliged to show that soon before the occurrence there was cruelty or harassment and only in that case presumption operates. Evidence in that regard has to be led by prosecution. "Soon before" is a relative term and it would depend upon the circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of soon before the occurrence. It would be hazardous to indicate any fixed period, and that brings in the importance of a proximity test as indicated by the said expression both for the proof of an offence of dowry death as well as for raising a presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act. A reference to the expression "soon before" used in Section 114 Illustration (a) of the Evidence Act is relevant. The determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before" under Section 114 Illustration (a) is left to be determined by the courts, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case. Suffice, however, to indicate that the expression "soon before" would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question. There must be existence of a proximate and live link between the effects of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned. If the alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, it would be of no consequence. (Paras 11, 10 and 15)

The necessity for insertion of Section 304-B, IPC and Section 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 has been amply analysed by the Law Commission of India in its 21st Report dated 10-8-1988 on "Dowry Deaths and Law Reform". Keeping in view the impediment in the pre-existing law in securing evidence to prove dowry-related deaths, the legislature thought it wise to insert a provision relating to presumption of dowry death on proof of certain essentials. (Para 10). Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511: AIR 2005 SC 785: 2005 Cri LJ 1418.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-2005]

[7842] — S. 304-B — Evidence Act, 1872 — S. 113-B — Dowry death — Object behind insertion of Ss. 304-B and 113-B of Evidence Act, 1872 — Ingredients and applicability of said sections — Essentials required to be proved in respect of, restated — Expression "soon before" used in both sections, held, is very relevant — Thus, prosecution must show that soon before the occurrence the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment — Further, no straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of "soon before" the occurrence — It has to be determined by the courts, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case — Existence of a proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned, held, essential — If the alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, held, it would be of no consequence — On facts, the basic requirement of cruelty or harassment soon before the death, held, absent — Conviction under S. 304-B, held, not sustainable

(6)(i) Broadly (contd.)

Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act were inserted by Dowry Prohibition (Amendment) Act 43 of 1986 with a view to combat the increasing menace of dowry deaths. Keeping in view the impediment in the pre-existing law in securing evidence to prove dowry-related deaths, the legislature thought it wise to insert a provision relating to presumption of dowry death on proof of certain essentials. It is in this background that presumptive Section 113-B in the Evidence Act has been inserted. (Para 8)

The essential ingredients to attract application of Section 304-B are that (i) the death of a woman should be caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under a normal circumstance, (ii) such a death should have occurred within seven years of her marriage, (iii) she must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband, (iv) such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with demand of dowry, and (v) such cruelty or harassment is shown to have been meted out to the woman soon before her death. (Para 8)

Further, presumption under Section 113-B is a presumption of law. On proof of the essentials mentioned therein, it becomes obligatory on the court to raise a presumption that the accused caused the dowry death. The essentials required to be proved for raising the said presumption are that (i) the question before the court must be whether the accused has committed the dowry death of the woman, (ii) the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives, (iii) such cruelty or harassment was for or in connection with any demand for dowry, and (iv) such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death. (Para 8)

Thus, one of the essential ingredients, amongst others, in both the provisions i.e. Sections 304-B and 113-B is that the woman concerned must have been "soon before her death" subjected to cruelty or harassment "for or in connection with the demand of dowry". There must be material to show that soon before her death the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment. The prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within the purview of "death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances". The expression "soon before" is very relevant where Section 113-B of the Evidence Act and Section 304-B IPC are pressed into service. The prosecution is obliged to show that soon before the occurrence there was cruelty or harassment and only in that case presumption operates. Evidence in that regard has to be led by the prosecution. "Soon before" is a relative term and it would depend upon the circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down as to what would constitute a period of soon before the occurrence. It would be hazardous to indicate any fixed period, and that brings in the importance of a proximity test both for the proof of an offence of dowry death as well as for raising a presumption under Section 113-B. The expression "soon before her death" used in the substantive Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is present with the idea of proximity test. No definite period has been indicated and the expression "soon before" is not defined. The determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before" is left to be determined by the courts, depending upon facts and circumstances of each case. Suffice, however, to indicate that the expression "soon before" would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question. There must be existence of a proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death concerned. If the alleged incident of cruelty is remote in time and has become stale enough not to disturb the mental equilibrium of the woman concerned, it would be of no consequence. (Paras 8 and 9)

In the instant case, there is no definite evidence about the ill-treatment to the deceased at any time having immediate proximity to the date of death of the deceased on 14-4-1999, about ill-treatment by the accused persons to attach culpability under Section 304-B IPC. Therefore, the basic requirement of cruelty or harassment soon before the death to bring application of Section 304-B is absent. (Para 10). Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016: AIR 2003 SC 2865: (2003) 105 DLT 705: 2003 Cri LJ 3711.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-2003]

[7843] — S. 304-B — Ingredients — Restated (Para 22). Narayanamurthy v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 16 SCC 512: AIR 2008 SC 2377.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

[7844] — S. 304-B — Ingredients of

The essential components of Section 304-B are: (i) Death of a woman occurring otherwise than under normal circumstances, within 7 years of marriage. (ii) Soon before her death she should have been subjected to cruelty and harassment in connection with any demand for dowry. When the above ingredients are fulfilled, the husband or his relative, who subjected her to such cruelty or harassment, can be presumed to be guilty of offence under Section 304-B. To be within the province of the first ingredient the provision stipulates that "where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances". It may appear that the former limb which is described by the words "death caused by burns or bodily injury" is a redundancy because such death would also fall within the wider province of "death caused otherwise than under normal circumstances". The former limb was inserted for highlighting that by no means death caused by burns or bodily injury should be treated as falling outside the ambit of the offence. (Para 14). Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48: AIR 2001 SC 2828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-2001]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191; Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, relied on [7845] — S. 304-B — Ingredients of — Held, are: (1) that the death of the woman was caused by any burns or bodily injury or in some circumstances which were not normal; (2) such death occurs within 7 years from the date of her marriage; (3) that the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband; (4) such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with the demand of dowry; and (5) it is established that such cruelty and harassment was made soon before her death (Paras 20 and 21). Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2007) 14 SCC 176: AIR 2008 SC 332: (2007) 59 AIC 115 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417; Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 166; T. Aruntperunjothi v. State, (2006) 9 SCC 467: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 528, relied on

[7846] — S. 304-B — Ingredients of — Dowry death — Cruelty or harassment for dowry "soon before her death" — Proof — Prosecution case that appellant husband of deceased had been demanding more dowry after the marriage which took place on 25-2-1996, about which deceased having informed her father on telephone on 10-4-1996, further dowry had been given on 21-4-1996, but demand for more dowry made in July 1998 remained unfulfilled because of which appellant and his family members continued to harass the deceased and on 26-3-1999 deceased again made a telephone call to her father informing him that her husband and in-laws were conspiring to kill her whereafter on 28-3-1999 deceased was admitted in hospital in unconscious state and serious condition and she died on 30-3-1999 — Cause of death found to be intake of poisonous substance — Fact about conspiracy to kill the deceased, as informed by her to her father mentioned in FIR — Courts below, having regard to facts of the case and evidence on record, finding prosecution case proved and appellant guilty under S. 304-B — Held on facts, ingredients of S. 304-B satisfied — Hence presumption arises under S. 113-B of Evidence Act which though rebuttable could not be rebutted by appellant — Even without the aid of S. 113-B of Evidence Act, prosecution proved its case — Hence conviction under S. 304-B upheld

The ingredients necessary for the application of Section 304-B IPC are:

(i) that the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances;

(ii) within seven years of her marriage;

(iii) it must be shown that before the death she was subject to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of the husband for or in connection with the demand of dowry. (Para 17)

In the light of these ingredients, the evidence of the prosecution is to be scanned. (Para 18)

The courts below, after appreciation of the facts and evidence recorded, have reached the conclusion that the deceased died an unnatural death at the house of her in-laws within a period of seven years of her marriage with the appellant, due to intake of poisonous substance. The only controversy between the parties is with regard to the third ingredient as to whether soon before the death the deceased was harassed and was subjected to cruelty on account of demand of dowry. (Paras 21 and 19)

There is no substance in the argument that the interested evidence of the parents of the deceased has not been supported by independent evidence or witness of the locality. Likewise, there is no substance in the submission that there was no demand of dowry by the appellant or by any of his family members soon before the death of the deceased and that the deceased was never harassed or tortured by the appellant or by any of his family members for demand of dowry. (Para 26)

(6)(i) Broadly (contd.)

Once the three essentials of Section 304-B are satisfied, the presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act would follow. This rule of evidence is added in the statute by amendment to obviate the difficulty of the prosecution to prove as to who caused the death of the victim. Of course, this is a rebuttable presumption and the accused by satisfactory evidence can rebut the presumption. In the instant case, the appellant could not rebut the presumption, and the prosecution, even without the aid of this presumption under Section 113-B proved that the appellant was responsible for the death of the deceased. Hence, the conviction of the appellant for the offence under Section 304-B IPC is confirmed. (Para 28). Arun Garg v. State of Punjab, (2004) 8 SCC 251: (2004) 3 KLT 435.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

[7847] — S. 304-B — Ingredients of — Dowry death — Presumption regarding — Burden on accused to prove otherwise — Demand for dowry is itself punishable if other ingredients of S. 304-B are established — Cruelty or harassment of wife in connection with demand of dowry by husband soon before her suicidal death — Proof of — "Demand for dowry" — Demand does not conceive any agreement for dowry — Cruelty or harassment may not only be physical but also mental — Demand for scooter and fridge made soon after the marriage by the husband and his relatives and deceased's failure to meet the demand leading to repeated taunts and maltreatment — Quarrel taking place between husband and deceased wife at deceased's sister's house one day before her death — While going back to husband's home, deceased regretting that it would be difficult to see her face in future — Held, cruelty and harassment in connection with dowry demand proved — Conviction and sentence under S. 304-B upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 2, 3, 4

The deceased and the appellant were married in 1985. After a few days of the marriage there was a demand of scooter and fridge. On account of not satisfying the demand of the aforesaid goods, right from the next day, she was repeatedly taunted, maltreated and mentally tortured by being called ugly etc. In April 1987 when deceased's maternal uncle died, she along with her husband visited Delhi to offer condolences. And by evening on the same day instead of returning to her husband's place came to her sister's house. She remained there for a few days. Both her sister and brother-in-law deposed that she told them that her husband was maltreating her in view of dowry demand, and that not being satisfied was harassing her. When her husband came to take her back she was reluctant but her sister brought her down and sent her with her husband. She went with the husband but with the last painful words that "it would be difficult now to see her face in the future". On the very next day, she committed suicide.

Held :

The ingredients necessary for the application of Section 304-B are:

(a) When the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury, or

(b) occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances

(c) and the aforesaid two facts spring within 7 years of girl's marriage

(d) and soon before her death, she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relative,

(e) this is in connection with the demand of dowry.

If these conditions exist, it would constitute a dowry death; and the husband and/or his relatives shall be deemed to have caused her death. In the present case, it is not in dispute that the deceased died of burn injuries, that she died otherwise than under normal circumstances, and that the death was within a period of 7 years of marriage. The only consideration has to be: whether she was subjected to any cruelty or harassment by the appellants soon before her death, and whether the same was for or in connection with any demand of dowry.

It is true that in criminal jurisprudence benefit of doubt is extendable to the accused. But that benefit of doubt would arise in the context of the application of penal law, and in the facts and circumstances of a case. The concept of benefit of doubt has an important role to play but within the confines of the stringency of laws. Since the cause of death of a married woman was to occur not in normal circumstances but as a "dowry death", for which the evidence was not so easily available, as it is mostly confined within the four walls of a house, namely the husband's house, where all likely accused reside the amendments [by Criminal Law (Second Amendment) Act, 1983 (46 of 1983)] brought in the concept of deemed "dowry death" by the husband or the relatives, as the case may be. This deeming clause has a role to play and cannot be taken lightly and ignored to shield an accused, otherwise the very purpose of the amendment will be lost. Of course, the prosecution has to prove the ultimate essential ingredients beyond all reasonable doubt after raising the initial presumption of "deemed dowry death". In cases of dowry deaths and suicides, circumstantial evidence plays an important role and inferences can be drawn on the basis of such evidence. That could be either direct or indirect.

Demand for dowry neither conceives nor would conceive of any agreement. The word "agreement" referred to in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 has to be inferred on the facts and circumstances of each case. The interpretation that conviction can only be if there is agreement for dowry, is misconceived. This would be contrary to the mandate and object of the Act. "Dowry" definition is to be interpreted with the other provisions of the Act including Section 3, which refers to giving or taking dowry and Section 4 which deals with penalty for demanding dowry, under the 1961 Act and the Indian Penal Code. This makes it clear that even demand of dowry on other ingredients being satisfied is punishable. This leads to the inference, when persistent demands for TV and scooter are made from the bride after marriage or from her parents, it would constitute to be in connection with the marriage and it would be a case of demand of dowry within the meaning of Section 304-B IPC. It is not always necessary that there be any agreement for dowry.

In the present case after a few days of the marriage, there was demand of scooter and fridge, which when not being met led to repetitive taunts and maltreatment. Such demands cannot be said to be not in connection with the marriage. Hence the evidence qualifies to be demand for dowry in connection with the marriage and in the circumstances of the case constitutes to be a case falling within the definition of "dowry" under Section 2 of 1961 Act and Section 304-B IPC.

Cruelty or harassment need not be physical. Even mental torture in a given case would be a case of cruelty and harassment within the meaning of Sections 304-B and 498-A IPC. Explanation (a) to Section 498-A itself refers to both mental and physical cruelty. Again wilful conduct means, conduct wilfully done; this may be inferred by direct or indirect evidence which could be construed to be such. A girl dreams of great days ahead with hope and aspiration when entering into a marriage, and if from the very next day the husband starts taunting her for not bringing dowry and calling her ugly, there cannot be greater mental torture, harassment or cruelty for any bride. There was a quarrel a day before her death. This by itself, would constitute to be a wilful act to be a cruelty both within the meaning of Section 498-A and Section 304-B IPC.

The Court must adopt that construction which, "suppresses the mischief and advances the remedy". The earlier law was not sufficient to check dowry deaths hence aforesaid stringent provisions were brought in, so that persons committing such inhuman crimes on married women should not escape, as evidence of a direct nature is not readily available except of the circumstantial kind. Hence stringent provisions were brought in by shifting the burden onto the accused by bringing in the deemed clause. It is that interpretation which suppresses the mischief, subserves the objective and advances the remedy, which would be acceptable. According to Section 8-A of the 1961 Act which came into force w.e.f. 2-10-1985 for taking or abetting any dowry, the burden to explain is placed on such person against whom the allegation of committing an offence is made. Similarly, under Explanation to Section 113-B of the Indian Evidence Act, which was also brought in by the aforesaid Act 43 of 1986, there is presumption that such death is on account of dowry death. Thus the burden, if at all, was on the accused to prove otherwise.

The evidence would, on the facts and circumstances of the present case, bring to an inescapable conclusion that the quarrel between the deceased and her husband a day before the actual death of the deceased, cumulatively with other evidence constitutes to be cruelty and harassment in connection with marriage and that too at her own sister's place which has direct corelation with the preceding evidence of repeated demand of dowry, to be a case covered both under Sections 304-B and 498-A IPC. However, it was open to the accused to prove otherwise or dispel by means of evidence to destroy that deeming clause. But he has not been able to do so. Such burden is placed on the accused with a purpose. Evidence also includes harassment to the deceased within the meaning of Section 498-A Explanation (b), as she was repeatedly coerced for not meeting the demands leading to her mental torture and agony which ultimately led her to commit suicide.

Accordingly the appellant is sentenced to 7 years' rigorous imprisonment with a fine of Rs 500, in default of payment of fine for further rigorous imprisonment for 6 months under Section 304-B IPC, The appellant is also sentenced to 2 years' rigorous imprisonment and to pay fine of Rs 200, and in default of payment of fine further rigorous imprisonment for three months, under Section 498-A IPC. Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740: AIR 1998 SC 958: 1998 Cri LJ 1144.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchi, C.J. and A.P. Misra, J. [Date of decision: 9-2-1998]

(6)(i) Broadly (contd.)

[7848] — S. 304-B — Ingredients of, restated — Held, once prosecution establishes the said ingredients, presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act relating to dowry death can be drawn against the accused — Onus lies on the accused to rebut the said presumption — On facts, death of victim occurred within seven years of her marriage — Death was not under normal circumstances — Victim was harassed for not bringing more dowry — Demand of Rs 7000 made by in-laws ten days prior to the incident — Held, ingredients of S. 304-B had been established by the prosecution — Defence plea that the deceased died of heart attack, not acceptable — Hence, conviction of husband and his brother and parents, upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 5, 7, 8 and 12). Satbir Singh v. State of Haryana, (2005) 12 SCC 72: 2005 Cri LJ 4137: AIR 2005 SC 3546.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.K. Sema and G.P. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-2005]

State of Karnataka v. M.V. Manjunathegowda, (2003) 2 SCC 188: 2003 SCC (Cri) 467, relied on

State of Orissa v. Niranjan Mohapatra, (2005) 9 SCC 578: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1251; Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, distinguished on facts

[7849] — S. 304-B — Ingredients of the offence under, stated

In order to seek conviction under Section 304-B IPC against a person for the offence of dowry death, the prosecution is obliged to prove that:

(a) the death of a woman was caused by burns or bodily injury or had occurred otherwise than under normal circumstances;

(b) such death should have occurred within 7 years of her marriage;

(c) the deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or by any relative of her husband;

(d) such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with the demand of dowry; and

(e) to such cruelty or harassment the deceased should have been subjected soon before her death. (Para 9). Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935: AIR 2000 SC 2324: 2000 Cri LJ 2993.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik, R.P. Sethi and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2000]

[7850] — S. 304-B or S. 302 — S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Presumption under — Invocation of — Expression "soon before her death" — Relevance of — Held, one of the essential ingredients, amongst others, is that the "woman" must have been "soon before her death" subjected to cruelty or harassment "for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry" — Further held, presumption in terms of S. 113-B is one of law but such a presumption can be raised only on proof of the following essentials: viz. (1) accused must be tried for offence under S. 304-B; (2) the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or his relatives; (3) such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry; (4) such cruelty or harassment was soon before her death — In the instant case harassment meted out to deceased was said to be on three counts: (1) insufficient dowry; (2) inability to bear a child; and (3) insistence by her parents that every time appellant husband must go to her parents' house for bringing her back — FIR stating only two causes of harassment, namely, (1) previously on pretext of bringing insufficient dowry, and (2) thereafter for not bearing a child — Thus, nothing on record to show that any demand of dowry was made soon before her death — Hence, held, cause of action for committing the offence appears to be an ego problem on part of appellant, namely, deceased had not been coming to her matrimonial home on her own, while he had been coming to his home on leave — High Court erred in convicting appellant under S. 304-B since no evidence was brought on record to show that the cruelty or harassment was meted out to her for bringing insufficient dowry, in absence whereof ingredients of S. 304-B cannot be said to have been proved — Legal fiction sought to be created must be raised only on fulfilment of the conditions precedent therefor — All the requisite ingredients of the offence must be brought home before the presumptive evidence is put to use by the court for holding the accused guilty under S. 304-B — Hence, appellant husband could not have been convicted under S. 304-B — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 13 and 17 to 22). Tarsem Singh v. State of Punjab, (2008) 16 SCC 155: AIR 2009 SC 1454: (2009) 73 AIC 50 (SC): (2009) 2 ECrN 520 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-12-2008]

Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016; T. Aruntperunjothi v. State, (2006) 9 SCC 467: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 528; Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417, considered and relied on [7851] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Dowry death due to suicide — Presumption of causing — Ingredients of evidence to sustain such presumption — Proof of subjecting victim to cruelty and harassment prior to her death, held, not sufficient — It must also be proved that she committed suicide on account of such cruelty and harassment — These are also the ingredients of evidence required to be led for the presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act — Moreover, it has also to be shown that such cruelty or harassment was for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry — Only then can resultant death be called "dowry death" — Hence, where no charges against accused persons were framed under Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 and evidence led related to demand of a fan only, held, requirements of both S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 as well as S. 304-B IPC remained unproved — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 4 (Paras 16 to 20). Durga Prasad v. State of M.P., (2010) 9 SCC 73: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1154: 2010 Cri LJ 3419: (2010) 91 AIC 5 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and H.L. Gokhale, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-5-2010]

Biswajit Halder v. State of W.B., (2008) 1 SCC 202: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 172, followed

Anand Kumar v. State of M.P., (2009) 3 SCC 799: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 28, distinguished

[7852] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Bride burning — Ingredients — Deceased woman died due to strangulation and burning within seven years of her marriage — Demand for a car in dowry persistently made by deceased's husband and her mother-in-law (accused persons) since after six months of marriage — Deceased subjected to maltreatment, torture, cruelty and harassment by accused persons on non-fulfilment of the demand — Cruelty and harassment meted out to deceased, soon before her death — Held, ingredients of S. 304-B satisfied — Presumption under S. 113-B of Evidence Act attracted which defence failed to displace — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 4 (Paras 57, 58 and 55)

In this case, the prosecution has been able to prove the following:

(1) The death of the deceased was caused by strangulation and burning within seven years of her marriage.

(2) The deceased had been subjected to cruelty by her husband and mother-in-law (the two appellant-accused) over the demand of Maruti car in dowry raised and persistently pressed by them after about six months of the marriage and continued till her death.

(3) The cruelty and harassment was in connection with the demand of dowry i.e. Maruti car.

(4) The cruelty and harassment is established to have been meted out soon before her death.

(5) The two accused were the authors of this crime who caused her death by strangulation and burning on the given date, time and place. (Para 57)

The accused are established to have committed the offences under Sections 498-A and 304-B IPC and under Section 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act. (Para 58). Satya Narayan Tiwari v. State of U.P., (2010) 13 SCC 689.

Kunhiabdulla v. State of Kerala, (2004) 4 SCC 13: 2004 SCC (Cri) 907, relied on

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-2010]

(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises

See also '(i) Ingredients of dowry death and presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act — Broadly', above and

'(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation', below

[7853] — S. 304-B — Evidence Act, 1872 — S. 113-B — Death of deceased within four months of her marriage with the appellant — Prosecution alleging that the deceased committed suicide by consuming poison on account of cruelty and harassment meted out by the appellant and his relatives — Both the trial court and High Court accepting the case of prosecution and convicting the appellant under S. 304-B — Held, the letters written by the family members of the deceased to her after her marriage unmistakably showed that there was cordial relationship between the deceased and the appellant and his relatives — Further, the non-production of any letters written by the deceased to her family members was fatal to the prosecution and supported the defence case — The evidence of PWs 4, 5 and 14 could not be accepted as their evidence was diametrically opposed to that of the unassailable documentary evidence — The courts below also erred in totally ignoring the suicide note written by the deceased before her death — The concurrent and cumulative effect of the entire evidence when scrupulously examined showed that the deceased was not subjected to cruelty or harassment by the appellant for or in connection with any demand for dowry — In the absence of the necessary ingredients under S. 304-B the presumption of dowry death as envisaged in S. 113-B, Evidence Act was not attracted — In the result, the conviction under S. 304-B and the sentence imposed therefor on the appellant set aside — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B. Rajnesh Tandon v. State of Punjab, 1995 SCC (Cri) 817.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and J.S. Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-1994]

(6)(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises (contd.)

[7854] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Bride burning — Burden of proof — Held, husband being a companion, is supposed to explain circumstances of his wife's death but initial burden remains on prosecution to prove husband's guilt beyond reasonable doubt — Unless initial burden is discharged, husband's conviction is not sustainable — Minimum standard of proof, which may even be based on circumstantial evidence, also indicated — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 101-103

It was argued on behalf of the State that the husband could not escape liability, considering that there was no explanation from him about burning of his wife. This argument cannot be accepted. It is true that the husband being a bedroom companion ought to explain the circumstances, but initial burden is on the prosecution to prove guilt beyond all reasonable doubt. System of criminal jurisprudence of the country has been to that effect. There is neither any departure nor any escape from it. The courts below have not accepted the explanation that the victim sustained burn injuries due to bursting of stove while warming up milk early in the morning. Non-acceptance of this explanation does not mean that the appellant should be held guilty of murder. (Paras 21 and 22). Arvind Singh v. State of Bihar, (2001) 6 SCC 407: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1148: AIR 2001 SC 2124: 2001 Cri LJ 2556.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2001]

[7855] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Burden of proof — Presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act — Applicability of — Suicide — Death of wife within three years of her marriage — Harassment of victim by appellants due to non-payment of dowry, established — On such facts, held, presumption under S. 113-B was available to the prosecution — Hence, it was for defence to discharge the onus and establish that the death of the deceased in all probability did not occur because of suicide but was an accidental death — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-B, 101 and 102 (Para 5). Nallam Veera Stayanandam v. Public Prosecutor, High Court of A.P., (2004) 10 SCC 769: AIR 2004 SC 1708.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-2004]

[7856] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients of S. 304-B — Effect of presumption under S. 113-B of Evidence Act — Initial burden of proof lies on prosecution — Burden would not shift on accused merely on the basis of prosecution's allegation that death had occurred within seven years of marriage without even proving the required preliminary facts — On facts held, one of the essential ingredients of S. 304-B viz. demand of dowry could not be established by prosecution — Hence respondent husband of the deceased cannot be convicted under S. 304-B — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

For proving the offence under Section 304-B of the Indian Penal Code, the prosecution has to prove the following things:

(a) The death of the married woman was within seven years of the marriage.

(b) A little prior to death; her husband or relative, on the point of demand of dowry subjected her to cruelty or harassed her. (Para 15)

A conjoint reading of Section 113-B of the Indian Evidence Act and Section 304-B of the Indian Penal Code shows that there must be material to show that soon before her death the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment. The prosecution has to rule out the possibility of a natural or accidental death so as to bring it within the purview of "death occurring otherwise than in normal circumstances". (Para 18)

In this case, the Sessions Judge proceeded as if the prosecution is available against the accused merely because an allegation of death within seven years of marriage was made without even the prosecution having proved the required preliminary fact. Having so shifted the onus, the court then proceeded to hold that the accused had not discharged the said onus and hence convicted the accused primarily based on the presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act. The approach by the Sessions Court is not correct. (Para 24)

In this case the deceased woman's death took place within seven years of her marriage had been proved. But with regard to the demand of dowry there were different versions of PWs and there was lack of evidence to prove the same. The evidence led by the prosecution bristles with discrepancies and contradictions. On the basis of the evidence, it could not be treated to have been proved that actually the accused had made a demand of dowry and that was made soon before the death and due to this, the deceased was harassed. (Paras 16 and 20)

Thus one of the main ingredients of the offence of demand of dowry being absent, the High Court is right in acquitting the accused for the offence under Section 304-B of the Indian Penal Code. The prosecution has failed to prove the circumstances alleged against the accused persons. (Paras 23 and 25). State of Rajasthan v. Teg Bahadur, (2004) 13 SCC 300: 2005 SCC (Cri) 218.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

[7857] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients of S. 304-B, if established — Legal fiction under — Soon before the death, deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband for or in connection with demand of dowry — Once this is established, a legal fiction is created under S. 304-B whereby such death would be called dowry death — On facts held, ingredients of S. 304-B IPC r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act not satisfied — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

The deceased was married to the appellant on 5-10-1986. She delivered a male child at her parents' house on 23-4-1988. At the time of delivery she had developed some complications as a result of which she had to be shifted to a nursing home. There was some dispute as to who took her to the nursing home, her husband (appellant) or her father. The delivery of the child was premature and the child expired within two days of its birth. The deceased died of poisoning on 26-7-1988 at her matrimonial home. On the basis of statements made by the deceased's father before the IO, a case under Section 304-B IPC was registered against the appellant (the deceased's husband) and others on the allegation that after solemnisation of marriage of the appellant's younger brother on 24-1-1988, the accused started taunting and harassing the deceased for bringing less dowry as the wife of the appellant's younger brother had brought refrigerator, television and cooler. Allegedly, to fulfil the said demand of the accused, the complainant paid a sum of Rs 3000 around Diwali on one occasion and Rs 1000 on two other occasions within two months therefrom. It was further alleged that in the month of March 1988, when the deceased's father went to the house of the in-laws to bring her to his house as she was in the family way, the accused refused to send her with him. It was further alleged that when the deceased's brother went to the deceased's matrimonial home, the deceased had told him that his father should take her away otherwise the accused would kill her at the time of the delivery. However, from the records it appears that the deceased's father had merely stated: "My daughter had died due to non-payment of dowry to the satisfaction of the accused, by me." He did not say that any other demand was made or his daughter was subjected to any other form of cruelty or harassment. In the cross-examination he contended that he had stated before the investigating officer that the accused persons started taunting his daughter for not bringing refrigerator, cooler and television but such a statement was not found to have been made before the investigating officer. He even did not make any statement before the police that the accused persons either in unison or individually demanded dowry. His statement was also recorded by a Magistrate holding the post of DORG. He did not make any statement before the Magistrate in regard to the demand of or taking of Rs 3000 for purchase of refrigerator, cooler and television although he made such a statement in court. He also made a statement before the DORG to the effect that his daughter and son-in-law collected Rs 3000 for purchasing a stereo and two months thereafter his daughter took Rs 1000 for installation of hand pump. However, the deceased's mother categorically admitted that she had no grievance as against her son-in-law, nor did she ever make any complaint.

The trial court convicted the appellant and his mother under Section 304-B IPC and sentenced them to undergo seven years' RI. The trial court relying upon or on the basis of the evidence of the prosecution witnesses arrived at a finding that the dowry was paid to the appellant and his mother. The High Court, on the other hand, did not discuss the merit of the matter so far as the appellant is concerned but concentrated on the role played by his mother and came to the finding that she did not accept any dowry. It propounded a theory which was not the prosecution case that the deceased must have consumed poison to finish herself allegedly on the ground that when the deceased's father came to see her on 25-7-1988, he must have been insulted or hurt that his daughter was not happy in the house of her in-laws.

Allowing the appeal of the accused-appellant,

Held :

By virtue of Section 304-B IPC a legal fiction has been created in the said provision to the effect that in the event it is established that soon before the death the deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any of his relatives; for or in connection with any demand of dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death. From a conjoint reading of Section 304-B of the Penal Code and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act, it will be apparent that a presumption arising thereunder will operate if the prosecution is able to establish the circumstances as set out in Section 304-B of the Penal Code. (Paras 16 and 17)

The ingredients of the aforementioned provisions are:

(1) That the death of the woman was caused by any burns or bodily injury or in some circumstances which were not normal; (2) such death occurred within 7 years from the date of her marriage; (3) that the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband;

(6)(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises (contd.)

(4) such cruelty or harassment was for or in connection with the demand of dowry; and (5) it is established that such cruelty and harassment was made soon before her death. (Para 18)

Even proceeding on the basis that in this case prosecution has established the case of payment of dowry to the extent of Rs 5000, the question still would remain as to whether the demand for dowry was made soon before the deceased was treated cruelly or harassed by the appellant. The brother of the deceased was not examined. It was, therefore, not proved that any apprehension was expressed by the deceased that she would be killed during delivery of the child. Concededly, there is no evidence on record to show that the deceased was subjected to any cruelty or harassment between April 1988 and the date of her death. In the aforementioned situation, the presumption arising either under Section 304-B of the Penal Code or Section 113-B of the Evidence Act could not be invoked against the appellant. The prosecution, therefore, must be held to have failed to establish any case against the appellant. (Paras 8, 14 and 22)

In the case of unnatural death of a married woman as in a case of this nature, the husband could be prosecuted under Sections 302, 304-B and 306 of the Penal Code. Omission to frame charges under Section 306 in terms of Section 215 of the Code of Criminal Procedure may or may not result in failure of justice, or prejudice the accused. It cannot, therefore, be said that in all cases, an accused may be held guilty of commission of an offence under Section 306 of the Penal Code wherever the prosecution fails to establish the charge against him under Section 304-B thereof. Moreover, ordinarily such a plea should not be allowed to be raised for the first time before the court unless the materials on record are such which would establish the said charge against the accused. (Paras 19, 24 and 25). Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417: AIR 2006 SC 680: (2006) 37 AIC 104 (SC): 2006 Cri LJ 554.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-2005]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016; Kaliyaperumal v. State of T.N., (2004) 9 SCC 157: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1417; Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511; State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306; K. Prema S. Rao v. Yadla Srinivasa Rao, (2003) 1 SCC 217: 2003 SCC (Cri) 271, relied on [7858] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients of S. 304-B, restated — Presumption when arises — Held, the said ingredients have to be established before the presumption as to dowry death can be drawn under S. 113-B, Evidence Act — In the present case, there was no evidence to show that soon before her death the victim was subjected to cruelty by the husband or in-laws in connection with a demand of dowry — Hence held, the aforesaid ingredient having not been established, the appellants (husband and mother-in-law) were entitled to benefit of doubt — Their conviction and sentence set aside — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 3 to 6). Tirath Kumari v. State of Haryana, (2005) 12 SCC 561: AIR 2005 SC 4429.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.K. Sema and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-10-2005]

[7859] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Presumption as to, not rebutted — Wife committing suicide due to harassment for dowry — Conviction confirmed — A-1 and A-2 (mother-in-law and husband of deceased, respectively, both appellant-accused herein) raised a demand for purchase of motorcycle from PW 8 (father of deceased), giving reason that A-2 wanted to start milk vending business and for that a motorcycle was needed for carrying milk to the city — This demand was raised within two months of marriage, and when this demand was not met, deceased was maltreated and harassed continuously, which led her to take extreme step of committing suicide by hanging in appellants' house — Held, it is clearly established that deceased died otherwise than under normal circumstances — No dispute that death occurred within seven years of marriage — Deceased subjected to harassment and ill-treatment by A-1 and A-2, after PW 8 refused to accede to their demand for purchase of motorcycle, established by evidence of PWs 8 and 9 (father and mother of deceased, respectively) — Also, there is evidence of PW 10, that PW 8 had called him and one other to his house, where A-1 had made demand of motorcycle, and that when PW 10 sought to reason with A-1 about inability of PW 8, because of his poverty, to give motorcycle, A-1 got angry and warned that deceased would not be allowed to stay in her matrimonial home — All essential ingredients to bring home guilt under S. 304-B against appellants, established by prosecution evidence — Appellants failed to rebut presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act — Defence case that demand of motorcycle does not qualify as a "demand for dowry", warrants no merit — Dowry Prohibition

Act, 1961, Ss. 2 and 4 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 19 to 22). Bachni Devi v. State of Haryana, (2011) 4 SCC 427.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Aftab Alam and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-2011]

S. Gopal Reddy v. State of A.P., (1996) 4 SCC 596: 1996 SCC (Cri) 792; Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511, relied on [7860] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Presumption available under S. 113-B — Applicability — Deceased tortured and subjected to harassment for non-supply of demanded articles — Her death was not in normal circumstances — Death took place within seven years of marriage — Held, presumption available under S. 113-B in the background of S. 304-B IPC was clearly applicable to the present case — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Para 8). Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

[7861] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Presumption available under S. 113-B against accused — Inapplicability of — Condition that "soon before" her death the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment by the accused for or in connection with any demand of dowry — Law relating to — Expression "soon before" — Interpretation of — Held, the said presumption would not be drawn if it is shown that after the alleged demand, cruelty or harassment the dispute stood resolved and there was no evidence of cruelty or harassment thereafter — But, mere lapse of some time by itself would not provide the accused a defence, if the course of conduct relating to cruelty or harassment is shown to have existed earlier in time not too late and not too stale before the date of death of the victim — This is so because the expression used in the relevant provision is "soon before" — The term "soon before" is not synonymous with the term "immediately before" — The said term would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question i.e. there must be existence of a proximate and live link between the two — The determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before" is left to be determined by the courts, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case — No strait-jacket formula can be laid down by fixing any time-limit in this regard — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Para 7). Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016, relied on [7862] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Presumptive evidence — Persistent demand for dowry and harassment consequent to non-fulfilment thereof "soon before" the death, within seven years of marriage, proved — Deceased in good condition until she consumed "prasad" and only thereafter complained of acute stomach pain — She neither taken to any doctor, nor any doctor called, nor any medical treatment administered to her — Her parents living only a few miles away informed after three days of occurrence by a letter sent through a barber — Dead body hurriedly disposed of and no autopsy conducted — Held, no infirmity in the impugned judgment of the High Court confirming the conviction of the appellants discernible — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 3, 4, 22, 23 and 33). Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 166: AIR 2006 SC 2855: 2006 Cri LJ 4070.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-8-2006]

Hem Chand v. State of Haryana, (1994) 6 SCC 727: 1995 SCC (Cri) 36; Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016; Dhian Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 7 SCC 759: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2077; Sarojini v. State of M.P., 1993 Supp (4) SCC 632: 1994 SCC (Cri) 124; State of Karnataka v. M.V. Manjunathegowda, (2003) 2 SCC 188: 2003 SCC (Cri) 467; Muthu Kutty v. State, (2005) 9 SCC 113: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1202; Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417; Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511; State of Punjab v. Iqbal Singh, (1991) 3 SCC 1: 1991 SCC (Cri) 513, relied on [7863] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Rebuttable presumption that death caused by husband or his relative — Held, presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act begins to operate if prosecution is able to prove the circumstances set out in S. 304-B — If defence of accused is only total denial, presumption remains unrebutted — Where accused-Respondent 1 was charged under S. 302 IPC and in the alternative under S. 304-B and evidence on record established (i) that marriage had been agreed to by accused on condition of payment of dowry (Rs 10,000 and 3 gold sovereigns); (ii) that marriage took place (on 17-5-1987) after part-payment (Rs 8000); (iii) that only a few days prior to her death, deceased wife had pleaded with her father and brother, during a visit to them, that she was being tortured by her husband and mother-in-law because of non-payment of balance and that she did not want to return to matrimonial home without it; (iv) that her father escorted her back there anyway, and (v) that she was found dead in a dry well, as a result of head injuries within 48 hours (on 14-11-1987), held on facts, High Court erred in allowing appeal of accused-Respondent 1, setting aside his conviction under S. 302 and not considering the charge under S. 304-B at all — Respondent 1 convicted by Supreme Court under S. 304-B and sentenced to 10 years' RI — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B — CrPC, 1973, S. 313

(6)(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises (contd.)

Accused 1 (Respondent 1 herein), M, was charged under Section 302 IPC and in the alternative under Section 304-B for the murder of K, his wife. M married K on 17-5-1987 in unusual circumstances. K was originally supposed to marry somebody else, but that person never came to the venue fixed for the solemnization of the marriage. Relatives and well-wishers who had gathered there discussed the matter and decided that K must be married. At that point M put himself forward as a potential bridegroom for K, but only on the condition that he be given Rs 10,000 and three sovereigns of gold as dowry. As PW 6, father of K was unable to arrange for the money and gold straight away, the relatives and elders present decided to contribute money of their own. In this way they collected Rs 8000, which was given to M and it was agreed that the balance amount as well as the gold would be given after PW 6 harvested his crops. The marriage was then solemnized. To establish this part of the sequence of events, the prosecution relied on the testimony of PW 1, brother of K, PW 6, father of K, PW 7, an independent witness who testified as to his participation in the collection of the money, and PW 12, also an independent witness, who testified as to the demand for dowry and the payment to M.

On 14-11-1987 K was found dead in a dry well. In the post-mortem examination carried out the next day, K was found to have died of shock and haemorrhage resulting from head injuries, which the examining doctor concluded were ante-mortem. He also felt that the head injuries were sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature; that the death was homicidal.

On the issue of whether M had subjected K to cruelty and harassment in connection with the demand for dowry just before her death, the testimony of PW 1 and that of PW 6 were significant. PW 1 had testified that K, his sister had come to their parental home and asked him and their father to pay the balance amount due to M; K had also told them that M, her husband and her mother-in-law had been torturing her because of the non-payment. PW 1 promised to pay in January, after the harvest. K on the other hand pleaded that she should not be sent back to the matrimonial home without the money and gold. In spite of her pleas K was escorted back on 12-11-1987 by PW 6, who stayed overnight at M's place and returned home on 13-11-1987. There was no evidence on record indicating that any compromise had been reached about the balance payment between 13-11-1987 and 14-11-1987, the date on which K was killed.

The trial court found M solely responsible for the death of K and convicted him under Sections 302 and 201 IPC, sentencing him to life imprisonment and two years' RI. The trial court also convicted M under Sections 3, 4 and 6 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961. M's appeal, however, was allowed by the High Court and his convictions were set aside.

The Supreme Court, upholding the acquittal of M, Respondent 1, under Section 302 IPC, but finding him guilty under Section 304-B IPC

Held :

In order to establish the offence under Section 304-B IPC the prosecution is obliged to prove that the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances and such death occurs within 7 years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband. Such harassment and cruelty must be in connection with any demand for dowry. If the prosecution is able to prove these circumstances then the presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act will operate. It is a rebuttable presumption and the onus to rebut shifts on the accused. The defence of the accused was a total denial. Therefore, the presumption as to dowry death envisaged under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act remains unrebutted. (Paras 22 to 24)

In the present case it is clear that PW 6 took his daughter, the deceased to the house of the accused on 12-11-1987 and halted overnight there and returned to his house the next day i.e. 13-11-1987 and the deceased was murdered on 14-11-1987, stated to be early in the morning. There was no evidence on record which would throw some light that in the intervening period of 13-11-1987 and 14-11-1987 there was some settlement or resolution with regard to the balance amount of dowry being paid to the accused. From the testimony of PW 1 and PW 6, it clearly appears that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment in connection with the demand for dowry by her husband. In the absence of the evidence on record showing any settlement or resolution for payment of balance of dowry amount and gold in the intervening period of 13-11-1987 and 14-11-1987, the cruelty and harassment in connection with any demand for dowry as on 12-11-1987 would continue till her death on 14-11-1987. This would constitute cruelty and harassment in connection with demand for dowry soon before her death. (Para 24)

The marriage of the deceased with the accused was solemnized on 17-5-1987 and she died within 7 years of marriage. Having regard to the entire facts and circumstances and evidence on record, it must be concluded that the offence under Section 304-B IPC is found to be well established against A-1. (Para 24)

Respondent-Accused 1 is accordingly convicted under Section 304-B IPC and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for ten years. The impugned order of the High Court is set aside and the appeals filed by the State are allowed to the extent indicated. (Para 25). State of Karnataka v. M.V. Manjunathegowda, (2003) 2 SCC 188: 2003 SCC (Cri) 467: AIR 2003 SC 809: 2003 Cri LJ 900.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-2003]

Followed in Rameshwar Dass v. State of Punjab, (2007) 14 SCC 696

[7864] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Suicide by wife within 7 years of her marriage — Evidence of mother and brother of the deceased that she was subjected to ill-treatment by her husband for demand of dowry — Husband neither making any effort to inform the parental family of the deceased of her death nor reporting it to a Magistrate — Defence plea that the deceased had stomach-ache and on that account had died a natural death found not acceptable — Held, in the circumstances, accused rightly convicted under S. 304-B — However, sentence of life imprisonment reduced to the minimum i.e. seven years' RI. Sant Raj v. State of Haryana, (1998) 8 SCC 605: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1600.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and A.P. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-1997]

[7865] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Unnatural death of married woman in her husband's house within seven years of her marriage — Ill-treatment and harassment by the husband for not bringing sufficient dowry established — Medical evidence showing that the deceased died due to asphyxia as a result of smothering which is an unnatural death — No explanation offered by the husband as to how the deceased sustained several abrasions and contusions on her body — Held, in the circumstances, presumption of dowry death can be raised against the husband — High Court justified in reversing his acquittal — However, mother of the husband who resided separately, did not stand to gain from the demand of additional dowry and whose presence in the house at the time of the incident not established entitled to benefit of doubt — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B. Prem Singh v. State of Haryana, (1998) 8 SCC 70: AIR 1998 SC 2628.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-8-1998]

[7866] — S. 304-B — Duty of prosecution under — Presumption under — When arises — Held, such presumption can be rebutted by pleading and proving a probable defence — Duty of court regarding evidence adduced in defence, whether it be oral, circumstantial or documentary, is to see if the presumption is rebutted — Essentially a matter of appreciation of evidence — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

Under Section 304-B IPC the prosecution is required to establish that the death was caused by any burn or bodily injury or occurred otherwise than under normal circumstances, that such death took place within seven years of the marriage, and that it is shown that soon before her death the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for or in connection with any demand for dowry. If these facts are established by the prosecution, the presumption under Section 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 arises and the court shall presume that such person who had subjected the woman to cruelty or harassment in connection with any demand for dowry shall be presumed to have caused the dowry death. The presumption that arises in such cases may be rebutted by the accused. (Para 16)

If the accused successfully rebuts the presumption by pleading and proving a probable defence, the presumption under Section 113-B, Evidence Act stands rebutted and the prosecution must prove its case without the aid of such presumption. It must logically follow that in a case where such presumption arises, the evidence, oral, circumstantial or documentary, adduced in defence must be examined by the court with a view to find out whether the presumption stands rebutted. It is essentially a matter of appreciation of evidence. (Para 17). Sanjiv Kumar v. State of Punjab, (2009) 16 SCC 487: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 330.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Singh and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-11-2006]

(6)(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises (contd.)

[7867] — S. 304-B — Presumption under — Availability — Held, cannot be drawn against the accused if it is shown that after the alleged demand, cruelty or harassment, the dispute stood resolved and there was no evidence of cruelty or harassment thereafter — However, mere lapse of some time by itself would not provide to an accused a defence, if the course of conduct relating to cruelty or harassment in connection with the dowry demand is shown to have existed earlier in time not too late and not too stale before the date of death of the victim — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 9 and 10). Kailash v. State of M.P., (2006) 12 SCC 667: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 359: AIR 2007 SC 107: (2006) 47 AIC 823 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-2006]

Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, relied on [7868] — S. 304-B — S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Dowry death — Conviction justified — Unnatural death of deceased within seven years of marriage undisputed — Testimonies of PWs clearly establishing harassment and cruelty meted out to deceased for and in connection with dowry demand — Demand of dowry not abating at any point of time and even made both before and after the birth of a son — No omnibus allegations made against members of appellant's family but made only against deceased's husband and her mother-in-law — Her father-in-law was said to be a gentleman who tried to persuade the appellant and his mother not to insist for dowry or at least not harass her therefor — Hence, case of false implication ruled out — Evidence of PW 1 supported in material particulars by PW 2 — Held, very fact that harassment or cruelty on deceased did not abate even after her coming back to the matrimonial home with a son and the fact that she had been assaulted even a few days prior to the incident, tests of S. 304-B of the Penal Code stood satisfied — PW 1 when went to meet his daughter found her dead and even cremated — Supplementary statement filed by police wherein PW 1 alleged to have purportedly stated that he attended funeral of his daughter disbelieved — Conviction of appellant under S. 304-B calls for no interference — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 24 to 30). Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2007) 14 SCC 176: AIR 2008 SC 332: (2007) 59 AIC 115 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Hans Raj v. State of Haryana, (2004) 12 SCC 257: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 217, followed [7869] — S. 304-B — S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Dowry death — Dowry demand on various occasions — Conviction upheld — Demand satisfied on some occasions but demand of Rs 40,000 during marriage ceremony remaining unfulfilled, consequent to which appellant husband alleged to have tortured the deceased, resulting in the deceased committing suicide — Death occurring within seven years of marriage and during the pregnancy of deceased — Demand drafts of Rs 25,000 on 1-2-1986 and of Rs 5000 on 19-3-1986 drawn in favour of appellant proved by the Bank Manager — Maltreatment meted out to deceased proved by PWs — Neither the defence of the appellant that the marital relations were cordial nor the letters purported to have been written by the deceased to the accused in evidence thereof proved — Defence of appellant that deceased was suffering from severe depression wherefor she was also given a "taveej" rejected — Moreover, when IO reached the hospital on receiving information about the incident, appellant was not there — Statement of the appellant that he was detained in hospital also not proved — Incident occurring on or about 4-6-1986, while the appellant was arrested only on 12-6-1986 — Why he was not available for six days not explained by the appellant — Nothing on record to show that it was either DW 1 or the appellant, who got the deceased admitted in the hospital — Held, a pregnant woman ordinarily would not commit suicide unless relationship with her husband comes to such a pass that she would be compelled to do so — Further held, prosecution having discharged its primary onus, as envisaged under S. 304-B of the Penal Code, the onus of proof was upon the appellant in terms of S. 113-B, Evidence Act — Appellant having failed to discharge the onus, conviction of appellant under S. 304-B calls for no interference (Paras 2 and 23 to 28). Rameshwar Dass v. State of Punjab, (2007) 14 SCC 696: AIR 2008 SC 890: 2008 Cri LJ 1400: (2008) 62 AIC 242 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-2007]

State of Karnataka v. M.V. Manjunathegowda, (2003) 2 SCC 188: 2003 SCC (Cri) 467, followed

[7870] — S. 304-B — S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Dowry death — Guilt established — Death of deceased occurred within 1½ years of her marriage due to head injuries — Cruel treatment and harassment meted out to her immediately after her marriage till her death for bringing insufficient dowry proved by PWs — Recovery of lathi at instance of the husband of deceased — Held, in such circumstances, S. 304-B clearly attracted —

High Court erred in acquitting the respondent-accused by giving undue weightage to minor discrepancies ignoring the most important factor that the deceased suffered head injuries in a dwelling unit belonging to her in-laws and she died due to those injuries and that the defence failed to offer any satisfactory explanation — Further, conduct of the accused and his family members in not informing the parents of the deceased about the injuries and consequential death and the fact that the cremation of the dead body was conducted in the wee hours go a long way to show that the accused had deliberately concocted the story that deceased was suffering from epilepsy and she suffered injuries on her head by colliding against the door bar during the bout of fits — Disposal of dead body in a hush-hush manner clearly establishes that the accused had done so with the sole object of concealing the real cause of the death — Conviction of respondent under S. 304-B r/w S. 201 IPC restored and he sentenced to 7 years' RI — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 2, 15, 16, 22 to 26 and 30). State of Rajasthan v. Jaggu Ram, (2008) 12 SCC 51: AIR 2008 SC 982: (2008) 63 AIC 183 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 1039.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and G.S. Singhvi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2008]

Ram Gulam Chaudhary v. State of Bihar, (2001) 8 SCC 311: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1546; Trimukh Maroti Kirkan v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 80; State of Punjab v. Karnail Singh, (2003) 11 SCC 271: 2004 SCC (Cri) 135; State of Rajasthan v. Kashi Ram, (2006) 12 SCC 254: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 688; Raj Kumar Prasad Tamarkar v. State of Bihar, (2007) 10 SCC 433: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 716, relied on

[7871] — S. 304-B — "Shall be deemed to have caused her death" — Deeming fiction — Applicability — Where basic ingredients of S. 304-B shown to have been satisfied, court will presume by deemed fiction that husband or his relatives caused death of the woman — However, husband or his relatives may rebut the presumption by proving that ingredients of S. 304-B were not satisfied

The concept of deeming fiction is hardly applicable to the criminal jurisprudence. In contradistinction to this aspect, the legislature has applied the concept of deeming fiction to the provisions of Section 304-B. Once the prosecution proves its case with regard to the basic ingredients of Section 304-B, the Court will presume by deemed fiction of law that the husband or the relatives complained of, has caused her death. Such a presumption can be drawn by the Court keeping in view the evidence produced by the prosecution in support of the substantive charge under Section 304-B of the Code. Of course, deemed fiction would introduce a rebuttable presumption and the husband and his relatives may, by leading their defence and proving that the ingredients of Section 304-B were not satisfied, rebut the same. (Paras 23 and 24). Ashok Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2010) 12 SCC 350: AIR 2010 SC 2839: 2010 Cri LJ 4402: (2010) 93 AIC 129 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. B.S. Chauhan and Swatanter Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-7-2010]

[7872] — Ss. 304-B, 302 and 498-A — Offence under S. 304-B — Necessary ingredients — Presumption as to dowry death under S. 113-B of Evidence Act — When may be invoked — Imperative to prove that soon before her death the wife was subjected to cruelty and harassment for or in connection with the demand for dowry — Held on facts that there was no such proof — Hence appellant could not be convicted under S. 304-B — But this would not save the appellant from offence under S. 498-A for which there was overwhelming evidence — Accordingly, conviction of the appellant under S. 302 IPC set aside; conviction under S. 498-A substituted and a sentence of three years' RI imposed — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

The High Court was not justified, on the circumstances established in the case, in concluding that the deceased was murdered by the appellant husband.

The primary requirement for finding the appellant guilty of the offence under Section 304-B, IPC, are that death of the deceased was caused by burns within seven years of her marriage and that 'soon before her death' she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by the appellant for or in connection with any demand for dowry.

The first premise stands established in this case that the death of the deceased took place within seven years of her marriage. The second premise that the death was caused by burns is a factum which has not been disputed. In order to establish the third ingredient, a plea is made to resort to the legal presumption envisaged in S. 113-B of the Evidence Act. It is imperative, for invoking the aforesaid legal presumption, to prove that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment. In the present case there is nothing on record to show that the deceased was treated with cruelty or harassed with demand for dowry soon before her tragic end. In the absence of any such evidence it is not permissible to take recourse to legal presumption in S. 113-B of the Evidence Act.

(6)(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises (contd.)

The corollary of the aforesaid finding is that the appellant cannot be convicted of the offence under S. 304-B of IPC. But this would not save the husband from the offence under S. 498-A of the IPC for which there is overwhelming evidence. Sham Lal v. State of Haryana, (1997) 9 SCC 759: 1997 SCC (Cri) 759: AIR 1997 SC 1873: 1997 Cri LJ 1927.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-2-1997]

[7873] — Ss. 304-B & 498-A — Dowry death — Demand for dowry, consequent harassment to deceased and driving out brother and father of deceased when they visited the accused's place because of their failure to satisfy the demand alleged — Prosecution established beyond reasonable doubt that accused (mother-in-law of deceased and wife of brother of deceased's husband) treated the deceased cruelly within the meaning of S. 498-A for or in connection with demand of dowry — Death occurred within seven years of the marriage — Body of the deceased cremated hurriedly soon after the death without informing her father and brother — This ruled out natural death in absence of any evidence to that effect — Held, in the circumstance presumption under S. 113-B of Evidence Act applicable and essentials of S. 304-B made out. Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191: AIR 1991 SC 1226.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1990]

[7874] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Evidence — Deceased's younger sister married to the brother of the deceased's husband — FIR mentioning the names of the deceased's husband and mother-in-law — Subsequently, the deceased's sister filing a divorce petition and implicating therein her husband as well — The said addition in the divorce petition, held, not relevant to falsify the FIR — Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, S. 13 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B. Ram Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 9 SCC 1: 1998 SCC (Cri) 833: AIR 1999 SC 1491.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-1998]

[7875] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Evidence — Where sufficient, non-production of remaining evidence, if necessary — Where there was sufficient evidence to prove the charges under Ss. 304-B and 498-A, mere non-production of certain letters allegedly written by the deceased to her parents, held, did not falsify the prosecution case — CrPC, 1973, S. 231 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B. Ram Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 9 SCC 1: 1998 SCC (Cri) 833: AIR 1999 SC 1491.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-1998]

[7876] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Evidence in rebuttal — The mere fact that "muklawa" ceremony of the deceased's younger sister, who was married to the brother of the deceased's husband, was performed only a month and a half before the occurrence, held, did not belie the evidence of harassment meted out to the deceased — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B. Ram Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 9 SCC 1: 1998 SCC (Cri) 833: AIR 1999 SC 1491.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-1998]

[7877] — Ss. 304-B & 498-A and S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Presumption as to dowry death — When arises — Prosecution proving that soon before her death deceased had been subjected by appellant to taunts in connection with demand for dowry — Held, once such a fact is established, court has to presume that appellant has committed offence under S. 304-B — It is for appellant to rebut this presumption — Appellant had not examined any defence witness to rebut the presumption and in his examination under S. 313 CrPC had merely denied the allegations — Hence, conviction of appellant sustainable — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 21 and 22). Amar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (2010) 9 SCC 64: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1130: AIR 2010 SC 3391: (2010) 94 AIC 137 (SC): (2010) 3 UPLJ 125 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Lodha and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-8-2010]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740, considered

[7878] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A and Ss. 113-A and 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Purpose of — Conviction — Held, before a person is found guilty, court must arrive at a firm conclusion that ingredients of offence alleged are satisfied — For said purpose, intention of Parliament in inserting the said provisions must also be borne in mind — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-A and 113-B (Paras 14 and 29). Suresh Kumar Singh v. State of U.P, (2009) 17 SCC 243: (2009) 3 ECrN 451 (SC): (2009) 4 All LJ 662.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

[7879] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A and 201 — Dowry death — Presumption in respect of — Applicability — Rebuttal of said presumption — Whether the deceased died in circumstances otherwise than normal — Burden of proof — Deceased S was taken to hospital in a critical condition where she died within half an hour — No effort made by appellants (in-laws of S) to inform the parents of S about her death — Body of S cremated on the same night in a suspicious manner — Defence contending that S died of diarrhoea and vomiting — Where the evidence indicating (i) that the death of S occurred after about four years of her marriage, (ii) that she was persistently subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband and in-laws in connection with demand for gold ornaments, and (iii) that the last demand was made only fifteen days prior to the occurrence, held, presumption as to dowry death arose — In such case, if the defence wanted to prove that S died a natural/accidental death, onus was on it to adduce evidence and rebut the aforesaid presumption — But, the defence failed to do so — Prosecution case established — Conviction and sentence upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

There was a persistent demand for gold ornaments ever since the marriage of the deceased with K, which demand was reiterated on many occasions and the demand last made was just 15 days before the occurrence. (Paras 8, 7 and 14)

The deceased was taken to Morena Hospital in a critical condition when she was about to die. According to PW 2 (nurse of the hospital), the death of the deceased took place within half an hour of her being brought to the hospital. The witness could not say what medicines were given to the deceased and what was the nature of her ailment. In fact this witness had to be declared hostile since she went back on the statements made by her in the course of investigation. (Paras 12 and 10)

That apart, the appellants (in-laws of the deceased) made no effort to inform the parents of the deceased about her death and on the contrary cremated the body of the deceased the same night in a suspicious manner. (Para 12)

The prosecution has successfully established that the deceased was married to K about 4 years before her death. The facts also reveal that the death was not under normal circumstances. There was also evidence to show that the deceased was persistently subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband as well as by his parents in connection with demand for dowry, in particular the demand for gold ornaments. Once it is held that these facts stand established, under Section 304-B IPC a presumption arises that it is a case of dowry death, and that her husband or relatives who subjected her to cruelty and harassment shall be deemed to have caused her death. No doubt this is a rebuttable presumption, but in the absence of any evidence in rebuttal, the court may, with the aid of the presumption convict the accused of that charge. Once the prosecution proves the facts which give rise to the presumption under Section 304-B IPC, the onus shifts to the defence and it is for the defence to produce evidence to rebut that presumption. The defence may adduce evidence in support of its defence or may make suggestions to the prosecution witnesses to elicit facts which may support their defence. The evidence produced by the defence may disclose that the death was not caused by them, or that the death took place in the normal course on account of any ailment or disease suffered by the deceased or that the death took place in a manner with which they were not at all connected. (Paras 13 and 19)

In the instant case if the defence wanted to prove that the deceased had suffered from diarrhoea and vomiting and that resulted in her death, it was for the defence to adduce evidence and rebut the presumption that arose under Section 304-B IPC. The defence could have examined the doctor concerned or even summoned the record from the hospital to prove that in fact the deceased has suffered such ailment and had also been treated for such ailment. But, the defence failed to rebut the said presumption. (Paras 13 and 19)

The deceased was a young girl and there is no evidence even to suggest that she was suffering from any ailment. Fifteen days before her death she had gone to her matrimonial home in good health. Suddenly one day her parents came to know that she had died. Her death was therefore, clearly in circumstances which cannot be considered to be normal. If she had really died a natural or accidental death, the appellants were the best persons to disclose the relevant facts which were solely within their knowledge. In these circumstances and in the absence of any acceptable evidence whatsoever, to suspect that the death may have been accidental or on account of natural causes, will be speculative. Law does not permit a court to speculate or conjecture so as to imagine events about which there is absolutely no evidence on record. (Para 19)

The manner in which the dead body was disposed of at night has further added to the incriminating circumstances proved against the appellants. (Para 19). Yashoda v. State of M.P., (2004) 3 SCC 98: 2004 SCC (Cri) 671.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-2004]

(6)(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises (contd.)

[7880] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A & 201 and 302 — Dowry death — Presumption of — Unnatural death of a married woman within 7 years of her marriage — Presumption of dowry death can be raised if before her death she had been subjected to cruelty or harassment by the accused in connection with any demand of dowry — Proof of direct connection of the accused with her death not essential — Death of married woman caused by strangulation — Accused not charged under S. 302 — Absence of direct connection of accused with death — Held, S. 304-B attracted — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

A reading of S. 304-B IPC would show that when a question arises whether a person has committed the offence of dowry death of a woman what all that is necessary is it should be shown that soon before her unnatural death, which took place within seven years of the marriage, the deceased had been subjected, by such person, to cruelty or harassment for or in connection with demand for dowry. If that is shown then the court shall presume that such a person has caused the dowry death. Likewise there is a presumption under S. 113-B of the Evidence Act as to the dowry death. Practically this is the presumption that has been incorporated in S. 304-B IPC also. It can, therefore, be seen that irrespective of the fact whether the accused has any direct connection with the death or not, he shall be presumed to have committed the dowry death provided the other requirements mentioned in the section are satisfied. In the instant case the prosecution has proved that the deceased died an unnatural death, but there is no direct evidence connecting the accused with the death. The accused has not been charged under S. 302 IPC. Therefore at the most it can be said that the prosecution proved that it was an unnatural death in which case also S. 304-B IPC would be attracted. But this aspect i.e. absence of direct connection of the accused with death has certainly to be taken into consideration in balancing the sentence to be awarded to the accused. Hem Chand v. State of Haryana, (1994) 6 SCC 727: 1995 SCC (Cri) 36: AIR 1995 SC 120.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Sawant, G.N. Ray and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1994]

[7881] — S. 304-B r/w Ss. 113-B & 4, Evidence Act, 1872 — Dowry death — Ingredients — Expressions "shall be deemed to have caused her death" in S. 304-B, "court shall presume" in S. 113-B and "it shall regard such fact as proved" in S. 4 — Implication of — Statutory compulsion is on court to presume — Onus lies on accused to disprove that presumption by adducing evidence and/or by cross-examination of the witnesses — This is in contrast to the position under S. 302 where onus does not shift on the accused — So where no charge framed under S. 304-B and no notice of offence thereunder issued to accused and instead charge under S. 302 IPC alone framed, held, conviction under S. 304-B without affording opportunity to accused to discharge the onus which lies on him would result in serious miscarriage of justice — Evidence Act, 1872 — Ss. 113-B and 4

When a person is charged with an offence under Sections 302 and 498-A IPC on the allegation that he caused the death of a bride after subjecting her to harassment with a demand for dowry, within a period of 7 years of marriage, a situation may arise, as in this case, that the offence of murder is not established as against the accused. Nonetheless, all other ingredients necessary for the offence under Section 304-B IPC would stand established. Can the accused be convicted in such a case for the offence under Section 304-B IPC without the said offence forming part of the charge? In other words whether in a case where prosecution failed to prove the charge under Section 302 IPC, but on the facts the ingredients of Section 304-B have winched to the fore, can the court convict him of that offence in the absence of the said offence being included in the charge. That was the question raised before the Supreme Court, in this case.

Held :

The postulates needed to establish the offence under Section 304-B(1) are: (1) death of a wife should have occurred otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage; (2) soon before her death she should have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by the accused in connection with any demand for dowry. Reading Section 113-B of the Evidence Act, as a part of the said offence, the position is: If the prosecution succeeds in showing that soon before her death she was subjected by the husband to cruelty or harassment for or in connection with any demand for dowry and that her death had occurred (within seven years of her marriage) otherwise than under normal circumstances "the court shall presume that such person had caused the dowry death". In view of Section 4 of the Evidence Act the court has no option but to presume that the accused had caused dowry death unless the accused disproves it. It is a statutory compulsion on the court. However it is open to the accused to adduce such evidence for disproving the said compulsory presumption, as the burden is unmistakably on him to do so. He can discharge such burden either by eliciting answers through cross-examination of the witnesses of the prosecution or by adducing evidence on the defence side or by both. (Paras 27 and 28)

But where the accused is called upon to defend only a charge under Section 302 IPC, the burden of proof never shifts onto him. It ever remains on the prosecution which has to prove the charge beyond all reasonable doubt. The said traditional legal concept remains unchanged even now. In such a case the accused can wait till the prosecution evidence is over and then to show that the prosecution has failed to make out the said offence against him. No compulsory presumption would go to the assistance of the prosecution in such a situation. If that be so, when an accused has no notice of the offence under Section 304-B IPC, as he was defending a charge under Section 302 IPC alone, it would lead to a grave miscarriage of justice when he is alternatively convicted under Section 304-B IPC and sentenced to the serious punishment prescribed thereunder, because he is deprived of the opportunity to disprove the burden cast on him by law. (Paras 31 to 33)

In such a situation, if the trial court finds that the prosecution has failed to make out the case under Section 302 IPC, but the offence under Section 304-B IPC has been made out, the court has to call upon the accused to enter on his defence in respect of the said offence. Even if no such count was included in the charge, when the court affords him an opportunity to discharge his burden by putting him to notice regarding the prima facie view of the court that he is liable to be convicted under Section 304-B IPC, it is possible for the court to enter upon a conviction of the said offence in the event of his failure to disprove the presumption. (Para 34)

As the appellant was convicted by the High Court under Section 304-B IPC, without such an opportunity being granted to him, it is necessary in the interest of justice to afford him that opportunity. The case in the trial court should proceed against the appellant (not against the other two accused whose acquittal remains unchallenged now) from the stage of defence evidence. He is put to notice that unless he disproves the presumption, he is liable to be convicted under Section 304-B IPC. (Para 35). Shamnsaheb M. Multtani v. State of Karnataka, (2001) 2 SCC 577: 2001 SCC (Cri) 358: AIR 2001 SC 921.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.T. Thomas, R.P. Sethi and B.N. Agrawal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-1-2001]

(iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance

See also under S. 306, below

See also under '(4) Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A IPC and Ss. 113-A/113-B, Evidence Act — Relative scope', above

See also '(v) Cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand',

'(vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.]' and

'(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation', below

[7882] — S. 304-B — Scope — Held, it is not relevant under S. 304-B, whether dowry related death is a case of homicide or suicide

It is settled by a series of decisions of the Supreme Court that so far as Section 304-B is concerned, it is not relevant whether it is a case of homicide or suicide. (Para 16)

In the present case, there is a clear nexus between the death of the victim G and the dowry related harassment inflicted on her. Even if G committed suicide, Section 304-B can still be attracted. A person commits suicide in a fit of depression due to extreme unhappiness. Thus, even if G committed suicide, it was obviously because she was extremely unhappy, and unless her husband gave a satisfactory alternative explanation for the suicide, it is to be taken that it was the persistent demand for dowry which led to her suicide. It is evident from the evidence that G's father was a poor man and he did not have the money to give dowry immediately and he wanted time so that he could collect some funds from somewhere, but the appellant husband was heartless and he wanted immediate compliance with his demand. Since that was not fulfilled, he either killed G or harassed her so much that she was driven to suicide on account of the said dowry demand. In view of the above, the appeal of husband is dismissed. (Para 19). Raja Lal Singh v. State of Jharkhand, (2007) 15 SCC 415.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-2007]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48, relied on [7883] — S. 304-B — Scope — Suicide — Deceased committing suicide due to cruelty or harassment in relation to demand for dowry within seven years of marriage, held, covered. G.V. Siddaramesh v. State of Karnataka, (2010) 3 SCC 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : P. Sathasivam and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision : 5-2-2010]

V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat, (1994) 1 SCC 337, relied on

(6)(iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance (contd.)

[7884] — S. 304-B — Covers dowry-related suicidal deaths also

It is, therefore, not possible to accept the contention that if the dowry-related death is a case of suicide it would not fall within the purview of Section 304-B IPC at all. Suicide is one of the modes of death falling within the ambit of Section 304-B IPC. (Para 18). Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48: AIR 2001 SC 2828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-2001]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191; Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, relied on

[7885] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients to sustain conviction for: (i) Demand for dowry and consequent harassment for non-fulfilment thereof; (ii) Death of the deceased; and (iii) Death under unnatural circumstances within 7 years of marriage — Even in case of suicide S. 304-B attracted (Para 35). Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 166: AIR 2006 SC 2855: 2006 Cri LJ 4070.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-8-2006]

[7886] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Death caused "otherwise than under normal circumstances" — Meaning

It is established that the death of the deceased by suicide had occurred within 7 years of her marriage and such death cannot be stated to have occurred in normal circumstances. The term "normal circumstances" apparently means natural death. The expression "otherwise than under normal circumstances" would mean death not in the usual course but apparently under suspicious circumstances, if not caused by burns or bodily injury. (Paras 19 and 20). Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935: AIR 2000 SC 2324: 2000 Cri LJ 2993.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik, R.P. Sethi and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2000]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191, relied on [7887] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Death must occur otherwise than under normal circumstances — This essential ingredient must be fully established on evidence — In this context framing of charge and the circumstances that are put to accused under S. 313 CrPC assume importance — Death due to asphyxia — Poisoning not even mentioned in examination under S. 313 CrPC — Merely because deceased was young and death was not accidental, it cannot be surmised that death occurred otherwise than under normal circumstances — CrPC, 1973, S. 313. Akula Ravinder v. State of A.P., 1991 Supp (2) SCC 99: 1991 SCC (Cri) 990: AIR 1991 SC 1142.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1991]

[7888] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Dowry demand soon before death of wife, would attract S. 304-B, irrespective of whether death was homicidal or suicidal

If the suicide was due to demand of dowry soon before her death then Section 304-B IPC may be attracted, whether it is a case of homicide or suicide. In the present case, since no charge under Section 304-B has been framed, obviously the accused cannot be convicted under that provision. (Paras 16 and 17). Bhagwan Das v. Kartar Singh, (2007) 11 SCC 205: AIR 2007 SC 2045.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-5-2007]

Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935; Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191, relied on [7889] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Suicide by wife — Death due to burn injuries — Husband accused — Prosecution must establish that there was nexus between cruelty meted out by accused and the suicide, that the cruelty induced the victim to commit suicide — No other reason pointed out by accused for the deceased to commit suicide — Evidence showing that accused had demanded dowry and he had sent her away from his house and only after mediation of panchayatdars was she taken back to the accused's house — Death happened within a period of two months thereafter — Held, facts clearly show that suicide was the result of harassment or cruelty meted out to deceased — Presumption under S. 113-B of Evidence Act could be invoked against accused — Accused-appellant liable to be convicted under S. 304-B — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Para 7). Dhian Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 7 SCC 759: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2077.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2004]

[7890] — S. 304-B — Expression "normal circumstances" — Meaning and scope — Held, the same apparently means natural death — Further held, the expression "otherwise than under normal circumstances" means death not being in the usual course but apparently under suspicious circumstances if not caused by burns or bodily injury (Para 11). Kailash v. State of M.P., (2006) 12 SCC 667: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 359: AIR 2007 SC 107: (2006) 47 AIC 823 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-2006]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191; Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 309, relied on [7891] — S. 304-B — Expressions "normal circumstances" and "otherwise than under normal circumstances" — Meaning of — Held, "normal circumstances" apparently means natural death — "Otherwise than under normal circumstances" means death not being in the usual course but apparently under suspicious circumstances if not caused by burns or bodily injury (Para 8). Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191, relied on [7892] — S. 304-B — Suicidal death of a married woman within seven years of her marriage, held, is covered by the expression "death of woman is caused ... or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances" in S. 304-B — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A (Paras 14 and 12). Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511: AIR 2005 SC 785: 2005 Cri LJ 1418.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-2005]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48, followed

[7893] — S. 304-B — Suicidal death of a woman — Whether she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband for or in connection with demand for dowry soon before her death — Proof — Conduct of family members of deceased was relevant as no complaint was made by them and they took back all articles given in marriage — Instead deceased's husband (appellant) himself lodged the FIR — Demand for dowry not established by cogent evidence — No evidence, direct or indirect, as regards harassment or cruelty by appellant against his wife — Necessary ingredients of circumstantial evidence for holding appellant guilty not considered by trial court as well as High Court — Even if there was misunderstanding between appellant and deceased, that would not automatically lead to the conclusion that appellant committed offence under S. 304-B as law does not raise such a presumption — Trial court took erroneous view that another person had made demands from deceased's parents as messenger of appellant and that his insistence revealed that what was demanded by that person was a dowry demand — Such a hypothesis could not be made basis for conviction of appellant under S. 304-B — Defence version that cause of death was that deceased had insisted to go to her mother's house but she was not allowed, plausible — Having regard to the peculiar features of the case, held, cruelty or harassment for dowry being the cause for death of the deceased, not established beyond all reasonable doubt — Conviction under S. 304-B not sustainable. T. Aruntperunjothi v. State, (2006) 9 SCC 467: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 528: AIR 2006 SC 2475: 2006 Cri LJ 3290: (2006) 102 Cut LT 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-2006]

State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306; Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511, relied on

Sudhakar v. State of Maharashtra, (2000) 6 SCC 671: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1250, distinguished

[7894] — S. 304-B — Whether the unnatural death was homicidal or suicidal not material — 'Suicide' is covered under death 'otherwise than under natural circumstances'

If suicidal death occurs in unnatural circumstances, S. 304-B is attracted. (Para 5)

There is absolutely no material to indicate even remotely that it was a case of natural death. It is nobody's case that it was accidental death. In the result it was an unnatural death; either homicidal or suicidal. But even assuming that it is a case of suicide even then it would be death which had occurred in unnatural circumstances. Even in such a case, S. 304-B is attracted and this position is not disputed. Therefore, the prosecution has established that the appellants have committed an offence punishable under S. 304-B beyond all reasonable doubt. (Para 5). Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191: AIR 1991 SC 1226.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1990]

(iv) "Within seven years of marriage"

[7895] — S. 304-B — Conditions precedent for establishing offence under S. 304-B — Drawing of presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act — Proof of date of marriage — Onus — Held, it is for the prosecution to prove the said fact — In the instant case, prosecution failed to do so — Courts below erred in shifting the onus of proving the date

(6)(iv) "Within seven years of marriage" (contd.)

of marriage on the defence and drawing a presumption against it merely on the basis of allegation of death of victim within seven years — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

The conditions precedent for establishing an offence under Section 304-B IPC are as follows: (a) that a married woman had died otherwise than under normal circumstances; (b) such death was within seven years of her marriage; and (c) the prosecution has established that there was cruelty and harassment in connection with demand for dowry soon before her death. (Para 8)

Section 113-B of the Evidence Act permits a presumption to be drawn against the accused in regard to dowry death provided the prosecution establishes that soon before her death the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment. (Para 9)

On a conjoint reading of Section 304-B IPC and Section 113-B of the Evidence Act it is clear that for drawing a presumption under Section 113-B firstly, there should be death of a woman otherwise than in normal circumstances, within seven years of marriage and the prosecution having shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment in connection with any demand for dowry by persons accused of having committed the offence. Unless and until these preliminary facts are established by the prosecution, it is not open to the courts to draw a presumption against the accused invoking Section 113-B. (Para 10)

Thus, the law requires the prosecution to establish first by cogent evidence that the death in the case occurred within seven years of the marriage. (Para 17)

On facts, the prosecution has failed to produce the available evidence regarding the date of marriage of the deceased thereby failing to discharge its initial onus of proof. The question whether the defence has been able to establish its version of the date of marriage is immaterial because in the first instance it was for the prosecution to establish this fact. (Para 17)

Hence, both the courts below erred in shifting the onus of proving the date of marriage on the defence and drawing a presumption against it. (Para 17). Baljeet Singh v. State of Haryana, (2004) 3 SCC 122: 2004 SCC (Cri) 692: AIR 2004 SC 1714.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-2004]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088, explained and followed

[7896] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Death within seven years of marriage — Proof and conclusion in respect of — Death of deceased took place in the night of 20/21-7-1999 — PWs 3 and 4 categorically stated that the marriage took place in the month of Baisakh of 1993 — No cross-examination of these witnesses with reference to the date of marriage — Held, in view of the undisputed testimony of PWs 3 and 4 about the date of marriage, the courts below were justified in concluding that the death took place within seven years of marriage — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Para 8). Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

[7897] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Marriage having taken place more than seven years earlier to the incident, held, acquittal of husband under S. 304-B was proper — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Para 8). Dalbir Singh v. State of U.P., (2004) 5 SCC 334: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1592: AIR 2004 SC 1990: 2004 All LJ 1448: 2004 Cri LJ 2025.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu, Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan and G.P. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-2004]

[7898] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Dowry death — Demand for dowry not established — Suicide committed by deceased G within 2 months of her marriage — According to prosecution there was a persistent demand for a car and the appellants (in-laws) and the husband were constantly harassing G for dowry — Suicide note not containing any statement which could be used against the accused persons — Prosecution case based on the evidence of father, mother and sister of G — Several letters written by G to her mother, sister and friend, also produced by the prosecution — Letters, however, not showing that G was being subjected to cruelty or harassment in connection with any demand for dowry — On the contrary, letters indicating that G received abundant love and affection in her matrimonial home — Further, G was keen to get her brother-in-law married — Suicide committed by G as she was unable to adjust in her matrimonial home — On facts, prosecution failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt — Appellants acquitted — Benefit of this judgment also extended to accused husband who did not appeal to the Supreme Court

The letters written by G (deceased) to her mother (PW 4), sister and friend as well as the letters written by PW 4 to her daughter and son-in-law, when considered do not support the prosecution case that G was being subjected to torture and harassment or was being constantly taunted for not bringing a car in dowry. On the contrary, it appears from these letters that she was loved by all members of her matrimonial family who showered affection on her. The only indication, if at all, is about her finding it difficult to adjust in the new surroundings for which she found herself guilty for entertaining such feelings. She has referred to the freedom that she enjoyed in her parental home but now feels suppressed because she cannot do all that she used to do in her parental home. Further, the fact that she was keen to get her brother-in-law married and was requesting her sister to find a good match, if at all, is indicative of the fact that she found her husband, father-in-law, mother-in-law and other members of the family to be good-natured persons, and was therefore keen to get her brother-in-law married. (Paras 15 to 24)

That apart, the suicide note also does not contain any statement which can be used against the accused, as there is nothing in the suicide note which may even remotely suggest that G was ending her life because of the maltreatment meted out to her by the members of her matrimonial family. In fact the note says that no one was responsible for what she was doing, and that what she was doing was entirely of her own will. (Para 26)

Further, if the parents of the deceased thought of sending her an old car after repairs, it does not necessarily follow that the car was being sent in response to any demand by the husband or in-laws of the deceased. (Para 27)

The case projected by the prosecution at the trial about the demand of a car cannot be accepted. Even the story about PW 1 (father of the deceased) having asked PW 5 to get a demand draft prepared for the purchase of a car appears to be an afterthought because PW 5 admitted that he neither got a demand draft made nor was he paid any amount by the father of the deceased for the purpose. Moreover, no one informed the deceased that demand draft was about to be sent for the purchase of a car. In normal circumstances one would have expected that the deceased would have been informed of the fact that a demand draft was being sent for the purchase of a car, particularly when it is the case of the prosecution that G was under a terrible strain and depression on account of her being consistently taunted for not bringing a car in dowry. That apart, PW 1 has not mentioned about the decision to send a demand draft for purchase of a car either in the FIR or in his two subsequent statements before the police. Moreover, this story is not consistent with the version given out in the letter Ext. P-33 of 13-7-1990 wherein it was stated that a car was being repaired for being sent to G. (Paras 28 and 29)

Thus, the evidence on record does not suggest that G was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or by her father and mother-in-law for or in connection with any demand for dowry. G may have committed suicide, as she was unable to adjust herself in the changed surroundings of her matrimonial home being a highly emotional person. Hence, the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. (Paras 30 and 31). Gurucharan Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, (2003) 2 SCC 698: 2003 SCC (Cri) 675: AIR 2003 SC 992: 2003 Cri LJ 1234.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-2003]

Gurucharan Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, 1996 Cri LR 410 (Raj), reversed

Extension of benefit to non-appealing accused followed in Mohinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 12 SCC 311

[7899] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A — Death by burning — Deceased committing suicide within 11 months after her marriage with Appellant 1 — No direct evidence — Appellants not attempting to save the deceased — Trial court acquitting Appellant 1 and his mother, Appellant 2, of all the charges on the grounds that the dying declaration was not recorded in the language in which it was made, there were some minor contradictions in the dying declaration and the report made to the Head Constable, and that there was doubt whether the deceased was in a fit condition to make the dying declaration — Further, the trial court held that the scolding and taunting of the deceased for not preparing proper food or that she was not good-looking was not such a cruelty so as to push her to commit suicide — Where the dying declaration was recorded and signed by the Magistrate, endorsement was made thereon by the doctor that the deceased made the statement in a fit state of mind, and the deceased put a thumb impression on her declaration which was made in Urdu and recorded in English and thereafter explained in Hindi to the deceased, held on facts, the appellants were rightly convicted under Ss. 306 and 498-A by the High Court — Further, High Court rightly held that the continuous taunting or teasing of the deceased by the appellants on one ground or the other amounted to mental cruelty drawing her to end her life — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386 and 378

PW 1, the Magistrate has certified that he had signed the dying declaration and had taken the endorsement of the doctor on duty that the deceased was in a fit state of mind to make a statement; the deceased had made the dying declaration in question-answer form in Urdu and he had translated the version and recorded the declaration in English. After recording her statement, he explained the statement in Hindi to the deceased who admitted its correctness. Thereafter, he took the thumb impression of the deceased on her declaration. In cross-examination, he has stated that he could read and speak in Hindi; the deceased had made statement in Urdu which he could understand as Urdu and Hindi languages are almost similar and in Hyderabad, Urdu and Hindi languages are spoken in the same way, there being not much difference. PW 11, the doctor, corroborated the statement of PW 1 to the effect that the deceased was in a fit mental condition to make statement and that he was present when the statement was recorded by the Magistrate. (Para 5)

Whether one spouse has been guilty of cruelty to the other is essentially a question of fact. The impact of complaints, accusations or taunts on a person amounting to cruelty depends on various factors like the sensitivity of the individual victim concerned, the social background, the environment, education etc. Further, mental cruelty varies from person to person depending on the intensity of sensitivity and the degree of courage or endurance to withstand such mental cruelty. Each case has to be decided on its own facts to decide whether the mental cruelty was established or not. In the facts and circumstances of the case, the High Court rightly concluded that the continuous taunting or teasing of the deceased by the appellants on one ground or the other amounted to mental cruelty drawing her to end her life. Out of 11 months of married life, the deceased was forced to live in her parents' house and could live with her husband for a period of two months in different spells. The High Court also took note of the fact that the appellants did not try to save the deceased although they were present when the burn injuries were caused to her. (Para 6)

Having regard to the evidence brought on record and looking to the reasons recorded by the High Court, the trial court committed manifest error in disbelieving the dying declaration and the evidence of PWs 3 to 7. The High Court was right and justified in reversing the order of acquittal and convicting and sentencing the appellants for the offences under Sections 306 and 498-A IPC. However, having regard to the fact that both the appellants were in imprisonment for about two months, the incident took place on 9-3-1988, Appellant 2 is the mother of Appellant 1 and she is aged 60 years, it would be just and appropriate to modify the sentence of imprisonment to the period already undergone. (Para 8). Mohd. Hoshan v. State of A.P., (2002) 7 SCC 414: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1765: AIR 2002 SC 3270.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-2002]

[7900] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A — Dowry death — Suicide by married woman within four months of her marriage — Demand of dowry or ill-treatment of wife by the respondents not established — Acquittal upheld. Meka Ramaswamy v. Dasari Mohan, 1998 SCC (Cri) 604: AIR 1998 SC 774.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.S.M. Quadri, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-1998]

[7901] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A — Dowry suicide-death — Sustainability of conviction — Direct and reasonable nexus between suicide and cruelty meted out — Death of the bride within four months of her marriage — Harassment and cruelty meted out to the deceased demanding more dowry/tape recorder immediately after her marriage proved — Reluctance of the deceased to return to her matrimonial home established — Held, there was direct and reasonable nexus of the commission of suicide by the deceased with the act of cruelty to which the deceased was subjected to by the accused-appellants — Hence, conviction of the appellants under Ss. 306 and 498-A sustainable — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A (Paras 14 to 22). Sahebrao v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 9 SCC 794: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 408: AIR 2006 SC 2002: 2006 Cri LJ 2881.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-5-2006]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740; Gananath Pattnaik v. State of Orissa, (2002) 2 SCC 619: 2002 SCC (Cri) 461; Mohd. Hoshan v. State of A.P., (2002) 7 SCC 414: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1765; Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; Hans Raj v. State of Haryana, (2004) 12 SCC 257: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 217, relied on [7902] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Conviction confirmed — Death of deceased within one month of marriage by suicide by hanging herself — Demand for dowry and effort made by complainant to meet same proved by PWs — PWs 2 and 3 (brother and sister respectively of deceased) who had visited deceased on day of occurrence stating that there was further demand of dowry, pursuant to which deceased was harassed and ill-treated, and that she was mentally disturbed — Held, threats by appellant husband over course of two days, when deceased was in her matrimonial home might have been enough for deceased who was in fragile state of mind to reach breaking point and end her life — Defence of appellant that deceased was having an affair prior to her marriage, and was disturbed because she was unable to marry that person, not proved — Further, post-occurrence behaviour of appellant also generating suspicion against him — In such circumstances, conviction of appellant under S. 304-B sustainable — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 2 and 3 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 16 to 23, 25 and 27 to 29). G.V. Siddaramesh v. State of Karnataka, (2010) 3 SCC 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : P. Sathasivam and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision : 5-2-2010]

V. Bhagat v. D. Bhagat, (1994) 1 SCC 337, relied on

[7903] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Conviction under Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Legality — Dowry death — Death within the time-limit mentioned in S. 304-B, when not amounts to — Accused-appellant making demands of property and cash which partially met by his father-in-law — Appellant, however, turning out his wife and one month old child and consequently the wife staying with her father — Cross-litigation under S. 9 of Hindu Marriage Act and S. 125 of CrPC between the appellant and wife — However, compromise effected between the parties and the wife going to the appellant's house — After a few months two problems arising, viz., the appellant starting to beat the wife and the appellant's father refusing to accommodate the spouses in his own house — The spouses shifting to a rented house — The wife, due to the harassment and maltreatment meted out to her by the appellant, asking her father to accommodate her but her father refusing to do so — Impending delivery of a child in these very circumstances having a further depressing effect on her — These circumstances leading her to commit suicide by taking poison — Having been occasioned not by any demand of dowry but by other factors, the wife's death although within seven years of marriage, held, not dowry death so as to attract S. 304-B — However, the cruelty otherwise inflicted upon her, held, a relevant factor to maintain the appellant's conviction under S. 498-A — Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, S. 13(i-a). Pyare Lal v. State of Haryana, (1997) 11 SCC 552: AIR 1999 SC 1563.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-2-1997]

[7904] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Date of marriage — Burden of proof — Dispute as to whether it had taken place in 1983 or 1987 — Held, burden lay on prosecution to prove same, in order to take benefit of Ss. 113-A and 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 and Ss. 498-A and 304-B — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-A, 113-B, 50, 101 and 102 (Para 13). Suresh Kumar Singh v. State of U.P, (2009) 17 SCC 243: (2009) 3 ECrN 451 (SC): (2009) 4 All LJ 662.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

[7905] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Benefit of doubt — Deceased committing suicide — No evidence by prosecution to show that there was a demand for dowry — In the light of this deficiency, Supreme Court declining to send matter back to High Court for considering allegations on merit. State of Punjab v. Gurdev Kaur, (2002) 9 SCC 397.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-2002]

[7906] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Suicide by wife — Acquittal by trial court — Interference by High Court — On facts, held, not justified — Deceased committed suicide within seven years of marriage — At the time of marriage appellant husband was studying — Few days before the death, deceased met and told her parents that the accused had completed his course and wanted her to bring Rs one lakh from them and that if she failed to do so accused would turn her out of the house — Fact that while going back to the village of her in-laws she told her father to arrange for the money otherwise her in-laws would not allow her to live, and many other vital things not stated during investigation by PWs — DW 1, who settled the marriage stated that there was no demand of dowry at the time of marriage and the deceased or her parents never complained to him for any such demand — No amount was sent to the appellant while he was prosecuting studies — Father of the appellant promptly sent intimation of death to her parents — Held, it was rightly noted by trial court that there was no evidence towards the claim regarding any demand of dowry — Reasoning of High Court that something must have happened otherwise deceased would not have committed suicide, is clearly indefensible — That certainly could not have been a reason to set aside trial court's well-reasoned judgment of acquittal (Para 16). Nepal Singh v. State of Haryana, (2009) 12 SCC 351.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-2009]

Chandrappa v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 4 SCC 415: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 325; Krishnan v. State, (2003) 7 SCC 56: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1577, followed

(6)(iv) "Within seven years of marriage" (contd.)

[7907] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A, 306 and 324 — Dowry death — Cause of death — Relevance — Deceased allegedly subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law in connection with dowry demand soon after marriage — Mother-in-law giving her a drati blow causing incised wound on forehead of the deceased — Deceased committing suicide on the same day by consuming naphthalene balls — Death resulting due to poisoning and not due to injury caused by her mother-in-law — Held, injuries found on the deceased not being cause of her death, despite there being demand of dowry, the offence would not attract mischief of S. 304-B — Mother-in-law is liable to be convicted under S. 324 — On facts, there being no evidence of harassment within the meaning of Expln. (b) of S. 498-A none of the accused can be held liable for offences under S. 306 — In view of old age of the mother-in-law instead of imposing substantive imprisonment a fine of Rs 3000 imposed — Fine, if realised, directed to be paid to the parents of the deceased — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-A and 113-B. State of H.P. v. Nikku Ram, (1995) 6 SCC 219: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1090: AIR 1996 SC 67.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Ramaswamy and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1995]

[Ed.: In the present case the Court has acquitted the accused mother-in-law under Section 304-B on the ground that the injuries inflicted by her could not have caused the death of the deceased (para 7). In para 14 it has been laid down that "having held the injuries as found on the person of the deceased could not have caused her death, despite the demand being dowry, the offence would not attract the mischief of Section 304-B".

It is submitted that causing of fatal injury is not an essential ingredient of Section 304-B. The following essentials of Section 304-B have been laid by the Supreme Court in Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191:

(1) The death of a woman should be caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances; (The expression "otherwise than under normal circumstances" covers suicide);

(2) Such death should have occurred within 7 years of her marriage;

(3) She must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband; and

(4) Such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with demand for dowry. (emphasis added)

In effect the observations in the present case would, it is submitted, render Section 304-B otiose and superfluous. The situation of fatal injury being the cause of the death was already covered by IPC in Section 302 and Section 304. The new Section 304-B was designedly inserted to cover dowry deaths, which have been held to include cases of suicide (provided other ingredients are satisfied). It is another matter that the Court in the present case recorded as a finding of fact (para 16) that there was no reliable evidence to hold that the deceased was being harassed within the meaning of Expln. (b) of Section 498-A and so on this ground alone the Court acquitted all the accused persons under Sections 304-B and 306 IPC.]

[7908] — Ss. 304-B(1) and 498-A — Dowry death — Suicide — Death by falling in well, whether on facts was a dowry death — Evidence of wife's parents showing that since the date of marriage appellant was insisting upon dowry — On betrothal day itself land transferred in his favour and at the time of marriage some ornaments given to the deceased wife by her parents — Since 3rd day of marriage, appellant making further demand for dowry and ultimately given a certain sum — Evidence further showing that even till two years after marriage the appellant continued to make demands for dowry and subjected his wife to cruelty both mental and physical on that score — Appellant putting forth a further demand for a certain sum and a certain number of sovereigns as the balance of dowry and asking the cousin of his wife to persuade the deceased's parents to hand over the same — But before the wife's cousin could communicate to the appellant the outcome of his efforts, the appellant's wife meeting her death by falling in a well — Incident taking place within 3½ years of marriage [much less than the time-limit postulated by S. 304-B(1)] — Moreover, two independent witnesses stating that the appellant's mother-in-law had told them that the appellant was quarrelling with the deceased for more dowry — Obviously, because his continuous and persistent demands for dowry were not met, the appellant in his statement under S. 313 CrPC going to the extent of stating that the deceased was not his wife — In such circumstances, the High Court rightly held that the deceased was subjected to cruelty for dowry soon before her death for which she committed suicide — Hence, conviction under S. 304-B, upheld — CrPC, 1973, S. 313. Rajayyan v. State of Kerala, (1998) 4 SCC 85: 1998 SCC (Cri) 811: AIR 1998 SC 1211: 1998 Cri LJ 1633.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.S.M. Quadri, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1998]

[7909] — S. 304-B r/w S. 34 — Dowry death — Wife allegedly committed suicide by jumping into a well — Death after about 2½ years of marriage — Conviction of husband and mother-in-law of deceased — Harassment meted out to deceased for non-payment of dowry — Considering evidence of neighbours (PWs 3 and 4) and other witnesses (PWs 8 and 12), held, accusations against husband clearly established — But, no credible evidence brought on record to substantiate accusations against mother-in-law — Hence, conviction and sentence of husband upheld — But, mother-in-law acquitted (Para 12). Kunhiabdulla v. State of Kerala, (2004) 4 SCC 13: 2004 SCC (Cri) 907: AIR 2004 SC 1731: (2004) 2 KLT 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-2004]

(v) Cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand

See also S. 498-A, below

See also '(iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance', above and

'(vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.]', below

[7910] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Delay by prosecution in making statement regarding ill-treatment or beating or demand of dowry — Effect of — Held, no hard-and-fast rule can be laid down in this regard — Shock suffered by a parent having seen his daughter dead in an unnatural manner can in some cases prevent immediate outpouring of reasons — Hence, each case would have to be tested on its own facts (Para 9). Alamgir Sani v. State of Assam, (2002) 10 SCC 277: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1447: AIR 2003 SC 2108.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.N. Variava and B.N. Agrawal, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-12-2002]

Ravindra Pyarelal Bidlan v. State of Maharashtra, 1993 Cri LJ 3019 (Bom), mentioned as laying down bad law

[7911] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — One of the key ingredients of the offence, held, is that deceased must have been subjected to cruelty and harassment "in connection with the demand for dowry" shortly before her death — Where father of deceased had given her as customary gift (pasupukumkuma) at time of marriage, some land and a house site and 3 to 4 months after marriage Respondent 1 husband had begun demanding that deceased execute deed transferring land and house site to him, and wife ultimately committed suicide, held, on facts offence of dowry death not made out because there was no evidence on record to indicate that the transfer had been demanded as dowry

To attract the provisions of Section 304-B IPC, one of the main ingredients of the offence which is required to be established is that "soon before her death" the victim was subjected to cruelty and harassment "in connection with the demand for dowry". In the present case there is no evidence on record to show that the land was demanded as a dowry. It was given by the father to the deceased in a marriage ritual as pasupukumkuma. The harassment or cruelty meted out to the deceased by the husband after the marriage to force her to transfer the land in his name was "not in connection with any demand for dowry". One of the main ingredients of the offence of "demand of dowry" being absent in this case, the High Court cannot be said to have committed any error in acquitting Accused 1 for the offence under Section 304-B IPC. (Para 16). K. Prema S. Rao v. Yadla Srinivasa Rao, (2003) 1 SCC 217: 2003 SCC (Cri) 271: AIR 2003 SC 11: 2003 Cri LJ 69.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.B. Shah, K.G. Balakrishnan and D.M. Dharmadhikari, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-2002]

[7912] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 120-B — Essential ingredient of offence under S. 304-B — "Subjected to cruelty or harassment ... for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry" — Import — Held, on facts it is clear that story of demand of dowry by appellants was developed ex post facto by parents of deceased — In absence of demand of dowry, harassment if any meted out to deceased, will not come within the ambit of S. 304-B — Of course, there is sufficient evidence to show that the appellant husband used to assault and harass deceased frequently, and it is therefore that she committed suicide — Thus there is clear evidence that he was abetting her suicide — Hence offence committed by appellant husband would come under S. 306 — He having already gone imprisonment for 9 years, sentence already undergone would be sufficient to meet ends of justice — However, there is no allegation or specific evidence that parents of appellant husband were causing any cruelty to deceased, except for their physical presence in the house — Hence, their complicity in committing offence under S. 304-B is not established, nor can they be held guilty under S. 120-B — Moreover, there is no evidence as regards actual commission of suicide — Hence parents of appellant husband acquitted (Paras 6 to 9). Angoori v. State of Rajasthan, (2005) 10 SCC 210: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1503.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-2004]

[7913] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — 'Cruelty' — Meaning of, to be gathered from Explanation to S. 498-A

(6)(v) Cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand (contd.)

'Cruelty' is a common essential to both the sections and that has to be proved. The Explanation to S. 498-A gives the meaning of 'cruelty' while in S. 304-B there is no such explanation about the meaning of 'cruelty'. But having regard to the common background to these offences the meaning of 'cruelty and harassment' has to be taken to be the same as is in the explanation to S. 498-A under which 'cruelty' by itself amounts to an offence and is punishable. (Para 6). Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191: AIR 1991 SC 1226.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1990]

[7914] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — "Harassed" and "tortured" — Proof — Nature of — Need to describe exact conduct which amounted to harassment and torture — False implication of relatives of husband — Held, PW who merely uses word "harassed" or "tortured" and does not describe exact conduct of accused which, according to him, amounted to harassment or torture may not be believed by court in cases under Ss. 498-A and 304-B — Evidence of PWs merely showing that accused J and G (brother and mother respectively of appellant) had a role in demand of dowry — But demand of dowry by itself is not an offence under S. 498-A or S. 304-B — It is the act of cruelty or harassment by husband or relative of husband on the woman that is punishable and which must be established for court to presume that accused has caused dowry death — PWs in instant case failed to describe exact conduct of mother-in-law and other in-laws on account of which deceased felt tortured and taunted — On the other hand they had clearly stated that appellant husband of deceased used to taunt her that she had come from a "hungry house", and thus, there was evidence as to exact conduct which caused harassment to deceased — Hence, finding of High Court that charges against J and G had not been established beyond reasonable doubt and that their case was distinguishable from that of appellant and that J and G appear to have been implicated because they were members of appellant's family, calls for no interference (Paras 29 to 33). Amar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (2010) 9 SCC 64: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1130: AIR 2010 SC 3391: (2010) 94 AIC 137 (SC): (2010) 3 UPLJ 125 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Lodha and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-8-2010]

Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, followed

[7915] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Humiliating remarks as regards the poor quality of gifts of meagre value given at the time of marriage — Held, amounts to harassment on account of insufficient dowry — Evidence Act, 1872 — S. 113-B. Baldev Krishan v. State of Punjab, (1997) 4 SCC 486: 1997 SCC (Cri) 575: AIR 1997 SC 1666: 1997 Cri LJ 1162.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Faizan Uddin and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-1-1997]

[7916] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A Expln. — Meaning of "cruelty" or "harassment" in S. 304-B — Held, is the same as prescribed in S. 498-A Expln. (Para 12). Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511: AIR 2005 SC 785: 2005 Cri LJ 1418.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-2005]

Akula Ravinder v. State of A.P., 1991 Supp (2) SCC 99: 1991 SCC (Cri) 990, relied on

(vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.]

See also '(iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance' and

'(v) Cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand', above

See also under Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961

[7917] — S. 304-B — Applicability of — Agreement for payment of dowry — Necessity to prove existence of — Held, S. 304-B makes "demand of dowry" itself punishable — Demand neither conceives nor would conceive of any agreement — Hence, judgment of High Court holding that in absence of agreement for demand of dowry S. 304-B was not applicable, could not be sustained — Since High Court not examining evidence to adjudicate whether there was any demand of dowry, matter remanded to High Court for decision afresh — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 2 and 4 (Paras 3 and 4). Public Prosecutor v. Mytheswar Gangadhar, (2009) 16 SCC 255: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 248.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-2002]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740, followed

[7918] — S. 304-B — "Demand of dowry" — Meaning of — Held, it refers to demand of property or valuable security as referred to in the definition of "dowry" under the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961

— Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 2 and 4 (Para 3). Public Prosecutor v. Mytheswar Gangadhar, (2009) 16 SCC 255: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 248.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-2002]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740, followed

[7919] — S. 304-B — "Dowry" — Definition of — Words "at any time" after the marriage — Scope — Held, there are three occasions related to dowry — One before the marriage, second at time of marriage and third at "any time" after the marriage — Third occasion may appear to be an unending period, but the crucial words are "in connection with the marriage of the said parties" — Hence, payments which are customary payments e.g. given at time of birth of a child or other ceremonies as are prevalent in different societies, are not covered by "dowry" — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2 (Para 14). Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511: AIR 2005 SC 785: 2005 Cri LJ 1418.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-2005]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633, relied on

[7920] — S. 304-B — "Dowry" — Meaning — It should be any property or valuable security given or agreed to be given in connection with the marriage — Customary gift or payment in connection with birth of child or other ceremonies unrelated to the marriage ceremony, held, do not fall within the ambit of "dowry" — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2

The word "dowry" in Section 304-B has to be understood as it is defined in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961. Thus, there are three occasions related to dowry. One is before the marriage, second is at the time of marriage and the third is "at any time" after the marriage. The third occasion may appear to be an unending period. But the crucial words are "in connection with the marriage of the said parties". This means that giving or agreeing to give any property or valuable security on any of the above three stages should have been in connection with the marriage of the parties. There can be many other instances for payment of money or giving property as between the spouses. For example, some customary payments in connection with birth of a child or other ceremonies are prevalent in different societies. Such payments are not enveloped within the ambit of "dowry". (Paras 20 and 21). Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48: AIR 2001 SC 2828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-2001]

[7921] — S. 304-B — Dowry — Meaning of — Demand of property or valuable security after marriage covered — Even under unamended definition the same would constitute dowry — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2 (as amended by Act 63 of 1984 and Act 43 of 1986)

Despite the unamended definition of dowry having stated that the property or valuable security given or agreed to be given has to be as "consideration for the marriage", demands made after the marriage could also be a part of the consideration, because an implied agreement has to be read to give property or valuable securities, even if asked after the marriage, as a part of consideration for marriage. When the Dowry Prohibition Act was enacted, the Legislature was well aware of the fact that demands for dowry are made, and indeed very often, even after the marriage has been solemnized, and this demand is founded on the factum of marriage only. Such demands, therefore, would also be, as consideration for marriage. (Para 11)

The definition as amended by Act 63 of 1984 and Act 43 of 1986 does not leave anything to doubt that demands made after the solemnization of marriage would be dowry. The amended definition makes it clear that the property or the valuable security need not be as a consideration for marriage, as was required to be under the unamended definition. This apart, the addition of the words "any time" before the expression "after the marriage" would clearly show that even if the demand is made long after the marriage the same could constitute dowry, if other requirements of the section are satisfied. (Para 13). State of H.P. v. Nikku Ram, (1995) 6 SCC 219: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1090: AIR 1996 SC 67.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Ramaswamy and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1995]

Inder Sain v. State, 1981 Cri LJ 1116: (1981) 20 DLT 309 (Del), overruled

[7922] — S. 304-B — Conviction — Agreement for payment of dowry — Showing of, held, not essential — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3 and 4 (Para 7). Vidhya Devi v. State of Haryana, (2004) 9 SCC 476: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1473: AIR 2004 SC 1757.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-2004]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740, relied on

[7923] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Applicability of S. 304-B — Agreement for dowry — Showing of, held, not essential — Relevant provisions under the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 taken note of — Demand of dowry itself is punishable —

(6)(vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.] (contd.)

Proof of demand can be based on circumstantial evidence and inferences drawn from evidence that could be direct or indirect — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 2, 3 and 4

The offence alleged against the respondents is under Section 304-B IPC which makes "demand of dowry" itself punishable. Demand neither conceives nor would conceive of any agreement. If for convicting any offender, agreement for dowry is to be proved, hardly any offenders would come under the clutches of law. In cases of dowry deaths and suicides, circumstantial evidence plays an important role and inferences can be drawn on the basis of such evidence, that could be either direct or indirect. So the agreement referred to in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act has to be inferred on the facts and circumstances of each case. The argument that conviction can only be if there is agreement for dowry, is misconceived. This would be contrary to the mandate and object of the Act. "Dowry" definition is to be interpreted with the other provisions of the Act including Section 3, which refers to giving or taking dowry and Section 4 which deals with a penalty for demanding dowry, under the Act and IPC. This makes it clear that even demand of dowry on other ingredients being satisfied is punishable. It is not always necessary that there be any agreement for dowry. (Para 9). State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306: AIR 2004 SC 1933: 2004 Cri LJ 1791.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-2004]

[7924] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Subjecting wife "to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry" — Proof — In absence of the deceased, testimony of her parents would be most relevant — Evidence regarding continuous dowry demands and consequent cruelty and harassment to the wife becomes more believable where a young woman having a small child of 15 months and another in her womb ended her life — Having regard to the facts and circumstances, held, prosecution case established and appellants rightly convicted and sentenced under S. 304-B by courts below

The deceased was married with the first appellant. The deceased died an unnatural death having sustained burn injuries in her matrimonial home. The case of the prosecution was that the deceased was being taunted and harassed on account of dowry related demands by appellants viz. her husband, father-in-law and mother-in-law, which led to her taking her own life. The deceased left behind a son who was at the time of the incident aged about 15 months. She was also found to be 12 weeks' pregnant at the time of the incident. According to the father of the deceased all the three appellants started ill-treating and taunting his daughter for bringing less dowry about a year after her marriage. They were demanding colour TV, a fridge and a cooler, besides ornaments. He further stated that the accused had threatened his daughter that if she did not bring those items, she would be done to death. About two months prior to the incident, his daughter was turned out from their house by the accused persons after giving her a beating. The wife returned to the house of her parents and told them about the incident. The father of the deceased convened a Panchayat of respectable persons of the locality and took them to the house of the appellants along with his daughter. The accused were told that in view of the poor financial position of the father of the girl he was not able to meet their demands, still the accused were assured that whatever could be possible within the means of the father he would continue to do. With this assurance he left his daughter with the accused persons. Again, a month earlier to the incident, the victim was sent back to her parents' house by the accused persons after being given some beating with the instruction to bring the items which were demanded by them. The deceased's father sent his daughter back along with his wife to the house of the accused with cash of Rs 1200 and five ladies suits. His wife left her daughter in the house of the accused and came back. This was followed by the incident. The deceased's dead body was found lying in the kitchen of the matrimonial home smeared with kerosene oil all over the body. A stove, a matchbox and a plastic can were also found near the body. According to the trial court, it was a case of suicide. The appellants were convicted for the offence under Section 304-B IPC and were sentenced to imprisonment for ten years to Appellant 1 and seven years each to Appellant 2 and Appellant 3. The High Court dismissed the appeal of the appellants and maintained the judgment of the trial court regarding conviction and sentence of the accused persons.

Dismissing the accused's appeal,

Held :

In the present case, all the ingredients of Section 304-B are satisfied except that there is argument about the last ingredient about cruelty or harassment in connection with demand for dowry. It is a case of death of a woman, caused by burns i.e. it is an unnatural death and the death has taken place within seven years of the marriage. Thus, the argument in the present appeal centres around only the last ingredient i.e. whether there was cruelty or harassment on account of demands for dowry. (Para 3)

The deceased wife who could be the best person to speak about such demands; as the demands were allegedly made to her, is no more, the only remaining evidence can be that of the parents of the deceased to whom she would be supposed to mention about such demands in order to ascertain if they could meet the same. (Para 4)

In this case, the incident of Panchayat being held and the three panchas being taken to the house of the accused persons, as stated by the deceased's father, was admitted by the defence witness himself. The argument that this shows that the dispute stood settled/compromised and thereafter there could be no question of making allegation of dowry-related demands cannot be accepted. The father of the deceased stated again that about a month prior to the incident the girl had been turned out of the house after being beaten with instructions to bring the demanded articles from her parents. That would show that the dowry-related demands by the accused persons continued, otherwise there was no reason for the young wife to take the extreme step of ending her life specially when she had a young son of about 15 months and another child in her womb. There is no reason to disbelieve the testimony of the deceased's father. The trial court rightly observed that a father will not take Panchayat of respectable persons to the house of the in-laws of her daughter without her having problem in living there peacefully. This fact which is admitted by a witness produced by the accused persons, supports the prosecution case that there were demands in connection with dowry made by the accused persons. One of the panchas corroborated the version of the deceased's father about the dowry demands and the Panchayat. From the facts and circumstances the conclusion is inescapable that the accused made demands for dowry from the deceased and made her life miserable. It became unbearable for her to face the accused persons in such circumstances and she had to ultimately take her life. The High Court has affirmed the findings of the Sessions Court. There is no reason to differ with the view taken by the courts below. (Para 6). Devinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2005) 12 SCC 104: 2005 Cri LJ 4160: AIR 2005 SC 3501.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arun Kumar and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-2005]

[7925] — S. 304-B — Dowry demand — Proof of — Held, not necessary that demand of any particular item should have been made (Para 26). Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2007) 14 SCC 176: AIR 2008 SC 332: (2007) 59 AIC 115 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

[7926] — S. 304-B — Expression "demand for dowry" under — Meaning of, explained — Held, if a demand for property or valuable security, directly or indirectly, has a nexus with marriage, such demand would constitute "demand for dowry" — Cause or reason for such demand is immaterial — Hence demand for motorcycle to establish a business, covered under "demand for dowry" — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 2 and 4 (Paras 18 and 14). Bachni Devi v. State of Haryana, (2011) 4 SCC 427.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Aftab Alam and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-2011]

Appasaheb v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 9 SCC 721: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 468, clarified

[7927] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A — Dowry demand — Plausibility of — Abuse of dowry laws — Alleged dowry demand raised for first time six years after marriage, and that too involving a trivial amount considering socio-economic status of the parties — Held, such allegation unnatural and improbable — It was a clear-cut case of gross abuse of dowry laws — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 4 and 3 (Paras 57 to 59). Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta (Dr.) v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 13 SCC 657.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-11-2010]

[7928] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Demand for dowry — Proof — Deceased dying within fifteen months of her marriage under unnatural circumstances — Submission that there was absolutely no evidence that any demand for dowry was made "soon before her death" or harassment in connection with the demand was proximate cause of her death — Held, on facts, dowry demand and consequent cruelty and harassment clearly established — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3 and 4 (Paras 11 to 16). Deen Dayal v. State of U.P., (2009) 11 SCC 157: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1278: AIR 2009 SC 1238: (2009) 74 AIC 60 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 1119: (2009) 1 ECrN 838 (SC): (2009) 2 All LJ 169.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: L.S. Panta and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-2009]

(6)(vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.] (contd.)

[7929] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Dowry death — Conviction justified — Deceased alleged to have consumed poison because of persistent dowry demands and consequent harassment meted out to her by her husband and in-laws for non-fulfilment of demands — Appellant-accused married to deceased on 8-6-1991, while the deceased dying on 3-9-1992 other than in normal circumstances i.e. within 7 years of marriage — Evidence of PWs 4 and 5 proving dowry demand just before the deceased committed suicide — Though demand of share in ancestral property does not amount to dowry demand but evidence of PWs proving additional demands too — Held, under such circumstances conviction of appellant under S. 304-B calls for no interference — However, custodial sentence of 10 years imposed appears to be on higher side and hence, reduced to 7 years (Paras 2 and 17 to 19). Baldev Singh v. State of Punjab, (2008) 13 SCC 233.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-8-2008]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740, relied on

[7930] — S. 304-B(1) Expln. — "Dowry" — Meaning — Demand made subsequent to marriage, held, also covered — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2 (as amended by Act 43 of 1986) (Para 7). Vidhya Devi v. State of Haryana, (2004) 9 SCC 476: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1473: AIR 2004 SC 1757.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-2004]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740, relied on

[7931] — S. 304-B(1) Expln. — "Dowry" — Meaning — Demand made subsequent to marriage, held, also covered — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2 (as amended by Act 43 of 1986) (Para 8). State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306: AIR 2004 SC 1933: 2004 Cri LJ 1791.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-2004]

[7932] — S. 304-B(1) Expln. — Dowry — Word "agreed" referred to in S. 2 DP Act — Contention that conviction can only be if there is agreement for dowry, held, misconceived — Definition of dowry is to be interpreted with the other provisions of the Act including Ss. 3 and 4 — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2

The argument that there has to be an agreement at the time of the marriage in view of the words "agreed to be given" occurring in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, and in the absence of any such evidence it would not constitute a dowry is not tenable since the definition of dowry in Section 2 of the Act by amendment includes not only the period before and at the marriage but also the period subsequent to the marriage. (Para 8). State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306: AIR 2004 SC 1933: 2004 Cri LJ 1791.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-2004]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740, relied on

Ayyala Rambabu v. State of A.P., (1993) 1 An LT (Cri) 73, impliedly overruled

[7933] — S. 304-B r/w S. 34 — Demand for dowry — Requisites for — Demand for monies to meet domestic expenses and for purchasing manure about 1½ years after marriage — Held, cannot be said to be a demand for dowry — Hence, since an essential ingredient of S. 304-B IPC viz. demand for dowry is not established, the conviction of the appellants cannot be sustained — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2 (Para 11). Appasaheb v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 9 SCC 721: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 468: AIR 2007 SC 763: (2007) 50 AIC 1 (SC): (2007) 4 KLT 463.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and R.V. Raveendran, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2007]

[7934] — Ss. 304-B/34 and 498-A — Demand for dowry and harassment — Main part of charge under S. 304-B IPC not established — Conviction under Ss. 3 and 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act improper — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3 and 4

The appellant, who was the sister-in-law of the deceased was convicted under Sections 304-B/34, 498-A IPC and under Sections 3 and 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act. On appeal, the High Court acquitted her of the charges under Sections 304-B/34 IPC giving her the benefit of doubt. However, her conviction under Sections 3 and 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act was maintained. It was contended before the Supreme Court that having recorded her acquittal from the charges under Section 304-B IPC, it was not possible to maintain the convictions under Sections 3 and 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act. Allowing the appeal by special leave,

Held :

Demand for dowry and harassment for that reason are the essential ingredients of the offence under Section 304-B. (Para 4)

Sections 3 and 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act make out independent offences, but in the instant case it was the demand for dowry coupled with harassment which constitutes the basis of the prosecution case. Once the main part of the charge under Section 304-B was not found established, it was not possible to record conviction under Sections 3 and 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act. (Para 6). Sakhi Mandalani v. State of Bihar, (1999) 5 SCC 705: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1039.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Saghir Ahmad and S. Rajendra Babu, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-4-1999]

[7935] — Ss. 304-B/498-A — Dowry death — Bride burning — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction upheld — Material that may be considered — Dowry list (chuktiparta) executed at time of marriage — Held, "chuktiparta" is a material and relevant piece of evidence and can be taken into consideration by courts — On facts, discrepancy between dowry list and dowry items stated in court not material — FIR lodged by father of deceased could not be faulted for not being elaborate and specific, as it was a tragic moment for him — Death was not disputed and large number of witnesses attested to specific allegations of dowry demand and harassment to which deceased was subjected during less than two years for which marriage survived — All material and crucial aspects stood duly corroborated — Hence, offence under Ss. 304-B/498-A made out — Therefore conviction of appellants, upheld (Paras 11 to 16). Uday Chakraborty v. State of W.B., (2010) 7 SCC 518.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dr. B.S. Chauhan and Swatanter Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision : 8-7-2010]

Hazarilal v. State of M.P., (2009) 13 SCC 783: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1247; Arulvelu v. State, (2009) 10 SCC 206: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 288, distinguished

(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation

See also ' Ingredients of dowry death and presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act — (i) Broadly',

'(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises',

'(iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance',

'(v) Cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand', and

'(vi) Dowry demand — What is and proof of [S. 304-B(1) Expln.]', above

[7936] — S. 304-B — Aid taken of S. 114 Ill. (a) in interpretation of expression "soon before" occurring in S. 113-B, Evidence Act and S. 304-B IPC — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 114 Ill. (a) & 113-B (Para 7). Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

[7937] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Expression "soon before her death" in S. 304-B — What would constitute — Held, said expression has to be given its due meaning as legislature has not specified any time which would be the period prior to death, that would attract provisions of S. 304-B — Concept of reasonable time would be applicable, which would primarily depend upon facts of a given case, conduct of parties and impact of cruelty and harassment inflicted upon deceased in relation to demand of dowry to cause of unnatural death of deceased — Herein, as marriage itself had not survived even for a period of two years, entire period would be relevant (Para 15). Uday Chakraborty v. State of W.B., (2010) 7 SCC 518.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dr. B.S. Chauhan and Swatanter Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision : 8-7-2010]

[7938] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients — Expression "soon before her death" — Should be assigned plain language and common parlance meaning — Expression implied a reasonable time gap indicating a proximate link between cruelty inflicted for or in connection with demand of dowry and death of the woman — Court should attach specific significance to time of alleged cruelty and time of death and whether alleged demand was in connection with the marriage — Conviction confirmed

The deceased and the appellant were married on 9-10-1986. The appellant, his brother and his mother were not satisfied with the dowry given by the deceased's father at the time of the deceased's marriage. They allegedly used to harass and maltreat the deceased and used to beat her. They had demanded refrigerator, television, etc. One week prior to the occurrence the deceased came to her father's house and narrated the ill treatment meted out to her and specifically mentioned that her husband wanted to set up a new business for which he required a sum of Rs 5000. The deceased's father having failed to arrange the money, the appellant, his brother and his mother were alleged to have burnt the deceased by sprinkling kerosene on her as a result of which she died in hospital at about 4 p.m. on 16-5-1988. The information about her death was received by the deceased's father from his sister's son. The deceased's father moved a complaint on 17-5-1988 before SI who made endorsement on the basis of which FIR was recorded. This was done by the SI on the basis of ruqua received on 16-5-1988 at about 5.45 a.m.

(6)(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation (contd.)

After completion of investigation and recording of statements of witnesses, the investigating officer submitted charge-sheet. The case was committed to the Court of Session which framed charge under Section 304-B read with Section 34 IPC. Upon completion of evidence of the prosecution, statement of the accused under Section 313 CrPC was recorded. The trial court held the appellant, his brother and his mother guilty of the offence punishable under Section 304-B IPC and sentenced them to 10 years' RI and fine of Rs 1000 each. But the High Court on appeal acquitted the brother and mother of the appellant and upheld the conviction and sentence of the appellant. The appellant thereupon filed the present appeal.

Disposing of the appeal,

Held :

Section 304-B IPC spells out the basic ingredients as well as the matters which required to be construed strictly and with significance to the cases where death is caused by burns, bodily injury or the death occurring otherwise than under normal circumstances, in any manner, within seven years of a marriage. It is the first criteria which the prosecution must prove. Second is that "soon before her death" she had been subjected to cruelty or harassment by the husband or any of the relatives of the husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry. (Paras 11 and 24)

The words "soon before her death" must be understood in their plain language and with reference to their meaning in common parlance. The legislative object in providing such a radius of time by employing the words "soon before her death" is to emphasise the idea that her death should, in all probabilities, has been the aftermath of such cruelty or harassment. In other words, there should be a reasonable, if not direct, nexus between her death and the dowry-related cruelty or harassment inflicted on her. There has to be a reasonable time gap and proximate link between the acts of cruelty along with the demand of dowry and the death of the victim. For want of any specific period, the concept of reasonable period would be applicable. Thus, the cruelty, harassment and demand of dowry should not be so ancient, whereafter, the couple and the family members have lived happily as it would result in abuse of the said protection. Such demand or harassment may not strictly and squarely fall within the scope of these provisions unless definite evidence was led to show to the contrary. These matters, of course, will have to be examined on the facts and circumstances of a given case. (Paras 19 to 22)

The cruelty and harassment by the husband or any relative could be directly relatable to or in connection with, any demand for dowry. The expression "demand for dowry" will have to be construed ejusdem generis to the word immediately preceding this expression. Thus for constituting an offence under Section 304-B of the Code, the Court has to attach specific significance to the time of alleged cruelty and harassment to which the victim was subjected to and the time of her death, as well as whether the alleged demand of dowry was in connection with the marriage. Once these ingredients are satisfied, it would be called the "dowry death". (Paras 22 and 25)

The concept of deeming fiction is hardly applicable to the criminal jurisprudence. In contradistinction to this aspect, the legislature has applied the concept of deeming fiction to the provisions of Section 304-B. Once the prosecution proves its case with regard to the basic ingredients of Section 304-B, the Court will presume by deemed fiction of law that the husband or the relatives complained of, has caused her death. Such a presumption can be drawn by the Court keeping in view the evidence produced by the prosecution in support of the substantive charge under Section 304-B of the Code. Of course, deemed fiction would introduce a rebuttable presumption and the husband and his relatives may, by leading their defence and proving that the ingredients of Section 304-B were not satisfied, rebut the same. (Paras 23 and 24)

These are the provisions relating to human behaviour and, therefore, cannot be given such a narrower meaning, which would defeat the very purpose of the provisions of the Act. Of course, these are penal provisions and must receive strict construction. But, even the rule of strict construction requires that the provisions have to be read in conjunction with other relevant provisions and scheme of the Act. Further, the interpretation given should be one which would avoid absurd results on the one hand and would further the object and cause of the law so enacted on the other. (Para 19)

These expressions should be given appropriate meaning to avoid undue harassment or advantage to either of the parties. These are penal provisions but ultimately these are the social legislations, intended to control offences relating to the society as a whole. Dowry is something which existed in our country for a considerable time and the legislature in its wisdom considered it appropriate to enact the law relating to dowry prohibition so as to ensure that any party to the marriage is not harassed or treated with cruelty for satisfaction of demands in consideration and for subsistence of the marriage. (Para 22)

The expression "soon before her death" has to be accorded its appropriate meaning in the facts and circumstances of a given case. In the present case, there is definite evidence to show that nearly 20-22 days prior to her death the deceased had come to her parental home and informed her father about the demand of Rs 5000 and harassment and torture to which she was subjected to by the accused and her in-laws. Her father had consoled her ensuring that he would try to arrange for the same and thereafter took her at her matrimonial home 7-8 days prior to the incident. (Para 43)

On the face of the aforesaid evidence read in conjunction with the statement of DW 3, it has to be concluded that ingredients of Section 304-B have been satisfied in the present case. It was for the accused to prove his defence. But the version put forward by the defence was not believable. Thus, the conviction of the accused is sustained. (Paras 44 and 47). Ashok Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2010) 12 SCC 350: AIR 2010 SC 2839: 2010 Cri LJ 4402: (2010) 93 AIC 129 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. B.S. Chauhan and Swatanter Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-7-2010]

Kaliyaperumal v. State of T.N., (2004) 9 SCC 157: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1417; Tarsem Singh v. State of Punjab, (2008) 16 SCC 155: (2010) 4 SCC (Cri) 27; Yashoda v. State of M.P., (2004) 3 SCC 98: 2004 SCC (Cri) 671; Ran Singh v. State of Haryana, (2008) 4 SCC 70: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 182; Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Madhu Sudan Malhotra v. Kishore Chand Bhandari, 1988 Supp SCC 424: 1988 SCC (Cri) 854; State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306, relied on [7939] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Presumption available under S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 against accused — Inapplicability of — Condition that "soon before" her death the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment by the accused for or in connection with any demand of dowry — Law relating to — Expression "soon before" — Interpretation of — Held, the said presumption would not be drawn if it is shown that after the alleged demand, cruelty or harassment the dispute stood resolved and there was no evidence of cruelty or harassment thereafter — But, mere lapse of some time by itself would not provide the accused a defence, if the course of conduct relating to cruelty or harassment is shown to have existed earlier in time not too late and not too stale before the date of death of the victim — This is so because the expression used in the relevant provision is "soon before" — The term "soon before" is not synonymous with the term "immediately before" — The said term would normally imply that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question i.e. there must be existence of a proximate and live link between the two — The determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before" is left to be determined by the courts, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case — No strait-jacket formula can be laid down by fixing any time-limit in this regard — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Para 7). Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016, relied on [7940] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Proximity of the cause — Appreciation of — Conviction of two sisters-in-law of deceased — Propriety — High Court confirming conviction of appellants and husband of deceased B — But, acquitting father-in-law and mother-in-law of B as their names not mentioned in FIR — General allegations without particulars of time and date regarding the alleged harassment meted out by appellants — Specific allegations made only against husband and his father — Appellants not parties to demand for buffalo and Rs 25,000 which appeared to be the proximate cause of B committing suicide — If at all the prosecution case against the appellants was to be accepted it would only show that soon after the marriage i.e. about 2½ years prior to the death of B, there was some alleged harassment for lack of dowry — Hence, allegations not proximate to the death of B — Improvement in evidence of PW 7 — No ground to differentiate the case of appellants from that of their mother who was acquitted on same set of evidence — Held, courts below erred in convicting the appellants — Appeal allowed (Paras 6 to 10). Surinder Kaur v. State of Haryana, (2004) 4 SCC 109: 2004 SCC (Cri) 926: AIR 2004 SC 1747: 2004 Cri LJ 1765: (2004) 16 AIC 872 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-2-2004]

[7941] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — "Soon before her death" — Facts and circumstances must show existence of a proximate live link between the effect of cruelty or harassment for or in connection with dowry demand and death of the victim — Where deceased not shown to have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband for at least 15 months prior to her death, held, S. 304-B not attracted

(6)(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation (contd.)

"Soon before" is an expression which permits of elasticity, and therefore the proximity test has to be applied keeping in view the facts and circumstances of each case. The facts must show the existence of a proximate live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the death of the victim. (Para 10)

Since one of the ingredients of the offence under Section 304-B is that such cruelty should have been meted out to the deceased soon before her death, it is for the prosecution to establish affirmatively that the victim was subjected to cruelty and harassment based on dowry demand soon before her death. In the instant case, at least for a year and three months before her death there is no evidence to even remotely suggest that the victim was subjected to cruelty or harassment of the nature specified in Section 304-B IPC. The proximity test is, therefore, not satisfied. We, therefore, hold that there is not sufficient evidence on the basis of which conviction under Section 304-B IPC can be founded. (Para 11). Balwant Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 7 SCC 724: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2057.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-8-2004]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016, relied on [7942] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — "Soon before her death" — What would constitute, held, depends upon facts and circumstances of each case (Para 31). T. Aruntperunjothi v. State, (2006) 9 SCC 467: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 528: AIR 2006 SC 2475: 2006 Cri LJ 3290: (2006) 102 Cut LT 95.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-2006]

[7943] — S. 304-B — Dowry death/Bride burning — Expression "soon before" occurring in said section and in Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B — Held, is a relative term which requires to be construed in the context of specific circumstances of each case — No hard-and-fast rule of any universal application can be laid down by fixing any time-limit — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Para 6). Vidhya Devi v. State of Haryana, (2004) 9 SCC 476: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1473: AIR 2004 SC 1757.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-2004]

[7944] — S. 304-B — Expression "soon before" — Meaning and scope — Held, is a relative term which is required to be considered under specific circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down by fixing any time-limit — It is pregnant with the idea of proximity test and is not synonymous with the term "immediately before" — Further held, determination of the period which can come within the term "soon before" is left to be determined by the courts, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case — However, it normally implies that the interval should not be much between the cruelty or harassment concerned and the death in question — There must be existence of a proximate and live link — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B and S. 114 Ill. (a) (Para 10). Kailash v. State of M.P., (2006) 12 SCC 667: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 359: AIR 2007 SC 107: (2006) 47 AIC 823 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-2006]

Hira Lal v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016, relied on

[7945] — S. 304-B — "Soon before her death" — Expression indicates that there must be a perceptible nexus between the infliction of dowry-related harassment and cruelty on the woman and death — Court has to decide in the facts and circumstances of the case whether or not the interval between the infliction of dowry-related harassment or cruelty and the death is wide enough to snap the nexus

The victim, PW 5 in her evidence said that 4 or 5 months after her marriage, she was ill-treated on the ground of insufficiency of dowry and then she reported the matter to her father. But she did not say anything about any other ill-treatment relating to dowry thereafter. It was not testified that Rs 20,000 paid by PW 6 to A-1 was part of dowry or in connection with the marriage. During the long interval of 3 years PW 5 gave birth to two sons. The payment of Rs 20,000 was made five months after the birth of the second son. Even PW 6 had no case that his daughter was subjected to any ill-treatment in connection with the demand for dowry on any day after she reported to him about the demand for further dowry way back in the early 1993 months. All amounts paid by the in-laws of the husband of a woman cannot become dowry. It is not possible to accept the contention that payment of the said sum should be presumed as part of the three-year-old demand for further dowry. When the very participants in the deliberations have no such case it is not proper for the court to make an incriminating presumption against the accused on a very crucial ingredient of the offence, more so when it is quite possible to draw a presumption the other way round as well. There is dearth of evidence to show that PW 5 was subjected to cruelty or harassment connected with the demand for dowry, soon before the attempt to commit suicide. When the position is such, it is an unnecessary exercise to consider whether Section 116 IPC can ever be linked with the offence under Section 304-B IPC. (Paras 23 to 25)

It is not enough that harassment or cruelty was caused to the woman with a demand for dowry at some time, if Section 304-B is to be invoked. But it should have happened "soon before her death". The said phrase, no doubt, is an elastic expression and can refer to a period either immediately before her death or within a few days or even a few weeks before it. But the proximity to her death is the pivot indicated by that expression. The legislative object in providing such a radius of time by employing the words "soon before her death" is to emphasise the idea that her death should, in all probabilities, have been the aftermath of such cruelty or harassment. In other words, there should be a perceptible nexus between her death and the dowry-related harassment or cruelty inflicted on her. If the interval elapsed between the infliction of such harassment or cruelty and her death is wide the court would be in a position to gauge that in all probabilities the harassment or cruelty would not have been the immediate cause of her death. It is hence for the court to decide, on the facts and circumstances of each case, whether the said interval in that particular case was sufficient to snuff its cord from the concept "soon before her death". (Para 22). Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48: AIR 2001 SC 2828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-2001]

[7946] — S. 304-B — "Soon before her death" — Construction of — Held, these words are to be understood in a relative and flexible sense — They cannot be construed as laying down a rigid period of time to be mechanically applied in each case — Whether or not the cruelty or harassment meted out to the victim for or in connection with the demand of dowry was soon before her death and the proximate cause of her death was under abnormal circumstances, held, would depend upon the facts of each case — There can be no fixed period of time in this regard — On facts held, unrelenting demand for dowry, and persistent cruelty and harassment meted out to deceased in connection with said demand had been clearly established — Her reluctance to go to her matrimonial house was the direct and positive evidence of her being subjected to harassment — There was nothing on record to show that after she had gone to her matrimonial home in July 1998, and till her death on 6-9-1998 i.e. merely two months later, situation had radically changed — Hence, held, it was established that in connection with demand for dowry deceased was subjected to cruelty which was the proximate cause of her homicidal death — Appellants rightly convicted under S. 304-B — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A (Paras 17 to 20). Deen Dayal v. State of U.P., (2009) 11 SCC 157: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1278: AIR 2009 SC 1238: (2009) 74 AIC 60 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 1119: (2009) 1 ECrN 838 (SC): (2009) 2 All LJ 169.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: L.S. Panta and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-2009]

[7947] — S. 304-B — "Soon before her death" whether deceased was subjected to cruelty and harassment for or in connection with demand for dowry — Proximity test has to be applied keeping in view facts and circumstances of each case to determine what would amount to "soon before" the occurrence — Gap of three months between last demand for dowry made to deceased woman's father and death of deceased — Whether proximity test satisfied — Deceased's marriage took place three years prior to her death — Demand for a car in dowry persistently made by deceased's husband and her mother-in-law (accused persons) since after six months of marriage and conveyed to her parents from time to time — Deceased being subjected to maltreatment, torture, cruelty and harassment by her husband and mother-in-law (accused persons) on non-fulfilment of the demand — Three months before her death, on receipt of a message from her, when her father along with a relative went to her marital home, accused humiliated them and turned them out with command not to enter their house again without meeting the dowry demand — Deceased's father had then no alternative but to wait and watch improvement in the situation — Deceased died due to strangulation and burns three months thereafter — On facts held, cruelty and harassment were meted out to deceased "soon before her death" (Paras 28 to 30). Satya Narayan Tiwari v. State of U.P., (2010) 13 SCC 689.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-2010]

Kunhiabdulla v. State of Kerala, (2004) 4 SCC 13: 2004 SCC (Cri) 907, relied on

Balwant v. State of Punjab, (2004) 7 SCC 724: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2057, distinguished

(6)(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation (contd.)

[7948] — S. 304-B — Words "soon before her death" in S. 304-B IPC — Meaning of, clarified

The words "soon before her death" do not necessarily mean immediately before her death. This phrase is an elastic expression and can refer to a period either immediately before the death of the deceased or within a few days or few weeks before death. In other words, there should be a perceptible nexus between the death of the deceased and the dowry related harassment or cruelty inflicted on her. (Para 18). Raja Lal Singh v. State of Jharkhand, (2007) 15 SCC 415.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-2007]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48, relied on

[7949] — S. 304-B — Words "soon before" occurring in — Construction of — Held, no straitjacket formula can be said down to determine what would constitute "soon before" in the said context — It has to be decided on the facts and circumstances of the case — Where (i) the deceased was persistently subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband and in-laws in connection with demand for gold ornaments, and (ii) the last demand was made only fifteen days prior to the occurrence, held, it was proved that soon before her death the deceased was subjected to cruelty and harassment

It is neither possible nor desirable to lay down any straitjacket formula to determine what would constitute "soon before" in the context of Section 304-B IPC. It all depends on the facts and circumstances of the case. (Para 16)

There was a persistent demand for gold ornaments ever since the marriage of the deceased with K. There is nothing to show that the demand had been given up or had been satisfied by the parents of the deceased. On the contrary, there is evidence to prove that even 15 days before the occurrence such a demand was reiterated and while leaving for her matrimonial home the deceased had wept and told her uncle that if the demand was not met, they will not let her live. In these circumstances, it cannot be said that there is no evidence on record to support the finding that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty and harassment by the appellants (in-laws of the deceased) and her husband in connection with demand of dowry. (Paras 8 and 18). Yashoda v. State of M.P., (2004) 3 SCC 98: 2004 SCC (Cri) 671.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-2004]

Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, applied

Sham Lal v. State of Haryana, (1997) 9 SCC 759: 1997 SCC (Cri) 759: AIR 1997 SC 1873, distinguished on facts

[7950] — S. 304-B — S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Dowry death — Ingredients — Expression "soon before her death" — Held, is to be decided by the court after analysing facts and circumstances leading to death of victim whether there is any proximate connection between the demand of dowry, the act of cruelty or harassment and the death — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 11 and 13). State of Rajasthan v. Jaggu Ram, (2008) 12 SCC 51: AIR 2008 SC 982: (2008) 63 AIC 183 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 1039.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and G.S. Singhvi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2008]

State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306; Arun Garg v. State of Punjab, (2004) 8 SCC 251: 2005 SCC (Cri) 338; Kaliyaperumal v. State of T.N., (2004) 9 SCC 157: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1417; Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511; Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 166, relied on

[7951] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Evidence Act, 1872 — S. 113-B — Dowry death — "Soon before her death" — Meaning — Proximate or live link must be shown to exist between the course of conduct relating to cruelty or harassment in connection with dowry demand and consequential death — Mere lapse of time by itself would not provide the accused a defence that cruelty or harassment was not "soon before her death"

The deceased was married to accused R (Respondent 2) on 9-7-1985. On 23-10-1988 when her brother PW 5 had visited her in-laws' house to deliver some customary presents to her on the occasion of Karva Chauth, he found her dead body lying in the entrance room and the respondents were making preparations for her cremation. Noticing ligature marks on the neck of the deceased, PW 5 telephonically informed his parents about the death and himself went to the police station to lodge a report. On the basis of the statement of PW 5 a case under Section 306 IPC was registered against the respondents. On post-mortem it was found that the deceased had injuries on her person including a ligature mark, 20 cm x 2 cm on the front, right and left side of neck, reddish-brown in colour starting from left side of the neck, 2 cm below the left angle of the jaw passing just above the thyroid cartilage and going up to a point 2 cm below the right angle of the jaw. After investigation, the prosecution presented the charge-sheet against the husband R, mother-in-law, brother-in-law and sister-in-law of the deceased. The appellant, the father of the deceased, filed a separate complaint under Sections 302 and 304-B of the Indian Penal Code against all the respondents. The criminal case filed by the appellant was also committed to the Sessions Court and both the appellant's complaint and the police case were heard and decided together by the Additional Sessions Judge.

PW 5 deposed that R had raised a demand of Rs 15,000 for a scooter and a refrigerator immediately after the marriage which was fulfilled by giving him a sum of Rs 20,000. His demand of a colour TV was also fulfilled. The continuous harassment connected with the demand of dowry was shown to be in existence till 21-9-1988 when the deceased was reported to have come to her brother's house and met her parents. Thereafter she was not shown to have met anyone and no intervening circumstances showing the resolution or settlement regarding demands of dowry were brought on record. The deceased's father, PW 6 stated that a colour TV, clothes and jewellery were given to the accused husband as dowry. He deposed that his daughter had told him that the accused wanted her to bring further cash amount. The deceased, on persistent demands of the accused, had withdrawn the total sum of Rs 26,000 from the account which was opened by the father in her name. He was also given a new colour TV in lieu of the TV set given to him at the time of marriage as the same had allegedly gone out of order. PW 6 also deposed that the deceased had told him that she was being taunted by her mother-in-law, brother-in-law and sister-in-law (Respondents 3 to 5) besides her husband. However, details of the alleged taunting had not been spelt out. The only thing stated was that the accused used to tell the deceased that she being the daughter of a BJP leader, who used to boast about his financial position had brought inadequate dowry.

The trial court convicted the respondents under Section 304-B IPC and sentenced each of them to undergo 10 years' rigorous imprisonment. He also found them guilty for the commission of offence under Section 306 and sentenced them to undergo rigorous imprisonment for 7 years besides paying a fine of Rs 250 each. The respondents were also found guilty for the commission of offence punishable under Section 498-A IPC and were sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years and to pay a fine of Rs 250 each. All these sentences were to run concurrently.

The respondents filed an appeal against the trial court's judgment of conviction and sentence, while the appellant, father of the deceased, filed a revision against the said judgment praying for enhancement of the sentence to imprisonment for life on proof of the charge under Section 304-B IPC. Both the appeals and the revision were heard together by a Single Judge of the High Court who acquitted the respondents of all the charges. The revision petition filed by the father of the deceased was dismissed holding that the same had no merits. It was contended on behalf of the respondents that there being no direct evidence regarding the cause of the death or circumstances leading to death, particularly in the absence of demand of dowry soon before the death, none of the respondents could be held guilty for the offences with which they were charged, convicted and sentenced by the trial court. It was submitted that the statements made by the deceased before her death were not admissible in evidence even under Section 32(1) of the Evidence Act and in the absence of demand of dowry immediately before the alleged occurrence no inference or presumption could be drawn against the respondents. Partly allowing the present appeals,

Held :

It is not possible to accept the submission that the statement of the deceased in the context of the accused husband of the deceased could not be termed to be cruelty or harassment by the husband soon before her death under Section 304-B IPC. "Soon before" is a relative term which is required to be considered under specific circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down by fixing any time-limit. This expression is pregnant with the idea of proximity test. The term "soon before" is not synonymous with the term "immediately before" and is opposite of the expression "soon after" as used and understood in Section 114, Illustration (a) of the Evidence Act. These words would imply that the interval should not be too long between the time of making the statement and the death. It contemplates the reasonable time which, as earlier noticed, has to be understood and determined under the peculiar circumstances of each case. In relation to dowry deaths, the circumstances showing the existence of cruelty or harassment to the deceased are not restricted to a particular instance but normally refer to a course of conduct. Such conduct may be spread over a period of time. If the cruelty or harassment or demand for dowry is shown to have persisted, it shall be deemed to be "soon before death" if any other intervening circumstance showing the non-existence of such treatment is not brought on record, before such alleged treatment and the date of death. It does not, however, mean that such time can be stretched to any period. Proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the consequential death is required to be proved by the prosecution. The demand of dowry, cruelty or harassment based upon such demand and the date of death should not be too remote in time which, under the circumstances, be treated as having become stale enough. (Para 15)

(6)(vii) "Soon before her death" — Proximity of causation (contd.)

There is reliable evidence on record to connect the deceased's husband with the commission of the crime. There is evidence showing that immediately after his marriage with the deceased the respondent husband started harassing her for the demand of dowry. The prosecution has proved the persistent demand of dowry and continuous cruelty and harassment of the deceased by her husband. The contradictions in the statements of PWs 5 and 6 are no major contradictions which could be made the basis of impeaching the credibility of the witnesses. The High Court appears to have adopted a casual approach in dealing with a specified heinous crime considered to be a social crime. Relying upon minor discrepancies and some omissions, the Court has wrongly acquitted the accused husband. The charges framed against Respondent 2 had been proved by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt and there was no justification for interfering with the conviction recorded and sentence passed against him by the trial court. (Paras 6, 17 and 21)

However, Respondents 3 to 5 cannot be alleged to be involved in the commission of the crime and were rightly acquitted by the High Court. There is no evidence produced by the appellant worth the name against the aforesaid respondents. (Para 5)

Under the circumstances the present appeals are partly allowed by setting aside the judgment of the High Court insofar as it relates to Respondent 2, R the husband of the deceased and confirmed so far as it relates to other accused persons. The judgment of the trial court regarding conviction of R under Section 304-B is upheld but the sentence is reduced to seven years' rigorous imprisonment. His conviction under Section 306 is also upheld but his sentence is reduced to five years besides paying the fine as imposed by the trial court. In default of payment of fine Respondent 2 shall suffer rigorous imprisonment for one month more. Confirming his conviction under Section 498-A IPC, Respondent 2 is sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for two years and to pay a fine of Rs 250, in default of payment of fine he will further undergo rigorous imprisonment for one month. All the sentences are directed to run concurrently. (Para 22). Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935: AIR 2000 SC 2324: 2000 Cri LJ 2993.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik, R.P. Sethi and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2000]

[7952] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A and Ss. 113-A and 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Term "soon before her death" occurring in S. 304-B — Connotation of — Proximity test — Conviction reversed — Held, said term is a flexible term and its application would depend upon factual matrix obtaining in each case — No fixed period can be indicated therefor — However, it must satisfy proximity test i.e. prosecution must establish that dowry demand was not too late or stale before death of victim — Held, some harassment meted out to deceased one year prior to her death without something more cannot be considered to be cruelty inflicted soon before her death — It does not satisfy proximity test — Further, as death did not take place within seven years of marriage, no presumption could be raised under S. 113-A or S. 113-B, Evidence Act, nor could it be concluded that appellant was guilty under S. 304-B — Hence, conviction under S. 304-B set aside — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-A and 113-B (Paras 23 to 35). Suresh Kumar Singh v. State of U.P, (2009) 17 SCC 243: (2009) 3 ECrN 451 (SC): (2009) 4 All LJ 662.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 309; Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511; Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 116, considered and followed

Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417; Baldev Singh v. State of Punjab, (2008) 13 SCC 233; Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2007) 14 SCC 176: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 785; State of Rajasthan v. Jaggu Ram, (2008) 12 SCC 51: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 317, relied on [7953] — Ss. 304-B & 498-A and 201 — Dowry death — Harassment with demand for dowry "soon before her death" — Some of the witnesses stating that soon after marriage of the deceased, the appellants (father-in-law and mother-in-law of deceased) asked for more dowry but none of the witnesses stated that "soon before the death" of the deceased, appellants did anything so as to bring them within the sweep of Ss. 304-B & 498-A — Hence their conviction thereunder, held, cannot be sustained — As S. 201 cannot be separated from the substantive offences, it is an idle exercise to consider whether conviction under S. 201 can independently be fastened with the appellants. Mungeshwar Prasad Chaurasia v. State of Bihar, (2002) 10 SCC 163: 2004 SCC (Cri) 456: AIR 2002 SC 2531: 2002 Cri LJ 3505.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-9-2001]

(viii) Husband or any relative of husband — Who are and their culpability

See also under S. 306 and S. 498-A, below

[7954] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — No evidence of cruelty or harassment by mother-in-law to deceased — Only evidence against mother-in-law was that deceased's father had paid money by way of dowry to deceased's husband in presence of her mother-in-law — Held, there is no material to prove the charge against the mother-in-law — Mere fact that she happens to be mother-in-law is no ground to convict her on mere suspicion (Para 6). Balwant Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 7 SCC 724: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2057.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-8-2004]

[7955] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Proximity of the cause — Appreciation of — Conviction of two sisters-in-law of deceased — Propriety — High Court confirming conviction of appellants and husband of deceased B — But, acquitting father-in-law and mother-in-law of B as their names not mentioned in FIR — General allegations without particulars of time and date regarding the alleged harassment meted out by appellants — Specific allegations made only against husband and his father — Appellants not parties to demand for buffalo and Rs 25,000 which appeared to be the proximate cause of B committing suicide — If at all the prosecution case against the appellants was to be accepted it would only show that soon after the marriage i.e. about 2½ years prior to the death of B*, there was some alleged harassment for lack of dowry — Hence, allegations not proximate to the death of* B — Improvement in evidence of PW 7 — No ground to differentiate the case of appellants from that of their mother who was acquitted on same set of evidence — Held, courts below erred in convicting the appellants — Appeal allowed (Paras 6 to 10). Surinder Kaur v. State of Haryana, (2004) 4 SCC 109: 2004 SCC (Cri) 926: AIR 2004 SC 1747: 2004 Cri LJ 1765: (2004) 16 AIC 872 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-2-2004]

[7956] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Unnatural death of married woman in her husband's house within seven years of her marriage — Ill-treatment and harassment by the husband for not bringing sufficient dowry established — Medical evidence showing that the deceased died due to asphyxia as a result of smothering which is an unnatural death — No explanation offered by the husband as to how the deceased sustained several abrasions and contusions on her body — Held, in the circumstances, presumption of dowry death can be raised against the husband — High Court justified in reversing his acquittal — However, mother of the husband who resided separately, did not stand to gain from the demand of additional dowry and whose presence in the house at the time of the incident not established entitled to benefit of doubt — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B. Prem Singh v. State of Haryana, (1998) 8 SCC 70: AIR 1998 SC 2628.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-8-1998]

[7957] — S. 304-B and S. 201 — Dowry death — Acquittal of husband — Effect on culpability of other accused (relatives of husband) — High Court acquitting respondent-accused (father-in-law of deceased) on ground that husband of deceased had been acquitted by trial court by accepting the defence version that (husband) was not present at the time when deceased suffered injuries on her head — State not preferring any appeal thereagainst — Held, that by itself did not justify a conclusion that the prosecution had failed to prove the charge against the remaining accused (Para 21). State of Rajasthan v. Jaggu Ram, (2008) 12 SCC 51: AIR 2008 SC 982: (2008) 63 AIC 183 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 1039.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and G.S. Singhvi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2008]

Ram Gulam Chaudhary v. State of Bihar, (2001) 8 SCC 311: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1546; Trimukh Maroti Kirkan v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 80; State of Punjab v. Karnail Singh, (2003) 11 SCC 271: 2004 SCC (Cri) 135; State of Rajasthan v. Kashi Ram, (2006) 12 SCC 254: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 688; Raj Kumar Prasad Tamarkar v. State of Bihar, (2007) 10 SCC 433: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 716, relied on

[7958] — Ss. 304-B, 302 and 498-A — Dowry death/Bride burning — Conviction of other family members — Held, such offences, like the one involved herein (murder of deceased in the house of her in-laws), should not escape unpunished, but it is equally desirable in social interest that other members of the husband's family are not made to suffer punishment merely because of their relationship — Direct evidence is scarcely available in such cases — Hence, circumstantial evidence, which is to be relied upon for basing conviction in these cases, must be of required standard

In a sound criminal justice system, such offences against women should not escape unpunished but it is equally desirable in social interest that the other members of the family are not made to suffer punishment merely because of their relation with the accused. It is the duty of the courts to see that the penal provisions intended to curb such crimes by bringing the offenders to book do not cause injustice to innocent people. (Para 20). Vithal Tukaram More v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 7 SCC 20: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1555: AIR 2002 SC 2715.

(6)(viii) Husband or any relative of husband — Who are and their culpability (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and D.M. Dharmadhikari, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-7-2002]

[7959] — Ss. 304-B, 306 and 498-A r/w S. 34 — Dowry death — Where accusations of demand by dowry and cruelty are made against in-laws or other relatives, held, overt acts attributed to such persons are required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt — Suicide by wife (G) due to her ill-treatment for non-payment of dowry — Conviction of appellants (father-in-law and mother-in-law of G) — Propriety of — Except the vague evidence of the father of G and the person settling the marriage of G, no evidence to show that the appellants demanded dowry or that they ill-treated their daughter-in-law — Held, their conviction not proper (Para 4). Sakharam v. State of Maharashtra, (2003) 12 SCC 368.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.B. Shah and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-7-2002]

Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, relied on

[7960] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Close relations of husband cannot be roped in automatically — Definite overt acts to be shown

For the fault of the husband, the in-laws or the other relations cannot, in all cases, be held to be involved in the demand of dowry. In cases where such accusations are made, the overt acts attributed to persons other than the husband are required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt. By mere conjectures and implications such relations cannot be held guilty for the offence relating to dowry deaths. A tendency has, however, developed for roping in all relations of the in-laws of the deceased wives in the matters of dowry deaths which, if not discouraged, is likely to affect the case of the prosecution even against the real culprits. In their overenthusiasm and anxiety to seek conviction for maximum people, the parents of the deceased have been found to be making efforts for involving other relations which ultimately weaken the case of the prosecution even against the real accused as appears to have happened in the instant case. (Para 5). Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935: AIR 2000 SC 2324: 2000 Cri LJ 2993.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik, R.P. Sethi and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2000]

[7961] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — "Harassed" and "tortured" — Proof — Nature of — Need to describe exact conduct which amounted to harassment and torture — False implication of relatives of husband — Held, PW who merely uses word "harassed" or "tortured" and does not describe exact conduct of accused which, according to him, amounted to harassment or torture may not be believed by court in cases under Ss. 498-A and 304-B — Evidence of PWs merely showing that accused J and G (brother and mother respectively of appellant) had a role in demand of dowry — But demand of dowry by itself is not an offence under S. 498-A or S. 304-B — It is the act of cruelty or harassment by husband or relative of husband on the woman that is punishable and which must be established for court to presume that accused has caused dowry death — PWs in instant case failed to describe exact conduct of mother-in-law and other in-laws on account of which deceased felt tortured and taunted — On the other hand they had clearly stated that appellant husband of deceased used to taunt her that she had come from a "hungry house", and thus, there was evidence as to exact conduct which caused harassment to deceased — Hence, finding of High Court that charges against J and G had not been established beyond reasonable doubt and that their case was distinguishable from that of appellant and that J and G appear to have been implicated because they were members of appellant's family, calls for no interference (Paras 29 to 33). Amar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (2010) 9 SCC 64: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1130: AIR 2010 SC 3391: (2010) 94 AIC 137 (SC): (2010) 3 UPLJ 125 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Lodha and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-8-2010]

Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, followed

[7962] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Suicide by wife within nine months of marriage — Conviction of husband (A-3), brother-in-law (A-1) and mother-in-law (A-2) — Acquittal by High Court — Propriety — Evidence of PWs about demand made by A-1 and A-2, held, clear, cogent and credible — Evidence indicating that demand was made soon before the death — Thus acquittal of A-1, held, liable to be set aside — Since A-2 expired during appeal before High Court, her appeal abated — No evidence about demand of dowry by husband — Inference regarding his tacit approval for demand, held, could not be drawn — His acquittal upheld (Paras 13 and 14). State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306: AIR 2004 SC 1933: 2004 Cri LJ 1791.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-2004]

[7963] — Ss. 304-B/34 — Dowry death — On facts, husband, brother-in-law, P and sister-in-law, S of the deceased, convicted under — Sustainability — As regards Criminal Appeal No. 514 of 2006 of P and S*, held, there was no evidence to show that* P and S had any hand in the incident which led to victim's death — Benefit of doubt has to be given to them, as they were living on the ground floor of the building in question, whereas, admittedly, deceased was found dead due to hanging on the first floor in the room of her husband — Hence, Criminal Appeal No. 514 of 2006, is allowed — However, regarding Criminal Appeal No. 513 of 2006 of the appellant husband, held, he used to live with the deceased wife on the first floor of the building in question, hence, it was for him to explain how she met with her death — She was found hanging by a sari with a ceiling fan in the very room where she used to live with her husband R who, however, did not enter into the witness box to depose in this connection — Therefore, Criminal Appeal No. 513 of 2006, is dismissed

No doubt, some of the witnesses e.g. PW 5 and PW 3 (father and brother of the deceased, respectively), have stated that the deceased had told them that dowry was demanded by not only her husband, but also the appellants P and his wife S(brother-in-law and sister-in-law of the deceased, respectively), but it is possible that the names of *P*and S have been introduced only to spread the net wide, as often happens in cases like that under Sections 498-A and 394 IPC, as has been observed in several decisions of the Supreme Court. (Paras 12 to 15). Raja Lal Singh v. State of Jharkhand, (2007) 15 SCC 415.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-2007]

Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511, relied on [7964] — Ss. 304-B/34 — Dowry death — Trial court holding that the deceased-wife met with suicidal death due to dowry demand by husband, father-in-law and mother-in-law, convicting them under Ss. 304-B/34, IPC and sentencing them to 7 years' RI each — High Court confirming order — Held, every witness had said that the family members of the husband had been making demands of dowry — Evidence was also clear that there were frequent quarrels, but only between husband and wife — Thus the allegation against the parents (appellants herein) were general in nature — In the absence of clear and pointed evidence it would be unsafe to maintain the conviction of the appellants on the vague allegations that the demand of dowry was made by the husband's family members — In this view of the matter, the appellants were entitled to be acquitted — Conviction and sentence on husband, however, maintained but under S. 304-B, IPC, simpliciter without the aid of S. 34, IPC. Salamat Ali v. State of Bihar, 1997 SCC (Cri) 842: AIR 1995 SC 1863.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-4-1995]

(7) Trial, Proof and Other issues

See generally under CRIMINAL TRIAL in Vols. 18, 19 and 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or Vol. 3 of SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

Synopsis

(i) Acquittal justified 181
(ii) Appeal/Revision 185
(iii) Appreciation of evidence 187
(iv) Bail 187
(v) Cause of death — Suicide or homicide 189
(vi) Circumstantial evidence 191
(vii) Conviction justified 194
(viii) Dying declaration 199
(ix) Other issues relating to proof 205
(x) Witnesses 206

(i) Acquittal justified

[7965] — S. 304-B — Bride burning — Not proved on facts — Prosecution case that the accused forcibly dragged the deceased inside the house, threatened her to kill, poured kerosene on her body and set her on fire — Large number of persons present in front of the house but nobody heard any scream or shout for help — Conduct of the deceased in silently coming out from the room and requesting the witness to bring curd for being applied on her body not conforming to the prosecution version — Medical opinion that such burning was possible if somebody would commit suicide — Absence of burn injury on palms of the deceased indicating that she had committed suicide — Presence of deceased's mother at the time of recording of dying declaration and her conduct in being a party to a fabricated dying declaration recorded by the police constable rendering the dying declaration unreliable — Held, in the circumstances of the case, reversal of acquittal by the High Court not justified — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32 (Para 8). Pavankumar Parasnath Trivari v. State of Gujarat, 1999 SCC (Cri) 352.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.B. Pattanaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1996]

(7)(i) Acquittal justified (contd.)

[7966] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Appreciation of evidence — Acquittal upheld — Dead body recovered from inside a well — Prosecution case that the same had been thrown therein after causing death by assaulting with lathi — Statement of two brothers of the deceased recorded in inquest report that the deceased had died by falling into the well due to loss of balance and there being no ill will between the parties — Statements of parents of the deceased about demand of dowry found unreliable — Defence version that the injuries found on the person of the deceased could be caused during fall in the well fitted with pegs to support the pipe for drawing the water admitted by the autopsy surgeon in his cross-examination — Acquittal upheld. State of Haryana v. Rajinder Singh, (1996) 8 SCC 77: 1996 SCC (Cri) 534: AIR 1996 SC 2978.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-2-1996]

[7967] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Conviction reversed — In the present case, dying declaration of deceased recorded by the Executive Magistrate not inculpating accused not impeached by the prosecution — Prosecution placed great reliance on letters written by the deceased to her relatives — Handwriting expert's report clearly showing that the said letters were not in the handwriting of deceased — Held, prosecution failed to establish the accusations against the appellant — Hence, conviction of appellant set aside

K who was the daughter of O (PW 2) and was married to the present appellant on 19-4-1988 had received severe burns in an accident which took place on 21-9-1991 in the matrimonial home at Ambala City. The deceased was taken to Civil Hospital, Ambala after the incident from where a ruqa was received by the police on the basis of which DDR was recorded. The police tried to record the statement of the deceased, but she was found to be not totally fit. As her condition was critical she was removed to PGI Hospital for treatment. On 22-2-1991 a dying declaration was recorded by the Executive Magistrate. The police on the basis of the dying declaration prepared a cancellation report. However, on the basis of the grievance made by O (PW 2) a first information report was registered on 17-10-1991. After completion of the investigation, charge-sheet was filed and since the accused persons pleaded innocence, trial was held. The appellants were convicted and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for various terms and fine for the alleged commission of offences punishable under Sections 304-B and 498-A of the Penal Code, 1860. While the appeal filed by the appellant was dismissed, the appeal filed by the co-accused persons was allowed by the High Court.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

It is true as contended by the State that shoddy investigation cannot be a foundation for the accused persons to take advantage of the shoddiness. But in the instant case, there was no material brought on record by the prosecution to establish the accusations so far as the present appellant is concerned. It is to be noted that there was a dying declaration recorded by the Executive Magistrate who was present at PGI Hospital. The authenticity of the dying declaration has not been questioned. It is the stand of the prosecution that a police officer should have recorded it. But that cannot be a ground to discard the dying declaration recorded by the Executive Magistrate. Additionally, the prosecution laid great emphasis on the letters purported to have been written by the deceased to her relatives. Here again, the handwriting expert's report clearly shows that the letters were not in the handwriting of the deceased. Above being the position, there is no evidence brought on record by the prosecution to establish the accusations. That being so, the appeal deserves to be allowed and the conviction of the appellant is set aside. (Paras 13, 14 and 15). Rakesh Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2009) 11 SCC 81: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1243: 2009 Cri LJ 1895: (2009) 76 AIC 99 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-3-2009]

[7968] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Acquittal justified — Prosecution case of demand of dowry and harassment by deceased's father-in-law and husband based solely on the testimony of deceased's father since deceased's brother and uncle not supporting the same and being declared hostile — Trial court convicting the accused relying upon the sole testimony of deceased's father — But High Court on reappreciation of evidence taking the view that conviction could not be based on the sole testimony of deceased's father as the same stood contradicted in material particulars as deposed by him before investigating officer and thereafter in court and accordingly acquitting the accused — Held, High Court was not wrong taking that view — When two views are possible, one favourable to the accused was to be accepted. State of Haryana v. Inder Singh, (2002) 9 SCC 537.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.P. Sethi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-1-2002]

[7969] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Bride burning — Acquittal justified — Husband and mother-in-law alleged to have poured kerosene and set deceased on fire — Defence plea of accidental death — Letter of victim making no mention of dowry demand — Conviction of appellant (deceased victim's husband) based on unestablished accusations and unreasoned order, set aside — Further, High Court did not notice that there were lots of exaggerations and statements not made during investigation were made in court — Held, High Court's judgment was sketchy and devoid of reasons — Also, prosecution squarely failed to establish accusations against appellant — Hence, appellant's conviction set aside — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

It is of some significance to note that in the history sheet of the hospital, where the deceased victim was treated, it was categorically stated that while the deceased tried to ignite a gas stove the deceased suddenly caught fire. The trial court was of the view that there was no evidence to show as to who recorded the statement. It discarded the evidence of Dr. R (PW 11) on the ground that the history sheet did not make it clear that in whose presence the history sheet was prepared as it did not bear the signature of any doctor and handwriting. It was observed that the evidence of PW 11 did not make it clear as to who wrote the history sheet. It was also observed that there was no reason indicated as to how PW 11 was conversant with the handwriting of Dr. B who purportedly recorded the statement. The High Court did not even refer to this aspect but in a cryptic manner upheld the conclusions of the trial court. (Para 12)

It is of significance that Dr. Ba (PW 1) in the cross-examination had categorically stated that the history sheet of the patient was written by Dr. B. He also stated that the treatment was prescribed by him. It was entered in the bed head ticket made by Dr. B, who was on duty on that day. He also stated that though the patient was in shock but she was not unconscious. He stated that he identified the signatures of Dr. B and handwriting in the bed head ticket. (Para 13)

In the FIR, reference was made to a letter purportedly written by the deceased. This letter was marked as an exhibit. A bare reading of the letter clearly showed that there was not even a whisper about the demand of dowry but the deceased had categorically stated that she had asked for the money and the articles on her own. The trial court erroneously held that in the letter there was reference to demand of dowry. Strangely, the High Court held that even though the letter was inconsequential but the evidence of the relatives about the harassment for dowry cannot be brushed aside. (Para 14)

As rightly submitted by the appellant, there were improvements in the statements recorded in court. The witnesses PWs 6 and 7 (father and mother of the deceased, respectively) introduced certain aspects for the first time. Significant statement in this regard is that of PW 6. In court he stated that the deceased told him in the hospital that kerosene oil was poured on her by the accused. He accepted during his examination that no such allegation was made in his statement recorded in terms of Section 161 CrPC. Similarly, PW 7, in court, stated that the deceased informed her about the demand of Rs 1,00,000 by her in-laws and about her giving Rs 20,000. This was not stated during investigation under Section 161 CrPC. In court, PW 7 stated that the deceased was beaten and mistreated and no such statement was made during investigation. Additionally, no such allegation was made by PW 8, the complainant, about this aspect in the FIR. (Para 15)

In the statement in court, PW 7 stated that the deceased had told her that A-1 and A-2 caught hold of her and A-1 poured oil over her body and set her on fire by throwing a matchstick. No such statement was made during investigation. Similarly, that is not also the version of PW 6. In court PW 7 stated that all the accused persons i.e. appellant and the acquitted accused persons maltreated the deceased. No such allegation was made while the witness was examined under Section 161 CrPC. (Para 16)

The High Court's judgment is not only sketchy but also devoid of reasons. Various factors highlighted above would go to show that the prosecution has squarely failed to establish the accusations so far as the appellant is concerned. Therefore, the appellant is to be set at liberty forthwith. (Paras 21 and 22). Raman Kumar v. State of Punjab, (2009) 16 SCC 35: (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 131: 2009 Cri LJ 3034.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-2009]

Hazarilal v. State of M.P., (2009) 13 SCC 783: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1247; Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417; Kaliyaperumal v. State of T.N., (2004) 9 SCC 157: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1417; Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016, relied on

[7970] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Case not proved beyond reasonable doubt — Benefit of doubt — Entitlement to — Conviction not justified — Allegations on appellant-accused (husband of deceased) and his parents (since acquitted) for administering poison to the deceased,

(7)(i) Acquittal justified (contd.)

leading to her death, on non-fulfilment of their dowry demand — Held, appellant's family more prosperous than that of deceased — No allegation of dowry demand at marriage time — Allegations regarding demand of articles (fridge and TV) and Rs 10,000, appear to be false — Appellant committing murder of deceased for such petty things, improbable — Also, no evidence to establish that such complaint ever made before occurrence, nor parents convening any Panchayat making such grievance — Evidence suggesting that appellant suspected deceased of having illicit relationship with her brother-in-law — Father of appellant twice convened Panchayats where this grievance was raised and considered by members of Panchayat, who advised deceased not to visit the house of her brother-in-law — Appellant's statement under S. 313 CrPC, that once while returning to his village, deceased insisted on going to village of her brother-in-law, which he opposed, but despite his opposition she went there and stayed for the night, which was protested by appellant after her return next morning, resulting in a quarrel between them — In all probability, deceased committed suicide in this factual background — Appellant's defence and evidence adduced, not considered by High Court — Non-consideration resulted in miscarriage of justice, particularly because conviction of appellant was sought to be sustained on the strength of presumption drawn against him by law — In such case, consideration of evidence in rebuttal becomes more significant — Defence of appellant appears probable and sufficient to rebut presumption against him — Also, a member of Panchayat deposed in appellant's favour — Such facts, cannot be ignored altogether — Moreover, no direct evidence to prove that appellant administered any poisonous substance to deceased — Hence, applying the principle that if on the basis of same evidence two views are reasonably possible, one in favour of accused should be preferred, held, appellant to be given benefit of doubt (Paras 19, 21, 22 and 24 to 26). Sanjiv Kumar v. State of Punjab, (2009) 16 SCC 487: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 330.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Singh and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-11-2006]

[7971] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Suicide by wife — Allegation of dowry death — Guilt of appellant husband — Whether established on facts — Complaint filed nearly 8 days after the incident after lots of deliberation and consultation — Statement of father of deceased D that he had no knowledge of death of D and her cremation was done without informing him and his family, held on facts, not true — Possibility that D committed suicide in a state of depression — One B who was stated to have given information to complainant party about the death of D, was an imaginary person — PW 6 speaking about harassment of D but failed to state so in his statement under S. 161 CrPC — Appellant was employed in some other town and most of the time he was away from his village (where D was living) — In view of the above and the fact that the prosecution failed to prove that the death of D occurred within seven years of her marriage, held, conviction liable to be set aside (Paras 18 to 22). Baljeet Singh v. State of Haryana, (2004) 3 SCC 122: 2004 SCC (Cri) 692: AIR 2004 SC 1714.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-2004]

[7972] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A and 306 — Conviction reversed — Benefit of doubt given — Except bald statements of victim's mother and brother alleging that victim had been subjected to cruelty and harassment prior to her death, no other evidence adduced to prove that she committed suicide on account of the same — Hence, acquitted (Paras 16, 19 and 20). Durga Prasad v. State of M.P., (2010) 9 SCC 73: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1154: 2010 Cri LJ 3419: (2010) 91 AIC 5 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and H.L. Gokhale, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-5-2010]

Biswajit Halder v. State of W.B., (2008) 1 SCC 202: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 172, followed

Anand Kumar v. State of M.P., (2009) 3 SCC 799: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 28, distinguished

[7973] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A and 306 — Dowry death — Conviction reversed — A-1 (husband of deceased) along with his parents A-2 (dead) and A-3 alleged to have harassed and maltreated the deceased over dowry demand, consequent to which she allegedly committed suicide — Evidence of PWs 1, 2 and 3 (mother, brother and maternal aunt respectively of deceased) not establishing that deceased was ever harassed or ill-treated by accused for dowry or that the accused ever demanded dowry articles from her parents before she committed suicide — On the other hand, it was the categorical evidence of PWs 1 and 2 that the accused had borne the entire marriage expenses including the kalyanamandap, food and other items — Complaints also not revealing that accused had raised any demand for dowry, either in cash or in kind at the time of marriage — Other independent PWs (owner of deceased's matrimonial house and their neighbours) not supporting prosecution version —

Moreover, High Court on the same set of evidence acquitting A-3 (mother of A-1) but convicting A-1 — Held, since evidence against A-3 was found insufficient and inconsistent to convict her, the same is the case against A-1, which is fatal to prosecution case — Further, mere evidence of cruelty and harassment is not sufficient to bring in application of S. 304-B IPC but it needs to be established that "soon before death", the deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband for, or "in connection with demand for dowry" — In the aforementioned situation, provisions of S. 304-B IPC and S. 113-B of the Evidence Act would not be attracted to hold A-1 guilty of the offence of dowry death and/or cruelty in terms of S. 498-A IPC — Judgment of High Court setting aside acquittal of A-1 unsustainable — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3, 4 and 6 (Paras 2 and 25 to 36). Narayanamurthy v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 16 SCC 512: AIR 2008 SC 2377.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016, considered and relied on

Kaliyaperumal v. State of T.N., (2004) 9 SCC 157: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1417; Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511; State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1306; Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417; Biswajit Halder v. State of W.B., (2008) 1 SCC 202: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 172, relied on

(ii) Appeal/Revision

[7974] — S. 304-B — Appeal against conviction — Improper disposal — High Court disposing of the remitted matter, again without discussing evidence in detail, in spite of specific directions of Supreme Court that High Court could not sideline the defence version and the same had to be considered to see whether presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 had been rebutted by appellant — Impugned judgment set aside and matter remitted for expeditious disposal, preferably within six months — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374 and 386 (Paras 2 to 4). Gurram Chakravarthy (2) v. State of A.P., (2008) 16 SCC 799: (2008) 72 AIC 106 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-11-2008]

[7975] — S. 304-B — High Court by impugned judgment confirming conviction of appellant under S. 304-B IPC and sentence of 7 years' imprisonment besides fine — While doing so it failing to consider evidence of four defence witnesses examined by appellant — Held, High Court cannot sideline the defence evidence which needs to be considered to ascertain whether presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act had been rebutted by the appellant — Hence, matter remitted to High Court for disposal afresh — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 1, 4 and 5). Gurram Chakravarthy (1) v. State of A.P., (2008) 16 SCC 801.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-2000]

[7976] — S. 304-B and S. 304 Pt. II — Revision — Reasoned order/speaking order necessity — High Court by impugned order dismissing appellant's revision petition without indicating any reasons therefor and without analysing his stands — It was not a case that no arguable point was involved — As a matter of fact, the relevance of the dying declaration and its effect on the prosecution case has not been considered by the High Court at all — Impugned order set aside and matter remitted to High Court for fresh expeditious disposal — In the meantime, appellant granted liberty to move High Court for bail — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3 and 4 — CrPC, 1973, S. 397 r/w S. 401 (Paras 1 and 7 to 11). Mohd. Shakeel v. State Police, (2008) 15 SCC 378: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1006: AIR 2009 SC 680: (2009) 73 AIC 196 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-2008]

[7977] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Revision — Natural justice — Complainant's right to be heard on the question of age of accused — Respondent 2, accused for commission of offences under Ss. 304-B and 306 IPC, seeking protection by claiming to be a juvenile — High Court, while exercising its revisional jurisdiction under S. 53 could not pass an order prejudicial to any person without affording him opportunity of hearing — Hence, complainant (appellant herein) should have been heard — Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, Ss. 53 proviso and 2(k)

The appellant (brother of the deceased) had lodged an FIR against Respondent 2 (accused) for commission of offences under Sections 304-B and 306 IPC, in relation to the death of the appellant's sister (accused's wife). Without any documentary or other evidence, the accused claimed himself to be a juvenile, having not attained the age of eighteen years and sought protection under Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (the Act). Since the claim of the accused was disputed, the Magistrate directed the accused to produce evidence/certificate in support of his claim, which he failed to do. Without recording any opinion whether the accused was a juvenile or not, the Magistrate referred him to the Juvenile Justice

(7)(ii) Appeal/Revision (contd.)

Board (the Board). The Board, after referring Respondent 2 (accused) to a Medical Board for examination and determination of age and taking into consideration, the documentary evidence adduced by the prosecution and observing his physical built-up, concluded that the accused was above eighteen years of age on the date of occurrence. Accordingly, the Child Rehabilitation Centre was directed to transfer the accused to the regular jail with a direction to its Superintendent to produce the accused before the Magistrate.

By the impugned order, the High Court allowed the revision petition preferred by the accused under Section 53 of the Act against the order passed by the Board. The Single Judge held that on the date of commission of the alleged offences, the accused was a "juvenile" within the meaning of the Act. For this the High Court relied on the finding of the Medical Board as guiding in terms of Rule 22(5)(iv) of the Jharkhand Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2003.

Allowing the appeal of the appellant complainant,

Held :

The High Court was clearly in error in reversing the order passed by the Board by declaring the accused (Respondent 2 herein) to be a juvenile without giving an opportunity of hearing to the appellant complainant (brother of the deceased). When the statutory provisions mandate and principles of natural justice demand a pre-decisional hearing, the High Court was not justified in not granting an opportunity of hearing to the appellant complainant. As per Section 53 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (the Act), the High Court, in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction, cannot pass an order, prejudicial to any person without affording him a reasonable opportunity of being heard. (Paras 15, 12 and 14). Babloo Pasi v. State of Jharkhand, (2008) 13 SCC 133.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-2008]

P. Sundarrajan v. R. Vidhya Sekar, (2004) 13 SCC 472: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 345, impliedly relied on [7978] — Ss. 304-B and 489-A — Reversal of acquittal — Sustainability — Held, unless judgment of trial court is perverse, appellate court would not be justified in substituting its own view and reverse judgment of acquittal — Death due to harassment for dowry — Accused acquitted since trial court did not find credibility in testimony of PW 1 (father of deceased) because for the first time before trial court, he stated about demand of dowry — PW 1 neither reported same in FIR, nor in investigation, nor before Revenue Divisional Officer's enquiry — Veracity of PW 1 disbelieved since it was not corroborated by evidence of other PWs — Suicide note not implicating any of the accused — High Court though agreed that prosecution story unbelievable, but holding demand of dowry proved and setting aside acquittal — Sustainability — To arrive at correct conclusion, held, comprehensive view of entire evidence in proper perspective is imperative — In present case, trial court minutely examined entire evidence, documents and exhibits on record — Judgment of trial court could not be said to be perverse — Conclusion arrived at by trial court is possible and plausible view — High Court ought to have considered suicide note and evidence in proper perspective — In the circumstances, held, approach of High Court not correct— CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386 (Paras 16 to 23 and 41). Arulvelu v. State, (2009) 10 SCC 206: (2009) 83 AIC 253 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-2009]

Sheo Swarup v. King Emperor, (1933-34) 61 IA 398: AIR 1934 PC 227 (2), followed

Shailendra Pratap v. State of U.P., (2003) 1 SCC 761: 2003 SCC (Cri) 432; Kuldeep Singh v. Commr. of Police, (1999) 2 SCC 10: 1999 SCC (L&S) 429; Excise and Taxation Officer-cum-Assessing Authority v. Gopi Nath & Sons, 1992 Supp (2) SCC 312, relied on [7979] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A and 306 — Revision — Power to quash charges and substitute new charge — Charges framed by trial court in relation to offences under Ss. 304-B and 498-A IPC — High Court in revision quashing the said charges and directing framing of charge under S. 306 IPC — Held, High Court was not justified in doing so — Crucial question was whether suicide of deceased was in any way connected with the demand for dowry — That matter required consideration by the Court by proper appreciation of evidence — At the stage of framing charges, the High Court should not have considered the whole evidence and then concluded that there were no materials to frame charges under Ss. 304-B and 498-A IPC — High Court's order set aside — Trial court directed to proceed on the basis of the charges framed under Ss. 304-B and 498-A IPC — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 401, 397 and 228 (Paras 3 and 4). Nemichand Jain v. Roshanlal, (2004) 13 SCC 461.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-9-2004]

[7980] — Ss. 304-B(1) and 498-A — Appeal against acquittal — Interference by High Court — If was justified — Trial court erroneously considering a particular demand for dowry in isolation from the previous ones and concluding that demand of dowry and harassment had ceased during the intervening period — Moreover, the trial court failing to notice material evidence on record — In view of such patent infirmity in judgment of trial court, setting aside of acquittal and conviction of the accused under S. 304-B IPC by High Court, upheld — CrPC, 1973, S. 378. Rajayyan v. State of Kerala, (1998) 4 SCC 85: 1998 SCC (Cri) 811: AIR 1998 SC 1211: 1998 Cri LJ 1633.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.S.M. Quadri, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1998]

(iii) Appreciation of evidence

[7981] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Ingredients of S. 304-B, reiterated — Whether, on facts, satisfied — Held, in present case, said ingredients were satisfied

Essential components of Section 304-B IPC are: (i) Death of a woman occurring otherwise than under normal circumstances within 7 years of marriage. (ii) Soon before her death she should have been subjected to cruelty and harassment in connection with any demand for dowry. In the present case, G died after about 7 months of her marriage. Also, it has come in evidence that she had been harassed for dowry 10 or 15 days before her death. This has come in the evidence of her father, PW 5 and brother, PW 3 and there is no reason to disbelieve them. She had earlier also been subjected to harassment on account of demand for dowry when she had gone to her parents' house, as has come in the evidence of PW 5. Thus, the ingredients of Section 304-B IPC are satisfied in this case. (Para 17). Raja Lal Singh v. State of Jharkhand, (2007) 15 SCC 415.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-2007]

Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; T. Aruntperunjothi v. State, (2006) 9 SCC 467: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 528, relied on [7982] — Ss. 304-B and 302 — Dowry death — Contradictory reports filed by father of deceased — First report lodged by father of the deceased stating it to be a case of suicide — Second report by him, after the receipt of post-mortem report, that his daughter had been murdered by appellant (husband of deceased) for non-fulfilment of dowry demand — Conviction of appellant under S. 304-B — Propriety — Death occurred within 7 years of marriage — Medical opinion that injuries found on the body of the deceased were ante-mortem, homicidal in nature and were not self-inflicted or accidental — PWs 5 to 7 and 9 to 11 giving evidence in respect of dowry demand — Deceased last seen with appellant in bedroom occupied by them — Deceased found dead in bathroom which was attached to the said bedroom — Even though the deceased was in bathroom for an indefinitely long time, appellant showed no concern or anxiety — On facts, held, courts below rightly relied upon the evidence of PWs 5, 6, 7, 10 and 11 to come to conclusion that there had been demands for dowry — Appellant's conviction under S. 304-B upheld (Paras 4 to 6, 8 and 14). Alamgir Sani v. State of Assam, (2002) 10 SCC 277: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1447: AIR 2003 SC 2108.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.N. Variava and B.N. Agrawal, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-12-2002]

(iv) Bail

[7983] — S. 304-B — Anticipatory bail — Considerations for grant of — Dowry death — Statement in FIR that appellants, the parents and brother of the husband, were living separately from the deceased and her husband — Factum of separate residence also supported by ration card — Held, these circumstances were relevant for grant of anticipatory bail — CrPC, 1973, S. 438. Dolat Ram v. State of Haryana, (1995) 1 SCC 349: 1995 SCC (Cri) 237: (1994) 3 Crimes 1013: (1995) 32 ACC 149: (1995) 1 Andh LT (Cri) 37.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-11-1994]

[7984] — S. 304-B — Anticipatory bail — Grant of — Propriety — Dowry related allegations — Respondents 1 to 3 filing application under S. 438 CrPC before High Court on apprehension of arrest in a complaint under investigation, on the allegation that because of the dowry demands, the victim committed suicide — Application disposed of with certain directions — Contention of the appellant informant that the parameters to be kept in view, while dealing with an application under S. 438 CrPC, were not kept in view — Further contention, that the respondents were granted bail without surrender, since the terms for release were stipulated in the order itself — On facts, held, some of the directions given by the High Court are not in accordance with what has been stated in Adri Dharan Das case, (2005) 4 SCC 303 — Accordingly, the directions need to be modified — As the respondents have already surrendered and have been granted bail in terms of the High Court's direction, they shall surrender before the court concerned and shall move for bail in terms of S. 439 CrPC which shall then be considered in its proper perspective uninfluenced by the disapproval of the Supreme Court of the stipulation of conditions by the High Court — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 4 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 438 and 439 (Paras 2 to 4 and 7). D.K. Ganesh Babu v. P.T. Manokaran, (2007) 4 SCC 434: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 345: AIR 2007 SC 1450: 2007 Cri LJ 1827: (2007) 53 AIC 266 (SC).

(7)(iv) Bail (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and R.V. Raveendran, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-2007]

Adri Dharan Das v. State of W.B., (2005) 4 SCC 303: 2005 SCC (Cri) 933, followed

[7985] — S. 304-B — Bail — Grant of — Reasoned order — Necessity of — Unnatural death of the deceased within seven years of the marriage — High Court granted bail by a practically non-reasoned order — Held, it is not understood as to how the High Court observed that the provisions of S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 were not applicable and this was not a case punishable under S. 304-B IPC — High Court's order is a bundle of confusion — Said order set aside and the matter remitted back to High Court for fresh consideration and disposal by a reasoned order — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B — CrPC, 1973, S. 439 (Para 6). Subhash Chandra Singh v. Dheemant Singh, (2009) 11 SCC 169: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1284: (2009) 77 AIC 1 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-2009]

Chaman Lal v. State of U.P., (2004) 7 SCC 525: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1974; Anwari Begum v. Sher Mohammad, (2005) 7 SCC 326: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1669, followed [7986] — S. 304-B — Refusal by High Court to grant bail pending disposal of appeal — Propriety — Held, was not proper since appellant had already served a substantial period of the sentence (i.e. about 2 years and four months out of seven years) — CrPC, 1973, S. 389 — Constitution of India, Art. 136 (Para 2). Kamal v. State of Haryana, (2004) 13 SCC 526.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-2004]

[7987] — Ss. 304-B, 406 and 498-A r/w S. 34 — Anticipatory bail — Entitlement to — Question as to — Harassment for dowry — Suicide by wife — Prosecution case that accused were demanding dowry because of which deceased was depressed and ultimately committed suicide — Accused submitting that deceased was a schizophrenic psychotic patient with cyclic depression and was under medical treatment — They producing documents to show that relationship between the wife and her husband and in-laws was cordial — One year before also an attempt to commit suicide was made by deceased — Considering the entire material available on record without expressing any opinion on the same, held, accused entitled to anticipatory bail — CrPC, 1973, S. 438 (Para 9). M.P. Lohia v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 686: 2005 SCC (Cri) 556: AIR 2005 SC 790: 2005 Cri LJ 1416.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-2005]

[7988] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Bail pending appeal — When to be granted — Appeal against conviction under Ss. 304-B and 498-A IPC — No chance of said appeal being heard in the near future — Accused already suffered sentence of 3 years and 6 months — In these circumstances, held, accused should be released on bail on his furnishing bail bond and surety to the satisfaction of the trial court — CrPC, 1973, S. 389 (Para 3). Salim Javed v. State of Rajasthan, (2006) 9 SCC 602: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 354.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Singh and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-3-2006]

[7989] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Bail pending appeal against conviction — Considerations for grant of, stated — In the present case, judgment of trial court convicting both appellants of offences punishable under Ss. 304-B and 498-A IPC upheld by High Court — Appellant 1 being the sole bread earner of family, held, no ground for releasing him on bail — Though convicted of serious offence, considering the old age of Appellant 2, that is, 80 years and that she had been in custody for more than a year, interim bail granted to her — CrPC, 1973, S. 389(1)

Cases where a serious offence had been committed and the accused had been held guilty for the said offence, then his application for grant of bail should not be decided leniently during the pendency of the appeal. The seriousness and gravity of the offence must be looked into before granting the bail. In the instant case, accused were convicted by the trial court for harassing, torturing and compelling the deceased to end her life by committing suicide, and the said conviction had been confirmed by the High Court. (Para 10)

Insofar as the first appellant is concerned, the only reason assigned for grant of bail is that he is the only bread earner of the family. In the light of decisions of the Supreme Court, this contention of the appellant does not impress to release him on bail for the alleged offence for which he had been convicted by the courts. Therefore, for the present he is not entitled to the relief sought in the application. (Para 12)

Looking at the age of Appellant 2 it does not seem fair to hold her back in jail during the pendency of appeal even if she had been convicted for the alleged serious offence, against which she has come before the Supreme Court. That Appellant 2 is an old lady of 80 years of age and she had already been in jail for more than one year, she is entitled to the relief prayed for in the application. Accordingly, interim bail to the second appellant is granted. (Paras 13 and 14). Bakshish Ram v. State of Punjab, (2009) 6 SCC 561: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 64: (2009) 78 AIC 17 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Tarun Chatterjee and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-2009]

Talab Haji Hussain v. Madhukar Purshottam Mondkar, AIR 1958 SC 376: 1958 SCR 1226; State of Maharashtra v. Anand Chintaman Dighe, (1990) 1 SCC 397: 1990 SCC (Cri) 142; Kashmira Singh v. State of Punjab, (1977) 4 SCC 291: 1977 SCC (Cri) 559, relied on

(v) Cause of death — Suicide or homicide

See also SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — 'D.25.(q) Suicide or homicide/murder' in Vol. 2

[7990] — Ss. 304-B and 201 — Causing death of wife by throttling — Conviction justified — Though in preliminary post-mortem report, doctor did not disclose the cause of death, but in final report made after receipt of FSL report, same doctor opined that cause of death was asphyxia due to throttling — Accused husband alone was in the company of his deceased wife in their house at the time of the incident — Deceased was found hanging to the ceiling fan — Attestors of inquest report expressed that deceased had not committed suicide but was throttled — Though there was no specific reference to dowry demand in the complaint made to police, but deceased's parents as also other PWs stated before court that accused harassed and threatened her on many occasions for not fulfilling his dowry demand and that accused also suspected her fidelity — Based on materials collected, investigating agency altered the offence from S. 302 to Ss. 304-B and 201 — Held, prosecution placed sufficient evidence to establish guilt of accused beyond reasonable doubt — Hence accused liable to be convicted under Ss. 304-B and 201 in view of the altered charge — However, incident having occurred more than 10 years ago and accused having undergone agony all these years, a sentence of 7 years' imprisonment would meet the ends of justice. Vanga Sriniwas v. Public Prosecutor, High Court of A.P., (2007) 10 SCC 219: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 627: (2007) 58 AIC 43 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-2007]

[7991] — Ss. 304-B and 302 — Bride burning — Burn injuries — Whether suffered accidentally or accused set the deceased on fire — State of consciousness at the time of occurrence — Deceased, who was respondent's wife, dying of burn injuries — Complainant lodging complaint on the basis of hearsay of a boy, as according to complainant, he could not talk to deceased as she was unconscious — Deceased's mother who accompanied deceased to hospital also supporting complainant's version of unconsciousness — Both complainant and mother stating that deceased regained consciousness next day — However, attending doctor testifying that deceased was conscious when brought to hospital at night and that deceased herself mentioned to the doctor that she sustained burn injuries around 9 p.m. at her residence — She was also conscious and coherent at the time when admitted to hospital at 11.45 p.m. — Magistrate recording dying declaration next day early morning at 5.40 a.m., which again pointed that deceased was conscious at that time — Both these factors belying testimony of informant and deceased's mother that she was brought unconscious to the hospital — Further held, if accused had set deceased on fire, she would have stated so in the normal course to the attending doctor — High Court therefore rightly set aside respondent's conviction under S. 302 but sustained conviction under S. 498-A

When the complainant was examined as PW 1, he accepted contents of the report and stated that the report was on the basis of the information heard, given by a boy but no enquiry was made from the deceased. He also could not talk to her. The boy who had given the information and what was the source of information was not known to him. He stated that the deceased was unconscious and regained consciousness only the next day around noon. The mother of the deceased, who accompanied the deceased to the hospital also claimed that the deceased was unconscious and regained consciousness only on the second day. As rightly noted by the High Court, this was contrary to the evidence on record. The Magistrate purportedly recorded the dying declaration of the deceased at 5.40 a.m. on 12-4-1994. That means the deceased was conscious at 5.40 a.m. and the doctor certified that she was conscious and coherent. To add to the vulnerability, Ext. P-12 was the record of the case maintained by the hospital. When the doctor examined the deceased she was conscious. The doctor noted that the deceased had stated to have sustained burns at around 9 p.m. at her residence. She was given some treatment and referred to the resident medical officer. Here again the doctor noted that the deceased alleged to have sustained burns accidentally at her residence. It was further noted that she was conscious and coherent. It is, therefore, established that she was conscious when she was admitted to the hospital at 11.45 p.m. on 11-4-1994. If the accused had poured kerosene and set her on fire she would have stated the same in normal course to the doctor. Therefore, the factors highlighted by the High Court appear to be on sound footing. That being so, the order of the High Court does not suffer from any infirmity to warrant interference. (Paras 12 to 15). State of A.P. v. Guvva Satyanarayana, (2008) 12 SCC 692.

(7)(v) Cause of death — Suicide or homicide (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-2008]

[7992] — Ss. 304-B and 302 — Bride burning — Homicidal death — Statement made before doctor — Deceased sustaining 90 per cent burn injuries — On inquiries made by doctors examining the deceased in hospital, deceased revealing that accused-appellant (deceased's husband's sister) had burnt her — Deceased had opportunity to see the appellant at the time of occurrence — Doctors deposing that deceased was in a fit state of mind and was able to speak albeit with difficulty when she spoke to them though soon thereafter her condition deteriorated and she was unable to speak — Note also made by doctor in this regard in police 'yadi' — Held, testimony of the doctors about fitness of the deceased as supported by the documentary evidence cannot be discarded merely because the deceased was severely burnt and her condition was poor at the time she spoke to the doctors — Further, in absence of strained relation of deceased with appellant, possibility of false involvement of the appellant cannot be accepted even assuming that her husband who was near her cot had prompted her to do so — Non recording of deceased's statement in question-answer form, in the circumstances of the case, would also not affect its probative value — Held, dying declaration acceptable and sufficient to found conviction of the appellant — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32. Padmaben Shamalbhai Patel v. State of Gujarat, (1991) 1 SCC 744: 1991 SCC (Cri) 275: (1991) 1 GLH 125: (1991) 1 Crimes 349.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi, V. Ramaswami and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-1991]

[7993] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Dowry death by skull fracture/burning or suicide — Determination of — Skull bones of deceased found broken in addition to burns — Inference — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction upheld — On facts, High Court reversing acquittal of appellant (mother-in-law of the deceased) by trial court, thereby convicting her in the alleged case of dowry death — Sustainability — Reiterating principles governing and regulating hearing of appeal against acquittal by High Court and ingredients necessary for attracting S. 304-B, held, from the post-mortem report and doctor's statement, fact that deceased died because of burns was very well established and at time of post-mortem of deceased, her skull bones were found broken — In case of burning, held, fracture of skull is not a necessary corollary, but herein, skull bones were broken — Therefore, fact remains that deceased was killed before death — Hence, High Court justified in holding that trial court erroneously concluded that it was a case of suicide — Further, evidence of independent witness PW 7, neighbour of the accused, rightly highlighted by High Court to show that appellant's role as alleged by the prosecution was established — Again, evidence of PWs 1 to 5 clearly showed greed of accused who persistently taunted and harassed the deceased for not bringing sufficient dowry — High Court was, therefore, justified in upsetting order of acquittal by trial court and directing appellant's conviction — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 2 and 4 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378(1) and 386(a) (Paras 14, 15 and 18). Prem Kanwar v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 3 SCC 726: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 189: AIR 2009 SC 1242: (2009) 74 AIC 52 (SC): (2009) 1 ECrN 850 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 1123.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-2009]

State of A.P. v. Raj Gopal Asawa, (2004) 4 SCC 470; Ajit Savant Majagvai v. State of Karnataka, (1997) 7 SCC 110: 1997 SCC (Cri) 992; Balbir Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 216; Ram Kumar v. State of Haryana, 1995 Supp (1) SCC 248: 1995 SCC (Cri) 355; Bharwad Jakshibhai Nagjibhai v. State of Gujarat, (1995) 5 SCC 602: 1995 SCC (Cri) 993; Hari Chand v. State of Delhi, (1996) 9 SCC 112: 1996 SCC (Cri) 950; Raghbir Singh v. State of Haryana, (2000) 9 SCC 88: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1169; Hari Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (2000) 9 SCC 136: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1178; Ashok Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, (1991) 1 SCC 166: 1991 SCC (Cri) 126, relied on [7994] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Bride burning — Doctor to whom deceased was taken for treatment deposing that soon after the deceased was admitted in hospital, she had told him that her husband had poured kerosene on her clothes and set her ablaze — Doctor making note of it in the case papers — Evidence of the doctor thus receiving support from contemporaneous documents — Held, doctor had no reason to falsely depose against the accused or to prepare false case papers — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32 (Para 2). Shripatrao v. State of Maharashtra, (2000) 10 SCC 320: 2000 SCC (Cri) 83.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-8-1999]

[7995] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Death by throttling — Two injuries found on neck of deceased, and her windpipe and sound box fractured — Held, judgment of trial court acquitting appellant-accused holding that death of deceased was possibly due to epileptic fit was based on surmises and conjectures — Reliance on Modi's Medical Jurisprudence was misplaced since nowhere such a contingency (i.e. fracture of windpipe and sound box due to epileptic fit) was stated — Judgment of High Court convicting appellants calls for no interference (Paras 7 to 9). Madan Lal v. State of U.P., (2009) 11 SCC 527: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1478: AIR 2009 SC 2175: (2009) 3 All LJ 806.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-2009]

Modi's Medical Jurisprudence, considered

[7996] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A and 302 — Homicide or suicide — Circumstantial evidence — Homicidal dowry death proved — Deceased woman, aged 24 years, found dead in her in-laws' house three years after her marriage — Prosecution case of strangulating and setting her afire by her husband and mother-in-law — Defence case of suicide — On body of deceased large ligature mark found and body found to be badly burnt due to ante-mortem burns with smell of kerosene — Half burnt piece of cloth with a knot around neck found — Dead body found lying inside bedroom — Under left arm a telephone receiver was stuck — Burnt telephone wire recovered from the room and blood and blood-stained bindia recovered from balcony outside the room suggesting struggle and application of violence on deceased on balcony and in bedroom — Version of sister-in-law of deceased that deceased was suffering from mental tension due to her not being able to give birth to any child not acceptable as her child bearing age had not passed and there was no evidence showing that she was suffering from any gynaecological problem — Only the two accused were present in the house and had opportunity to commit the crime — Manner in which deceased was done to death shows that it needed at least two persons — Conduct of deceased's mother-in-law of lodging a false information at police station — Testimony of deceased's sister-in-law not trustworthy — Both the accused absconding and later surrendering before court — FIR lodged belatedly indicating deliberation and consultation with legal experts who had already gathered at the scene of occurrence along with accused husband's uncle who was also an advocate — Held, culpability of the two accused in causing homicidal death of deceased established to the hilt by facts and circumstances proved by prosecution (Paras 32 to 54)

In this case, the accused interfered with the breathing process of the deceased woman with compression of the windpipe of her neck by tightening a piece of cloth around her neck. Respiration had not completely stopped. In other words, the air passage was not completely blocked by the ligature pressed by the accused around the neck of the deceased. She was strangulated, but not to death. Strangulating her half way to overpower her and to render her incapable of offering any meaningful resistance, the accused then poured kerosene over her and burnt her. (Para 38)

If a cloth is suddenly tightened around the neck, it is likely to cause loss of consciousness, rendering it impossible for the victim to perform any action because of the interference with her breathing process. Owing to constricting of neck by a ligature, it could not at all be possible for the victim to catch hold of the container of the kerosene and pour it upon herself with the lighting of matchstick setting her self ablaze. Her mental faculty would not have been in such a position to have undertaken such an activity. (Para 41). Satya Narayan Tiwari v. State of U.P., (2010) 13 SCC 689.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-2010]

(vi) Circumstantial evidence

See also SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — 'D.7. Circumstantial Evidence' in Vol. 2

[7997] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Circumstantial evidence — Prosecution case that father-in-law of deceased alone could have caused the burn injuries based on circumstantial evidence — Accused was last seen in the house wherefrom the dead body was recovered — Body found in locked room where both the front door and the window were locked/bolted from inside — According to prosecution there was a window in the house which had a barrel bolt which could have been closed from inside after a person came out of the window and shook the window in such a manner as to put the bolt in proper position — Sessions Judge who conducted a spot inspection and tried to examine this aspect of the case, clearly stating that it was extremely difficult to do so — Moreover, prosecution case that accused-appellant might have come out of the window and then locked it from inside afterwards was only a hypothesis as no witness stated to have seen him coming out of the window or at what point of time he came out of the house — Held, it was not safe to draw any inference against the innocence of the accused-appellant based on the facts which were not proved at all — There was no motive whatsoever why appellant should have caused death or abetted suicide of the deceased — Prosecution failed to establish the case against appellant beyond all reasonable doubt — Conviction and sentence imposed on appellant by High Court as well as trial court set aside (Paras 5 and 6). Babu Ram v. State of M.P., (2002) 2 SCC 502: 2002 SCC (Cri) 744: AIR 2002 SC 758: 2002 Cri LJ 1018.

(7)(vi) Circumstantial evidence (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-1-2002]

(1998) 1 Hindu LR 312 (MP), reversed

[7998] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Prosecution of the husband for — Where prosecution succeeds in leading evidence to show that (i) either the husband and wife were last seen together, or (ii) the offence was committed in the dwelling house, where the husband also normally resided, and if the accused husband offers no explanation as to the injuries received by his wife or if the explanation is false, held, there is strong circumstance which indicates that he committed the crime

Where an accused is alleged to have committed the murder of his wife and the prosecution succeeds in leading evidence to show that shortly before the commission of crime they were seen together or the offence takes place in the dwelling home where the husband also normally resided, it has been consistently held that if the accused does not offer any explanation how the wife received injuries or offers an explanation which is found to be false, it is a strong circumstance which indicates that he is responsible for commission of the crime. (Para 22)

The appellant was plying a tempo in order to earn his livelihood. The deceased was being ill-treated and harassed on account of non-fulfilment of demand of Rs 25,000 which the appellant wanted for purchasing a tempo. The deceased was often beaten and was sometimes not given food. After the deceased had been murdered, information was sent to her parents that she had died on account of snakebite, which was reiterated when they reached the house of the appellant. Everyone in the village had been told that the deceased had died on account of snakebite and the Police Patil, believing the said information to be true, had lodged an accidental death report at the police station. The medical evidence, however, showed that she had died on account of asphyxia due to strangulation. The body of the deceased was purposely placed in a sitting posture with her back taking support of the wall so that no one may suspect that she had actually been killed as a result of strangulation and may believe the version of snakebite given by the appellant and his parents. The appellant in his statement under Section 313 CrPC did not offer any explanation as to how she received the injuries which were found on her body. Recovery of some articles of the deceased was made at the pointing out of the appellant. The circumstances unerringly point to the guilt of the accused and they are inconsistent with his innocence. (Para 23)

The High Court was, therefore, perfectly right in allowing the appeal filed by the State and in convicting the appellant under Section 302 IPC and sentencing him to life imprisonment thereunder. (Para 24). Trimukh Maroti Kirkan v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 80: (2006) 4 KLT 638.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and R.V. Raveendran, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-10-2006]

Nika Ram v. State of H.P., (1972) 2 SCC 80: 1972 SCC (Cri) 635; Ganeshlal v. State of Maharashtra, (1992) 3 SCC 106: 1993 SCC (Cri) 435; State of U.P. v. Dr. Ravindra Prakash Mittal, (1992) 3 SCC 300: 1992 SCC (Cri) 642; State of T.N. v. Rajendran, (1999) 8 SCC 679: 2000 SCC (Cri) 40, relied on [7999] — S. 304-B [S. 302] — Circumstantial evidence — Burden of proof — No explanation or false explanation against incriminating circumstance(s) — If accused fails to offer any cogent explanation or offers an explanation which is untrue, then it can be treated as an additional link in the chain of circumstances against the accused to make it complete — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 106 and Ill. 114 (b). Trimukh Maroti Kirkan v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 80: (2006) 4 KLT 638.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and R.V. Raveendran, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-10-2006]

[8000] — S. 304-B [S. 302] — Dowry death — Circumstantial evidence — Burden of proof — Nature of — Held, is of a lighter character where the offence is committed in secrecy inside a house — In view of S. 106, Evidence Act there is also a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give a cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed — They cannot get away by keeping quiet and on the premise that the prosecution must discharge its burden of proving the case — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 106

The demand for dowry or money from the parents of the bride has shown a phenomenal increase in the last few years. Cases are frequently coming before the courts, where the husband or in-laws have gone to the extent of killing the bride if the demand is not met. These crimes are generally committed in complete secrecy inside the house and it becomes very difficult for the prosecution to lead evidence. If an offence takes place inside the privacy of a house and in such circumstances where the assailants have all the opportunity to plan and commit the offence at the time and in circumstances of their choice, it would be extremely difficult for the prosecution to lead evidence to establish the guilt of the accused if the strict principle of circumstantial evidence is insisted upon by the courts. A judge does not preside over a criminal trial merely to see that no innocent man is punished. A judge also presides to see that a guilty man does not escape. The law does not enjoin a duty on the prosecution to lead evidence of such character which is almost impossible to be led or at any rate extremely difficult to be led. The duty on the prosecution is to lead such evidence which it is capable of leading, having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case. Here it is necessary to keep in mind Section 106 of the Evidence Act which says that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Illustration (b) appended to this section throws some light on the content and scope of this provision. (Paras 13 and 14)

Where an offence like murder is committed in secrecy inside a house, the initial burden to establish the case would undoubtedly be upon the prosecution, but the nature and amount of evidence to be led by it to establish the charge cannot be of the same degree as is required in other cases of circumstantial evidence. The burden would be of a comparatively lighter character. In view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give a cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution and there is no duty at all on an accused to offer any explanation. (Para 15)

The High Court was, therefore, perfectly right in allowing the appeal filed by the State and in convicting the appellant under Section 302 IPC and sentencing him to life imprisonment thereunder. (Para 24). Trimukh Maroti Kirkan v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 80: (2006) 4 KLT 638.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and R.V. Raveendran, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-10-2006]

Stirland v. Director of Public Prosecutions, 1944 AC 315: (1944) 2 All ER 13 (HL); State of Punjab v. Karnail Singh, (2003) 11 SCC 271: 2004 SCC (Cri) 135, relied on

Collector of Customs v. D. Bhoormall, (1974) 2 SCC 544: 1974 SCC (Cri) 784; Balram Prasad Agrawal v. State of Bihar, (1997) 9 SCC 338: 1997 SCC (Cri) 612; State of W.B. v. Mir Mohd. Omar, (2000) 8 SCC 382: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1516; Ram Gulam Chaudhary v. State of Bihar, (2001) 8 SCC 311: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1546, relied on

[8001] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Circumstantial evidence — Death of a housewife by drowning in a well in the courtyard of her in-laws' house — Ill-treatment of the deceased by her in-laws for not bringing sufficient dowry and also for not giving birth to children established — Despite giving birth to two children such ill-treatment continued — Husband also contemplating to remarry — Deceased earlier trying to commit suicide by jumping in the same well but saved by the neighbours — At the time of incident only deceased and the accused were in the house — Sound of quarrelling and shouting of a woman heard by the neighbours — Held, in the circumstances of the case, circumstances clinchingly establish the culpability of the accused — Death by accidentally falling in the well ruled out

The prosecution evidence clearly indicates beyond shadow of reasonable doubt that because of the mistreatment by the accused and the consistent course of cruelty perpetrated on her, she had on the fateful night suffered from the last straw that broke the camel's back. Earlier she had jumped in the same well to put an end to her miserable existence but was saved by the neighbours. Yet the life for her in the household of the accused did not improve subsequently. She was, therefore, driven to once again try to commit suicide by jumping in the very same well in which she had earlier jumped. But on the second occasion on that fateful night when she jumped in the well there was no neighbour to save her and her life got extinguished. Under these circumstances it cannot be said that the accused were not responsible for bringing to a tragic end the life of this young housewife aged 28 years, mother of two children, who having suffered in such a drastic manner at the hands of the accused was driven to take the extreme step of committing suicide. This is neither the case of murder nor the case of accident. On the facts of the present case the prosecution has been able to bring home to the accused beyond shadow of reasonable doubt offence under Section 498-A IPC read with Explanation (a). When she was driven to take such a drastic step all the accused including acquitted accused mother-in-law were in the house and along with them resided the victim and her two minor children. Hence the accused alone must be held responsible for driving her to commit suicide by their misconduct which had led to a quarrel and shouting revealing the voice of a woman as admitted even by the hostile witness who actually heard the same being the next door neighbour. All the circumstances proved by the prosecution clinchingly establish the culpability of the accused themselves and no one else. These established circumstances wholly rule out any reasonable possibility of innocence of the accused from any viewpoint. In other words the chain in the circumstantial evidence is so complete against the accused as to rule out any other hypothesis about their innocence. Balram Prasad Agrawal v. State of Bihar, (1997) 9 SCC 338: 1997 SCC (Cri) 612: AIR 1997 SC 1830: 1997 Cri LJ 1640.

(7)(vi) Circumstantial evidence (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and S.B. Majmudar, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-12-1996]

[8002] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Circumstantial evidence — Conviction upheld — Circumstances found to be forming a complete chain which conclusively pointing to the guilt of the accused persons — Hence conviction upheld

The relevant circumstances which were stated by the witnesses were as follows: (1) The deceased had been complaining of taunting and insulting behaviour and torture and harassment by her father-in-law, brothers-in-law and sister-in-law shortly after she went to their house after her marriage. (2) The deceased had also communicated her complaint against the accused-appellants (in-laws) to PW 2 (a neighbour of the appellant) who was treating her as his daughter. (3) On the night of the occurrence the deceased had come to the house of PW 2 and was there till 11 p.m. She was hale and hearty by the time she left the house of PW 2 and went back to the house of the appellants. (4) The deceased and the appellants were the only inmates of the house on the fateful night when the incident took place. (5) The appellants were present in the house when the body of the deceased was lying in the kitchen. (6) None of the appellants was seen taking any step to give relief to the deceased nor any of them gave any explanation about the incident to the queries made by PWs 2 and 3 who had gone to the house during the night. (7) The dead body of the deceased was cremated early in the morning by 6.00 a.m. before sending any information of the tragic incident to her parents. (8) No step was taken by any of the appellants for registration of the death of the deceased or report the unnatural death suffered by her. (9) The appellants were initially not sure of the defence to be taken in the case; whether the death was suicidal or accidental; subsequently they decided to stick to the plea of accident which plea was held by the High Court to be a false one.

Held :

The aforementioned circumstances provide a complete chain of events clearly pointing towards the guilt of the appellants. Therefore, the High Court committed no error or illegality in coming to the conclusion that the charges under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and Section 201 read with Section 34 IPC stood established against the appellants. (Para 15). Tapubha Bhagvanji v. State of Gujarat, (2002) 6 SCC 530: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1411: AIR 2002 SC 2794.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.P. Mohapatra and Ruma Pal, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-7-2002]

(vii) Conviction justified

See also '(6) Ingredients of dowry death and presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act', above

[8003] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Bride burning — Additional demand of dowry after marriage — Harassment of deceased in respect thereof — Strained relationship between both parties (complainant and accused) as well as harassment of deceased, held, stood sufficiently substantiated on the basis of an earlier police complaint lodged in relation thereto and the compromise signed by the parties thereafter — Dying declaration involving the appellants, also found reliable — Held, concurrent findings of courts below not suffering from any infirmity — Conviction upheld

According to the prosecution, the deceased S was married to A-5 about six years prior to the date of occurrence. After the marriage, all the accused started harassing and torturing S for want of more dowry and the manner of torture included even physical beating. About four months before the death of S, a demand was made for a sum of Rs 20,000 as further dowry and for not complying with the said demand, S was not only tortured by physical beating but was said to have been locked in a room for four days from where she managed to escape and reach the house of her sister K. Thereafter, a written complaint was lodged with the police and on the said complaint the husband and father-in-law of S were arrested and taken to the police station. Both of them were said to have apologized to the complainant party and then a compromise was said to have been effected and reduced into writing, which was also attested by a police officer. Thereafter S was brought back to the house of her in-laws. About four months thereafter on 16-11-1993 at about 10.30 a.m. when the husband (A-5) and father-in-law (A-4) were away, the mother-in-law (A-1) caught hold of S by her hands from her back and the sister-in-law (MD) sprinkled kerosene on S and then A-2 (son of A-1 and A-4) set her ablaze. The said incident was said to be witnessed by one W, a front door neighbour. S was admitted in a hospital. When the Medical Officer declared S to be fit for making the statement, the police officer recorded her statement in the course of investigation to the effect that all the five accused had been harassing her for want of more dowry and that she was set ablaze by A-1, A-2 and MD. The victim ultimately died at 11.30 a.m. on 20-11-1993.

All the five accused were charged under Sections 498-A, 304-B and 302 read with Section 34 IPC. The trial court convicted the appellants for offence punishable under Section 304-B IPC, on the view that there was direct and substantial evidence against them though in respect of the other offences these accused and the remaining three accused in respect of all offences were found not guilty. In appeal, the High Court affirmed the conviction and sentence recorded by the learned trial Judge.

Before the Supreme Court, the two appellants including the mother-in-law contended (i) that W could not be believed to be present on the spot at the time of occurrence, (ii) that in the light of the acquittal of the other accused, the same norms and standards of appreciation should have been extended while considering the case of the appellants as well and they should have been also acquitted, (iii) that the dying declaration was not reliable, and (iv) that the requirements of Section 304-B IPC had not been properly substantiated to warrant conviction of the appellants under the said provision.

Dismissing the appeal, the Supreme Court held as above. Vidhya Devi v. State of Haryana, (2004) 9 SCC 476: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1473: AIR 2004 SC 1757.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-2004]

[8004] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Bride burning — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction of appellant-accused (husband of deceased victim) confirmed — Held, prosecution story stands fully proved by evidence of PWs 2 to 4 (uncle, father and another uncle of deceased, respectively) — Although, four (father, mother and two sisters of appellant-accused) of five accused were acquitted, but primary evidence is against appellant — Evidence shows that it was appellant who had, just a few days before the incident, visited house of his father-in-law and threatened victim with dire consequences if his demands for a scooter and two gold rings were not fulfilled — A few days later, PW 2 visited victim's in-laws' home and informed her father thereafter, that appellant was found beating his wife at that time and had once again threatened that if demands were not satisfied, victim would pay dearly for it — Victim's dead body found in bathroom of her matrimonial house — Medical evidence shows that deceased suffered 95% burn injuries — Her death occurred just four months after marriage — It is true that in a case where peculiar evidence was discarded with respect to four of five accused, presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act, could, to some extent, be said to be dispelled, but on overview, primary role and weight of evidence was against appellant — Hence, appellant's conviction, confirmed — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 8, 9, 11 and 12). Sudhir Kumar v. State of Punjab, (2010) 3 SCC 239.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : H.S. Bedi and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision : 14-1-2010]

[8005] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Bride burning — Unnatural death of appellant's wife by burning within seven years of marriage — Non-fulfilment of dowry demand — Victim cruelly treated and ultimately murdered by appellant-accused and her in-laws — PWs 1 and 18 (maternal uncle and mother of deceased, respectively) specifically speaking about dowry demand by accused at the time of marriage, which could not be met — However, PW 1 speaking about making part-payment later on — Contradiction between evidence of PWs 1 and 18 on issue of payment, minor in nature — Claims of PW 1 about dowry demand, harassment of victim by accused persons for not bringing dowry, not sending her to his house on festivals and other assertions, remaining unshaken in his cross-examination — Defence case of victim having a love affair and committing suicide out of frustration, having no basis — Victim suffering mental torture proved from the fact that she did not take food for two days prior to her death — Circumstances bringing about death of victim in her own bedroom of burn injuries in the wee hours, not explained — Hence, held, instant case completely covered by presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act, since all aspects, such as cruelty meted out to the deceased, her unnatural death within time span of seven years and constant demands of dowry, were proved to the hilt — Conviction, therefore, proper — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B

(7)(vii) Conviction justified (contd.)

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

The finding reached by the trial court in its judgment that there was no payment of dowry appears to be a totally incorrect finding tending to be perverse. The main reason for this appears to be contradiction in the evidence of PWs 1 and 18 (maternal uncle and mother of the deceased, respectively), completely ignoring the fact that PW 18 was an illiterate woman and could not be expected to remember the details regarding the date on which the amount of Rs 2000 was paid to the appellant-accused. (Para 28)

In returning the finding that there was no dowry harassment to the deceased by the accused, the trial court had completely ignored the evidence of PW 3 (elderly relative of the deceased), which remained absolutely unshaken on that issue. In fact, even PW 5 had supported the case of the dowry harassment and so did PW 6, who is the immediate neighbour of appellant. Although PW 6 was declared hostile in his cross-examination, however, even he had admitted that there used to be quarrels in the house of the accused. The fantastic theory invented by the defence of love affair of the deceased with S was also denied by this witness in his cross-examination by the accused. (Para 29)

PWs 3 and 5 had specifically referred about the ill-treatment on account of dowry and there was absolutely no cross-examination on the payment of dowry, as also the complaints made by the deceased against the accused that she was ill-treated on account of non-payment of Rs 5000. The finding recorded that there was no continuous onslaught, cruelty or harassment was clearly an incorrect finding, without even bothering to realise that there was no cross-examination of the witnesses like PWs 1, 3 and 5 on that issue, though they had very specifically asserted that the deceased was being ill-treated on account of dowry. (Para 30)

The High Court has not only considered the whole prosecution evidence closely but has also considered the defence evidence. From the way the evidence has been appreciated by the High Court, it is clear that the High Court has disapproved of the findings given by the trial court and has done the whole exercise of appreciation of evidence independently. The High Court has given a clear finding in its judgment that the trial court was palpably wrong in holding that the prosecution had failed to prove the guilt of the accused, more particularly, under Section 304-B IPC. Here was a case which was completely covered by the presumption under Section 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872, since all the aspects such as the cruelty meted out to the deceased, her unnatural death within the time span of seven years and constant demands of dowry were proved to the hilt. (Paras 31 and 34)

There were many things than what meets the eye in the death of the victim who died in her own bedroom of burn injuries. It was clear that she died in the wee hours and yet there was nothing, even suggestive, of any explanation. (Para 35)

Hence, the judgment convicting the appellant-accused of the offence under Section 304-B IPC is correct and the appeal has no merits. (Para 36). Govindaraju v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 14 SCC 236: (2009) 79 AIC 113 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 3457: (2009) 2 APLJ 203 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-5-2009]

[8006] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Wife committing suicide by jumping into a well because her husband was harassing her due to non-fulfilment of his demand of 25 cents of land by her father — Quarrel occurred between husband and wife on the date of the incident — PW 8, a neighbour, spoke about frequent quarrels between them — Evidence of PWs proving harassment — Held, it was satisfactorily proved that the husband committed offence under S. 304-B — But, on facts, his sentence reduced to 7 years (Paras 3 and 4). Nazar v. State of Kerala, (2005) 12 SCC 476.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-2005]

[8007] — Ss. 304-B and 201 — Dowry death/ Bride burning — Ingredients reiterated — Conviction confirmed — Accused cremated deceased and cleaned up place of occurrence and did not bother to inform police of unnatural death — Cremation of body without even intimating relatives of deceased — Hurriedly conducted funeral caused destruction of evidence — Court taking a serious note of manner in which body was disposed of — Circumstances establish that accused had done so to conceal real cause of death — Circumstances most suspicious pointing towards guilt of accused — Torture of deceased in regard to dowry demands, also proved — Both courts below have fully considered all aspects and convicted appellant — No interference warranted — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B (Paras 12 and 16 to 20). Dasrath v. State of M.P., (2010) 12 SCC 198: AIR 2010 SC 2592: 2010 Cri LJ 4382.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-2010]

State of Rajasthan v. Jaggu Ram, (2008) 12 SCC 51: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 317, relied on [8008] — Ss. 304-B and 302 — Bride burning — Dying declaration recorded by doctor within 1½ hours of the occurrence bearing specific mention of deceased's husband as the person who had set the deceased on fire — Independent and disinterested witnesses consistently deposed that the deceased throughout had maintained that her husband had sprinkled kerosene on her body and set her on fire — In view of oral and documentary evidence coupled with impelling circumstances, held, plea that the deceased had bolted her room from inside and set herself on fire not acceptable — It was the deceased's husband alone who was responsible for causing the death of the deceased — Hence conviction and sentence of life imprisonment under S. 302 sustained. Ved Prakash v. State (Delhi Admn.), 1991 Supp (1) SCC 296.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-11-1990]

[8009] — Ss. 304-B and 498 — Bride burning — Husband charged with committing murder of his wife by pouring kerosene and setting her on fire — Conviction confirmed — No material discrepancies found in four statements given by the deceased which were treated as dying declarations — Entry in bedhead ticket that the deceased sustained burn injuries during cooking is of no consequence — Location of burn injuries found on the person of the accused not consistent with his claim that he tried to extinguish the fire — Non-examination of sole eyewitness, sister of the accused, aged 17 years, in the circumstances of the case not material — Guilt established. Rajendra Kumar v. State of U.P., (1998) 9 SCC 343: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1026: AIR 1998 SC 2896.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1997]

[8010] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Applicability — Deceased alleged to have been strangulated by accused and her dead body found hanging from a ceiling fan — Deceased dying within one year and 3 months of her marriage, while residing in her matrimonial home — High Court in appeal against acquittal, by impugned judgment, while confirming acquittal of co-accused (in-laws of deceased) doubting their participation in commission of offence since they were residing separately, but convicting appellant (husband of deceased) under S. 304-B and sentencing him to 7 years' RI — Sustainability — PWs 3 and 4 (father and brother of deceased) stating that deceased had visited them on 17-3-1995 i.e. a day before the occurrence and told them that accused had purchased a new house, were demanding Rs 1 lakh from her, and were torturing her — Documents pertaining to agreement to purchase the house dated 8-2-1995, while the sale deed was to be executed on 8-5-1995, produced in evidence — High Court noting that said document amply established the need for money — Conclusion of trial court that accused being rich persons there was no need for demanding any dowry also found erroneous — Held, High Court has analysed the evidence of the witnesses clearly keeping in view the parameters relating to the scope of interference with the judgment of acquittal — Said analysis does not suffer from any infirmity to warrant interference — Since the minimum sentence has been awarded, no interference called for — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2 (Paras 12 to 16). Jagjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2009) 4 SCC 759: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 588: AIR 2009 SC 2133: 2009 Cri LJ 2440: (2009) 76 AIC 33 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-3-2009]

Appasaheb v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 9 SCC 721: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 468, considered and relied on

[8011] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Conviction justified — Appreciation of evidence — Cruelty and harassment and dowry demand — Held proved — PW 5 (father of deceased) deposing that he gave 20 tolas of gold and other dowry articles to A-1 (deceased's husband), A-3 (brother of A-1) and other in-laws of his daughter at the time of marriage about three years prior to incident — After one year of happy marriage, daughter repeatedly complaining to PW 5 regarding maltreatment, harassment and torture by her in-laws on account of inadequate dowry — A-1 and A-3 demanding and taking Rs 50,000 as loan during pregnancy of deceased, when deceased had come for some months to PW 5's house — Thereafter, A-1 and A-3 frequently demanding to adjust the loan amount as dowry and PW 5 not agreeing — Harassment of deceased continuing on account of PW 5 not agreeing to adjust loan as dowry amount — PW 5 also deposing about quarrels regarding said adjustment in his house and also in accused persons' house (during PW 5's visit to meet his daughter) — PW 6 (mother of deceased), PW 8 (deceased's mother's brother) and PWs 3, 5 and 10 corroborating the evidence of PW 5 — PW 8 deposing/corroborating about accused persons' threatening about dire consequences if said adjustment was not made — In spite of being subject to searching cross-examination, defence failing to extract anything tangible to create any shadow of doubt regarding the reliability and truthfulness of the evidence of PWs 5, 6 and 8 — PW 7, though

(7)(vii) Conviction justified (contd.)

turning hostile, corroborating the fact of quarrel in PW 5's house regarding money matters — On facts, held, it is proved beyond reasonable doubt that the deceased was being constantly harassed and tortured by A-1 and A-3 for inadequate dowry and for adjusting a loan amount of Rs 50,000 as dowry amount — Therefore, conviction under Ss. 304-B and 498-A upheld

On the day of incident i.e. on 7-8-1992, an FIR was lodged by PW 5 that the deceased (PW 5's daughter) was married to the appellant-accused (A-1) about three years prior to the incident. The complainant gave his daughter twenty tolas of gold and other valuable articles during the time of marriage. However, after one year of the marriage, the in-laws started illtreating and harassing the deceased for not bringing sufficient dowry about which, the deceased made repeated complaints to the complainant during her and complainant's visits to each other's place.

During the pregnancy of the deceased, which took place after about two years of marriage during which, the deceased stayed in the complainant's house, A-3 (elder brother of A-1) demanded and took a loan of Rs 50,000 from PW 5 for starting some business. Thereafter, on several occasions, the accused persons demanded that the loan amount be treated as dowry amount but PW 5 did not agree to it. And therefore, the deceased was illtreated and harassed, which she revealed to her father (PW 5) on several occasions.

On 7-8-1992, PW 5 and his wife rushed to the hospital on being informed about their daughter's burn injuries. The deceased died the same day. The FIR was lodged by PW 5 at about 8:00 or 9:00 p.m. on the same day.

PW 11, Medical Officer, on the request of police, examined the deceased at about 5:45 a.m. on 7-8-1992 and noticed about 90% burn wounds on her entire body starting from the top of the head right up to her feet. He prepared injury report (Ext. P-11). According to the doctor's report, the wounds noticed on the deceased appeared to be four hours old. He took thumb impression of the deceased on the injury report.

On examination of the oral and documentary evidence produced on record, the Sessions Judge found the accused guilty of the offences under Sections 304-B and 498-A IPC and sentenced them to suffer 10 years' rigorous imprisonment for the offence under Section 304-B IPC and 3 years' rigorous imprisonment for an offence under Section 498-A IPC with a fine of Rs 500 each and in default of the payment of fine, each accused has to undergo simple imprisonment for one month. All the sentences were ordered to run concurrently. Appeals preferred thereagainst by A-1 and A-3 were dismissed by the impugned order of the High Court.

Dismissing the appeals,

Held :

Having regard to the entire evidence and having carefully and closely considered the judgments of the trial court and the High Court, it appears that the view taken by both the courts was reasonable and plausible. There is no infirmity or perversity in the findings recorded by the Judges of the High Court to interfere with the well-reasoned judgment. There is no merit in these appeals. Both the appellants are stated to be on bail. The bail bonds of both the appellants are cancelled and they are directed to surrender forthwith to serve out the remaining sentence. (Paras 61 to 63)

Relying upon the evidence of PW 5 and PW 8, the courts below correctly concluded that the prosecution has proved beyond reasonable doubt that the deceased was being constantly harassed and tortured by A-1 and A-3 for the demand of dowry and a sum of Rs 50,000 paid to them as loan amount was also adjusted by them as dowry money. PW 5 (deceased's father), PW 6 (deceased's mother) and PW 8 (deceased's mother's brother) have been subjected to searching cross-examination by the defence, but nothing tangible material has been extracted from their evidence to create any shadow of doubt that they are not reliable and truthful witnesses. The prosecution in support of the charge of dowry death has produced and relied upon the testimony of PW 5, PW 6 and PW 8. (Paras 59, 60 and 47)

The evidence of PW 5 proved that at the time of marriage of the deceased with A-1 (about three year prior to the alleged dowry death), he gave 20 tolas of gold and other dowry articles to A-1, A-3 and other family members. For about one year after marriage, his daughter lived happy married life in her parents-in-law's house. Thereafter, whenever the deceased used to go to the house of her parents or whenever PW 5 had visited her in-law's house for inviting her to parent's house, the deceased used to complain that A-1, A-3 and other family members had maltreated and harassed her for not bringing adequate dowry. When the deceased stayed in the house of PW 5 for some months during the her pregnancy and birth of a son A-1 and A-3 demanded and took Rs 50,000 from PW 5 as loan for running their business. (Paras 53 and 54)

It is the evidence of PW 5 that after about 10 days prior to the fateful incident, he went to his daughter's house but A-1, A-3 and other family members (the acquitted accused) had refused to send her unless their demand of dowry was fulfilled by him. The evidence of this witness finds complete corroboration from the evidence of PW 6 and PW 8 on this count. PW 5 also deposed about a quarrel in his house two months prior to the incident regarding the adjustment Rs 50,000 as dowry money. It was corroborated by PWs 3 and 6 and though PW 7 turned hostile he admitted that A-3, A-4 and A-7 had a quarrel with PW 5 on some money matter. (Paras 55 to 57)

PW 8, deposed that on that day he along with PW 5 and PW 10, visited the house of the accused persons, they threatened PW 5 that if he would make demand of returning a sum of Rs 50,000 paid by him as loan to A-1 and A-3, he would face dire consequences. All the accused said that an amount of Rs 50,000 shall be adjusted against the demand of dowry money. (Para 58). Kanti Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 12 SCC 498: AIR 2009 SC 2703: (2009) 2 APLJ 95 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: L.S. Panta and B. Sudershan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-2009]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740; Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016; Kamesh Panjiyar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 2 SCC 388: 2005 SCC (Cri) 511; Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 166; Trimukh Maroti Kirkan v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 80; Kailash v. State of M.P., (2006) 12 SCC 667: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 359; Appasaheb v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 9 SCC 721: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 468, relied on

Arvind Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, Criminal Appeal No. 125 of 1997 decided on 26-4-2001 (Raj); Arvind Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, Criminal Misc. Petition No. 202 of 1997 decided on 26-4-2001 (Raj), approved

[8012] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — S. 113-B, Evidence Act, 1872 — Dowry death — Conviction justified — Deceased alleged to have consumed poison because of persistent dowry demands and consequent harassment meted out to her by her husband and in-laws for non-fulfilment of demands — Appellant-accused married to deceased on 8-6-1991, while the deceased dying on 3-9-1992 other than in normal circumstances i.e. within 7 years of marriage — Evidence of PWs 4 and 5 proving dowry demand just before the deceased committed suicide — Though demand of share in ancestral property does not amount to dowry demand but evidence of PWs proving additional demands too — Held, under such circumstances conviction of appellant under S. 304-B calls for no interference — However, custodial sentence of 10 years imposed appears to be on higher side and hence, reduced to 7 years (Paras 2 and 17 to 19). Baldev Singh v. State of Punjab, (2008) 13 SCC 233.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-8-2008]

Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740, relied on [8013] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A and 302 — Dowry death — Death of a married woman caused by burns within 2 years of her marriage — Demand of dowry and harassment by her husband established — Evidence establishing that soon before her death she was ill-treated by her husband — High Court accepting the defence version of suicide, acquitting the appellant under S. 302 and convicting him under Ss. 304-B and 498-A — No interference by the Supreme Court called for — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-B. Venugopal v. State of Karnataka, (1999) 1 SCC 216: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1592: AIR 1999 SC 146.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-1998]

[8014] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A and 306 — Dowry death — Conviction confirmed — Dowry demand and harassment meted out to deceased consequent thereto proved by PWs 1 to 12 — Moreover, dying declarations, Exts. P-2 to P-4 inculpating appellant husband corroborating testimonies of PWs 1 to 12, which were proved to be in handwriting of deceased — Discrepancies inter se in statements of PWs inconsequential since discrepancies bound to occur where large number of witnesses are examined — Moreover, some of the witnesses were totally independent and there was no reason to disbelieve their testimonies — Hence, conviction of appellant sustainable (Paras 5 to 7). Nandyala Venkataramana v. State of A.P., (2010) 13 SCC 653.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-10-2010]

(viii) Dying declaration

See also SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — 'D.15. Dying declaration' in Vol. 2

See also EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, S. 32(1)

[8015] — S. 304-B — Bride burning — Death of married woman caused by burn injuries — Dying declaration recorded by Naib Tehsildar — Evidence of doctor that she was fully conscious to make statement despite 70% burns on her person — Opinion of autopsy surgeon that burns were up to 80% and that she must have been capable of speaking only for about 1-2 hours after the incident

(7)(viii) Dying declaration (contd.)

cannot override evidence of doctors who deposed about the factual condition of the deceased as found by them — Evidence of witnesses that the deceased told them that her husband her put her on fire found reliable — Conviction upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32 (Paras 6 and 7). Rammoo v. State of M.P., 1999 SCC (Cri) 345.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.L. Hansaria and K. Venkataswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-4-1996]

[8016] — S. 304-B — Bride burning — Dying declaration — Conviction, on the sole basis of — Sustainability — Held, if a dying declaration is found to be reliable then there is no need for corroboration by any witness, and conviction can be sustained on its basis alone — Consistent multiple dying declarations given by the deceased wherein she stating that the appellant (her husband) had poured kerosene on her and set her on fire — Evidence of Executive Magistrate, doctor and other witnesses found unequivocal that the deceased was conscious and was able to answer the questions — Held, there is no reason to disbelieve the dying declaration of the deceased — If some persons other than the accused had poured kerosene on the deceased and burnt her, there was no reason why the deceased should have thought of implicating the accused instead of the real culprits — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32 (Paras 9, 10, 11, 16 and 17). Bapu v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 12 SCC 73: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 545: (2006) 48 AIC 118 (SC): 2007 Cri LJ 310.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-2006]

Narain Singh v. State of Haryana, (2004) 13 SCC 264: 2005 SCC (Cri) 185; Babulal v. State of M.P., (2003) 12 SCC 490: 2005 SCC (Cri) 620; Ravi v. State of T.N., (2004) 10 SCC 776: 2005 SCC (Cri) 576; Muthu Kutty v. State, (2005) 9 SCC 113: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1202, relied on [8017] — S. 304-B — Bride burning — Dying declaration of deceased implicating all members of husband's brother's family — Death taking place in nuptial home — Trial court not inclined to convict on this solitary evidence but High Court reversing the decision — Supreme Court taking note of the fact that deceased's husband, daughter and even her relations from parental side had deposed that she committed suicide — Prosecution treating them as hostile — Dying declaration disbelieved by the Supreme Court — Further held, conclusion reached by trial court was not perverse or unreasonable and therefore High Court ought not to have reversed appellants' acquittal merely on the basis of dying declaration — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 & 386 — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 32 and 145 (Paras 4 to 8). Muneer Khan v. State of M.P., (2002) 9 SCC 523.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-1-2002]

[8018] — S. 304-B — Bride burning/Dowry death — Dying declaration recorded by SDM — Mere fact that there was an agitation by relatives of the deceased for recording her statement cannot lead to an inference that an officer holding the post of SDM had recorded it under pressure — Dying declaration recorded after satisfying about mental fitness of the deceased and obtaining endorsement to that effect — Plea that the skin over the two thumbs of the deceased was burnt and, therefore, SDM could not have obtained her thumb impression on the dying declaration found not acceptable — SDM being an independent witness holding high position had no reason to do anything which was not proper — Held, in the circumstances, the dying declaration was voluntarily made and correctly recorded by the SDM — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32 (Paras 5 and 6). Harjit Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1999) 6 SCC 545: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1130: AIR 1999 SC 2571.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-7-1999]

[8019] — S. 304-B — Dying declaration — Belated and not when expecting imminent death — If a dying declaration — Effect on veracity of such dying declaration — Bride burning — Incident taking place in the intervening night between Sept. 11 and 12 — In hospital deceased giving birth to a dead child and skin grafting also done on her person — Oral dying declaration alleged to have been made to her relatives on Nov. 6 and another dying declaration recorded by Magistrate on Nov. 11 i.e. about two months after the incident — Death taking place in hospital on Nov. 15 — Post-mortem conducted on Nov. 16 i.e. more than two months after the incident — Post-mortem report recording only the superficial burns which had been cured but not recording about the deep burns — Cause of death, according to post-mortem report, was syncope, attributable to heart — Medical evidence thus not definitely showing that death was due to burns — Two dying declarations, which were after two months of the incident, not only giving two conflicting versions but there were also inter se discrepancies in the depositions of the witnesses given in support of the earlier oral dying declaration and in the second dying declaration recorded by Magistrate deceased not naming any of the accused — In the circumstances, held, conviction cannot be based on such dying declarations — Dying declarations having been made long after the incident, deceased cannot be said to be expecting imminent death at that time — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32

In the present case the dying declaration was after two months of the alleged incident. It was not at a time when the deceased was expecting imminent death. Neither the post-mortem nor the deposition of the doctor carry any definite inference that the cause of death was on account of burning. There is a conflict between two dying declarations, in one there is inter se inconsistency as revealed in the depositions of the witnesses, in the other there is no naming of any accused, when made before a Magistrate. On such an evidence the trial court rightly declined to base a conviction. The High Court committed a manifest error in placing reliance on it. (Para 22). Kishan Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2000) 1 SCC 310: 2000 SCC (Cri) 182: AIR 1999 SC 3062: 1999 Cri LJ 4070.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and A.P. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-1999]

State of Rajasthan v. Kishanlal, 1998 Cri LJ 452 (Raj), reversed

[8020] — S. 304-B — Dying declaration — Bride burning — Material contradiction between two dying declarations pertaining to the context in which the deceased caught fire — Evidence of neighbours that two cousins of the deceased were brainwashing her at the hospital — Evidence of the parents of the deceased that the deceased told them that she caught fire while cooking milk — Mental soundness of the deceased found doubtful — Held, in the circumstances of the case, dying declaration not reliable — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32

In the present case there was one material contradiction between the two dying declarations regarding the context in which the deceased caught fire. Dying declaration record by the police officer showed that she was set to fire by her husband and mother-in-law when she was lighting a stove for preparing coffee. But in her dying declaration recorded by the Judicial Magistrate she stated that when she was sweeping her mother-in-law and husband both poured kerosene on her, lit the matchstick and set her to fire. The High Court has sidelined such a noticeable discrepancy looming large as between the two different statements made by the same person. When the sphere of scrutiny of the dying declaration is a restricted area, the court cannot afford to sideline such a material divergence relating to this very occasion of the crime. Either the context spoken to in one was wrong or that in the other was wrong. Both could be reconciled with each other only with much strain as it relates to the opportunity for the culprit to commit the offence. Adopting such a strain to the detriment of the accused in a criminal case is not a feasible course. (Para 16)

As the dying declaration is tested thus on the touchstones available in evidence and permitted by law, it does not stand scrutiny. It will be unsafe to convict any person on the strength of such a fragile and rickety dying declaration. (Para 23). Dandu Lakshmi Reddy v. State of A.P., (1999) 7 SCC 69: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1176: AIR 1999 SC 3255.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and D.P. Mohapatra, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-1999]

Tapinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (1970) 2 SCC 113: 1970 SCC (Cri) 328; Khushal Rao v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 22: 1958 SCR 552, relied on [8021] — S. 304-B — Dying declaration — Multiple dying declarations — Reliability — Death due to burns — In the instant case, the first dying declaration was recorded by the doctor, while the second was recorded by the Sub-Inspector after obtaining opinion of the doctor that the deceased was fit to make her statement — Appellant 2 not named in the first dying declaration but culpability of Appellant 1 categorically stated by the deceased in both the declarations — Doctor, who had recorded the first dying declaration, in his deposition stating that he feared that the deceased would succumb to her extensive burn injuries (although she was in her senses) and hence recorded the declaration but could not thumb mark or obtain her signature because of injuries on her hand — Signature of the deceased on the second declaration appeared to have been put with great difficulty and was undisputed — Held, in such circumstances it is difficult to hold that her first statement was not voluntary or was tutored — However, keeping in view the inconsistencies between the two dying declarations, benefit of doubt given to Appellant 2 mother-in-law — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32 (Paras 17 to 19, 24 to 30 and 34). Balbir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 12 SCC 283: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 715: AIR 2006 SC 3221: 2006 Cri LJ 4646: (2006) 47 AIC 600 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-2006]

Jai Karan v. State of Delhi (NCT), (1999) 8 SCC 161: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1385; State of Maharashtra v. Sanjay, (2004) 13 SCC 314: 2005 SCC (Cri) 231; Muthu Kutty v. State, (2005) 9 SCC 113: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1202, considered and relied on

(7)(viii) Dying declaration (contd.)

[8022] — S. 304-B — Dying declaration — Reliability — Charge of committing murder of wife — Wife burnt at parents' house at dead of night — Brought to dispensary and dying declaration recorded by the doctor, who though certifying her to be conscious not certifying her to be in full senses and medically fit to make a statement — Dying within 15 minutes because of extensive burn injuries — No eyewitness to the occurrence — In such circumstances, held, exclusive reliance could not be placed on the said dying declaration to hold her husband guilty of committing her murder — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32(1). State of Orissa v. Parasuram Naik, (1997) 11 SCC 15: 1997 SCC (Cri) 1177: AIR 1997 SC 3569.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-8-1997]

[8023] — S. 304-B — Dying declaration recorded by Judicial Magistrate — Discrepancy regarding exact place of murder — Value of such dying declaration to be estimated from the preceding utterances of the deceased — Oral dying declaration made by deceased to her own brother soon after the incident that it was the appellant, her paramour, who set fire to her — Same version told to her father and sister — At police station also she stated the same thing which was recorded by the police and got signed by her — She repeated the same version to the doctor in the hospital — Held, in the circumstances, the trial court erred in rejecting the sturdy dying declaration given by the deceased to the Judicial Magistrate and also in rejecting other dying declarations — Discrepancy regarding exact place of murder in the dying declaration made to the Judicial Magistrate did not affect credibility of her dying declaration — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32

In the instant case the deceased told the Magistrate that the incident had happened "outside the house". The word "house" used by her need not necessarily be interpreted as the entire building. It could be an interior area of the building or it could be the defect of selecting the equivalent English word for what she used in her own dialect. Even if it is so, it does not matter and on that account, the identity of the assailant is not blurred. The exact spot where she was set ablaze, whether just outside the building or inside, does not in the present case affect the credibility of her dying declaration. Vajrala Paripurnachary v. State of A.P., (1998) 6 SCC 463: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1468: AIR 1998 SC 2680.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi, C.J. and K.T. Thomas, J. [Date of decision: 28-7-1998]

[8024] — Ss. 304-B and 302 — Bride burning — Dying declaration — Homicidal death — Statement made before doctor — Deceased sustaining 90 per cent burn injuries — On inquiries made by doctors examining the deceased in hospital, deceased revealing that accused-appellant (deceased's husband's sister) had burnt her — Deceased had opportunity to see the appellant at the time of occurrence — Doctors deposing that deceased was in a fit state of mind and was able to speak albeit with difficulty when she spoke to them though soon thereafter her condition deteriorated and she was unable to speak — Note also made by doctor in this regard in police 'yadi' — Held, testimony of the doctors about fitness of the deceased as supported by the documentary evidence cannot be discarded merely because the deceased was severely burnt and her condition was poor at the time she spoke to the doctors — Further, in absence of strained relation of deceased with appellant, possibility of false involvement of the appellant cannot be accepted even assuming that her husband who was near her cot had prompted her to do so — Non recording of deceased's statement in question-answer form, in the circumstances of the case, would also not affect its probative value — Held, dying declaration acceptable and sufficient to found conviction of the appellant — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32

As regards involvement of the appellant besides the oral evidence of the two medical men there are contemporaneous documents which go to show that the deceased made the statements that the appellant had burnt her. The mere fact that she had suffered 90 per cent burns and her general condition was poor is no reason to discard the testimony of the medical men when they say that she was in a fit state of mind and was able to make the dying declaration in question. (Paras 7 and 10)

As no relative from the side of her parents was present, the possibility of tutoring by them must be ruled out. The theory that her husband prompted her to name the appellant because his relations with the appellant were strained must be brushed aside as devoid of merit. Except the appellant's statement in this behalf, there is no other evidence — no such foundation was laid in the cross-examination of the investigating officers. Since it is conceded that the appellant's relations with the deceased were not bad, it is difficult to understand why the latter should falsely involve her, assuming her husband did prompt her, and allow her real tormentor to escape. (Para 8)

The failure on the part of the medical men to record her statements in question and answer form cannot in any manner affect the probative value to be attached to their evidence. The doctors merely questioned her for the limited purpose of stating the history of the case. Even otherwise having regard to her condition they could not have questioned her in detail. In such circumstances the fact of the statements being cryptic is understandable. (Para 11). Padmaben Shamalbhai Patel v. State of Gujarat, (1991) 1 SCC 744: 1991 SCC (Cri) 275: (1991) 1 GLH 125: (1991) 1 Crimes 349.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi, V. Ramaswami and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-1991]

Bankey Lal v. State of U.P., (1971) 3 SCC 184: 1971 SCC (Cri) 253, relied on

Rabi Chandra Padhan v. State of Orissa, (1980) 1 SCC 240: 1980 SCC (Cri) 211, distinguished

[8025] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Bride burning — Dying declaration — Alleged statement made under precarious condition, on facts, was not worthy of credence — Cause of death stated to have been revealed by dying daughter only to her mother — Husband and in-laws implicated — Condition of deceased precarious — No medical certification of her fitness to make the statement — Also there was no independent corroboration — Mother's evidence disbelieved — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32

The appellant, his parents and brother were tried for the offence that they burnt the appellant's wife. The deceased's mother stated that her daughter, before passing away, had told her that all the accused burnt her by sprinkling kerosene on her. There was also an interpolated allegation in the FIR regarding demand for dowry. All the accused were tried under Sections 304-B (dowry death) and 498-A (cruelty) read with Sections 34 and 120-B of the Indian Penal Code. The High Court set aside the conviction of the parents and the brother under Sections 304-B but maintained their conviction under Section 498-A. The appellant's conviction under Section 304-B was enhanced and he was held guilty under Section 302 (murder). In addition, he was also convicted under Section 498-A. The appellant challenged his conviction under Sections 302 and 498-A.

The question was whether dying declaration stated to have been made by the deceased daughter to her mother was worthy of credence.

Held :

Dying declaration ought to be treated with care and caution since the maker of the statement cannot be subjected to any cross-examination. The dying declaration in the present case has not been made to any doctor or any independent witness, but to the mother who is said to have arrived at the place only in the morning. The mother admittedly is an interested witness, though that by itself would not discredit the evidence tendered in court but the fact remains that the doctor's evidence, considering the nature of burns, creates a considerable doubt as to whether such a statement could be made half-an-hour before the death. Reliance of the High Court on such a dying declaration has to be scrutinized with a certain degree of caution. The victim is stated to have quietly told her mother the reason of her death, a few minutes before passing away. This is not acceptable, more so, having regard to declaration being made to the mother only. It is also not conceivable that the husband along with other members of his family would start pouring kerosene on the girl, as if each was prepared with a can of kerosene to pour simultaneously. This would not only lead to absurdity but reliance on such a vague statement would be opposed to basic tenets of law. Further, it is in evidence that the deceased was extensively burnt, including her mouth, nose and lips. If this is so, evidence of the mother stands belied. The doctor's evidence shows that the victim could not have survived more than 10 minutes, in view of the extensive burns on her. This is another reason for not accepting her mother's evidence. (Paras 17 and 18)

Another fact to be noted is that the police had already arrived when mother and brother of victim reached. It was unlikely that the police would not make any attempt to have deceased's statement on arrival, instead to wait for mother's arrival. There is also no medical certification that the deceased was in a fit condition to make the declaration. (Paras 18 and 19)

Dying declarations shall have to be dealt with care and caution. Corroboration is not essential but it is expedient to have the same, in order to strengthen the evidentiary value of declaration. Independent witnesses may not be available but there should be proper care and caution in the matter of acceptance of such a statement as trustworthy evidence. Dying declaration to mother, in the present case, is not worth acceptance. High Court fell into error in accepting the mother's statement in this case. (Para 20). Arvind Singh v. State of Bihar, (2001) 6 SCC 407: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1148: AIR 2001 SC 2124: 2001 Cri LJ 2556.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2001]

(7)(viii) Dying declaration (contd.)

Tarachand Damu Sutar v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1962 SC 130: (1962) 1 Cri LJ 196; Munnu Raja v. State of M.P., (1976) 3 SCC 104: 1976 SCC (Cri) 376: AIR 1976 SC 2199; K. Ramachandra Reddy v. Public Prosecutor, (1976) 3 SCC 618: 1976 SCC (Cri) 473: AIR 1976 SC 1994; Khushal Rao v. State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 22: 1958 Cri LJ 106; Koli Chunilal Savji v. State of Gujarat, (1999) 9 SCC 562: 2000 SCC (Cri) 432; Maniram v. State of M.P., 1994 Supp (2) SCC 539: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1487; Paparambaka Rosamma v. State of A.P., (1999) 7 SCC 695: 1999 SCC (Cri) 1361, relied on

But see the five-judge Bench decision in Laxman v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 6 SCC 710 and also Sohan Lal v. State of Punjab, (2003) 11 SCC 534: 2004 SCC (Cri) 226 and Ravi v. State of T.N., (2004) 10 SCC 776

[8026] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Accidental homicide or death — Dying declaration declaring burn injuries to be accidental — Admissibility/genuineness of — Factors for admissibility and presuming genuineness, stated — Such admissibility would depend upon proximate factual concurrence of the dying declaration, maker's voluntariness and fitness/capacity to narrate such facts and court's satisfaction in this regard — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32(1)

The admissibility of dying declaration as to any of the circumstances which resulted in his death must have some close and proximate relation with the actual occurrence and such proximity would depend upon the circumstances of each case. The dying declaration should be voluntary and should not be prompted and physical as well as mental fitness of the maker is to be proved by the prosecution. For placing implicit reliance on dying declaration, the court must be satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind to narrate the correct facts of the occurrence. If the capacity of the maker of the statement to narrate the facts is found to be impaired, such dying declaration should be rejected, as it is highly unsafe to place reliance on it. (Paras 42 and 32)

In the present case, both the trial court as well as the High Court rightly rejected the genuineness and credibility of the alleged dying declaration to prove the defence version that the deceased made the said statement to DW 2 and she died because of accidental death. The alleged dying declaration (Ext. D-4) suffers from a number of basic infirmities and such dying declaration cannot be found admissible and accepted as a genuine document. (Paras 37 and 36). Kanti Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 12 SCC 498: AIR 2009 SC 2703: (2009) 2 APLJ 95 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: L.S. Panta and B. Sudershan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-4-2009]

Ghurphekan v. State of U.P., (1972) 3 SCC 361: 1972 SCC (Cri) 531; Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, relied on

Gaffar Badshaha Pathan v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 10 SCC 589: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2037, clarified

[8027] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Two dying declarations — First declaration indicating that the deceased died of accidental burns while the second one indicating that the deceased on being unable to bear the dowry demand and harassment meted out by the appellants, committed suicide by setting herself ablaze — Conviction by courts below relying on second declaration and rejecting the first one — Propriety — First declaration recorded by Magistrate after following proper procedure and taking necessary precautions, held, reliable — No reason to discard the same — Second declaration recorded by a police constable about 10 minutes after the first one — Doubt as to the need for recording of — That apart, no proper procedure followed and necessary precautions taken while recording it — Held, it was more appropriate to place reliance on the first declaration — Thus, presumption under S. 113-B, Evidence Act, stood rebutted by contents of the first declaration — Even a harassed wife can get burnt accidentally, and so her death would not attract S. 304-B — Conviction under S. 304-B set aside — However, charge under S. 498-A, held, established — Conviction thereunder upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-B and 32(1) — CrPC, 1973, S. 428

The second dying declaration (Ext. P-25) recorded by PW 11, the Head Constable came into existence about 10 minutes after the first dying declaration (Ext. P-28) was recorded by the Munsif Magistrate. There is doubt as to the need for recording the statement when the Munsif Magistrate on a request made by the doctor had already recorded a dying declaration as per Ext. P-28. Further, when PW 11 recorded the statement, he did not take the precautions which the Munsif Magistrate took in sending the relatives of the victim out of the room. He also did not put preliminary questions to find out whether the patient was in a fit state of mind to make the said statement. The doctor in Ext. P-25 only states that the patient is conscious. In the said statement, the victim had stated that she set fire to herself being unable to bear the harassment meted out to her by her husband and in-laws. This part of the statement in Ext. P-25 directly contradicts her earlier statement made to the Munsif Magistrate as per Ext. P-28. Ext. P-28 is a document which exculpates the accused person of an offence under Section 304-B IPC. The Magistrate by the preliminary questions had satisfied himself that the victim was in a fit condition to make the statement. From the questions put by the Munsif Magistrate, and from the answers given by the victim to the said questions as recorded by the Munsif Magistrate, there is no reason to come to any conclusion other than that this statement is made voluntarily and must be reflecting the true state of facts. The courts below have fallen in error in rejecting Ext. P-28 and preferring to place reliance on Ext. P-25; more so in the background of the fact that no suggestion whatsoever has been made either to the Munsif Magistrate or to the doctor as to the correctness of Ext. P-28. On facts, it is more appropriate to place reliance on Ext. P-28 rather than on Ext. P-25. If that be so, the death of the deceased will have to be related to her having suffered burn injuries accidentally and succumbed to the same. Since the death of the deceased occurred within 3 years of her marriage, a presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act is available to the prosecution, but as the contents of Ext. P-28 have been accepted as true, that presumption stands rebutted. In such a case unless the prosecution is able to establish that the cause of death was not accidental, by evidence other than the dying declarations, the prosecution case under Section 304-B IPC as against the appellants must fail. (Paras 6 and 8)

However, the prosecution has established frequent demands for dowry as also harassment of the victim because of the non-payment of dowry. Hence, the material produced by the prosecution is sufficient to base a conviction under Section 498-A IPC. (Para 9). Nallam Veera Stayanandam v. Public Prosecutor, High Court of A.P., (2004) 10 SCC 769: AIR 2004 SC 1708.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-2004]

(ix) Other issues relating to proof

[8028] — Ss. 304-B and 201 — Bride burning — Appreciation of evidence — Dead body not found — Effect — No dispute about death of P — It was not defence of accused that P was still living — Death by burning proved — Accused persons admittedly had cremated her body — Absence of dead body is of no consequence — Conviction justified (Para 12). Dasrath v. State of M.P., (2010) 12 SCC 198: AIR 2010 SC 2592: 2010 Cri LJ 4382.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-2010]

[8029] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A, 306 and 324 — Dowry death — Cause of death — Relevance — Deceased allegedly subjected to cruelty and harassment by her husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law in connection with dowry demand soon after marriage — Mother-in-law giving her a drati blow causing incised wound on forehead of the deceased — Deceased committing suicide on the same day by consuming naphthalene balls — Death resulting due to poisoning and not due to injury caused by her mother-in-law — Held, injuries found on the deceased not being cause of her death, despite there being demand of dowry, the offence would not attract mischief of S. 304-B — Mother-in-law is liable to be convicted under S. 324 — On facts, there being no evidence of harassment within the meaning of Expln. (b) of S. 498-A none of the accused can be held liable for offences under S. 306 — In view of old age of the mother-in-law instead of imposing substantive imprisonment a fine of Rs 3000 imposed — Fine, if realised, directed to be paid to the parents of the deceased — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 113-A and 113-B. State of H.P. v. Nikku Ram, (1995) 6 SCC 219: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1090: AIR 1996 SC 67.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Ramaswamy and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1995]

[Ed.: In the present case the Court has acquitted the accused mother-in-law under Section 304-B on the ground that the injuries inflicted by her could not have caused the death of the deceased (para 7). In para 14 it has been laid down that "having held the injuries as found on the person of the deceased could not have caused her death, despite the demand being dowry, the offence would not attract the mischief of Section 304-B".

It is submitted that causing of fatal injury is not an essential ingredient of Section 304-B. The following essentials of Section 304-B have been laid by the Supreme Court in Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191:

(1) The death of a woman should be caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances; (The expression "otherwise than under normal circumstances" covers suicide);

(2) Such death should have occurred within 7 years of her marriage;

(3) She must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband; and

(4) Such cruelty or harassment should be for or in connection with demand for dowry. (emphasis added)

In effect the observations in the present case would, it is submitted, render Section 304-B otiose and superfluous. The situation of fatal injury being the cause of the death was already covered by IPC in Section 302 and Section 304. The new Section 304-B was designedly inserted to cover dowry deaths, which have been held to include cases of suicide (provided other ingredients are satisfied). It is another matter that the Court in the present case recorded as a finding of fact (para 16) that there was no reliable evidence to hold that the deceased was being harassed within the meaning of Expln. (b) of Section 498-A and so on this ground alone the Court acquitted all the accused persons under Sections 304-B and 306 IPC.]

(x) Witnesses

[8030] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Essential ingredients — "Dowry" — Meaning — Restated — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 2 (Paras 12 and 13). Tarsem Singh v. State of Punjab, (2008) 16 SCC 155: AIR 2009 SC 1454: (2009) 73 AIC 50 (SC): (2009) 2 ECrN 520 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-12-2008]

[8031] — S. 304-B — Evidence of ordinary, not much educated and poor witness — How to be appreciated — Held, it is a basic principle that when evidence is of an ordinary witness, who is not much educated and comes from a poor strata of society not having advantage of education, then evidence of such witness has to be appreciated as a whole — Court has to keep in mind all these aspects — Witness is not expected to remember every small thing, more particularly when he faces the shock of the untimely death of his near relative — In the instant case, trial court gravely erred in not accepting evidence of PW 1 (maternal uncle of the deceased) without any justifiable reason (Para 27). Govindaraju v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 14 SCC 236: (2009) 79 AIC 113 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 3457: (2009) 2 APLJ 203 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-5-2009]

[8032] — S. 304-B — Testimony of a witness — Conviction on the basis of — Held, not necessary for a witness to make a statement in consonance with the wording of the section of the statute — Indisputably before an accused is found guilty for commission of an offence, the court must arrive at a finding that the ingredients thereof have been established — Statement of a witness for the said purpose must be read in its entirety — In the instant case, evidence brought on record by the prosecution clearly suggest that deceased had all along been subjected to harassment or cruelty only on the ground that her father had not given enough dowry at the time of marriage — For proving the said fact it was not necessary that demand of any particular item should have been made (Paras 24 to 26). Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2007) 14 SCC 176: AIR 2008 SC 332: (2007) 59 AIC 115 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417; Ram Badan Sharma v. State of Bihar, (2006) 10 SCC 115: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 166; T. Aruntperunjothi v. State, (2006) 9 SCC 467: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 528, relied on [8033] — Ss. 304-B and 315 — Dowry death — Dowry demands — Credibility of — Held, demand of dowry was clearly proved and conclusively established by the prosecution — Defence version that since the accused already possessed scooter as well as a motorcycle, there was no necessity of making demand for scooter, rightly rejected by courts below — Matter of common knowledge that even if in-laws have several things in their house, they still demand dowry — Material contradiction in deposition of PWs as to the occasion of making dowry demand, found inconsequential (Paras 1, 8 to 14, 28, 29 and 30). Kishan Singh v. State of Punjab, (2007) 14 SCC 204: AIR 2008 SC 233: (2007) 60 AIC 206 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

[8034] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry demand — Evidence to establish — Evidence of inimical relatives of deceased wife — Manner of scrutiny of — Material contradictions and inconsistencies — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 4 (Paras 48 to 52)

While dealing with a judgment of acquittal, an appellate court must consider the entire evidence on record, so as to arrive at a finding as to whether the views of the trial court were perverse or otherwise unsustainable. Even though the appellate court is entitled to consider, whether in arriving at a finding of fact, the trial court had placed the burden of proof incorrectly or failed to take into consideration any admissible evidence and/or had taken into consideration evidence brought on record contrary to law; the appellate court should not ordinarily set aside a judgment of acquittal in a case where two views are possible, though the view of the appellate court may be the more probable one. The trial court which has the benefit of watching the demeanour of the witnesses is the best judge of the credibility of the witnesses. (Para 38)

In exceptional cases where there are compelling circumstances, and the judgment under appeal is found to be perverse, the appellate court can interfere with the order of acquittal. The findings of fact recorded by a court can be held to be perverse if the findings have been arrived at by ignoring or excluding relevant material or by taking into consideration irrelevant/inadmissible material. A finding may also be said to be perverse if it is against the weight of evidence, or if the finding so outrageously defies logic as to suffer from the vice of irrationality. (Para 40)

The High Court did not dislodge the reasons given by the trial court for acquittal and dealt with the case very casually, adopting a very superficial approach to the whole matter. The High Court did not make any attempt to appreciate the evidence with accuracy and erroneously reversed the findings of the trial court which were based on the evidence on record and for which detailed reasons had been assigned. (Para 59). Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta (Dr.) v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 13 SCC 657.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-11-2010]

Balak Ram v. State of U.P., (1975) 3 SCC 219: 1974 SCC (Cri) 837; Shailendra Pratap v. State of U.P., (2003) 1 SCC 761: 2003 SCC (Cri) 432; Budh Singh v. State of U.P., (2006) 9 SCC 731: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 377; S. Rama Krishna v. S. Rami Reddy, (2008) 5 SCC 535: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 645; Arulvelu v. State, (2009) 10 SCC 206: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 288; Ram Singh v. State of H.P., (2010) 2 SCC 445: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1496; Babu v. State of Kerala, (2010) 9 SCC 189: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1179, relied on [8035] — Ss. 304-B(1) and 498 — Independent witness — Testimony of — Evidentiary value — In absence of reason to disbelieve them, testimony of such witnesses accepted. Rajayyan v. State of Kerala, (1998) 4 SCC 85: 1998 SCC (Cri) 811: AIR 1998 SC 1211: 1998 Cri LJ 1633.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.S.M. Quadri, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1998]

(8) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/ Other punishment

[8036] — S. 304-B — Award of minimum statutory sentence of seven years under — Interference with, by Supreme Court by grant of special leave under Art. 136 — Impermissibility. Sham Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 5 SCC 512: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 488.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.N. Agrawal, A.K. Mathur and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-2006]

[8037] — S. 304-B — Commutation of sentence — When warranted — Appellant convicted under S. 304-B and sentenced to undergo life imprisonment — Appeal dismissed by High Court — Propriety — Held, High Court was justified in upholding the conviction after considering all the pros and cons of the matter — However, on the alternative submission of the appellant, that in any view of the matter, the trial court was not justified in awarding extreme penalty of life imprisonment, the sentence is reduced to seven years' RI (Paras 2 to 4). Ashok Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2007) 9 SCC 433.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-2007]

[8038] — S. 304-B — Compensation — Whether could be awarded where no fine for the offence was statutorily prescribed — Trial court imposing a sentence of ten years' RI and a fine of Rs 2000 for an offence under S. 304-B IPC — High Court confirming the conviction of the accused-appellant but instead of setting aside the fine not warranted by law, enhancing it to Rs 2 lakhs with a direction that the same to be paid to the complainant when recovered — Contention by the respondent that the same be treated as compensation under S. 357(3) — Held, unsustainable — Enhancement of the amount by the High Court without any discussion, can only be treated as enhancement of fine already imposed — Moreover, in absence of any finding or observation by the High Court that the complainant had suffered any loss or injury, direction to pay Rs 2 lakhs on assumption that the amount was paid as dowry to the accused, without any evidence, unwarranted — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 — CrPC, 1973, S. 357(3)

Section 357 CrPC is an enabling provision by which the court can give direction to the effect that when passing judgment, sentence imposed for payment of fine can be recovered and applied either for defraying the expenses properly incurred in the prosecution or in payment to any person as compensation for any loss or injury caused by the offence, when compensation can be recoverable by such person in a civil court. Section 357(1) is applicable in cases where fine forms the part of the sentence whereas under Section 357(3), the court can direct the convicted person to pay compensation even in cases where the fine does not form part of the sentence. It is not possible to accept the contention that even if the court is not competent to impose fine as a punishment, the court can still order compensation under Section 357(3) CrPC and the direction of the High Court to pay Rs 2 lakhs to the complainant is to be treated as a direction given under Section 357(3). Here the trial court had imposed a sentence of fine of Rs 2000 and the High Court enhanced the quantum of fine without there being any further discussion on the matter. Therefore, the direction to the appellant to pay a fine of Rs 2 lakhs could only be treated as enhancement of fine already imposed by the Sessions Judge. Moreover, Section 357(3) contemplates a situation where the complainant has suffered any loss or injury and for which the accused person has been found prima facie responsible. There is no such finding or observation by the High Court. Of course, the daughter of the complainant passed away but the direction of the High Court to pay Rs 2 lakhs was on the assumption that the complainant had paid Rs 2 lakhs as part of the dowry to the appellant. There is no evidence to show that such an amount was given to the appellant. On the other hand, the appellant's counsel contended that it was a love marriage between the appellant and the deceased and no dowry passed between the parties. The direction to pay compensation under Section 357(3) is on the assumption of basic civil liability on the part of the person who committed the offence to redress the victim or his dependants by payment of compensation. The complainant could not have filed a civil suit for recovery of the dowry amount, if any, as the payment itself was illegal and prohibited under law. In any view of the matter, the direction of the High Court to pay a sum of Rs 2 lakhs as fine and the default sentence was not warranted by law and is set aside. (Para 33). Arun Garg v. State of Punjab, (2004) 8 SCC 251: (2004) 3 KLT 435.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

[8039] — S. 304-B — Compounding of offence — Factors to be considered — Non-compoundable offence — Submission that 21 years had elapsed since the date of occurrence, a settlement had been arrived at by and between the parties and in fact the cousin of the deceased was married to appellant whereafter an application for compromise had also been filed, hence conviction under S. 304-B, Penal Code, may be condoned — Held, an offence under S. 304-B of the Penal Code is not compoundable — Why and under what circumstances the cousin of the deceased, if any, had been married to appellant not known — Only because such a marriage had allegedly taken place, the same by itself cannot be a ground for rejecting the prosecution story — Said grounds also do not entail imposition of lesser sentence than the minimum statutory sentence of 7 years' RI — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 320 and 321 (Paras 30 and 31). Rameshwar Dass v. State of Punjab, (2007) 14 SCC 696: AIR 2008 SC 890: 2008 Cri LJ 1400: (2008) 62 AIC 242 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-12-2007]

[8040] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Conviction for — Reduction of sentence — When warranted — Unnatural death of the victim within three years of her marriage with Appellant 1 — Demand for dowry, on account of which the deceased was constantly harassed by her husband and in-laws, established — Hence held, their conviction under S. 304-B as recorded by courts below, justified — However, considering the old age of the in-laws, sentence of imprisonment for 10 years reduced to 7 years (Paras 2, 3 and 4). Taiyab Khan v. State of Bihar (Now Jharkhand), (2005) 13 SCC 455: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 263: AIR 2006 SC 673: 2006 Cri LJ 544.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Arun Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-2005]

[8041] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Quantum of punishment — Deterrent punishment — Held, ought to be prescribed by court, keeping in view background to the problem and the intention of legislature of eradicating the evil practice of giving and taking dowry — Being a crime against society no leniency is warranted — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 — Statement of Objects and Reasons (as amended by Act 43 of 1986)

While considering the quantum of punishment, the court must keep in view the background and intendment of the legislature so as to eradicate the evil practice of giving and taking dowry by prescribing deterrent punishment. This was clear from the Objects and Reasons of the amending Act of 1986 (Act 43 of 1986). Consequent upon this amendment Section 304-B IPC was introduced in which the punishment is imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life. Despite stringent law, the evil practice of giving and taking of dowry remains unabated. On the contrary, it is menacingly on the increase. In the instant case, the conduct of the accused is of vital importance while considering the quantum of punishment. (Para 25)

The practice of giving and demanding dowry is a social evil having deleterious effect on the entire civilized society and has to be condemned by the strong hands of the judiciary. Despite various amendments providing deterrent punishment with a view to curb the increasing menace of dowry deaths, the evil practice of dowry remains unabated. The court cannot be oblivious to the intendment of the legislature and the purpose for which the enactment of the law and amendment has been effected. Every court must be sensitized to the enactment of the law and the purpose for which it is made by the legislature. It must be given a meaningful interpretation so as to advance the cause of interest of the society as a whole. No leniency is warranted to the perpetrator of a crime against the society. Keeping these overall accounts and circumstances in the background, a deterrent punishment is called for. (Para 25)

Respondent-Accused 1 is accordingly convicted under Section 304-B IPC and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for ten years. The impugned order of the High Court is set aside and the appeals filed by the State are allowed to the extent indicated. (Para 25). State of Karnataka v. M.V. Manjunathegowda, (2003) 2 SCC 188: 2003 SCC (Cri) 467: AIR 2003 SC 809: 2003 Cri LJ 900.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-2003]

[8042] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Sentence — Both accused women (mother-in-law of deceased and wife of brother of deceased's husband) — Second accused a young lady of 20 years — Though cruelty on the part of both the accused established but no evidence as to cause of death and actual part played by the second accused found — In the circumstances, held, a minimum sentence of seven years RI would serve the ends of justice — Hence sentence of life imprisonment altered to seven years RI for both appellants. Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191: AIR 1991 SC 1226.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-1990]

[8043] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Sentence — Extreme punishment of life imprisonment should be awarded in rare cases and not in every case — Absence of direct connection of the accused with the death of the deceased is a mitigating factor but since accused was a police employee meant to check bride killing cases, High Court awarding life imprisonment — Supreme Court, however, reducing it to 10 years' RI

Section 304-B IPC only raises presumption and lays down that minimum sentence should be seven years but it may extend to imprisonment for life. Therefore awarding extreme punishment of imprisonment for life should be in rare cases and not in every case. Hem Chand v. State of Haryana, (1994) 6 SCC 727: 1995 SCC (Cri) 36: AIR 1995 SC 120.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.B. Sawant, G.N. Ray and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1994]

[8044] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Sentence — Mitigating circumstance — Age — Sentence of life imprisonment imposed by courts below modified to 10 years' RI considering that appellant husband was young at time of alleged occurrence (Paras 30 and 31). G.V. Siddaramesh v. State of Karnataka, (2010) 3 SCC 152.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : P. Sathasivam and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision : 5-2-2010]

Hem Chand v. State of Haryana, (1994) 6 SCC 727: 1995 SCC (Cri) 36, followed [8045] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Sentence — Remission — Entitlement to — *Government Order dt. 14-8-2002 Pt. A related to "remission of balance of sentence of imprisonment for life as on 15-8-2002" — Benefit under Pt. A excluded in respect of "offences under S. 304-B IPC" — Pt. A of G.O., held, is wholly inapplicable in this case, where sentence was seven years' RI and not life imprisonment — Pt. B of G.O. relates to special remission of one year to prisoners who have been convicted by courts of criminal jurisdiction in State of Punjab and confined in jail as on 15-8-2002 — Exclusion list did not refer to offences under S. 304-B IPC — Hence, special remission of one year was available to convict sentenced to seven years' RI under S. 304-B IPC — Supreme Court, while disposing of the criminal appeal [*Dharam Chand case, (2008) 15 SCC 513], overlooked the fact that benefit of remission under Pt. B of G.O. was in fact available to Accused 1 and 2 — Judgment modified accordingly — CrPC, 1973, S. 433-A — Punjab Government G.O. dt. 14-8-2002 (Paras 8 to 10). Reshma Devi v. State of Punjab, (2010) 12 SCC 121.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.V. Raveendran and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-8-2010]

Dharam Chand v. State of Punjab, (2008) 15 SCC 513: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1107, modified [8046] — S. 304-B — Dowry death — Sentence — Remission — Permissibility — Accused convicted under S. 304-B and sentenced to 7 years' RI and to pay fine of Rs 5000 each with default stipulation — High Court, while confirming conviction of Accused 1 and 2, observing that Accused 1 (Respondent 2) was stated to have already undergone imprisonment and directing his release — Government Order dated 14-8-2002 under S. 432 CrPC r/w Art. 161 of the Constitution expressly stipulating that remission would not apply to offences under S. 304-B IPC, among some other offences — Held, High Court erred in doing so — Incident occurred on 14-3-2000 and the High Court decided the matter on 31-10-2006 — Hence seven years were not over — Seven years from the date of incident would be over only on 13-3-2007 — Accused also not entitled to benefit of Government Order — Respondent 2 therefore directed to surrender to custody and remain in jail for a period of seven years — If such benefit was granted to Accused 2, she also directed to surrender to custody till the period of seven years was over — CrPC, 1973, S. 432 — Punjab Government G.O. dated 14-8-2002 — Constitution of India, Art. 161 (Paras 1 and 17 to 23). Dharam Chand v. State of Punjab, (2008) 15 SCC 513: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1107: AIR 2009 SC 1304.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-11-2008]

[8047] — S. 304-B — Sentence — Bride burning — Mitigating factors — Exercise of power under Art. 142 by Supreme Court — Presence of husband at home at the time of occurrence and his failure to save his wife from burning not alleged by prosecution — Marriage survived for a short period — Co-accused mother-in-law and brother-in-law of deceased acquitted — Appellant husband a young person of 48 years — Having regard to facts and circumstances of the case and in exercise of power under Art. 142, held, ends of justice would be met by awarding minimum sentence of seven years to appellant

As regards the quantum of punishment, a few factors must be taken note of. It is not even the case of the prosecution that at the time of occurrence, the appellant-accused was present at home and he failed to protect or save the deceased from burning which caused her death. Secondly, the marriage itself has survived for a short period of nearly one-and-a-half year. The cruelty and harassment to the deceased was stated to be caused by the mother-in-law and brother-in-law of the deceased. These two accused have been acquitted by the High Court for total lack of evidence. Neither the State nor the complainant has preferred an appeal against judgment of acquittal. The accused is a young person of 48 years. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and in exercise of powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India to do complete justice, ends of justice would be met by awarding him the minimum sentence provided in law i.e. seven years of rigorous imprisonment for an offence under Section 304-B IPC. (Paras 48 and 49). Ashok Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2010) 12 SCC 350: AIR 2010 SC 2839: 2010 Cri LJ 4402: (2010) 93 AIC 129 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. B.S. Chauhan and Swatanter Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-7-2010]

[8048] — S. 304-B — Sentence — Held, court not empowered to impose fine as a punishment under — High Court erred in enhancing the fine imposed by the trial court to Rs 2 lakhs, instead of setting aside the same

For the offence under Section 304-B, the court is not empowered to impose fine as a punishment. Section 304-B is one of the few sections in the Indian Penal Code where imposition of fine is not prescribed as a punishment. The High Court which confirmed the conviction of the appellant under Section 304-B instead of setting aside the fine, which is not warranted by law, enhanced the sum to Rs 2 lakhs and also directed that the fine, if recovered, shall be paid to the complainant. The appellant could have been sentenced only to a punishment which is prescribed under the law. As no fine could be imposed as punishment for offence under Section 304-B, the direction to the appellant to pay a fine of Rs 2 lakhs was wholly illegal. (Paras 30 and 31). Arun Garg v. State of Punjab, (2004) 8 SCC 251: (2004) 3 KLT 435.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

[8049] — S. 304-B — Sentence under — Reduced by High Court to three years — Held, it was unfortunate that High Court failed to notice that the minimum sentence under S. 304-B(2) is seven years (Para 18). Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT), Delhi, (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016: AIR 2003 SC 2865: (2003) 105 DLT 705: 2003 Cri LJ 3711.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-2003]

[8050] — Ss. 304-B and 201 — Dowry death — Unnatural death of deceased within seven years of her marriage established — Conviction and sentence — Propriety — Demand of dowry which is the sine qua non for applying S. 304-B not established so far as Appellants 1 and 3 were concerned — Hence, their conviction could not be maintained — But, so far as Appellant 2 was concerned, the evidence was clear and cogent and therefore his conviction by courts below upheld — However, his sentence under S. 304-B altered from 10 years to 7 years — Sentence of three years imposed in respect of S. 201 not interfered with (Para 9). Thakkan Jha v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 348.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2004]

[8051] — Ss. 304-B and 302 — Dowry death — Sentence — Sentence of life imprisonment — Sustainability — Appellant not charged under S. 302 — No evidence as to actual role played by appellant husband in death of deceased — Hence held, punishment of 10 years would serve ends of justice (Paras 25 and 26). Amar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (2010) 9 SCC 64: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1130: AIR 2010 SC 3391: (2010) 94 AIC 137 (SC): (2010) 3 UPLJ 125 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Lodha and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-8-2010]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191, followed [8052] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Dowry death — Quantum of sentence — Courts below categorically finding that victim died of burns and that it was not suicide — Demand of dowry and consequent harassment meted out to deceased established — Held, conviction under Ss. 304-B & 498-A, and Ss. 3 & 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 cannot be faulted — However, sentence reduced to eight years — Further held, though notice issued was limited to quantum of sentence only, but considering the fact that High Court had failed to independently analyse the evidence and had only reiterated the analysis made by trial court, evidence analysed by Supreme Court — Accusations found to be established by cogent evidence — Minor variations cannot affect credibility of prosecution version — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3 and 4 (Paras 15 to 18). Rajesh Pandey v. State of U.P., (2009) 5 SCC 132: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 616.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-2009]

[8053] — Ss. 304-B/498-A — Dowry death — Bride burning — Conviction upheld and 7 years' RI awarded — Prayer for reduction of sentence on basis of sentence already undergone — Sustainability — Held, minimum sentence provided under S. 304-B is seven years' RI and that was the sentence awarded by High Court — Thus, prayer rejected (Para 18). Uday Chakraborty v. State of W.B., (2010) 7 SCC 518.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Dr. B.S. Chauhan and Swatanter Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision : 8-7-2010]

(9) Death sentence — When warranted

See also SECTIONS 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER — 'D.35.(f)(ii)8. Dowry death/Bride burning', in Vol. 2

[8054] — Ss. 304-B and 302 — Death sentence whether proper — Bride burning not relating to dowry death — Though accused-husband poured kerosene and lighted matchstick resulting in injuries to his wife but immediately thereafter he made attempts to save her, took her to his relations and to a doctor and also informed her parents indicating that he tried to save her — Deceased's daughter though sleeping along with the deceased remained unhurt — Circumstances thus show that accused had lost his balance due to certain happening — In the circumstances held, High Court erred in enhancing sentence of life imprisonment awarded by trial court to sentence of death — CrPC, 1973, S. 368. Jagdish v. State of Rajasthan, 1989 Supp (1) SCC 20: 1989 SCC (Cri) 126.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.L. Oza, B.C. Ray and K. Jagannatha Shetty, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-1-1988]

[8055] — Ss. 304-B, 498-A and 302 — Dowry death/Bride burning — Sentence — Incapacitating deceased woman by strangulation and setting her afire by her husband and mother-in-law on failure to meet dowry demand — Held, it really falls in category of rarest of rare cases and deserves death sentence under S. 302 — But since no charge under S. 302 was levelled and High Court convicted accused under Ss. 304-B, 498-A IPC and S. 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act and awarded life sentence under S. 304-B, 3 years' RI under S. 498-A IPC and 6 months' RI under S. 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, no interference therewith called for — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 4

Indian society has become a sick society. This is evident from the large number of cases coming up in the Supreme Court (and also in almost all courts in the country) in which young women are being killed by their husbands or by their in-laws by pouring kerosene on them and setting them on fire or by hanging/strangulating them. What is the level of civilisation of a society in which a large number of women are treated in this horrendous and barbaric manner? What has our society become-this is illustrated by this case. (Para 3)

Although bride burning or bride hanging cases have become common in our country the expression "rarest of rare" as referred to in Bachan Singh case, (1980) 2 SCC 684 does not mean that the act is uncommon, it means that the act is brutal and barbaric. Bride killing is certainly barbaric. Such cases of bride burning fall in the category of the rarest of rare cases, and hence deserve death sentence. (Para 8)

Crimes against women are not ordinary crimes committed in a fit of anger or for property. They are social crimes. They disrupt the entire social fabric. Hence, they call for harsh punishment. Unfortunately, what is happening in our society is that out of lust for money people are often demanding dowry and after extracting as much money as they can they kill the wife and marry again and then again they commit the murder of their wife for the same purpose. This is because of total commercialisation of our society, and lust for money which induces people to commit murder of the wife. The time has come when we have to stamp out this evil from our society, with an iron hand. (Para 9). Satya Narayan Tiwari v. State of U.P., (2010) 13 SCC 689.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-2010]

Bachan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1980) 2 SCC 684: 1980 SCC (Cri) 580, explained

[8056] — Ss. 304-B/34, 302/120-B, 201/34, 498-A/34 and 316 — Dowry death — Sentence — Held, dowry death does not fall within the category of "rarest of rare" cases — Case of a murder most foul — Head of the deceased severed and her body cut into nine pieces for causing disappear- ance of the evidence relating to her murder — Sentence of death commuted to RI for life imprisonment — But in view of loathsome, revolting and dreaded device to cause disappearance of dead body maximum sentence of 7 years' RI for offence under Ss. 201/34 maintained and directed to run consecutively, and not concurrently, after the sentence of life imprisonment had run its course — CrPC, 1973, S. 354(3)

The present case cannot be placed in that category which could be regarded as the "rarest of the rare" type. This is so because dowry death has ceased to belong to that species of killing. The increasing number of dowry deaths would bear this.

But it is a fit case where, for the offence under Sections 201/34, the sentence awarded, which is RI for seven years being the maximum for a case of the present type, should be sustained, in view of what had been done to cause disappearance of the evidence relating to the commission of murder — the atrocious way in which the head was severed and the body was cut into nine pieces. These cry for maximum sentence under Sections 201/34. Not only this, the sentence has to run consecutively, and not concurrently. To show the courts strong disapproval of the loathsome, revolting and dreaded device adopted to cause disappearance of the dead body. Ravindra Trimbak Chouthmal v. State of Maharashtra, (1996) 4 SCC 148.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-1996]

(10) Other issues

[8057] — Ss. 304-B, 201 and 498-A — Dowry death — Intimation of death to bride's family not a mitigating factor if cruelty proved — Death due to electrocution within seven years of marriage — Six accused persons including husband and in-laws of the deceased charged under Ss. 304-B and 201 IPC — Acquittal of three accused by Sessions Court becoming final as not appealed in High Court — Remaining three accused, in appeal before High Court, acquitted of the charge under Ss. 304-B and 201 but convicted under S. 498-A — Once the High Court comes to the conclusion on the basis of evidence adduced that the deceased during her lifetime was subjected to harassment on account of insufficient dowry and demands were being made before her death occurred, held, intimation of death by the in-laws to the parents of deceased would not absolve the accused of their ill-motive when necessary ingredients of the offence under S. 304-B are established — Setting aside the acquittal, accused convicted under S. 304-B and sentenced to 7 years' imprisonment — However, acquittal in respect of offence under S. 201 upheld — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374 and 386. Balwant Singh v. Partap Singh, (2000) 9 SCC 352: 2001 SCC (Cri) 318.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik, R.P. Sethi and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-3-2000]

[8058] — Ss. 304-B and 306 — Revision — Natural justice — Complainant's right to be heard on the question of age of accused — Respondent 2, accused for commission of offences under Ss. 304-B and 306 IPC, seeking protection by claiming to be a juvenile — High Court, while exercising its revisional jurisdiction under S. 53 could not pass an order prejudicial to any person without affording him opportunity of hearing — Hence, complainant (appellant herein) should have been heard — Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, Ss. 53 proviso and 2(k)

The appellant (brother of the deceased) had lodged an FIR against Respondent 2 (accused) for commission of offences under Sections 304-B and 306 IPC, in relation to the death of the appellant's sister (accused's wife). Without any documentary or other evidence, the accused claimed himself to be a juvenile, having not attained the age of eighteen years and sought protection under Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (the Act). Since the claim of the accused was disputed, the Magistrate directed the accused to produce evidence/certificate in support of his claim, which he failed to do. Without recording any opinion whether the accused was a juvenile or not, the Magistrate referred him to the Juvenile Justice Board (the Board). The Board, after referring Respondent 2 (accused) to a Medical Board for examination and determination of age and taking into consideration, the documentary evidence adduced by the prosecution and observing his physical built-up, concluded that the accused was above eighteen years of age on the date of occurrence. Accordingly, the Child Rehabilitation Centre was directed to transfer the accused to the regular jail with a direction to its Superintendent to produce the accused before the Magistrate.

By the impugned order, the High Court allowed the revision petition preferred by the accused under Section 53 of the Act against the order passed by the Board. The Single Judge held that on the date of commission of the alleged offences, the accused was a "juvenile" within the meaning of the Act. For this the High Court relied on the finding of the Medical Board as guiding in terms of Rule 22(5)(iv) of the Jharkhand Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2003.

Allowing the appeal of the appellant complainant, Held:

The High Court was clearly in error in reversing the order passed by the Board by declaring the accused (Respondent 2 herein) to be a juvenile without giving an opportunity of hearing to the appellant complainant (brother of the deceased). When the statutory provisions mandate and principles of natural justice demand a pre-decisional hearing, the High Court was not justified in not granting an opportunity of hearing to the appellant complainant. As per Section 53 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (the Act), the High Court, in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction, cannot pass an order, prejudicial to any person without affording him a reasonable opportunity of being heard. (Paras 15, 12 and 14). Babloo Pasi v. State of Jharkhand, (2008) 13 SCC 133.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-2008]

P. Sundarrajan v. R. Vidhya Sekar, (2004) 13 SCC 472: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 345, impliedly relied on [8059] — Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Appeal against conviction — Plea of juvenility before Supreme Court — Reiterated, may be raised for first time before Supreme Court — Appellant convicted by trial court — Conviction confirmed by High Court — Appellant claimed that he was minor on date of commission of offence — School leaving certificate and marksheet produced — Appellant's plea opposed on ground of delay in making a claim, school certificate obtained after conviction and that appellant had to establish a strong prima facie case in support of his claim to persuade Supreme Court to direct an enquiry — Appellant contended that issue was raised before High Court in support of bail application — Appellant was granted bail, as his age was found 17 years in medical examination — Held, ordinarily such a claim should be made at earliest opportunity before trial court or at least before High Court, but this omission, may not by itself disentitle accused to do so before Supreme Court — Burden of making out a prima facie case for directing an enquiry has been discharged in instant case — Material referred to above (school leaving certificate and marksheet) is yet to be verified and its genuineness and credibility determined — Trial court directed to hold an enquiry and submit a report expeditiously — Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, Ss. 2(k) and 7-A (Paras 7 to 12). Jitendra Singh v. State of U.P., (2010) 13 SCC 523.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and T.S. Thakur, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-2010]

Jayendra v. State of U.P., (1981) 4 SCC 149: 1981 SCC (Cri) 809; Gopinath Ghosh v. State of W.B., 1984 Supp SCC 228: 1984 SCC (Cri) 478; Bhoop Ram v. State of U.P., (1989) 3 SCC 1: 1989 SCC (Cri) 486; Brij Lal v. Prem Chand, 1989 Supp (2) SCC 680: 1991 SCC (Cri) 394; Bhola Bhagat v. State of Bihar, (1997) 8 SCC 720: 1998 SCC (Cri) 125; Hari Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 13 SCC 211: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 987; Pawan v. State of Uttaranchal, (2009) 15 SCC 259: (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 522, followed [8060] — S. 304-B r/w S. 34 — Transfer of criminal proceedings — On facts, validity of — Deceased allegedly committed suicide at her matrimonial house — Appellant 2, father-in-law of deceased, informed police of C about the unnatural death, pursuant whereto, case under S. 174 CrPC registered — However, father of deceased lodged a complaint with police of K, on the basis of which an FIR under S. 304-B r/w S. 34 IPC lodged, because of which, Appellant 1, husband of deceased, arrested — Appellants' application under S. 482 CrPC, inter alia, contending that police station of K had no jurisdiction to conduct an investigation in view of S. 177 CrPC and that FIR having already been lodged by Appellant 2, the second FIR not maintainable, dismissed by High Court — Sustainability — In view of the fact that police at C had already been informed, although stricto sensu, the same cannot be construed to be an FIR within the meaning of provisions of S. 154 CrPC, and thus, FIR lodged at police station of K was maintainable — Held, in the peculiarity of instant case, on specific defence of appellant-accused about mental illness of deceased, the interest of justice would be subserved if investigation and consequent trial is transferred to police officer-in-charge, police station of C — All materials collected by police station of K, shall be transferred to officer-in-charge, police station of C — Officer-in-charge, police station of K, to ensure that in the event a charge-sheet is filed and cognizance of offence under S. 304-B IPC is taken, witnesses available within his jurisdiction shall be produced — CrPC, 1973, S. 406 (Paras 1, 5 to 7, 20 and 21). Premkumar v. State of Kerala, (2008) 17 SCC 264: (2009) 75 AIC 12 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-12-2008]

Y. Abraham Ajith v. Inspector of Police, (2004) 8 SCC 100: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2134; Asit Bhattacharjee v. Hanuman Prasad Ojha, (2007) 5 SCC 786: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 31; Naresh Kavarchand Khatri v. State of Gujarat, (2008) 8 SCC 300: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 614, relied on

Vidhya Devi v. State of Haryana, (2004) 9 SCC 476: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1473, considered

SECTION 306 — ABETMENT OF SUICIDE

See also Ss. 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER, 'C.1. Abetment of suicide (S. 306)' in Vol. 2

Synopsis

(1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability 214

(2) Ss. 306, 304-B and 498-A — Relative scope 215

(3) The charge and S. 306 216

(4) Ingredients of abetment of suicide 220

  (i) Broadly 220

  (ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of 222

  (iii) Presumption of abetment of suicide (S. 113-A, Evidence Act) 233

  (iv) Temperament of person committing suicide 238

(5) Trial, Proof and Other issues 240

  (i) Acquittal justified 240

  (ii) Circumstantial evidence 242

  (iii) Conviction justified 242

  (iv) Dying declaration 243

  (v) Other issues 243

  (vi) Quashment or continuance of proceedings 245

  (vii) Relatives of husband 248

  (viii) Suicide note 249

(6) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief 251

— S. 306 See Ss. 80 and 306

See also Ss. 107 and 306

See also Ss. 201 and 306

See also Ss. 202 and 306

See also Ss. 302, 304, 306 and 309

See also Ss. 306 and 107

See also Ss. 306 and 498-A

See also Ss. 330, 342 and 306

See also Ss. 498-A, 107 and 306 and S. 113-A, Evidence Act, 1872

See also Ss. 498-A and 306 r/w S. 34

— Ss. 306/34 See Ss. 84, 306/34 and 498-A/34

See also Ss. 376/34 and 306/34

— Ss. 306/304-B See Ss. 498-A, 306/304-B r/w S. 34

(1) Generally — Object, Nature, Scope and Applicability

[8061] — S. 306 — Punishment for abetment of suicide — Held, valid — There being no right to die under Art. 21 and as such S. 309 being not violative of Art. 21, S. 306 cannot be declared unconstitutional on the ground that assisting in committing suicide amounts to assisting in enforcement of the right to die under Art. 21 — Abetment of suicide and attempt to commit suicide are two distinct and separate offences and S. 306 would be operative even in absence of S. 309

Abetment of attempt to commit suicide is outside the purview of Section 306 and it is punishable only under Section 309 read with Section 107 IPC. Assisted suicide and assisted attempt to commit suicide are made punishable for cogent reasons in the interest of society. Such a provision is considered desirable to also prevent the danger inherent in the absence of such a penal provision. The abettor is viewed differently, inasmuch as he abets the extinguishment of life of another person, and punishment of abetment is considered necessary to prevent abuse of the absence of such a penal provision.

Assisted suicides outside the category of physician-assisted suicide or euthanasia have no rational basis to claim exclusion of the fundamental principles of sanctity of life. Abetment of suicide or attempted suicide is a distinct offence which is found enacted even in the law of the countries where attempted suicide is not made punishable. Section 306 IPC enacts a distinct offence which can survive independent of Section 309 in the IPC. The arguments which are advanced to support the plea for not punishing the person who attempts to commit suicide do not avail for the benefit of another person assisting in the commission of suicide or in its attempt. Therefore, the argument that "right to die" being included in Article 21 of the Constitution as held in P. Rathinam declaring Section 309 IPC to be unconstitutional, any person abetting the commission of suicide by another is merely assisting in the enforcement of the fundamental right under Article 21; and, therefore, Section 306 IPC penalising assisted suicide is equally violative of Article 21 has no substance and is not acceptable. Gian Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1996) 2 SCC 648: 1996 SCC (Cri) 374: AIR 1996 SC 946.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.S. Verma, G.N. Ray, N.P. Singh, Faizan Uddin and G.T. Nanavati, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1996]

[8062] — Ss. 306 and 309 — Living will — Concept of — Permissibility of, in State of Texas in USA — Constitution of India, Art. 21

In no other State in USA is euthanasia or physician-assisted death legal. Michigan banned euthanasia and assisted suicide in 1993, after Dr. Kevorkian (who became known as "Doctor Death") began encouraging and assisting in suicides. He was convicted in 1999 for an assisted suicide displayed on television, his medical licence was cancelled, and he spent 8 years in jail. (Para 61)

In 1999 the State of Texas enacted the Texas Futile Care Law which entitles Texas hospitals and doctors, in some situations, to withdraw life support measures, such as mechanical respiration, from terminally ill patient when such treatment is considered futile and inappropriate. However, Texas has not legalised euthanasia or physician-assisted death. In California, though 75% of people support physician-assisted death, the issue is highly controversial in the State Legislature. Forty States in USA have enacted laws which explicitly make it a crime to provide another with the means of taking his or her life. (Para 62)

In 1977 California legalised living wills, and other States soon followed suit. A living will (also known as advance directive or advance decision) is an instruction given by an individual while conscious specifying what action should be taken in the event he/she is unable to make a decision due to illness or incapacity, and appoints a person to take such decisions on his/her behalf. It may include a directive to withdraw life support on certain eventualities. (Para 62). Aruna Ramachandra Shanbaug v. Union of India, (2011) 4 SCC 454.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-3-2011]

(2) Ss. 306, 304-B and 498-A — Relative scope

See also under S. 304-B and S. 498-A

[8063] — Ss. 306 or 304-B — Scope of offence under S. 306 r/w S. 113-A Evidence Act and offence under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B Evidence Act compared — To constitute offence under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B Evidence Act it is necessary that cruelty or harassment must have caused "soon before her death" or earlier but under S. 306 r/w S. 113-A Evidence Act there is no such requirement — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A

Section 306 IPC when read with Section 113-A of the Evidence Act has only enabled the court to punish a husband or his relative who subjected a woman to cruelty (as envisaged in Section 498-A IPC) if such woman committed suicide within 7 years of her marriage. It is immaterial for Section 306 IPC whether the cruelty or harassment was caused "soon before her death" or earlier. If it was caused "soon before her death" the special provision in Section 304-B IPC would be invocable, otherwise resort can be made to Section 306 IPC. (Para 16)

No doubt, Section 306 IPC read with Section 113-A of the Evidence Act is wide enough to take care of an offence under Section 304-B also. But the latter is made a more serious offence by providing a much higher sentence and also by imposing a minimum period of imprisonment as the sentence. In other words, if death occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within 7 years of the marriage as a sequel to the cruelty or harassment inflicted on a woman with demand of dowry, soon before her death, Parliament intended such a case to be treated as a very serious offence punishable even up to imprisonment for life in appropriate cases. It is for the said purpose that such cases are separated from the general category provided under Section 306 IPC (read with Section 113-A of the Evidence Act) and made a separate offence. (Para 17). Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48: AIR 2001 SC 2828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-2001]

Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191; Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935, relied on

Followed in Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2007) 14 SCC 176

[8064] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Difference between these two provisions, held, is that of intention — Under the latter, cruelty committed by the husband or his relations drag the woman concerned to commit suicide, while under the former provision suicide is abetted and intended (Para 11). Sushil Kumar Sharma v. Union of India, (2005) 6 SCC 281: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1473: AIR 2005 SC 3100: 2005 Cri LJ 3439.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-7-2005]

[8065] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Merely because accused is found guilty under S. 498-A he should not necessarily be held to be guilty under S. 306 on the basis of the same evidence

Sections 498-A and 306 IPC are independent and constitute different offences. Though, depending on the facts and circumstances of an individual case, subjecting a woman to cruelty may amount to an offence under Section 498-A and may also, if a course of conduct amounting to cruelty is established leaving no other option for the woman except to commit suicide, amount to abetment to commit suicide. However, merely because an accused has been held liable to be punished under Section 498-A IPC it does not follow that on the same evidence he must also and necessarily be held guilty of having abetted the commission of suicide by the woman concerned. Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: AIR 2001 SC 3837.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand, C.J. and R.C. Lahoti and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-2001]

[8066] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Trial court convicting appellant under S. 306 for abetting commission of suicide by his wife but acquitting him from charge under S. 498-A — In appellant's appeal High Court finding that though appellant had harassed the deceased for not begetting children and caused mental agony, there was no evidence that just before her death there was harassment by appellant of the deceased and accordingly setting aside conviction under S. 306 but on the basis of evidence regarding harassment convicting him under S. 498-A — Held, in absence of State appeal against trial court's order of acquittal under S. 498-A, High Court's order of conviction under S. 498-A cannot be sustained — Factually also such conviction not sustainable — High Court's order of acquittal of offence under S. 306 being not illegal or perverse, no interference called for — Hence appellant entitled to be acquitted. E. Balakrishnama Naidu v. State of A.P., 1992 Supp (3) SCC 70: 1992 SCC (Cri) 980: AIR 1992 SC 1581: 1992 Cri LJ 2328.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-11-1991]

(3) The charge and S. 306

See also '(2) Ss. 306, 304-B and 498-A — Relative scope', above

See also under S. 304-B, above

[8067] — Ss. 306 and 302 — Conviction under S. 306 on the basis of presumption under S. 113-A of the Evidence Act, 1872, while the charge was framed under S. 302 — Legality — In absence of prejudice to the accused, held, legal

The appellants contended that since the charge was for the offence punishable under S. 302 IPC, the accused were not put to notice to meet a charge also under S. 306 IPC and, were thereby prejudiced, presumption under S. 113-A of Evidence Act could not be drawn and consequently a conviction under S. 306 could not be awarded. Rejecting this contention

Held :

The facts and circumstances of the case have been put forward against the accused under S. 313 CrPC and when there was a demand for dowry it cannot be said that the accused are prejudiced because the cross-examination of the witnesses, as well as the answers given under S. 313 of the CrPC would show that they had enough of notice of the allegations which attract S. 306 Indian Penal Code also. That apart, what all S. 113-A of Evidence Act says is that the court, having regard to the other circumstances of the case can presume. Therefore, the circumstances in this case would show that the accused have been demanding dowry even within a short period after the marriage and the deceased also had to live in her parent's house and it is the husband who went and brought her back. The deceased followed him and unfortunately, the incident has taken place. Lakhjit Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 173: 1994 SCC (Cri) 235.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-1993]

Principle affirmed in Dalbir Singh v. State of U.P., (2004) 5 SCC 334

[8068] — Ss. 306 and 304-B — Accused not charged under S. 306 — If can be convicted under S. 306 — Contention that even if accused cannot be convicted under S. 304-B, he can still be convicted under S. 306, cannot be accepted — This cannot be claimed in every case — Such plea cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time before the Court unless charge under S. 306 is made out from materials on record

In the case of unnatural death of a married woman as in a case of this nature, the husband could be prosecuted under Sections 302, 304-B and 306 of the Penal Code. Omission to frame charges under Section 306 in terms of Section 215 of the Code of Criminal Procedure may or may not result in failure of justice, or prejudice the accused. It cannot, therefore, be said that in all cases, an accused may be held guilty of commission of an offence under Section 306 of the Penal Code wherever the prosecution fails to establish the charge against him under Section 304-B thereof. Moreover, ordinarily such a plea should not be allowed to be raised for the first time before the court unless the materials on record are such which would establish the said charge against the accused. (Paras 19, 24 and 25). Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417: AIR 2006 SC 680: (2006) 37 AIC 104 (SC): 2006 Cri LJ 554.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-2005]

K. Prema S. Rao v. Yadla Srinivasa Rao, (2003) 1 SCC 217: 2003 SCC (Cri) 271; Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48, relied on

[8069] — Ss. 306, 304-B and 498-A — Omission or defect in framing of charge — Held, accused may still be convicted for offence actually committed and proved on basis of evidence on record, so long as accused has not been misled by any error or omission in framing the charge and no failure of justice has been occasioned — Accused Respondent 1 being charged under S. 304-B IPC (dowry death) and alternatively under S. 498-A IPC — Statement of charges unambiguously stating that deceased had been subjected to such cruelty and harassment "as did drive her to commit suicide" — Trial court convicting Respondent 1 under S. 498-A IPC only — Held on facts, presumption under S. 113-A, Evidence Act could be raised and Respondent 1 could be convicted under S. 306 IPC as the case had all ingredients necessary for framing charge under that section — No need to remit the matter for retrial — Accused had had enough opportunity for defence — High Court ought to have allowed appeal of appellant parents of deceased — Respondent 1 sentenced to 5 years' RI and Rs 20,000 fine under S. 306 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 221, 215 and 218

The deceased, K, was married on 26-6-1988, to respondent-Accused 1, S, who worked as a Branch Postmaster in the village where the two lived. Dowry given at the marriage consisted of Rs 15,000 cash and jewellery worth Rs 15,000. Five acres of land and a house site were also given as a customary gift in the nature of stridhana, known as "pasupukumkuma", to the bride by her father for her maintenance. After K and Accused 1, S, had been married for about three or four months, S began demanding that K transfer the ownership of the land and house site to him. K refused and trouble between the two then began. S subjected K to harassment, including preventing delivery of letters from her father and sister to her, by taking advantage of his position in the village post office. At one point K got hold of the letters and gave them to her father. After this incident K was thrown out of the matrimonial home with a warning that she must return the letters. K, unable to bear her situation, consumed poison (an insecticide called endo-sulphan) on 22-10-1989, the day after she had been forced out of the house. PW 4 witnessed the scene when K was thrown out; S took her back when prevailed upon by PWs 3 and 4. PW 4 saw S taking K to hospital the next day. PW 4 informed the father of K, PW 1, who came immediately to the house and found that K was dead. PW 1 lodged an FIR within eight hours on the same day.

Accused 1 and his parents, Accused 2 and 3, were charged under Section 304-B IPC for causing the dowry death of K and in the alternative under Section 498-A IPC for cruelty and such harassment as to drive K to commit suicide.

The trial court convicted all the accused under Section 498-A IPC, acquitted them of the offence under Section 304-B, and sentenced them to 2 years' RI and fine of Rs 500 each.

A criminal revision petition was filed on behalf of the parents of the deceased against the acquittal of the accused under Section 304-B. The accused filed an appeal challenging their conviction. The revision petition was dismissed by the High Court and the judgment and order of the trial court confirmed in respect of Accused 1. The appeal of his parents was allowed and they were acquitted.

Before the Supreme Court, the State of A.P. filed a criminal appeal against the acquittal of the parents and the parents of the deceased filed criminal appeal praying for conviction of all three accused of the offence under Section 304-B.

Dismissing the State's appeal and allowing that of the parents of the deceased,

Held :

Mere omission or defect in framing the charge does not disable the criminal court from convicting the accused for the offence which is found to have been proved on the evidence on record. The Code of Criminal Procedure has ample provisions to meet a situation like the present one. From the statement of charge framed under Section 304-B and in the alternative Section 498-A IPC it is clear that all facts and ingredients for framing charge for offence under Section 306 IPC existed in the case. The mere omission on the part of the trial Judge to mention Section 306 IPC with Section 498-A IPC does not preclude the court from convicting the accused for the said offence when found proved. In the alternate charge framed under Section 498-A IPC, it has been clearly mentioned that the accused subjected the deceased to such cruelty and harassment as to drive her to commit suicide. The provisions of Section 221 CrPC take care of such a situation and safeguard the powers of the criminal court to convict an accused for an offence with which he is not charged although on facts found in evidence, he could have been charged for such an offence. (Para 22)

The provision of sub-section (2) of Section 221 read with sub-section (1) of the said section can be taken aid of in convicting and sentencing Accused 1 of offence of abetment of suicide under Section 306 IPC along with or instead of Section 498-A IPC. (Para 23)

Section 215 CrPC allows the criminal court to ignore any error in stating either the offence or the particulars required to be stated in the charge, if the accused was not, in fact, misled by such error or omission in framing the charge and it has not occasioned a failure of justice. As provided in Section 215 CrPC omission to frame charge under Section 306 IPC has not resulted in any failure of justice. There is no necessity to remit the matter to the trial court for framing charge under Section 306 IPC and direct a retrial for that charge. The accused cannot legitimately complain of any want of opportunity to defend the charge under Section 306 IPC and a consequent failure of justice. The same facts found in evidence, which justify conviction of the appellant under Section 498-A for cruel treatment of his wife, make out a case against him under Section 306 IPC of having abetted commission of suicide by the wife. The appellant was charged for an offence of higher degree causing "dowry death" under Section 304-B which is punishable with minimum sentence of seven years' rigorous imprisonment and maximum for life. Presumption under Section 113-A of the Evidence Act could also be raised against him on the same facts constituting the offence of cruelty under Section 498-A IPC. No further opportunity of defence is required to be granted to the appellant when he had ample opportunity to meet the charge under Section 498-A IPC. (Paras 24 and 25)

It is significant that against confirmation of his conviction by the High Court under Section 498-A IPC, Accused 1 has not preferred any special leave to appeal to this Court. The facts found proved for his conviction and sentence under Section 498-A IPC, cannot now be questioned by him. It is therefore concluded that the same facts and evidence on which Accused 1 was charged under Section 498-A and Section 304-B, the accused can be convicted and sentenced under Section 306 IPC. There is no legal or procedural impediment in doing so. (Para 26)

The legislature has by amending the Penal Code and the Evidence Act made penal law more strident for dealing with and punishing offences against married women. Such strident laws would have a deterrent effect on the offenders only if they are so stringently implemented by the law courts to achieve the legislative intent. On the facts found and the offence proved to have been committed leading to suicidal death of the wife, imprisonment of two years with fine of Rs 500 is too light a sentence. For offence under Section 306 IPC the sentence may extend to ten years. In this case the husband is found to have harassed his wife to such an extent as to drive her to commit suicide. Sentence of five years would in our opinion, be a proper sentence for the crime with the amount of fine increased to Rs 20,000 to be paid as compensation to the parents of the deceased. On non-payment of fine Accused 1 shall suffer further sentence of one year. (Para 27)

Thus Criminal Appeal No. 1457 of 1995 preferred by the parents of the deceased is allowed and the conviction and sentence of Accused 1 under Section 498-A IPC is maintained. Respondent-Accused 1 is also convicted under Section 306 IPC and sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment with a fine of Rs 20,000 to be paid as compensation to the parents of the deceased. In the event of non-payment of fine, Accused 1 shall suffer imprisonment for a further period of one year. The sentences imposed under Section 498-A IPC and under Section 306 IPC shall run concurrently. (Para 28). K. Prema S. Rao v. Yadla Srinivasa Rao, (2003) 1 SCC 217: 2003 SCC (Cri) 271: AIR 2003 SC 11: 2003 Cri LJ 69.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.B. Shah, K.G. Balakrishnan and D.M. Dharmadhikari, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-10-2002]

[8070] — Ss. 306, 304-B and 498-A — Suicide — Dowry death — Charges framed under Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Absence of charge under S. 306 — Effect of — Held, inconsequential — On facts, father-in-law convicted under Ss. 498-A and 304-B, whereas mother-in-law convicted under S. 498-A but acquitted under S. 304-B — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 221, 218 and 215 (Paras 11, 9, 10 and 12). Kaliyaperumal v. State of T.N., (2004) 9 SCC 157: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1417: AIR 2003 SC 3828: 2003 Cri LJ 4321.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-2003]

K. Prema S. Rao v. Yadla Srinivasa Rao, (2003) 1 SCC 217: 2003 SCC (Cri) 271, followed

[8071] — Ss. 306, 498-A, 302 and 304-B — Non-framing of charge under S. 306 — Conviction under S. 306 in appeal — In view of S. 464 CrPC, held on facts, permissible — Non-framing of charge in respect of an offence — Power of appellate or revisional court to convict the accused for the said offence — Having regard to S. 464 CrPC, held, conviction possible if (i) the accused was aware of the basic ingredients of that offence, (ii) the main facts sought to be established against him were explained to him clearly, and (iii) he got a fair chance to defend himself — Hence, where charges were framed under Ss. 302, 498-A and 304-B IPC but not under S. 306 IPC, held on facts, accused could be convicted under S. 306 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 464 & 215, 386, 399 and 401

The accused-appellant faced trial in respect of charges under Sections 302, 498-A and 304-B IPC. He was convicted by the trial court under Sections 302 and 498-A, but acquitted of the charge under 304-B. In appeal, the High Court held that the charge under Section 302 IPC was not established and accordingly, acquitted the accused in respect of the said offence. The High Court further held that the accused was guilty under Section 306 IPC for having abetted commission of suicide by his wife. But in view of the fact that no charge under Section 306 IPC was framed against him, the High Court, relying upon Sangaraboina Sreenu v. State of A.P., (1997) 5 SCC 348, held that the accused could not be convicted for the said offence. The High Court noticed that a contrary view had been taken in an earlier decision in Lakhjit Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 173, but chose to rely upon the later decision having regard to the settled view that if there is conflict of opinion in two decisions of the Supreme Court rendered by Benches of equal strength, it is the later decision which has to prevail. Hence, in view of the said conflict of opinion in two decisions, the instant appeals were placed for hearing before the present three-Judge Bench.

The main question for consideration by the Supreme Court was whether the accused could be convicted under Section 306 IPC if a charge for the said offence had not been framed against him.

Partly allowing the appeal filed by the State but dismissing the one filed by the accused,

Held :

In view of Section 464 CrPC, it is possible for the appellate or revisional court to convict an accused for an offence for which no charge was framed unless the court is of the opinion that a failure of justice would in fact occasion. In order to judge whether a failure of justice has been occasioned, it will be relevant to examine whether the accused was aware of the basic ingredients of the offence for which he is being convicted and whether the main facts sought to be established against him were explained to him clearly and whether he got a fair chance to defend himself. (Para 17)

In the present case, the accused had started making a demand of dowry soon after marriage. Even after his father-in-law had given him a colour TV, a scooter and money for purchasing the flat, he did not feel satisfied and continued to harass his wife. He used to frequently taunt her that some of the items given by way of gift at the time of marriage were of poor quality and were not of his standard. He had also assaulted his wife and even his seven-year-old daughter on several occasions. It was in such circumstances that his wife took the extreme step of not only setting herself on fire, but also her two daughters, one of whom was only one-year old. The letter written by the wife just before taking such an extreme step speaks volumes about the treatment meted out to her by the accused. Therefore, the basic ingredients of the offence under Section 306 IPC have been established by the prosecution. The next question to be seen is whether the accused was confronted with the aforesaid features of the prosecution case in his statement under Section 313 CrPC. His statement runs into six pages where every aspect of the prosecution case referred to above was put to him. He also gave a long written statement in accordance with Section 233(2) CrPC wherein he admitted that the wife committed suicide. He also admitted that the scooter and colour TV were subsequently given to him by his in-laws but came out with a plea that he had paid money and purchased the same from his in-laws. There is no aspect of the prosecution which may not have been put to him. Therefore, in view of the material on record, the conviction under Section 306 IPC can safely be recorded and the same would not result in failure of justice in any manner. (Para 18). Dalbir Singh v. State of U.P., (2004) 5 SCC 334: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1592: AIR 2004 SC 1990: 2004 All LJ 1448: 2004 Cri LJ 2025.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu, Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan and G.P. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-2004]

Lakhjit Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 173: 1994 SCC (Cri) 235, affirmed

Sangaraboina Sreenu v. State of A.P., (1997) 5 SCC 348: 1997 SCC (Cri) 690, overruled

Willie (William) Slaney v. State of M.P., AIR 1956 SC 116: 1956 Cri LJ 291; Gurbachan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 623: 1957 Cri LJ 1009, relied on

[8072] — Ss. 306, 498-A and 304-B — Absence of charge under S. 306 — Conviction thereunder — Held on facts, permissible where sufficient material available on record to convict the accused — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 221, 218 and 215 — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A

Though no charge was framed under Section 306 IPC, that is inconsequential. On the facts of the case, even though it is difficult to sustain the conviction under Section 304-B IPC, there is sufficient material to convict the accused-appellants in terms of Section 306 IPC along with Section 498-A IPC. (Paras 15, 16 and 17). Hira Lal v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2003) 8 SCC 80: 2003 SCC (Cri) 2016: AIR 2003 SC 2865: (2003) 105 DLT 705: 2003 Cri LJ 3711.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-2003]

K. Prema S. Rao v. Yadla Srinivasa Rao, (2003) 1 SCC 217: 2003 SCC (Cri) 271, followed

[8073] — S. 306 r/w S. 34 and S. 107 — Abetment of suicide — Framing of charge — Essentials — Held, a person is said to have abetted in doing a thing, when he "instigates" others to do it — Further held, where the accused by his acts or by a continued course of conduct creates such circumstances that the deceased was left with no other option except to commit suicide, an "instigation" may be inferred — Appellant charged that he along with other two accused "in furtherance of common intention", mentally tortured JS (the deceased) and thereby abetted him to commit suicide — Apart from the suicide note, statements recorded by the police during investigation, showing that on account of business transactions with the accused, the deceased was put under tremendous pressure to do something which he was perhaps not willing to do — Prima facie*, the conduct of the appellant and his accomplices appeared such that the deceased was left with no other option except to end his life — Hence, impugned judgment upholding order of trial court framing charge for offence under S. 306 r/w S. 34, calls for no interference — CrPC, 1973, S. 228 & S. 397 r/w Ss. 401 & 482* (Paras 15, 19 and 21 to 24). Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.K. Jain and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2009]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088, followed

(4) Ingredients of abetment of suicide

Synopsis

(i) Broadly 220

(ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of 222

(iii) Presumption of abetment of suicide (S. 113-A, Evidence Act) 233

(iv) Temperament of person committing suicide 238

(i) Broadly

[8074] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Applicability — Ingredients for — Held, prosecution has to establish: (i) that a person committed suicide, and (ii) that such suicide was abetted by the accused i.e. there should be an "abetment" for the commission of the crime — Further held, direct involvement of the person or persons concerned in the commission of offence of suicide is essential to bring home the offence under S. 306 IPC (Paras 11 and 13). Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 367: AIR 2010 SC 1446: (2009) 162 DLT 257: (2009) 4 ECrN 640 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.K. Jain and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2009]

Concise Oxford English Dictionary; Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary, 7th Edn., followed

[8075] — S. 306 — Death must be by suicide and not homicide or accident. Brij Lal v. Prem Chand, 1989 Supp (2) SCC 680: AIR 1989 SC 1661.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Natarajan and A.M. Ahmadi, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1989]

[8076] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Abetment of suicide — Ingredients

It needs to be established that:

(i) the accused kept on irritating or annoying the deceased by words, deeds or wilful omission or conduct which may even be a wilful silence until the deceased reacted, or pushed or forced the deceased by his deeds, words or wilful omission or conduct to make the deceased move forward more quickly; and

(ii) that the accused had the intention to provoke, urge or encourage the deceased to commit suicide while acting in the manner noted above. Undoubtedly, presence of mens rea is the necessary concomitant of instigation. (Para 19). Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 367: AIR 2010 SC 1446: (2009) 162 DLT 257: (2009) 4 ECrN 640 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.K. Jain and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2009]

[8077] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Abetment of suicide — Ingredients of, reiterated — Proof thereof — Requisites for — Susceptibility of person concerned to commit suicide — Relevance — Suicide by wife — Held, abetment involves mental process of instigating or intentionally aiding a person in doing of a thing — There should be clear mens rea to commit offence under S. 306 — It requires commission of direct or active act by accused which led deceased to commit suicide seeing no other option and such act must be intended to push victim into a position that he commits suicide — In instant case, neither were there any instances of instigation attributable to appellants nor even any allegations thereof — No proximate link between event when deceased (wife of A-1) was denied permission to use family car and she, her husband and child were made to use public transport instead to reach Theme Park where whole family was headed, allegedly being told "if you want to go by a car, you have to bring a car from your family", and factum of sui- cide — Deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences of everyday life — Appellants not being even remotely connected with occurrence, held, cannot be convicted under S. 306 (Paras 44 to 49). M. Mohan v. State, (2011) 3 SCC 626.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Dalveer Bhandari and S.S. Nijjar, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-2011]

Gangula Mohan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 750: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 917; Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157; Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107; Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 367; V.P. Shrivastava v. Indian Explosives Ltd., (2010) 10 SCC 361: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1290; Madan Mohan Singh v. State of Gujarat, (2010) 8 SCC 628: (2010) 2 SCC (L&S) 682: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1048, relied on

[8078] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Commission of suicide must be proved to bring the offence under S. 306 — Burn injuries sustained by housewife causing death — Prosecution case that deceased committed suicide by setting herself on fire — Clear evidence such as suicide note or deceased's statement not available — Evidence regarding smell of kerosene from deceased's clothes, improbability of sustaining burn injuries accidentally from stove, deliberate delay in taking the deceased to hospital/nursing home, deliberately avoiding to take her to civil hospital and instead taking her to a nursing home where sufficient medical aid for burn injuries was not available and suppressing cries of the deceased by putting on loudly a radio or TV set found not reliable — Held on facts, commission of suicide not established with reasonable certainty — Hence conviction under S. 306 cannot be sustained

Reading Ss. 306 and 107 together it is clear that if any person instigates any other person to commit suicide and as a result of such instigation the other person commits suicide, the person causing the instigation is liable to be punished under S. 306 of the Indian Penal Code for abetting the commission of suicide. Before a person can be convicted of abetting the suicide of any other person, it must be established that such other person committed suicide. In the present case there was no satisfactory evidence on the basis of which a conclusion could be reached with the degree of certainty required in criminal law that the deceased committed suicide. Therefore, conviction of the accused (deceased's father-in-law and her husband) under S. 306 must be set aside. Wazir Chand v. State of Haryana, (1989) 1 SCC 244: 1989 SCC (Cri) 105: AIR 1989 SC 378: 1989 Cri LJ 809.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.C. Ray and M.H. Kania, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-12-1988]

[8079] — Ss. 306 and 309 — Held, "sui" means self and "cide" means killing, implying self-killing — Person committing suicide must commit it by himself irrespective of means employed by him in achieving his object (Para 37). M. Mohan v. State, (2011) 3 SCC 626.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Dalveer Bhandari and S.S. Nijjar, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-2011]

[8080] — Ss. 306 and 309 — "Suicide" — Meaning of, stated — Held, word "suicide" in itself is nowhere defined in IPC — However, "sui" means "self" and "cide" means "killing", thus implying an act of self-killing — In short, a person committing suicide must commit it by himself, irrespective of the means employed by him in achieving his object of killing himself (Para 7). Gangula Mohan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 750.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2010]

[8081] — Ss. 306, 309 and 116 — Commission of suicide and not mere attempt thereof is a condition precedent to hold a person, who abetted the same, guilty under S. 306 — Such person cannot be held guilty for offence of abetting an attempt to commit suicide under S. 306 with the aid of S. 116 since there cannot be abetment of an abetment

The person who attempts to commit suicide is guilty of the offence under Section 309 IPC whereas the person who committed suicide cannot be reached at all. Section 306 renders the person who abets the commission of suicide punishable for which the condition precedent is that suicide should necessarily have been committed. It is possible to abet the commission of suicide. But nobody would abet a mere attempt to commit suicide. (Para 7)

It is also not possible to convict a person under Section 116 linked with Section 306 IPC. The former is "abetment of offence punishable with imprisonment — if offence be not committed". But the crux of the offence under Section 306 itself is abetment. In other words, if there is no abetment there is no question of the offence under Section 306 coming into play. It is inconceivable to have abetment of an abetment. Hence there cannot be an offence under Section 116 read with Section 306 IPC. (Para 8)

It must, therefore, be held that the appellants cannot be convicted under Section 116 IPC either by linking it with Section 306 or with Section 304-B. Hence the conviction and sentence passed on them under Section 116 IPC is set aside. (Para 26). Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48: AIR 2001 SC 2828.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-2001]

(ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of

See also Ss. 107 et seq. in Vol. 1

[8082] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Benefit of doubt — Demand of money by appellant husband from in-laws to raise some construction — Held, had no direct nexus or immediate cause for commission of suicide by the wife and would not amount to abetment of commission of such suicide — Besides, appellant was not at home when incident occurred and co-accused (his brother) was acquitted by trial court — Hence, appellant entitled to benefit of doubt — Impugned judgment convicting appellant set aside (Paras 3 and 6 to 8). Devender Singh v. State of Haryana, (2009) 16 SCC 396.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-11-2006]

[8083] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Causation — Sexual jealousy between the appellant and the deceased — During quarrel the appellant allegedly remarking to the deceased to go and die — Thereafter the deceased going home and committing suicide — Held, suicide not direct result of the words uttered by the appellant — Sessions Court erred in summoning the appellant to face the trial — Proceedings against the appellant quashed. Swamy Prahaladdas v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 438: 1995 SCC (Cri) 943.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1995]

[8084] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Ingredients of offence, reiterated — Temperament of person committing suicide — Relevance — Deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive — Human sensitivity of each individual differs from the other — Different people behave differently in same situation

An enquiry was conducted by the Security Officer of the University, the appellant herein, regarding the theft of a mobile phone. A dispute arose between deceased and H. Deceased committed suicide during enquiry, by jumping in front of a train, leaving a suicide note. In the suicide note it is stated that he did not commit the theft and he had committed suicide because he was falsely implicated in the theft case of a mobile phone. On the basis of the suicide note an FIR under Section 306 IPC was registered. In the said FIR, the appellant was not even named as an accused. A report under Section 173 CrPC was submitted only against H. Charges were framed against H. Complainant, being the father of the deceased filed a private complaint alleging that the appellant S and M were responsible for abetting the suicide of his son. The trial court, on the basis of the said complaint, summoned the appellant as well as M to face trial under Section 306 IPC. The appellant, aggrieved by the framing of the charge moved the High Court in the revision petition which was dismissed. The appellant submitted that whether it would be just and fair to compel the appellant to face the rigmarole of a criminal trial in the absence of any credible material against him? When the appellant was in no manner connected with this case and there was no credible material to connect the appellant with the crime, in this view of the matter, according to the appellant, it would be a futile exercise to compel him to undergo the rigmarole of a criminal trial.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

Abetment involves a mental process of instigating a person or intentionally aiding a person in doing of a thing. Without a positive act on the part of the accused to instigate or aid in committing suicide, conviction cannot be sustained. The intention of the legislature and the ratio of the cases decided by the Supreme Court is clear that in order to convict a person under Section 306 IPC there has to be a clear mens rea to commit the offence. It also requires an active act or direct act which led the deceased to commit suicide seeing no option and that act must have been intended to push the deceased into such a position that he committed suicide. (Para 25)

In the instant case, the deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences which happen in our day-to-day life. Human sensitivity of each individual differs from the other. Different people behave differently in the same situation. (Para 26)

When the facts of this case are carefully scrutinised and critically examined in the light of the settled legal position the conclusion becomes obvious that no conviction can be legally sustained without any credible evidence or material on record against the appellant. The order of framing a charge under Section 306 IPC against the appellant is palpably erroneous and unsustainable. It would be travesty of justice to compel the appellant to face a criminal trial without any credible material whatsoever. Consequently, the order of framing charge under Section 306 IPC against the appellant is quashed and all proceedings pending against him are also set aside. (Para 27). S.S. Chheena v. Vijay Kumar Mahajan, (2010) 12 SCC 190: (2010) 3 UPLJ 223 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and K.S. Radhakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-8-2010]

Gangula Mohan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 750: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 917; Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157; Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107; Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 367, relied on [8085] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Maintaining flagrant and defiant illicit relationship with deceased's wife — Both convicted under S. 306 by trial court — Regarding appellant, conviction maintained by High Court — Sustainability — Clearly established that appellant had illicit relationship with wife of deceased — It was also not in dispute that appellant was visiting house of deceased to meet his wife — Appellant even went to house of deceased and loudly stated that he would continue to have relationship with her and would come to her house so long as she does not object to the same — He also took her away from house of her brother, despite his protest and keeping her with him for 4 days — Immediately after the said incident, deceased committed suicide — Deceased had stated that because of said insult and humiliation he does not like to live — Therefore, there was definitely a proximity and nexus between conduct and behaviour of appellant and wife of deceased with that of suicide committed by deceased — No interference called for with clear and unambiguous finding of fact by courts below that appellant was guilty under S. 306 (Paras 15 to 20). Dammu Sreenu v. State of A.P., (2009) 14 SCC 249: AIR 2009 SC 2532:: (2009) 79 AIC 6 (2) (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 3728.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. M.K. Sharma and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-5-2009]

[8086] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Mens rea — Burden of proof — Held, words uttered on spur of the moment or in a quarrel, without something more cannot be taken to have been uttered with mens rea — Onus is on the prosecution to show the circumstances which compelled the deceased to take the extreme step to bring an end to his life — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 101 and 102

It needs to be established that:

(i) the accused kept on irritating or annoying the deceased by words, deeds or wilful omission or conduct which may even be a wilful silence until the deceased reacted, or pushed or forced the deceased by his deeds, words or wilful omission or conduct to make the deceased move forward more quickly; and

(ii) that the accused had the intention to provoke, urge or encourage the deceased to commit suicide while acting in the manner noted above. Undoubtedly, presence of mens rea is the necessary concomitant of instigation. (Para 19). Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.K. Jain and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2009]

[8087] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Nature and standard of proof — Held on facts, the proof should have been much stronger than what was presented — Courts below should have weighed evidence with more care and a finding should have been arrived at that but for such ill-treatment by accused, deceased would not have committed suicide (Para 16). Mankamma v. State of Kerala, (2009) 10 SCC 164.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-2009]

[8088] — S. 306 — Abetment to suicide — Necessity of proof of direct or indirect acts of incitement (in cases not attracting presumption under S. 113-A, Evidence Act, 1872) i.e. after first seven years of marriage — Marriage more than a decade old when the alleged occurrence took place — Deceased, because of differences with her accused husband was residing with her parents — Only a month before occurrence she came to the accused's house on persuasion of her father-in-law and brother-in-law — No evidence led to show that the accused was in any manner responsible for suicide — So-called alleged torture done by the accused as spoken by the mother of the deceased related to the alleged incident about 4-5 years prior to the occurrence — No mark of violence revealed in post-mortem — Marks found were stated to be several days' old and there was no evidence to conclude that those injuries were inflicted by the accused — Held, in cases of alleged abetment of suicide there must be proof of direct or indirect acts of incitement to the commission of suicide — Mere fact that the husband treated the deceased wife with cruelty is not enough — Merely on the allegation of harassment, conviction in terms of S. 306 IPC is not sustainable — Ample evidence on record that the deceased was disturbed because she had not given birth to any child — Held, in such circumstances accused cannot be held liable (Paras 2, 4 and 7). Kishori Lal v. State of M.P., (2007) 10 SCC 797: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 701: AIR 2007 SC 2457: (2007) 3 KLT 259: (2007) 56 AIC 251 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-6-2007]

Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157, followed

(4)(ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of (contd.)

[8089] — S. 306 — Instigation to commit suicide — What constitutes — Constant and persistent dowry demands

Per Mukharji, J.

Constant dowry demands from newly wedded wife and consequent taunts, ill-treatment, cruel behaviour, torture and insinuation that she was carrying an illegitimate child are grave and serious provocations enough for an ordinary woman in the Indian set-up, to commit suicide.

Per Ray, J. (concurring)

The persistent demands of the accused for more money, their tortures and taunts amounted to instigation and abetment that compelled her to do away with her life. The finding of the trial court that a respectable lady cannot bear the false allegation levelled against her and this must have mentally tortured her, which was arrived at on a proper appreciation of evidence being the only view, must be upheld. Gurbachan Singh v. Satpal Singh, (1990) 1 SCC 445: 1990 SCC (Cri) 151: AIR 1990 SC 209: 1990 Cri LJ 562.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Sabyasachi Mukharji[1] and B.C. Ray[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-1989]

[8090] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Abetment of suicide — Essential ingredient of, held, is abetment — Employee of a company transferred but not joining and after remaining absent for 2 long years submitting resignation expressing grievance against stagnation in pay and unsatisfactory working conditions — Subsequently, his dead body found and on the basis of a suicide note recovered from the dead body, police registering a case against appellant — No allegation in the suicide note against the appellant, of causing any harm to the deceased or delaying his pay — Except referring to the name of the appellant at some places, the suicide note not making any allegation against the appellant to have committed any wilful act or omission or intentionally aiding or instigating the deceased in committing suicide — Even no allegation by the complainant of any harassment of the deceased by the appellant — In such circumstances, proceedings under S. 306 IPC against the appellant, held, were without any factual foundation and leading towards sheer harassment to the accused without any fruitful result — Hence, the case, held, was fit for the exercise of High Court's extraordinary power under S. 482 CrPC to quash the criminal proceedings — CrPC, 1973, S. 482

One P was an employee of a company. On 11-9-1999 he was transferred to another worksite but did not join. Two years later, he sent a letter of resignation expressing his grievance against stagnancy of salary and unfortunate circumstances. The Company accepted his resignation. On 16-2-2001, his dead body was found near the railway lines. Subsequently, on the basis of a suicide note allegedly recovered from the dead body, the brother of the deceased lodged a complaint with the police and consequently, a case under Section 306 IPC was registered against the appellant and some others. The suicide note indicated that the appellant herein and one PC had engaged him in several wrongdoings and that he had reported certain incidents to them. He also expressed dissatisfaction at the working conditions in the office and at the worksites. The appellant filed a petition under Section 482 CrPC for quashment of the said criminal proceedings but the High Court rejected that petition. The appellant then filed the present appeal by special leave.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

There is absolutely no averment in the alleged suicide note that the present appellant had caused any harm to him or was in any way responsible for delay in paying salary to the deceased. Although the deceased was very much dissatisfied with the working conditions at the workplace but he remained absent for two years and the suicide took place still later. It cannot be said that the present appellant had in any way instigated the deceased to commit suicide or he was responsible for the suicide of P. An offence under Section 306 IPC would stand only if there is an abetment for the commission of the crime within the meaning of Section 107 thereof. (Para 5)

In the suicide note, except referring to the name of the appellant at two places, there is no reference of any act or incidence whereby the appellant herein is alleged to have committed any wilful act or omission or intentionally aided or instigated the deceased in committing the act of suicide. (Para 6)

Moreover, the case registered against the appellant is without any factual foundation. The contents of the alleged suicide note do not in any way make out the offence against the appellant. The prosecution initiated against the appellant would only result in sheer harassment to the appellant without any fruitful result. Therefore, the present case is a fit one where the extraordinary power under Section 482. The criminal proceedings initiated against the appellant is therefore quashed. (Para 7). Netai Dutta v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 659: 2005 SCC (Cri) 543: AIR 2005 SC 1775: 2005 Cri LJ 1737.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-2005]

Distinguished in Didigam Bikshapathi v. State of A.P., (2008) 2 SCC 403

[8091] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Abetment of suicide — Instigation — What is — Held, words uttered in a fit of anger or emotion without any intention cannot be termed as instigation

On 29-5-2004, Respondent 1 (wife) married the deceased husband (son of the appellant complainant). On 3-6-2004 (the day after the nuptials), the wife abused the husband regarding his potency and ugliness (dark complexion). On 9-6-2004, the complainant father (the appellant) received a message from police station that the deceased had committed suicide. The appellant (father of the deceased husband), alleging that police did not register a case lodged a complaint on 26-8-2004 against the respondent wife for offence under Section 306 IPC. The High Court by the impugned order quashed the complaint under Sections 482 CrPC.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

It is fairly well settled that words uttered in a fit of anger or emotion without any intention cannot be termed as instigation. Additionally, there was no suicide note in the present case. Different versions of death were given. At the earlier stage, during investigation under Section 174 CrPC, the version was that the accused had accompanied the deceased to the native home, but subsequently stand was that the accused did not accompany the deceased because the latter was bad and ugly looking. Admittedly, marriage was an arranged one. If that is so, it is not believable that the deceased and the accused had not met. The alleged grievance of the accused that the deceased was an ugly man could not have been noticed after marriage, for the first time on 3-6-2004. The appellant (father) filed a complaint to the Superintendent of Police after about two-and-a-half months of the alleged incident. Allegation was that the police did not register a complaint. Ultimately, the complaint was filed on 26-8-2004. (Paras 12 and 13)

Though, normally threshold interference should not be made under Section 482 CrPC, in the aforesaid background, this is not a case where any interference is called for with the order of the High Court. (Para 14). Sonti Rama Krishna v. Sonti Shanti Sree, (2009) 1 SCC 554: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 578: AIR 2009 SC 923: (2008) 72 AIC 117 (SC): (2009) 1 ECrN 864 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-11-2008]

[8092] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Abetment of suicide — Requisites for — Alleged abetment of suicide of driver by his superior officer — Matters to be considered in such situation — Held, intention of accused to aid or to instigate or to abet the suicide must be proved — Suicide note of deceased implicating appellant-accused was more in the nature of departmental complaint, suggesting some mental imbalance on part of deceased which he himself described as depression — Even in so-called suicide note, it could not be said that accused ever intended that the driver under him should commit suicide or should end his life, and accused did not do anything in that behalf — Merely because a person had a grudge against his superior officer and committed suicide on account of that grudge, even honestly feeling that he was wronged, it would still not be a proper allegation for basing a charge under S. 306 IPC — Moreover, it is absurd to even think that a superior officer like the appellant would intend to bring about suicide of his driver and, therefore, abet the offence — Thus, ingredients for sustaining conviction under Ss. 306 and 107 not proved (Paras 10 to 13). Madan Mohan Singh v. State of Gujarat, (2010) 8 SCC 628: (2010) 2 SCC (L&S) 682: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1048.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-2010]

Netai Dutta v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 659: 2005 SCC (Cri) 543; State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335: 1992 SCC (Cri) 426, followed

[8093] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Applicability of S. 306 — Sensitivity to ordinary petulance, discord and differences in domestic life quite common to society to which victim belonged — Relevance — Abetment of suicide — Conviction reversed — Allegation against appellant-accused for harassing his deceased servant by accusing him of committing theft of gold ornaments, two days prior to servant's death — Appellant, allegedly, also demanded Rs 7000 from deceased, given in advance to him at the time he was kept in employment — Deceased, not able to bear harassment meted out to him, allegedly committed suicide — Appellant's conviction under S. 306, upheld by High Court — Sustainability — Held, abetment involves a mental process of instigating a person or intentionally aiding a person in doing of a thing —

(4)(ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of (contd.)

Without a positive act on part of accused to instigate or aid in committing suicide, conviction cannot be sustained — In order to convict a person under S. 306, there has to be a clear mens rea to commit offence — It also requires an active act or direct act which leads deceased to commit suicide seeing no option and this act must have been intended to push deceased into such a position that he commits suicide — Also, reiterated, if it appears to court that a victim committing suicide was hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences in domestic life quite common to society to which victim belonged and such petulance, discord and differences were not expected to induce a similarly circumstanced individual in a given society to commit suicide, conscience of court should not be satisfied for basing a finding that accused charged of abetting suicide should be found guilty — Herein, deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences which happen in day-to-day life — In facts and circumstances of case, none of the ingredients of offence under S. 306 made out — Hence, appellant's conviction, held, unsustainable (Paras 17, 13, 15 and 18). Gangula Mohan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 750.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2010]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107; Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605, relied on

[8094] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Whether husband abetted suicide of wife by instigating her to do so — Appreciation of evidence — "Instigation" — Meaning — There must be a reasonable certainty to incite the consequence — Having regard to the dying declaration and suicide note of the deceased along with all other circumstances of the case, held, offence under S. 306 not made out

The deceased was married to the accused-appellant and within one year of the marriage the deceased committed suicide by pouring kerosene on herself and setting herself on fire. In his statement under Section 313 CrPC the appellant husband stated that he did not ask for any dowry nor harassed his wife and that on the day of the incident when he was preparing to go to his duty, the deceased was pressing him to leave her at her sister's house but the appellant had asked her to go there alone and that when he was ready to leave he heard a cry of the deceased from kitchen and saw her burning. On hearing the cry of the deceased, a neighbour PW 3 entered the appellant's house and found that the deceased was standing and the accused was putting a bedsheet around her body with which he wrapped her. The deceased was naked and her body was burnt. The deceased in her diary had written a letter to her husband (addressed as Raja) on the day of occurrence as follows: "Raja this is my last love. You have made me free that I may do whatever I wish and go wherever I like. Raja, after coming in this house now I have no other place to go leaving you. You know, you have now made me free of the words I had given that I would not commit suicide. Now I would die peacefully ... Raja, this is my last word I do love you and you only, not anyone else."

In her dying declaration, recorded by an Executive Magistrate, she had stated that previously there had been quarrel between the deceased and her husband and on the day of occurrence she had a quarrel with her husband who had said that she could go wherever she wanted to go and that thereafter she had poured kerosene on herself and had set fire. The deceased died in the hospital. Partly allowing the appeal

Held :

The picture which emerges from a cumulative reading and assessment of the material available is this: presumably because of disinclination on the part of the accused to drop the deceased at her sister's residence the deceased felt disappointed, frustrated and depressed. She was overtaken by a feeling of shortcoming which she attributed to herself. She was overcome by a forceful feeling generating within her that in the assessment of her husband she did not deserve to be his life partner. The accused may or must have told the deceased that she was free to go anywhere she liked. Maybe that was in a fit of anger as contrary to his wish and immediate convenience the deceased was emphatic on being dropped at her sister's residence to see her. Presumably the accused may have said some such thing — you are free to do whatever you wish and go wherever you like. The deceased being a pious Hindu wife felt that having being given in marriage by her parents to her husband, she had no other place to go excepting the house of her husband and if the husband had "freed" her she thought impulsively that the only thing which she could do was to kill herself, die peacefully and thus free herself according to her understanding of the husband's wish. (Para 19)

The suicide note written in the diary was corroborated by the dying declaration. The conduct of the accused trying to put off the fire and taking his wife to the hospital also improbabilises the theory of his having abetted suicide. There is no evidence and material available on record wherefrom an inference of the accused-appellant having abetted the commission of suicide by his wife may necessarily be drawn. The totality of the circumstances especially the dying declaration and the suicide notes left by the deceased herself, which fall for consideration within the expression "all the other circumstances of the case" employed in Section 113-A of the Evidence Act, do not permit the presumption thereunder being raised against the accused. The accused-appellant, therefore, deserves to be acquitted of the charge under Section 306 IPC. (Paras 22 and 23)

Instigation is to goad, urge forward, provoke, incite or encourage to do "an act". To satisfy the requirement of instigation though it is not necessary that actual words must be used to that effect or what constitutes instigation must necessarily and specifically be suggestive of the consequence. Yet a reasonable certainty to incite the consequence must be capable of being spelt out. The present one is not a case where the accused had by his acts or omission or by a continued course of conduct created such circumstances that the deceased was left with no other option except to commit suicide in which case an instigation may have been inferred. A word uttered in a fit of anger or emotion without intending the consequences to actually follow cannot be said to be instigation. If it transpires to the court that a victim committing suicide was hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences in domestic life quite common to the society to which the victim belonged and such petulance, discord and differences were not expected to induce a similarly circumstanced individual in a given society to commit suicide, the conscience of the court should not be satisfied for basing a finding that the accused charged of abetting the offence of suicide should be found guilty. (Paras 20 and 21)

Sections 498-A and 306 IPC are independent and constitute different offences. Though, depending on the facts and circumstances of an individual case, subjecting a woman to cruelty may amount to an offence under Section 498-A and may also, if a course of conduct amounting to cruelty is established leaving no other option for the woman except to commit suicide, amount to abetment to commit suicide. However, merely because an accused has been held liable to be punished under Section 498-A IPC it does not follow that on the same evidence he must also and necessarily be held guilty of having abetted the commission of suicide by the woman concerned. Evidential value of the two writings contained in the diary is that of dying declarations. On the principle underlying admissibility of dying declaration in evidence that truth sits on the lips of a dying person and the court can convict an accused on the basis of such declaration where it inspires full confidence, there is no reason why the same principle should not be applied when such a dying declaration speaking of the cause of death exonerates the accused unless there is material available to form an opinion that the deceased while making such statement was trying to conceal the truth either having been persuaded to do so or because of sentiments for her husband. (Para 22). Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: AIR 2001 SC 3837.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand, C.J. and R.C. Lahoti and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-2001]

[8095] — Ss. 306 and 107 Firstly — Abetment to commit suicide — "Instigates any person to do that thing" — Mental cruelty and harassment meted out to deceased wife on her failure to meet the dowry demand — One day prior to commission of suicide, quarrel taking place between the deceased and her husband at her sister's house causing saturation of mental agony — Her mental state made clear when she told her sister that it would be difficult to see her face in future — Held all this would constitute an act which would be an abetment to the commission of suicide by the deceased — Hence sentence of 4 years' rigorous imprisonment and to pay a fine of Rs 200, in default of payment of fine further rigorous imprisonment for 3 months, under S. 306 upheld. Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1998) 3 SCC 309: 1998 SCC (Cri) 740: AIR 1998 SC 958: 1998 Cri LJ 1144.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchi, C.J. and A.P. Misra, J. [Date of decision: 9-2-1998]

[8096] — Ss. 306 and 107 Firstly — Abetting commission of suicide — Suicidal death of wife by setting fire to herself — Whether she committed suicide of her own will and volition or abetted in any manner by the accused husband — Circumstances to be considered — Husband constantly demanding her to get money from her parents and also beating her frequently — Wife committing suicide within a short time after accused said that money was more important to him than her life and that if she wanted to die she may do so the very same and give him relief forthwith — No evidence to show that accused assuaged her wounded feelings — Wife forsaking her 1½ years old son — On facts and in circumstances of case

(4)(ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of (contd.)

held, accused instigated deceased to commit suicide and that it was not a case where deceased committed suicide for reasons of her own — Case falls under first clause of S. 107 — Explanation II to S. 107 not attracted. Brij Lal v. Prem Chand, 1989 Supp (2) SCC 680: AIR 1989 SC 1661.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Natarajan and A.M. Ahmadi, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1989]

Shri Ram v. State of U.P., (1975) 3 SCC 495, distinguished

Prem Chand v. State of Punjab, 1978 Chand LR 224, reversed

Distinguished in Bhagwan Das v. Kartar Singh, (2007) 11 SCC 205

[8097] — Ss. 306, 107 Thirdly, 108, 304-B and 498-A — Abetment of suicide — Intentionally aiding the suicide — Dowry death after first seven years of marriage — Even if S. 113-A, Evidence Act inapplicable in absence of proof as to the occurrence having taken place within seven years of marriage, legislative intent as evident from Ss. 304-B, 498-A IPC as also Ss. 113-A and 113-B Evidence Act, which is to curb dowry death menace with firm hand, has to be kept in mind in deciding conviction under S. 306 — Husband persistently making dowry demand from the wife, beating, harassing her and creating atmosphere of terror for her — Wife ultimately setting herself and her three children ablaze — Held on facts, husband by his wilful conduct created an atmosphere which forced the wife to commit suicide — Hence conviction under S. 306 and sentence of seven years' RI recorded by trial court upheld — High Court erred in reversing the conviction

The legislative intent as appears from the introduction of Ss. 304-B and 498-A of IPC and Ss. 113-A and 113-B of Evidence Act is to curb the menace of dowry deaths etc. with a firm hand. Court must keep in mind this legislative intent even if there is no evidence as to whether suicide had been committed within a period of seven years from the date of marriage so as to attract S. 113-A of Evidence Act and the court has to decide whether the accused husband could be convicted under S. 306 IPC (the case pertaining to a period prior to coming into force of S. 304-B IPC). Where the husband or his relative by his wilful conduct creates a situation which he knows will drive the woman to commit suicide and she actually does so, the case would squarely fall within the ambit of S. 306, IPC. In such a case the conduct of the person would tantamount to inciting or provoking or virtually pushing the woman into a desperate situation of no return which would compel her to put an end to her miseries by committing suicide. (Para 8)

The facts in the present case clearly reveal that the relations between the husband and the wife were strained since long. The wife was intending divorce and apprehending bloodshed and harm to her children had sought police protection also. Her husband had kept up the pressure for extra dowry since her marriage and had stepped it up after the demise of her father on learning that her mother had received the G.P. Fund, gratuity, etc., due to her father. Since she and her mother and brother were not able to meet this demand she was subjected to considerable torture. Added to that was the anxiety caused by her husband's conduct at trying to frustrate her efforts to seek a transfer from the school where she was serving. She was severely beaten on the day prior to the day of suicide. An atmosphere of terror was created. It was a carefully chalked out strategy to provoke her into taking the extreme step to kill herself and her children as she apprehended that they will be much more miserable after she is dead and gone. In this fact situation, therefore, the husband can be said to have been responsible in creating circumstances which would provoke or force her into taking the only alternative left open to her, namely suicide. It cannot be said that the husband did not realise where he was leading her by his wilful conduct. In the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the trial court had rightly convicted the husband under S. 306, IPC. The High Court committed an error in reversing the conviction. (Para 8). State of Punjab v. Iqbal Singh, (1991) 3 SCC 1: 1991 SCC (Cri) 513: AIR 1991 SC 1532: 1991 Cri LJ 1897.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi, V. Ramaswami and K. Ramaswamy, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-5-1991]

[8098] — Ss. 306, 304-B and 107 — Abetment to commit suicide — Applicability — Need for instigation to commit suicide — Mere harassment of wife by her husband or in-laws, due to disputes or differences, without anything more, pursuant to which if wife commits suicide, held, it will not attract S. 306 r/w S. 107

The deceased was married to M in 1992. According to prosecution, the deceased was being taunted for bringing less dowry and was being harassed on account therefor. She was also ill-treated and harassed by the respondents as she was not able to give birth to a child and this harassment continued till 1999 when she gave birth to a girl child. Till 1999, the deceased was being subjected to mental cruelty by being told that her husband would be married elsewhere. Shortly after the birth of the girl child, M was paralysed on account of an accident. Thereupon the deceased was being taunted that she gave birth to a girl child which brought bad luck to the respondents. These circumstances, according to the prosecution, drove the deceased to commit suicide in her matrimonial home. The deceased did not leave any suicide note. The Addl. Sessions Judge came to a prima facie conclusion that the cumulative effect of the prolonged ill-treatment and harassment of the deceased compelled her to commit suicide. He, therefore, by an order framed charges under Sections 306/498-A/34 IPC against the deceased's father-in-law, mother-in-law and two devars (brothers of M). M had already died.

In criminal revision, the High Court held that no charge under Sections 306/34 IPC was made out and it set aside the charge. However, it remitted the matter regarding framing of charges under Sections 498-A/34 IPC to the Metropolitan Magistrate. The said charge has since been framed. The present appeal has been filed by the father of the deceased. It was submitted that the charge under Section 306 was made out and hence the same should not have been quashed. The only allegation against the respondents was that they harassed the deceased because she did not bring adequate dowry. Hence, it is submitted that this amounted to abetment to suicide and hence was covered under Section 306 IPC read with Section 107.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

It often happens that there are disputes and discords in the matrimonial home and a wife is harassed by the husband or her in-laws. This, however, would not by itself and without something more attract Section 306 IPC read with Section 107 IPC. Thus mere harassment of wife by husband due to differences per se does not attract Section 306 read with Section 107 IPC, if the wife commits suicide. (Paras 15 and 16)

However, if the suicide was due to demand of dowry soon before her death then Section 304-B IPC may be attracted, whether it is a case of homicide or suicide. In the present case, since no charge under Section 304-B has been framed, obviously the accused cannot be convicted under that provision. (Paras 16 and 17)

It is, however, made clear that the Court is not approving or justifying harassment of wives by their husbands or in-laws, but is only clarifying the law in the peculiar facts of this case as it stands today. (Para 18). Bhagwan Das v. Kartar Singh, (2007) 11 SCC 205: AIR 2007 SC 2045.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-5-2007]

Netai Dutta v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 659: 2005 SCC (Cri) 543; Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157; Randhir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 13 SCC 129: 2005 SCC (Cri) 56; State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107 ; Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207: 2000 SCC (Cri) 935; Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48; Shanti v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 371: 1991 SCC (Cri) 191, relied on

Brij Lal v. Prem Chand, 1989 Supp (2) SCC 680: 1991 SCC (Cri) 394, distinguished [8099] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Abetting wife to commit suicide — Subjecting her to cruelty — Intention to abet and instigate her to commit suicide — Inference drawn from facts — Sustainability — Deceased wife harassed by appellant husband with demands of dowry — About six months prior to the occurrence, appellant visited house of maternal uncle of deceased where she had studied up to Class VIII and demanded money from him for purchase of tractor but the same having been refused, appellant started beating the deceased to such an extent that she became unable to walk — Ultimately appellant turned her out of the matrimonial home — She then went to her parents' house and stayed there for three months — At that time she was pregnant — She was thereafter taken back by appellant with the assurance that he will treat her well — But 10 days thereafter she committed suicide — Held on facts, offence under Ss. 306 and 498-A made out — A young pregnant woman would not ordinarily commit suicide unless she was compelled to do so — Deceased would not have felt depressed if she had not been harassed on account of dowry. Surender v. State of Haryana, (2006) 12 SCC 375: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 210: 2007 Cri LJ 779: (2007) 49 AIC 632 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-11-2006]

[8100] — Ss. 306, 498-A and 107, 108 — Abetment of suicide — Proof of suicide a prerequisite — Normally direct evidence of abetment or suicide not available — Circumstances in which death took place, conduct of the accused persons and nature of the crime to be seen — Deceased wife died in her in-laws' house sustaining second to third degree burn injuries within seven months of her marriage — Accidental death by catching fire while cooking food on stove ruled out by trial court in view of absence of burn injuries on the fingertips of any of the members of the in-laws' family — Maternal uncle of the accused husband informing deceased's parents that the deceased committed suicide by sprinkling kerosene oil and setting herself on fire — Instigation in the form of constant dowry demands, taunts, insinuations, threats,

(4)(ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of (contd.)

ill-treatment and cruel behaviour by the husband and his parents found proved by the trial court — Other circumstances such as failure on the part of the in-laws to attempt to save the deceased from burn injuries, taking her to hospital late in dead condition, great delay in informing deceased's parents about the death even though parents' house was not far off also found — Despite minor contradictions in statements of prosecution witnesses, prosecution case not shaken — On a proper evidence accused persons convicted under S. 306 and sentenced to 5 years' RI and fine of Rs 2000 by trial court — Held, trial court's view unexceptionable and the only view that could be taken in the circumstances — High Court erred in taking a contrary view and acquitting accused on a wrong appreciation of evidence — Penal Code, 1860, S. 498-A — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A

Abetment is a separate and distinct offence provided the thing abetted is an offence. Abetment does not involve the actual commission of the crime abetted; it is a crime apart.

There could not be any direct evidence of the act of suicide in the circumstances in which the deceased died. She was in the house of her in-laws. There is ample and sufficient evidence that she had complained that she was taunted for bringing meagre dowry and that even insinuated that she was carrying 'an illegitimate child'. The aforesaid facts stand established by cogent and reliable evidence. These are grave and serious provocations enough for an ordinary woman in the Indian set-up, to do what the deceased is alleged to have done. There is also evidence that the persons in the house of her in-laws including the mother-in-law — mother of the accused made no attempt to save her from the burn injuries. The absence of any burn injury in the hands of the people around, indicates and establishes that there was no attempt to save the deceased though she was seen being burnt. The evidence of attitude and conduct of the in-laws — the father-in-law, mother-in-law and the husband — after the deceased got burns in not informing the parents and not taking prompt steps to take her to hospital for giving medical assistance corroborate the inference that these accused connived and abetted the crime.

Having regard to the circumstances of the case, there is no direct evidence indicating the circumstances in which the death took place, the conduct of the accused and the nature of the crime with which the accused was charged, there cannot be any scope of doubt that the Sessions Judge was right and the conviction was properly made. This is not a case where there could be two views possible on the facts found and on the facts which could not possibly be found because of the nature of the offence. Gurbachan Singh v. Satpal Singh, (1990) 1 SCC 445: 1990 SCC (Cri) 151: AIR 1990 SC 209: 1990 Cri LJ 562.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Sabyasachi Mukharji[1] and B.C. Ray[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-1989]

[8101] — S. 306 r/w S. 34 — Abetment of suicide — Conviction for — Essential requirement — Held, more active role which can be described as instigating or aiding the doing of a thing is required before a person can be said to be abetting the commission of offence under S. 306

Abetment involves a mental process of instigating a person or intentionally aiding that person in doing of a thing. In cases of conspiracy also it would involve that mental process of entering into conspiracy for the doing of that thing. More active role which can be described as instigating or aiding the doing of a thing is required before a person can be said to be abetting the commission of offence under Section 306 IPC. (Para 12). Randhir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 13 SCC 129: 2005 SCC (Cri) 56: AIR 2004 SC 5097: 2004 Cri LJ 4985.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2004]

[8102] — S. 306 r/w S. 34 and S. 107 — Abetment of suicide — Framing of charge — Essentials — Held, a person is said to have abetted in doing a thing, when he "instigates" others to do it — Further held, where the accused by his acts or by a continued course of conduct creates such circumstances that the deceased was left with no other option except to commit suicide, an "instigation" may be inferred — Appellant charged that he along with other two accused "in furtherance of common intention", mentally tortured JS (the deceased) and thereby abetted him to commit suicide — Apart from the suicide note, statements recorded by the police during investigation, showing that on account of business transactions with the accused, the deceased was put under tremendous pressure to do something which he was perhaps not willing to do — Prima facie*, the conduct of the appellant and his accomplices appeared such that the deceased was left with no other option except to end his life — Hence, impugned judgment upholding order of trial court framing charge for offence under S. 306 r/w*

S. 34, calls for no interference — CrPC Code, 1973, S. 228 & S. 397 r/w Ss. 401 & 482 (Paras 15, 19 and 21 to 24). Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.K. Jain and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2009]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088, followed

[8103] — S. 306 r/w S. 107 — Abetment of suicide — Quarrel taking place between appellant and deceased in which appellant was said to have told the deceased "to go and die" — Deceased found dead two days later — Held, suicide was not proximate to the quarrel though the deceased was named in the suicide note — Hence suicide was not the direct result of the quarrel when the appellant used abusive language and told the deceased to go and die

The appellant was charged with having abetted commission of suicide by his brother-in-law (sister's husband). The prosecution story was that there were strained relations between the deceased and his wife who at the material time was staying with the appellant. On 25-7-1998, the deceased went to the appellant to bring back his wife. There was a quarrel between the appellant and the deceased who came back alone. The deceased told his brothers and other acquaintances that the appellant had threatened and abused him by using filthy words. On 27-7-1998, the deceased was found dead. The autopsy which was conducted on that day itself, revealed that the death was due to asphyxia as a result of hanging, within 24 hours. The deceased also left a suicide note (reproduced in para 13 of the judgment) which showed his disturbed state of mind but otherwise he blamed the appellant for the suicide.

The appellant's petition for quashing of charge-sheet under Section 482 CrPC was dismissed by the High Court.

Allowing his appeal,

Held :

Both the courts below have erroneously accepted the prosecution story that the suicide by the deceased was the direct result of the quarrel that had taken place on 25-7-1998 wherein it is alleged that the appellant had used abusive language and had reportedly told the deceased "to go and die". For this, courts relied on a statement of S, brother of the deceased, made under Section 161 CrPC when reportedly the deceased, after coming back from the house of the appellant, told him that the appellant had humiliated him and abused him with filthy words. In the statement of S, recorded under Section 161 CrPC, it has not been stated that the deceased had told him that the appellant had asked him "to go and die". Even if one accepts the prosecution story that the appellant did tell the deceased "to go and die", that itself does not constitute the ingredient of "instigation". The word "instigate" denotes incitement or urging to do some drastic or inadvisable action or to stimulate or incite. Presence of mens rea, therefore, is the necessary concomitant of instigation. It is common knowledge that the words uttered in a quarrel or on the spur of the moment cannot be taken to be uttered with mens rea. It is in a fit of anger and emotion. Secondly, the alleged abusive words, said to have been told to the deceased were on 25-7-1998 ensued by a quarrel. The deceased was found hanging on 27-7-1998. Assuming that the deceased had taken the abusive language seriously, he had enough time in between to think over and reflect and, therefore, it cannot be said that the abusive language, which had been used by the appellant on 25-7-1998 drove the deceased to commit suicide. Suicide by the deceased on 27-7-1998 is not proximate to the abusive language uttered by the appellant on 25-7-1998. The fact that the deceased committed suicide on 27-7-1998 would itself clearly point out that it is not the direct result of the quarrel taken place on 25-7-1998 when it is alleged that the appellant had used the abusive language and also told the deceased to go and die. This fact had escaped notice of the courts below. (Para 12)

A plain reading of the suicide note would clearly show that the deceased was in great stress and depressed. One plausible reason could be that the deceased was without any work or avocation and at the same time indulged in drinking as revealed from the statement of the wife. He was a frustrated man. Reading of the suicide note suggests that such a note is not the handiwork of a man with a sound mind and sense. The wife had stated that on 26-7-1998 her husband came to them in an inebriated condition and was abusing her and other members of the family. The prosecution story, if believed, shows that the quarrel between the deceased and the appellant had taken place on 25-7-1998 and if the deceased came back to the house again on 26-7-1998, it cannot be said that the suicide by the deceased was the direct result of the quarrel that had taken place on 25-7-1998. Viewed from the aforesaid circumstances independently, the ingredients of "abetment" are totally absent in the instant case for an offence under Section 306 IPC. It is in the statement of the wife that the deceased always remained in a drunken condition.

(4)(ii) Abetment or Instigation — What is and proof of (contd.)

It is common knowledge that excessive drinking leads one to debauchery. It clearly appeared, therefore, that the deceased was a victim of his own conduct unconnected with the quarrel that had ensued on 25-7-1998 where the appellant is stated to have used abusive language. Taking the totality of materials on record and facts and circumstances of the case into consideration, it will lead to the irresistible conclusion that it is the deceased and he alone, and none else, who was responsible for his death. (Para 14). Sanju v. State of M.P., (2002) 5 SCC 371: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1141: AIR 2002 SC 1998: 2002 Cri LJ 2796.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.B. Shah and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-2002]

Swamy Prahaladdas v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 438: 1995 SCC (Cri) 943; Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157; Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618, relied on

[8104] — Ss. 306/34 and 498-A/34 — Suicide — Cause of — Manic depression or maltreatment by in-laws (including husband) — Inference of manic depression drawn from medicines which deceased was taking during her lifetime — Theory that deceased was driven to commit suicide due to demand for dowry, ruled out — Hence acquittal of appellants restored — Appellants 1 and 2 who respectively were husband and father-in-law of deceased, charged to have abetted suicide by maltreating deceased on account of their demand for dowry — There was however evidence on record that deceased was taking medicine, geroin, which is prescribed in case of major epileptic disorder (grand mal) — Possibility of giving electro- convulsive therapy (ECT) to deceased also considered though ECT actually not given to her — Held, cumulative effect of medical evidence given by three doctors was that deceased woman had some mental/epileptic/psychotic problem and this was the probable cause of her death — One of the attending doctors deposing that deceased appeared to have been maltreated by her in-laws when he attended the deceased — His evidence on this count not found reliable because he himself had prescribed medicine for grand mal epilepsy — Moreover, couple had been staying in separate town away from in-laws for quite some time — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 45

Appellants 1 and 2 were husband and father-in-law of the deceased woman who committed suicide. Brother of the deceased lodged a complaint that she committed suicide because she was maltreated by her in-laws and dowry was demanded. However defence of Appellants 1 and 2 was that the deceased committed suicide because she was suffering from a mental problem. Three doctors were examined during the course of trial (relevant portions of their evidence are reproduced in paras 23, 27 and 28 of the judgment).

The trial court acquitted the appellants but the High Court, in appeal, reversed the decision of the trial court.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

There is ample evidence on record to suggest that the deceased had been suffering from psychosis/mental disorder. According to Dr. Daulatram Nekumal Gurubani (PW 10) the ailment was not of a very serious nature. However, the prescriptions given by Dr. Gurubani (PW 10) reveal that the deceased had been suffering from serious mental disorder, otherwise such medicines could not have been prescribed by him. He has prescribed the deceased the medicine geroin because he was convinced that the deceased was suffering from major epilepsy, in spite of the fact that he was fully aware that the said drug has side effects. He also deposed that mere clinical examination alone is not sufficient to decide whether the patient is suffering from epilepsy. He further deposed that such medicine can be given to a person suffering from grand mal epilepsy. More so, had it not been the case of serious ailment of mental disorder, the question of prescribing and giving ECT to the deceased could not arise. (Para 43)

The deposition of Dr. Mohan Kulkarni (PW 1) reveals that ECT treatment is given only to mental patients, who have mental depression and tend to commit suicide; the ailment of epileptic fits is a neurological problem. His statement also suggests that in-laws of the deceased had not been living with her after 1983, as Appellant 2 stood transferred to Kurudwadi and had shifted to the said transferred place and her in-laws had been visiting Kalyan occasionally. This view stands fully corroborated by the deposition of Dr. Ramesh Kumar Mahendru (PW 12), Reader in Psychiatric Medicine, Mental Hospital, Kanpur. He had examined the deceased and prescribed medicines for manic depressive psychosis. The prescription of this witness substantially remained the same as of Dr. Daulatram Nekumal Gurubani (PW 10). (Para 46)

The cumulative effect of the medical evidence given by the three doctors leads to the conclusion that the deceased had been suffering from manic depression and certainly had some mental/epileptic/psychotic problem. (Para 47). Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupt (Dr.) v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 13 SCC 657.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-11-2010]

[8105] — Ss. 306/34 and 498-A/34 — Suicide by wife — Cause of — Maltreatment by in-laws — What amounts to — Protest by in-laws that deceased daughter-in-law who was suspected to have developed intimacy with a family friend, should keep distance from him — Whether such protest amounts to maltreatment — Held, even suspicion of intimacy with an outsider affects reputation of family — Protest cannot therefore be considered as ill-treatment given to deceased — High Court was wrong in overlooking plea of illicit relationship — Acquittal restored on overall appreciation of facts, principally that deceased suffered from manic depression (Paras 42, 59 and 60)

The record reveals that at an initial stage the relationship between the husband and wife had been very cordial and they had love and affection for each other. At a later stage, when the family suspected an illicit relationship between the deceased and a family friend, the appellants were very much disturbed. Families from husband and wife's side made serious attempts to reconcile and patch up the matter and the appellants agreed that the deceased may be given an opportunity to improve her behaviour. Thus, admittedly there was a doubt that the deceased had developed serious intimacy with a family friend, which was much more than what happens in normal course with a family friend. Therefore, the finding recorded by the High Court that the intimacy between them to the extent of having an illicit relationship was not there, loses its significance, for the reason that even the suspicion of such a matter becomes the talk of the town and the reputation of the family remains at stake. The protests on the part of the appellants even on a mere suspicion and asking the deceased to keep distance from the family friend or improve her behaviour is not something which can be termed to be unwarranted or uncalled for. (Para 42). Sunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta (Dr.) v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 13 SCC 657.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-11-2010]

(iii) Presumption of abetment of suicide (S. 113-A, Evidence Act)

See also under S. 304-B — Dowry Death '(6)(ii) Presumption/Deeming fiction under S. 304-B r/w S. 113-B, Evidence Act when arises', and

'(6)(iii) Nature of death — Death "otherwise than under normal circumstances" due to dowry demand — Death if homicide or suicide — Relevance', above

[8106] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide, of a married woman — Conviction based on a purported letter by accused — Sustainabilty — Appellant, his mother, father and brother tried for offence of abetment of suicide of wife of appellant — Trial court acquitting all the accused except appellant, who was convicted placing reliance on a letter allegedly written by him to father of deceased demanding certain items — Father of deceased stating that he had received the letter but did not state whether he had recognised handwriting or signature of appellant — Held, such evidence is not proof of the document — The letter was not produced before police during course of the initial investigation but was handed over after several months — As no person would write a letter meeting all legal requirements for implicating himself and his near relatives in a claim for dowry, held, the letter was a concocted piece of evidence and the work of a legal mind — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 62 (Para 9). Anand Kumar v. State of M.P., (2009) 3 SCC 799: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 28: AIR 2009 SC 2155.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-2-2009]

[8107] — S. 306 — Ingredients — Presumption under S. 113-A, Evidence Act, when arises — Held, on facts, offence under S. 306 not made out from the material on record — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A

Before invoking the provisions of Section 306 IPC, it is necessary to establish that: (i) the deceased committed suicide, and (ii) she had been subjected to cruelty within the meaning of Section 498-A IPC. Only in the event those facts are established, a presumption in terms of Section 113-A of the Evidence Act could be raised. In the instant case, the prosecution has not been able to prove that the deceased was subjected to cruelty within the meaning of Section 498-A IPC. No case that the deceased committed suicide was also made out. The ingredients of Sections 306 and 304-B IPC are different and distinct. In any event, no evidence has been brought on record to show that there has been any act of omission or commission on the part of the accused, before the death of the deceased to demonstrate that the appellant was responsible for the same. There is no evidence to sustain the observation of the High Court that when her father came to see her, he must have been insulted or felt hurt as she might have been subjected to harassment. (Paras 26, 27 and 30). Harjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 1 SCC 463: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 417: AIR 2006 SC 680: (2006) 37 AIC 104 (SC): 2006 Cri LJ 554.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-12-2005]

K. Prema S. Rao v. Yadla Srinivasa Rao, (2003) 1 SCC 217: 2003 SCC (Cri) 271; Satvir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 8 SCC 633: 2002 SCC (Cri) 48, relied on

(4)(iii) Presumption of abetment of suicide (S. 113-A, Evidence Act) (contd.)

[8108] — S. 306 — Presumption under S. 113-A, Evidence Act — Invocation of — Facts, held, cannot be ignored while invoking presumptions — The proposition that onus shifts exclusively and heavily on the accused is not entirely correct — On facts, the sketchy ocular evidence and dying declaration recorded by the Naib Tahsildar completely exonerated all accused of any misconduct and clearly dispelled any suspicion with regard to their involvement in the incident — Appellant acquitted of offence of abetment of suicide — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A (Para 14). Anand Kumar v. State of M.P., (2009) 3 SCC 799: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 28: AIR 2009 SC 2155.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-2-2009]

[8109] — S. 306 — S. 113-A, Evidence Act, 1872 — Conviction for abetment of suicide restored — Deceased subjected to constant harassment and torture by the husband and in-laws, whereupon she leaving her in-laws' house twice and returning only at the behest of panchas — Subsequently, deceased committing suicide by setting herself on fire — Held, totality of the evidence suggests that such a serious provocation would be enough for an ordinary woman in the Indian set-up to do what the deceased is stated to have done — Hence, order of acquittal passed by the High Court, against order of conviction passed by the Sessions Judge, unsustainable both on question of law and on facts. State of M.P. v. Guman, (2009) 16 SCC 277.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-9-2002]

Gurbachan Singh v. Satpal Singh, (1990) 1 SCC 445: 1990 SCC (Cri) 151; Gurpreet Singh v. State of Haryana, (2002) 8 SCC 18: 2003 SCC (Cri) 186, followed [8110] — S. 306 — Suicide — Suicide by married woman — Presumption as to abetment by husband — Death by drowning about one-and-a-half years after marriage — Harassment meted out to deceased by husband sufficiently proved — Presumption under S. 113-A must therefore be raised against husband — Illicit relationship of a married man with another woman, held, could be used as a piece of evidence of harassment and misbehaviour of appellant towards deceased — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A (Para 6). Laxman Ram Mane v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 13 SCC 125.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-2010]

[8111] — Ss. 306, 107 and 498-A — Abetment — Ingredients of, stated — Suicide by wife — Abetment of — Proof — *The only fact established was that there were frequent quarrels between husband and wife, sometimes involving physical assault on wife, on account of husband's addiction to "bhang" — No direct evidence to establish that the husband either aided or instigated the deceased to commit suicide or entered into any conspiracy to aid her in committing suicide — Held, husband cannot be convicted under S. 306 — But on facts, liable to be convicted under S. 498-A — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A*

The trial court took the view that since the wife of the appellant committed suicide and since the appellant did not disclose as to what conversation preceded her committing suicide and that there were allegations of cruelty against the appellant, it must be presumed under Section 113-A that the suicide had been abetted by him. The finding of the trial court is not sustainable. The allegations that the appellant did not like to keep the deceased with him because she was not good-looking, or that he was addicted to liquor or that the deceased had reported these matters to her parents and others, or that the appellant intended to remarry and had told his wife about it, or that the deceased had once come to her father's house in an injured condition, or even the allegations regarding beatings, do not find place in the statements recorded by the police in the course of investigation. These allegations have been made at the trial for the first time. All that was alleged in the FIR or even at the stage of investigation was that there were frequent quarrels between the husband and wife sometimes resulting in physical assault, on account of the husband being addicted to consumption of "bhang". The other allegation that the appellant was aggrieved of the fact that his sister (married to PW 3, brother of the deceased) was not being properly treated by PW 3, also appears to be untrue because there is nothing on record to show that there was any disharmony in the marital life of his sister. In fact, PW 3 himself stated on oath that he was living happily with his wife. On such slender evidence, the Court is not persuaded to invoke the presumption under Section 113-A of the Evidence Act to find the appellant guilty of the offence under Section 306 IPC. Having regard to the facts of the case, though the prosecution has failed to establish the offence under Section 306 IPC, the evidence on record justifies the conviction of the appellant under Section 498-A IPC. (Paras 16 and 17). Hans Raj v. State of Haryana, (2004) 12 SCC 257: AIR 2004 SC 2790: 2004 Cri LJ 1759.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-2-2004]

[8112] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Abetment of suicide — Suicide committed due to alleged cruelty and harassment meted out to victim — Guilt of accused — When established — Duty of court regarding — Need to prove by direct evidence, active role on part of accused in the abetment by direct or indirect act(s) of instigation or by doing of certain act(s) to facilitate the commission of suicide

Before holding an accused guilty of an offence under Section 306 IPC, the court must scrupulously examine the facts and circumstances of the case and also assess the evidence adduced before it in order to find out whether the cruelty and harassment meted out to the victim had left the victim with no other alternative but to commit suicide. It is also to be borne in mind that in cases of alleged abetment of suicide there must be proof of direct or indirect acts of incitement to the commission of suicide. Merely on the allegation of harassment without there being any positive action proximate to the time of occurrence on the part of the accused which led or compelled the person to commit suicide, conviction in terms of Section 306 IPC is not sustainable. (Para 12)

In order to bring a case within the purview of Section 306 IPC there must be a case of suicide and in the commission of the said offence, the person who is said to have abetted the commission of suicide must have played an active role by an act of instigation or by doing certain act to facilitate the commission of suicide. Therefore, the act of abetment by the person charged with the said offence must be proved and established by the prosecution before he could be convicted under Section 306 IPC. (Para 13). Amalendu Pal v. State of W.B., (2010) 1 SCC 707.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. M.K. Sharma and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-11-2009]

Randhir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 13 SCC 129: 2005 SCC (Cri) 56, relied on [8113] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Bride burning — Death of housewife in nuptial home as a result of extensive burn injuries — Nature of injuries sustained by deceased, expert opinion and surrounding situation at the scene of occurrence, establishing cause of death as suicidal and not accidental — Circumstantial evidence also establishing torture of deceased for dowry — Held on facts, circumstances in contextual facts and material on record substantiate the requirements of S. 113-A of Evidence Act and having regard to the language used in S. 498-A IPC, cruelty was writ large as regards the conduct of the accused husband towards the deceased wife — Circumstances unerringly point to the appellant as abettor and hence he was rightly convicted under Ss. 306 and 498-A and sentenced to 6 years' RI — Evidence Act, 1872 — S. 113-A (Paras 4 to 11). Pawan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2001) 3 SCC 628: 2001 SCC (Cri) 594: AIR 2001 SC 1324: 2001 Cri LJ 1679.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-2001]

Balwinder Singh v. State of Punjab, 1995 Supp (4) SCC 259: 1996 SCC (Cri) 59; Lakhjit Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 173: 1994 SCC (Cri) 235; State of Punjab v. Gurdip Singh, (1996) 7 SCC 163: 1996 SCC (Cri) 244; Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116: 1984 SCC (Cri) 487, distinguished

[8114] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — S. 113-A, Evidence Act, 1872 — Abetment to commit suicide and cruelty — Presumption — Deceased alleged to have set herself on fire when none of the family members were present at home, within two years of marriage — Trial court convicting Appellants 1 and 2 (husband and mother-in-law of deceased) under Ss. 306 and 498-A IPC, which judgment affirmed by High Court — Appellant 1 dying during pendency of appeal — Only evidence against Appellant 2 was the dying declaration and an undated letter, Ext. P-1 alleged to be written by deceased — In the dying declaration it was categorically stated that occurrence was accidental and no quarrel had taken place and that there was no problem in her matrimonial home — Said statement read over to her and her thumb impression was put as she could not sign because of the burn injuries received by her — Held, there is nothing incriminating in the said statement against Appellant 2 and is rather helpful to appellant-accused — Ext. P-1 appeared to be written on day of occurrence which was found in the box seized from the room where the incident occurred — In the said letter she had given vent to all her expressions, feelings and contempt for the family — It was stated that she was unable to tolerate the atmosphere in the family in her matrimonial home and that she would prefer to live in hell because in-laws had done such acts which could not be mentioned — It was further mentioned that her mother-in-law had told that if she (S) was kept in their house then nothing would remain and hence, she did not want to become burden on herself, nor on her in-laws and that moment was the last time of her life — Evidence of PWs 1 and 3 (mother and sister-in-law of deceased) proving that at times the deceased was not treated well by the appellant — No direct evidence to establish abetment by appellant — In the said letter there was no reference of any act or incident whereby the appellants were alleged to have committed any wilful act or omission or intentionally aided or instigated the deceased to commit suicide — On the other hand, evidence showing that the deceased wanted to be married in a literate family and was not happy with the fact that her husband was illiterate and also with the status and condition of the family of her husband — She was also required to do some domestic work as the family was poor, for which she was not happy — She was of the viewpoint that her life has been spoilt by marrying Appellant 1 — Hence, on such slender evidence S. 113-A cannot be invoked to convict appellant under S. 306 — As far as allegation of cruelty is concerned, deceased had only mentioned that the attitude of the family was not good towards her and she was not treated well but there is no mention about any of such incident — PWs 1 and 3 had emphasised that the mother-in-law of the deceased used to ask the deceased to run hand-driven flourmill to which she was not habitual — In the year 1988 when incident occurred, the hand-driven flourmills were generally used by women in the poor families in the villages and even till today one may find use of the same in some villages in the country — Hence, asking one to run the same at that point of time may not amount to an act of cruelty — Further, Appellant 2 cannot be held liable for beatings given by Appellant 1, rather evidence shows that she had restrained her son — Possibility of embellishment as far as allegations against A-2 by PW 1 for beating the deceased expressed — Moreover, father of deceased (PW 2) had also not stated about cruelty being meted out to deceased in her matrimonial home — Hence, conviction of Appellant 2 set aside (Paras 1, 2, 9 to 12, 16 and 22 to 25). Rajbabu v. State of M.P., (2008) 17 SCC 526: AIR 2008 SC 3212: 2008 Cri LJ 4301: (2008) 69 AIC 65 (SC).

(4)(iii) Presumption of abetment of suicide (S. 113-A, Evidence Act) (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.V. Raveendran and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-2008]

[8115] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Suicide by a married woman — Abetment of — Presumption under S. 113-A in respect of — Nature of, held, is discretionary — Said presumption, when can be drawn — Mere fact that the woman committed suicide within seven years of her marriage and that she had been subjected to cruelty by the husband, held, does not automatically give rise to the presumption that suicide had been abetted by the husband — Court to look into all other circumstances of the case — It must consider the nature of cruelty to which the woman was subjected, having regard to the meaning of the word "cruelty" in S. 498-A IPC — Only two allegations in FIR — Firstly, there were frequent quarrels between husband and wife sometimes resulting in physical assault on wife, on account of husband being addicted to consumption of "bhang" — Secondly, husband was aggrieved of the fact that his sister, married to PW 3 (brother of deceased), was not being properly looked after by PW 3 — Improvements in prosecution evidence — Second allegation, found untrue — On such slender evidence, held, presumption under S. 113-A could not be invoked — Conviction of husband under S. 306 IPC set aside — However, conviction under S. 498-A maintained — Husband sentenced to one-year RI — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A

Partly allowing the appeal preferred by the accused-husband,

Held :

Any person who abets suicide is liable to be punished under Section 306 IPC. In the instant case, there is no direct evidence to establish that the appellant husband either aided or instigated the deceased to commit suicide or entered into any conspiracy to aid her in committing suicide to bring the case within Section 107 IPC. In the absence of direct evidence the prosecution has relied upon Section 113-A of the Evidence Act under which the court may presume on proof of circumstances enumerated therein, and having regard to all the other circumstances of the case, that the suicide had been abetted by the accused. (Para 12)

Unlike Section 113-B of the Evidence Act, a statutory presumption does not arise by operation of law merely on proof of the circumstances enumerated in Section 113-A of the Evidence Act. Under Section 113-A, the prosecution has first to establish that the woman concerned committed suicide within a period of seven years from the date of her marriage and that her husband (in this case) had subjected her to cruelty. Even if these facts are established the court is not bound to presume that the suicide had been abetted by her husband. Section 113-A gives a discretion to the court to raise such a presumption, having regard to all the other circumstances of the case. One of the circumstances which has to be considered by the court is whether the alleged cruelty was of such nature as was likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health of the woman. Thus, where the allegation is of cruelty it must consider the nature of cruelty to which the woman was subjected, having regard to the meaning of the word "cruelty" in Section 498-A IPC. The mere fact that a woman committed suicide within seven years of her marriage and that she had been subjected to cruelty by her husband, does not automatically give rise to the presumption that the suicide had been abetted by her husband. (Para 13). Hans Raj v. State of Haryana, (2004) 12 SCC 257: AIR 2004 SC 2790: 2004 Cri LJ 1759.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-2-2004]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; Sanju v. State of M.P., (2002) 5 SCC 371: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1141; State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107, relied on

Followed in Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2007) 14 SCC 176*

[8116] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Suicide by married woman — Presumption against mother-in-law — If any — Investigating agency not proceeding against husband of deceased who was a strong suspect but making scapegoat of his old mother, perhaps relying on age-old concepts of bickering between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law — Held, that is not universal truth — Also, court should appreciate evidence with an open mind without being driven by age-old concepts — Evidence, in instant case fell short of required standard of proof — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 114-A (Paras 16 to 17). Mankamma v. State of Kerala, (2009) 10 SCC 164.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-2009]

[8117] — Ss. 306 and 498-A r/w S. 34 — Applicability — Accused alleged to have ill-treated and harassed the deceased for dowry and consequently abetted the committment of suicide by her — PWs 1, 2 and 5 (father, mother and brother respectively of deceased) not stating anything about dowry demand — On the other hand, testimony of PW 1 showing that there was no ill-treatment by Accused 1 to 3, and ill-treatment, if any, was only by Accused 4 to 6 — Accused 4, sister-in-law was said to have ill-treated the deceased because she refused to give her son in adoption to Accused 4 who had no issue — Held, such version is unbelievable — But, even assuming that Accused 4 had demanded so, it cannot be said to be dowry demand so as to attract S. 498-A — Further, cheque of Rs 10,000 which was given to Accused 1 by PW 2 probabilises the defence version that it was given towards repairing the truck plied by Accused 1 which had met with an accident, rather than towards dowry demand as alleged — Held, in such circumstances interference by High Court with order of acquittal was not proper — Impugned order set aside (Paras 13 to 22). Bhaskar Ramappa Madar v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 11 SCC 690: 2009 Cri LJ 2422.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-2009]

Bhagwan Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1976) 1 SCC 15: 1976 SCC (Cri) 737; Megha Singh v. State of Haryana, (1996) 11 SCC 709: 1997 SCC (Cri) 267, limited to facts of case

[8118] — Ss. 306/34 — Suicide by a married woman — Abetment of, by her husband or relative of husband — Proof — Demand of dowry by husband and his mother, established — Death of wife occurring within 7 years of marriage — Cruelty meted out to the victim inducing her to end the life by committing suicide — Held, conviction proper — However, in view of the peculiar facts of the case, custodial sentence reduced to three years — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A

The prosecution alleged that the accused persons (husband and in-laws of the deceased) started abusing the deceased from the very beginning after the marriage on the pretext that she should bring more money from her parents. The husband of the deceased had threatened her that if she fails to do so, he would arrange a second marriage. Thereafter, though the accused were paid a sum of Rs 10,000 by the parents of the deceased, they were not satisfied with the same. On 3-2-1985 the deceased again went to the house of her parents and told them that the appellants (husband and his mother) had sent her to bring more money. She also told that they had warned her that in case she did not bring the money, she would not be allowed to live. The father of the deceased (complainant) assured her that he along with his wife would visit very shortly the house of her in-laws after making arrangement of the money. On 7-2-1985 the complainant was present at his house when PW 10 came and told him that the deceased had died after putting herself on fire. The appellants along with G (father-in-law of the deceased) faced trial under Section 306 r/w Section 34 IPC in respect of abetment of commission of suicide by the deceased. G was acquitted, but the appellants were found guilty. While the trial court had imposed sentence of imprisonment for five years and fine of Rs 3000 each with default stipulation, the High Court by the impugned judgment maintained sentence of the husband but reduced the sentence so far as his mother was concerned.

Confirming the conviction but reducing the sentence,

Held :

In the present case the evidence of relatives, more particularly of the father and the mother of the deceased, clearly proves demand of dowry. The mere fact that whatever the father had obtained by way of pension or compensation for land acquisition had been spent, the capacity to pay may be affected; but it does not prove that the accused persons did not make a demand. The trial court and the High Court have considered this aspect and given positive finding about the demand of dowry having been established. The death occurred during 7 years of marriage. In view of the elaborate analysis of the evidence by the courts below, there is no infirmity in the conclusion arrived at regarding guilt of the accused persons. The conviction is, therefore, confirmed. However, looking to the peculiar facts of the case the custodial sentence is reduced to 3 years in each case. (Paras 10 and 14). Randhir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 13 SCC 129: 2005 SCC (Cri) 56: AIR 2004 SC 5097: 2004 Cri LJ 4985.

(4)(iii) Presumption of abetment of suicide (S. 113-A, Evidence Act) (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2004]

State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107, relied on

[8119] — Ss. 306/34 and 498-A — Demand of dowry — Absence of — Proof in respect of — Held, merely because the deceased wife did not tell her close friends about the demand of dowry or harassment that does not positively prove the absence of demand of dowry — In a traditional custom-bound society one may not discuss family discords — Where there is cogent and reliable evidence regarding demand of dowry, the said fact would be of no consequence — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 4

Great stress was laid on the victim's statement having not expressed before her friends about any harassment. In a tradition and custom-bound Indian society no conservative woman would disclose family discords before a person, however close he or she may be. Merely because the deceased had not told close friends about the demand of dowry or harassment that does not positively prove the absence of demand of dowry. The said circumstance has to be weighed along with the evidence regarding demand of dowry. If the evidence regarding demand of dowry is established, and is cogent and reliable then merely because the victim had not stated before some persons about the harassment or torture that would be really of no consequence. (Para 9). Randhir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 13 SCC 129: 2005 SCC (Cri) 56: AIR 2004 SC 5097: 2004 Cri LJ 4985.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2004]

(iv) Temperament of person committing suicide

[8120] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Ingredients of offence, reiterated — Temperament of person committing suicide — Relevance — Deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive — Human sensitivity of each individual differs from the other — Different people behave differently in same situation

An enquiry was conducted by the Security Officer of the University, the appellant herein, regarding the theft of a mobile phone. A dispute arose between deceased and H. Deceased committed suicide during enquiry, by jumping in front of a train, leaving a suicide note. In the suicide note it is stated that he did not commit the theft and he had committed suicide because he was falsely implicated in the theft case of a mobile phone. On the basis of the suicide note an FIR under Section 306 IPC was registered. In the said FIR, the appellant was not even named as an accused. A report under Section 173 CrPC was submitted only against H. Charges were framed against H. Complainant, being the father of the deceased filed a private complaint alleging that the appellant S and M were responsible for abetting the suicide of his son. The trial court, on the basis of the said complaint, summoned the appellant as well as M to face trial under Section 306 IPC. The appellant, aggrieved by the framing of the charge moved the High Court in the revision petition which was dismissed. The appellant submitted that whether it would be just and fair to compel the appellant to face the rigmarole of a criminal trial in the absence of any credible material against him? When the appellant was in no manner connected with this case and there was no credible material to connect the appellant with the crime, in this view of the matter, according to the appellant, it would be a futile exercise to compel him to undergo the rigmarole of a criminal trial.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

Abetment involves a mental process of instigating a person or intentionally aiding a person in doing of a thing. Without a positive act on the part of the accused to instigate or aid in committing suicide, conviction cannot be sustained. The intention of the legislature and the ratio of the cases decided by the Supreme Court is clear that in order to convict a person under Section 306 IPC there has to be a clear mens rea to commit the offence. It also requires an active act or direct act which led the deceased to commit suicide seeing no option and that act must have been intended to push the deceased into such a position that he committed suicide. (Para 25)

In the instant case, the deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences which happen in our day-to-day life. Human sensitivity of each individual differs from the other. Different people behave differently in the same situation. (Para 26)

When the facts of this case are carefully scrutinised and critically examined in the light of the settled legal position the conclusion becomes obvious that no conviction can be legally sustained without any credible evidence or material on record against the appellant. The order of framing a charge under Section 306 IPC against the appellant is palpably erroneous and unsustainable. It would be travesty of justice to compel the appellant to face a criminal trial without any credible material whatsoever. Consequently, the order of framing charge under Section 306 IPC against the appellant is quashed and all proceedings pending against him are also set aside. (Para 27). S.S. Chheena v. Vijay Kumar Mahajan, (2010) 12 SCC 190: (2010) 3 UPLJ 223 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and K.S. Radhakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-8-2010]

Gangula Mohan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 750: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 917; Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157; Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107; Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 367, relied on [8121] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Abetment of suicide — Ingredients of, reiterated — Proof thereof — Requisites for — Susceptibility of person concerned to commit suicide — Relevance — Suicide by wife — Held, abetment involves mental process of instigating or intentionally aiding a person in doing of a thing — There should be clear mens rea to commit offence under S. 306 — It requires commission of direct or active act by accused which led deceased to commit suicide seeing no other option and such act must be intended to push victim into a position that he commits suicide — In instant case, neither were there any instances of instigation attributable to appellants nor even any allegations thereof — No proximate link between event when deceased (wife of A-1) was denied permission to use family car and she, her husband and child were made to use public transport instead to reach Theme Park where whole family was headed, allegedly being told "if you want to go by a car, you have to bring a car from your family", and factum of suicide — Deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences of everyday life — Appellants not being even remotely connected with occurrence, held, cannot be convicted under S. 306 (Paras 44 to 49). M. Mohan v. State, (2011) 3 SCC 626.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Dalveer Bhandari and S.S. Nijjar, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-2011]

Gangula Mohan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 750: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 917; Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157; Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107; Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 367; V.P. Shrivastava v. Indian Explosives Ltd., (2010) 10 SCC 361: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1290; Madan Mohan Singh v. State of Gujarat, (2010) 8 SCC 628: (2010) 2 SCC (L&S) 682: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1048, relied on [8122] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Applicability of S. 306 — Sensitivity to ordinary petulance, discord and differences in domestic life quite common to society to which victim belonged — Relevance — Abetment of suicide — Conviction reversed — Allegation against appellant-accused for harassing his deceased servant by accusing him of committing theft of gold ornaments, two days prior to servant's death — Appellant, allegedly, also demanded Rs 7000 from deceased, given in advance to him at the time he was kept in employment — Deceased, not able to bear harassment meted out to him, allegedly committed suicide — Appellant's conviction under S. 306, upheld by High Court — Sustainability — Held, abetment involves a mental process of instigating a person or intentionally aiding a person in doing of a thing — Without a positive act on part of accused to instigate or aid in committing suicide, conviction cannot be sustained — In order to convict a person under S. 306, there has to be a clear mens rea to commit offence — It also requires an active act or direct act which leads deceased to commit suicide seeing no option and this act must have been intended to push deceased into such a position that he commits suicide — Also, reiterated, if it appears to court that a victim committing suicide was hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences in domestic life quite common to society to which victim belonged and such petulance, discord and differences were not expected to induce a similarly circumstanced individual in a given society to commit suicide, conscience of court should not be satisfied for basing a finding that accused charged of abetting suicide should be found guilty — Herein, deceased was undoubtedly hypersensitive to ordinary petulance, discord and differences which happen in day-to-day life — In facts and circumstances of case, none of the ingredients of offence under S. 306 made out — Hence, appellant's conviction, held, unsustainable (Paras 17, 13, 15 and 18). Gangula Mohan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 750.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2010]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088; State of W.B. v. Orilal Jaiswal, (1994) 1 SCC 73: 1994 SCC (Cri) 107; Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605, relied on

(5) Trial, Proof and Other issues

Synopsis

(i) Acquittal justified 240
(ii) Circumstantial evidence 242
(iii) Conviction justified 242
(iv) Dying declaration 243
(v) Other issues 243
(vi) Quashment or continuance of proceedings 245
(vii) Relatives of husband 248
(viii) Suicide note 249

(i) Acquittal justified

[8123] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Acquittal justified — Dowry death alleged — Witnesses, mother, aunt and cousin of the deceased, stating about demand of dowry and consequential ill-treatment to the deceased by her in-laws — But letters written by the deceased to her parents and sister not indicating that she had ever been taunted or humiliated on account of dowry demand or that she had ever been physically or mentally tortured in her in-laws' house — Uncorroborated testimony of chance witness found unreliable — Held, in the circumstances of the case, no interference with order of acquittal passed by the High Court called for. State of Punjab v. Gurdip Singh, (1996) 7 SCC 163: 1996 SCC (Cri) 244.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.T. Nanavati, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-12-1995]

[Ed.: In para 7 it has been observed "if the allegation of such demand of dowry and the consequential torture on the newly married girl, Jyoti Bala, was there, it is reasonably expected that the charge under Section 304-B would have been made against the accused". With due respect it is submitted that in the present case the offence was committed much before addition of Section 304-B.]

[8124] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Ingredients if made out — Acquittal justified — Deceased caused death of two children by administering poison and then she herself committed suicide by consuming poison — In suicidal note left by deceased, she alleged that her husband was impotent and a sexual pervert who behaved like an animal, that he was trying to defame her for having a sexual relationship with other women and that she wanted to kill him but she tolerated the insulting manner in which he behaved — Appellant-accused in his statement under S. 313 CrPC alleged that deceased was a lesbian — He submitted that the fact that deceased took lives of innocent children and then committed suicide established that she was mentally unsound and that the suicide note at the most described accused as a sexual pervert but his behaviour could not be taken to be an act of abetting suicide — Held, ingredients of S. 306 not made out — Therefore, conviction recorded by the courts below cannot be maintained. Sohan Raj Sharma v. State of Haryana, (2008) 11 SCC 215: AIR 2008 SC 2108: 2008 Cri LJ 2569: (2008) 2 KLT 287.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-4-2008]

Randhir Singh v. State of Punjab, (2004) 13 SCC 129; Kishori Lal v. State of M.P., (2007) 10 SCC 797, relied on [8125] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Involvement of accused mother-in-law, if made out — Acquittal justified — On facts, no direct or circumstantial evidence that she tortured or harassed the deceased regarding inadequate dowry — Held, entitled to acquittal under S. 306 and under S. 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act (Para 8). Arvind Kumar v. State of M.P., (2007) 12 SCC 681: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 356: AIR 2007 SC 2674: (2007) 57 AIC 54 (SC): 2007 Cri LJ 3741.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.V. Raveendran and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-2007]

[8126] — S. 306 — Abetment to commission of suicide — Absence of dependable evidence — Conviction reversed. Chanchal Kumari v. UT, Chandigarh, AIR 1986 SC 752.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-7-1985]

[8127] — S. 306 — Acquittal justified — Husband charged for abetment of suicide by wife — Doubtful testimony of prosecution witnesses — Material omissions in statement made under S. 161 CrPC — Unreasoned non-examination of an important witness — High Court, reversing the order of acquittal by Sessions Judge, convicting accused under S. 306 IPC — High Court, held, acted beyond its jurisdiction by not adverting to the grounds and reasons given for discarding the testimony of witnesses by Sessions Judge — Prosecution having failed to establish their case beyond reason- able doubt, impugned order of High Court set aside — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 & 386. Anil Kumar v. State of Punjab, (2000) 9 SCC 455: 2001 SCC (Cri) 469.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-2000]

[8128] — S. 306 — Suicide by housewife by sprinkling kerosene on her body and setting herself on fire — Acquittal justified — Trial court on appreciation of evidence finding that ingredients necessary to attract S. 306 not satisfied — High Court on reappreciation of evidence also affirming that conclusion and taking the view that there was no evidence to establish the case of instigation or abetment of the accused persons to commit suicide — In view of order of acquittal passed by the trial court and High Court, held, there was no justification for Supreme Court's interference with the same — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. State of Haryana v. Jasvinder Singh, (2000) 9 SCC 387: 2001 SCC (Cri) 402.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-3-2000]

[8129] — Ss. 306, 107 and 498-A — Abetment of suicide — Conviction not sustainable — On facts neither of the ingredients of abetment are attracted — Dying declaration of the deceased wife alone not sufficient to bring the acts of the appellants husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law of the deceased, within S. 306 — Conviction for abetment of suicide merely on the allegation of harassment to the deceased not sustainable — Appellants not charged under S. 498-A though offence had been committed after commencement of that section — Prejudice would be caused if the appellants are involved under S. 498-A in substitution particularly when the husband and mother-in-law have undergone the sentence imposed on them and the sister-in-law has also undergone some sentence. Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and Sujata V. Manohar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1995]

Followed in Kishori Lal v. State of M.P., (2007) 10 SCC 797: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 701

[8130] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Benefit of doubt — Conflicting dying declarations — Charge of abetment of suicide — Death from burn injuries — First dying declaration stating that while the deceased was pumping the stove, it burst suddenly and her saree caught fire and that hearing her shouts her husband rushed towards her and tried to save her — Subsequent dying declarations stating that being angry with her husband, the deceased herself set her body ablaze — In such circumstances, guilt of abetting suicide under S. 306 IPC, held, not proved beyond reasonable doubt — Hence, the accused husband, held, entitled to benefit of doubt — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32(1)

The appellant, his wife S and their child resided in a rented house separate from the appellant's parents. S gradually became aggrieved of the behaviour of the appellant including his returning late in the night and that too in a drunken state, neglecting of his business, neglecting S and neglecting the child. Once, when the appellant allegedly returned home in the midnight in a drunken state there was a quarrel between him and S with the result that S poured kerosene on her person and set herself ablaze. She was immediately taken to a private hospital and thereafter to Government Medical College and Hospital. In the noon following that night, one H recorded the dying declaration of S. On the same day in the afternoon, the Executive Magistrate recorded her dying declaration. On the next day, one HC recorded her statement. Six days later, S succumbed to the burn injuries. The appellant and his father were tried under Section 306 IPC. The prosecution version is that the subsequent dying declarations made by S alleging that she had committed suicide because there used to be quarrels between her and her husband (the appellant) were corroborated by two letters allegedly written by S to her parents. That the so-called first written dying declaration could not render the voluminous evidence untrustworthy. The trial court, after considering the evidence, held that the offences had been proved against the appellant. After unsuccessfully approaching the High Court, the appellant filed the present appeal by special leave.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

In the first dying declaration S stated that while she was pumping the stove it suddenly burst and her saree caught fire. She shouted loudly and then her husband rushed towards her and extinguished the fire. Nothing was alleged against the appellant in it. Rather it showed that the appellant tried to save S. In the subsequent dying declaration S is said to have stated that she poured kerosene on her and set herself ablaze because she was angry with her husband. (Para 12)

In view of the different dying declarations it would not be safe to uphold the conviction of the appellant and he has to be given the benefit of doubt. It could not be said in the present case that the prosecution had proved the appellant's guilt under Section 306 IPC of abetting the suicide beyond reasonable doubt. (Para 16). Sanjay v. State of Maharashtra, (2007) 9 SCC 148: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 91: AIR 2007 SC 1368: 2007 Cri LJ 1801: (2007) 52 AIC 20 (SC).

(5)(i) Acquittal justified (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-3-2007]

[8131] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Improvements made in testimony by two star prosecution witnesses from time to time — Reliability of — Acquittal justified — Appeal against acquittal of accused — Copy of evidence of said witnesses having not been produced for appreciation before SC, held, High Court was justified in acquitting the accused persons by reappreciating the evidence — CrPC, 1973, S. 386. State of Haryana v. Jai Parkash, (2002) 9 SCC 663: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1523: AIR 2000 SC 3569 (2).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-3-2000]

(ii) Circumstantial evidence

[8132] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Suicide or accidental death — Circumstantial evidence — Prosecution case that appellant's wife committed suicide by jumping into a tank near the field where she was working at about 1.30 p.m. — Trial court accepted the prosecution case on the basis of the facts that during the course of preparation of "mahazar" SI found a pair of chappals on the bank of the tank, that there were no visible signs of somebody slipping into the tank and that deceased was being ill-treated by her appellant husband — No other evidence adduced by prosecution — Three other persons who were alleged to have reached the spot immediately after the incident not examined by prosecution — Held, circumstantial evidence relied on by prosecution not sufficient to uphold conviction of appellant under Ss. 306 and 498-A

Had the three other witnesses who were alleged to have reached the spot immediately after the incident been examined they would have thrown some light as to whether it was a suicide or not. The presumption drawn on the basis of the presence of chappals on the side of the tank that it was suicide, is not on sound reasoning. If somebody wants to wash the foot, normally the chappal would be kept by the side of the tank and only after removing the chappal one would touch the water. The absence of slippery marks also cannot be a valid reason for coming to the conclusion that it was a case of suicide. It is true that the prosecution had produced a series of letters allegedly written by the deceased to prove that she was being ill-treated by her husband and that her life was miserable. Even if it is accepted that the contents of the letters are true, that would only prove that she was being ill-treated by her husband and if it was an accidental death the appellant could not have been found guilty of the offence under Section 498-A or 306 IPC. The incident had happened at 1.30 p.m. in broad daylight which also may not advance the theory of the prosecution of suicidal death. (Para 3)

These facts were not correctly considered and appreciated by the Sessions Court as well as the High Court and the only evidence in this case adduced by the prosecution is not sufficient to hold that the appellant had committed the offence under Sections 498-A and 306 IPC. The circumstantial evidence relied on by the prosecution is not conclusive in nature and for this sole reason the conviction and sentence entered against the appellant on both counts is set aside. (Para 4). N.D. Nanjappa v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 14 SCC 763.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan, S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-2006]

(iii) Conviction justified

[8133] — S. 306 — Charge of abetment of suicide by husband — Proof — Suicide committed by wife by pouring kerosene on her person and setting her body on fire soon after marriage — Conviction confirmed — Constant harassment, humiliation and torture of wife by appellant husband for bringing insufficient dowry articles and his persistent demand for more sophisticated articles proved by reliable evidence of PWs — Defence of accused husband that his wife was suffering from mental ailment belied by evidence of PWs — Fact that deceased sustained 100% burn injuries showing that neither accused made any effort to save his wife from committing suicide nor he called any doctor though he was present in the house when the incident took place — This apathetic conduct of accused provided an additional circumstance in the link of the ocular version of PWs who supported prosecution case in its entirety — Courts below found accused guilty — Evaluation of findings of trial court and High Court not suffering from any illegality, manifest error or perversity, nor those courts overlooked or wrongly discarded any vital piece of evidence against accused — Held findings of fact of courts below do not call for any interference by Supreme Court in appeal — Hence conviction and sentence of 7 years' RI under S. 306 and 6 months' RI under S. 4 of the Dowry Prohibi- tion Act and fine of Rs 5000 with default clause against the husband upheld — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, S. 4 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374 and 386 (Paras 11 to 14). Arvind Kumar v. State of M.P., (2007) 12 SCC 681: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 356: AIR 2007 SC 2674: (2007) 57 AIC 54 (SC): 2007 Cri LJ 3741.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.V. Raveendran and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-2007]

[8134] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Abetment of suicide — Death of a married woman by burning — Conviction confirmed — High Court giving cogent and convincing reasons for ruling out defence theory of accident — Finding of High Court that the deceased had been treated cruelly by the appellants, husband and mother-in-law of deceased, confirmed — Reversal of acquittal upheld — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A. Naresh Kumar v. State of Haryana, 1994 SCC (Cri) 502.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-4-1993]

(iv) Dying declaration

[8135] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Abetment of suicide — Death by burning — Dying declaration not credible — Conviction set aside — Allegation of dowry demand made by appellants — Trial court convicted appellants under Ss. 306 and 498-A — High Court upheld conviction, relying on dying declaration recorded by SDM — Primary evidence was, dying declaration recorded by SDM — In deceased's statement recorded by doctor before IO, she had stated about an accident — Repeated efforts had been made by IO to record her dying declaration, but failed because of incapacity of victim — Dying declaration was allegedly recorded by SDM after an application was moved before him by PW 10 — Fitness certificate from doctor not obtained prior to recording dying declaration — Dying declaration, held, was manoeuvred at instance of PW 10 — Actual incident rested exclusively on statements of PWs 2 and 10 — Fact regarding oral dying declaration omitted in statements under S. 161 CrPC — Hence, held, statements of PWs 2 and 10 also, inspire no confidence (Paras 11 to 17). Subhash v. State of Haryana, (2011) 2 SCC 715.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-2010]

[8136] — Ss. 306 and 498-A r/w S. 34 — Dowry death — Burn injuries upto 94% — Alleged dying declaration exonerating the accused, held, not genuine — Victim on oxygen — No case of prosecution that deceased M made any dying declaration — But doctor (PW 5), who conducted the post-mortem, stating during cross-examination that a dying declaration was made by M when she was in hospital — This alleged dying declaration supportive to the defence — PW 5 was not the doctor who was treating M when she was alive — Death within half an hour after the alleged declaration made — Declaration admitted in evidence on behest of defence by trial court — Source of production of this document neither mentioned in trial court's judgment nor was there any evidence to prove the said document — Held, High Court rightly rejected the said dying declaration and rightly set aside the acquittal by trial court based on it — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 32(1)

Until PW 5, the doctor who conducted the post-mortem was examined, the defence did not, in any manner, indicate or disclose the factum of the existence of a dying declaration. No suggestion was put to the other prosecution witness as to the existence of a dying declaration. It is very surprising that a doctor who admittedly did not treat a patient during her lifetime would be called upon to certify the fitness of the patient to make a dying declaration when other doctors who treated the said patient were available for the said purpose. From the evidence on record also, it is clear that the deceased was in no condition to make a dying declaration. She had almost 95% burns and she was put on oxygen right from the moment she was brought to the hospital and continued to be on oxygen till she died. In such circumstances, it is difficult to believe that she could have made a dying declaration when she was not even capable of breathing by herself. The evidence on record shows that she died within about half an hour after making the alleged dying declaration. All these circumstances lead to one and the only conclusion that this dying declaration is not a genuine document and the High Court was justified in rejecting the same on that basis. (Para 7). Kamalakar Nandram Bhavsar v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 10 SCC 192: AIR 2004 SC 503: 2004 Cri LJ 615: (2004) 14 AIC 336 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-2003]

(v) Other issues

[8137] — Ss. 306, 294(b) and 323 — 7 days' delay in registering FIR — 40 days' delay in sending it to court — Effect — Trial court convicting appellant-accused under Ss. 306 and 294(b) — Co-accused convicted under Ss. 306 and 323 — Both accused acquitted in appeal — In revision petition High Court converting acquittal into conviction with reduced sentence — Sustainability —

(5)(v) Other issues (contd.)

Held, unexplained delay was large — Judgment of High Court set aside and matter remitted for considering the effect of delay keeping in view the scope and ambit of S. 401(3) — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 154 & 173 and 401(3) (Paras 16 to 18). Kannika v. Mookaiah, (2009) 3 SCC 735: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 197: AIR 2009 SC 1919: (2009) 76 AIC 215 (SC). Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-2009]

[8138] — Ss. 306 and 506 r/w S. 120-B — Inter-religious/inter-class marriage — Abetment of suicide and criminal intimidation of one spouse — Interference with investigation already concluded — Unsustainability — CBI investigation ordered by Single Judge of High Court and pursuant thereto charge-sheet filed under S. 120-B r/w Ss. 306 and 506 — Investigation transferred to CBI due to nexus alleged between police officials and girl's relatives — In appeal Division Bench directing CBI to start investigation afresh and register a case of murder against accused — Sustainability of — Held, once an FIR had been registered lawfully and investigation had been conducted, leading to filing of charge-sheet before competent court of law for trial of accused persons, there was absolutely no justifiable reason for Division Bench to direct CBI to start investigation afresh after three years — Fresh investigation into same allegations would be a futile exercise more particularly when there was no adverse comment on concluded investigation by CBI — De novo investigation would result in delay of justice — Single Judge's orders, restored — Any action against officers of State Police Department, as directed by Single Judge, to be in accordance with law and service conditions applicable to them and after affording them opportunity of hearing — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 173(8) & (2) and 156

One RR, the deceased, a Computer Graphics Engineer fell in love with a girl, namely, P, daughter of AK. On 18-8-2007, RR married P under the Special Marriage Act, 1954 in the Marriage Registration Office. On 31-8-2007, P left her father's house and started living in her husband's home at Tiljala within the jurisdiction of Karaya Police Station, Kolkata. The couple informed the Police Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner of Police (South), the Superintendent of Police, 24 Parganas (S), the Officer-in-charge, Karaya Police Station and the Officer-in-charge, Bidhan Nagar Police Station about their marriage by a letter dated 31-8-2007 along with a copy of the marriage registration certificate. On the same day i.e. 31-8-2007, P informed her father about her marriage with the deceased and also of the fact of her residing with her husband in her in-laws' house. On the very same day, in the evening, around 6.30 p.m., AK, P's father, AS, maternal uncle of P and T, brother of AK went to the house of the deceased and persuaded him and his family members to send P back to their house but P did not agree to their request. On the same night, AK lodged a complaint at Karaya Police Station and consequently two police officers went to the residence of the deceased to create mental pressure on him.

On 1-9-2007, early in the morning, AK and AS threatened the deceased that if P did not return back to her parents' house, they would face dire consequences. On the same day, T lodged a complaint with the Deputy Commissioner of Police alleging that P has been taken away by the deceased by deceitful means with intent to marry her. On various dates, the Deputy Commissioner of Police (DD) called P and her husband at his office and asked P to go back to her parents' house, but she refused to accept the proposal.

On 8-9-2007, T made another application to the police that P has been detained forcibly by the deceased. On the action of the complaint, the Sub-Inspector went to the residence of the deceased and summoned the couple to Police Headquarters, Lal Bazar, Kolkata and the custody of P was handed over to her uncle AS with condition that she will return to her husband's house after one week.

On 21-9-2007, the dead body of RR was found on the railway tracks between Dum Dum and Bidhan Nagar Road Stations with injuries and the head smashed. On the same day, RB the brother of the deceased, lodged a written complaint with Karaya Police Station suspecting the hands of AK behind the unnatural death of his brother and the same was registered. The body of the deceased was sent for post-mortem. The post-mortem report revealed that the death was due to 10 injuries on the body and consistent with the injuries caused by train running at moderate speed. On 24-9-2007, the case was taken over by the Criminal Investigation Department (CID). CID carried out investigation and examined various witnesses including AK and his family members.

The mother and brother of the deceased filed a writ petition before the High Court. The Single Judge of the High Court, after hearing the parties, by an interim order dated 16-10-2007 directed CBI to investigate into the cause of death of the deceased and to file a report in a sealed cover before the Court within two months. Pursuant to the abovesaid direction, CBI registered case under Section 120-B read with Sections 302 and 506 of the Penal Code, 1860 (IPC) against AK and others.

On 8-1-2008, CBI filed report before the Single Judge which indicated that the deceased committed suicide by lying before the train and sought permission to file charge-sheet against AK, his brother T, AS, SM, AJ, SC and K under Section 120-B read with Sections 306 and 506 IPC. After considering the case, the Single Judge of the High Court, by final order dated 14-8-2008, granted liberty to CBI to proceed in accordance with law for filing charge-sheet before a competent court under Section 173(2) CrPC. Liberty was also reserved to CBI to conduct further investigation before it actually files the charge-sheet. Pursuant to that order, CBI continued with the investigation and filed a charge-sheet under Section 120-B read with Sections 306 and 506 IPC against AK, T, AS, SC and K, SM, AJ.

Aggrieved by the judgment and order dated 14-8-2008 passed by the Single Judge, AK and others filed appeals before the Division Bench of the High Court. The Division Bench of the High Court heard all the appeals together and by the impugned judgment and order dated 18-5-2010 set aside the judgment and order dated 14-8-2008 passed by the Single Judge and directed CBI to start investigation afresh in accordance with law by treating the complaint dated 21-9-2007 filed by the brother of the deceased as FIR and to register a case of murder and further directed to complete the investigation preferably within a period of four months from the date of the order. Aggrieved thereby, the appellants were before the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court held as above.

Disposing of the appeals in terms below,

Held :

The Division Bench has erred in directing CBI to start investigation afresh in accordance with law by treating the complaint of the brother of the deceased as FIR and to register a case of murder. All this had already been done by CBI three years back. Once an FIR had been registered lawfully and investigation had been conducted leading to filing of charge-sheet before the competent court of law for the trial of accused persons, absolutely, there was no justifiable reason for the Division Bench to direct re-registration of the same by lodging another FIR after three years and proceed with the investigation which had already been concluded by CBI. The Division Bench of the High Court has failed to note that the fresh investigation into the same allegation would be a futile exercise and no purpose would be served by investigating the case afresh, more particularly, when there is no adverse comment on the investigation carried out by CBI. The de novo investigation by lodging another FIR would result in delay of justice since the Division Bench has ordered to conduct the same investigation under the same sections started three years back by the same agency, namely, CBI. Therefore, reasonings of the Division Bench for a fresh investigation by CBI is not sustainable. (Paras 53 to 55)

Regarding the directions passed by the High Court about the conduct of the officers and taking action against them on the departmental side, it is clarified that the department concerned is free to take appropriate action in accordance with the statute/rules/various orders applicable to them, after affording reasonable opportunity of hearing. The Single Judge rightly deprecated the conduct of the police officers in interfering with the conjugal affairs of the couple even without any formal complaint against any one of them. (Para 56). Ashok Kumar Todi v. Kishwar Jahan, (2011) 3 SCC 758. Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-2011]

(vi) Quashment or continuance of proceedings

[8139] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Quashment of charge — Not justified — Held, on facts, High Court in revision was not justified in quashing the charge under S. 306 holding that the suicide was not the result of abetment by accused-respondent merely because suicide was committed 20 days after deceased was accused of stealing 10 gm of gold — Whether or not the allegation was based on truth would have to be decided on basis of evidence presented by prosecution before the Court — CrPC, 1973, S. 397 (Para 4). State of Haryana v. Surinder Kumar, (2000) 10 SCC 337. Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.N. Phukan, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-1999]

Netai Dutta v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 659, followed

[8140] — S. 306 — Power to summon other persons appearing to be guilty — Material to be considered — Test to be applied — Relevance of defences raised by the persons summoned — Deceased committing suicide by consuming "sulphos" tablets after accused S had delivered nude photographs to her house and her paternal uncle's house and thereafter telephoned her that her father and uncle must have received his gifts — Alleged that prior to said incident, S always used to follow her despite her protests and when she refused his marriage proposal, S and appellants threatened and blackmailed her — However, charge-sheet filed only against S — When witnesses deposed before trial court that it was not only S but appellants also who had threatened to "defame" the deceased, and on perusing dying declaration wherein deceased had categorically named them as active participants in abetting her to commit suicide, trial court summoned them as additional accused in connection with FIR under Ss. 306/509/420/120-B/456 IPC — Sustainability — Held, only because no charge-sheet had been submitted against certain persons, same by itself, would not be a sufficient ground to decline to exercise jurisdiction to add other persons as accused on considering evidence adduced before court by prosecution — Dying declaration together with deposition of witnesses prima facie shows participation of appellants in alleged offence — It cannot be concluded that said evidence, even if given face value and taken to be correct in its entirety had not disclosed commission of an offence or on basis thereof judgment of conviction could not be recorded at all — Defences raised by appellants may or may not be accepted, but at present stage evidence adduced discloses some offence — Hence, summoning of appellants, upheld — CrPC, 1973, S. 319 (Paras 9, 10, 15 to 18). Harbhajan Singh v. State of Punjab, (2009) 13 SCC 608: (2009) 82 AIC 29 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 4429.

(5)(vi) Quashment or continuance of proceedings (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-2009]

Mohd. Shafi v. Mohd. Rafiq, (2007) 14 SCC 544: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 889, distinguished

MCD v. Ram Kishan Rohtagi, (1983) 1 SCC 1: 1983 SCC (Cri) 115, considered and relied on

Joginder Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 1 SCC 345: 1979 SCC (Cri) 295; Lok Ram v. Nihal Singh, (2006) 10 SCC 192: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 532; Shashikant Singh v. Tarkeshwar Singh, (2002) 5 SCC 738: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1203; Kailash v. State of Rajasthan, (2008) 14 SCC 51: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 1006; Sarabjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2009) 16 SCC 46, relied on [8141] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Abetment of suicide — Proceedings against alleged abetment of suicide initiated without any factual foundation therefor — Fitness for interference by High Court with, under S. 482 CrPC — Following the reasons given in Netai Dutta v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 659, such proceedings quashed — CrPC, 1973, S. 482 (Para 3). Pawan Kumar Bhalotia v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 661: 2005 SCC (Cri) 545: AIR 2005 SC 1531: 2005 Cri LJ 1810.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-2005]

[8142] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Abetment of suicide — Quashment of charge — When warranted — Appellant not named in FIR — Order of framing a charge under S. 306 IPC on basis of allegation of father of deceased — Allegations not substantiated — Held, suicide note does not even remotely connect appellant with offence of abetment — Order framing charge against appellant is unsustainable — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 228 and 482 (Paras 14, 21 to 27). S.S. Chheena v. Vijay Kumar Mahajan, (2010) 12 SCC 190: (2010) 3 UPLJ 223 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and K.S. Radhakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-8-2010]

[8143] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Quashing of charges/criminal proceedings under S. 306 IPC — Allegation that appellant wife who belonged to higher caste used to harass the deceased husband who belonged to lower caste and was working as a Civil Judge — Held, High Court rightly appreciated material on record before quashing the complaint — CrPC, 1973, S. 482 (Para 8)

The present Respondent 1 was married to MA (hereinafter referred to as "the deceased") in the year 2003. According to the prosecution, the deceased was working as a Civil Judge. Respondent 1's in-laws did not approve of the marriage as Respondent 1 belonged to an upper caste while the deceased belonged to the Scheduled Caste. A child was born to them. The deceased consumed some poisonous substance and lost his life in 2007.

It was the case of the prosecution that during enquiry it surfaced that Respondent 1-accused used to harass the deceased and subject him to mental cruelty as she belonged to higher caste and she did not like association of the deceased with his parents and relatives. This was stated to be the ground of suicide and the accused abetted the suicide. Charge-sheet was filed in the Court of Magistrate.

An application under Section 482 of the Code was filed questioning the order passed by the learned Magistrate. The High Court quashed the proceedings. It was held that the ingredients of Section 306 were not established.

Dismissing the appeal, the Supreme Court held as above. Kailashi Bai v. Aarti Arya, (2009) 13 SCC 548: (2009) 79 AIC 256 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-4-2009]

State of Karnataka v. M. Devendrappa, (2002) 3 SCC 89: 2002 SCC (Cri) 539, applied

[8144] — Ss. 306 and 107 — Quashment of proceedings — When warranted — Circumstances envisaged — Alleged abetment of suicide — A-1 (husband of deceased) and A-3 (wife of A-2 who was elder brother of A-1) alleged to have tortured deceased on some pretext or other, especially in connection with getting a car from her father — No proximate link between event when deceased (wife of A-1) was denied permission to use family car and she, her husband and child were made to use public transport instead to reach Theme Park where whole family was headed, allegedly being told "if you want to go by a car, you have to bring a car from your family", and factum of suicide — Deceased committing suicide four days later — No allegations of dowry demand, nor any instances of instigation alleged against appellants A-4 and A-5, who were elder brother and mother respectively of A-1 — Hence held, High Court was not justified in rejecting appellants' application for quashing charges under S. 306 IPC — Proceedings quashed — CrPC, 1973, S. 482 (Paras 51 to 68). M. Mohan v. State, (2011) 3 SCC 626.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Dalveer Bhandari and S.S. Nijjar, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-3-2011]

R.P. Kapur v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 866: 1960 Cri LJ 1239; Nagawwa v. Veeranna Shivalingappa Konjalgi, (1976) 3 SCC 736: 1976 SCC (Cri) 507; State of Karnataka v. L. Muniswamy, (1977) 2 SCC 699: 1977 SCC (Cri) 404; Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551: 1978 SCC (Cri) 10; Madhavrao Jiwajirao Scindia v. Sambhajirao Chandrojirao Angre, (1988) 1 SCC 692: 1988 SCC (Cri) 234; Janata Dal v. H.S. Chowdhary, (1992) 4 SCC 305: 1993 SCC (Cri) 36; Emperor v. Khwaja Nazir Ahmad, (1943-44) 71 IA 203: AIR 1945 PC 18; Lala Jairam Das v. King Emperor, (1944-45) 72 IA 120: AIR 1945 PC 94; Raghubir Saran (Dr.) v. State of Bihar, AIR 1964 SC 1: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 1: (1964) 2 SCR 336; Connelly v. Director of Public Prosecutions, 1964 AC 1254: (1964) 2 WLR 1145: (1964) 2 All ER 401 (HL); Kurukshetra University v. State of Haryana, (1977) 4 SCC 451: 1977 SCC (Cri) 613; State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335: 1992 SCC (Cri) 426; G. Sagar Suri v. State of U.P., (2000) 2 SCC 636: 2000 SCC (Cri) 513; State of A.P. v. Golconda Linga Swamy, (2004) 6 SCC 522: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1805; Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. v. Mohd. Sharaful Haque, (2005) 1 SCC 122: 2005 SCC (Cri) 283; Devendra v. State of U.P., (2009) 7 SCC 495: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 461; State of A.P. v. Gourishetty Mahesh, (2010) 11 SCC 226: (2011) 1 SCC (Cri) 142, relied on [8145] — Ss. 306 and 294(b) — Allegations required to ground proceedings under — Quashing of FIR — Specific allegations and definite material to prima facie sustain allegations — Need for — Abetment of suicide — Suicide note of deceased as well as FIR failing to depict any intention of accused (superior officer of deceased) that deceased might commit suicide — Hence held, if prosecution was allowed to continue on basis of such absurd allegations it would be difficult for every superior officer to work — Merely because a person had a grudge against his superior officer and committed suicide on account of that grudge, even honestly feeling that he was wronged, it would still not be a proper allegation for basing charge under S. 306 IPC — As far as S. 294(b) IPC was concerned, there was nothing in FIR or in suicide note to prima facie satisfy ingredients thereof — Neither was there any proximity nor any nexus between so-called suicide (if at all it was one for which also there was no material on record) and any of the alleged acts on part of appellant — Courts in such cases have to be extremely careful as main person is not available for cross-examination by appellant-accused — Unless, therefore, there is specific allegation and material of definite nature (not imaginary or inferential), it would be hazardous to ask appellant-accused to face trial — CrPC, 1973, S. 482 (Paras 13 to 18). Madan Mohan Singh v. State of Gujarat, (2010) 8 SCC 628: (2010) 2 SCC (L&S) 682: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1048.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-8-2010]

Netai Dutta v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 659: 2005 SCC (Cri) 543; State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335: 1992 SCC (Cri) 426, followed

[8146] — S. 306 r/w S. 34 and S. 107 — Abetment of suicide — Framing of charge — Essentials — Held, a person is said to have abetted in doing a thing, when he "instigates" others to do it — Further held, where the accused by his acts or by a continued course of conduct creates such circumstances that the deceased was left with no other option except to commit suicide, an "instigation" may be inferred — Appellant charged that he along with other two accused "in furtherance of common intention", mentally tortured JS (the deceased) and thereby abetted him to commit suicide — Apart from the suicide note, statements recorded by the police during investigation, showing that on account of business transactions with the accused, the deceased was put under tremendous pressure to do something which he was perhaps not willing to do — Prima facie*, the conduct of the appellant and his accomplices appeared such that the deceased was left with no other option except to end his life — Hence, impugned judgment upholding order of trial court framing charge for offence under S. 306 r/w S. 34, calls for no interference — CrPC, 1973, S. 228 & S. 397 r/w Ss. 401 & 482* (Paras 15, 19 and 21 to 24). Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.K. Jain and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2009]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088, followed

(vii) Relatives of husband

See also under S. 304-B and S. 498-A

[8147] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Conviction on general allegations, maintainability of — Testimonies of the witnesses pointed towards mother-in-law of deceased — General allegations with regard to the other accused found mention only in statement of father of the deceased — Mother-in-law acquitted — In this background maintaining conviction of the appellant on the basis of this evidence, held, not possible (Para 11). Anand Kumar v. State of M.P., (2009) 3 SCC 799: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 28: AIR 2009 SC 2155.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-2-2009]

[8148] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Conviction reversed — Accused mother-in-law alleged to have ill-treated the deceased abetting her to commit suicide — Testimonies of PWs not indicating strained relations between accused and deceased, nor pinpointing that it was only because of cruel behaviour of accused that deceased committed suicide — In her last purported letter deceased had merely stated that accused was a "horrible lady" and that she did not approve of anything done by the deceased — Held, said expression was not such a strong expression to conclude that it was only and only because of behaviour of accused that deceased committed suicide — Letter Ext. P-8 written by sister-in-law of deceased although evidencing that accused may not have had a civil tongue, yet was not sufficient to conclude that accused was so bad and ill-treated the deceased to drive her to commit suicide — In such circumstances it cannot be inferred that accused abetted the deceased to commit suicide — Besides, what the ill-treatment was and frequency thereof remained a mystery which was never brought forth (Paras 6 to 15). Mankamma v. State of Kerala, (2009) 10 SCC 164.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-2009]

[8149] — S. 306 — Sentence — Extenuating circumstances — Death of a married woman by burning — Conviction of husband and mother-in-law of deceased for abetment of suicide — Husband not present at the time of incident — Mother-in-law immediately taking the deceased to the hospital and rendering all possible assistance — Sentence of 5 years' R.I. reduced to 2 years' R.I. Naresh Kumar v. State of Haryana, 1994 SCC (Cri) 502.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-4-1993]

[8150] — Ss. 306, 107 and 498-A — Abetment of suicide — Conviction not sustainable — On facts neither of the ingredients of abetment are attracted — Dying declaration of the deceased wife alone not sufficient to bring the acts of the appellants husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law of the deceased, within S. 306 — Conviction for abetment of suicide merely on the allegation of harassment to the deceased not sustainable — Appellants not charged under S. 498-A though offence had been committed after commencement of that section — Prejudice would be caused if the appellants are involved under S. 498-A in substitution particularly when the husband and mother-in-law have undergone the sentence imposed on them and the sister-in-law has also undergone some sentence. Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and Sujata V. Manohar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1995]

Followed in Kishori Lal v. State of M.P., (2007) 10 SCC 797: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 701

[8151] — Ss. 306, 304-B and 498-A — Suicide — Dowry death — Charges framed under Ss. 304-B and 498-A — Absence of charge under S. 306 — Effect of — Held, inconsequential — On facts, father-in-law convicted under Ss. 498-A and 304-B, whereas mother-in-law convicted under S. 498-A but acquitted under S. 304-B — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 221, 218 and 215 (Paras 11, 9, 10 and 12). Kaliyaperumal v. State of T.N., (2004) 9 SCC 157: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1417: AIR 2003 SC 3828: 2003 Cri LJ 4321.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-2003]

K. Prema S. Rao v. Yadla Srinivasa Rao, (2003) 1 SCC 217: 2003 SCC (Cri) 271, followed [8152] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Involvement of appellant (father-in-law of the deceased) in crime doubted by trial court on the ground that he was old and feeble-sighted — High Court reversing the acquittal by trial court — Evidence of PW 2 that the appellant made a specific demand of Rs 25,000 as dowry before the Panchayat, not dislodged in any manner during the cross-examination — Held, the High Court rightly relied upon this evidence to convict the appellant — Tests laid down in Ramesh Kumar case, held, satisfied — However, having regard to the old age of appellant and the fact that the incident took place about 14 years ago, maintaining the fine, sentence reduced to period already undergone — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 113-A (Paras 3, 4 and 5). Devi Ram v. State of Haryana, (2002) 10 SCC 76.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-2002]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618, applied

[8153] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Suicide by married woman — Presumption against mother-in-law — If any — Investigating agency not proceeding against husband of deceased who was a strong suspect but making scapegoat of his old mother, perhaps relying on age-old concepts of bickering between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law — Held, that is not universal truth — Also, court should appreciate evidence with an open mind without being driven by age-old concepts — Evidence, in instant case fell short of required standard of proof — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 114-A (Paras 16 to 17). Mankamma v. State of Kerala, (2009) 10 SCC 164.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-2009]

[8154] — Ss. 306 and 498-A r/w S. 34 — Dowry death/Bride burning — Ill-treatment and harassment of bride — Suicide committed by her within 7 years of marriage — Involvement of husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law, held on facts, established — However, father-in-law acquitted as there was no evidence to hold him guilty

Considering the circumstances in the case, the fact that the victim was treated badly, consequent to which she had to commit suicide can very well be accepted. (Para 10)

The evidence of PW 2 shows that this witness stated that the deceased had told her that her mother-in-law, sister-in-law and husband were ill-treating her on the ground that she was dark-complexioned and that she was hard of hearing. PW 3 also states that the deceased had complained about her husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law beating her. This witness also stated that the deceased had told her that because of her harassment, she may even commit suicide. PW 1, the brother similarly states that the deceased had complained about the ill-treatment meted out to her by her husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law. It is clear from the evidence of these witnesses that so far as the harassment meted out to the deceased is concerned, the said prosecution witnesses have consistently spoken about the involvement of the husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law. Therefore, the High Court was justified in holding these accused persons responsible for offences punishable under Sections 306 and 498-A read with Section 34 IPC, because by this harassment meted out to the deceased, these accused persons have abetted her suicide. But so far as the father-in-law of the deceased is concerned, there is no evidence at all to hold him guilty of the said offence. (Para 10). Kamalakar Nandram Bhavsar v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 10 SCC 192: AIR 2004 SC 503: 2004 Cri LJ 615: (2004) 14 AIC 336 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-2003]

[8155] — Ss. 306 and 498-A r/w S. 34 — Sentence — Reduction of — Taking into consideration the individual roles played by the accused persons (husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law of deceased wife) in abetting the suicide of the victim and the respective age as well as family circumstances, held, it would be appropriate to reduce the sentences awarded to them accordingly

The High Court sentenced the accused appellants under Section 306 r/w Section 34 IPC to undergo rigorous imprisonment for ten years and to pay a fine of Rs 5000 each. In default of payment of the said fine, appellants were directed to undergo further rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year. The High Court also convicted the appellants for the offence punishable under Section 498-A r/w Section 34 IPC and sentenced them to undergo rigorous imprisonment for three years and to pay a fine of Rs 5000 each. In default of payment of the said fine, the appellants were directed to undergo rigorous imprisonment for six months. All the substantive sentences were to run concurrently.

The appellants contended that they belonged to economically backward community and had not been accused or convicted of any other offence prior to the incident in this case. It was submitted that the third appellant being an old lady and the fourth appellant being a divorcee and dependent on her parents and the fifth appellant being a young lady recently married having a small child should be dealt with leniently and the sentence awarded by the High Court being far in excess, the same should be reduced considerably in regard to all the convicted appellants. Allowing the said contention, the Supreme Court held as above. Kamalakar Nandram Bhavsar v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 10 SCC 192: AIR 2004 SC 503: 2004 Cri LJ 615: (2004) 14 AIC 336 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-2003]

(viii) Suicide note

[8156] — S. 306 — Abetment of suicide — Requirements of — Weight to be given to suicide note — Deceased a field officer in the employment of appellant (A-1), who owned a finance firm — A-1 joining as a partner in K group — Deceased selling 15 plots on behalf of K group and handing over collected amount to A-1 — A-1 not paying the said amount to K group and consequently the other partners not registering the plots in favour of the persons who paid the money to the deceased — On demand by deceased to register the plots in favour of the purchasers, A-1 abusing deceased in filthy language and neither registering plots nor returning the amount — Deceased committing suicide — Suicide note clearly stating that he was taking the extreme step because he was unable to bear the pressure from purchasers and mental harassment — Submission by appellant that there was no element of abetment and hence, offence under S. 306 not made out — Held, in view of the suicide note offence under S. 306 clearly proved — High Court rightly rejected the prayer of exercise of power under S. 482 CrPC to quash the proceedings — CrPC, 1973, S. 482 (Paras 3, 8 and 9). Didigam Bikshapathi v. State of A.P., (2008) 2 SCC 403: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 434: AIR 2008 SC 527: 2008 Cri LJ 724: (2008) 106 Cut LT 313.

(5)(viii) Suicide note (contd.)

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Tarun Chatterjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-11-2007]

Netai Dutta v. State of W.B., (2005) 2 SCC 659: 2005 SCC (Cri) 543, distinguished

[8157] — S. 306 — Suicide note — Appellant specifically named in suicide note which was otherwise not coherent and reflected disturbed state of mind — There was also evidence on record that the deceased always indulged in drinking and was not doing any work — Suicide note, taken with other circumstances, held, deserved no credence

A plain reading of the suicide note would clearly show that the deceased was in great stress and depressed. One plausible reason could be that the deceased was without any work or avocation and at the same time indulged in drinking as revealed from the statement of the wife. He was a frustrated man. Reading of the suicide note suggests that such a note is not the handiwork of a man with a sound mind and sense. The wife had stated that on 26-7-1998 her husband came to them in an inebriated condition and was abusing her and other members of the family. The prosecution story, if believed, shows that the quarrel between the deceased and the appellant had taken place on 25-7-1998 and if the deceased came back to the house again on 26-7-1998, it cannot be said that the suicide by the deceased was the direct result of the quarrel that had taken place on 25-7-1998. Viewed from the aforesaid circumstances independently, the ingredients of "abetment" are totally absent in the instant case for an offence under Section 306 IPC. It is in the statement of the wife that the deceased always remained in a drunken condition. It is common knowledge that excessive drinking leads one to debauchery. It clearly appeared, therefore, that the deceased was a victim of his own conduct unconnected with the quarrel that had ensued on 25-7-1998 where the appellant is stated to have used abusive language. Taking the totality of materials on record and facts and circumstances of the case into consideration, it will lead to the irresistible conclusion that it is the deceased and he alone, and none else, who was responsible for his death. (Para 14). Sanju v. State of M.P., (2002) 5 SCC 371: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1141: AIR 2002 SC 1998: 2002 Cri LJ 2796.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.B. Shah and H.K. Sema, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-2002]

Swamy Prahaladdas v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 438: 1995 SCC (Cri) 943; Mahendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 731: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1157; Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618, relied on [8158] — S. 306 r/w S. 34 and S. 107 — Abetment of suicide — Framing of charge — Essentials — Held, a person is said to have abetted in doing a thing, when he "instigates" others to do it — Further held, where the accused by his acts or by a continued course of conduct creates such circumstances that the deceased was left with no other option except to commit suicide, an "instigation" may be inferred — Appellant charged that he along with other two accused "in furtherance of common intention", mentally tortured JS (the deceased) and thereby abetted him to commit suicide — Apart from the suicide note, statements recorded by the police during investigation, showing that on account of business transactions with the accused, the deceased was put under tremendous pressure to do something which he was perhaps not willing to do — Prima facie*, the conduct of the appellant and his accomplices appeared such that the deceased was left with no other option except to end his life — Hence, impugned judgment upholding order of trial court framing charge for offence under S. 306 r/w S. 34, calls for no interference — CrPC, 1973, S. 228 & S. 397 r/w Ss. 401 & 482* (Paras 15, 19 and 21 to 24). Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2009) 16 SCC 605.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.K. Jain and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2009]

Ramesh Kumar v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2001) 9 SCC 618: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1088, followed

(6) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief

[8159] — S. 306 — Sentence — Extenuating circumstances — Death of a married woman by burning — Conviction of husband and mother-in- law of deceased for abetment of suicide — Husband not present at the time of incident — Mother-in-law immediately taking the deceased to the hospital and rendering all possible assistance — Sentence of 5 years' R.I. reduced to 2 years' R.I. Naresh Kumar v. State of Haryana, 1994 SCC (Cri) 502.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-4-1993]

[8160] — S. 306 — Sentence, adequacy of — Conviction under S. 306 IPC for abetment of suicide of wife and sentence of 5 years' RI awarded — In revision High Court reducing sentence to 2 months only — Held, no justification for High Court's order which seems a mockery of law — In the circumstances 3 years' RI plus fine of Rs 5000 adequate for meeting ends of justice — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 401 & 397. State of A.P. v. Kuna Satyanarayana, (1998) 8 SCC 268.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Kirpal and S.S.M. Quadri, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1998]

[8161] — Ss. 306 and 304-B — Sentence — Mitigating circumstances — Husband convicted for abetting suicide by wife — Acquitted by High Court — Part of sentence served meanwhile — 11 years later Supreme Court finding the acquittal improper — State only interested in setting right the error committed by High Court in acquitting the accused — Sentence reduced to period of imprisonment already undergone but fine enhanced from Rs 500 to Rs 20,000 with a direction to pay Rs 18,000 to father of deceased for bringing up her minor son. Brij Lal v. Prem Chand, 1989 Supp (2) SCC 680: AIR 1989 SC 1661.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Natarajan and A.M. Ahmadi, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1989]

[8162] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Appropriate sentence — Quantum of sentence — Scope of interference in appeal — Wife committed suicide after a family quarrel — Trial court convicted appellant under Ss. 306 and 498-A IPC, sentenced to four years' imprisonment — High Court relying on two letters observed appellant's quarrelsome and aggressive nature — Sentence enhanced from four to six years — Held, enhancement was not justified on account of appellant's quarrelsome nature — Interference with quantum of sentence should be rare and only in exceptional cases — There was no misbehaviour on part of appellant over a period of time — Incident was a spontaneous one arising out of a family quarrel in the morning — Two letters written about a year before incident, have little value in light of dying declaration — Appellant had undergone about four years of sentence — Appeal allowed — Trial court's judgment restored — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 377 and 386 (Paras 2 to 8). Ravindra Tukaram Hiwale v. State of Maharashtra, (2010) 13 SCC 253.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-8-2010]

[8163] — Ss. 306 and 498-A — Sentence of two years' RI each for the said offences ordered to run concurrently — Reduction of — Having regard to the facts that both the appellants suffered imprisonment for about two months, the incident took place on 9-3-1988, and that Appellant 2 (mother of Appellant 1) was aged 60 years, the Supreme Court reducing the sentence to period already undergone

Having regard to the evidence brought on record and looking to the reasons recorded by the High Court, the trial court committed manifest error in disbelieving the dying declaration and the evidence of PWs 3 to 7. The High Court was right and justified in reversing the order of acquittal and convicting and sentencing the appellants for the offences under Sections 306 and 498-A IPC. However, having regard to the fact that both the appellants were in imprisonment for about two months, the incident took place on 9-3-1988, Appellant 2 is the mother of Appellant 1 and she is aged 60 years, it would be just and appropriate to modify the sentence of imprisonment to the period already undergone. (Para 8). Mohd. Hoshan v. State of A.P., (2002) 7 SCC 414: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1765: AIR 2002 SC 3270.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-2002]

[8164] — Ss. 306 and 498-A r/w S. 34 — Offences under — Compensation — Award of — 80% of the fine amount, if realised, directed to be paid to the parents of the victim girl as compensation — CrPC, 1973, S. 357 (Para 16). Kamalakar Nandram Bhavsar v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 10 SCC 192: AIR 2004 SC 503: 2004 Cri LJ 615: (2004) 14 AIC 336 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-2003]

[8165] — Ss. 306 and 498-A r/w S. 34 — Sentence — Reduction of — Taking into consideration the individual roles played by the accused persons (husband, mother-in-law and sister-in-law of deceased wife) in abetting the suicide of the victim and the respective age as well as family circumstances, held, it would be appropriate to reduce the sentences awarded to them accordingly

The High Court sentenced the accused appellants under Section 306 r/w Section 34 IPC to undergo rigorous imprisonment for ten years and to pay a fine of Rs 5000 each. In default of payment of the said fine, appellants were directed to undergo further rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year. The High Court also convicted the appellants for the offence punishable under Section 498-A r/w Section 34 IPC and sentenced them to undergo rigorous imprisonment for three years and to pay a fine of Rs 5000 each. In default of payment of the said fine, the appellants were directed to undergo rigorous imprisonment for six months. All the substantive sentences were to run concurrently.

The appellants contended that they belonged to economically backward community and had not been accused or convicted of any other offence prior to the incident in this case. It was submitted that the third appellant being an old lady and the fourth appellant being a divorcee and dependent on her parents and the fifth appellant being a young lady recently married having a small child should be dealt with leniently and the sentence awarded by the High Court being far in excess, the same should be reduced considerably in regard to all the convicted appellants. Allowing the said contention, the Supreme Court held as above. Kamalakar Nandram Bhavsar v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 10 SCC 192: AIR 2004 SC 503: 2004 Cri LJ 615: (2004) 14 AIC 336 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-2003]

SECTION 307 — ATTEMPT TO MURDER

Synopsis

(1) S. 307 or Ss. 302/304 253
(2) S. 307 and other offences 254
(3) Ingredients of attempt to murder 258
(4) Trial, Proof and Other issues 269
  (i) Acquittal justified 269
  (ii) Appeal/Revision/Writ petition 271
  (iii) Appreciation of evidence 272
  (iv) Bail 273
  (v) Conviction justified 274
  (vi) Other issues 280
  (vii) Witnesses 282
(5) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief 282

— S. 307 See also under S. 34
See alos Ss. 34, 302 and 307
See also under Ss. 96 to 106
See also under Ss. 120-A and 120-B
See also Ss. 143, 120-B, 148, 307 and 302 r/w S. 149
See also Ss. 143, 147, 148, 307 and 149
See also Ss. 143, 147, 341, 307, 326 and 149
See also under S. 147
See also Ss. 148, 147, 307, 307/149, 324, 324/149, 323 and 323/149
See also Ss. 148, 302/34, 307, 324 and 326
See also Ss. 148, 448, 307, 302, 120-B r/w S. 149
See also Ss. 149 and 148, 302, 307 and 323/149
See also Ss. 149, 304 Pt. II or Ss. 149, 302 and 307
See also Ss. 149, 307 and 302
See also S. 149 r/w Ss. 302, 307, 449, 323 to 325 and 148
See also under Ss. 299 to 304
See also Ss. 301, 302 and 307
See also Ss. 301, 304-A and 307
See also S. 302 and Ss. 147, 148, 324, 326, 307 and 302 r/w S. 149
See also Ss. 302 and 307
See also Ss. 302, 307, 143, 148, 149 and 34
See also Ss. 302, 307 and 326
See also Ss. 302/34 and 307
See also Ss. 323, 506, 498-A, 307 and 504
See also Ss. 324 and 307
See also Ss. 324, 307 and 320
See also Ss. 324/34 and 307
See also Ss. 326 and 307
See also Ss. 326 or S. 307 or Ss. 323 and 324
See also Ss. 326, 324 and 307
See also Ss. 384 and 34 and Ss. 302, 307, 120-B, 23 and 114
See also Ss. 394, 307 and 411
See also Ss. 395, 300 and 307
See also Ss. 397/511 and 307
See also Ss. 398 and 307
See also Ss. 449, 458, 459, 392, 397, 302 and 307
— S. 307 r/w S. 34 See Ss. 302 and 307 r/w S. 34
See also Ss. 302 and 307 r/w S. 34 or S. 323

See also Ss. 302, 307 r/w 34 or 326, 324, 323 r/w 34

See also Ss. 302 r/w 34 and 307 r/w 34

See also Ss. 304 Pt. II r/w Ss. 34, 147, 148, 326 r/w S. 34 and S. 307 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 397 r/w Ss. 395 and 396, S. 307 r/w S. 34 and S. 376

See also Ss. 398 and S. 307 r/w S. 34

— S. 307 r/w Ss. 34 and 323 See also Ss. 34, 307 r/w Ss. 34 and 323

— S. 307 r/w S. 148 See also Ss. 302 and 307 r/w Ss. 149 and 148

— S. 307 r/w S. 149 See also Ss. 96, 99, 100, 302 and 307 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 96, 100, 147, 353, 447 and 307 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 99, 100, 302 and 307 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 100, 147, 353, 447 and 307 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 149, 302 and 307 r/w S. 149

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

— Ss. 307/34 See also Ss. 34 [Ss. 302/34 and 307/34]

See also Ss. 34 and 307/34

See also Ss. 34, 307/34 and 323

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 302/34 and 307/34

See also Ss. 302/34, 307/34 and 379/34

See also Ss. 307 and 307/34

— Ss. 307/120-B See also Ss. 302, 302/149, 302/120-B, 307/120-B, 307/149, 120-B, 143, 147, 148, 149, 392, 392/120-B, 392/149, 397/120-B, 397/149, 379, 379/149, 379/120-B, 468, 468/120-B, 468/149, 471, 471/120-B and 471/149

— Ss. 307/149 See also Ss. 96, 100, 101, 307, 148 and 307/149

See also Ss. 148, 147, 307, 307/149, 324, 324/149, 323 and 323/149

See also Ss. 148, 302/149 and 307/149

See also under S. 149

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 307, 148, 307/149, 100 and 101

See also Ss. 325 and 326 or Ss. 302/149, Ss. 307/149 and 148

See also Ss. 399, 402 and 307/149 and 148

(1) S. 307 or Ss. 302/304

See also Ss. 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER, 'C.4. Attempted murder (S. 307)' in Vol. 2

[8166] — Ss. 307, 302 and 34 — Fatal injury caused by the acquitted accused — Appellant firing merely on the back of the deceased — Author of fatal injury having been acquitted S. 34 not applicable — Since appellant fired at the deceased with a rifle he is liable to be convicted for attempt to commit murder — Conviction altered from S. 302 to S. 307 and sentence reduced to ten years' RI from life imprisonment. Jarnail Singh v. State of Punjab, (1996) 1 SCC 527: 1996 SCC (Cri) 146: AIR 1996 SC 755.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and B.N. Kirpal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1995]

[8167] — S. 307 or S. 304 Pt. II — Single blow causing death — Appellant-accused gave hammer-blow on head of deceased, resulting in his death — High Court converting appellant's conviction under S. 302 to S. 307 IPC and sentencing him to 7 years' RI with fine — Sustainability — Held, guilt of appellant amply established — Considering medical evidence and established facts and circumstances, held, appellant can be clothed with the knowledge that injury caused by him with a hammer on the head of deceased, a vital part of the body, was likely to cause his death, though without any intention to cause death or such injury as was likely to cause his death — Appellant gave a single blow on the head — Offence would, therefore, squarely fall under S. 304 Pt. II — He, accordingly, convicted for the said offence — Sentence for the offence under S. 304 Pt. II reduced to the period already undergone — But, in addition, he directed to pay a fine of Rs 20,000 by way of compensation under S. 357 CrPC, to widow of deceased — CrPC, 1973, S. 357 (Paras 4 to 7). Sarup Singh v. State of Haryana, (2009) 16 SCC 479.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-3-1995]

[8168] — Ss. 307/34 and S. 302 — Accused convicted under S. 302 — Conviction under S. 307/34 also in connection with same murder improper. Jagtar Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 65: 1994 SCC (Cri) 226: AIR 1993 SC 2448: 1993 Cri LJ 2886.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.B. Sawant and S. Mohan, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-1993]

Chenna Jagadeeswar v. State of A.P., 1988 Cri LJ 549: (1987) 2 Andh LT 263: 1987 APLJ (Cri) 110 (AP), approved on this point

Maruti Shripati Dubal v. State of Maharashtra, 1987 Cri LJ 743 (Bom), overruled on this point

(2) S. 307 and other offences

[8169] — S. 307 — Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) Act, 1987 — Ss. 2(h), 3 and 6 r/w S. 27 Arms Act, 1959 — Firing with a pistol at a former Chief Minister in broad daylight at a public function causing injury on right side of his chest — Offence falls within the definition of "terrorist activity" — Considering the weapon used by the appellant and the seat and nature of injury appellant was rightly convicted for offences under S. 307 IPC and S. 6 TADA Act read with S. 27 Arms Act — Sentences of 10 years' RI for offence under S. 307 IPC and 5 years' RI under TADA Act and Arms Act maintained — But Designated Court was not justified in making the sentence under S. 307 IPC to run consecutively with the sentence for offences under TADA Act and Arms Act — Fine of Rs 50,000 imposed for offence under S. 307 IPC reduced to Rs 2000 — Direction for payment of amount of fine to the injured Chief Minister by way of compensation is unwarranted. Rajbir v. State of Haryana, (1996) 7 SCC 86: 1996 SCC (Cri) 178.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-1994]

[8170] — S. 307 — Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) Act, 1987, S. 5 — Explosive Substances Act, 1884, S. 4-A — Conviction of appellant under, for hurling a hand grenade from the roof of co-accused in the courtyard of PW 5 — Hand grenade did not explode — Conviction based on sole evidence of PW 5 — Evidence of PW 5 found to be not wholly reliable — Held, conviction cannot be sustained (Paras 8, 9 and 10). Mohinder Singh v. State Govt. (NCT of Delhi), (2002) 10 SCC 189.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and A.P. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-9-1999]

[8171] — S. 307 or S. 308 — Attempt to commit murder or culpable homicide — Incised injuries caused by knife on non-vital parts of body during scuffle in dark night — Accused can be attributed only knowledge that he was likely to cause death — Having regard to age of accused, suddenness in which whole occurrence took place during scuffle, held, offence falls under S. 308 and not S. 307 IPC. Tukaram Gundu Naik v. State of Maharashtra, (1994) 1 SCC 465: 1994 SCC (Cri) 432: 1994 Cri LJ 224.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-10-1993]

[8172] — S. 307 or S. 308 — Out of six injuries sustained by injured first two injuries were grievous — Finding recorded by High Court that appellant had caused injuries to R in an attempt to escape, not borne out from the record — No such suggestion was even made to any of eyewitnesses — On the contrary, reliable evidence of R satisfactorily proving that appellant had caused injuries to him when he had made an attempt to save his brother (deceased victim) — Hence, appellant could not have been convicted under S. 308 for causing injuries to R and was liable to be convicted under S. 307 (Paras 53 and 54). Shaukat v. State of Uttaranchal, (2010) 5 SCC 68.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Panchal and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-2010]

[8173] — Ss. 307 and 324 — Appellants attacking with diverse weapons — 17 injuries caused but cumulatively not dangerous to life — Not clear who weilded which weapon — Conviction proper under S. 324 only. Rekha Mandal v. State of Bihar, 1968 SCD 208: (1968) 1 SCWR 14.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-11-1967]

[8174] — Ss. 307 and 324 — Attempt to commit murder — Pellet injury only grazing the head of the victim — Held, ingredients of S. 307 not satisfied qua the victim — Merely because the injury was caused by a pellet intention to cause death cannot be inferred — Offence falls under S. 324. Merambhai Punjabhai Khachar v. State of Gujarat, 1997 SCC (Cri) 1078: AIR 1996 SC 3236: 1996 Cri LJ 2465.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.L. Hansaria and K. Venkataswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1996]

[8175] — Ss. 307 and 324 — Attempt to murder — Necessary ingredients — Held, in order to bring the case within the ambit of S. 307 it must be shown that the accused acted with such intention or knowledge and under such circumstances that if he by that act caused death, he would be guilty of murder — That is, intention or knowledge to commit murder must exist — In the present case the injuries were only skin deep and the circumstances under which the incident occurred would preclude any inference that the assault was launched with intent to murder — At best the case would fall within the scope of S. 324 IPC — But since the parties, who were neighbours, desired to compound the matter, the court permitted them to do so to ensure lasting peace — Accordingly the conviction and sentence imposed by the High Court under S. 307 IPC set aside and the appellants acquitted — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Sanjay Kumar v. State of M.P., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 502: 1994 SCC (Cri) 586.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi and S. Mohan, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1993]

[8176] — Ss. 307 or 324/34 — Two accused, L and the appellant, causing simple injuries with gandasa on knee and hand of A and on intervention of P, L inflicting two and A one gandasa blows on head of P — One of the head injuries found to be dangerous to the life of 'P' but who among the two accused caused that injury not established — 'P' not concerned with the dispute of accused with 'A' — Held on facts, appellant had no intention to cause death or knowledge of possible death of 'P' — Hence appellant can be convicted under Ss. 326/34 and not under Ss. 307/34. Pashora Singh v. State of Punjab, 1993 Supp (2) SCC 33: 1993 SCC (Cri) 387: AIR 1993 SC 1256: 1993 Cri LJ 1053: (1993) 1 An WR 25 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and N.M. Kasliwal, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1992]

[8177] — S. 307 or S. 325 r/w S. 34 — Modification of sentence — Trial court convicted accused persons to 7 years' RI and a fine — Admittedly a gunshot was fired at B, which hit him in the leg — Held, appellants are guilty under S. 325 r/w S. 34 — Sentence modified to period already undergone. Jagga Singh v. State of Punjab, (2011) 3 SCC 137.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-2-2011]

[8178] — Ss. 307 and 326 — Accused charged under may be convicted under S. 326 even though he was not charged under S. 326, if he could on facts be charged alternatively under S. 307 and S. 326 — CrPC, 1898, S. 237. Bejoy Chand Patra v. State of W.B., AIR 1952 SC 105: 1952 SCR 202: 1952 Cri LJ 644.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Fazl Ali and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1951]

Begu v. Emperor, 52 IA 191: 26 Cri LJ 1059, followed
See also 1952 Cri LJ 839, 845: AIR 1952 SC 159

[8179] — Ss. 307 and 326 — Conviction under both Ss. 307 and 326 — Sustainability — Large number of witnesses giving direct evidence of severe assault on PW 12 who also lost his right hand index finger — Offence and conviction under S. 307, held, proved and upheld — Therefore, conviction under S. 326 not necessary

Based on evidence of eyewitnesses and medical evidence, the trial court and the appellate court have correctly come to the conclusion that the accused is guilty for the offence punishable under Section 307 IPC. In fact, on that count it was not necessary for the trial court to additionally convict him for the offence under Section 326 IPC. That part dealing with the conviction and sentence of the appellant-accused under Section 326 IPC would have to be set aside and is set aside. (Paras 18 and 19)

A-1 did not stop after hacking the two unfortunate persons but proceeded in the direction of the house of PW 12. A-1 immediately after murdering A and S assaulted PW 12. This is proved and corroborated from the evidences of PWs 10, 26, 13, 29, 30, 17 and 27. The assault on PW 12 was so severe that he lost one of his fingers, being right hand index finger. Other circumstantial evidence like the bloodstained clothes, etc. need not be gone into in view of this direct evidence of the eyewitnesses. (Paras 18 and 19). Haru Ghosh v. State of W.B., (2009) 15 SCC 551: (2009) 82 AIC 186 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-2009]

[8180] — Ss. 307 and 326 — Intention to cause death — Inference from weapons used — Four to five persons using deadly weapons but causing only three simple and one grievous hurt to the injured — Conviction under S. 307 not justified

Where four or five persons attack a man with a deadly weapon it may well be presumed that the intention is to cause death. However, when three injuries are of simple nature though deadly weapons were used and the fourth injury, though endangering life could not be deemed to be an injury which would have necessarily caused death but for timely medical aid the benefit of doubt must be given to the accused with regard to the injury intended to be caused. Therefore, the offence is not one under S. 307 but under S. 326, IPC. Jai Narain Mishra v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 762: 1972 SCC (Cri) 40: AIR 1972 SC 1764: 1972 Cri LJ 469.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1971]

[8181] — S. 307 or S. 326 — Appreciation of evidence — Appellant along with nine others tried for offence under S. 307 IPC — Trial court disbelieving eyewitnesses and acquitting the co-accused but convicting the appellant on the sole testimony of the victim, whose right hand was cut off from the wrist by the appellant and imposing a sentence of 5 years' RI — Motive was political rivalry — In the Court of Session appellant acquitted but on further appeal order of trial court restored by High Court — Held, the word of the victim stood singular and apart to the effect that the injury whereby his wrist was cut off was the first one and caused by the appellant — The Court of Session overlooked the fact that the victim could never have substituted the appellant who had dismembered his most important limb — In this state of affairs, there was no option to the High Court but to upset the Court of Session and to record conviction of the appellant — The contention that the offence fell under S. 326 IPC could not be accepted — Had the hand of the victim not been raised in a bid to defend, the aim was the head of the victim — The blow thus aimed clearly spelled out the murderous intent of the appellant — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. Antony v. State of Kerala, 1997 SCC (Cri) 218: AIR 1995 SC 2450: 1995 Cri LJ 4166.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-3-1995]

[8182] — S. 307 or S. 326 — Conviction under S. 307 altered to that under S. 326 — Loss of index finger of one of the injured — Accused also sustaining injuries in same occurrence — On facts, held, conviction under S. 326 IPC would be proper. Ram Ekbal Upadhya v. State of Bihar, (2001) 10 SCC 233.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-11-2000]

[8183] — S. 307 or S. 326 — Nature of injuries — Though a number of injuries quite grievous but none on any vital part of body — While assaulting victim ruthlessly, accused aiming all blows on his legs and arms apparently to make sure that it would not lead to his death — Doctor stating the injured might have died if medical care was not given to him but he did not say that injuries were sufficient in course of nature to cause death — Held, impugned judgment altering conviction of respondent-accused from S. 307 to S. 326 calls for no interference (Paras 9 to 11). Mangal Singh v. Kishan Singh, (2009) 17 SCC 303: AIR 2009 SC 1535.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Tarun Chatterjee and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-2008]

[8184] — Ss. 307 and 333 — Terrorist act — Offence committed, if on facts was covered under the TADA Act — Murder of a gang leader attempted in broad daylight within the court premises by accused-appellant, a member of another gang — Held, the blatant manner in which the plan was executed proved undoubtedly that the intention of the perpetrator was not merely to kill the victim, but also to send a terrorising message to the people in general, so that there was no defiance of their command in future — Further, the attempt made on the lives of 3 policemen reinforces the conclusion that the intention was to strike terror and the killing was attempted to achieve that objective — Hence, on facts commission of offences under the TADA Act, held, established — TADA Act, 1987, Ss. 3(1) & (2)(ii), 5 and 6

On account of a gang rivalry as well as personal enmity between A-3 and N, A-3 decided to eliminate N and with that in view, entered into a conspiracy with A-1 (appellant), A-2 and S to kill him. A-2 helped the appellant in identifying N. The appellant, who was dressed as an advocate, attempted to commit the murder of N in broad daylight within the court premises when N was brought by the police from jail to the Sessions Court in a TADA case pending against him. The appellant fired a shot on the back of the head of N, as a result of which he fell down on the ground. After the exchange of fire between the policemen and the appellant, the policemen, who were escorting N as well as the other accused facing trial with N, overpowered the appellant and arrested him. The 3 policemen (PW 3, PW 4 and PW 6) as well as N and the appellant, who received injuries in the said incident, were removed to the hospital for treatment. The appellant along with A-2 and A-3 was put on trial. During the trial, apart from the police witnesses, the prosecution examined several persons from the public as panch witnesses, but unfortunately almost all of them had to be declared hostile. The trial court doubted the reliability of the confessional statements made by the appellant and A-2. On consideration of the material on record the trial court held that so far as the appellant is concerned, the prosecution had succeeded in proving his guilt. The court, however, did not accept the prosecution case insofar as it related to Accused 2 and 3. The appellant challenged his conviction and sentence passed by the trial court on the grounds (i) that he was not arrested in the manner alleged nor was he involved in the shoot-out, (ii) that there was no reliable evidence regarding recovery of the weapon of offence from him as also regarding the seizure of the clothes worn by him, (iii) that the weapon allegedly seized was not connected with the offence, (iv) that the medical evidence falsifies the prosecution case that only 5 shots were fired whereas there were as many as 8 gunshot injuries on N and the injured policemen, (v) that if PW 2 fired 25 shots from his carbine and the accused fired 5 shots from his revolver, many more injuries should have been caused, (vi) that the prosecution had failed to explain as to how one bullet was found tucked in the collar of the appellant's coat, (vii) that the bullet recovered after a surgery was performed on PW 3, was not sent for examination by the ballistic expert, and (viii) that in any event no offence under the TADA Act had been made out.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

The testimony of the police witnesses, namely, PW 3, PW 4, PW 6 and PW 1 is totally consistent. PW 2 has also fully supported the prosecution case and his evidence fully corroborates the evidence of other eyewitnesses. That the occurrence took place in the manner alleged is not even disputed by the appellant. The direct testimony of the eyewitnesses is unambiguous and each one of them has clearly stated that it was the appellant who was seen firing from his revolver. The appellant is not an advocate, and there appears to be no other reason for him to put on the dress of an advocate but for the fact that his movement in the court was facilitated by his wearing the attire of an advocate. (Paras 39, 41 and 42)

In the facts and circumstances of the case, it is evident that the weapon of offence was seized from the appellant. Read with the ocular testimony of the witnesses, the evidence on record leaves no room for doubt that the said weapon was used in the commission of the offence. (Paras 49 and 50)

Even though the crime committed by a "terrorist" and an ordinary criminal would be overlapping to an extent, it is not the intention of the legislature that every criminal should be tried under TADA, when the fallout of his activity does not extend beyond the normal frontiers of the ordinary criminal activity. The provision of the Act need not be resorted to if the nature of the activities of the accused can be checked and controlled under the ordinary law of the land. It is only in those cases where the law-enforcing machinery finds the ordinary law to be inadequate or not sufficiently effective for tackling the menace of terrorism and disruptive activities that resort should be had to the drastic provisions of the Act. Some difficulties, however, arise when the intended activity of the offender results in striking terror or creating fear and panic amongst the people in general or a section thereof. It is in this situation that the courts have to be cautious to draw a line between the crime punishable under the ordinary criminal law and the ones which are punishable under Section 3(1) of TADA. (Para 60)

When a dastardly act is sought to be executed in such a bold and daring manner as in the present case, the message which the accused intends to convey to the ordinary people of this country is that the obedience to law is irrelevant. People must obey the dictates of the law-breakers. Neither the courts nor the police force can give them any protection for it is the right of the criminals to command habitual obedience from the citizens of this country. The State has lost its supremacy, in any event, its subjects must disregard the code of conduct established by law and must obey the dictates of those for whom law is meaningless. If they fail to do so, they shall be dealt with in the same manner as the victim in the instant case, notwithstanding the fact that he was under police protection, and the incident was being witnessed by a large number of persons within the court premises. Such activities have the effect of undermining the very authority of the State and have a terrorizing effect on those who witness such an incident, and those who come to know of it. The terror, fear and panic which they suffer is unfathomable and tends to completely demoralize the ordinary man in the street. The blatant manner in which the plan was executed in the instant case leaves no manner of doubt that the intention of the perpetrator was not merely to kill the victim, but also to send a terrorising message to the people in general, so that there was no defiance of their command in future. An attempt was also made on the lives of three policemen which reinforces the conclusion that the intention was to strike terror and the killing was attempted to achieve that objective. Therefore, the facts proved do establish the commission of offences under TADA. (Para 64). Ravindra Shantaram Sawant v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 5 SCC 604: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1158: AIR 2002 SC 2461.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.P. Sethi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-2002]

Hitendra Vishnu Thakur v. State of Maharashtra, (1994) 4 SCC 602: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1087; Niranjan Singh Karam Singh Punjabi v. Jitendra Bhimraj Bijjaya, (1990) 4 SCC 76: 1991 SCC (Cri) 47, relied on

Jayawant Dattatray Suryarao v. State of Maharashtra, (2001) 10 SCC 109: 2002 SCC (Cri) 897, followed [8185] — S. 307 r/w S. 149 and S. 3(2) TADA — Bombay Police Act, 1951 (22 of 1951) — S. 135(1) — Appellants, members of a mob comprising 70/80 people, armed with various weapons and burning rags, pelting stones on houses of Hindus, breaking the glasses, causing damage to the rickshaws and causing injuries to the injured witness — Evidence of the injured witness and his father corroborated by the medical evidence and the evidence of a Sub-Inspector of Police — Conviction of the three out of the four appellants upheld — However, since father of the injured witness not correctly identifying the fourth appellant he is entitled to the benefit of reasonable doubt. Mohd. Arif v. State of Gujarat, (1996) 11 SCC 261: 1997 SCC (Cri) 79: AIR 1997 SC 105.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-1996]

[8186] — Ss. 307/34 and 324/34 — Victim receiving only one simple injury on his shoulder — Having regard to the nature of injury sustained, conviction altered from one under S. 307 read with S. 34 to S. 324 read with S. 34. Ram Prasad v. State of U.P., (1982) 2 SCC 149: 1982 SCC (Cri) 375.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and E.S. Venkataramiah, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-4-1980]

[8187] — Ss. 307/109 and 324/109 — Conviction under Ss. 307/109 on the ground that appellant instigated his companions to kill — Evidence showing that he instigated assault only — Conviction under Ss. 324/109 proper. Jai Narain Mishra v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 762: 1972 SCC (Cri) 40: AIR 1972 SC 1764: 1972 Cri LJ 469.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1971]

[8188] — Ss. 307/149 & 324/149 — Injuries caused during quarrel between college students — Supreme Court in view of the young age of the students and nature of injuries caused taking a lenient view and altering conviction to S. 324 — (Offence then compounded before Supreme Court). Bhupendra Singh v. State of M.P., 1980 Supp SCC 352: 1981 SCC (Cri) 280: AIR 1981 SC 1240: 1981 Cri LJ 751.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and D.A. Desai, J. [Date of decision: 17-12-1980]

[8189] — Ss. 307/149 and 325/149 — In absence of Government's appeal against acquittal of the appellants of charge under Ss. 307/149 and instead their conviction under Ss. 325/149 recorded by trial court — Held, High Court erred in altering their conviction under Ss. 325/149 to Ss. 307/149 — Sentence also altered accordingly — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. Amar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, 1987 Supp SCC 144: 1987 SCC (Cri) 670: AIR 1987 SC 2023.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and V. Balakrishna Eradi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-1987]

(3) Ingredients of attempt to murder

[8190] — S. 307 — Applicability — Essential conditions for, stated — Not essential to inflict bodily injury capable of causing death — Held on facts, offence under S. 307 with the aid of S. 34 made out

To justify conviction under Section 307 IPC, it is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted. Although the nature of injury actually caused may often give considerable assistance in coming to a finding as to the intention of the accused, such intention may also be deduced from other circumstances, and may even in some cases, be ascertained without any reference at all to actual wounds. The section makes a distinction between an act of the accused and its result, if any. Such an act may not be attended by any result so far as the person assaulted is concerned but still there may be cases in which the culprit would be liable under this section. It is not necessary that the injury actually caused to the victim of the assault should be sufficient under ordinary circumstances to cause the death of the person assaulted. What the court has to see is whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in the section. An attempt in order to be criminal need not be the penultimate act. It is sufficient in law, if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof. (Para 13)

In this case, PW 3 had sustained eleven injuries. Though Injury 1 was attributed to firearm, there were two other injuries which were considered to be very serious. He was assaulted by the appellant and the other accused persons. When the factual background is considered in the background of true ambit of Section 307, the inevitable conclusion is that the appellant has been rightly convicted under Section 307 read with Section 34 IPC. (Paras 12 and 15). Girija Shankar v. State of U.P., (2004) 3 SCC 793: 2004 SCC (Cri) 863: AIR 2004 SC 1808: 2004 Cri LJ 1388: 2004 All LJ 683.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-2004]

State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320, relied on

[8191] — S. 307 — Applicability — Essential requirement — Intention to kill or knowledge that death will be caused — Existence of, held, essential — Not necessary that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted — Accused firing from a very close range (6-8 feet) at victim when he was sleeping on a cot — Shot hitting springs of cot — Bullet broke into pieces and three such pieces struck the victim — Held, both intention and knowledge in terms of S. 307 could be attributed to accused — Conviction under S. 307 upheld

It is sufficient to justify a conviction under Section 307 if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof. It is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted. Although the nature of injury actually caused may often give considerable assistance in coming to a finding as to the intention of the accused, such intention may also be deduced from other circumstances, and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference at all to actual wounds. The section makes a distinction between an act of the accused and its result, if any. The court has to see whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in Section 307. Whether there was intention to kill or knowledge that death will be caused is a question of fact and would depend on the facts of a given case. The circumstance that the injury inflicted by the accused was simple or minor will not by itself rule out application of Section 307 IPC. The determinative question is intention or knowledge, as the case may be, and not nature of the injury. (Paras 10, 9, 13 and 14)

In the case at hand the accused fired the gun from a very close range of about 6-8 feet aiming at the victim when he was sleeping. The bullet broke into pieces and three such pieces struck the victim. Both intention and knowledge in terms of Section 307 can be attributed to the accused. Therefore, the High Court was justified in recording conviction of the accused-appellant under Section 307 IPC. (Para 14). Vasant Vithu Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 9 SCC 31: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1323: 2004 Cri LJ 1786.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-2004]

State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320; Girija Shankar v. State of U.P., (2004) 3 SCC 793; R. Prakash v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 27; Sarju Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1965 SC 843: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 766, relied on

Ram Prasad v. State of U.P., (1982) 2 SCC 149: 1982 SCC (Cri) 375; Kundan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1982) 3 SCC 213: 1982 SCC (Cri) 700 (1), impliedly distinguished [8192] — S. 307 — Applicability — Explained in detail — Conviction confirmed — Absence of injury to victim — Effect — Held, to justify a conviction under S. 307, it is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted — What court has to see is whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in S. 307 — An attempt in order to be criminal need not be the penultimate act — It is sufficient in law, if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof — Further held, although nature of injury actually caused may often give considerable assistance in coming to a finding as to the intention of the accused, such intention may also be deduced from other circumstances, and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference at all to actual wounds — Distinction is made between an act of the accused and its result, if any — Such an act may not be attended by any result so far as person assaulted is concerned, but still there may be cases in which culprit would be liable — Accused charged under S. 307 IPC cannot be acquitted merely because injuries inflicted on victim were in the nature of a simple hurt — Whether there was intention to kill or knowledge that death will be caused is a question of fact and would depend on the facts of a given case — In the instant case, accused mercilessly and in a cruel manner alleged to have assaulted victim with a sharp-edged weapon causing serious injuries which in opinion of doctor were enough to cause death of the victim — Several fractures were also noticed and x-rays of head, chest and left shoulder were advised — Held, considering nature of injuries sustained, weapon used and opinion of the doctors that injuries were enough to cause death, trial court had rightly convicted respondent-accused for offence punishable under S. 307 IPC (Paras 12 and 13). State of M.P. v. Kedar Yadav, (2009) 17 SCC 280.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-11-2006]

Sarju Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1965 SC 843: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 766, considered and relied on

State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320; Girija Shankar v. State of U.P., (2004) 3 SCC 793: 2004 SCC (Cri) 863; R. Prakash v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 27: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1408, relied on

Kundan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1982) 3 SCC 213: 1982 SCC (Cri) 700 (1), distinguished

[8193] — S. 307 — Applicability — Explained in detail — Distinction between act of accused and its result, if any — Held, determinative question is intention to kill or knowledge that death will be caused by act of accused, irrespective of the result — Hence nature of injury is irrelevant, though helpful in deducing the intention — It is sufficient to justify conviction under S. 307 if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof — Hence, accused charged under S. 307 cannot be acquitted merely because injuries inflicted are simple or minor

To justify a conviction under Section 307 IPC, it is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted. Although the nature of injury actually caused may often give considerable assistance in coming to a finding as to the intention of the accused, such intention may also be deduced from other circumstances, and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference to actual wounds at all. The section makes a distinction between an act of the accused and its result, if any. The court has to see whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in the section. Such an act may not be attended by any result so far as the person assaulted is concerned, but still there may be cases in which the culprit would be liable under this section. It is not necessary that the injury actually caused to the victim of the assault should be sufficient under ordinary circumstances to cause the death of the person assaulted. What the court has to see is whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in the section. An attempt in order to be criminal need not be the penultimate act. It is sufficient to justify a conviction under Section 307 if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof. The determinative question is the intention or knowledge, as the case may be, and not the nature of the injury. Therefore, an accused charged under Section 307 IPC cannot be acquitted merely because the injuries inflicted on the victim were in the nature of a simple or minor hurt. (Paras 12, 13 and 16)

Whether there was intention to kill or knowledge that death will be caused is a question of fact and would depend on the facts of a given case. (Para 16)

Section 307 deals with two situations so far as the sentence is concerned. Firstly, whoever does any act with such intention or knowledge, and under such circumstances that, if he by that act caused death, he would be guilty of murder, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine; and secondly if hurt is caused to any person by such act the offender shall be liable either to imprisonment for life or to such punishment as indicated in the first part i.e. 10 years. The maximum punishment provided for Section 333 is imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to 10 years with a liability to pay fine. The maximum sentence in each case goes to show the gravity which is attached to respective offences. This is another sad example where a learned Single Judge, Madhya Pradesh High Court, totally oblivious of the consequences has passed an order directing reduction of the custodial sentence to the period already undergone. We have come across a large number of such cases which have been disposed of in very casual and mechanical manner with no trace of application of mind regarding the question of sentence. Unfortunately, the High Court has not kept these features in view in reducing sentences of five and four years' RI respectively, imposed by trial court, to period of custody undergone of merely six months and twenty three days. The High Court found that the accused persons are illiterate persons belonging to lower-income group and on consideration of the fact that at the time of commission of offence they were of 23 years of age, reduced the sentence of imprisonment to the period already undergone. (Paras 17, 3 and 2)

The matter is remitted to the High Court to hear the matter only relating to sentence. Normally, in view of the established law on the subject the matter would have been finally disposed of, but the accused submitted that the High Court has not noted several other mitigating factors which were placed for consideration and granted relief on only some of the grounds. The High Court shall consider factors to be placed for consideration and decide the question of sentence keeping in view the principles indicated above. (Para 18). State of M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1329: 2005 Cri LJ 3435.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-7-2005]

[8194] — S. 307 — Applicability — Intention to kill or knowledge that death will be caused — Determination of — Held, is a question of fact and would depend on facts of each case

Whether there was intention to kill or knowledge that death will be caused is a question of fact and would depend on the facts of a given case. (Para 16). State of M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1329: 2005 Cri LJ 3435.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-7-2005]

State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320; Girija Shankar v. State of U.P., (2004) 3 SCC 793: 2004 SCC (Cri) 863; R. Prakash v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 27: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1408; Sarju Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1965 SC 843: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 766, relied on

[8195] — S. 307 — Applicability of — Essential requirement for — Intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof, held, is sufficient — Not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted — First blow given by accused-appellant (A-1) on vital part of PW 3 — Other blows on non-vital parts — Fact that in spite of interference by five persons A-1 continued to assault PW 3, held, indicated intention of A-1 — Offence under S. 307 established — Conviction thereunder upheld — Further, sentence of two years, held on facts, would not be higher or disproportionate

It is sufficient to justify a conviction under Section 307 if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof. It is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted. Although the nature of injury actually caused may often give considerable assistance in coming to a finding as to the intention of the accused, such intention may also be deduced from other circumstances, and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference at all to actual wounds. The section makes a distinction between the act of the accused and its result, if any. The court has to see whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in the section. Therefore, it is not correct to acquit an accused of the charge under Section 307 IPC merely because the injuries inflicted on the victim were in the nature of a simple hurt. (Para 9)

In the present case, the evidence of the eyewitnesses goes to show that they tried to intervene and save PW 3 from being assaulted by the appellant A-1, but he continued to assault PW 3. The first blow was on a vital part, that is, on the temporal region. Even though other blows were on non-vital parts, that does not take away the rigour of Section 307 IPC. It is to be noted that in spite of interference by five persons, the appellant continued to assault PW 3. This clearly indicates the intention of the appellant. Hence, the High Court rightly held that the evidence on record clearly establishes commission of offence punishable under Section 307 IPC. (Paras 8 and 11). R. Prakash v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 27: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1408: AIR 2004 SC 1812: 2004 Cri LJ 1391.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-2004]

State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320; Girija Shankar v. State of U.P., (2004) 3 SCC 793, relied on [8196] — S. 307 — "Attempt" to commit murder — Distinguished from intent to commit it or preparation of its commission — Appellant trying to assault a police officer and to pierce with a sword but when the officer escaped and caught hold of him, he threatening to kill the officer — No injury sustained by the officer — Held, act did not constitute attempt to murder

The ASI (PW 2) was deputed to search the house of the appellant along with two other members of his staff. When he went to the house of the appellant along with the other officers, the accused tried to assault them. He somehow escaped from the assault. Again, the accused is said to have tried to pierce with a sword but he escaped that assault and caught hold of the accused but then the accused threatened that he would kill him.

Held :

This would only mean that there was only a threat to assault the said ASI but the overt acts attributed to him would not amount to an attempt to murder, at best it can be one of attempt to assault but there is not even an injury upon the victim. A charge of this nature when there is not even an injury upon the victim cannot lead to an inference that there was any attempt to kill when the incident took place. It is possible that the accused confronted the ASI but that by itself would not result in coming to the conclusion that it was an attempt to murder him. (Paras 7 and 8)

To justify conviction under Section 307 IPC, it is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted. An attempt in order to be criminal need not be the penultimate act foreboding death. It is sufficient in law if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof, such act being proximate to the crime intended and if the attempt has gone so far that it would have been complete but for the extraneous intervention which frustrated its consummation. There are different stages in a crime. First, the intention to commit it; second, the preparation to commit it; third, an attempt to commit it. If at the third stage, the attempt fails, the crime is not complete but the law punishes for attempting the same. An attempt to commit crime must be distinguished from an intent to commit it or preparation of its commission. (Para 6). Sagayam v. State of Karnataka, (2000) 4 SCC 454: 2000 SCC (Cri) 819: AIR 2000 SC 2161: 2000 Cri LJ 3182.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Saghir Ahmad and S. Rajendra Babu, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2000]

[8197] — S. 307 — Attempt to commit murder — What constitutes — Accused causing injury by knife in vital region of victim — Mere fact that no vital organ of victim was cut is not sufficient to take the act out of preview of S. 307

The act to fall within S. 307 must be such that but for the intervention of some circumstance it would, if completed, have resulted in death. There is no evidence in this case that a fatal injury or an injury to a vital organ was prevented by any intervening circumstance. The mere fact that the injury actually inflicted by the appellant did not cut any vital organ of the victim is not by itself sufficient to take the act out of the purview of S. 307.

The burden is still upon the prosecution to establish that the intention of the appellant in causing the particular injury to the victim was of any of the three kinds, referred to in S. 300, Indian Penal Code. Unless the prosecution discharges the burden the offence under S. 307, IPC cannot possibly be brought home to the appellant. The state of the appellant's mind has to be deduced from the surrounding circumstances and the existence of a motive to cause the death would have been a relevant circumstance. Sarju Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1965 SC 843: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 766, 767.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-8-1964]

[8198] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Applicability of S. 307 — Determination — Necessary considerations — Held, court to see whether the act in question, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in S. 307 — Thus, to justify a conviction under S. 307, it is sufficient if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof — Not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted — On facts, held, S. 307 was rightly invoked

Accused-appellant and PW 10 (victim) had gone to watch a movie and were coming back by bicycle. Suddenly the appellant got down from the bicycle and stabbed PW 10 on his stomach and back and started to press his neck. Hearing his cries for help some villagers came running. The accused tried to run away from the spot but was caught by the villagers and handed over to the police. The courts below convicted the appellant under Section 307 IPC. Hence the present appeal.

Partly allowing the appeal,

Held :

Section 307 makes a distinction between the act of the accused and its result, if any. The court has to see whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in Section 307. Thus, it is sufficient to justify a conviction under Section 307 if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof. It is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted. Although the nature of injury actually caused may often give considerable assistance in coming to a finding as to the intention of the accused, such intention may also be deduced from other circumstances, and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference at all to actual wounds. In the instant case, the accused-appellant has been rightly convicted under Section 307 IPC. (Paras 7 and 10). Bappa v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 6 SCC 485: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1794: AIR 2004 SC 4119.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2004]

Sarju Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1965 SC 843: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 766; State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320; Girija Shankar v. State of U.P., (2004) 3 SCC 793: 2004 SCC (Cri) 863; Vasant Vithu Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 9 SCC 31: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1323, relied on

[8199] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Applicability of S. 307 — Essential requirements — Held, not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted — If the act in question was done with intention to kill or knowledge that death would be caused, held, that is sufficient to attract S. 307 — Considering incised wound over left supraorbital area obliquely placed in oozing condition (which was a grievous injury on a vital part) and taking into account other injuries, held on facts, S. 307 rightly invoked

To justify a conviction under Section 307 IPC, it is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted. Although the nature of injury actually caused may often give considerable assistance in coming to a finding as to the intention of the accused, such intention may also be deduced from other circumstances, and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference at all to actual wounds. The section makes a distinction between an act of the accused and its result, if any. Such an act may not be attended by any result so far as the person assaulted is concerned, but still there may be cases in which the culprit would be liable under this section. What the court has to see is whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in the section. If the injury inflicted has been with the avowed object or intention to cause death, the ritual nature, extent or character of the injury or whether such injury is sufficient to actually causing death are really factors which are wholly irrelevant for adjudging the culpability under Section 307 IPC. It is sufficient to justify a conviction under Section 307 if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof. Whether there was intention to kill or knowledge that death will be caused is a question of fact and would depend on the facts of a given case. Hence, the circumstance that the injury inflicted by the accused was simple or minor will not by itself rule out application of Section 307 IPC. The determinative question is intention or knowledge, as the case may be, and not nature of the injury. (Paras 10, 11 and 14)

In the instant case, the first injury was certainly on a vital part and taking into account the injuries on the various parts of the body, Section 307 IPC has been rightly invoked. (Para 17). Hari Mohan Mandal v. State of Jharkhand, (2004) 12 SCC 220: AIR 2004 SC 3687: 2004 Cri LJ 3112.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-2004]

State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320; R. Prakash v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 27: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1408 ; Sarju Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1965 SC 843: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 766, relied on [8200] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Conviction — Ingredients — For justifying conviction under S. 307, held, intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof need be present — Not essential that injury inflicted should be capable of causing death, though nature of injury actually caused may give considerable assistance in inferring the intention of the accused — Intention of accused can also be deduced from other circumstances and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference to actual wounds — Court has to see whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under the circumstances mentioned in the section — An attempt in order to be criminal need not be the penultimate act (Para 13). Lachman Singh v. State of Haryana, (2006) 10 SCC 524: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 123: AIR 2006 SC 2763: 2006 Cri LJ 4041.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-7-2006]

[8201] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — First part of S. 307 — Applicability — Intention or knowledge regarding commission of murder and doing of an act towards it are necessary ingredients — Receipt of injury by victim not a prerequisite for convicting accused under first part — When victim receives injuries, second part would be attracted — Pursuant to rivalry inter se between the parties in regard to grant of railway contracts, two bombs hurled by accused at the victims, one of which did not explode and the second one exploded but victims did not sustain any injury — Trial court convicted accused persons under Ss. 307 and 307/109 — High Court held that no injury having been sustained by the victims, no case under S. 307 was made out — No finding arrived at by High Court that PWs contradicted themselves in material particulars so as to render their testimonies untrustworthy or that findings of trial court were either unsatisfactory or contrary to legal principles — Held, High Court's judgment cannot be sustained — Matter remitted to High Court for consideration afresh — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374 & 386. Prakash Chandra Yadav v. State of Bihar, (2007) 13 SCC 134: 2008 Cri LJ 438.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

Parsuram Pandey v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 189: 2005 SCC (Cri) 113, followed

[8202] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder by firearm — Act amounting to an attempt to commit murder is necessarily bound to be the only and last act of the culprit

In cases of attempt to commit murder by firearm, the act amounting to an attempt to commit murder is bound to be the only and the last act to be done by the culprit. Till he fires, he does not do any act towards the commission of the offence and once he fires, and something happens to prevent the shot taking effect, the offence is under S. 307. Om Parkash v. State of Punjab, AIR 1961 SC 1782: (1962) 2 SCR 254: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 848.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1961]

[8203] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder two persons by firing a single shot — Held, only one offence is committed — However, there is no fixed rule that in no case can a single act constitute more than one offence. Bhagat Singh v. State, AIR 1952 SC 45: 1952 SCR 371: 1952 Cri LJ 323, 324.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Fazl Ali, M.C. Mahajan and N. Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-12-1951]

[8204] — S. 307 — Causing such injury as would endanger life, held, not an essential condition for applicability of — Hence mere infliction of simple injuries, held, cannot by itself be ground for acquittal, if the offence otherwise falls under S. 307

It is sufficient to justify a conviction under S. 307 if there is present an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof. It is not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted. Although the nature of injury actually caused my often give considerable assistance in coming to a finding as to the intention of the accused, such intention may also be deduced from other circumstances, and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference at all to actual wounds. The section makes a distinction between the act of the accused and its result, if any. The court has to see whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in the section. Therefore, it is not correct to acquit an accused of the charge under S. 307 merely because the injuries inflicted on the victim were in the nature of a simple hurt. State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320: AIR 1983 SC 305: 1983 Cri LJ 331: 1983 MLJ (Cri) 474.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: E.S. Venkataramiah and R.B. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-1983]

[8205] — S. 307 — Conviction under — Appellant firing pistol shot at the chest of Police Officer who tried to overpower him but the bullet getting embedded in the bullet proof vestment which the officer was wearing — Held, appellant's conviction under S. 307 justified — In view of use of the lethal weapon and situs of the wound, it is not possible to accept the contention that there was no intention to kill the officer and that intention was only to escape after inflicting injury on the officer (Para 8). Chandrasekhar Sureshchandra Bhatt v. State of Maharashtra, (2000) 10 SCC 582: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1504.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and D.P. Mohapatra, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-3-2000]

[8206] — S. 307 — Conviction under — Requisites for — Held, to justify conviction under S. 307 it is sufficient if there is an intent coupled with some overt act in execution thereof — Not essential that bodily injury capable of causing death should have been inflicted — Intention can be deduced not only from the nature of injury caused but also from other circumstances and may even, in some cases, be ascertained without any reference to actual wounds — Distinction between the act of the accused and its result — Court has to see whether the act, irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in the section — An attempt in order to be criminal need not be the penultimate act — On facts, accused brandishing his gun and threatening complainant of dire consequences on his intervention in the altercation between appellant and complainant's sister-in-law — Despite that complainant catching hold of the gun whereupon appellant hurling abuses and threatening to kill him — Thereafter, appellant fired the gun and the bullet ripped off flesh from complainant's right calf — Complainant still grappled with the appellant and prevented him from reloading the gun — On such facts and circumstances, held, accused rightly convicted under S. 307 (Paras 3 and 9). Bipin Bihari v. State of M.P., (2006) 8 SCC 799.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-9-2006]

Sarju Prasad v. State of Bihar, AIR 1965 SC 843: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 766; State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320; Girija Shankar v. State of U.P., (2004) 3 SCC 793: 2004 SCC (Cri) 863; Vasant Vithu Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 9 SCC 31: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1323; Bappa v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 6 SCC 485: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1794, relied on

[8207] — S. 307 — Essential ingredients of — Relevant considerations while invoking S. 307 — Held, it is not necessary that the injury capable of causing death should have been actually inflicted — Accused persons armed with deadly weapons causing serious injuries to PW 1 and severing his left arm — Assuming PW 1 to be dead, accused went away — Considering the injuries sustained, manner of assaults and weapons used, held, S. 307 was clearly applicable in instant case

The essential ingredients required to be proved in the case of an offence under Section 307 are:

(i) that the death of a human being was attempted;

(ii) that such death was attempted to be caused by, or in consequence of the act of the accused; and

(iii) that such act was done with the intention of causing death; or that it was done with the intention of causing such bodily injury as: (a) the accused knew to be likely to cause death; or (b) was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, or that the accused attempted to cause death by doing an act known to him to be so imminently dangerous that it must in all probability cause (a) death, or (b) such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, the accused having no excuse for incurring the risk of causing such death or injury. (Para 20)

In offence under Section 307 all the ingredients of the offence of murder are present except the death of the victim. For the application of Section 307, it is not necessary that the injury capable of causing death should have been actually inflicted. The injuries sustained, the manner of assaults and the weapons used clearly make out a case of Section 307 IPC. The trial court was therefore justified in convicting accused-Respondent 1 under Section 307 IPC. (Paras 21 and 20). State of Maharashtra v. Kashirao, (2003) 10 SCC 434: AIR 2003 SC 3901.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-2003]

[8208] — S. 307 — Firearm injuries sustained by the victim — Attempt to commit murder — Inference regarding from nature of injuries — Multiple punctured wounds with about 17 entry wounds in the middle part of the hand from right side elbow — Fracture of right side ulna — Held, attempt to murder made out. Merambhai Punjabhai Khachar v. State of Gujarat, 1997 SCC (Cri) 1078: AIR 1996 SC 3236: 1996 Cri LJ 2465.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.L. Hansaria and K. Venkataswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-4-1996]

[8209] — S. 307 — Firing of gun shots in darkness — Direction not certain — Conviction whether sustainable

The prosecution must prove that when the accused fired his gun it was intended to be fired at some one because it may be that the shots were fired in the air or in some direction only with a view to create confusion and not to kill. Hazara Singh v. State of Punjab, (1971) 1 SCC 529: 1971 SCC (Cri) 237.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-1971]

[8210] — S. 307 — Ingredients of — Offence is committed when the accused has an intention to commit murder and does an act towards its commission in pursuance of the intention — It is not necessary that the act is the penultimate act — Immediate effect of the act committed need not be death, but death must be the result of that act whether immediately or after a lapse of time — Accused regularly starving his wife with the object of causing her end — Held, accused is guilty under S. 307, IPC

A person commits an offence under S. 307 when he has an intention to commit murder and in pursuance of that intention, does an act towards its commission irrespective of the fact whether that act is the penultimate act or not. It is to be clearly understood, however, that the intention to commit the offence of murder means that the person concerned has the intention to do certain act with the necessary intention or knowledge mentioned in S. 300. The intention to commit an offence is different from the intention or knowledge requisite for constituting the act as that offence. The expression "whoever attempts to commit an offence" in S. 511 can only mean "whoever intends to do a certain act with the intent or knowledge necessary for the commission of that offences". The same is meant by the expression "whoever does an act with such intention or knowledge and under such circumstances that if he, by that act, caused death, he would be guilty of murder" in S. 307. This simply means that the act must be done with the intent or knowledge requisite for the commission of the offence of murder. The expression "by that act" does not mean that the immediate effect of the act committed must be death. Such a result must be the result of that act whether immediately or after a lapse of time. The word 'act' again, does not mean only any particular, specific, instantaneous act of a person, but denotes, according to S. 33 of the Code, as well, a series of acts.

An attempt to commit culpable homicide is punishable with imprisonment for a certain period and therefore but for its being expressly made an offence under S. 308, it would have fallen under S. 511 which applies to all attempts to commit offences punishable with imprisonment where no express provisions are made by the Code for the punishment of that attempt. It should follow that the ingredients of an offence of attempt to commit culpable homicide not amounting to murder should be the same as the ingredients of an offence of attempt to commit that offence under S. 511.

The course of conduct adopted by the accused in regularly starving B comprised a series of acts and therefore acts falling short of completing the series, and would therefore come within the purview of S. 307 of the Code. Om Parkash v. State of Punjab, AIR 1961 SC 1782: (1962) 2 SCR 254: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 848, 850.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1961]

AIR 1961 SC 1698: 1961 (2) Cri LJ 822, followed

See also the discussion in AIR 1965 SC 843: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 766

Emp. v. Vasudeo, ILR 56 Bom 434: AIR 1932 Bom 279, approved

Jeetmal v. State, AIR 1950 Madh B. 21 and Cassidy's case, 4 Bom HC Cr 17, disapproved

Queen v. Nidha, ILR 14 All 38: 1891 All Wn 176, overruled

Rex v. White, 1910-2 KB 124, relied on

[8211] — S. 307 — Ingredients of — Intention or knowledge relating to commission of murder essential — Intention — Proof of — Factors from which inference can be drawn — Indiscriminate firing from guns by accused persons causing simple injuries to some villagers — Held on facts, S. 307 not attracted

To constitute an offence under Section 307 two ingredients of the offence must be present:

(a) an intention of or knowledge relating to commission of murder; and

(b) the doing of an act towards it. (Para 15)

For the purpose of Section 307 what is material is the intention or the knowledge and not the consequence of the actual act done for the purpose of carrying out the intention. The section clearly contemplates an act which is done with intention of causing death but which fails to bring about the intended consequence on account of intervening circumstances. The intention or knowledge of the accused must be such as is necessary to constitute murder. In the absence of intention or knowledge which is the necessary ingredient of Section 307, there can be no offence "of attempt to murder". Intent which is a state of mind cannot be proved by precise direct evidence; as a fact it can only be detected or inferred from other factors. Some of the relevant considerations may be the nature of the weapon used, the place where injuries were inflicted, the nature of the injuries and the circumstances in which the incident took place. On the evidence on record, where the prosecution has been able to prove only that the villagers had sustained injuries by indiscriminate firing and it was an open area with none of the injured nearby there is a complete lack of evidence of intention to cause such injuries for which the accused persons could have been convicted under Section 302 IPC. Nature of the injuries sustained by the villagers was simple. None of the witnesses stated that the firearm causing injuries was being used by any particular accused for causing injuries to them. In fact the injured had not seen any of the accused persons using firearms. There is no evidence about the distance from which the said two accused fired. The only evidence regarding indiscriminate firing which caused simple injuries to the villagers does not constitute the intention or knowledge of the accused persons for committing the murder or doing of an act towards it. (Para 15). Parsuram Pandey v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 189: 2005 SCC (Cri) 113: AIR 2004 SC 5068: 2004 Cri LJ 4978.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-2004]

Followed in Prakash Chandra Yadav v. State of Bihar, (2007) 13 SCC 134

[8212] — S. 307 — Ingredients under — Held, are: (i) an intention of or knowledge relating to commission of murder; and (ii) the doing of an act towards it (Para 14). Sumersinbh Umedsinh Rajput v. State of Gujarat, (2007) 13 SCC 83: AIR 2008 SC 904: (2008) 61 AIC 22 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 1388.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-12-2007]

Parsuram Pandey v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 189: 2005 SCC (Cri) 113; Sagayam v. State of Karnataka, (2000) 4 SCC 454: 2000 SCC (Cri) 819; Merambhai Punjabhai Khachar v. State of Gujarat, 1997 SCC (Cri) 1078, relied on

[8213] — S. 307 — Injury caused to wrong person — Sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, but the injured surviving — Whether offence under S. 307 made out

In view of the finding that he intended to cause such injury to Rangnath as was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to result in his death, it was immaterial whether that particular injury was sought to be given to Rangnath or to Kashinath. Sakharam v. State of Maharashtra, (1969) 3 SCC 730.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, V. Bhargava and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-4-1969]

[8214] — S. 307 — "Intention or knowledge" sufficient to constitute murder an essential precondition under — That can be ascertained from facts and circumstances — That accused party carrying sharp-edged weapons (ballam) but using only blunt side of it even after suffering injuries by sharp-edged weapons wielded by the opposite party is a very significant circumstance showing absence of 'intention or knowledge' and suddenness of the incident — Accused therefore entitled to acquittal under S. 307

Under S. 307 IPC what the court has to see is, whether the act irrespective of its result, was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in that section. The intention or knowledge of the accused must be such as is necessary to constitute murder. Without this ingredient being established, there can be no offence of "attempt to murder". Under S. 307 the intention precedes the act attributed to accused. Therefore, the intention is to be gathered from all circumstances, and not merely from the consequences that ensue. The nature of the weapon used, manner in which it is used, motive for the crime, severity of the blow, the part of the body where the injury is inflicted are some of the factors that may be taken into consideration to determine the intention. In this case, two parties in the course of a fight inflicted on each other injuries both serious and minor. The accused, though armed with ballam, never used the sharp edge of it. They used only the blunt side of it despite their being attacked by the other side. They suffered injuries but they were not provoked or tempted to use the cutting edge of the weapon. It is very very significant showing that they had no intention to commit murder. They had no motive either. The fight might have been a sudden flare up. Where the fight is accidental owing to a sudden quarrel, the conviction under S. 307 is generally not called for. There is, therefore, no reason to disturb the acquittal of the accused under S. 307 in this case. Hari Singh v. Sukhbir Singh, (1988) 4 SCC 551: 1988 SCC (Cri) 984: AIR 1988 SC 2127.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and K. Jagannatha Shetty, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-8-1988]

[8215] — S. 307 — Knowledge that by the act even death may result, and victim actually injured by such act and hospitalised for about 40 days — Conviction confirmed — Accused alleged to have fired two shots at victim PW 3, over loss of income on account of fact that water for irrigation was now being provided by father of PW 3, which till then was provided by father of accused — Accused apprehended at spot with gun and spent cartridges — FIR lodged without delay — Testimonies of eyewitnesses PWs 1 and 4 found credible — Medical evidence corroborating prosecution version and chain of events as stated therein — Victim in hospital from 9-2-1975 to 20-3-1975 — Counter-case lodged by accused stating that it was accidental fire which occurred as a result of snatching of gun by PW 3 and other persons accompanying him — However, reason why he was carrying his brother's licensed gun not satisfactorily explained — Major part of occurrence not disputed by accused, and his statement recorded under S. 313 CrPC also to some extent in line with prosecution version — Moreover, presence of eyewitnesses also stood admitted — Held, act of firing at PW 3 obviously shows that accused had knowledge that by such act even death may result, and he actually injured victim — Hence, his conviction under S. 307 sustainable (Paras 9 to 12, 29 to 32, 35, 38, 39 and 42). Satyavir Singh v. State of U.P., (2010) 3 SCC 174.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and Swatanter Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-2010]

Ganesh Bhavan Patel v. State of Maharashtra, (1978) 4 SCC 371: 1979 SCC (Cri) 1; Sheo Swarup v. King Emperor, (1933-34) 61 IA 398: AIR 1934 PC 227 (2); Mathai Methews v. State of Maharashtra, (1970) 3 SCC 772; Khedu Mohton v. State of Bihar, (1970) 2 SCC 450: 1970 SCC (Cri) 479; Kunwar Bahadur Singh v. Shiv Baran Singh, (2001) 9 SCC 149: 2002 SCC (Cri) 428; Arulvelu v. State, (2009) 10 SCC 206: (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 288; Ghurey Lal v. State of U.P., (2008) 10 SCC 450: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 60, followed

[8216] — S. 307 — Requirements of

S. 307 requires that the act must be done with such intention or knowledge or under such circumstances that if death be caused by that act, the offence of murder will emerge. Rekha Mandal v. State of Bihar, 1968 SCD 208: (1968) 1 SCWR 14.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-11-1967]

[8217] — S. 307 — Shooting from close quarters — Causing injuries on abdomen and left arm — Knowledge of probable death can be imputed to him

By this act of shooting from such close quarters, had the accused caused death, then, he would certainly have been guilty of murder. His guilt is thus quite clearly established on the plain language of S. 307 and on the reasonable consequences which must be assumed to flow from the act of shooting indulged in by him. Knowledge to this effect can legitimately be imputed to him. Liyakat Mian v. State of Bihar, (1973) 4 SCC 39: 1973 SCC (Cri) 680: AIR 1973 SC 807: 1973 Cri LJ 584.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A. Alagiriswami, I.D. Dua and C.A. Vaidialingam, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-12-1972]

[8218] — S. 307 — Shot fired by accused hitting the victim only a few inches away from a vital part of the body — Held, conviction under S. 307 proper — However, in view of the prosecution being 14 years after the offence, sentence reduced from five years to two years' imprisonment. Shanabhai Dhulabhai Parmar v. State of Gujarat, (1977) 1 SCC 454: 1977 SCC (Cri) 112: AIR 1977 SC 1338: 1977 Cri LJ 1007.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, R.S. Sarkaria and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1976]

[8219] — Ss. 307 and 34 — Attempt to murder — Nature and scope, restated — Acid-attack causing disfigurement — Assault with iron rods, kicks, blows and pouring of acid — Applicability of S. 307 — Sentence warranted — On facts, PWs 1 to 3 suffered injuries on account of acid pouring by appellant-accused — Doctor indicated that each of the injured persons suffered more than 50% burn injuries caused due to acid, sufficient to cause death if not attended by medical aid at appropriate time — Held, analysis of evidence on record shows a clear application of S. 307 r/w S. 34 — Acid burns had caused disfigurement — However, considering the nature of dispute, custodial sentence of appellants reduced to 5 years' from 10 years' RI imposed by courts below — But, each of the appellants directed to pay a fine of Rs 25,000 — Out of each deposit, Rs 10,000 to be paid to each of the victims PWs 1 to 3 — In case of non-deposit of fine imposed, default custodial sentence of one year each, imposed — CrPC, 1973, S. 357 (Paras 9 to 13). Sachin Jana v. State of W.B., (2008) 3 SCC 390: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 45: 2008 Cri LJ 1596: (2008) 64 AIC 187 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-1-2008]

Girija Shankar v. State of U.P., (2004) 3 SCC 793: 2004 SCC (Cri) 863; State of Maharashtra v. Balram Bama Patil, (1983) 2 SCC 28: 1983 SCC (Cri) 320, relied on [8220] — Ss. 307 and 34 — Gunshots fired at the victims by climbing on the roof of one of the accused's house — Accused who actually fired at the victims causing pellet injuries to victims, held, rightly convicted under S. 307 and sentenced to 4 years' RI — Co-accused who had also climbed on the roof along with the main accused and encouraged him to fire also rightly convicted under S. 307 read with S. 34 and sentenced to 3½ years' RI — But the third accused having not participated in the shooting incident by climbing on the roof along with others and there being controversy about the manner in which the alleged shooting at the door by him took place his conviction and sentence under S. 307 read with S. 34 set aside in absence of common intention. Mastan Singh v. State of Punjab, 1987 Supp SCC 186: 1988 SCC (Cri) 42.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and M.M. Dutt, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-1-1987]

[8221] — Ss. 307 and 149 — All appellants members of unlawful assembly armed with deadly weapons at the time of occurrence — But except one, who fired shots causing injuries, others not taking part in any overt action — Conviction under

Ss. 307 read with 149 proper — But in the circumstances, sentence excessive and reduced to 2 years' RI. Tukaram Duyanu Gurav v. State of Maharashtra, (1982) 3 SCC 222: 1982 SCC (Cri) 694: AIR 1982 SC 59.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.D. Koshal and R.B. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-10-1981]

[8222] — Ss. 307 and 324 — Where one grievous and one simple injury was caused to the victim and the victim could not specify which injury was caused by the accused, held, as a matter of caution conviction should only have been under S. 324. Tameshwar Sahi v. State of U.P., (1976) 1 SCC 401: 1976 SCC (Cri) 19: AIR 1976 SC 59: 1976 Cri LJ 6.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-10-1975]

[8223] — Ss. 307, 326 and 34 — Incitement with knowledge of weapon possessed by person being incited — Nature of common intention to be inferred — Vicarious liability of those inciting

U was going to his residence. The three accused approached him. M accosted U by saying "You have become a wrestler and have assaulted my uncle". Two of the accused persons, herein appellants, incited M by saying "Assault the rascal, it is good that he has been found all alone". All the three accused chased him and he was caught hold of by the appellants while M inflicted injuries on his neck and head with a chhoora as a result of which he sustained serious injuries

Though the appellants have been absolved of the more serious offence under S. 307, IPC, the High Court was justified in convicting the appellants for the offence under S. 326, read with S. 34, IPC, having due regard to the nature of the injuries sustained by PW 1. Ram Sarup Singh v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 262: 1971 SCC (Cri) 494.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.A. Vaidialingam and A.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1971]

[8224] — Ss. 307 and 498-A — Attempt to murder — Strangulation — Clear and categoric case of victim that while she was sleeping her husband (appellant) tried to strangulate her — She remaining unconscious for almost one-and-a-half months — Nature of injuries found on her neck fully consistent with her allegations — Her stray statement in cross-examination that she was deposing at the instance of her father, of no use to the defence because her testimony otherwise found trustworthy as there was no discrepancy in her statement to the police and her deposition in court — Statement by doctor that injuries could have been caused by hard and blunt object, inconsequential, since he was not cross-examined on the issue — Held, offence under S. 307 stood proved and hence sentence of RI for five years' and fine of Rs 10,000 with default stipulation, imposed by High Court confirmed, and conviction under S. 498-A affirmed (Paras 5 and 7). Vijayakumar Ramchandra Agarwal v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 9 SCC 604: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 352.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Singh and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-3-2006]

[8225] — Ss. 307 and 506/34 — Appellants along with the co-accused going to the house of the victims and asking him to vacate the house — On victim's refusal to vacate the house the appellants exhorting the co-accused to finish the victim who fired two shots causing injuries to the victims — Held, in the circumstances, the way the appellants acted leaves no doubt about their acting in furtherance of their common intention — Conviction upheld. Surjan Singh v. State of Haryana, (1998) 7 SCC 336: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1621.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-1998]

[8226] — Ss. 307/149 — Applicability — Scope and ambit of S. 307, restated — Held, nature of injuries not determinative — Respondent 2 filing petition under S. 482 CrPC before High Court, questioning framing of charges against him — Ground for challenge, inter alia, was that injuries inflicted on the victim were simple in nature and no injury was found on the vital parts of the body and, therefore, Ss. 307/149 had no application — High Court while accepting this submission, holding that framing of charge under S. 302 or S. 307 r/w S. 149 was an abuse of process of court — Sustainability — Reiterated, an accused charged under S. 307 IPC cannot be acquitted merely because injuries inflicted on the victim were in nature of simple hurt — Determinative question is intention or knowledge, as the case may be, and not the nature of injury — Therefore, held, impugned order of High Court, herein, is clearly unsustainable — CrPC, 1973, S. 482 (Paras 4 to 6). Ratan Singh v. State of M.P., (2009) 12 SCC 585: (2009) 78 AIC 101 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-2009]

State of M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1329; State of M.P. v. Imrat, (2008) 11 SCC 523: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 558 , relied on

(4) Trial, Proof and Other issues

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL in Vols. 18, 19 and 20, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn. or SC on CrPC and Criminal Trial

Synopsis

(i) Acquittal justified 269
(ii) Appeal/Revision/Writ petition 271
(iii) Appreciation of evidence 272
(iv) Bail 273
(v) Conviction justified 274
(vi) Other issues 280
(vii) Witnesses 282

(i) Acquittal justified

[8227] — S. 307 — Appreciation of evidence — Four to five persons using deadly weapons but causing only three simple and one grievous hurt to the injured — Conviction under S. 307 IPC not justified. Jai Narain Mishra v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 762: 1972 SCC (Cri) 40: AIR 1972 SC 1764: 1972 Cri LJ 469.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1971]

[8228] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Conviction improper where injured himself not identifying the assailant — CFSL Report that bullet recovered matched those test fired through the same pistol, the only evidence against appellant — Held, merely because appellant was owner of the said weapon could not be a ground to convict him since even the injured did not identify the appellant as the person who fired the shot — Hence, conviction unsustainable and set aside — Arms Act, 1959, S. 27

This is a case where even the injured did not identify the appellant to be the person who had fired the shot. Merely because he is the owner of the weapon, that cannot be a ground to convict him in terms of Section 307 IPC. Further, no question was put to the appellant in his examination under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 regarding his purported role. The judgment of the High Court is clearly unsustainable and is set aside. (Paras 10 and 11). Prem Singh v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2009) 14 SCC 192: 2009 Cri LJ 4296.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat, V.S. Sirpurkar and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-2009]

[8229] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Firing on patrolling party (BSF/police personnel) — Conviction, not proper — No attempt to recover lead/empties — No definite evidence that accused targeted the members of the patrolling party — Direction in which shot travelled and details relating to other logistics, not forthcoming — Evidence of Inspectors vague and scanty — Every possibility of accused firing shot aimlessly to scare away those who challenged him from a distance — Held, conviction not sustainable — Accused acquitted (Para 14). Durgo Bai v. State of Punjab, (2004) 7 SCC 144: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1865: AIR 2004 SC 4170.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-8-2004]

[8230] — S. 307 — Benefit of doubt — When warranted — Appreciation of evidence — Appellant alleged to have fired a shot from his pistol at the victim's neck — Enmity between the parties admitted — Investigation conducted in a slipshod manner — No gun seized, no cartridge found at the place of occurrence — No attempt made to apprehend the culprits immediately — FIR was antetimed but general diary, wherein the FIR is required to be taken down, not produced — No explanation given why independent witnesses whose statements had allegedly been recorded, not examined — Statement of the injured taken after a very long time, although according to medical report, he was not unconscious — Held on facts, accused entitled to benefit of doubt. Jagdish Murav v. State of U.P., (2006) 12 SCC 626: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 234: (2006) 46 AIC 641 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-8-2006]

State of U.P. v. Gambhir Singh, (2005) 11 SCC 271: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 125, relied on [8231] — S. 307 — Conviction under set aside on benefit of doubt. Chhita v. State of Rajasthan, 1987 Supp SCC 639: 1988 SCC (Cri) 133.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Khalid and G.L. Oza, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1987]

[8232] — S. 307 — On facts, conviction and sentence under, passed by High Court set aside. Dharam Pal v. State of U.P., 1981 Supp SCC 20: 1981 SCC (Cri) 640.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, Baharul Islam and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1981]

[8233] — S. 307 r/w S. 34 — Case of accused-appellant 1 same as that of the accused persons who had been acquitted by Supreme Court in a connected appeal — Hence appellant 1 entitled to be acquitted. Mohinder Singh v. State of Punjab, 1987 Supp SCC 65: 1987 SCC (Cri) 631.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and M.M. Dutt, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1987]

See also 1983 SCC (Cri) 316

(4)(i) Acquittal justified (contd.)

[8234] — S. 307 r/w S. 34 & S. 333 r/w S. 34 — Conviction under set aside. Bhagwan v. State of M.P., 1980 Supp SCC 316: 1981 SCC (Cri) 253: AIR 1980 SC 1750: 1980 Cri LJ 1269.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.C. Gupta and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-7-1980]

[8235] — Ss. 307/34 — All three respondents alleged to have attacked one 'D' at night with kirpans etc., causing grievous injuries — Daughter and son of the victim who came out on hearing the cries of the father not able to disclose names of assailants — Names of assailants given by associate of the victim who had deep-seated enmity against the respondents — Case of false implication probable — Acquittal of respondents by High Court upheld. State of Punjab v. Sohan Singh, (1974) 3 SCC 585: 1974 SCC (Cri) 63: AIR 1974 SC 300: 1974 Cri LJ 351.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.N. Dwivedi and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-11-1973]

[8236] — Ss. 307/34 — Attempt to murder — Appeal before High Court against conviction — Discrepancies in prosecution case — High Court justified in reversing trial court's judgment of conviction and directing acquittal of accused persons — Prosecution version that gunshot fired at the instance of first respondent by his son — Occurrence alleged to have taken place at 7 a.m. on August 11, doctor said to have treated the injured informant at 11.30 a.m. on August 11 on the basis of requisition received from police, fardbeyan recorded at 1400 hours on August 11, FIR registered at 11.30 a.m. on August 13 and the report reached the court on August 14 — There was no explanation for delay of two days in lodging FIR — Investigating officer, who could have explained the delay in registering FIR and dispatching the same to court, not examined and no reason indicated for non-examination — Evidence of the informant also contrary to medical evidence in the sense that according to him only one shot was fired whereas there were three injuries and there was no explanation for the third injury — Even doctor's evidence showed that the two injuries could not be treated as entry and exit points — In view of these discrepancies as highlighted by High Court, held, there was no reason to interfere with the judgment of acquittal recorded by High Court. Balmiki Singh v. Ramchandra Singh, (2008) 10 SCC 218: (2008) 70 AIC 106 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-9-2008]

[8237] — Ss. 307/34 — Attempt to murder — Improbable prosecution case of doubtful veracity — Conviction not justified — Victim complainant's allegations that in order to kill him, both appellant-accused along with one more co-accused tried to cut his throat with a knife and while trying to save himself he sustained injuries on his left cheek and left palm — No injury found on left palm and injury on right palm was a bruise and not incised in nature — Complainant not disclosing cause of injury to doctor — Weapon of alleged offence, other implements, mat with bloodstains on it, etc. not sent for forensic examination — FIR lodged after consultation with villagers — Hence, held, case made out by prosecution appears improbable and conviction of appellants not in conformity with evidence adduced on prosecution's behalf — Conviction, hence, set aside

Having considered the submissions made on behalf of the respective parties and after going through the materials on record, the case made out by the prosecution appears to be improbable and the conviction of the appellants was not in conformity with the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution. (Para 17)

The main pillar of the prosecution case is PW 1, the complainant himself. The manner in which the alleged incident is supposed to have taken place does not fit in with the injuries received by the complainant. The most glaring inconsistency is the story of the complainant having held the blade of the knife, alleged to have been used in the commission of the offence, with both hands and thereby suffering incised injuries on his left palm. The injury report shows that the complainant did not have any incised injury or any other injury on his left palm and the injury to his right palm was not of an incised nature, but a bruise which could have been caused by a blunt instrument. Moreover, the knife, which was seized and was alleged to have been used for the commission of the offence, was never sent for forensic examination so as to connect it with the offence. Furthermore, the other sharp-cutting implements, which were also seized, were also not sent for such examination. Even the mat, which had bloodstains on it, was not sent for such examination and it could, therefore, not be proved as to whether the bloodstains thereon were of human or animal origin. (Para 18)

Coupled with the above is the fact that on going to the hospital in the night for medical treatment, the complainant did not even disclose to the doctor as to how he had sustained the injuries. The doctor was, therefore, not at all aware of any such incident, as presented by the prosecution, having been committed. Coupled with the above is the fact of the delay in lodging the FIR after consultation with the local villagers. Therefore, chances of fabrication in the FIR cannot be ruled out. (Para 19)

Neither the trial court nor the High Court appears to have looked into these details properly. Therefore, the judgment of conviction and sentence imposed by the trial court and upheld by the High Court is set aside. (Para 20). Prabir Mondal v. State of W.B., (2010) 1 SCC 386.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Altamas Kabir, Cyriac Joseph and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-10-2009]

[8238] — Ss. 307/34 — Reversal of acquittal by High Court, held, not justified on the facts — Appellants charged with attempt to murder PW 3, under Ss. 307/34 IPC — As a result of injury to thyroid cartilage appellant unable to speak and give out the name of his assailants — PW 3 remaining in hospital for about a month — After discharge from hospital PW 3 alleged to have divulged the names of assailants to the police — The motive alleged for the crime was that PW 3 had filed a complaint to the police against the appellants for causing damage to his crops by driving their cart through his fields — Trial court acquitting the appellants on the ground that the identity of the appellants had not been established — High Court in appeal, however, setting aside the acquittal and convicting the appellants and imposing a sentence of 3 years' RI — Held, on the basis of the motive attributed the appellants could hardly be aggrieved so as to cause grievous hurt to the victim — Besides, the identity of the appellants remained in doldrums for nearly a month — In these circumstances when there was delay and hesitation in conveying to the police the names of the appellants, it becomes difficult to maintain their conviction — Even otherwise, when two views were possible, the High Court should have been slow in upsetting the order of acquittal, all the more so when the trial court laid emphasis on the victim not naming the assailants, even before the investigation, as the culprits — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 & 386. Chandrabhan v. State of Maharashtra, 1997 SCC (Cri) 220: AIR 1995 SC 2406.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-3-1995]

[8239] — Ss. 307/393 — Arms Act, 1959 — S. 25 read with S. 6 TADA Act, 1985 — Conviction under — Legality — Injuries sustained by the accused not explained by the prosecution — Complainant first going to the Primary Health Centre for medical help but not disclosing the name of the assailant to the doctor — Name of the accused disclosed only at the time when the complaint was recorded by the Sub-Inspector of Police after about 5½ hours of the incident — In the circumstances of the case, conviction of the accused under Ss. 307/393 not sustainable — Evidence adduced by the prosecution in the case under S. 25 Arms Act read with S. 6 TADA suffering from same infirmity — Hence, conviction under those provisions also set aside. Rehmat v. State of Haryana, (1996) 10 SCC 346: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1272: AIR 1997 SC 1526.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-9-1996]

(ii) Appeal/Revision/Writ petition

[8240] — S. 307 — Appeal against acquittal — Where view taken by trial Court is reasonably possible, High Court not justified in reversing the order of acquittal even if it does not agree with the trial court's view — On facts, conviction and sentence under S. 307, Penal Code, 1860, passed by High Court set aside — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386. Dharam Pal v. State of U.P., 1981 Supp SCC 20: 1981 SCC (Cri) 640.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, Baharul Islam and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-3-1981]

[8241] — S. 307 — Writ petition challenging conviction and sentence under S. 307 recorded by Court Martial against respondent-accused — Reappreciation of evidence on record and interference by High Court — Held, justified when Court Martial recorded the conclusion of guilt on the basis of evidence of sole injured witness without examining defence plea and contentions raised on behalf of the accused

It was contended that howsoever wide the jurisdiction of the Court under Article 226 may be, in exercising judicial review against an order of an inferior tribunal, the same jurisdiction would not extend to reappreciation of the evidence on record and interfere with a finding arrived at by the inferior tribunal.

Held :

There is no dispute with regard to the above proposition of law. It is true that in a court martial, it would be possible for the appropriate authority to record a conclusion of guilt on the basis of the uncorroborated testimony of the injured and if such a conclusion is arrived at then the High Court may not interfere with the same by reappreciating the evidence. But that does not confer the power on the Court Martial Authority not even to consider the defence plea and the contentions raised on behalf of the accused. In this case the order of the Court Martial unequivocally indicates that either the defence plea or even the contentions raised by the accused in the proceeding had not been taken into consideration and merely on the evidence of the injured who happened to be the sole witness of the entire incident, the conviction was recorded. That certainly vitiated the entire conviction and therefore, the High Court was justified in interfering with the conviction recorded. (Paras 4 to 6). Union of India v. Sunil Tiwari, (2009) 16 SCC 358.

(4)(ii) Appeal/Revision/Writ petition (contd.)

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik, S.N. Phukan and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-2002]

[8242] — Ss. 307, 323, 326 and 447 — Concurrent findings regarding participation by the appellant — Interference by High Court in revision

There being concurrent findings regarding participation by the appellants in the crime, those findings could not be disturbed in revision before the High Court. They could not be challenged before the Supreme Court in appeal under special leave too. Lakshmi Tiwari v. State of Bihar, (1972) 3 SCC 122: 1972 SCC (Cri) 442: AIR 1972 SC 1058: 1972 Cri LJ 776.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Shelat and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-1972]

[8243] — Ss. 307, 427 and 448 — Appellate court's approach, on facts, if was proper — Held, the appellate court exercising appellate powers has not only to consider various points but objectively and critically analyse the evidence — That has not been done in the present case — On facts, trial court on finding appellant-accused guilty of offences punishable under Ss. 307, 427 and 448 IPC imposed different sentences which were directed to run concurrently — Appeal preferred by appellant-accused before High Court was disposed of without any indication in the order as to whether the appeal was dismissed or allowed — Only certain observations were made and directions given — High Court on being pointed out about there being no result of the appeal, listed the matter again and on the date of listing observed that for the reasons and discussions made, the order of conviction and sentence is confirmed and appeal is dismissed — Procedure adopted, held, was clearly not appropriate — Manner in which appeal was dealt with is not the correct way to deal with an appeal — No serious attempt was made by High Court to appreciate rival stand and/or analyse the evidence in its proper perspective — Hence, impugned judgment of High Court set aside and matter remitted to it for consideration afresh and disposal in accordance with law (Paras 6, 9, 3, 4 and 13). B. Vishwanath v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 11 SCC 168: 2008 Cri LJ 1947: (2008) 63 AIC 58 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-2-2008]

(iii) Appreciation of evidence

[8244] — Ss. 307 and 353 — Large number of discrepancies — Effect — In the instant case, there exist a lot of discrepancies in the prosecution case with regard to the manner in which incident had taken place — Hence, on facts, held, a case of S. 307 IPC not made out — Also, if prosecution case of attempt to murder by gunshot injury fails, resultantly prosecution under S. 25, Arms Act, would also fail — Having regard to the facts and circumstances herein, no case made out even under S. 353 IPC — Arms Act, 1959, S. 25(1)(a)

The appellant was charged with and convicted for commission of offences under Sections 307 and 353 IPC as also Section 25(1)(a), Arms Act, 1959, and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment of five years and fine of Rs 5000, two years and fine of Rs 1000 and three years and fine of Rs 1000 respectively.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

The complainant, a PSI, examined himself as PW 8. PW 2, PSI of CID, who allegedly accompanied the complainant sought to support the prosecution case. However, he did not have any personal knowledge about the incident. He heard thereabout only from the complainant. (Para 5)

All the witnesses who were said to be independent witnesses viz. PWs 3, 6, 7 and 10 turned hostile. According to them, they were made to become witnesses of seizure of the clothes, etc., which had been kept in the police station. (Para 6)

PW 5, the doctor, in his evidence proved the medical report. In his deposition for all intent and purport, he conceded the deficiencies in the prosecution case vis-à-vis the report prepared by him. From the statements made by him, it is evident that even in relation to the purported marks of entry of the bullet through the garments owned by the complainant, there existed a lot of discrepancies. Some sort of makeshift report was placed before him by way of "yaadi", which was prepared by the complainant and whereupon he completely relied. If no burn injury was found in the clothes, it is difficult to believe that some burn injury was noticed in the wound. Prosecution did not obtain any clarification from him as to whether the nature of the injury which the complainant suffered could not take place due to rubbing of the skin on a rough substance. (Paras 7 and 8)

It is also noticed that the injury received by the complainant was allegedly caused to his loin. How such a simple injury could be caused from a shot fired from a firearm is open to question. So far as the report of the Forensic Science Laboratory is concerned, the clothes had not been identified as belonging to the injured. It may also be recorded that two bullets were sent to the Forensic Science Laboratory, although the specific case of the prosecution is that only one shot was fired. Two bullet holes were, therefore, not possible to be caused, one in the trousers and other in the waist, by one shot of fire. It has not been disclosed as to wherefrom the bullet was recovered. The mahazar witnesses did not say that any bullet was recovered from the place of occurrence in their presence. (Para 9)

According to PW 8, he came to know about the firing on hearing of sound of fire. He had immediately put his finger on the trigger of the revolver and caught the appellant from his wrist. If the finger of the complainant himself was on the trigger of the revolver, it is difficult to believe that the appellant was responsible for the act complained of. (Para 10)

According to PW 8, seizure took place at the place of occurrence but panch witnesses contradicted him as according to them, they were made to sign the seizure list only at the police station. (Para 10)

PW 8 resiled from his statement made before the investigating officer under Section 161 CrPC and built up another story in his examination-in-chief. (Paras 10 and 11)

PW 9 stated that blood had oozed out but the vest of the complainant did not contain any bloodstain. (Para 12)

There, thus, exist a lot of discrepancies in regard to the manner in which the incident had taken place. (Para 13)

Even assuming that PW 8 received a firearm injury which in the facts and circumstances of the case does not appear to be plausible, having regard to the positive evidence of the prosecution as has been stated by PW 4, it seems certain that a scuffle had ensued. A case of Section 307 IPC, therefore, has not been made out. (Para 14)

If the prosecution case of attempt to murder of PW 8 by gunshot injury fails, resultantly, the prosecution under Section 25, Arms Act, would also fail. Having regard to the facts and circumstances of this case, no case has been made out even under Section 353 IPC. (Paras 15 and 16). Sumersinbh Umedsinh Rajput v. State of Gujarat, (2007) 13 SCC 83: AIR 2008 SC 904: (2008) 61 AIC 22 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 1388.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-12-2007]

[8245] — Ss. 307/34 — Factum of the complainant sitting down and escaping rifle shot injury at the hands of the appellant found by the High Court to be an exaggeration — High Court was not justified in convicting the appellant on such finding

The High Court has viewed the factum of C sitting down and escaping rifle shot injury at the hands of H to be an exaggeration. Yet the High Court convicted him for offence under Sections 307/34 IPC. The High Court was wrong in convicting H after such finding but right in coming to that conclusion. Therefore, it must be held that the account of the first occurrence has not been placed by the prosecution before the court in a true manner. Harish Kumar v. State of M.P., (1996) 9 SCC 667: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1080: AIR 1996 SC 3433.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and Sujata V. Manohar, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-7-1996]

(iv) Bail

[8246] — S. 307 — Considerations for cancellation of bail — Cancellation should not be by way of punishment even if prima facie case against the accused is established — Held, High Court erred in interfering with Sessions Court's bail order on irrelevant considerations such as nature and gravity of circumstances in which offence committed — CrPC, 1973, S. 439(2)

The appellant was arrested while inflicting several knife blows on a social and political worker who had come to visit a patient in a hospital. An offence under S. 307, IPC and S. 135 of the Bombay Police Act, was registered against him and he was remanded to judicial custody. His application for releasing him on bail was granted by the Sessions Court by a well-reasoned order made after hearing both the sides. The State moved an application to the High Court for cancellation of the order granting bail. The High Court allowed the application and cancelled the bail order holding that once a prima facie case was established, the Sessions Court ought to have taken into consideration the nature and gravity of the circumstances in which the offence was committed.

(4)(iv) Bail (contd.)

Held :

Very cogent and overwhelming circumstances are necessary for an order seeking cancellation of the bail. Even where a prima facie case is established, the approach of the court in the matter of bail is not that the accused should be detained by way of punishment but whether the presence of the accused would be readily available for trial or that he is likely to abuse the discretion granted in his favour by tampering with evidence.

In the present case the High Court completely overlooked the fact that it was not for it to decide whether the bail should be granted but the application was for cancellation of the bail. It was misdirected while examining the question of directing cancellation of bail by interfering with discretionary order of the Sessions Court. The circumstance found by it that the victim attacked was a social and political worker cannot be considered to be so overriding as to permit such interference. The High Court was impressed by some of the most irrelevant considerations, overlooking the considerations relevant for deciding the question. The High Court's approach thus being erroneous must be set aside. Bhagirathsinh v. State of Gujarat, (1984) 1 SCC 284: 1984 SCC (Cri) 63: AIR 1984 SC 372: 1984 Cri LJ 160: (1984) 1 GLR 332.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and R.B. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1983]

[8247] — Ss. 307 and 395 r/w 149 — Bail, grant of in case of delay in commencing trial — Accused languishing in jail since long time without commencement of the trial — Despite suppression of certain facts in bail application by the appellant's counsel, in view of the circumstances of the case, Supreme Court releasing the appellant on bail — Constitution of India, Art. 21 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 437 and 439. Vivek Kumar v. State of U.P., (2000) 9 SCC 443: 2001 SCC (Cri) 416: AIR 2000 SC 3406 (2): 2000 Cri LJ 2774: 2000 All LJ 1470.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and M.B. Shah, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2000]

[8248] — Ss. 307/34 — Bail — Cancellation of — Parameters regarding grant/cancellation of bail, restated — Only because co-accused did not actually oppose prayer for cancellation of bail, held, could not be a ground to cancel bail — CrPC, 1973, S. 439 (Paras 5 and 6). Ram Babu Tiwari v. State of M.P., (2009) 12 SCC 471.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-2009]

Dinesh M.N. (S.P.) v. State of Gujarat, (2008) 5 SCC 66: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 508, relied on

(v) Conviction justified

[8249] — S. 307 — Arms Act, 1959 — S. 27 read with S. 6(1) TADA Act — Appellant assaulting the complainant with a knife and giving repeated stab-blows to him — Defence plea that the complainant was under influence of liquor and was beaten by the villagers as he was teasing woman found unacceptable — There being enough light at the place of incident and the appellant a known person there was no difficulty in identifying him — Two or three omissions on minor points in the evidence of the complainant inconsequential — Complainant naming the appellant as the person who had given him knife-blows as soon as he regained consciousness — Held, in the circumstances of the case, evidence of the complainant is quite sufficient to sustain conviction of the appellant — Conviction maintained — Arms Act, 1959, S. 27. Shankar Lal v. State of Haryana, (1998) 6 SCC 239: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1434: AIR 1998 SC 3271.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-7-1998]

[8250] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction confirmed — Appellant giving two "khukhri" blows to PW 1 (ASI) at the police outpost and grievously injuring him — Appellant thereafter overpowered by constables PWs 4 and 5 and arrested — Incident recorded in the daily diary and sent to Distt. Headquarters situated 26 kms. away on basis whereof FIR was lodged and investigation commenced — Undisputed that IO had to walk all the way in difficult terrain from the Distt. Headquarters to the place of occurrence and hence he could reach there only the next night — Appellant neither examining any defence witness nor entering any particular defence — PW 1 stating in great detail injuries suffered by him which stood corroborated by medical evidence — Testimony of PW 1 also corroborated in material particulars by testimonies of PWs 4 and 5, which were found credible — Held, conviction of appellant under S. 307 by courts below sustainable (Paras 1, 8, 9, 11, 12 and 15). Bir Singh v. State of H.P., (2006) 9 SCC 579: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 343: AIR 2006 SC 1944: 2006 Cri LJ 2456: (2006) 102 Cut LT 426.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-2006]

[8251] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Conviction — Sustainability — Appellant alleged to have purposefully hit PW 2's cycle with his Maruti car and on being questioned stated that he would do it again — When PW 2, along with his father-in-law who was closely related to appellant-accused's father, and PWs 3 and 4, his brothers-in-law had gone to lodge a complaint thereabout to appellant's father, heated words were exchanged, and appellant with his licensed .12 bore gun alleged to have fired at PW 2 hitting him in his abdomen, besides firing at PWs 3 & 4 also — Plea of right of self-defence found rightly rejected by courts below because PW 2 had gone with his father-in-law and others only to lodge a complaint and not as aggressors — Testimonies of PWs found cogent and credible and despite their lengthy cross-examination nothing elicited from them which would shake prosecution version — Hence, held, conviction of appellant under S. 307 calls for no interference (Paras 13 and 18 to 22). Karamjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2009) 7 SCC 178: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 330.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. M.K. Sharma and Dr. B.S. Chauhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-7-2009]

Manjappa v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 6 SCC 231: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 76, followed

[8252] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Conviction, held, proper — Altercation taking place between PWs 2 and 3 on the one hand, and the appellant on the other — PW 2 slapping the appellant — After a few hours of the said incident when PW 2 was going along with PW 3, appellant stabbing PW 2 with knife in his abdomen — Recovery of knife at the instance of the appellant — On chemical examination, knife found containing human blood of 'AB' group which was the blood group of the injured — Submission of appellant that he also received injuries in the course of the said occurrence which remained unexplained by the prosecution, had no force — Though prosecution has to prove every ingredient of the offence and defence only to probabilise, there must be some material to support the plea of the defence — Courts below concurrently found the evidence of PWs 2 and 3 to be acceptable — No reason to take a different view — Conviction upheld — CrPC, 1973, S. 428 (Paras 4 and 7). Nasir Sikander Shaikh v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 10 SCC 585: AIR 2005 SC 2533: 2005 Cri LJ 2621.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Singh and Arun Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-2005]

[8253] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Evidence of victim fully supported by eyewitnesses and prosecution case not shown to be untrustworthy — Courts below, held, rightly convicted the accused — No case made out for Supreme Court's interference. Sher Singh v. State of Punjab, (1979) 3 SCC 606: 1979 SCC (Cri) 740: AIR 1979 SC 699: 1979 Cri LJ 642.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.S. Kailasam and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-11-1978]

[8254] — S. 307 — Conviction under, upheld accepting the concurrent finding of fact that the defence plea of right of private defence untenable — But on facts, sentence of 4 years' RI reduced to 2 years' RI. Bhanwar Singh v. State of U.P., 1987 Supp SCC 148: 1987 SCC (Cri) 666.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V. Balakrishna Eradi and S. Natarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1987]

[8255] — S. 307 — Ingredients of, if fulfilled — Conviction restored—Applying the ruling in State of M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554 to the current facts, held, the High Court had arrived at erroneous hypothetical conclusions ignoring the fact that the nature of injuries were grievous and were caused by use of sufficient force by sharp-edged weapons — Order of acquittal of the High Court set aside and that of the trial court restored (Para 13). State of M.P. v. Imrat, (2008) 11 SCC 523: AIR 2008 SC 2967: (2008) 68 AIC 104 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 3869.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-7-2008]

[8256] — S. 307 — Offence under — Acquittal, improper — Attack on police officials —After the firing by accused RP, the police officials were trying to take the gun from him — Meanwhile, accused V snatched away the gun from RP and started firing — Death of one police official and injuries sustained by PWs 4 and 5 — V fired from very close range — Though the bullets did not hit PWs 4 and 5 on vital parts, yet the intention of the accused was crystal clear — Held, case under S. 307 made out — High Court was not justified in directing acquittal of V in respect thereof — Conviction by trial court restored. State of U.P. v. Virendra Prasad, (2004) 9 SCC 37: AIR 2004 SC 1517: 2004 Cri LJ 1373: 2004 All LJ 673.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-2-2004]

[8257] — S. 307 — Reversal of acquittal by High Court, held, proper — Assault on PW 3 by appellant — Evidence of eyewitnesses (friends of PW 3) rejected by trial court without any plausible reason — No reason given as to why the evidence of PW 3 was not worthy of credence — Since trial court itself observed that there was exchange of hot words between the accused and PW 3, plea that genesis of occurrence not established, held, rightly discarded by High Court — Reliance placed by High Court on evidence of PW 3 and other eyewitnesses, held, proper — High Court was justified in reversing the acquittal — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386 and 378 (Paras 6 and 7). R. Prakash v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 27: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1408: AIR 2004 SC 1812: 2004 Cri LJ 1391.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-2004]

(4)(v) Conviction justified (contd.)

[8258] — Ss. 307, 147, 148 and 149 — Conviction, proper — Appellants assaulting PW 1 by means of swords — Injuries sustained by PW 1 were sufficient in the ordinary course to cause his death, but due to the efforts of the doctors he survived — Non-disclosure of names of appellants to the doctor by PW 1, not fatal since a subsequent statement recorded (at that time as a dying declaration) contained their names — Having regard to the medical evidence as well as statement of PW 1 which was corroborated by the eyewitness account of PWs 3, 7, 8 and 9, held on facts, concurrent findings of conviction recorded by the courts below not liable to be interfered with (Paras 5, 7, 8, 9 and 10). Shrawan Bhadaji Bhirad v. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 10 SCC 56: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1510: AIR 2003 SC 199.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and Y.K. Sabharwal, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-2002]

[8259] — Ss. 307, 148, 307/149, 100 and 101 — Attack on PW 1 when he was returning from a well to his house — Plea of self-defence — Accused persons stating that it was PWs who came and attacked them — Evidence indicating that the well was near to the house of PW 1 — House of accused about 1½ furlongs away from the place of incident — Held, not possible to assume that PW 1 and others came to the house of accused and attacked them — Plea that accused acted in private defence, held, not acceptable (Para 7). Karan Singh v. State of M.P., (2003) 12 SCC 587.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-9-2003]

[8260] — Ss. 307 and 307/34 — Arms Act, 1959 — S. 27 read with S. 6(1) TADA — Attempt to commit murder — Conviction upheld — A-1 firing from his gun hitting the thigh of the witness and A-2 causing pistol shot injury on the shoulder of the other witness — Injured witnesses giving all necessary details how the accused persons caused injuries on their person — Incident having taken place at about 7 a.m. in the month of July when there was sufficient light to identify the accused — Evidence of the injured witnesses corroborated by the promptly lodged FIR giving the names of all the three accused with reference to specific role and the place from where they used the firearm — Conviction upheld — In the circumstances of the case sentence of 7 years' RI to each of the appellants not disproportionate — No leniency in respect of sentence is called for. Bhagirath v. State of Haryana, 1996 SCC (Cri) 1014: AIR 1996 SC 3431.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-7-1996]

[8261] — Ss. 307, 324 & 498-A — Appreciation of evidence — Housewife admitted in Emergency Ward of hospital by her jeth in a serious condition — Insecticide poison viz. organophosphorus found in her gastric lavage and blood sample — Doctor deposing that the said poison was dangerous to life and that if the treatment had not been given in time, she would have died — The victim, who survived, deposing that her husband Respondent 2, used to beat her regularly, that on the day of occurrence her husband had forced her to consume the poison and that she had told this fact to her father when he came to the hospital — Her father, appellant, corroborating her testimony — In view of this direct evidence, held, non-examination of her Jeth (who was not an eyewitness) or her mother-in-law and sister-in-law by prosecution was not fatal to the prosecution case — Trial court erred in acquitting Respondent 2 taking the view that there was no oral, documentary or circumstantial evidence — High Court by summarily dismissing the criminal revision approached the matter in a perfunctory manner — Hence Respondent 2 liable to be convicted under Ss. 307, 324 and 498-A — Matter sent back to trial court for hearing the 2nd respondent on the quantum of sentence and for imposing the necessary sentence (Para 14). Mangilal v. State of Rajasthan, (2001) 8 SCC 519: 2002 SCC (Cri) 16: AIR 2001 SC 2937.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-10-2001]

[8262] — Ss. 307, 326 and 324 — Appeal against conviction — Proper mode of disposal — Trial court convicted appellant under Ss. 307, 326 and 324 IPC and sentenced him to rigorous imprisonment for 7 years and 5 years respectively — High Court disposed of the appeal by a brief order — Sentence reduced from 7 years to 6 years, for being his first offence — Material evidence against appellant not taken into account — No reason given for maintaining conviction — Held, High Court while hearing appeal is the last court of facts — Order of High Court set aside and appellant's appeal before High Court is restored to its file for a fresh hearing and decision in accordance with law — In case appeal is not disposed of by end of year, it will be open to appellant to make a prayer for bail before High Court — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374 and 386. Ram Ratan v. State of Rajasthan, (2010) 13 SCC 509.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Aftab Alam and R.M. Lodha, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-2010]

[8263] — Ss. 307 and 326 r/w S. 34 — Conviction upheld — Accused armed with iron chain, hockey stick and gandasa alleged to have seriously assaulted R and his two sons N & S causing them grievous injuries — Attack so severe that others ran away and no one tried to save the victims — PW 9 doctor, who conducted medico-legal examination of injured stating that injuries sustained by S were grievous in nature, while those sustained by R & N *were sufficient to cause death in ordinary course of nature (R had lost his memory consequent to injuries inflicted on him) — Held, in view of cogent and credible evidence of injured witnesses no interference with conviction called for — Further held, plea of false implication was without any foundation — Besides, all injured would not shield actual culprit and implicate an innocent person (Paras 1, 4, 14 and 15). Suresh v. State of Haryana, (2009) 13 SCC 538: 2009 Cri LJ 2985.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-2-2009]

[8264] — Ss. 307, 427, 323/120-B, 148 and 149 — Attempt to commit murder of SSP by driving and dashing truck against the staff car — Conviction upheld — Appellant purposely parking his truck on the wrong side with the engine on and waiting for staff car of SSP — When the staff car passed in front of the truck, the appellant intentionally dashing against the said car — Staff car completely smashed on the left side and minor injuries and abrasions caused to the SSP, his gunman and driver — Evidence of police officials found reliable — Failure to examine independent witnesses not fatal — In the circumstances of the case held, it was a planned action on the part of the appellant to commit the murder of the SSP with a view to create terror in the public at large — Conviction upheld — TADA Act, 1987, S. 4(3). Prem Pal Singh v. State of Punjab, (1996) 10 SCC 301: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1267: AIR 1997 SC 388.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-9-1996]

[8265] — Ss. 307 and 452 — Appreciation of evidence — Conviction confirmed — Relying upon testimony of the witnesses, courts below concurrently finding that the appellant had opened the attack and fired a shot injuring a witness — Held, evidence of the witnesses had been correctly appreciated and there is no reason to differ from the same. Vijay Kumar v. State of Punjab, AIR 1999 SC 841: 1999 Cri LJ 592.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1998]

[8266] — S. 307 r/w S. 34 and S. 120-B — Conviction justified — Appellant-Accused 2 alleged to have caught hold of complainant, while Accused 1 poured poisonous insecticide into her mouth — Reason for the action was refusal by complainant to abort child which was the result of love affair with accused, who retracted from marrying her and intended to kill her — Conviction under S. 307 r/w S. 34, upheld — However, reduced to period of 40 months already undergone (Paras 10 to 14 and 6). Chimanbhai Jagabhai Patel v. State of Gujarat, (2009) 11 SCC 273: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1323: (2009) 76 AIC 20 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-3-2009]

State of M.P. v. Deshraj, (2004) 13 SCC 199: 2005 SCC (Cri) 123, applied

State of Maharashtra v. Kashirao, (2003) 10 SCC 434: 2004 SCC (Cri) 801; Mahbub Shah v. Emperor, AIR 1945 PC 118: 46 Cri LJ 689, relied on

[8267] — S. 307 r/w S. 109 — Attempt to murder — Conviction upheld — Due to minor quarrel between mother of PWs 1, 2 and wife of A-3, A-1 nursed a grudge and A-1 to A-3 waylaid PWs 1 and 2 on their way to the well — A-1 and A-2 attacked PW 2 with an "aruval" (sword) inflicting several injuries — PW 2 was taken to hospital and PW 1 had complaint recorded — Trial court finding prosecution evidence not credible and contradictory acquitting the accused — High Court on analysis and review of evidence of PWs 1, 2 and 5 convicted appellants under S. 307 IPC — Sustainability — Held, analysis made by High Court to set aside acquittal does not suffer from any infirmity — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386

PWs 1, 2 and 3 were brothers residing near the house of Accused 1 and 2 who were also brothers. In this matter the mother of PWs 1 and 2 went to the corner of the street to collect water from the common water pipe where the third accused's wife also came to take water when a quarrel took place between them. PW 2 on seeing this went there and separated them and took his mother to his house. The next day when PWs 1 and 2 and the wife of the other brother went to the well, the first accused who had come to know of the fight which had taken place on an earlier day had grievance against PW 2 thinking that PW 2 abused the wife of the third accused in support of his mother and A-1 to A-3 waylaid them. A-1 and A-2 had an aruval with them. A-3 caught hold of PW 2 from behind and A-1 and A-2 attacked him with the aruval on the back, left shoulder, right shoulder, hands, etc. PW 2 received number of bleeding injuries all over the body and began to cry out. PW 1 and PW 5 and two others went near the injured who were threatened by the accused. PW 2 swooned and fell on the ground. The accused then fled from the scene. PWs 1 and 5 took the victim in a car to Government Hospital where PW 2 was examined and nine injuries were found. Head Constable (PW 7) came and recorded statement from PW 1. A complaint was then registered against the accused. PW 8, the Inspector of Police, took up further investigation and went to the scene and examined the witnesses. Thereafter, he went to the hospital and recorded the statement of PW 2.

(4)(v) Conviction justified (contd.)

The trial court found the evidence of prosecution witnesses to be not cogent and credible and accordingly directed acquittal. The State preferred an appeal. The High Court found that the reasoning indicated by the trial court to direct the acquittal could not be maintained. After analysing the evidence of PWs 1, 2 and 5, it was held that the accusations had been established and convicted the appellants for the offence punishable under Section 307 IPC and each was sentenced to undergo RI for four years and to pay a fine of Rs 5000 with default stipulation. However, the High Court confirmed the acquittal of the third accused.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

PW 3, the doctor attached to Government Hospital, examined PW 2 and as per the wound certificate, Ext. P-3, Injuries 3 and 9 were grievous in nature and the other injuries were simple injuries. (Para 10)

Evidence of PWs 1, 2 and 5 clearly show that PW 2 was indiscriminately attacked by A-1 and A-2 with aruval. As a result of those injuries, the victim (PW 2) fell on the ground. (Para 11)

According to PW 5, as soon as PW 2 fell on the ground, he became unconscious and thereafter, the accused persons ran away from the scene. This occurrence took place at about 7.30 a.m. and the victim was taken to the hospital at about 8.15 a.m. PW 3 doctor stated that the victim was conscious and the victim stated to him that he was attacked by three persons with aruval. (Para 12)

PW 1 stated that when PW 2, the victim was taken to the hospital, he was in an unconscious state and after admitting the victim in the hospital, while PW 3 was giving PW 2 treatment PW 7 came and at that time, he was informed by PW 1 that PW 2 was not in a position to give statement, since he was unconscious. Even assuming that PW 2 was conscious at that time, the nine serious injuries found on various parts of the body of the victim would clearly show that he could not have given full details to PW 7. Under those circumstances, obtaining of Ext. P-1, complaint from PW 1 is quite proper. (Para 14)

Merely because PW 2 was conscious at that time, it cannot be said that the statement should not have been recorded from PW 1 and the same is doubtful. No law prohibits the police officer from recording complaint relating to the occurrence, that too, from an eyewitness. The ground of acquittal as recorded by the trial court is not at all a proper ground. (Para 15)

According to the trial court, PW 1 could not have been seen the occurrence. This again is not the reasoning based on evidence. According to both PWs 1 and 2, they went to take bath in the well one after another. PW 5 stated that after hearing the cry of PW 2, PW 1 and others came to the scene. This would not mean that PW 1 did not accompany PW 2. As a matter of fact, even according to PW 5, PWs 1 and 5 took the victim in a taxi to Nanguneri Hospital. The occurrence took place in daylight at 7.30 a.m. The house of the accused and PWs 1 and 2 are situated nearby and the well also is situated just two furlongs away from the village. Under those circumstances, it cannot be said that PW 1 could not have accompanied PW 2 to take bath. Therefore, this ground of acquittal was rightly held by the High Court to be untenable. (Para 16)

The analysis made by the High Court to set aside the order of the trial court does not suffer from any infirmity. (Para 17)

It was contended by the appellants that an appeal against the acquittal cannot be interfered with by the appellate court except for the compelling reasons. The appellants questioned the correctness of the High Court's judgment. According to them, the High Court had not kept in view the parameters of appeal against acquittal. It was submitted that even if two views are possible, the view supporting the accused had to be accepted and since the trial court had precisely done that there was no reason to interfere with the judgment of the trial court. Herein, when the factual position is analysed in the background of the conclusions arrived at by the High Court, the inevitable conclusion is that the High Court's judgment is correct. (Paras 17, 18 and 22). Murugan v. State, (2008) 16 SCC 40: AIR 2009 SC 72: (2008) 71 AIC 201 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-9-2008]

[8268] — Ss. 307/34 — Attempt to commit murder — Assailants causing bullet injuries on the hands and face of the victim and stabbing in his abdomen — Medical evidence that the bullets fired had little force — No suggestion put to the doctor that the victim could not have offered any resistance — Held, in the circumstances of the case, prosecution version that the injured snatched away the knife from the hands of the assailant and caused injury to him not improbable. Tarak Nath Singh v. State of W.B., 1998 SCC (Cri) 587.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1997]

[8269] — Ss. 307/34 — Attempt to murder by gunshot firing — Having regard to evidence of the victim coupled with medical evidence and the fact that identity of the accused persons was established, held, there was no infirmity as regards conviction of the accused under Ss. 307/34 recorded by High Court. Murarilal Jivaram Sharma v. State of Maharashtra, 1998 SCC (Cri) 375: AIR 1997 SC 1593: 1997 Cri LJ 782: (1997) 1 An LT (Cri) 376: (1997) 34 ACC 278: (1997) 1 GCD 880.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-12-1996]

[8270] — Ss. 307/34 — Conviction under, proper — Testimony of the injured witness that shots were fired by one of the accused, one of which hit the witness on his arm found truthful — Accordingly held, conviction under Ss. 307/34 established (Para 16). State of Punjab v. Hakam Singh, (2005) 7 SCC 408: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1679: 2005 Cri LJ 4111.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-8-2005]

[8271] — Ss. 307/34 — Murder trial — Conviction confirmed — Ocular evidence vis-à-vis medical evidence — Effect of one contradiction between, rest being consistent — Appellant-accused alleged to have fired at deceased who was standing in his courtyard, which was just opposite to their house, from their gallery resulting in his death and causing injuries to others — PW 11, doctor who conducted post-mortem stating that Injury 1 to scrotum of deceased caused by ground level firing — Said statement if demolished prosecution version that guns were fired from gallery — Also fact that dead body recovered from cattle shed if indicated that deceased had been fired at while he was sleeping there — Held, evidence of PW 11, while generally corroborating prosecution case, is at variance with ocular evidence to the extent of Injury 1 — However, where eyewitness account is found to be credible and trustworthy, medical opinion suggesting an alternate possibility is not accepted to be conclusive — Besides, PW 11 had categorically stated that all injuries found on deceased (except Injury 1) and PWs could be caused by firing from height, which fitted with prosecution version — Furthermore, PW 11 also definitely stating that it was not possible to sustain injuries as suffered by deceased if he was sleeping on the ground — As regards place from where dead body was recovered, PWs clearly stating that after deceased sustained injuries in the firing, he was removed by them to cattle shed where he was ultimately found — Hence, no interference with impugned judgment convicting appellants under Ss. 302, 307/34 IPC and S. 25(1)(a) of Arms Act called for — Arms Act, 1959, S. 25(1)(a) (Paras 1, 4, 5 and 26 to 32). Sunil Dattatraya Vaskar v. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 16 SCC 554: AIR 2009 SC 210.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-9-2008]

Ramakant Rai v. Madan Rai, (2003) 12 SCC 395: 2004 SCC (Cri) Supp 445, followed

[8272] — Ss. 307/149 — Attempt to murder — Appreciation of evidence — Assault with deadly weapons — Accused fled from the scene thinking victim was dead — Testimony of injured eyewitnesses categorical and consistent and corroborated by medical evidence — Minor omissions but no inconsistency — On facts held, High Court rightly convicted the accused

In this case the contention that the FIR was made 15 days after the incident cannot be accepted. The incident occurred on 30-10-1988. Evidence of the doctor of the hospital indicated that on 11-11-1988 he had medically examined the victim who was brought to the hospital by a Constable. The requisition slip carried by the Constable indicated that the FIR preceded 1-11-1988 when the victim and his wife (who had also sustained some injuries while attempting to save her husband from assault) were brought to the hospital. In the circumstances the FIR cannot be said to be ante-timed. (Para 18)

Another question was whether the FIR was lodged in the police station by the victim or whether it was at his residence. The victim had collapsed when he was assaulted with lathis. His arm was fractured. He was taken to the hospital where he regained his consciousness. However, before being taken to the hospital, he was taken to his house where his signature was taken on the FIR. He was taken to the hospital after x-ray. In any event the FIR cannot discredit the evidence of the eyewitnesses. It is well settled that an FIR is not a substantive piece of evidence. It cannot contradict the testimony of the eyewitnesses even though it may contradict its maker. (Para 18)

A common thread runs through the evidence of the victim, his wife and another person who had also sustained injuries in the incident. They categorically stated that at around 1.00 p.m. when they were returning for lunch after sowing their fields, the accused persons were hiding in the tuar, that the incident took place near a certain field, that the accused who were armed with ballam and lathis, assaulted the victim and when his wife fell upon him to save him she also got injured and the third person accompanying them also sustained lathi-blows. The witnesses elaborately described the manner in which the assault was carried out and the manner in which the injuries were inflicted. The evidence shows that one of the appellant-accused tried to pierce the ballam into abdomen of the victim, that if the victim would not have caught hold of the ballam, the accused had almost succeeded in piercing the ballam into the abdomen and that the accused persons fled when they thought the victim had died when in fact he had become unconscious on account of the injuries. Their evidence was fully corroborated by medical evidence. In view of the categorical statements of the witnesses, it is not possible to believe the investigating officer who stated that the incident took place 1 to 1½ km away from the place indicated by the witnesses. Further, there were minor omissions in the statement under Section 161 CrPC but there were no contradictions. The injuries sustained by the victim as also by his wife and the third witness were duly proved. They were hospitalised for 15 days. (Para 18)

As regards the plea of alibi taken by one of the accused on ground that during the period of the incident he was ill and was undergoing treatment for typhoid under a government doctor, the High Court found that the Medical Officer had not proved his having treated the said co-accused for typhoid during the period of the incident. No document or register of the hospital was produced to show that the accused was an indoor patient in the hospital. There was nothing to show that he was treated in a private hospital. The Medical Officer had deposed that he had issued the certificate on the demand of the accused. The doctor did not maintain any register of the certificates issued by him, particularly when he says that he had private practice also. In the circumstances, the High Court was right in disbelieving the doctor. (Para 18)

There is no reason to doubt the credibility of the victim. Even assuming for the sake of argument that there are inconsistencies in the deposition of the victim, there is no reason to disbelieve the evidence of the other two eyewitnesses, who have substantially corroborated the evidence of the victim. (Para 18)

Under the above circumstances, the High Court was right in coming to the conclusion that there was a common intention to cause serious injuries; that the presence of all the accused was proved on the scene of offence; that the specific role performed by each of the accused stood established and, therefore, there was intention to murder and, consequently, the High Court was right in convicting the accused under Section 307 read with Section 149 IPC. (Para 18). Asharam v. State of M.P., (2007) 11 SCC 164: AIR 2007 SC 2594: (2007) 56 AIC 180 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.H. Kapadia and B. Sudershan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-2007]

(vi) Other issues

[8273] — S. 307 — Conviction under, whether on facts could be based exclusively on statement of witness under S. 6 Evidence Act — Hearing the alarm raised by the injured, PW reaching the spot and at that point of time the injured falling down and the assailant making good his escape — S prosecuted under S. 307 IPC — During pendency of prosecution the victim dying and the cause and time of his death remaining unknown — According to PW the injured told him that S had fired upon him — However, in cross-examination PW admitting that he and S were inimical to each other and that the injured had spoken to PW in the presence of a large number of persons (20 in this case) — Prosecution examining none of the said persons — In such circumstances, statement of PW, although admissible in evidence under S. 6, could not be exclusively relied on to convict S — Hence, in absence of any corroborative evidence, conviction of S under S. 307, held, bad — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 6

According to the prosecution there was enmity between N and his nephew S on account of a dispute in respect of agricultural land and the agricultural produce therefrom. On the date of occurrence, S fired a pistol shot at N. N raised an alarm on account of which PWs 1 and 2 reached the spot and at that point of time N fell down and S made good his escape. PWs 1 and 2 brought N to police station whereupon N's statement was recorded and treating the same as FIR the police started investigation and sent up S for trial. During the pendency of trial N died but the cause and time of death was not known. During the trial PWs 1 and 2 merely stating as to what they heard from the injured at the relevant point of time and according to PW 2, the injured had told him that S had fired upon him. The trial court convicted S under Section 307 and the High Court dismissed his appeal. Before the Supreme Court, the appellant-accused contended that the evidence of PW 2 was not admissible under Section 6 of the Evidence Act inasmuch as what the injured told the witness and the factum of alleged shooting by the accused at the injured could not be said to have formed part of the same transaction as according to him by the time he reached the scene of occurrence, several people had gathered there. The appellant accused further contended that even otherwise the evidence was unreliable and could not sustain the conviction. Rejecting the former contention but upholding the latter and allowing the appeal,

Held :

Admittedly appellant S and PW 2 were inimical to each other since long before and by the time PW 2 reached the scene of occurrence, more than 20 persons had gathered next to N and yet none of them has been examined by the prosecution to corroborate PW 2 as to what was told to him by the injured. Therefore, the evidence of PW 2 cannot be held to be of such an unimpeachable character on which the conviction can be based without any corroboration. On the other hand, the witness being inimical to the accused and on account of what has been elicited in his cross-examination, his evidence requires corroboration before being accepted. Admittedly there is not an iota of corroboration either from any oral evidence or from any other circumstances. Hence, the conviction of the appellant on the unreliable and shaky evidence of PW 2 without any corroboration, cannot be sustained. (Para 11). Sukhar v. State of U.P., (1999) 9 SCC 507: 2000 SCC (Cri) 419: AIR 1999 SC 3883.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik, M. Srinivasan and N. Santosh Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-10-1999]

[8274] — Ss. 307, 149, 147, 427 and 324 — Transfer of one of the cross-cases, by Sessions Court to CJM — Legality — Case and counter-case both committed to Sessions Court — Sessions Court finding that in one case no charge for an offence triable exclusively by Sessions Court could be framed while such a charge could be framed in the other case — In such circumstances, transfer of the former case by Sessions Court to CJM for trial under S. 228(1), CrPC, held, improper — Sessions Court should have rather itself tried it in the manner indicated in Naithani Lal case, 1990 Supp SCC 145 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 228, 227 and 26 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 408(1), 228(1), 227 and 26(a)(ii)

A Sessions Judge has the power to try any offence under IPC. It is not necessary for the Sessions Court that the offence should be one exclusively triable by a Court of Session. This power of the Sessions Court can be discerned from a reading of Section 26 CrPC. Therefore, when a case involving offence not exclusively triable by such court is committed to the Court of Session, the Sessions Judge has to exercise a discretion regarding the case which he has to continue for trial in his court and the case which he has to transfer to the CJM. In Section 228(1) CrPC, the employment of the word "may" at one place and the word "shall" at another place in the same sub-section unmistakably indicates that when the offence is not triable exclusively by the Sessions Court it is not mandatory that he should order transfer of the case to the CJM after framing a charge. In situations where it is advisable for him to try such offence in his court there is no legal obligation to transfer the case to the CJM. (Para 16)

In the present case, the Sessions Judge ought not to have transferred the second case to the CJM as he did, but he himself should have tried it in the manner indicated in Nathi Lal. (Para 17). Sudhir v. State of M.P., (2001) 2 SCC 688: 2001 SCC (Cri) 387: AIR 2001 SC 826.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-2-2001]

Goriparthi Krishtamma, In re, 1929 MWN 881; Krishna Pannadi v. Emperor, AIR 1930 Mad 190: 31 Cri LJ 461, impliedly approved on this point

Nathi Lal v. State of U.P., 1990 Supp SCC 145: 1990 SCC (Cri) 638, followed

[8275] — Ss. 307 and 326 — Sanction for prosecution of police officer — Police Officer allegedly committed offences under Ss. 307 and 326 — Some others also committed in a cross case in connection with the same transaction — Necessity of sanction for prosecution of the police officer not prima facie established by the committal officer in the cross case — CrPC, 1898, S. 132

The commitment of the other accused is on the basis of the case in which they are accused and cannot be legally taken into consideration to decide the question raised in the case against the police officer. The question whether sanction under S. 132, Code of Criminal Procedure, is necessary is to be decided on the evidence in the latter case and not on the basis of the evidence and inferences drawn in the other case. The contention that the mere fact that some of the persons alleged to have framed part of unlawful assembly were prosecuted by the State and have also been committed by the Magistrate to the Sessions Court for trial prima facie establishes that the police officer's contention about the necessity of sanction under S. 132 of the Code has no force. Nagraj v. State of Mysore, AIR 1964 SC 269: (1964) 3 SCR 671: (1964) 1 Cri LJ 161.

(4)(vi) Other issues (contd.)

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, Raghubar Dayal and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1963]

[8276] — S. 307 r/w Ss. 34 and 109 — Retracted confession — Corroboration — Admission by the accused that he accepted money for engaging terrorists to commit murder of the complainant and for creating terrorism and bringing disharmony between Hindus and Sikhs — Part of money paid for engaging terrorists recovered from their houses — Recovery of letterpad with print "Bhindranwala Tiger Force" and motor cycle used by the terrorists from the place of occurrence — Held, in the circumstances of the case, conviction of the appellant under S. 3(3) is justified — TADA Act, 1987, Ss. 15 and 3(3). Baba Peer Paras Nath v. State of Haryana, (1996) 10 SCC 500: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1370: AIR 1996 SC 2818.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-8-1996]

[8277] — Ss. 307/34 — Delay of 7 days in sending copy of the FIR to the Magistrate — Delay not explained by the IO — Defence plea that the witnesses could not identify the assailants and only after recovery of the alleged pistol they were named as assailants in the FIR — Considering the defence of the accused in the light of evidence on record and previous enmity between the parties, held, prosecution failed to establish guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 154 and 157. Chhotu v. State of Haryana, 1996 SCC (Cri) 1161.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-8-1996]

(vii) Witnesses

[8278] — S. 307 — Testimony of Police officers — Evidentiary value — Failure to examine any independent witness — Effect — Whether the police officers concerned had seen the accused chasing, firing at, and injuring the victim at a place outside the village at about 7.30 a.m. and whether he had a desi katta with him when arrested — In absence of any material on record to show that any independent witness was available near the place of incident, the evidence of such police officers since the same was found credible, held, could not be discarded merely on the ground of non-examination of any independent witness by the prosecution — That the injured witness had not supported the prosecution case, ignored as the accused was his cousin — Since the circumstances under which the injury was caused clearly indicated the intention of the accused, his conviction under S. 307 upheld — Moreover, since the accused had no licence for the pistol found in his possession, his conviction under S. 5 of TADA Act and S. 27 of Arms Act also upheld — TADA Act, 1987, S. 5 — Arms Act, 1959, S. 27 (Paras 2 and 3). Ram Kumar v. State (NCT of Delhi), (1999) 9 SCC 149: 1999 SCC (Cri) 574: AIR 1999 SC 2259: 1999 Cri LJ 3522.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and N. Santosh Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1999]

[8279] — Ss. 307 and 34 — Testimony of Solitary witness — Evidentiary value — Offences under S. 25 of Arms Act and Ss. 307/34 — All the prosecution witnesses except one turning hostile — The solitary witness deposing that at about 11.00 p.m. the accused along with his two associates came to his hotel and when he protested against taking of liquor by the accused at the hotel, the accused went to his tractor, brought the gun in question and fired at him — The solitary witness also testifying that the gun, empty cartridge and live cartridge were seized by the IO, who was a formal witness — Cross-examined at great length but no material coming out to discredit him — His testimony fully corroborated by the IO and also by the forensic expert's report — In such circumstances, conviction under S. 25 of the Arms Act as well as under Ss. 307/34 of IPC on the basis of the evidence of the solitary witness, upheld — Arms Act, 1959, S. 25. Parveen v. State of Haryana, (1996) 11 SCC 365: 1997 SCC (Cri) 63: AIR 1997 SC 310.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-10-1996]

(5) Sentence/Fine/Compensation/Other punishment/relief

[8280] — S. 307 — Attempt to commit murder — Sentence — Appellants and the injured close relatives — Lapse of 18 years since the incident and during this period the appellants not involved in any offence — Appellants remaining in jail for a substantial period — In the circumstances of the case sentence of imprisonment reduced to the period already undergone but imposed a fine of Rs 10,000 to be paid to the injured. Tarak Nath Singh v. State of W.B., 1998 SCC (Cri) 587.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1997]

[8281] — S. 307 — Attempt to murder — Sentence — Quantum of — Accused chasing, firing with a desi katta at, and injuring, the victim within the sight of police officers — However, the injured not supporting the prosecution case which, however, proved by police officers' evidence — Accused and injured were cousin brothers — In such circumstances sentence of 10 years' RI passed by the designated court reduced to 7 years — Moreover, sentence of RI for 5 years with a fine of Rs 1000 and RI for 3 years with a fine of Rs 1000 under S. 5 of TADA and S. 27 of Arms Act respectively, confirmed — TADA Act, 1987, S. 5 — Arms Act, 1959, S. 27 (Para 4). Ram Kumar v. State (NCT of Delhi), (1999) 9 SCC 149: 1999 SCC (Cri) 574: AIR 1999 SC 2259: 1999 Cri LJ 3522.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and N. Santosh Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1999]

[8282] — S. 307 — Commutation — Belated prosecution — Conviction under S. 307 — In view of prosecution being 14 years after the offence, sentence reduced from 5 years to 2 years' imprisonment. Shanabhai Dhulabhai Parmar v. State of Gujarat, (1977) 1 SCC 454: 1977 SCC (Cri) 112: AIR 1977 SC 1338: 1977 Cri LJ 1007.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, R.S. Sarkaria and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1976]

[8283] — S. 307 — Compounding of non-compoundable offence — Permissibility — Effect on sentence — On facts, appellant-accused convicted under S. 307 IPC and sentenced to three years' RI with fine and default stipulation — During pendency of appeal before Supreme Court mutual compromise arrived at between accused and complainant victim — Separate affidavits were also filed by both in respect thereof — Joint prayer of parties that accused may be released, treating sentence already undergone as sufficient — Held, offence punishable under S. 307 IPC is not a compoundable offence — S. 320 CrPC expressly states that no offence shall be compounded if it is not compoundable under CrPC — However, Supreme Court may consider compromise between the parties for the purpose of reduction of sentence — Hence, considering the totality of facts and circumstances, conviction maintained but sentence reduced to that already undergone — However, sentence of payment of fine not disturbed — CrPC, 1973, S. 320

It cannot be gainsaid that an offence punishable under Section 307 IPC is not a compoundable offence. Section 320 CrPC expressly states that no offence shall be compounded if it is not compoundable under CrPC. At the same time, however, while dealing with such matters, the Supreme Court may take into account a relevant and important consideration about compromise between the parties for the purpose of reduction of sentence. (Para 12)

It would not be appropriate to order compounding of an offence not compoundable under CrPC, ignoring and keeping aside statutory provisions. However, limited submission of the appellant deserves consideration that while imposing substantive sentence, the factum of compromise between the parties is indeed a relevant circumstance which the Court may keep in mind. (Para 14)

In the instant case, the incident took place before more than fifteen years; the parties are residing in one and the same village and they are also relatives. The appellant was about 20 years of age at the time of commission of crime. It was his first offence. After conviction, the petitioner was taken into custody. During the pendency of appeal before the High Court, he was enlarged on bail but, after the decision of the High Court, he again surrendered. Though he had applied for bail, the prayer was not granted and he was not released on bail. Considering the totality of facts and circumstances, ends of justice would be met if the sentence of imprisonment awarded to the appellant is reduced to the period already undergone. (Para 15). Ishwar Singh v. State of M.P., (2008) 15 SCC 667: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1153: AIR 2009 SC 675: (2008) 72 AIC 140 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-10-2008]

Jetha Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (2006) 9 SCC 255: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 561; Murugesan v. Ganapathy Velar, (2001) 10 SCC 504: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1032; Ishwarlal v. State of M.P., (2008) 15 SCC 671, relied on

[Ed.: See also in this regard (2008) 1 SCC 184: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 161; (1995) 5 SCC 238: 1999 SCC (Cri) 998.]

[8284] — S. 307 — Conviction under — Sentence of ten years' RI — Reduction of — Though injuries inflicted on victim were of serious nature, considering the background facts and peculiar features of the case, held, five years' RI would meet the ends of justice. Bappa v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 6 SCC 485: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1794: AIR 2004 SC 4119.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2004]

[8285] — S. 307 — Imposition of sentence under — Two situations under explained: (1) where act of accused is done with intention to kill or knowledge that death will ensue, and (2) where such act causes hurt to any person — In (1) term of imprisonment (RI or SI) may extend to 10 years, and in (2) may extend to 10 years or life imprisonment

Section 307 deals with two situations so far as the sentence is concerned. Firstly, whoever does any act with such intention or knowledge, and under such circumstances that, if he by that act caused death, he would be guilty of murder, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine; and secondly if hurt is caused to any person by such act the offender shall be liable either to imprisonment for life or to such punishment as indicated in the first part i.e. 10 years. (Paras 17, 3 and 2). State of M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1329: 2005 Cri LJ 3435.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-7-2005]

[8286] — S. 307 — Sentence — Enhancement of — Cross-firing between two groups — Trial Court convicting respondent under S. 307 and sentencing him to 5 years' RI and fine of Rs 500 — High Court while upholding the conviction, reducing the sentence of imprisonment to the period of 3½ years already undergone — Held, once High Court held respondent guilty of offence under S. 307, it should not have interfered with the sentence of imprisonment — However, the sentence of imprisonment as reduced by High Court need not be interfered with in the circumstances of the case; instead the sentence of fine be enhanced to Rs 25,000 which would be payable to LRs of the victim. Kulwant Singh v. Amarjit Singh, (2000) 3 SCC 290: 2000 SCC (Cri) 627: AIR 2000 SC 1212: 2000 Cri LJ 1722.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Saghir Ahmad and D.P. Wadhwa, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-3-2000]

[8287] — S. 307 — Sentence — Plea for reduction of in view of considerable delay and the accused having married and settled, in view of the grave injuries disallowed. Chinnadurai v. State of T.N., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 686: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1147: AIR 1996 SC 546.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1995]

[8288] — S. 307 — Sentence — Proportionality — Occurrence taking place two decades back — High Court by impugned judgment while upholding conviction under S. 307, reducing sentence to period already undergone which was about 1 year and three months from sentence of ten years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs 1000 with default stipulation as imposed by trial court, observing that accused at time of commission of offence was aged about 20 years and an uneducated labourer coming from rural area — Held, long passage of time per se is not a ground for reduction in sentence — High Court was not justified in reducing sentence to period already undergone — Respondent-accused sentenced to custodial sentence of three years subject to such remissions as may be available in law and to pay a fine of Rs 10,000 to be paid to victim (Paras 12 to 15). State of M.P. v. Kedar Yadav, (2009) 17 SCC 280.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-11-2006]

Sevaka Perumal v. State of T.N., (1991) 3 SCC 471: 1991 SCC (Cri) 724; Dennis Councle McGautha v. State of California, 28 L Ed 2d 711: 402 US 183 (1970), considered and relied on [8289] — S. 307 — Sentence — Reduction — Altercations between both parties (accused and complainant) taking place at the time of husking paddy — No premeditation or planning of attack — Hence, sentence of imprisonment for life reduced to five years (Para 17). Hari Mohan Mandal v. State of Jharkhand, (2004) 12 SCC 220: AIR 2004 SC 3687: 2004 Cri LJ 3112.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-3-2004]

[8290] — S. 307 — Sentence — Reduction of — Substantive sentence of 3 years' RI and fine imposed by trial court reduced to period of 3 months of imprisonment already undergone by enhancing fine by High Court — Held on facts, reduction of sentence not justified

The record of no previous conviction is of little relevance in reducing the sentence when the conviction is for an offence punishable with imprisonment for life, except for an offence under S. 303, IPC which has been held to be unconstitutional. Therefore, the necessary inference is that the accused assaulted the victims with malice forethought. The fact that no previous conviction was recorded against the appellants is inconsequential.

It is not possible to accept that the occurrence took place suddenly as an assault at night is not ordinarily to be expected unless it is pre-planned. The appellants wielded guns and fired as many as four shots. Looking at all these circumstances it cannot be said that the occurrence took place all of a sudden.

Further, acquittal of some co-accused cannot have any relevance to the question of sentence awarded to the appellants who were convicted.

It is not possible to accept the contention that no useful purpose will be served by sending the appellants to prison again to undergo the unexpired period of their sentence. If someone is enlarged on bail during the pendency of appeal and when the appeal is dismissed sending him back to jail is going to raise qualms of conscience in the Judge, granting of bail pending appeal would be counter-productive.

The appellants also do not deserve the benefit of S. 360 Criminal Procedure Code.

Since the offence under S. 307, Indian Penal Code is punishable with imprisonment for life, the sentence awarded by the High Court i.e. the sentence of three months undergone by the appellants makes a mockery of justice. Enhancement of fine and compensation to the injured would not justify such a sentence. Sadha Singh v. State of Punjab, (1985) 3 SCC 225: 1985 SCC (Cri) 359: AIR 1985 SC 1130: 1985 Cri LJ 1361.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: D.A. Desai, V. Balakrishna Eradi and V. Khalid, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1985]

[8291] — S. 307 — Sentence of 10 years' RI — Imposition of, by High Court — If on facts was harsh — Victim, a colleague and relative of accused police officer — Offence committed over a petty family matter — Considering that a guardian of law took the law into his own hands and fired shot at a public place (guardroom in District Police Headquarters), held, severe punishment required to be imposed — In view of the peculiar circumstances and facts, held, custodial sentence of 5 years would have chastening and deterrent effect on the accused — Sentence reduced accordingly (Para 15). Vasant Vithu Jadhav v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 9 SCC 31: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1323: 2004 Cri LJ 1786.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-2004]

[8292] — S. 307 — Sentence of one year's RI — Mitigating circumstances — Accused-appellant, a member of BSF, firing a shot from his rifle injuring the leg of a fellow member — Accused otherwise friendly with the victim and incident occurring at the spur of the moment pursuant to a quarrel between them in intoxicated state — Accused stated to have participated in India-China War in 1962 and Indo-Pakistan War in 1971 and to be having a good service record — Accused already suffered detention for about one year as undertrial and also suffered imprisonment in execution of the sentence for about 6 months — In the circumstances held, justice would be met if his sentence reduced to the period already undergone. Union of India v. Anand Singh Bisht, (1996) 10 SCC 153: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1198: AIR 1997 SC 361.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1996]

[8293] — S. 307 — Sentence to be imposed under — Adequacy of — Trial court awarding sentence of five years' RI — High Court, while upholding conviction reducing sentence to period already undergone of about two-and-a-half months — Sustainability — Held, said sentence is wholly inadequate looking to nature of the offence — High Court has not assigned any satisfactory reason for reducing sentence — Matter remanded for decision afresh. State of M.P. v. Ram Kumar, (2009) 17 SCC 372: AIR 2006 SC 643: (2005) 35 AIC 61 (SC).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-10-2005]

[8294] — S. 307 — Sentence under — Quantum of — Punishment — Right of private defence — When not available — Persons coming prepared for a fight armed with deadly weapons (guns and gandasa in this case) and then attacking an unarmed victim held, cannot claim right of private defence on being hit back by the victim or his associates — Where one of the armed assailants unsuccessfully fired at the victim and another of them injured the victim by gandasa and brickbatting and when the associate of the victim retaliated by brickbatting, one of the assailants fired at his arm and the shot ran across his arm, held, the accused persons could not be said to have acted in self-defence — However, taking into account the brickbatting by both the parties causing injuries to each other, 4 years' RI for the offence under S. 307 imposed by the trial court reduced to two years' RI — Penal Code, 1860, Ss. 96, 97, 102 and 307

Looking to the sequence of events, the trial court was justified in holding that the appellant did not act in the exercise of the right of private defence. Indeed a person has a right of repelling an attack by use of such force as is necessary but he does not have the right to come prepared for a fight and then after attacking an unarmed victim claim the right of private defence on being hit back by the victim or his associates. The right of private defence is not available in such circumstances. From the facts and circumstances, as are established on the record, the appellant did not act in the exercise of the right of self-defence. He was the aggressor and had received the injury by the brickbat after he had fired at the deceased and was in the forces of firing at another person. Baj Singh v. State of Punjab, (1996) 11 SCC 373: 1997 SCC (Cri) 184: AIR 1995 SC 1953.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-2-1995]

[8295] — Ss. 307 and 309 — Accused sentenced to 3 months' imprisonment for offence under S. 307 while released on admonition for offence under S. 309 — In absence of any valid reason for such distinction, accused must be released on admonition for offence under S. 307 also. Radharani v. State of M.P., 1981 Supp SCC 84: 1982 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 1981 SC 1776 (2): 1981 Cri LJ 1705(2).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and E.S. Venkataramiah, J. [Date of decision: 14-8-1981]

[8296] — Ss. 307 or 324 and 34 — Compounding of offence from S. 307 to one under Ss. 324/34 IPC or release on probation of good conduct — Counsel contending that parties being close relatives compromising offence under S. 307 IPC — But complainant not having been identified in court but claming to be so and willing to compound — Effect — Instead of compounding the offence, release of offender on terms to be settled by trial court, held, would be proper — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4 — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Gaya Prasad v. State of M.P., (2009) 17 SCC 757.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-11-2009]

[8297] — Ss. 307, 324 and 114 — Reduction of sentence to period already undergone, by High Court — Propriety — Relevant aspects — Non-consideration of — Offences under Ss. 307, 324 and 114 — Accused also involved in nine other cases — During pendency of trial, bail granted to one of the accused was cancelled for breach of conditions imposed by the court for grant of bail — These aspects not considered by High Court while reducing sentence — High Court proceeded on factually erroneous premises without keeping in view the correct principles relating to punishment — In view of the above, held, High Court's judgment not sustainable — Matter remitted to High Court for a fresh hearing on question of sentence — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 28 and 29 (Paras 14 and 15). Shailesh Jasvantbhai v. State of Gujarat, (2006) 2 SCC 359: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 499: (2006) 2 Guj LR 1428: 2006 Cri LJ 1132.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-1-2006]

[8298] — Ss. 307, 325 & 326 r/w Ss. 149 and 148 — Attempt to murder by causing grievous injury — Appropriate conviction and sentence — Gruesome nature of offence sufficient to cause death — Chopping off of leg of victim — Reduction of sentence — Sustainability of — Trial court convicted accused under S. 307 r/w Ss. 149, 148 IPC and imposed rigorous imprisonment of five years with fine and another 6 months for two other offences — High Court altered the conviction to S. 326 holding that chopping off leg from the body cannot be treated as sufficient to cause death and reduced sentence to period already undergone by the accused (ranging from less than four months to two years four months for the various accused persons) — With dismay, held, High Court completely overlooked evidence on record, and the judgment indicates total non-application of mind — Doctor, PW 1, categorically stated that the injury could cause death — PW 14, radiologist clearly stated that the injury was grievous in nature — The victim's evidence vividly showed the gruesome nature of the attack on him and intention of the accused to kill him — Held, logic of High Court to hold that on mere testimony of doctor it could not be assumed that injury was sufficient to cause death, is strange — Further held, High Court's uniform reduction of punishment to the period already undergone was also strange, since there was no similarity of period of sentence suffered by the accused which ranges from as less as 4 months to 2 years 4 months — High Court's judgment set aside as unsustainable restoring trial court's judgment — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 45 (Paras 10, 11 and 14 to 16). State of M.P. v. Kashiram, (2009) 4 SCC 26: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 40: AIR 2009 SC 1642: (2009) 75 AIC 22 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 1530.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-2-2009]

State of M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1329, followed [8299] — Ss. 307 and 326 r/w S. 34 — Prayer for enhancement of sentence — Maintainability — Object of criminal law, need for imposition of appropriate sentence and duty and role of courts in this regard, effect of awarding inadequate sentence on justice system and society, extent of adherence to principle of proportionality while determination of sentence in practice, requirement of balancing aggravating and mitigating factors and circumstances in which crime was committed and relevant factors to be taken into account while determining proper sentence, restated — High Court, while upholding conviction of respondent-accused under Ss. 307 and 326 r/w S. 34 IPC, reduced the sentence from 10 years to 7 years in respect of offence under S. 307 — Challenge to — Appellant complainant contending that victims were mercilessly beaten and large number of injuries were caused to them — That, sentence was reduced without indicating any basis — Tenability — Held, injuries, so far as injured R was concerned, were definitely of very serious nature — High Court did not indicate any reason for reducing sentence from 10 years to 7 years in respect of offence under S. 307 — Injuries on R were attributed to respondent-accused Ra — Therefore, so far as accused Ra was concerned, sentence enhanced from 7 years to 10 years in respect of offence under S. 307 — Regarding other co-accused persons, though no reasons were indicated, considering nature of injuries caused by them, sentence as imposed by High Court does not appear to be on lower side (Paras 6 to 9). Sahdev v. Jaibar, (2009) 11 SCC 798: (2009) 1 APLJ 206 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-2-2009]

State of M.P. v. Ghanshyam Singh, (2003) 8 SCC 13: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1935, relied on

[8300] — Ss. 307 and 330 — Appropriate sentence under — Gravity of offences under — Trial court imposing sentences of 5 and 4 years' RI under Ss. 307 and 330 respectively — High Court's reduction of said sentences to period already undergone (six months and 23 days) on grounds that appellants were illiterate persons belonging to lower income group and were only 23 years old at the time of commission of the offence, held, not proper — Anguish expressed at High Court's casual and mechanical manner of disposal of question of sentence, without application of mind, oblivious to consequences of awarding inappropriate sentences — However, matter not disposed of finally and remitted to High Court instead, since it had not considered certain other alleged mitigating factors put forward by the respondents — Constitution of India — Art. 136

The court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which the criminal and victim belong. The punishment to be awarded for a crime must not be irrelevant but it should conform to and be consistent with the atrocity and brutality with which the crime has been perpetrated, the enormity of the crime warranting public abhorrence and it should "respond to the society's cry for justice against the criminal". (Para 10)

This is another sad example where a learned Single Judge, Madhya Pradesh High Court, totally oblivious of the consequences has passed an order directing reduction of the custodial sentence to the period already undergone. We have come across a large number of such cases which have been disposed of in very casual and mechanical manner with no trace of application of mind regarding the question of sentence. Unfortunately, the High Court has not kept these features in view in reducing sentences of five and four years' RI respectively, imposed by trial court, to period of custody undergone of merely six months and twenty three days. The High Court found that the accused persons are illiterate persons belonging to lower-income group and on consideration of the fact that at the time of commission of offence they were of 23 years of age, reduced the sentence of imprisonment to the period already undergone. (Paras 17, 3 and 2)

The matter is remitted to the High Court to hear the matter only relating to sentence. Normally, in view of the established law on the subject the matter would have been finally disposed of, but the accused submitted that the High Court has not noted several other mitigating factors which were placed for consideration and granted relief on only some of the grounds. The High Court shall consider factors to be placed for consideration and decide the question of sentence keeping in view the principles indicated above. (Para 18). State of M.P. v. Saleem, (2005) 5 SCC 554: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1329: 2005 Cri LJ 3435.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-7-2005]

[8301] — Ss. 307 and 341 — Sentence to be imposed under — Adequacy of — Trial court awarding sentence of seven years' RI — High Court, while upholding conviction reducing sentence to period already undergone of about five months — Sustainability — Held, said sentence is wholly inadequate looking to nature of the offence — High Court has not assigned any satisfactory reason for reducing sentence to about five months — Matter remanded for decision afresh. State of M.P. v. Badri, (2009) 17 SCC 367: AIR 2006 SC 571: (2005) 36 AIC 357 (SC).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-10-2005]

[8302] — Ss. 307 and 452 — Sentence — Single injury dangerous to life caused to the victim — Considering young age of the accused (below 17 years) at the time of commission of the offence, circumstances in which offence committed and harm caused to the victim, sentence reduced to the period already undergone (one year and nine months) by the accused. Munna v. State of Rajasthan, (1982) 3 SCC 380: 1983 SCC (Cri) 55: AIR 1982 SC 1465: 1982 Cri LJ 1945.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and V. Balakrishna Eradi, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1982]

[8303] — S. 307 r/w S. 34 — Joint petition of compromise — Filing of, in a non-compoundable offence i.e. offence under S. 307 — Relief — Held, compromise cannot be recorded in such a case — But, while awarding sentence the effect of compromise can be taken into consideration — Thus, on facts, sentence of imprisonment reduced by High Court to six years was further reduced to period already undergone i.e. about 14 months — CrPC, 1973, S. 320 (Para 4). Badrilal v. State of M.P., (2005) 7 SCC 55: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1597.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-7-2005]

Distinguished in Dhananjay v. State of Bihar, (2007) 14 SCC 768

[8304] — S. 307 r/w S. 34 — Sentence — Conviction under, on charge of firing of gunshots on tenant's refusal to vacate the premises upheld — But in view of the trigger-happy tendency of the accused persons, their plea for remission of substantive sentence of 3 years' RI disallowed — But having regard to the totality of the circumstances including accused's old age, their act in the heat of the moment and their being on bail for the last 10 years accused directed to undergo 1½ years' RI and to pay Rs 2500 i.e. Rs 5000 in all to the victims by way of compensation. Rajendra Prasad v. State of Bihar, (1987) 1 SCC 64: 1987 SCC (Cri) 31: AIR 1987 SC 1335: 1987 Cri LJ 1069.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-9-1986]

[8305] — S. 307 r/w S. 34 — Sentence — Having regard to peculiar circumstances of the case, 20 years' age of the accused-appellant 2 at the time of occurrence and lapse of 12 years, sentence reduced to the period already undergone. Mohinder Singh v. State of Punjab, 1987 Supp SCC 65: 1987 SCC (Cri) 631.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and M.M. Dutt, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-1-1987]

[8306] — S. 307 r/w S. 34 — Sentence to be imposed under — Adequacy of — Trial court awarding sentence of seven years' RI — High Court, while upholding conviction reducing sentence to period already undergone of ten months and five days — Sustainability — Held, said sentence is wholly inadequate looking to nature of the offence — High Court has not assigned any satisfactory reason for reducing sentence to less than one year — Matter remanded for decision afresh. State of M.P. v. Sangram, (2009) 17 SCC 370: AIR 2006 SC 48: 2005 Cri LJ 4642: (2005) 36 AIC 443 (SC).

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.C. Lahoti, C.J. and G.P. Mathur and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-10-2005]

[8307] — S. 307 r/w S. 149 — Sentence — Accused striking the victim with a bhala in stomach — High Court by a curious process of reasoning reducing sentence of ten years' R.I. to period already undergone with fine of Rs 500 — Sentence passed by High Court set aside and case sent back to High Court with direction to impose appropriate sentence commensurate with seriousness of offence after hearing the parties. Hirdai Singh v. State of Bihar, 1990 Supp SCC 636.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and L.M. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-4-1988]

[8308] — Ss. 307/34 — First appellant firing at the victim while the second appellant firing at a police constable but missing the shot — Conviction under, upheld — But in the peculiar circumstances of the case and especially having regard to the nature of injury received by the victim, sentence reduced from 10 years' RI to 5 years' RI in case of the first appellant and from 7 years' RI to 4 years' RI in case of the second appellant — Appellants would be entitled to the benefit of S. 428, Criminal Procedure Code. Prabhu Rashu Machhi v. State of Gujarat, 1980 Supp SCC 11: 1980 SCC (Cri) 439: AIR 1980 SC 1758.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-1980]

[8309] — Ss. 307/34 and 387/511 — Quantum of sentence — In the peculiar circumstances of the case, sentence of 10 years' RI under Ss. 307/34 and 5 years' RI under Ss. 387/511, held, excessive — Reduced to 4 years' under both charges and directed to run concurrently

On receiving an information that some persons were demanding ransom by writing threatening letters and were operating in the area of a particular Gurdwara, Constable M was sent to the Gurdwara while uniformed police remained at some distance. Three Sikh youths came from the Gurdwara and demanded money from M. Two of them were nabbed while the third one fired at, and injured, M and thereafter he absconded. Upon a search of the persons of the other two accused, a photocopy of the poster (letter) was recovered from the right pocket of the pants of one and a photocopy of another poster (letter) was recovered from the other. The said two persons, appellants herein, were tried and convicted and sentenced under Section 3(1) of TADA. They were also convicted and sentenced to 10 years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs 500 each under Sections 307/34 IPC and five years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs 200 each under Sections 387/511 IPC. The charge under Section 3(1) stated that the accused committed extortion from the public and attempted to commit extortion from M. Setting aside the conviction under TADA and on evidence upholding the conviction under other provisions but reducing the sentence thereunder,

Held :

The injury received by M has been ascribed to the absconding accused. The complicity of the appellants has been brought in only with the aid of Section 34 IPC insofar as the offence under Section 307 IPC is concerned. Similarly, they are only alleged to have attempted to commit the offence under Section 387 IPC. Hence, the sentence of 10 years' rigorous imprisonment for the offence under Sections 307/34 IPC and 5 years' RI for the offence under Sections 387/511 IPC appears to be excessive. While maintaining the conviction of the appellants for the offence under Sections 307/34 IPC the period of imprisonment is, therefore, being reduced to four years' rigorous imprisonment while maintaining the sentence of fine and the imprisonment in default thereof. So far as the offence under Sections 387/511 IPC is concerned, the substantive sentence is being reduced to four years' rigorous imprisonment while maintaining the sentence of fine and the imprisonment in default thereof. Both the substantive sentences are, however, directed to run concurrently. Gurdev Singh v. State of Punjab, 1998 SCC (Cri) 560.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1995]

[8310] — Ss. 307/149 — Sentence — Clash between two groups — Assailants who had not received injuries escaping punishment and conviction clamped down on those who sustained injuries in course of clash — Case pending for 10 years and accused in jail for some time — Held, ends of justice would be met by reducing the sentence. Khem Karan v. State of U.P., (1974) 4 SCC 603: 1974 SCC (Cri) 639: AIR 1974 SC 1567: (1974) 3 SCR 863: 1974 Cri LJ 1033: (1974) 2 ACC 307.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.H. Beg, Y.V. Chandrachud and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-1974]

— S. 308 See also Ss. 299 and 304, 308

See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

See also Ss. 376, 366, 363 and 308

[8311] — S. 308 — Appellants' conviction under S. 308 maintained but sentence reduced to the period already undergone adding it with a fine of Rs 12,500 each — Out of the fine two sums of Rs 10,000 to be paid over to complainant as compensation and the remaining amount to go to the State coffers. Abrar Ali v. State of U.P., 1992 Supp (2) SCC 163: 1992 SCC (Cri) 666.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-12-1991]

[8312] — Ss. 308, 320 Seventhly and 324 — Reduction of sentence — When not warranted — Accused causing dislocation of bone by hitting on PW 3's head with a lathi due to past enmity — Medical evidence and statement of witnesses corroborating injury and intention of crime — Conviction under S. 308 and sentence of two years' RI, held, justified

The accused was aggrieved with PW 1 as PW 1 had lodged a complaint against the accused and others that they had reaped hay from his fields. Therefore, the accused attacked PW 3 (son of PW 1) with a lathi and injured his head.

Dismissing the appeal of the accused,

Held :

There is no ground for reduction of sentence as claimed by the appellant. There is proof regarding enmity, intention and grievous hurt. The trial court as well as the High Court, taking note of the enmity and intention of the accused and the nature of injuries, evidence of both oral and documentary and medical evidence, concluded and awarded punishment under Section 308 IPC. The prosecution has established its case beyond doubt that the accused hit on the head of PW 3 with a lathi and injured him. It is established and proved from the statement of the injured PW 3 and his wife PW 2. Therefore, award of two years' rigorous imprisonment is quite reasonable and acceptable. (Paras 21, 20, 17 and 11)

In view of strong medical evidence the injuries sustained by the injured PW 3 comes under clause "Seventhly" of Section 320 IPC i.e. fracture or dislocation of a bone. It is clear from the medical report evidence of doctor PW 5 that injury was inflicted on the left side of the head i.e. 7 cm above the left eyebrow. There was a fracture of the left parietal bone. Voluntarily causing hurt by dangerous weapons or means has been explained in Section 324 and punishment for voluntarily causing grievous hurt is with imprisonment which may extend to seven years and shall also be liable to fine. (Paras 19, 18 and 20). Jameel v. State of U.P., (2010) 12 SCC 532: 2010 Cri LJ 2106: (2010) 1 CTC 448 (SC): (2010) 1 ECrN 618 (SC): (2009) 84 AIC 86 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Sathasivam and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-2009]

Gurmukh Singh v. State of Haryana, (2009) 15 SCC 635: (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 711, relied on [8313] — Ss. 308 and 323 — Anticipatory bail — Grant of — Considering that offence was under Ss. 308 and 323 IPC and the accused was a student, held on facts, accused should be enlarged on anticipatory bail — CrPC, 1973, S. 438 (Para 3). Harpreet Singh v. Govt. (NCT of Delhi), (2005) 11 SCC 551.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-4-2005]

[8314] — Ss. 308/34 and 323/34 — Conviction under Ss. 308/34 by High Court, on facts held, proper. Jai Ram v. State of U.P., (1976) 2 SCC 191: 1976 SCC (Cri) 246: AIR 1976 SC 1005: 1976 Cri LJ 725.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, V.R. Krishna Iyer and A.C. Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-2-1976]

[8315] — Ss. 308/34, 323/34, 324, 325 and 326 — Attempt to commit culpable homicide not amounting to murder — What amounts to — Whether injury caused to the victim was grievous or simple not decisive — Attempt need not result in hurt — In the circumstances and facts of the case the High Court erred in bringing down the offence to be under Ss. 323/34 and then quashing the proceedings on ground that the offence was investigated without permission of the magistrate

Offence punishable under Section 308 IPC postulates doing of an act with such intention or knowledge and under such circumstances that if one by that act caused death, he would be guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. An attempt of that nature may actually result in hurt or may not. It is the attempt to commit culpable homicide which is punishable under Section 308 IPC whereas punishment for simple hurts can be meted out under Sections 323 and 324 and for grievous hurts under Sections 325 and 326 IPC. Qualitatively, these offences are different. The High Court thus was not well advised to bring down the offence to be under Sections 323/34 IPC and then in turn to hold that since that offence was investigated by the police without permission of the magistrate, the proceedings under that provision be quashed. Thus, the entire order of the High Court deserves to be and is hereby quashed. Sunil Kumar v. NCT of Delhi, (1998) 8 SCC 557: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1522.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-12-1997]

[8316] — Ss. 308/149 — Attempt to commit culpable homicide — Ingredients of — Proof, to sustain conviction — Six accused alleged to have assaulted the informant with lathis with intention to kill him and taken Rs 400 from his pocket, because of enmity — FIR also stating that all the six accused had earlier threatened to kill him, and also burnt his hut — Offences recorded under Ss. 147 & 323 IPC, but charge-sheet filed under S. 308 — Trial court solely relying upon the allegations made in FIR and testimonies of eyewitnesses to convict accused under Ss. 308/149 — Appeal filed thereagainst dismissed by High Court — Held, before an accused can be held guilty under S. 308 IPC finding that the ingredients thereof, namely, requisite intention or knowledge was existing need to be established — In the instant case, although overt act had been attributed against each of the accused who were having lathis, only seven injuries had been caused and out of them only one of them was grievous, being a fracture of the arm, which was not on the vital part of the body — Hence, conviction under S. 308 unsustainable — Accused therefore convicted under Ss. 323 and 325 (Paras 7 to 12). Bishan Singh v. State, (2007) 13 SCC 65: AIR 2008 SC 131: (2007) 6 All LJ 656: (2007) 59 AIC 270 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-2007]

[8317] — Ss. 308/149 and 324/149 — Revisional power — Proper mode of exercise of, by High Court — Revision preferred by private complainant (State or accused not preferring appeal) — Scope of interference — Sessions Court convicting appellants under Ss. 324/149 IPC and directing their release on probation of good conduct — High Court in revision after reappreciation of evidence holding that appellants not guilty under Ss. 324/149 IPC but under Ss. 308/149 IPC and directing Sessions Court to pass order of conviction accordingly — Legality — Held, High Court exercised its revisional jurisdiction illegally — When the said jurisdiction was invoked by a private complainant High Court should not have exercised it lightly — High Court should have considered that: (1) S. 401(3) CrPC prohibits conversion of a finding of acquittal into one of conviction, (2) that in such cases retrial or rehearing of the appeal might be ordered, and (3) that it could not have directed acquittal in respect of conviction under Ss. 324/149 IPC when the accused had not preferred an appeal — Judgment of Sessions Court restored — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 401 and 360

The Sessions Court held that the appellant-accused were guilty of offences under Sections 324/149 IPC and released the appellants on probation of good conduct. However, the High Court while entertaining a private complainant's appeal (State not having preferred appeal) directed conviction of the appellants under Section 308 and acquittal of the appellants under Section 324 IPC.

Allowing the appeal of the accused persons,

Held :

On the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the High Court exercised revisional jurisdiction with material illegality and irregularity resulting into miscarriage of justice to the appellants. The revisional jurisdiction under Section 401 CrPC, when invoked by a private complainant against an order of acquittal, cannot be exercised lightly and that it can be exercised only in exceptional cases where the interest of public justice requires interference for correction of manifest illegality or the prevention of gross miscarriage of justice. In these cases, or cases of similar nature, retrial or rehearing of the appeal may be ordered. Section 401(3) CrPC prohibits conversion of a finding of acquittal into one of conviction. (Paras 17, 13, 12 and 16)

After discussing the medical evidence and evidence of the injured witness in great detail the High Court prima facie came to the conclusion that a case under Section 308 IPC is made out against the appellants. Such a conclusion could have been recorded only in a properly constituted appeal, filed by the State Government. The High Court further concluded that no offence punishable under Section 324 IPC is committed by the appellants. This finding could have been recorded only in an appeal filed by the appellants. (Paras 14 and 15)

In the face of prohibition contained in Section 401(3) CrPC, it was all the more incumbent upon the High Court to see that it does not convert the finding of acquittal into one of conviction by the indirect method. On remand the trial court was left with no judicial discretion but to convict the appellants under Section 308 read with Section 149 IPC and impose punishment on them as directed by the High Court in exercise of its power of revision under Section 401 CrPC. After recording guilt of an accused under a particular provision of IPC, the matter could not have been remitted to the Sessions Court for passing an appropriate order of conviction and punishment. (Paras 15 and 16)

The earlier judgment of the Sessions Judge is restored. (Para 19). Sheetala Prasad v. Sri Kant, (2010) 2 SCC 190.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.V. Raveendran and J.M. Panchal, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-2009]

— S. 309 See also Ss. 84, 302 and 309
See also Ss. 300 Exception 5, 302 and 309
See also Ss. 302, 304, 306 and 309
See also Ss. 302, 306 and 309
See also Ss. 302 and 309
See also Ss. 302, 316 and 309
See also Ss. 302, 392 and 309
See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326
See also Ss. 304 Pt. II and 309
See also Ss. 306 and 309
See also Ss. 307 and 309

[8318] — S. 309 — Attempt to commit suicide — Fast unto death — Allegation in FIR that the petitioner undertook a fast unto death — Constitutionality of the provision having been upheld in Gian Kaur case challenge to the registration of FIR not maintainable. Banwarilal Sharma (Dr.) v. State of U.P., (1998) 3 SCC 604: 1998 SCC (Cri) 885.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and S.S.M. Quadri, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-12-1997]

Gian Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1996) 2 SCC 648: 1996 SCC (Cri) 374, followed

[8319] — S. 309 — Attempt to commit suicide — Proof — Offence not only proved but also admitted by the accused that he tried to bite a cyanide capsule when police tried to take him into custody — Acquittal set aside. State of T.N. v. Sivarasan, (1997) 1 SCC 682: 1997 SCC (Cri) 362.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.T. Nanavati, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-10-1996]

Gian Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1996) 2 SCC 648: 1996 SCC (Cri) 374, followed

[8320] — S. 309 — Attempt to commit suicide — Sentence — Accused, a police constable, found to be mentally disbalanced due to an accident — Occurrence taking place more than 11 years ago — Held, in the circumstances of the case, even if the prosecution case is proved beyond reasonable doubt the accused deserves a very lenient sentence of nominal fine — In order to do complete justice criminal case against the accused quashed — Constitution of India, Art. 136

Considering the serious ailments which the respondent was suffering from, it appears to us that it will not be desirable to proceed further with the trial of the said criminal case initiated against the accused for the alleged offence to commit suicide after such a long lapse of time. In the facts of the case, even if he is found guilty after the completion of trial, the respondent deserves to be treated very sympathetically in the matter of awarding punishment for the said offence alleged against him. In the special facts of the case, the respondent does not deserve to be subjected to trial for the aforesaid offence after such a distant time when even if the prosecution case is proved beyond reasonable doubt, the accused deserves a very lenient sentence of nominal fine. In order to do complete justice, in the facts of the case, the Court directed quashing of the said criminal case against the respondent. State of Maharashtra v. Maruti Shripati Dubal, (1996) 6 SCC 42: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1116: AIR 1997 SC 411.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.B. Pattanaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-8-1996]

[8321] — S. 309 — Attempt to commit suicide — Whether ought to be decriminalised — Held, though S. 309 has been declared constitutionally valid, yet time has come that it should be deleted by Parliament because provision has become anachronistic — A person attempts suicide in depression and hence needs help, rather than punishment (Para 103). Aruna Ramachandra Shanbaug v. Union of India, (2011) 4 SCC 454.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-3-2011]

[8322] — S. 309 — Decision of the High Court declaring S. 309 to be ultra vires Arts. 14 and 21 of the Constitution expressly overruled by a Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court upholding the vires of the section — Decision of the High Court therefore set aside. State of Maharashtra v. Maruti Shripati Dubal, (1996) 6 SCC 42: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1116: AIR 1997 SC 411.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.B. Pattanaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-8-1996]

Maruti Shripati Dubal v. State of Maharashtra, 1986 Mah LJ 913: 1987 Cri LJ 743: (1986) 3 Crimes 517, reversed

Gian Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1996) 2 SCC 648: 1996 SCC (Cri) 374, followed

[8323] — S. 309 — Drowning — Suicide by drowning — Stomach not filled with water nor bloated and no froth coming out of the mouth — Held, suicide by drowning ruled out on the facts of the case. Kodali Purnachandra Rao v. Public Prosecutor, (1975) 2 SCC 570: 1975 SCC (Cri) 678: AIR 1975 SC 1925: 1975 Cri LJ 1671.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-1975]

[8324] — S. 309 — Held, not violative of Art. 14 on grounds of attempt to suicide being undefined and unguided and of treating all attempts to commit suicide by the same measure

Challenge to S. 309 IPC on ground of being violative of Art. 14 is not sustainable. The submission that want of plausible definition of attempt to suicide and even guidelines in that regard rendered S. 309 IPC arbitrary and violative of Art. 14 is not sound, for, whatever differences there may be as to what constitutes suicide, there is no doubt that suicide is intentional taking of one's life. Further, on a prosecution being launched it is always open to an accused to take the plea that his act did not constitute suicide whereupon the court would decide this aspect also. Section 309 cannot also be held to be violative of Art. 14 on ground that it treats different attempts to commit suicide by the same measure without referring to the circumstances in which attempts are made. The nature, gravity and extent of attempt may be taken care of by tailoring the sentence appropriately. Section 309 has only provided the maximum sentence which is up to one year. It provides for imposition of fine only as a punishment. In certain cases even Probation of Offenders Act can be pressed into service, whose S. 12 enables the court to ensure that no stigma or disqualification is attached to such a person. P. Rathinam v. Union of India, (1994) 3 SCC 394: 1994 SCC (Cri) 740: AIR 1994 SC 1844: 1994 Cri LJ 1605.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Sahai and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1994]

[8325] — S. 309 — Medical evidence — Homicide or suicide — Fact that the body with a ligature mark around the neck was found on the cot and not hanging completely demolishes the theory of suicide — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 45. Ram Kumar Madhusudan Pathak v. State of Gujarat, (1998) 7 SCC 702: AIR 1998 SC 2732.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and D.P. Wadhwa, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-8-1998]

[8326] — S. 309 — Punishment for attempt to commit suicide — Held, not violative of Art. 21 as right guaranteed under Art. 21 does not comprehend right to die — Nor is it violative of Art. 14 on ground of being barbaric and arbitrary as S. 309 confers a wide discretion in the matter of sentencing without prescribing any minimum punishment and without making sentence of imprisonment compulsory — Accordingly, Supreme Court's earlier decision in P. Rathinam v. Union of India overruled

There is no ground to hold that Section 309 IPC is constitutionally invalid. The contrary view taken in P. Rathinam on the basis of the construction made of Article 21 to include therein the "right to die" cannot be accepted to be correct. That decision cannot be supported even on the basis of Article 14. It follows that Section 309 IPC is not to be treated as unconstitutional for any reason. Gian Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1996) 2 SCC 648: 1996 SCC (Cri) 374: AIR 1996 SC 946.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: J.S. Verma, G.N. Ray, N.P. Singh, Faizan Uddin and G.T. Nanavati, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-3-1996]

P. Rathinam v. Union of India, (1994) 3 SCC 394: 1994 SCC (Cri) 740; Maruti Shripati Dubal v. State of Maharashtra, 1987 Cri LJ 743: (1986) 3 Crimes 517: 1986 Mah LJ 913, overruled

Chenna Jagadeeswar v. State of A.P., 1988 Cri LJ 549: (1988) 1 Crimes 357: (1987) 2 Andh LT 263; Naresh Marotrao Sakhre v. Union of India, 1995 Cri LJ 96 (Bom), approved

[8327] — S. 309 — Punishment for attempt to commit suicide — Held, provision void being violative of Art. 21 — It is a cruel and irrational provision as it provides punishment again to the person who is already afflicted and needs psychiatric counselling and caused no harm to others — Attempt to commit suicide not against morality, religion, society or public policy of preservation of human life and apprehension that invalidating S. 309 would affect monopolistic power of State to take life and would permit 'constitutional cannibalism' unfounded — S. 306 however, stands on a different footing

Section 309 of the Penal Code deserves to be effaced from the statute book to humanise our penal laws. It is a cruel and irrational provision, and it may result in punishing a person again (doubly) who has suffered agony and would be undergoing ignominy because of his failure to commit suicide. Then an act of suicide cannot be said to be against religion, morality or public policy, and an act of attempted suicide has no baneful effect on society. Further, suicide or attempt to commit it causes no harm to others, because of which State's interference with the personal liberty of the persons concerned is not called for.

It must therefore, be held that S. 309 violates Art. 21, and so, it is void. This view would advance not only the cause of humanisation, which is a need of the day, but of globalisation also, as by effacing S. 309, this part of the criminal law would be attuned to the global wavelength. This view is also in consonance with the recommendation of the Law Commission of India in the 42nd Report (1971). This view has been taken on the basis of an attempt to "search for the social dynamics of criminal law, the functional theory of sentencing and the therapeutic reach of punitive arts, to catch up with social sciences relevant to criminal justice and to link up prison jurisprudence with constitutional roots".

There is no justification for the apprehension that if the negative aspect of right to life, i.e., to destroy it can be read in Art. 21, the State can "easily embark upon a policy to encourage genocide on the plea that proper management of resources are vital and necessary for the upkeep of life with vigour and dignity in the wake of geometrical progression of population growth". The argument of 'constitutional cannibalism' based on such apprehension has no basis as there is a gulf of difference between taking of one's own life and allowing the State to go in for genocide.

If a person takes his life, he is taking his own life, and not the life of anybody else; and so, the argument that State's monopolistic power of taking life is taken away by the person who attempts to commit suicide has no legs to stand on. Nobody can claim to have monopoly over a human life. It is God alone who can claim such a power.

Law has many promises to keep including granting of so much of liberty as would not jeopardise the interest of another or would affect him adversely. For this purpose, law may have "miles to go". Then, law cannot be cruel, which it would be if persons attempting suicide are treated as criminals and are prosecuted to get them punished, whereas what they need is psychiatric treatment, because suicide basically is a "call for help". A law which is cruel violates Art. 21 of the Constitution.

As regards the question as to whether infliction of punishment can be said to have a direct relation with the reduction of criminal propensity, it is doubtful whether imposition of even death sentence has been able to reduce the number of murders. Sentencing has been regarded as a subtle art of healing. Moreover, a person attempting to commit suicide does get punished. The agony undergone by him and the ignominy to be undergone is definitely a punishment, though not a corporal punishment; but then, S. 309 has provided for a sentence of fine also. Agony and ignominy undergone would be far more painful and deterrent than a fine which too may not come to be realised if the person concerned were to be released on probation.

Persons who attempt to commit suicide do not deserve prosecution. Suicide is a psychiatric problem and not a manifestation of criminal instinct. Suicide is really a 'call for help' and there is no 'call for punishment'. So what is needed to take care of suicide-prone persons are soft words and wise counselling (of a psychiatrist) and not stony dealing by a jailor following harsh treatment meted out by a heartless prosecutor. Let us humanise our laws. It is never late to do so.

Suicide knows no barriers of race, religion, caste, age or sex. There is "secularisation of suicide" in our country also. There has been great increase in the number of commission of suicides.

There is no non-religiosity in the act of suicide so far as our social ethos is concerned and it is this ethos, this social mores, which our law has to reflect and respect.

It is the sanctity of human life which is said to be defaced when one commits suicide and the question of morality, therefore, arises. Law and morals often intersect. Historically at least law and morals were closely related and in many areas the law continues to look upon its function as the enforcement of morals, the reinforcement of moral standards in society, and the punishment of moral depravity. However, morality has no defined contours and it would be too hazardous to make a bold and bald statement that commission of suicide is per se an immoral act. If human beings can be treated inhumanly, as a very large segment of our population is, which in a significant measure may be due to wrong (immoral) acts of others, charge of immorality cannot be, and in any case should not be levied, if such human beings or like of them, feel and think that it would be better to end the wretched life instead of allowing further humiliation or torture. Those who demand virtue must do virtue and should see that others too do the same.

Though suicide may bring in miseries to the family members and thus it was urged that suicide has adverse effects on the social set-up, but then, it is a matter of extreme doubt whether by booking a person who had attempted to commit suicide to trial, suicides can be taken care of. Even imposition of death sentences has not been able to take care of commission of murders. Further, such adverse sociological effects are caused by the death of the person concerned, and not by one who had tried to commit suicide. Indeed, those who fail in their attempts become available to be more or less as useful to the family as they were. So the person to be punished is one who had committed suicide; but, he is beyond the reach of law and cannot be punished. This can provide no reason to punish a person who should not be punished.

One of the objects of punishment to be inflicted when an offence is committed is protection of society from the depredations of dangerous persons, one of the interests of the State being preservation of human life. But insofar as suicide is concerned, this object does not get attracted because there is no question of protection of the society from depredation of dangerous persons, who by the very nature of things have to be those who cause harm to others and not to themselves. It cannot, therefore, be said with any degree of definiteness that commission of suicide is against public policy; and, as such, a person attempting to commit it acts against public policy.

As regards the persons aiding and/or abetting suicide, the law can be entirely different. It is not possible to accept the view that if S. 309 were to be held bad, it is highly doubtful whether S. 306 could survive, as self-killing is conceptually different from abetting others to kill themselves. They stand on different footing, because in one case a person takes his own life, and in the other a third person is abetted to take his life. P. Rathinam v. Union of India, (1994) 3 SCC 394: 1994 SCC (Cri) 740: AIR 1994 SC 1844: 1994 Cri LJ 1605.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Sahai and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1994]

State v. Sanjay Kumar Bhatia, 1985 Cri LJ 931: (1985) 2 DMC 153 (Del); Maruti Shripati Dubal v. State of Maharashtra, 1987 Cri LJ 743: (1986) 88 Bom LR 589: 1986 Mah LJ 913 (Bom); Court on its own Motion v. Yogesh Sharma, Registered as Crl. Revision No. 230 of 1985, approved

*Chenna Jagadeeswar v. State of A.P., 1988 Cri LJ 549: (1987) 2 Andh LT 263: 1987 APLJ (Cri) 110 (AP), overruled

See case comment — B.B. Pande: Right to Life or Death ?: For Bharat both cannot be 'Right', (1994) 4 SCC (Jour) 19

But overruled in Gian Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1996) 2 SCC 648: 1996 SCC (Cri) 374

[8328] — S. 309 — Suicide and attempt to commit suicide — Position regarding suicide in English and Indian criminal law, stated — Held, in India, while suicide in itself is not an offence, considering that successful offender is beyond the reach of law, attempt to commit suicide is an offence under S. 309 (Paras 8 and 9). Gangula Mohan Reddy v. State of A.P., (2010) 1 SCC 750.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2010]

[8329] — Ss. 309 and 302 — Suicidal injuries on the throat — Held are generally marked by tentative cuts at the beginning of the main wound — On facts held that single deep long injury on the lower level of the neck disproved suicide. Vasant Laxman More v. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 4 SCC 778: 1974 SCC (Cri) 688: AIR 1974 SC 1697: 1974 Cri LJ 1166.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-7-1974]

— S. 310 See also Ss. 302, 310 and 390

See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

— S. 311 See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

— S. 312 See also Ss. 52-A, 136, 312 and 157

See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

See also Ss. 376, 302, 304, 120-B, 354, 312, 343, 201, 506, 109 and 34

— S. 313 See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

[8330] — S. 313 — Non-compoundable offence — Compromise — Relevance of — Held, factor of compromise cannot be recorded in such a case but the effect of compromise can be taken into consideration for reducing the sentence — Appellants convicted under S. 313 r/w S. 34 IPC i.e. offence of causing miscarriage without woman's consent and sentenced to 5 years' RI and fine of Rs 7000 — Sentence reduced by the High Court to 3 years' RI and fine of Rs 5000 — Appellant Hasi Mohan having an affair with the complainant and due to intimate relationship the complainant becoming pregnant — Appellant's refusal to marry the complainant and causing miscarriage despite her protest — During the pendency of the case complainant marrying the appellant and filing an affidavit to this effect in the Court that she has entered into a compromise with the appellants and wants the criminal case to be withdrawn as they are living peacefully — Supreme Court reducing the sentence of appellants to the one already undergone i.e. about 10 months — However, conviction of appellants under S. 313 IPC maintained — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Hasi Mohan Barman v. State of Assam, (2008) 1 SCC 184: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 161: AIR 2008 SC 388.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.P. Mathur and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-2007]

Ram Pujan v. State of U.P., (1973) 2 SCC 456: 1973 SCC (Cri) 870; Surendra Nath Mohanty v. State of Orissa, (1999) 5 SCC 238: 1999 SCC (Cri) 998, followed

Bankat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 1 SCC 343: 2005 SCC (Cri) 316; Badrilal v. State of M.P., (2005) 7 SCC 55: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1597; Jetha Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (2006) 9 SCC 255: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 561, relied on

— S. 314 See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

[8331] — S. 314 — Causing death of the woman while causing miscarriage with consent — Quack (Homeopathic doctor) while performing surgical operation for abortion of a pregnant lady with her consent causing perforation of her uterus which resulted in her death — Case not covered by any exception under S. 3 of Medical Termination of Pregnancy Act, 1971 — On facts, conviction under S. 314 upheld — But sentence of four years' RI imposed by High Court reduced to two months' imprisonment already undergone and instead fine of Rs 5000 awarded by it (out of which Rs 4000 was to be paid to the deceased's minor son) enhanced to Rs 1 lakh — Amount of fine directed to be deposited in the name of deceased's son in a nationalised bank which would allow the child's guardian to withdraw the interest for the child's maintenance till the child becomes major — Sentence thus modified having regard to the purposes of punishment — Prayer for release on probation refused having regard to nature of the offence and character and conduct of the accused

Section 314 has not visualised the sentence of imprisonment only, but permits imposition of fine also. The High Court has imposed a fine of Rs 5000. The fine is required to be enhanced considerably, because of what has been provided in S. 357 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which has a message of its own in this regard. The power of imposing fine is intended to do something to reassure the victim that he or she is not forgotten in the criminal justice system. It is a measure of responding appropriately to crime as well as reconciling the victim with the offender. It is to some extent a constructive approach to crimes and a step forward in a criminal justice system. It is because of this that it was recommended that all criminal courts should exercise this power liberally so as to meet the ends of justice, by cautioning that the amount of compensation to be awarded must be reasonable. What is reasonable has to depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case.

The present case was concerned with the death of a woman deserted by a husband and desiring to abort. She had a son born to her earlier and that son must have become a destitute with no one to look after. The appellant, on the other hand seems to have had a roaring practice as would appear, inter alia, from the photographs of his clinic put on record. The building is an RCC one and is three-storeyed and presents a good look. If a child has to be nursed in these days and nursed reasonably, a sum of Rs 1000 per month would definitely be necessary. Therefore, the fine to be imposed should be Rs one lakh. Therefore, sentence awarded by the High Court is modified by reducing the substantive sentence of imprisonment to the one already undergone and by enhancing the fine to a sum of Rs one lakh. Six months' time is granted to the appellant for depositing this amount. On this amount being deposited with the Registry of the Supreme Court, steps would be taken to deposit the same in a nationalised bank in the name of the son of the deceased after ascertaining the same from the appropriate authority. The bank would allow the guardian of the aforesaid son to withdraw the interest on the aforesaid amount till the son becomes major. On the son becoming major, it would be for him to decide as how to use the money and the bank would therefore act in accordance with the decision taken by the son. If the fine as enhanced, would not be paid within six months from the date of this judgment, the sentence as awarded by the High Court would get revived and the appellant would undergo the remaining part of imprisonment. To enable the High Court to monitor the matter, the appellant would inform the High Court also about the fact of his depositing the sum of Rs one lakh.

This judgment may not be understood to have expressed any opinion on the right of the deceased or for that matter of any woman of this country to go for abortion, as this question has not arisen directly in this case. No opinion is expressed whether such a right can be read in Art. 21 of the Constitution; and if so, to what extent. Jacob George (Dr.) v. State of Kerala, (1994) 3 SCC 430: 1994 SCC (Cri) 774: (1994) 2 An LT (Cri) 1: (1994) 1 KLT 872: (1994) 2 Crimes 100.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Sahai and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-4-1994]

[8332] — S. 314 — Death of woman in doctor's clinic after abortion — Appreciation of evidence — Defence story that deceased's condition had become serious because of attempt made by her near relation to abort the pregnancy by crude method belied in view of the accused's failure to inform the police of the medico-legal situation — Conviction can be based principally on evidence of the near relation who had played a vital role in the case — Fact that the nurses of the doctor's clinic had turned hostile would not weaken the prosecution case when evidence of the related witness was corroborated by other evidence. Jacob George (Dr.) v. State of Kerala, (1994) 3 SCC 430: 1994 SCC (Cri) 774: (1994) 2 An LT (Cri) 1: (1994) 1 KLT 872: (1994) 2 Crimes 100.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Sahai and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-4-1994]

[8333] — S. 314 — To be read subservient to S. 3 of Medical Termination of Pregnancy Act, 1971

After the enactment of the Medical Termination of Pregnancy Act, 1971, the provisions of the Penal Code relating to miscarriage have become subservient to this Act because of the non obstante clause in S. 3, which permits abortion/miscarriage by a registered practitioner under certain circumstances. This permission can be granted on three grounds. Concern for even unborn child was evinced by the legislature, not to speak of hazard to the life of the woman concerned. Jacob George (Dr.) v. State of Kerala, (1994) 3 SCC 430: 1994 SCC (Cri) 774: (1994) 2 An LT (Cri) 1: (1994) 1 KLT 872: (1994) 2 Crimes 100.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Sahai and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-4-1994]

[8334] — S. 314 r/w S. 109 — Abatement to cause miscarriage — Conviction based on uncommunicated letter by deceased and evidence of solitary witness — Legality

That exhibit P-4 is a letter said to have been written by the deceased some time before her death intending to send the same to the appellant which in fact was not sent. The contents of the letter do not in any manner support the prosecution case that the appellant instigated the deceased to cause miscarriage. No portion of that letter indicated that the appellant was in any manner responsible for the steps taken by the deceased for causing miscarriage. No other evidence has been relied upon either by the trial court or by the High Court in support of the finding that the appellant was guilty of (the offence of) abetting the deceased to cause miscarriage. There is no legal basis for the conviction of the appellant. Madan Raj Bhandari v. State of Rajasthan, (1969) 2 SCC 385: AIR 1970 SC 436: 1970 Cri LJ 519: 1970 MLJ (Cri) 98.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-1969]

[8335] — Ss. 314/34 — Common intention to cause miscarriage which resulted in death — Accused having illicit relations with deceased — Accused taking deceased to clinic of a doctor with the intention to cause her miscarriage — Doctor was not qualified for terminating pregnancy nor was his clinic equipped and approved by Govt. as required under R. 4 of Medical Termination of Pregnancy Rules — Deceased died in the clinic either due to shock or due to non-application of anaesthesia while undergoing abortion — Held, accused rightly convicted under Ss. 314/34 — But in the circumstances, sentence of 7 years' RI being on the higher side, the same reduced to 1½ years' RI and instead fine of Rs 10,000 awarded by courts below enhanced to Rs 25,000 payable to deceased's mother — Medical Termination of Pregnancy Rules, R. 4

The deceased, an unmarried girl of 24 years age, told her mother that she along with the appellant was going to the clinic of a doctor S. Later in the same day both the appellant and S came to the deceased's mother and told her that the deceased was in a serious condition. When the deceased's mother reached the clinic of S she found her daughter lying dead on the table inside the clinic. When asked what was the reason of the treatment and death of her daughter, the appellant told her that he was having illicit relations with the deceased as a result of which she was carrying pregnancy of two or three months. He also told her that he got the deceased admitted in the hospital of S for abortion and during the treatment the deceased's condition became serious causing her death. The Professor of Forensic Medicines in Medical College, in his deposition opined that the deceased was carrying pregnancy of three months. He did not find any injury in the uterus or vagina. He said it was possible that the abortion was caused without applying anaesthesia to the deceased causing her death or her death could be due to fear. He found that the uterus was enlarged containing blood clots. In his cross-examination he said that shock also takes place during the state of fear. It has come to record that the doctor S was having a degree of Bachelor of Medicine in Electrohomoeopathy from the Board of Electrohomoeopathic Systems of Medicines, Jabalpur (M.P.). This entitled him to practise in Electrohomoeopathic systems of medicines. He also possessed a Diploma of Bachelor of Medicine and Surgery in Ayurved. Thus he was not a medical practitioner, who possesses any recognised medical qualification as defined in clause (h) of Section 2 of the Indian Medical Council Act, 1956, whose name has been entered in a State Medical Register and who had any experience or training in gynaecology and obstetrics. During the course of investigation the police also recovered some instruments from the dicky of the scooter of S which were allegedly used for causing abortion. One Hindi book containing the literature on abortion, contraceptives and one Hindi book containing an illustrative abortion guide were seized from the clinic of S. When the Investigating Officer stated that he recovered the instruments from the dicky of the scooter of S on his disclosure statement, he had not been cross-examined. The appellant and S were tried together. While S was convicted under Section 314 IPC, the appellant was convicted under Sections 314/34 IPC. Both were sentenced to seven years' RI and a fine of Rs 10,000 and in default of payment of fine further two years' RI. Both filed appeal in the Madhya Pradesh High Court. Their conviction and sentence were upheld and their appeal dismissed. Both sought leave to appeal to the Supreme Court under Article 136 of the Constitution against the judgment of the High Court. S was refused leave but the present appellant was granted leave. Two questions have been raised before the Supreme Court for consideration: (1) whether the extra-judicial confession of the appellant made to the deceased's mother could be solely made the basis for conviction and (2) whether the appellant shared any common intention with S to cause the death of the deceased. Upholding the conviction of the appellant but reducing the sentence,

Held :

There is no reason for not taking into consideration the extra-judicial confession of the appellant made to the deceased's mother to base his conviction. It was quite natural in the circumstances. It is not possible to believe the defence version that the deceased just died lying on the table in the clinic of S. She was a normal girl. No explanation is forthcoming either from the appellant or S as to in what circumstances the deceased died. It was something within their knowledge. The court in normal circumstance does accept the explanation of the accused consistent with his innocence even though he has not been able to prove his defence by positive evidence. But when the explanation offered by the accused or the defence set up by him is not only inconsistent with his conduct but is palpably false, it cannot be worth consideration. When examined under Section 313 CrPC, the appellant as well as S were asked if they wanted to say anything in their defence, but the defence set up by them were not true and had to be rejected. (Para 7)

It is not possible to accept the contention that the appellant could not be convicted with the aid of Section 34 IPC. (Para 11)

There is a concurrent finding that S with the intent to cause the miscarriage of the deceased with child by his act caused her death and the act was done in furtherance of the common intention of the appellant. He has thus been rightly convicted under Sections 314/34 IPC. (Para 12)

Moreover, having regard to the provisions of the Medical Termination of Pregnancy Act and Rules, S was certainly not competent to terminate the pregnancy of the deceased nor his clinic had the approval of the Government. Even the basic facilities for abortion were not available in his clinic. The appellant took the deceased to the clinic of S with the intent to cause her miscarriage and then her death was caused by S while causing abortion, which act was done by S in furtherance of the common intention of both S and the appellant. There is no escape from the conclusion that the appellant had been rightly convicted under Sections 314/34 IPC. (Para 15)

However, the sentence awarded to the appellant is rather on the higher side. Therefore, the sentence of imprisonment is reduced to 1½ years' (18 months') RI. But the fine is enhanced to Rs 25,000 and in default of payment of the fine the appellant would undergo a further one year's RI. In case fine is realised the same shall be payable to the mother of the deceased. (Para 16). Surendra Chauhan v. State of M.P., (2000) 4 SCC 110: 2000 SCC (Cri) 772: AIR 2000 SC 1436: 2000 Cri LJ 1789.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.P. Wadhwa and Ruma Pal, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-3-2000]

[8336] — Ss. 314/107 — Death caused while attempting to cause miscarriage — Appellant taking H to house of P for termination of pregnancy — Attempt to cause miscarriage by P, resulting in death of H — P convicted under S. 314 IPC and appellant under Ss. 314/107 and sentenced to four years' RI and to pay a fine of Rs 500 — In appeal by appellant to SC, held, the appellant only tried to help H and took her to P whose efforts resulted in the death of H — In that sense the appellant had abetted the offence — Taking the circumstances into consideration, sentence on appellant reduced to two years. Jangir Kaur v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (2) SCC 397: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1479.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-1993]

— S. 315 See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

See also Ss. 304-B and 315

See also Ss. 498-A, 406, 420 and 315

— S. 316 See also Ss. 302, 316 and 309

See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

See also Ss. 304-B/34, 302/120-B, 201/34, 498-A/34 and 316

— Ss. 317 to 319 See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

— S. 320 See also Ss. 34 and 320

See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

See also Ss. 324, 307 and 320

See also Ss. 326 and 320

See also Ss. 376 and 320

— S. 320 Seventhly See also Ss. 308, 320 Seventhly and 324

4 [8337] — S. 320 — Clauses of, should be strictly construed (Paras 14 and 15). Mathai v. State of Kerala, (2005) 3 SCC 260: 2005 SCC (Cri) 695: AIR 2005 SC 710: 2005 Cri LJ 898.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-2005]

[8338] — Ss. 320 and 148 — Supreme Court can interfere with concurrent judgment of criminal courts where interest of justice requires — Where incident of double murder took place as a result of acute faction between two groups of persons, prosecution witnesses were partisan and highly interested and prosecution story full of infirmities and appeared to be fabricated, held, Supreme Court would be justified in interfering with the High Court's order of confirmation of conviction and sentences recorded by the trial court as such confirmation would result in injustice — Constitution of India, Art. 136. Lala Ram v. State of U.P., (1990) 2 SCC 113: 1990 SCC (Cri) 276: AIR 1990 SC 1185: 1990 ALJ 269: 1990 Cri LJ 1205.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1990]

[8339] — Ss. 320 and 326 — "Fracture" — Meaning of — Grievous hurt — Proof — Concurrent finding — Interference

It is not necessary that a bone should be cut through and through or that the crack must extend from the outer to the inner surface or that there should be displacement of any fragment of the bone. If there is a break by cutting or splintering of the bone or there is a rupture or fissure in it, it would amount to a fracture within the meaning of cl. 7 of S. 320. The nature of the injuries, as spoken to by the doctor in his evidence discloses the length, breadth and depth of each injury. The doctor in his evidence said that these injuries are grievous. The nature of the injuries considered with the evidence of the doctor would undoubtedly establish that all the aforesaid injuries were grievous. These injuries were inflicted by kantas which are dangerous weapons and hence the conviction under S. 326 is fully justified. Hori Lal v. State of U.P., (1970) 1 SCC 8: AIR 1970 SC 1969: (1970) 2 SCR 237: 1970 Cri LJ 1665.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-9-1969]

[8340] — Ss. 320, 326 and 324 — Inquiry caused with a sharp-edged instrument cutting tender muscle nerve — Held, not a grievous injury but a simple one. State of Karnataka v. Siddegowda, 1995 Supp (3) SCC 404: 1995 SCC (Cri) 931.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-1995]

— S. 320 Secondly See also Ss. 326 and 320 Secondly and Eighthly

— S. 320 Seventhly See also Ss. 308, 320 Seventhly and 324

[8341] — S. 320 Seventhly — 'Fracture'

It is true that 'fracture' has not been defined in the Penal Code. It is not necessary that a bone should be cut through and through or that the crack must extend from the outer to the inner surface or that there should be displacement of any fragment of the bone. If there is a break by cutting or splintering of the bone or there is a rupture or fissure in it, it would amount to a fracture within the meaning of cl. 7 of S. 320. What we have to see is whether the cuts in the bones noticed in the injury report are only superficial or do they effect a break in them. Hori Lal v. State of U.P., (1970) 1 SCC 8: AIR 1970 SC 1969: (1970) 2 SCR 237: 1970 Cri LJ 1665.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, G.K. Mitter and P. Jaganmohan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-9-1969]

[8342] — S. 320 Seventhly — Fracture — Meaning of Fracture in common parlance means breaking through, but it is not necessary that, in order that there should be a fracture, the entire depth of the bone need be broken. When a portion of the bone is sliced off, it necessarily changes the nature of the bone and its quantity is reduced. When any portion of the bone is broken off and there is a cleft or a rupture, nobody would deny that there is a fracture, but when a part of the bone itself is dismembered, it axiomatically follows that a fracture has taken place. The break-up of the bone into two fragments or pieces must necessarily connote a fracture, and that being the case, when a portion is sliced off, one cannot say that there is no fracture if the injury is something more serious than a mere break. Labh Singh v. State of Punjab, Criminal Appeal No. 141 of 1956.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam and P. Govinda Menon, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-9-1957]

[8343] — Ss. 320 Seventhly, 326 and 324 — Fracture — Partial cut of skull vault — Held, amounted to fracture within the meaning of clause Seventhly of S. 320 and therefore, punishable under S. 326

The question in such cases would be whether the cuts in the bones noticed in the injury report are only superficial or do they effect a break in them i.e. there is a rupture or fissure in it. There can be no doubt from the X-ray report that there was a partial cut of the skull vault. The opinion of the radiologist that there was a deep cut involving the whole of the outer table and reaching up to the inner table is borne out by the white line appearing in the X-ray plate. There is no basis for the inference that there was possibility of a wire being placed before exposing the film to the X-ray equipment; nor is there warrant for the view that a partial cut of the skull vault is seldom so prominent except when excessive force is used in inflicting the injury. It appears that the force of the impact of the blow was saved by the turban. In the circumstances, there was a fracture within the meaning of clause Seventhly of S. 320. The High Court was therefore justified in altering the conviction of the appellant from that under S. 324 to one under S. 326. Naib Singh v. State of Punjab, (1986) 4 SCC 401: 1986 SCC (Cri) 475: AIR 1986 SC 2192: 1986 Cri LJ 2061.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1986]

Hori Lal v. State of U.P., (1970) 1 SCC 8: (1970) 2 SCR 237: AIR 1970 SC 1969, relied on

Maung Po Yi v. Ma E Tin, AIR 1937 Rang 253: 38 Cri LJ 960 and Mutukdhari Singh v. Emperor, AIR 1942 Pat 376: 43 Cri LJ 511, disapproved

(1978) 80 Punj LR 326, affirmed

— S. 320 Eighthly See also Ss. 96, 97, 103, 99 Fourthly

See also S. 300 Thirdly, 302 or 320 Eighthly and 325

See also S. 320 Eighthly and Ss. 326/322

See also Ss. 326 and 320 Secondly and Eighthly.

[8344] — Ss. 320 Eighthly and 326 — Injury by a cutting instrument like sickle on the abdomen endangering life — Is a grievous hurt under S. 320 — Accused charged under S. 302 can legally be punished under S. 326, IPC

Appellant hit the deceased on the abdomen with a sickle causing an oblique, boat shaped incised wound 6"x3"x3" deep leading to abdominal cavity. The injury endangered life. It was a grievous hurt of the nature mentioned in the last clause of S. 320 (Eighthly), IPC. For this individual act of assault the accused is undoubtedly guilty of an offence under S. 326, IPC. There was a substantive charge under S. 302, IPC and there can be no legal difficulty in convicting him of the lesser offence of causing grievous hurt under S. 326, IPC. Chikkarange Gowda v. State of Mysore, AIR 1956 SC 731: ILR 1956 Mys 377: 1957 Ker LJ 25: 1956 Cri LJ 1365, 1369.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, C.J. and N.H. Bhagwati and S.K. Das, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-5-1956]

[8345] — Ss. 320 Eighthly and 326/34 or 302 — Tying deceased to an electric pole and beating to teach him a lesson for having spread scandalous information about the accused-appellants — Nature of injuries sustained by deceased such as to endanger human life covered by definition under

S. 320 Eighthly — Deceased in a drunken state at the time of occurrence — In absence of any definite evidence attributing specific overt act to any of the appellants in the backdrop of the totality of the circumstances of the case, held, it would be unsafe to draw any conclusion that appellants had intended to cause death of the deceased and committed the offence of murder — Hence conviction of appellants 1 and 2 under Ss. 302/34 and sentence of life imprisonment altered to conviction under S. 326/34 and sentence of 5 years' RI — However, appellant 3 entitled to acquittal in absence of sufficient evidence against him. Formina Sebastio Azardeo v. State of Goa, Daman and Diu, 1992 Supp (2) SCC 218: 1992 SCC (Cri) 671: AIR 1992 SC 133: 1992 Cri LJ 109.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-10-1991]

[8346] — Ss. 320/34 — Common intention — Prosecution case that appellants inflicted lathi blows while their co-accused inflicted knife blows — Inquest report prepared by police confirming presence of some contusions on the dead body apart from the penetrating wounds — But post-mortem report revealing that the deceased only sustained the penetrating wounds which could be caused by knives and abrasions which might be the result of a fall — In case of such discrepancy between the inquest and post-mortem reports, benefit of the discrepancy must be given to the appellants — In the circumstances held, the prosecution failed to prove beyond doubt that the appellants assaulted the deceased with lathis or shared the intention of the co-accused to kill the deceased. Maula Bux v. State of Rajasthan, (1983) 1 SCC 379: 1983 SCC (Cri) 199.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-2-1980]

— S. 321 See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

[8347] — Ss. 321, 322, 324 & 326 — Ingredients and applicability of Ss. 324 and 326 — Accused must commit an act with the knowledge that thereby he was likely to cause hurt or grievous hurt to the victim

For applicability of Sections 324 and 326 IPC, the material relied upon by the prosecution in support of such charges must show that the accused concerned had committed the act complained of at least with the knowledge that by such act he was likely to cause hurt or grievous hurt to the victim. Keshub Mahindra v. State of M.P., (1996) 6 SCC 129: 1996 SCC (Cri) 1124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi, C.J. and S.B. Majmudar, J. [Date of decision: 13-9-1996]

— S. 322 See also Ss. 302/34 to S. 326

See also Ss. 321, 322, 324 and 326

— Ss. 322/34 See also Ss. 302/34, 307/34 or 326, 324/34 and 322/34

— S. 323 See also under S. 34

See also Ss. 96, 100, 147, 353, 447 and 307 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 96, 302/149 and 147

See also Ss. 97, 100, 302, 302/149, 323 and 323/149

See also Ss. 97 and 147, 148, 302, 307, 323, 324

See also Ss. 114 and 323

See also Ss. 143, 147, 148, 341, 323, 324 and 302 r/w S. 149

See also under S. 147

See also Ss. 147, 323 and 302

See also Ss. 148, 147, 307, 307/149, 324, 324/149, 323 and 323/149

See also Ss. 148, 302, 323, 324, 395 and 396

See also Ss. 148 and 323

See also Ss. 148, 365, 342, 323, 324 and 302/149

See also Ss. 149 and 147, 148, 34 and Ss. 302 and 323

See also Ss. 149, 147, 323, 325 and 302

See also Ss. 149, 323, 325 and 435

See also S. 149 r/w Ss. 302, 307, 449, 323 to 325 and 148

See also Ss. 218, 323 and 342

See also Ss. 294 and 323

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 306, 294(b) and 323

See also Ss. 307, 323, 326 and 447

See also Ss. 308 and 323

See also Ss. 324 and 323

See also Ss. 325 and 323

See also S. 326 or S. 307 or Ss. 323 and 324

See also Ss. 326, 323 and 324 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 332 and 323

See also Ss. 341, 323, 504/34 and 120-B

See also Ss. 354, 323, 504 and 506

See also Ss. 354, 452, 323 and 506 Pt. II r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 364, 324, 323, 149 and 148

See also Ss. 376 and 323

See also Ss. 376, 323, 342 and 506

See also Ss. 376, 375, 148, 452, 149, 342, 323, 366 and 506

See also Ss. 376, 375, 148, 452, 149, 342, 323 and 506

See also Ss. 376/149, 375, 148, 452, 342, 323, 366 and 506

See also Ss. 376(2)(g) and 323

See also Ss. 377, 373, 372, 323 r/w Ss. 109 and 120-B

See also Ss. 376/511 and 323

See also Ss. 420, 467, 471, 323, 506-B and 120-B

See also Ss. 447, 341, 323 and 427

See also Ss. 452, 323, 504, 506 and 420

See also Ss. 452, 354, 323 and 506 Pt. II r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 498-A, 306 and 323

See also Ss. 498-A and 323

See also Ss. 498-A, 323 and 506

See also Ss. 498-A, 406, 323, 506, 148 and 149

See also S. 498-A and Ss. 406, 341, 323 & 120-B

See also S. 498-A and Ss. 406, 341, 323 & 120-B and Ss. 3 & 4, Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961

See also Ss. 498-A, 506 and 323

See also Ss. 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER, 'C.12. Hurt, grievous or not, with or without dangerous weapons or means (Ss. 319 to 338)', in Vol. 2

[8348] — S. 323 — Accused beating the victim in the back and shoulder with sticks causing simple injuries in the nature of abrasions — Conviction must be under S. 323 — But sentence of 3 years' RI reduced to the period already undergone and in lieu of the sentence remitted, a fine of Rs 500 and in default one month's RI imposed. Mariadasan v. State of T.N., (1980) 3 SCC 68: 1980 SCC (Cri) 523: AIR 1980 SC 573: 1980 Cri LJ 412.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1980]

[8349] — S. 323 — Appreciation of evidence — Held, the appellant had been convicted on the sole ground that PW 4 had deposed that a stone hurled by the appellant from a procession had caused injuries on his leg — Admittedly, a procession was taken out and nearly 200-300 persons were in the procession — In such a situation the identification of the appellant by PW 4 as one who hurled the stone could not be accepted — Hence conviction of appellant by High Court for causing hurt and the sentence therefor set aside. Ramdas Narayan Patil v. State of Maharashtra, 1994 SCC (Cri) 274.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1992]

[8350] — S. 323 — Conviction under — Assault with lathi on back — Accused convicted under S. 323 and sentenced to one year's RI — On facts held, no interference called for (Para 17). Malhu Yadav v. State of Bihar, (2002) 5 SCC 724: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1190: AIR 2002 SC 2137: 2002 Cri LJ 2819.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.P. Sethi and Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-2002]

[8351] — S. 323 — Long passage of time and sentence imposed — Appellants 2 and 3 convicted under S. 323 IPC and sentenced to RI for one year — However, considering the long passage of time and period of sentence imposed, benefit of S. 360 CrPC granted to them on entering the stipulated bond (Para 7). Nasiruddin Khan v. State of Bihar, (2008) 12 SCC 129.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-2008]

[8352] — S. 323 — Release of offender on probation — Grounds — Offence under S. 323 IPC — Injuries caused to victims simple in nature — Petitioner, a teacher who might lose his job due to conviction — No clear evidence that apart from being a member of the mob, the petitioner specifically assaulted anyone — Having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case, held, petitioner should be given benefit under the 1958 Act and be released on probation assuring good conduct for a period of six months — However, direction made to petitioner to pay a sum of Rs 500 each to the four victims — CrPC, 1973, S. 360 — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4 (Para 6). Jamal Haq v. State of Tripura, (2006) 9 SCC 757.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.P. Singh and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-1-2006]

[8353] — S. 323 — Sentence — Conviction of A-1 altered from S. 302 to S. 323 — A-1 aged about 82 years, suffering from asthma and other old-age ailments, had already undergone one year and seven months' imprisonment — Held, period undergone was sufficient to serve ends of justice (Para 21). Jagat Singh v. State of H.P., (2011) 2 SCC 234.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: H.S. Bedi, P. Sathasivam and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-1-2011]

[8354] — S. 323 — Sentence of nine months' RI for superficial simple injuries not justified — Reduced to the month and a half already undergone. Raman Kalia v. State of Gujarat, (1979) 4 SCC 641: 1980 SCC (Cri) 153: AIR 1979 SC 1261: 1979 Cri LJ 1074.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1979]

[8355] — S. 323 — Special leave granted for compounding offence under S. 323, IPC in the circumstances of the case — Court also taking a compassionate approach in respect of the other offence having regard to facts particularly that they had acted in a moment of aberration due to loss of self control and accordingly sentence reduced to the period already undergone — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Madhusudan Sahu v. State of Orissa, 1987 Supp SCC 80: 1987 SCC (Cri) 626.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.P. Thakkar and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-2-1987]

[8356] — S. 323 — Stick blow inflicted by accused aged 60 years on PW who was accompanying the deceased — Conviction altered to that under S. 323 and sentence reduced to the period already undergone. Hari Singh v. State of Haryana, (1993) 3 SCC 114: 1993 SCC (Cri) 631.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-4-1993]

[8357] — S. 323 — Voluntarily causing hurt — Role played by appellant in the crime along with other accused — Trial court as well as High Court found some overt acts on the part of appellant — Held, it is not of much significance as to what exact role was played by appellant as his presence was not disbelieved (Para 20). Subhash Maruti Avasare v. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 631: (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 54.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-10-2006]

[8358] — S. 323 — Where the injury caused by the particular accused assailant was not by itself sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, held, his conviction should be under S. 323 instead — In the absence of doctor's categorical finding, Court cannot substitute its own opinion and benefit must go to the accused. Chilamakur Nagireddy v. State of A.P., (1977) 3 SCC 560: 1977 SCC (Cri) 562: AIR 1977 SC 1998: 1977 Cri LJ 1602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-7-1977]

[8359] — Ss. 323 and 34 — On facts, common intention not proved — Hence conviction of appellants reversed. Mitter Sen v. State of U.P., (1976) 1 SCC 723: 1976 SCC (Cri) 190: AIR 1976 SC 1156: 1976 Cri LJ 857.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-9-1975]

[8360] — Ss. 323, 34, 387, 498-A and 506 — Amendment by Bihar Act 4 of 1976 requiring sanction of appropriate authority before taking cognizance of offence under Dowry Prohibition Act — Prosecution without sanction launched after commencement of such amendment is not permissible — However, cognizance of offences under Penal Code is not without jurisdiction — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3 and 4. Rajesh Kumar Kejriwal v. State of Bihar, (1997) 10 SCC 524: 1997 SCC (Cri) 874.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-11-1996]

[8361] — Ss. 323 and 96 — On facts held, defence version that the accused caused only one injury in exercise of his right of private defence getting probabilised — Accused acquitted. Mehar Singh v. State of Punjab, 1997 SCC (Cri) 752: 1995 Cri LJ 3635.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-3-1995]

[8362] — Ss. 323, 304 Pt. I, 34 and 149 — Ingredients of S. 34 and essentials to prove common intention, restated — Culpable homicide — Alteration of conviction on erroneous appreciation of evidence — Impropriety of — On facts, A-1 to A-8 facing trial out of which only A-2 and A-4 (appellant herein) convicted while rest acquitted by trial court — Appellant found guilty under S. 323 for his individual act and sentenced to fine of Rs 500 with default stipulation of one month's simple imprisonment — No appeal filed by appellant against his conviction — However, appeal filed by State before High Court, contending that true parameters of S. 149 not kept in view — High Court accepting the stand, holding appellant guilty under S. 304 Pt. I r/w S. 34 and sentencing him to 7 years' imprisonment — Sustainability — Before Supreme Court appellant submitting that High Court having noted that there was no common object, the question of convicting appellant under S. 304 Pt. I r/w S. 34 did not arise — Tenability — Held, there was no evidence that appellant caused any injury on person of the deceased — Evidence of PWs 7 and 9 (father and brother of deceased respectively) was also held not acceptable — High Court erroneously came to the conclusion about role of appellant — It was erroneously held that appellant had caused injury on person of the deceased — Both the courts below had categorically held that there was no common object and in any event the appellant was not a member of any unlawful assembly — Hence, held, High Court ought not to have altered conviction as recorded by trial court — Accordingly, order of trial court vis-à-vis appellant, restored and that of High Court vis-à-vis appellant, quashed (Paras 2 to 4, 10 to 12 and 14 to 17). Komal v. State of M.P., (2009) 11 SCC 55: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1232: AIR 2009 SC 1958.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-2009]

State of M.P. v. Deshraj, (2004) 13 SCC 199, relied on

[Ed.: See Mahbub Shah v. Emperor, (1944-45) 72 IA 148: AIR 1945 PC 118: 46 Cri LJ 689.]

[8363] — Ss. 323, 324 and 34 — Compounding of offence — How and by whom offence to be compounded — Occurrence took place a long time back and in the meantime one of the injured died — Appellant stood convicted under Ss. 324 and 323 r/w S. 34 IPC — Complainant volunteered to compound the case — Reasons for compounding offences found sufficient and genuine — Hence, compounding of offences granted — CrPC, 1973, S. 320

The appellants stood convicted under Section 324 read with Section 34 and Section 323 read with Section 34 IPC.

Disposing of the appeal,

Held :

An application has been filed by the complainant and the accused persons stating that the occurrence took place nearly 25 years back and the parties are related to each other and therefore, they may be permitted to compound the offences. Complainant has volunteered to compound the offences with the appellants for sufficient and genuine reasons as stated in the affidavits and such compounding would be proper. So far as the offence under Section 323 is concerned, it is compoundable with the consent of the injured. So far as the offence under Section 324 is concerned, it is compoundable by the person to whom hurt is caused with the permission of the court, in terms of sub-section (2) of Section 320. (Paras 2 and 4). Mathura Singh v. State of U.P., (2009) 13 SCC 420.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-4-2009]

Manoj v. State of M.P., (2008) 9 SCC 116: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 699, relied on

[8364] — Ss. 323, 324, 326, 342, 452, 506, 148 and 34 — Interpretation of Ss. 173 and 190 CrPC — Exercise of power by High Court under S. 482 CrPC, to quash criminal proceedings at interlocutory stage — Impropriety of — Dispute related to erecting walls on plot of land, led to appellant and respondent parties allegedly attacking each other, resulting in injuries to both — Case registered by them against each other and criminal proceedings initiated against both — But further investigation recommended dropping of criminal proceedings against respondents — However, before Judicial Magistrate could apply his mind and take a decision on original challan under S. 173(2) CrPC against respondents and on report of further investigation under S. 173(8) CrPC recommending dropping of criminal proceedings against them, respondents filed petition under S. 482 CrPC, and High Court, after considering such further report, quashed criminal proceedings against respondents, but directed that proceedings against appellant shall not be affected — Sustainability — Held, where police report forwarded to Magistrate under S. 173(2) CrPC states that a person has committed offence, but after further investigation, further report under S. 173(8) CrPC states that the person has not committed offence, it is for Magistrate to form opinion, whether facts set out in two reports, make out an offence committed by the person — Herein, it was for Magistrate to apply judicial mind to facts stated in reports submitted under Ss. 173(2) and (8) CrPC, and to form an opinion, whether to take cognizance or not to take cognizance against respondents, after considering objections, if any, of complainant, namely, appellant — However, since Magistrate had not applied his mind to merits of reports filed under S. 173 CrPC, hence, exercise of power by High Court under S. 482 CrPC was at an interlocutory stage, therefore, not warranted — Therefore, impugned order of High Court, set aside and proceedings before Magistrate, restored — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 482, 173 and 190

In the instant case, the police in its report submitted to the Judicial Magistrate, had filed two challans, one against the appellant, his father M and one B, stating that they had committed offences under Sections 452, 323, 326, 506 read with Section 34 IPC and the other challan against Respondents 1 and 2 and some others, stating that they had committed offences under Sections 342, 323, 324 and 148 IPC. (Para 20)

Pursuant to subsequent permission granted by the Magistrate for further investigation, a further report was made by the Superintendent of Police, stating that Respondent 1, for his self-defence, had caused injuries to the appellant and others and hence the cross-case against Respondent 1 is required to be cancelled. This further report was to be forwarded to the Magistrate and it was for the Magistrate to apply judicial mind to the facts stated in the reports submitted under sub-sections (2) and (8) respectively of Section 173 CrPC, and to form an opinion, whether to take cognizance or not to take cognizance against Respondent 1, after considering the objections, if any, of the complainant, namely, the appellant. (Paras 15 to 19 and 21)

However, as the Magistrate had not applied his mind to the merits of the reports filed under Section 173 CrPC, the exercise of power by the High Court under Section 482 CrPC, was at an interlocutory stage and was not warranted in the facts of this case. (Para 24)

Hence, the impugned order is set aside. The police will forward the further report of the Superintendent of Police to the Magistrate concerned and the Magistrate will apply his mind to the police report already forwarded to him and the further report of further investigation forwarded to him and take a final decision in accordance with law, after considering the objections, if any, of the appellant, against the further report of further investigation. (Para 25). Dharmatma Singh v. Harminder Singh, (2011) 6 SCC 102.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.V. Raveendran and A.K. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision : 10-5-2011]

Abhinandan Jha v. Dinesh Mishra, AIR 1968 SC 117: 1968 Cri LJ 97; Rupan Deol Bajaj v. Kanwar Pal Singh Gill, (1995) 6 SCC 194: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1059, relied on

[Ed.: See also CrPC, S. 482, '2.(ii) Nature and scope of inherent power — S. 482 and other provisions of CrPC', pp. 238 et seq. in Vol. 18, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn.]

[8365] — Ss. 323 and 325 — Sustainability — High Court reducing substantive sentence to a month and a half — Appellant undergoing and remaining in custody for about fifteen days — Moreover, appellant on bail — Hence, held, directing appellant to surrender for undergoing remaining sentence is inappropriate, 10 years having passed from date of incident — Sentence already undergone, held, sufficient and adequate in the facts and circumstances of the case — However, appellant directed to pay additional amount of Rs 10,000 as compensation to the injured complainant over and above the amount of fine and compensation ordered to be paid by courts below — CrPC, 1973, S. 357(1)(b)

The appellant-accused voluntarily caused simple hurt to complainant and also assaulted the complainant with a stone resulting in grievous injuries to him. Moreover, the appellant-accused intentionally insulted the complainant by abusing him in filthy language thereby giving him provocation knowing fully well that such provocation would make the complainant to break public peace or to commit other offences. A complaint was filed and after usual investigation, charge was framed against the accused for offences punishable under Sections 323, 325 and 504 IPC. The trial court held that the accused caused simple as well as grievous hurt to the complainant, and thereby, he had committed offences punishable under Sections 323 and 325 IPC. Regarding the third charge, however, according to the court, the prosecution was not able to establish it and the accused was ordered to be acquitted. The trial court sentenced him with simple imprisonment and fine with default stipulation, under both sections, accordingly. Compensation of Rs 2000 was also ordered to be paid to the complainant under Section 357(1)(b) CrPC, out of the fine amount received.

In an appeal preferred by him, he was acquitted for the offence punishable under Section 323 IPC. However, conviction under Section 325 IPC was confirmed. The appellate court, however, was of the view that it was a fit case to reduce sentence of simple imprisonment from one year to six months. The appellate court also directed the accused to pay compensation of Rs 3000 to the complainant independently of what the trial court awarded. The sentence of fine and compensation passed by the trial court was confirmed.

The appellant challenged even that order passed by the appellate court in revision before the High Court which confirmed the order of conviction while partly allowing the revision by reducing sentence and ordering the appellant to undergo simple imprisonment for 1½ months and to pay fine of Rs 1000 in addition to what was ordered by the courts below. Present appeal is against the said order of the High Court.

Allowing the appeal partly,

Held :

The High Court has reduced the substantive sentence to a month and a half. It is also not in dispute that the appellant has undergone and has remained in custody for about fifteen days. Moreover, he is on bail. Hence, even though in the facts and circumstances of the case, provisions of Section 360 read with Section 361 CrPC are not attracted and Om Prakash case, (2001) 10 SCC 477, does not help the appellant, it would not be appropriate to direct the appellant to surrender and to suffer the remaining sentence for about a month. The incident is of 1997 and about 10 years have passed. (Para 14)

The sentence already undergone by the appellant is held sufficient and adequate in the facts and circumstances of the case. It is, however, ordered that the appellant will pay an additional amount of Rs 10,000 to the injured complainant over and above the amount of fine and compensation ordered to be paid by the courts below. (Para 16). Manjappa v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 6 SCC 231: (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 76: 2007 Cri LJ 3220.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-5-2007]

Om Prakash v. State of Haryana, (2001) 10 SCC 477: 2003 SCC (Cri) 799, distinguished [8366] — Ss. 323, 325 & 435 — Offences under committed by accused persons individually being not inspired by any unlawful object but in assertion of their legal customary right which the victims were trying to infringe — Sentences reduced to the period already undergone. Hathi Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1979) 4 SCC 340: 1979 SCC (Cri) 976.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-1-1979]

[8367] — Ss. 323 and 326 — Sentence — Age — Offender only 14 years of age but not entitled to benefit of Probation of Offenders Act or S. 562 CrPC, 1898 — Evidence showing that he joined in a moment of excitement and provocation — Sentence reduced to that already undergone. Bashista Kumar v. State of Bihar, (1969) 2 SCWR 91.

[8368] — Ss. 323 and 342 — Custodial violence/Illegal detention — Co-accused not filing appeal against his conviction — Effect of, on the appeal filed by other co-accused — Custodial violence/Illegal detention — Respondent complainant filing a private complaint against A-1, Sub-Inspector of Police and present appellant A-2, Head Constable on the allegation that he was detained in the police station for about four days illegally and was beaten up — Conviction of accused persons as recorded by Judicial Magistrate set aside by the first appellate court — In appeal by respondent, High Court finding that both accused persons were guilty of offences punishable under Ss. 323 and 342 and acquittal as recorded by first appellate court set aside — Only one co-accused preferring appeal before Supreme Court — On scrutiny, acquittal recorded by first appellate court found to be correct — Order of conviction passed by High Court set aside — Held, if a co-accused has not preferred any appeal against his conviction, there may be many reasons for doing so — However, no prejudice is caused to the appeal preferred by a co-accused — Appellant acquitted (Paras 13 to 15). Vadamalai v. Syed Thastha Keer, (2009) 3 SCC 454: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 142: AIR 2009 SC 1956: (2009) 2 ECrN 767 (SC): (2009) 77 AIC 142 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-2009]

[8369] — Ss. 323, 382, 420, 465, 468, 471, 120-B, 506 and 34 — Revisional powers of High Court — Exercise of in absence of accused — Sustainability — Respondent 1, a registered company filing a complaint petition before Metropolitan Magistrate alleging commission of offences purported to be under Ss. 323, 382, 420, 465, 468, 471, 120-B, 506 and 34 IPC accompanied by an application under S. 156(3) CrPC — Metropolitan Magistrate refusing to direct investigation in terms of S. 156(3) CrPC and complainant asked to lead pre-summoning evidence — However, High Court in revision application filed thereagainst wherein only State was impleaded, without hearing accused setting aside said order and directing Metropolitan Magistrate to examine matter afresh after calling report from police authorities — Held, one of the questions which arises for consideration is as to whether the learned Magistrate has taken cognizance of the offence — Indisputably, if he had taken cognizance of the offence and merely issuance of summons upon the accused persons had been postponed, in a criminal revision filed on behalf of the complainant, the accused was entitled to be heard before the High Court — S. 401(2) CrPC refers not only to an accused but also to any person and if he is prejudiced, he is required to be heard — An order was passed partially in his favour as Metropolitan Magistrate had refused to exercise its jurisdiction under S. 156(3) CrPC — Had an opportunity of hearing been given to the appellant, he could have shown that no revision application was maintainable and/or even otherwise, no case has been made out for interference with the impugned judgment — Besides, in the instant case learned Magistrate had taken cognizance — He had applied his mind and refused to exercise his jurisdiction under S. 156(3) CrPC — He arrived at a conclusion that the dispute is a private dispute in relation to an immovable property and, thus, police investigation is not necessary — It was only with that intent in view, he directed examination of the complainant and his witnesses — Hence, impugned judgment cannot be sustained and is accordingly set aside — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 397 & 401 and Ss. 156(3) & 200 (Paras 4 to 6, 11 to 14 and 19 to 23). Raghu Raj Singh Rousha v. Shivam Sundaram Promoters (P) Ltd., (2009) 2 SCC 363: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 801: (2009) 77 AIC 210 (SC): (2009) 2 ECrN 277 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-2008]

Mohd. Yousuf v. Afaq Jahan, (2006) 1 SCC 627: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 460, distinguished on facts

Chandra Deo Singh v. Prokash Chandra Bose, AIR 1963 SC 1430; Makkapati Nagaswara Sastri v. S.S. Satyanarayan, (1981) 1 SCC 62: 1981 SCC (Cri) 111; P. Sundarrajan v. R. Vidhya Sekar, (2004) 13 SCC 472: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 345;

Vadilal Panchal v. Dattatraya Dulaji Ghadigaonkar, AIR 1960 SC 1113; Divine Retreat Centre v. State of Kerala, (2008) 3 SCC 542: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 9, considered

[8370] — Ss. 323, 384, 504 r/w S. 34 — Compounding of — Compounding of offence — Compromise between the parties — Sustainability of — On an FIR, charge-sheet filed after investigation against the appellant for an offence under Ss. 323, 384, 504 r/w S. 34 IPC — Prior business relations between informant and accused — An application for discharge filed by the appellant under S. 239 CrPC, inter alia, on the ground that the dispute between the parties has been settled, rejected by the Judicial Magistrate on the ground that S. 384 IPC being non-compoundable, the said application was not sustainable — Application filed under S. 482 CrPC before the High Court also dismissed — Held, there was no allegation that money was paid by the informant having been put in fear of injury or putting him in such fear by the appellant was intentional — First informant, admittedly, had also not delivered any property or valuable security to the appellant — Hence, held, no case under S. 384 IPC was made out for proceeding against the appellant — Therefore, there was no reason to reject the settlement arrived at between the parties, as the same would not come within the purview of S. 320(9) CrPC — Hence, held, charge framed under S. 384 IPC quashed with the direction to the Magistrate to consider the maintainability of the compromise petition between the parties — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 320, 239 and 482

A written report was lodged by the second respondent alleging that some unknown persons came to his room and asked him to make payment of Rs 1500 due from him. On his reply that he would make the payment only of the amount due from him as per settled accounts, abusive language was used and he was slapped by one G. A sum of Rs 1580 was said to have been taken away from his upper pocket. An FIR was lodged on the basis of the report. However, the parties arrived at an amicable settlement of their dispute. A charge-sheet was filed on completion of investigation against the appellant for an offence under Sections 323, 384, 504 read with Section 34 IPC. Application filed by the appellant for discharge under Section 239 CrPC, inter alia, on the premise that the disputes between the parties had been settled, was rejected by the Judicial Magistrate on the ground that Section 384 IPC being non-compoundable, the said application was not sustainable. An application filed by the appellant under Section 482 CrPC before the High Court was dismissed by reason of the impugned judgment. Hence this present appeal.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

No case has been made out for proceeding against the appellant under Section 384 IPC. In that view of the matter, there was absolutely no reason as to why the settlement arrived at by and between the parties could not have been accepted, as the same would not come within the purview of sub-section (9) of Section 320 CrPC. (Para 16)

For the reasons aforementioned, while quashing the charge framed under Section 384 IPC, the learned Magistrate is directed to proceed to consider the question in regard to the maintainability of the compromise petition between the parties in accordance with law. (Para 17). Dhananjay v. State of Bihar, (2007) 14 SCC 768: (2007) 51 AIC 54 (SC): 2007 Cri LJ 1440: (2007) 2 KLJ 294 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-2-2007]

Bankat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 1 SCC 343: 2005 SCC (Cri) 316; Badrilal v. State of M.P., (2005) 7 SCC 55: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1597, distinguished

[8371] — Ss. 323, 406 and 498-A — Scope — Supplementary list of witnesses — Power of Magistrate to entertain — Held, power of Magistrate should not be fettered either under S. 244 or S. 246(6) CrPC and full latitude should be given to the Magistrate to exercise discretion to entertain supplementary list of witnesses — However, while accepting supplementary list, Magistrate shall exercise his discretion judiciously for advancement of the cause of justice and not to give a handle to the complainant to harass the accused — Also, discretion conferred on Magistrate should only be used in appropriate cases for reasons to be recorded — Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Ss. 3 and 4 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 246(6) and 244

The question was whether a supplementary list of witnesses could be furnished by the complainant and the Magistrate could summon those witnesses to be examined. The question was whatever witnesses who had been examined under Section 244 CrPC, whether the Magistrate could not entertain any further list of witnesses to be examined by the complainant to substantiate his allegation in the complaint. It is true that under Section 244 CrPC, if the charge is framed, then the prosecution has to examine the evidence produced by it in support of its case. After that the accused will have the right to cross-examine and the matter will proceed to be decided under Section 246 CrPC. But before the matter is decided and during the pendency of the trial could the Magistrate entertain any petition filed by the prosecution for examining additional evidence in support of its case. (Para 9)

The discretion of the Magistrate is nowhere fettered by any of the provisions contained in CrPC. In Section 244(1) CrPC, the expression used is, "the Magistrate shall proceed to hear the prosecution and take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution". Similarly, in Section 246(6) CrPC, the expression used is, "the evidence of any remaining witnesses for the prosecution shall next be taken". Therefore, the Magistrate has discretion, before he closes the trial, to summon the witnesses if it advances the cause of justice. However, there is a word of caution that the discretion which has been conferred on the Magistrate under Section 244(2) and Section 246(6) CrPC should only be used in appropriate cases for reasons to be recorded. The discretion should not be used fancifully and for a mala fide purpose to harass the accused. It is quite possible that sometimes when the complainant fails to substantiate the allegation, he may resort to dilatory tactics and thereby harass the accused by giving supplementary list to prolong the continuance of the case. This should be checked but in case it is found that in fact the application for summoning the additional witnesses is made for bona fide purpose and to substantiate the allegations made in the complaint, then the Magistrate may exercise such power in appropriate case. (Para 11)

The power of the Magistrate should not be fettered either under Section 244 or under Section 246(6) CrPC and full latitude should be given to the Magistrate to exercise the discretion to entertain a supplementary list of witnesses. But while accepting the supplementary list, the Magistrate shall exercise his discretion judiciously for the advancement of the cause of justice and not to give a handle to the complainant to harass the accused. (Para 19). Sayeeda Farhana Shamim v. State of Bihar, (2008) 8 SCC 218: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 449: AIR 2008 SC 2373: (2008) 2 KLT 1011: (2008) 67 AIC 60 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.K. Mathur and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-5-2008]

Jamuna Rani v. S. Krishna Kumar, 1993 Cri LJ 32; Nawal Kishore Shukla v. State of U.P., 1992 Cri LJ 1554; S. Vivekananthan v. R. Viswanathan, 1977 Cri LJ 425; V. Ratna Shenoy v. S.A. Prabhu, AIR 1967 Ker 233; State of Bombay v. Janardhan, AIR 1960 Bom 513; K. Somasundaram v. Gopal, AIR 1958 Mad 341, approved

Hari Pada Banerjee v. Hem Kanta Sen, AIR 1969 Cal 421, overruled

[8372] — Ss. 323, 504, 506, 117, 366-A & 373 — Bail — Grant of — Propriety of — Gravity of the offence ignored — Instead mitigating factors considered — Matter treated in a cursory manner — Cancellation of bail — Effect of long passage of time — 31 minor girls rescued from houses of some of respondent-accused — Bail granted to respondent-accused by impugned judgment on ground that: (i) no specific role was assigned to them, nor was there any description of their activities in statements of witnesses recorded under S. 161 CrPC, (ii) statements of witnesses were not recorded under S. 164 CrPC which would have given weight to their testimony, and (iii) there was no specific evidence regarding inducing or taking a specific person for the sake of prostitution — Held, High Court was not correct in dealing with the matter in such a cursory manner — Further held, recording of statements of girls under S. 164 CrPC was not necessary — However, considering the fact that respondent-accused had been granted bail long time back, and in some cases trials also had been concluded, cancellation of bail not ordered — Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956, Ss. 3, 5, 6, 7 & 9 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 437 and 439. Guria, Swayam Sevi Sansthan v. State of U.P., (2009) 15 SCC 75.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-2009]

Puran v. Rambilas, (2001) 6 SCC 338: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1124, relied on [8373] — Ss. 323, 506, 427, 354 and 452 — Transfer petition — In order to alleviate the hardships of all the parties, the case pending in the Court of CJM, Muzaffarnagar transferred to the Court of CJM, Sirsa (Haryana), where the other case was pending — Having regard to the difficulty of complainant in attending the court proceedings, permission granted to her for being present in the court through her counsel — CrPC, 1973, S. 406. Kanta Rani v. Savitri Devi, (2001) 10 SCC 32.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-8-2000]

[8374] — Ss. 323, 506, 498-A, 307 and 504 — What is binding — "Law declared by Supreme Court" — Reliance on judgment of Supreme Court, on facts, if was proper — High Court while dismissing the application for quashing the prosecution, relying on Bodhisattwa Gautam case, (1996) 1 SCC 490 and directing that the accused shall not be arrested in the said case till conclusion of the trial, provided an amount of compensation is paid to the wife @ Rs 4000 per month — Held, the said case had no application to the present case since no such direction that upon payment of such a compensation, the accused shall not be arrested was given — Hence, High Court's order set aside — Constitution of India, Art. 141 (Paras 3 and 4). Pushpraj Sachdeva v. State of U.P., (2006) 9 SCC 758.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-11-2005]

Bodhisattwa Gautam v. Subhra Chakraborty, (1996) 1 SCC 490: 1996 SCC (Cri) 133, explained and distinguished

— S. 323 r/w S. 34 See also Ss. 302, 307 r/w 34 or 326, 324 and 323 r/w 34

See also S. 302 r/w S. 34 and S. 323 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 302 and 323 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 302, 325, 324 and 323 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 304 Pt. II and 323 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 325 and 323 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 364, 302 and 323 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 452 and 323 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 452/302 and 323 r/w S. 34

— S. 323 r/w S. 109 See Ss. 377, 373, 372, 323 r/w Ss. 109 and 120-B

— S. 323 r/w S. 120-B See Ss. 302, 364 and 323 r/w 120-B

See also Ss. 364, 302 and 323 r/w 120-B

See also Ss. 377, 373, 372, 323 r/w Ss. 109 and 120-B

— S. 323 r/w S. 149 See also Ss. 147, 427 r/w 149 and 323 r/w 149

See also Ss. 148, 302, 149, 325 r/w S. 149 and S. 323 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 148, 302 r/w 149 and 323 r/w 149

See also Ss. 302, 325, 323 r/w S. 149, Ss. 147 and 148

See also Ss. 302 r/w S. 149 and Ss. 147, 148 and 323 r/w S. 149

— Ss. 323/34 See also Ss. 34, 302, 304 Pt. II/34 and 323/34

See also S. 34 [Ss. 304 Pt. II/34 and Ss. 323/34]

See also Ss. 34/304 Pt. II, 323/34 and 149

See also Ss. 97, 99, 304 Pt. II/34 and Ss. 323/34

See also Ss. 285 and 323/34

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 308/34 and 323/34

See also Ss. 308/34, 323/34, 324, 325 and 326

See also Ss. 326, 325/34 and Ss. 323/34

See also Ss. 376(2)(g), 452/34 and 323/34

See also Ss. 436/34, 304, Pt. II/34 and 323/34

[8375] — Ss. 323/34 — Injuries not proved — Injured persons not testifying — Conviction cannot stand. Shyam Niranjan Dubey v. State of U.P., (1974) 3 SCC 771: 1974 SCC (Cri) 247: AIR 1974 SC 541: 1974 Cri LJ 475.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and Y.V. Chandrachud, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-12-1973]

— Ss. 323/120-B See also Ss. 307, 427, 323/120-B, 148 and 149

— Ss. 323/149 See also Ss. 97, 100, 302, 302/149, 323 and 323/149

See also Ss. 148, 147, 307, 307/149, 324, 324/149, 323 and 323/149

See also Ss. 148, 147, 323/149 and 324/149

See also Ss. 148, 323/149 and 304 Pt. II/34

See also under S. 149

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 324/149, 323/149 and 148

See also Ss. 325/149, 323/149 and 147

See also Ss. 376, 147, 323/149, 342, 458 and 366

[8376] — Ss. 323/324/34 and 148/149/307/325 — Arrest and custody — What are — Voluntary appearance of accused before Magistrate and obtaining bail, if amounts to — Precondition for applying for bail — Constitution of India, Arts. 20 and 21 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 439 and 46(1) & (2)

D, the respondent in first of the present two appeals and L and B, the appellants in the other appeal applied for appointment as Constable-Drivers under Haryana Police. The application forms contained a query as to whether the applicant had ever been arrested. D answered the said question in the negative. On verification it was found that D had been arrested in connection with a case arising out of an FIR registered under Sections 323/324/34 IPC. In that case, he was ultimately acquitted by the Magistrate. Moreover, he had not surrendered to the police but had voluntarily appeared before the Magistrate and had prayed for bail and was released on bail. The Department took the view that in answering the said question in the application form in the negative D had concealed the said facts. Accordingly, D was denied appointment.

D then approached the High Court contending that since in the said case, he had been granted bail without having been actually arrested he could not be said to have suppressed any information by replying in the negative the said question. Upholding his contention, the High Court directed the Department to issue an appointment letter to D. The Department then filed one of the present appeals by special leave.

In the other appeal, L and B had been involved in a criminal case registered with the police under Sections 148/149/307/325/323 IPC but they had been subsequently acquitted of the said charges. In regard to another FIR under Sections 323/324/34, they appeared before the Magistrate and were released on their personal bonds without being placed under arrest or being taken into custody. They were also denied appointment. A coordinate Bench of the same High Court dismissed their writ petitions without examining the question as to whether they had actually been arrested or not. It held that L and B had withheld important information regarding their prosecution in a criminal case though ultimately they were acquitted. L and B then filed the second of the present two appeals by special leave.

The common question arising in both the appeals before the Supreme Court was whether the appearance of the applicants before the Magistrate in the said manner and their release without being taken into formal custody, could amount to "arrest".

The Department contended that when the persons concerned appeared before the Magistrates and prayed for bail, it must be understood that they had surrendered to the custody of the court, as otherwise, the provisions of Section 439 of the Code would not have had application. That it did not matter as to whether the accused persons had been arrested and detained in custody by the police or not.

On the other hand, D and L and B contended that although technically the appearance of the accused before the Magistrate might amount to surrender to judicial custody, it was on a layman's understanding of the principle of "arrest" and "custody" that prompted them to mention that they had never been arrested.

Upholding the contentions raised by the Department, but in the peculiar circumstances of the case, dismissing the Department's appeal and allowing the appeal of the applicants, the Supreme Court

Held :

The expression "arrest" has neither been defined in CrPC nor in IPC or any other enactment dealing with criminal offences. However, from Sections 46(1) & (2) CrPC this much is clear that in order to make an arrest the police officer or other person making the same shall actually touch or confine the body of the person to be arrested, unless there be submission to the custody by word or action. Similarly, the expression "custody" has also not been defined in CrPC. (Paras 13 to 15)

The Department is right in its submission that unless a person accused of an offence is in custody, he cannot move the court for bail under Section 439 CrPC, which provides for release on bail of any person accused of an offence and in custody. The precondition, therefore, for applying the provisions of Section 439 CrPC is that a person who is an accused must be in custody and his movements must have been restricted before he can move for bail. (Para 25)

In the instant case the accused persons had appeared before the Magistrates concerned and on applying for bail were granted bail without being taken into formal custody, which appears to have swayed one of the Benches of the High Court to take a liberal view and to hold that no arrest had actually been effected. The said view is incorrect as it goes against the very grain of Sections 46 and 439 CrPC. (Para 26)

Sections 107 and 108 of the Customs Act do not contemplate immediate arrest of a person being summoned in connection with an enquiry, but only contemplate surrendering to the custody of the Customs Officer which could subsequently lead to arrest and detention. In such context the Full Bench of the Madras High Court returned a finding in Roshan Beevi case, 1984 Cri LJ 134, that "custody" and "arrest" are not synonymous terms and observed that it is true that in every arrest there is a custody but not vice versa. A custody may amount to "arrest" in certain cases, but not in all cases. The interpretation of "arrest" and "custody" rendered by the Full Bench in Roshan Beevi case may be relevant in the context of Sections 107 and 108 of the Customs Act where summons in respect of an enquiry may amount to "custody" but not to "arrest", but such custody could subsequently materialise into arrest. The position is different as far as proceedings in the court are concerned in relation to enquiry into offences under the Penal Code and other criminal enactments. In the latter set of cases, in order to obtain the benefit of bail an accused has to surrender to the custody of the court or the police authorities before he can be granted the benefit thereunder. (Paras 24, 20 and 27)

It is, therefore, held that the views expressed by the High Court in D's writ petition regarding arrest were incorrect, while the views expressed in the writ petitions filed by L & B correctly interpreted the meaning of the expressions "arrest" and "custody". However, how far the same would apply in the ultimate analysis relating to their answer in their application forms is another matter altogether. (Para 30)

The reasoning given in D's case in that context is a possible view and does not call for interference under Article 136 of the Constitution. Conversely, the decision rendered in the writ petitions filed by L and B has to be reversed to be in line with the decision in D's case. When the question as to what constitutes "arrest" has for long engaged the attention of different High Courts as also the Supreme Court, it may not be altogether unreasonable to expect a layman to construe that he had never been arrested on his appearing before the court and being granted bail immediately. The position would have been different, had the person concerned not been released on bail. In the facts of the present cases, the benefit of a mistaken impression, rather than that of deliberate and wilful misrepresentation and concealment of facts, has to be given to the appellants in the second of the two appeals as well. (Paras 31 and 32). State of Haryana v. Dinesh Kumar, (2008) 3 SCC 222: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 722: AIR 2008 SC 1083: (2008) 63 AIC 265 (SC): (2008) 2 SLR 331: (2008) 2 LLN 120.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-1-2008]

Roshan Beevi v. Jt. Secy. to the Govt. of T.N., 1984 Cri LJ 134 (Mad), limited

Niranjan Singh v. Prabhakar Rajaram Kharote, (1980) 2 SCC 559: 1980 SCC (Cri) 508, affirmed

State of U.P. v. Deoman Upadhyaya, AIR 1960 SC 1125, relied on

Halsbury's Laws of England (4th Edn.), Vol. 11, para 99, referred to [8377] — Ss. 323/343/355 and 365 — Reduction of sentence due to compromise between the parties — Offences under Ss. 323/343/355 and 365 IPC — Compromise between the parties — Maintaining the conviction of appellants under the said sections, sentence reduced to the period already undergone — Sentence of fine and imprisonment in default of payment of fine not interfered with — Out of the fine paid, Rs 25,000 directed to be paid to each of the two injured persons — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 320 and 357. Murugesan v. Ganapathy Velar, (2001) 10 SCC 504.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand, C.J. and R.C. Lahoti and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-11-2000]

— S. 324 See also S. 34 and Ss. 302, 307, 326, 324, 148 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 34 and 302, 324 and 323

See also Ss. 34 and 324

See also Ss. 34, 324 and 302/149

See also Ss. 84, 302 and 324

See also Ss. 96, 100, 103, 304 Pt. I, 326 and 324

See also Ss. 96, 100, 104, 304 Pt. I, 324 and 148

See also Ss. 96, 104, 304 Pt. I, 324 and 148

See also Ss. 96 and 147, 148, 302, 307, 323 and 324

See also Ss. 96 and 302/34, 326, 324, 452

See also Ss. 97, 100, 104, 304 Pt. I, 324 and 148

See also Ss. 97, 104, 304 Pt. I, 324 and 148

See also Ss. 97 and 147, 148, 302, 307, 323, 324

See also Ss. 97, 304 Pt. I, 324 and 148

See also Ss. 103, 100, 304 Pt. I, 326 and 324

See also Ss. 143, 147, 148, 341, 323, 324 and 302 r/w S. 149

See also S. 147

See also Ss. 147, 148, 341, 504, 506, 324, 326 r/w S. 149

See also S. 148

See also Ss. 148, 365, 342, 323, 324 and 302/149

See also Ss. 149, 148, 324 and 326

See also S. 149 r/w Ss. 302, 307, 449, 323 to 325 and 148

See also S. 149 r/w Ss. 302 and 324, 143, 144, 147

See also Ss. 153-A, 201, 302, 326, 324, 419 and 436

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also S. 302 and Ss. 147, 148, 324, 326, 307 and 302 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 302 and 324 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 304-B, 498-A, 306 and 324

See also Ss. 307, 149, 147, 427 and 324

See also Ss. 307 and 324

See also Ss. 307, 324 and 114

See also Ss. 307, 324 and 498-A

See also Ss. 308, 320 Seventhly and 324

See also Ss. 308/34, 323/34, 324, 325 and 326

See also Ss. 320, 326 and 324

See also Ss. 320 Seventhly 326 and 324

See also Ss. 321, 322, 324 and 326

See also Ss. 323, 324 and 34

See also S. 326 or S. 307 or Ss. 323 and 324

See also Ss. 326 and 324

See also Ss. 326, 324 and 307

See also Ss. 326, 325 and 324

See also Ss. 341, 326, 504 and 506 r/w S. 34 and Ss. 324 and 325 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 364, 324, 323, 149 and 148

See also Ss. 376(1) r/w S. 511 and Ss. 324 and 452

See also Ss. 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER, 'C.12. Hurt, grievous or not, with or without dangerous weapons or means (Ss. 319 to 338)', in Vol. 2

[8378] — S. 324 — Accused causing lacerated wound by a pharsa

The accused was responsible for the injury on the head which he had given with a pharsa. The injury is described by the doctor as a lacerated wound on the left side of the head on the parietal region. It is also described as a simple injury. It is obvious that though a pharsa has been used, the sharp edge of the pharsa might not have been used. But since this injury was caused by an instrument, which used as a weapon of offence, is likely to cause death, the offence would be one under S. 324, IPC. Jai Narain Mishra v. State of Bihar, (1971) 3 SCC 762: 1972 SCC (Cri) 40: AIR 1972 SC 1764: 1972 Cri LJ 469.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Ray and D.G. Palekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-11-1971]

[8379] — S. 324 — Amendment not applicable to offences committed prior to 23-6-2006 — Offence under S. 324 IPC, committed on 23-7-1986 i.e. prior to coming into effect of Amendment Act, 2005, held, compoundable with permission of court — CrPC (Amendment) Act, 2005, S. 28(a) — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 320(2) [prior to coming into force of CrPC (Amendment) Act, 2005 w.e.f. 23-6-2006] and (8) (Paras 5 to 7). Hirabhai Jhaverbhai v. State of Gujarat, (2010) 6 SCC 688.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: J.M. Panchal and S.S. Nijjar, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-4-2010]

[8380] — S. 324 — Application for extension of time for the payment of fine imposed by the court — Where the first application for the said relief was rejected, filing of two more applications for extension of time, which also stood dismissed, held, was not proper — However, even though the accused was ill-advised to file so many applications after each rejection, appeal allowed granting one month's time to make the deposit of fine — CrPC, 1973, S. 482. Mahendra Singh v. State of Bihar, (2002) 10 SCC 678: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1158: AIR 2002 SC 387.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik and U.C. Banerjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-2001]

[8381] — S. 324 — Blow inflicted by blunt side of axe on thigh of the victim — Held, conviction should be under S. 324 instead of S. 326 or 307 — Sentence of 2 years' RI imposed by High Court under Ss. 326/34 reduced to four months' imprisonment already undergone — But sentence of fine raised from Rs 1000 to Rs 3000 and in case of default 6 months' SI imposed. Bishna v. State of Haryana, 1987 Supp SCC 184: 1988 SCC (Cri) 48.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Ranganath Misra and M.M. Dutt, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-1-1987]

[8382] — S. 324 — Boy of 20 years going unarmed in a cobbler's shop and after a heated discussion picking up rambi lying in the shop and inflicting blows with it on the shopkeeper on spur of the moment — Whether the blows resulted in injuries on eyebrow and palm of the victim disputed — In the circumstances conviction under S. 324 maintained — But having regard to age of the accused at the time of occurrence benefit of S. 6 of Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 granted by releasing him on bond — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 6. Ram Lal v. State of Punjab, 1989 Supp (1) SCC 21: 1989 SCC (Cri) 123.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: G.L. Oza, B.C. Ray and K. Jagannatha Shetty, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-1-1988]

[8383] — S. 324 — Causing burn injuries by pouring kerosene and lighting it — Evidence of prosecutrix corroborated by medical evidence — No motive on part of the prosecutrix to falsely implicate the accused — Her evidence found to be reliable and truthful — On facts non-examination of any neighbour inconsequential — Judgment of trial court convicting the accused under S. 324 IPC restored. State of Karnataka v. Ganapathy, 1994 SCC (Cri) 1165, 116.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-2-1993]

[8384] — S. 324 — Circumstantial evidence — Deceased having sustained knife assault, hospitalised and discharged the next day but dying 5 days after the assault — Nothing to connect his death with the assault — Accused only seen running away from the place of occurrence with knife in his hand having no blood-stains thereon — Proved circumstances, held, cannot be said to be incompatible with the innocence of the accused — Hence, conviction under S. 324, Indian Penal Code set aside. Jagdish Prashad v. State, (1980) 1 SCC 609: 1980 SCC (Cri) 311: AIR 1979 SC 1510: 1979 Cri LJ 1125.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-2-1979]

[8385] — S. 324 — Compounding of offence committed under S. 324 IPC — Application for — Complainant having no objection to it — Offence permitted to be compounded — Conviction and sentence set aside — CrPC, 1973, S. 320 (Paras 7 and 8). Avinash Shetty v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 13 SCC 375.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-9-2004]

[8386] — S. 324 — Compounding of offence under — Matters to be considered by court — Offence under S. 324 IPC (voluntarily causing hurt by dangerous weapon) — Compoundability of — Matters to be considered by court — Held, amendment made in the Table under S. 320 CrPC, by means of the CrPC (Amendment) Act, 2005, against S. 324 IPC, has not yet been brought into force — Offence under S. 324 IPC is therefore still compoundable with court's permission — In present case compounding of offence found to be complainant's voluntary act inasmuch as the complainant and appellants were residents of the same village and compromise was brought about by intervention of village panchayat — The complainant and appellants categorically stating in their affidavits filed in the Supreme Court that after the incident, they had developed family relations and wished to live peacefully in the village without any kind of disruption in their future lives — Compounding allowed by the Supreme Court — Conviction set aside and appellants who were in prison, set free — CrPC, 1973, S. 320 (Paras 14 to 17). Manoj v. State of M.P., (2008) 9 SCC 116: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 699.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.V. Raveendran and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-9-2008]

[8387] — S. 324 — Compounding of offences — Voluntarily causing hurt by dangerous weapons or means (Penal Code, 1860, S. 324) — Offence committed on 15-6-1995 i.e. prior to the date (23-6-2006) when offence made non-compoundable — Offence allowed to compounded and held, appellants entitled to acquittal under S. 320(8) — CrPC (Amendment) Act, 2005 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 320(1), Table and 320(8) (Paras 16 to 19). Mohd. Abdul Sufan Laskar v. State of Assam, (2008) 9 SCC 333: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 770: (2008) 70 AIC 129 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-8-2008]

Vinay Devanna Nayak v. Ryot Sewa Sahakari Bank Ltd., (2008) 2 SCC 305: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 351, relied on [8388] — S. 324 — Conviction under — Assault with bhala on right elbow by A-2 and assault with farsa on head as well as on both hands by A-6 causing incised wounds — Conviction of the accused under S. 324 and sentence of 3 years' RI by courts below — Held, no interference called for (Para 17). Malhu Yadav v. State of Bihar, (2002) 5 SCC 724: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1190: AIR 2002 SC 2137: 2002 Cri LJ 2819.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.P. Sethi and Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-2002]

[8389] — S. 324 — Expression "any instrument which, used as a weapon of offence, is likely to cause death" — Meaning of — Held, when read in the light of marginal note to S. 324 means dangerous weapon which if used by the offender is likely to cause death (Para 13). Anwarul Haq v. State of U.P., (2005) 10 SCC 581: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1629: AIR 2005 SC 2382: 2005 Cri LJ 2602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2005]

[8390] — S. 324 — Expression "any instrument, which used as a weapon of offence, is likely to cause death" — Mode of construction of — Held, should be construed with reference to the nature of the instrument and not the manner of its use (Para 12). Anwarul Haq v. State of U.P., (2005) 10 SCC 581: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1629: AIR 2005 SC 2382: 2005 Cri LJ 2602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2005]

[8391] — S. 324 — Knife injuries caused to the complainant — Absence of evidence to show that the said injuries were caused with the intention as envisaged under S. 3(1), TADA — Held, in facts and circumstances of the case recourse to S. 3(1) is a clear misuse of the provisions of the Act — Conviction under S. 3(1), TADA set aside — However, conviction under S. 324 IPC maintained — TADA, 1987, S. 3(1). Mohd. Saleem v. State of Gujarat, (1994) 5 SCC 369: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1501.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-7-1994]

Hitendra Vishnu Thakur v. State of Maharashtra, (1994) 4 SCC 602, followed

[8392] — S. 324 — Lathi injuries caused one on forearm and the other on shoulder of deceased — Who among the two accused (Appellants 3 and 4) caused the forearm injury not clear from the testimony of eyewitnesses — But the shoulder injury was caused by Appellant 4 was clear from evidence — Held, Appellant 4 liable to be convicted under S. 324 and sentenced to two years' RI and fine of Rs 500 — But Appellant 3 entitled to be acquitted (Paras 9 and 10). Mukati Prasad Rai v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 144: 2005 SCC (Cri) 69: AIR 2005 SC 1271: 2005 Cri LJ 681.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2004]

[8393] — S. 324 — Offence under — Parties compounded the offence at appellate stage — Permission to compound offence granted

The offence under S. 324, Indian Penal Code is compoundable with the permission of the Court. Where the parties have amicably settled the matter, it would be in the fitness of things if permission to compound the offence is granted. Bhim Singh v.

State of U.P., (1974) 4 SCC 97: 1974 SCC (Cri) 354: AIR 1974 SC 1744: 1974 Cri LJ 1285: 1973 (10) ACC 352.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-7-1973]

[8394] — S. 324 — Offence under — Proof — Held, prosecution to establish that the accused voluntarily caused hurt and that such hurt was caused by means of an instrument referred to in S. 324 (Para 12). Anwarul Haq v. State of U.P., (2005) 10 SCC 581: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1629: AIR 2005 SC 2382: 2005 Cri LJ 2602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2005]

[8395] — S. 324 — Offence under S. 324, IPC — Application for permission to compound the offence on terms already agreed upon with complainant — Complainant not present before Supreme Court — Trial court directed to verify genuineness of compromise and accord permission after recording its satisfaction — Fine imposed upon petitioner directed to be paid to complainant — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Tanveer Aquil v. State of M.P., 1990 Supp SCC 63: 1990 SCC (Cri) 618.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jagannatha Shetty and A.M. Ahmadi, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-2-1989]

[8396] — S. 324 — Reasons for prescribing a severe punishment in relation to offence under — Observations made by authors of IPC in this regard, taken note of (Para 14). Anwarul Haq v. State of U.P., (2005) 10 SCC 581: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1629: AIR 2005 SC 2382: 2005 Cri LJ 2602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2005]

[8397] — S. 324 — Sentence — Mitigating circumstances — Causing burn injuries by pouring kerosene and lighting it — Occurrence taking place more than 12 years ago and respondent being on bail all through — In view of present trend in the field of penology sentence of 2 years' RI reduced to a fine of Rs 2000 to be paid to the prosecutrix by way of compensation for injuries sustained by her — CrPC, 1973, S. 357. State of Karnataka v. Ganapathy, 1994 SCC (Cri) 1165.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-2-1993]

[8398] — S. 324 — Sentence — Serious injury caused in abdomen with a razor — No justification for reaching the sentence of 1 year's RI. Abadhraj Dukharam Pande v. State of Maharashtra, (1980) 1 SCC 80: 1980 SCC (Cri) 154: AIR 1979 SC 1703: 1979 Cri LJ 1388.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1979]

[8399] — S. 324 — Sentence of one-year rigorous imprisonment imposed in relation to offence under S. 324 IPC — Plea to reduce the sentence to period already undergone i.e. 10 months — Considering the facts of the case, held, it would not be proper to show any leniency — Plea as to reduction of sentence rejected (Para 16). Anwarul Haq v. State of U.P., (2005) 10 SCC 581: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1629: AIR 2005 SC 2382: 2005 Cri LJ 2602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2005]

[8400] — S. 324 — TADA, 1985 — S. 6 — Arms Act, 1959 — S. 27 — Bullet injuries caused to the complainant's left toe and calf by the accused — Evidence of injured complainant found reliable — Recovery of revolver pursuant to disclosure statement made by the accused — Report of ballistic expert indicating that the empty cartridge (seized from the place of occurrence) could be fired from the revolver in question and not from any other weapon — Held, in the circumstances of the case the accused rightly convicted under S. 324 IPC and also under S. 6 TADA Act, 1985 read with S. 27, Arms Act — Having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case reduction in sentence not called for. Ved Parkash v. State of Haryana, 1996 SCC (Cri) 1182: AIR 1996 SC 2795.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-8-1996]

[8401] — S. 324 — Voluntarily causing hurt by dangerous weapons or means — Accused causing serious injuries on right hand of PW 1 by giving knife-blows — Conviction — Propriety — Failure of prosecution to recover crime weapon, not fatal — Plea that weapon used was not a dangerous weapon, not raised before the courts below — Held, trial court analysed the evidence in great detail — Evidence of eyewitnesses found reliable — There was no scope for interference — Conviction and sentence upheld — Constitution of India, Art. 136 (Paras 11, 15 and 16). Anwarul Haq v. State of U.P., (2005) 10 SCC 581: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1629: AIR 2005 SC 2382: 2005 Cri LJ 2602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-2005]

[8402] — Ss. 324 and 188 — Applicability — Appellant catching hold of the complainant's collar from behind and, demanding of him as to why he was moving during curfew, assaulting the complainant with a razor causing thereby an injury on the cheek — Allegation by the complainant at the trial that the injury was caused after enquiring the name of the complainant and thereby identifying his community, not substantiated from record — In such circumstances the offence committed by the appellant, held, not covered by Ss. 3(1) and 3(2)(ii) of TADA — However, conviction of the appellant under Ss. 324/188 IPC and S. 135 of Bombay Police Act, held, proper — Bombay Police Act, 1951 (22 of 1951), S. 135(1) — TADA, 1987, Ss. 3(1) & 3(2)(ii)

In the complaint filed by the complainant no allegation whatsoever was made by him which could even remotely attract the provisions of Section 3(1) of TADA. All that the complainant disclosed in the complaint is that the appellant had caught hold of his shirt collar from behind and warned him as to why he was moving about during the curfew and then assaulted him with the razor, which he had taken out from the pocket of his pants and caused an injury on his left cheek. Thus, in the complaint a simple case of causing an injury by a sharp-edged weapon was projected. At the trial, indeed, an effort was made by the complainant to improve his version and say that the assailant had before assaulting him, enquired of his name also and so soon as he had disclosed his name, the assailant took out the razor from his pocket and gave him an injury on his cheek. The Designed Court read into this evidence a streak of communal violence and opined that attack was made by the appellant, a Muslim, on learning that the victim was a Hindu. However, there is not even an iota of evidence on the record from which such an inference could be justified. In the established facts and circumstances of the case, recourse to Section 3(1) of TADA was clearly misplaced and unwarranted. There is no evidence available on the record to show that the injury was caused to the complainant with the intention as envisaged by Section 3(1) of TADA to achieve the objective as detailed in the said section. Recourse to the provisions of Section 3(1) of TADA in the established facts and circumstances of this case, appears to be clear misuse rather abuse of the provisions of TADA. The conviction and sentence of the appellant for the offence under Section 3(1) of TADA punishable under Section 3(2)(ii) of TADA, is not at all sustainable and is liable to be set aside. However, the conviction and sentence of the appellant for the offences under Sections 324/188 IPC and 135(1) of the Bombay Police Act as recorded by the Designated Court are maintained. Hajimiya Sodumiya Sayyad v. State of Gujarat, 1998 SCC (Cri) 565.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-4-1995]

Hitendra Vishnu Thakur v. State of Maharashtra, (1994) 4 SCC 602: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1087, followed [8403] — Ss. 324, 302 & 32 — Appellant's causing fatal injury not proved beyond reasonable doubt — Co-accused convicted for causing simple injury — Held, appellant could be convicted for causing simple injury and not for the fatal one. Ashok Kumar v. State of Punjab, (1977) 1 SCC 746: 1977 SCC (Cri) 177: AIR 1977 SC 109: 1977 Cri LJ 164.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, V.R. Krishna Iyer and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-9-1976]

[8404] — S. 324 and S. 302 r/w S. 34 — Takwa blow inflicted on ear of the victim causing simple injuries — In absence of any pre-concert and meeting of minds between the accused-appellant and his colleague who inflicted the fatal blow, conviction under S. 324 instead of that under S. 302 read with S. 34 proper — Sentence reduced to two and a half years' imprisonment already undergone. Jarnail Singh v. State of Punjab, (1982) 3 SCC 221: 1982 SCC (Cri) 701: AIR 1982 SC 70: 1982 Cri LJ 386.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-4-1981]

[8405] — Ss. 324 and 307 — Gunshots fired by accused in the courtyard of the victims causing simple injuries — Intention to cause injuries within the meaning of S. 307 thus lacking — Conviction under S. 324 not under S. 307 proper — Sentence reduced to 16 months' imprisonment already undergone. Kundan Singh v. State of Punjab, (1982) 3 SCC 213: 1982 SCC (Cri) 700(1): AIR 1982 SC 62: 1982 Cri LJ 626(2).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-4-1981]

[8406] — Ss. 324 and 307 — On facts, conviction under S. 307 altered to one under S. 324 and sentence reduced to one year's R.I. — No law point laid down. Dharma Pal v. State of Punjab, AIR 1993 SC 2484: 1993 Cri LJ 2856.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-5-1993]

[8407] — S. 324 or 307 — Gunshot fired causing only superficial pellet injuries to the victim — Injuries not being such as likely to cause death, conviction altered from S. 307 to S. 324 with sentence of one year's RI. Ved Pal v. State of U.P., 1987 Supp SCC 596: 1988 SCC (Cri) 131.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and V. Balakrishna Eradi, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-1987]

[8408] — Ss. 324, 307 and 320 — Assault with sword on vital part of the body like neck but inflicting simple injuries not likely to cause death — In the circumstances conviction under S. 307 altered to that under S. 324 — Parties having compromised, the offence under S. 324 allowed to be compounded subject to payment of Rs 3000 as compensation to the victim. Narendra Kumar v. State of Rajasthan, 1988 Supp SCC 536: 1988 SCC (Cri) 884.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-8-1987]

[8409] — S. 324 or Ss. 307/34 — Single injury inflicted in the back of neck — Conviction under S. 307/34 converted to that under S. 324 — Sentence of imprisonment reduced to the period already undergone — Fine of Rs 3000 to be paid to complainant. Ramesh v. State of U.P., (1992) 1 SCC 318: 1992 SCC (Cri) 183: AIR 1992 SC 664: 1992 Cri LJ 609.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and R.M. Sahai, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-11-1991]

[8410] — Ss. 324 and 323 — Conviction under — Reduction of sentence — Appreciation of evidence therefor — Trial court convicting Appellant 1 under S. 324, sentencing him to 3 years' RI with fine and Appellants 2 and 3 under S. 323, sentencing them to 1 year RI with fine, which affirmed by High Court — Sustainability — Considering facts and circumstances and appreciating evidence on record, held, sentence awarded to Appellant 1 be reduced to 1 years' RI and that of Appellants 2 and 3, be reduced to the period already undergone (almost 7 months' RI) (Para 4). Ramji Jiranga Pawar v. State of Maharashtra, (2008) 17 SCC 472: (2008) 67 AIC 13 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.P. Naolekar and V.S. Sirpurkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

[8411] — Ss. 324 and 325 — Supreme Court under Art. 136 allowing compounding of the offences where the parties were closely related — Conviction and order of sentence set aside and accused acquitted — Constitution of India — Art. 136 — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Hindu Singh v. State of U.P., (1982) 3 SCC 368(2): 1983 SCC (Cri) 49(2).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and V.D. Tulzapurkar, J. [Date of decision: 29-1-1981]

[8412] — Ss. 324 and 325 — Compounding of offences allowed by Supreme Court under — CrPC, 1973, S. 320 — Constitution of India, Art. 136. Hindu Singh v. State of U.P., (1982) 3 SCC 368(2): 1983 SCC (Cri) 49(2).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and V.D. Tulzapurkar, J. [Date of decision: 29-1-1981]

[8413] — Ss. 324, 325 and 326 — Sentence reduced on accused agreeing to pay fine — Fine amount directed to be paid to the victims. Nain Ram v. State of U.P., (1982) 3 SCC 197: 1982 SCC (Cri) 685.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and V.R. Krishna Iyer and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-9-1980]

[8414] — Ss. 324 and 326 — No grievous injury sustained by the victim on any vital part — Nor any fracture of a serious nature found — Conviction under S. 326 altered to that under S. 324 & fine of Rs 2000 substituted for the prison term — Fine to be paid to victim as compensation. Kailash Prasad Kanodia v. State of Bihar, 1980 Supp SCC 372: 1981 SCC (Cri) 285: AIR 1980 SC 106: 1980 Cri LJ 190.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-4-1979]

[8415] — Ss. 324 and 326 — Sentence — Mitigating factors — Two years' and 5 years' RI and fine of Rs 2500 imposed on appellant under, for throwing acid on the face of a young girl — Though such a crime deserves no leniency, but the appellant, being a student and having already undergone 14 months' RI, the sentence reduced to the period already undergone and instead fine enhanced to Rs 7500 to be paid to the victim, but in the event of failure to pay the fine the original sentence to be restored. Anil Kumar Pandey v. State of U.P., (1982) 2 SCC 395: 1982 SCC (Cri) 443.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and E.S. Venkataramiah, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1982]

[8416] — Ss. 324, 326, 328 and 34 — Illicit or spurious liquor business — Hooch tragedy wherein 31 persons dying, 6 going blind and 500 suffering serious injuries due to consumption of spurious liquor — Persons liable for — Mixing or permitting to mix noxious substance with liquor — Wide scope of expression "whoever mixes or permits to be mixed" in S. 57-A(1) of Kerala Act, and liability thereunder — Need, if any, for personal physical involvement in mixing to attract liability under S. 57-A of Kerala Act — Extent of knowledge/mens rea required to be proved — Poisonous substance, methyl alcohol (also known chemically as methanol), added to ethyl alcohol (also known chemically as ethanol) — Mixing not done properly resulting in death, blindness and other ailments to several persons — Criminal liability of Hooch King (A-7) and his two brothers who were involved in business of spurious liquor which had led to tragedy in question — Held, A-7 who was kingpin of business, was punishable under S. 57-A(1) because business of spurious liquor was being carried out under his overall control even though mixing was not being done personally by him — His brother, A-8, who was actively participating in the business, particularly in clandestine transporting of spurious liquor, was also liable under the expression "permits to be mixed" — Traces of methyl alcohol found in vehicle under control of A-8 — Inference therefore drawn that A-8 was aware that methyl alcohol was being added to ethyl alcohol — Third brother, A-4, who too was involved in this business was also liable on same count — Hence conviction of A-7, A-8 and A-4 under S. 57-A(1)(ii) r/w S. 120-B IPC and sentence of life imprisonment and fine of Rs 50,000 imposed thereunder, maintained — Kerala Abkari Act, 1077 ME (1 of 1077), S. 57-A(1) (as introduced vide 1984 amendment)

As many as 31 persons had lost their lives, 6 persons had suffered total blindness in Kollam District whereas more than 500 persons suffered serious injuries on account of drinking of illicit liquor. On the law being set into motion all the appellant-accused stood convicted by the Sessions Judge for various offences punishable under Sections 120-B, 302, 307, 326, 328 and 201 read with Section 34 of the Penal Code, 1860 (IPC) as also under Sections 55(a), (g), (h), (i), 57-A and 58 of the Kerala Abkari Act, 1077 ME. Practically all of them were convicted for the offences under Section 302 IPC and Section 57-A(1)(iii) of the Abkari Act. The accused persons under those sections were sentenced to suffer rigorous imprisonment for life. They were also awarded lesser sentences and were slapped with heavy fines. They appealed against this verdict before the High Court which set aside the conviction for the offences under Sections 302 and 307 IPC, however, maintained the convictions of most of the appellants for the offence under Section 57-A(1)(ii) under the Abkari Act along with convictions under Sections 324, 326, 328 and 201 IPC as also other sections like Sections 55(h) and (i) and 58 of the Abkari Act. In short, most of the accused persons were directed to suffer rigorous imprisonment for life and, as the case may be, rigorous imprisonment for 10 years along with fine.

A-8 was convicted for the offences under Sections 324, 326 and 328 IPC as also for the offence under Section 57-A(1)(ii) of the Abkari Act and was sentenced to undergo life imprisonment along with the fine of Rs 50,000. He was also separately convicted under Section 57-A(1)(i) as also under Section 55(a)(i) and Section 58 of the Abkari Act. His conviction under Sections 302 IPC and 57-A(1)(iii), Abkari Act was set aside by the High Court. However, the conviction, sentence and fine under Section 57-A(1)(ii) was maintained. There was a specific finding in respect of his conviction under Section 120-B IPC. [The precise punishment imposed on A-7 and A-4 is not stated in the judgment, but it seems that it would be on closely similar lines to that of A-8.]

Dismissing the appeals of A-7, A-8 and A-4,

Held :

A plain reading of Section 57-A would mean that now the offence is not limited to the licence-holders, but refers to anybody who mixes or permits to be mixed any noxious substance or any substance which is likely to endanger human life with any liquor. The section, therefore, is extremely general. In addition to the mixing or permitting to be mixed, Section 57-A(2) brings in the dragnet of the offence, a person who omits to take reasonable precaution to prevent the mixing of any noxious substance. It is significant to note that if, as a result of such act of mixing of the liquor with noxious or dangerous substance death is caused, the extreme penalty of death is also provided. (Para 28)

For being convicted under Section 57-A it is not necessary that the person concerned must himself do the mixing. It is obvious that A-7 was the boss. In fact PW 53 describes him as the boss. It is, therefore, obvious that everything was done as per his command and if it was so, then in order to be convicted under Section 57-A, the prosecution is not required to prove that A-7 physically mixed the methyl alcohol or the injurious substance with the spirit. Even if A-7 commanded his servants to mix up, he is equally guilty under Section 57-A(1). Illegally importing ethyl alcohol and mixing the same with methanol was a regular trading activity on the part of A-7. The licences for running the toddy shops was merely a facade. He had put in a very tall bid for those licences and could not have afforded to continue merely on the basis of those 26 toddy shops. He gave his business a complete new turn, that is, instead of selling toddy through those outlets he started selling an alcoholic drink prepared from ethyl alcohol and methanol and illegally imported both and all this was going on with the corrupt cooperation of those who could have checked it. It is a proved position from the evidence of PW 53 that A-7 was the boss of the illegal trade. He got the methanol imported and used his godown which he rightfully possessed on account of his licences for 26 shops. Therefore, his knowledge that methanol was being mixed, the fact that he was running the business along with his hirelings and the further fact that he used to be present at the time of the mixing are properly proved by the prosecution with the aid of the testimony of PW 53 and are enough for a finding about Section 57-A(1)(ii). (Paras 56 to 58)

It was not necessary that A-7 had physically mixed the methyl alcohol for his being convicted. It was actually done on his command and within his knowledge. His offence could also come within the definition on account of the other words of Section 57-A(1) "or permits to be mixed". While interpreting these words, namely, "whoever mixes or permits to be mixed" the real import of the words would have to be taken into consideration and thereby if A-7 directed his servants to mix methanol with ethyl alcohol that would also be covered within the scope of the words "mixes or permits to be mixed" in the section. All this mixing was done at the instance of, with the direction of and to the knowledge of A-7. He was the kingpin or the main actor on whom the huge business of liquor trade rested. It cannot, therefore, be said that the conviction of A-7 under Section 57-A(1)(ii) was in any manner incorrect. (Para 60)

A-8 is real brother of A-7. Discovery of fake number plates shows that A-8 was neck deep into the business of spurious liquor. He was an active member in carrying the said spurious liquor and the fact that a vehicle under his possession found from his premises had the trace of methanol is sufficient to hold that he had the necessary knowledge that methanol played a major part in the business which was headed by his real brother A-7 and in which he was an active partner. If it is established that A-8 was involved in transporting spurious liquor then his active participation in the business also comes to the forefront. Thereby his knowledge that the liquor was being mixed with methanol has also to be presumed. There was no necessity for keeping the fake unattached number plates in his premises and the whole objective is clear, of shielding the cars by attaching fake number plates to them. (Para 102)

A-8 was engaged in the business of manufacture, storing, sale and supply of illicit liquor along with A-7 which resulted in the liquor tragedy. It is obvious that this accused was well aware of the nature of the business as he was thoroughly into it. Therefore, the offence under Sections 57-A(1)(i) and (ii) as also the other offences under Sections 324, 326 and 328 read with Section 34 IPC have been rightly held proved against him. Again, his frequent calls to his brother would also show that he was actively involved in the business. It is not necessary that the accused had to mix or permit to be mixed the noxious substance himself. He could be booked on the same basis as A-7 has been booked on the same logic. (Para 104)

It is not possible to accept the argument that A-8 had no idea that methanol is a noxious substance. If a huge business was going on and methanol was being imported along with ethyl alcohol in a huge quantity and if the car which brought the methanol was in his possession and further if the methanol is established to be a noxious substance, it would be a travesty to hold that A-8 did not know that methanol was a noxious substance. It is also well established that this accused could be convicted with the aid of Section 120-B IPC and also independently of the offence under Section 57-A(1)(ii) as he was not only the part of the business but had actively taken part in it. That by itself is sufficient to hold that he had the knowledge about the mixing of the ethyl alcohol with the noxious substance like methanol and in spite of it, continued. His offence would be covered fully in the phraseology "or permits to be mixed". Conviction of A-8 is therefore also confirmed. (Paras 105 and 107)

A-4 is another brother of A-7. He too was thoroughly in the business like his brothers A-7 and A-8. There was a conspiracy to run a patently illegal business along with his two brothers and others. A-4 was at the helm of the affairs unlike those accused who merely transported the liquor. The case of A-4, therefore, is quite different. It was argued that he himself had not transported the noxious substance which was done by A-15. That may not be so, but he was practically managing the whole show. It has rightly been held by the trial court and the appellate court that A-5 was a worker of A-4 and took active part in the transportation of methanol. Involvement of A-4 in the business is so deep that it was clear that he was a conspirator and it was in pursuance of a conspiracy that the whole liquor business which essentially involved the mixing of methanol with ethyl alcohol was being conducted. The language of Section 57-A(1) is wide enough and A-4 will fit in the broad language. (Paras 111 to 114)

It was argued that Section 57-A(1) does not use the word "knowledge" or "knowingly". It was also argued that the requirement of mens rea has to be read into all offences unless the legislature has expressly or by necessary implications excluded mens rea as the ingredient of the offence. In none of the seven cases relied upon by the accused did the case relate to an offence like Section 57-A(1). The whole discussion on mens rea, therefore, is of no consequence. (Paras 114 and 116)

Reading the language of Section 57-A(1) as it is, it is more than proved that all these accused persons entered into a conspiracy to do the illegal liquor business and in order to succeed in their business, took recourse to mixing methanol with ethyl alcohol and brought out a new type of spurious liquor. In order to increase the potency of the drink and in order to probably give taste, they mixed methanol. Once methyl alcohol/methanol is proved to be a noxious drug, if the accused are found to be mixing or permitting mixing methanol with ethyl alcohol then the offence would be complete whether they had the knowledge regarding the qualities of methanol or not. That is apart from the fact that in this case itself to say that the accused did not know about the properties of methanol would be wrong. If that had been so they would not have been running between Hosur and Kerala to bring methanol in cars which had fake registration numbers and secret chambers. (Para 115)

The whole business itself was a conspiracy. It may not be the conspiracy to mix the noxious substance but the fact of the matter is that in order to succeed in the business which itself was a conspiracy they mixed or allowed to be mixed methanol and used it so freely that ultimately 31 persons lost their lives. The argument regarding knowledge raised by the accused is not convincing. (Para 117). Chandran v. State of Kerala, (2011) 5 SCC 161.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.S. Sirpurkar and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision : 4-4-2011]

Lim Chin Aik v. R., 1963 AC 160: (1963) 2 WLR 42: (1963) 1 All ER 223 (PC); State of Maharashtra v. Mayer Hans George, AIR 1965 SC 722: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 641: (1965) 1 SCR 123; Sweet v. Parsley, 1970 AC 132: (1969) 2 WLR 470: (1969) 1 All ER 347 (HL); State of Gujarat v. Acharya D. Pandey, (1970) 3 SCC 183: 1971 SCC (Cri) 1; Sanjay Dutt v. State, (1994) 5 SCC 410: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1433; Kalpnath Rai v. State, (1997) 8 SCC 732: 1998 SCC (Cri) 134; B. (A Minor) v. Director of Public Prosecutions, (2000) 2 AC 428: (2000) 2 WLR 452: (2000) 1 All ER 833 (HL), distinguished

[Ed.: Bootleggers generally add methyl alcohol to illicit liquor because methyl alcohol is cheaper than ethyl alcohol but at the same time methyl alcohol also has an intoxicating effect to some extent like ethyl alcohol. Sometimes methyl alcohol is not mixed in proper proportion with ethyl alcohol and this results in death or blindness of persons who consume spurious liquor. According to Modi's Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology (23rd Edn.), "Fatal dose (of methyl alcohol) varies according to susceptibility of individuals from 60 to 240 ml". Modi mentions that in some cases, even lesser quantity from 30 to 60 ml has also proved fatal. Modi further mentions that "Death has occurred from 90, 120 and 150 ml, and often from 180 to 240 ml, but recovery has followed after larger doses."

It may be added that an excessive dose even of ethyl alcohol can also be fatal. Quoting again from Modi, consumption of 150 to 250 ml of undiluted ethyl alcohol can be fatal to an adult.]

[8417] — Ss. 324, 326 and 452 — Sentence — Reduction of — Conviction and sentences of three accused-appellants, for offences under Ss. 326, 324 and 452 IPC, confirmed in appeal — In revision sentence reduced to 1½ years' imprisonment in respect of first and third accused under Ss. 326 and 324 respectively while second accused sentenced with fine only — Declining to interfere with the sentences of first and second accused, sentence imposed on third accused under S. 324, being excessive, reduced to the period already undergone. Kuppan v. State of T.N., 2000 SCC (Cri) 1506: AIR 2000 SC 3510 (1): 2000 Cri LJ 3503.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and A.P. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-1-2000]

[8418] — Ss. 324, 452 r/w S. 34 — Quarrelling and trespass — Accused party, members of one family and neighbours of the complainant, barged into the house of the complainant and manhandled the complainant inside as well as outside the house after dragging her from the house — Complaint lodged promptly registered as FIR — Doctor, who examined the complainant in hospital, in his report recording four simple injuries on her hands, forehead and chest — Medical certificate issued by the doctor clearly mentioning the date and time of examination on being referred by the police to the hospital — Held, medical certificate, as proved by the doctor, was ample proof of happening of the alleged incident of querrelling with the complainant on that date — Act alleged against accused clearly made out a case of common intention against them in committing the offence of house trespass and causing hurt to complainant — Minor discrepancies or exaggerations in the evidence of PWs would be inconsequential — Defence of false implication of the accused due to an alleged incident which had not taken place in immediate past but had occurred long ago cannot be accepted (Para 19). State of Maharashtra v. Jagmohan Singh Kuldip Singh Anand, (2004) 7 SCC 659: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2003: AIR 2004 SC 4412: (2004) 172 ELT 19.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and D.M. Dharmadhikari, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-8-2004]

[8419] — Ss. 324, 504 r/w S. 34 — Benefit of probation — Relevant considerations — Conviction of appellants (Accused 1 to 4) under Ss. 324/34 IPC, and under Ss. 504/34 IPC — Accused seeking benefit of S. 4 of the Act and S. 360 CrPC — Refusal by Magistrate, on the ground of enmity between the families of accused and complainant, held, improper — Benefit of S. 4 given by the Supreme Court to Accused 3 and 4 who were women, so far as Accused 1 and 2 were concerned, Magistrate directed to secure report of Probation Officer and then pass an appropriate order taking note of S. 4 of the Act — CrPC, 1973, S. 360 —. Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4 (Para 5). Halappa v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 9 SCC 366: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1068.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.V. Raveendran and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-8-2009]

— S. 324 r/w S. 34 See also Ss. 96 and 103, 302, 307 and 324 r/w S. 34

See also S. 302 or S. 304 Pt. II (S. 300 Exception 4), Ss. 323 and 324 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 302, 323 and 324 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 302, 364, 324 etc. r/w S. 34

— S. 324 r/w S. 147 See also Ss. 302, 323, 324 r/w 149, 147 and 148

— S. 324 r/w S. 148 See also Ss. 302, 323 and 324 r/w 148, 149, 363, 366 and 376

See also Ss. 302, 323, 324 r/w 149, 147 and 148

— S. 324 r/w S. 149 See Ss. 147, 148, 341, 504, 506, 324, 326 r/w S. 149

See also S. 148 and Ss. 302, 100, 325 and 324 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 302, 323 and 324 r/w 148, 149, 363, 366 and 376

See also Ss. 302, 323, 324 r/w Ss. 149, 147 and 148

See also Ss. 302 and 324 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 326, 323 and 324 r/w S. 149

[8420] — S. 324 r/w S. 149 — Sentence — Delay — Reduction to that already undergone — Sentence of RI for 6 months and fine of Rs 1000 each imposed on Accused 2, 3, 6 and 7 by High Court in appeal against their acquittal — Appellants undergoing more than two months' imprisonment and released on bail in 2003 while admitting appeal — Considering lapse of several years, instead of sending them to jail to serve remaining sentence, sentence reduced to period already undergone, provided fine of Rs 25,000 each was paid within one month — Fine realised directed to be paid to deceased's wife (Paras 6 to 8). Basayya Prabhayya Hallur v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 17 SCC 55.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-10-2009]

Sheo Swarup v. King Emperor, (1933-34) 61 IA 398: AIR 1934 PC 227 (2); Ghurey Lal v. State of U.P., (2008) 10 SCC 450: (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 60; Surajpal Singh v. State, AIR 1952 SC 52: 1952 Cri LJ 331; Chandrappa v. State of Karnataka, (2007) 4 SCC 415: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 325, relied on

— S. 324 r/w S. 363 See also Ss. 302, 323 and 324, r/w 148, 149, 363, 366 and 376

— S. 324 r/w S. 366 See also Ss. 302, 323 and 324, r/w 148, 149, 363, 366 and 376

— S. 324 r/w S. 376 See also Ss. 302, 323 and 324, r/w 148, 149, 363, 366 and 376

— Ss. 324/34 See also Ss. 97, 103, 302/34 and 324/34

See also Ss. 97, 104 and 324/34

See also Ss. 149, 326/34, 324/34, 427/34, 450 and 392, 395 and 397

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 307/34 and 324/34

[8421] — Ss. 324/34 — Offences under — Benefit of doubt — Benefit of Acquittal to Co-Accused — When not warranted — Four accused persons attacking PW 2 informant near their college gate with khukries (a sharp-edged weapon) — PW 2 suffering grievous injuries on head and left hand due to which he became unconscious — Injured informant naming appellant-accused in FIR and specifically deposing about his overt acts — FIR not disclosing names of other three accused — Prosecution not conducting TI parade in respect of other three accused — PW 1 (eyewitness/hostile witness) claiming to have identified other three accused — Undisputedly, PW 1 along with one S carrying PW 2 to hospital — Effect — The analogy of acquitting the three co-accused on the ground of benefit of doubt, held, inapplicable to appellant — Therefore, conviction of appellant, upheld

PW 2 informant was attacked by the appellant and three others with khukries (a sharp-edged weapon) near his college gate. PW 2 suffered five incised injuries from which blood came out, three injuries on head (two muscle-deep and one skin-deep) and two muscle-deep injuries on the left hand fingers. The trial court convicted all the four accused persons. The High Court by the impugned judgment acquitted three of the co-accused by granting benefit of doubt but convicted the appellant.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

Although the High Court extended benefit of doubt to three of the co-accused and acquitted them, it does not mean that on the same analogy, a judgment of acquittal should have been recorded in favour of the appellant also. As the other accused had not been named in the FIR and no test identification parade was held, the High Court thought it fit to extend the benefit of doubt. But the appellant was named in the FIR and specific overt act was attributed to him by PW 2 in his deposition. (Paras 15 and 16)

Keeping in view the place of occurrence, it will not be hazardous to presume that the incident had taken place within a very short time. PW 2 in his evidence stated that three persons came from behind. He might not have been able to remember their names at the time when the FIR was lodged. Though PW 1 eyewitness, claimed to have identified the three co-accused, he turned hostile and undisputedly he and one S had brought PW 2 informant to the hospital. (Paras 16 and 7)

The contention that the FIR did not disclose that the appellant was also armed with khukri had not been raised before the courts below. The only suggestion given to the investigating officer was that it was written that all the accused were shown having khukri in their hands and not the appellant alone. (Para 14). Subhash Kumar v. State of Uttarakhand, (2009) 6 SCC 641: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 287.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-5-2009]

Subhash Kumar v. State, Criminal Appeal No. 150 of 2003 decided on 27-8-2008, affirmed

[8422] — Ss. 324/34 and 307 — Injury from which murderous assault could be spelt out attributed to L — Other injuries simple in nature — In the circumstances of the case, it cannot be said that all the four accused had common intention of murderous assault — They had common intention for lesser offence i.e. under S. 324. Babu Singh v. State of Haryana, 1995 Cri LJ 2630.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1994]

— Ss. 324/109 See also Ss. 302/34 and 324/109

See also Ss. 307/109 and 324/109

— Ss. 324/110 See also Ss. 34, 302/34 and 324/110

[8423] — Ss. 324/110 and 302/34 — Appellant M exhorting his fellows by saying 'maro sale ko' — Thereupon, R stabbing the deceased which resulted in his death — Held, even if the words 'maro sale ko' were used by 'M' in an abusive way, it could not be said that he exhorted his fellows to kill the deceased — Conviction of 'M' altered from Ss. 302/34 to Ss. 324/110 and sentence reduced to the period already undergone by him — However, considering the young age of the victim and the status of the accused 'M' further sentenced to a fine of Rs 50,000 to be paid to the heirs of the victim under the provisions of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 — Fine is to be realised even if the convict had undergone imprisonment in default of payment thereof — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 421(1) proviso and 357. Matadin v. State of Maharashtra, (1998) 7 SCC 216: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1569: AIR 1999 SC 138.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and D.P. Wadhwa, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-8-1998]

[8424] — Ss. 324/114 — Two accused (Appellants 1 and 2) armed with lathis trespassed the house of deceased and exhorted other accused persons to beat up the deceased — Deceased succumbed to his injuries — Held on facts, evidence on record does not support the prosecution case that the two accused-appellants exhorted the other accused with the idea of killing the deceased — But the fact that they were also armed with lathis when they trespassed into the house of deceased is a positive indicator that they did not enter the house as mere onlookers — They having instigated others to beat up the deceased, it would be appropriate to convict them under S. 324 r/w S. 114 and sentence them to one year's imprisonment and a fine of Rs 500 each (Para 8). Mukati Prasad Rai v. State of Bihar, (2004) 13 SCC 144: 2005 SCC (Cri) 69: AIR 2005 SC 1271: 2005 Cri LJ 681.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2004]

— Ss. 324/149 See also Ss. 147, 148, 302/149 and 324/149

See also Ss. 147, 148, 302/149 and 324/149, 326/149

See also Ss. 148, 147, 307, 307/149, 324, 324/149, 323 and 323/149

See also Ss. 148, 147, 323/149 and 324/149

See also Ss. 148 and 324/149

See also Ss. 149 and 141, 302/149 and 324/149

See also Ss. 149, 302/149, 325/149 and 324/149

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 307/149 and 324/149

See also Ss. 308/149 and 324/149

[8425] — Ss. 324/149 — Injuries received by an eyewitness during the assault caused by the accused — His evidence corroborated from the evidence of the doctor and other eyewitness — Held, in the circumstances, the accused, who were members of an unlawful assembly caused injuries to the witness and committed an offence under Ss. 324/149. Hardev Singh v. Harbhej Singh, (1997) 1 SCC 80: 1997 SCC (Cri) 5: AIR 1997 SC 1487: 1997 Cri LJ 727.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1996]

[8426] — Ss. 324/149, 323/149 and 148 — Conviction and sentence under — Compounding of offence — Since the incident took place in the year 1979 and subsequently the parties arrived at an amicable settlement, held on facts, it would be a fit case for reducing the sentence to the period already undergone — CrPC, 1973, S. 320 — Compounding of offence — Offences under Ss. 324/149, 323/149, 147 and 148 IPC. Bachhu Singh v. State of U.P., (2002) 10 SCC 313.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.B. Shah and Ruma Pal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-12-2000]

— S. 325 See also Ss. 34, 325 and 302

See also Ss. 34/302 and 325

See also Ss. 96, 100 Thirdly [96, 97 r/w 100], 375(6), 325

See also S. 147

See also S. 148

See also S. 148 and Ss. 302, 100, 325 and 324 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 149, 147, 323, 325 and 302

See also Ss. 149, 323, 325 and 435

See also Ss. 149, 326, 325 and 302

See also S. 149 r/w Ss. 302, 307, 449, 323 to 325 and 148

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 302 and 325

See also Ss. 307, 325 and 326 r/w Ss. 149 and 148

See also Ss. 308/34, 323/34, 324, 325 and 326

See also Ss. 323 and 325

See also Ss. 323, 325 and 435

See also Ss. 324 and 325

See also Ss. 324, 325 and 326

See also Ss. 326, 325 and 149

See also Ss. 326, 325 and 324

See also S. 326 r/w S. 34 and S. 325

See also Ss. 326/149 and 325 and 326

See also Ss. 376, 460, 325 and 506

See also Ss. 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER, 'C.12. Hurt, grievous or not, with or without dangerous weapons or means (Ss. 319 to 338)', in Vol. 2

[8427] — S. 325 — Absence of charge under, in murder trial — Effect — Conviction under S. 325, if sustainable — High Court finding that appellant may or may not have given the fatal blow on head of deceased and that his conviction under S. 302 recorded by trial court was incorrect — Having found so, held, High Court erred in taking the view that appellant could be convicted under S. 325 and sentenced to four years' RI when there was no charge thereunder — Introduction of S. 325 by High Court cannot be justified merely on ground that there was a scuffle and deceased sustained head injury — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 216 and 222 (Paras 5 to 7). Ravinder Kumar v. State of H.P., (2009) 16 SCC 354: (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 288.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: U.C. Banerjee and B.N. Agrawal, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-10-2002]

[8428] — S. 325 — Accused causing grievous hurt to the victim by a stick — Victim's own statement to that effect fully corroborated by other eyewitnesses and medical evidence — Held, accused rightly convicted under S. 325 (Para 25). Takhaji Hiraji v. Thakore Kubersing Chamansing, (2001) 6 SCC 145: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1070: AIR 2001 SC 2328.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand, C.J. and R.C. Lahoti, Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-5-2001]

[8429] — S. 325 — Conviction under — Release on probation on facts, held, justified — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4. Hansa v. State of Punjab, (1977) 3 SCC 575: 1977 SCC (Cri) 550: AIR 1977 SC 1991: 1977 Cri LJ 1601.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-7-1977]

[8430] — S. 325 — Death as a result of multiple injuries — Co-accused acquitted — Fractures caused by hard and blunt weapons on hands and feet of the deceased — Accused-appellants inflicting lathi blows may be responsible for the fractures and at best could be convicted under S. 325 — Accordingly their conviction under S. 302 altered to that under S. 325 and their sentence to the period of more than 5 years of imprisonment already undergone. Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, 1988 Supp SCC 456: 1988 SCC (Cri) 708: AIR 1988 SC 2147: 1988 BLJR 459.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and K. Jagannatha Shetty, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-1988]

[8431] — S. 325 — Grievous injury caused by pushing the victim against a hard and rough surface resulting in his death — Evidence of wife of the deceased corroborated by the medical evidence — Even hostile witnesses supporting the prosecution case to some extent — Held, in the circumstances of the case, the High Court was not justified in reversing the conviction of the accused — Fine imposed to be paid to widow — Fine to be paid as compensation to surviving kith and kin — Compensation — Payment of fine as. State of Karnataka v. Diwakara Bhat, (1996) 11 SCC 148: 1997 SCC (Cri) 146.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and Faizan Uddin, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1996]

[8432] — S. 325 — Offence under S. 325, IPC allowed to be compounded on the basis of affidavit of the injured person in that regard — But conviction and sentence under Ss. 120 and 121, Indian Railways Act, 1890 (9 of 1890) maintained — CrPC, 1973, S. 320(2). Abdul Sattar v. State of M.P., (1981) 3 SCC 73: 1981 SCC (Cri) 633: AIR 1981 SC 1775 (2): 1981 Cri LJ 1705(1).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.D. Koshal and E.S. Venkataramiah, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-3-1981]

[8433] — S. 325 — Punishment under — Imprisonment and fine — Held (obiter), sentences of imprisonment and fine both are imperative — Statute providing for imprisonment "and shall also be liable to fine" (Paras 37 and 38). Zunjarrao Bhikaji Nagarkar v. Union of India, (1999) 7 SCC 409: 1999 SCC (L&S) 1299: AIR 1999 SC 2881.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Saghir Ahmad and D.P. Wadhwa, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-8-1999]

Tetar Gope v. Ganauri Gope, AIR 1968 Pat 287: 1968 Cri LJ 1108, overruled

[8434] — S. 325 — Sentence — Blow inflicted with the blunt side of gandhali causing fracture of phalanx of finger — Conviction under S. 325 proper — But the accused persons also having sustained injuries in the same occurrence, sentence of 6 month's RI instead of 2½ years' RI would be sufficient. Gurmail Singh v. State of Punjab, (1982) 3 SCC 185: 1982 SCC (Cri) 680: AIR 1982 SC 1466: 1982 Cri LJ 1946.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and Baharul Islam, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-8-1982]

[8435] — S. 325 — Sentence — Occurrence taking place about 17 years before — Some of the appellants more than 76 years of age and one of them died — Some of the appellants also received injuries — Sentence reduced to the period already undergone with fine of Rs 200 — No law point laid down. Ayub v. State of U.P., AIR 1994 SC 1064: 1994 Cri LJ 1219: 1994 All LJ 305.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-1993]

[8436] — S. 325 — Sentence — Appellant out of political rivalry causing grievous injuries — Age not proved to be under 21 years — Held, not deserving leniency. Sat Kumar v. State of Haryana, (1974) 3 SCC 643: 1974 SCC (Cri) 173: AIR 1974 SC 294: 1974 Cri LJ 345.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-11-1973]

[8437] — S. 325 — Sentence — Long lapse of time — Held, cannot always be a determining factor — Major portion of sentence already undergone — Sentence restricted to the period already undergone

No hard-and-fast rule can be applied for assessing a proper sentence and a long passage of time cannot always be a determinative factor so far as sentence is concerned. It is not in dispute that a major portion of the sentence awarded has been suffered by the appellant. On the peculiar facts of the case, it is restricted to the period already undergone. (Para 18). Mathai v. State of Kerala, (2005) 3 SCC 260: 2005 SCC (Cri) 695: AIR 2005 SC 710: 2005 Cri LJ 898.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-2005]

[8438] — S. 325 — Sentence under — Mitigating factors — High Court maintaining the appellant's conviction and sentence of three years' RI — However, Supreme Court releasing him on bail and about eight long years elapsing thereafter — In such circumstances, hoping the wounds of parties to have healed up by then and noting that the victim was the appellant's nephew and that incarceration of the appellant at that stage would serve no purpose, Supreme Court reducing the sentence to the period already undergone. Nakchhed v. State of U.P., 1998 SCC (Cri) 603.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and S. Rajendra Babu, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-10-1997]

[8439] — Ss. 325, 34 & 302 — Attack with intention of grievous hurt resulting in death — Effect

Where the assailants attacked the deceased with non-lethal weapons with the common intention of causing grievous hurt and not death and though death resulted owing to fatal blows on the head but it is not certain who gave those fatal blows, the conviction of all the assailants could only have been under S. 325, read with S. 34, IPC. Ram Lal v. Delhi Admn., (1973) 3 SCC 466: 1973 SCC (Cri) 366: AIR 1972 SC 2462: 1973 Cri LJ 17.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, D.G. Palekar and S.N. Dwivedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-9-1972]

[8440] — Ss. 325, 148 and 149 — Stick blow inflicted on non-vital part of the body — Common object or common intention not established — Held, accused liable to be convicted under S. 325 and sentenced to 3 years' RI. Hari Singh v. State of Haryana, (1993) 3 SCC 114: 1993 SCC (Cri) 631.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-4-1993]

[8441] — Ss. 325 and 149 — Causing 17 injuries to two persons each and 8 injuries to another of which two were grievous — Sentence of 2 years' R.I. and Rs 300 fine not improper. Surendra v. State of U.P., (1976) 4 SCC 232: 1976 SCC (Cri) 565: AIR 1977 SC 709: 1977 Cri LJ 351.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-8-1976]

[8442] — S. 325 or S. 302 or S. 304 Pt. II — Blow inflicted on deceased causing internal injury on forehead found to be fatal — No external injury on the forehead indicated by medical evidence — Statements given by eyewitnesses to police under S. 161 CrPC and their testimony at the trial in regard to the instrument of assault (lathi or iron rod) and the part of the deceased's body on which assault made (forehead or face and nose) discrepant — Though explanation for the discrepancy acceptable, assault having taken place at night, but general type of evidence led by the prosecution not sufficient to correlate the blow inflicted by the accused with the fatal internal injury sustained by deceased — Hence conviction under S. 325 and not under S. 302 or 304 Pt. II proper — Sentence of four years' RI already undergone adequate on facts. Mohinder Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), 1985 Supp SCC 473: 1985 SCC (Cri) 488: AIR 1986 SC 309.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.N. Sen and Ranganath Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-9-1985]

[8443] — Ss. 325 and 304 Pt. I — Alteration of conviction from S. 304 Pt. I to S. 325 — Reduction of sentence from 8 years' RI to 6 months' RI — Propriety of — Victim receiving as many as 14 injuries on different parts of body — In view of the nature of injuries and taking into account the facts of the case, held, High Court was not justified in awarding sentence of six months only — Hence, confirming the conviction, sentence enhanced to period of 3 years (Paras 4 and 5). State of Kerala v. Ravi, (2005) 9 SCC 216.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and P.K. Balasubramanyan, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-1-2005]

[8444] — Ss. 325 and 304 Pt. II — Fight between appellants and the deceased party — Appellants inflicting stick blows on the deceased as well as on the injured witnesses — Deceased sustaining four contusions including one on the head — Head injury proved to be fatal after lapse of one week — Injuries found on the witnesses also of the same nature for which the appellants convicted under S. 325 — Appellants themselves receiving injuries at the hands of the prosecution party — Held, in the circumstances of the case, it cannot be said that the appellants had knowledge that the stick blows were likely to cause death — Hence they are liable to be convicted under S. 325 and not under S. 304 Pt. II. Halke v. State of M.P., 1998 SCC (Cri) 953: AIR 1994 SC 951: 1994 Cri LJ 1220.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1992]

[8445] — S. 325 or S. 304 Pt. II — Incised wound of 3 x ½ x ¼ inches on the right side of the scalp just above the left ear which caused the fracture of left parietal and left temporal bone extending to the frontal and occipital region — Held, could never be treated as an injury contemplated under S. 325, but should be held to be one that would cause the death of a person

The trial court found that at least one of the injuries caused on the deceased was severe enough to cause death in the ordinary course of nature. Based on the evidence of the doctor, it was rightly concluded by the courts below that an incised wound of 3 x ½ x ¼ inches on the right side of the scalp just above the left ear which caused the fracture of left parietal and left temporal bone extending to the frontal and occipital region could never be treated as an injury contemplated under Section 325 IPC, but should be held to be one that would cause the death of a person. Therefore, having regard to the said fact, the courts below rightly convicted the appellants for the offence punishable under S. 304 Pt. II IPC. (Para 5). Tarsem Singh v. State of Punjab, (2002) 2 SCC 673: 2002 SCC (Cri) 465: AIR 2002 SC 760: 2002 Cri LJ 1021.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-1-2002]

[8446] — Ss. 325 and 323 — Compounding of offences under — Compounding of offences — Accused charged under Ss. 325 and 323 r/w S. 34 IPC — Causing simple hurt falling under S. 323 IPC compoundable at the instance of person hurt — Causing grievous hurt under S. 325 IPC compoundable with permission of court — Compromise deed stating that parties were neighbours, their houses adjacent to each other, and that they were living peacefully for last many years and there was no dispute between them; hence to continue sweet relationship and harmony, the complainant side does not want to take any action against the accused — In view of same necessary permission to compound offence granted and consequently accused acquitted — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 320(1), (2) & (8) (Paras 3, 10, 12, 13 and 15). Khursheed v. State of U.P., (2007) 12 SCC 68: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 218: (2007) 6 All LJ 625: (2007) 59 AIC 265 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and Altamas Kabir, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-2007]

[8447] — Ss. 325 and 323 r/w S. 34 — Proof beyond reasonable doubt — Necessity of — Alleged assault — Conviction under Ss. 325 and 323 r/w S. 34 IPC — Prosecution not coming with clean hands, making the genesis of the incident doubtful — Considering facts and circumstances in their totality, evidence of prosecution witnesses, particularly of witnesses who were "attacked", and had been declared "hostile" (partly or fully), coupled with medical evidence and withholding of report purportedly lodged at police station by PW 6, held, conviction not justified — Benefit of doubt should have been given

From the evidence it appears that the prosecution has not come with clean hands and the genesis becomes doubtful. The prosecution witnesses and in particular the star witness injured, PW 5, himself was declared "hostile" by the prosecution as it was clear that though initially his case was that over and above four persons who were before the court, three other persons were very much present, but subsequently, he stated that they were not present. Not only that three other persons were present at the scene of offence, but they were armed with weapons, their common object was to beat the witness and in fact they attacked the witness with lathis. The initial case, however, was subsequently totally changed and the witness had gone to the extent that over and above four accused before the court, nobody was present and he was not attacked and beaten by anyone else. (Para 21)

According to PW 5, he had sustained several injuries (28 injuries) but according to the medical evidence, there were only three injuries on the person of PW 5. Further, according to the witness, the injuries were caused by farsa, luhangi and sticks. Medical opinion, on the other hand, goes to show that injuries were possible by "hard" and "blunt" substance and not by any "sharp" weapon. All the three injuries were lacerated wounds and no incised wound was found on the person of PW 5. (Para 22)

Evidence of PW 6 was also shaky. He was not sure as to with which weapon, he was beaten. Moreover, according to him, he lodged a report at the police station on which his signature was taken, but that report is not forthcoming. (Para 23)

PW 9, who had intervened in the scuffle, was also declared "hostile". His evidence also did not go to show that the incident had happened in the manner deposed by the prosecution. (Para 24)

Considering facts and circumstances in their totality, evidence of prosecution witnesses, particularly of the witnesses who were "attacked", and had been declared "hostile" (partly or fully) coupled with the medical evidence, so far as injuries sustained by PW 5 were concerned and withholding of report said to have been lodged by PW 6, this was not a case to reach a finding that the accused had committed the offences with which they were charged. If it is so, obviously the benefit of doubt should be given to them. Accordingly held that it cannot be said "beyond reasonable doubt" that the accused had committed the offences with which they were charged. (Para 25)

The order of conviction and sentence recorded by the trial court and confirmed by the High Court is set aside. (Para 26). Tulsiram v. State of M.P., (2008) 17 SCC 13.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2008]

[8448] — Ss. 325 & 326 or Ss. 302/149, Ss. 307/149 & 148 — Sentence of conviction imposed by trial court under Ss. 302/149 for causing death of R, under Ss. 307/149 for attempting to murder RW and Ss. 148/149, set aside by High Court and Respondents 2 to 6 convicted under Ss. 325 and 326 — Sustainability — Dispute regarding removing of motor from the well culminating in a fight wherein R sustained grievous injuries and was admitted in hospital on 17-9-1992 but was discharged on 25-9-1992 — However, he was again admitted on 28-9-1992 and was operated upon, but he expired on 30-9-1992 — The facts that the well was jointly owned by both the parties, that both sides caused injuries to members of other side and that the well was situated in the land of the respondents', undisputed — Electric motor installed in the well found to be belonging to one of the respondents and prosecution laying false claim thereover — Evidence of doctor suggestive of the fact that it was possible that the deceased may have suffered a head injury after he was discharged from the hospital since no such injury was detected when x-ray was taken on his admission in hospital immediately after occurrence — Held, since the complainants had gone to the respondents' land where the well was situated for no special purpose, High Court was right in holding that respondents had not formed any common intention nor were guilty for causing death of deceased or attempting to murder RW — Hence, interference with impugned judgment not called for (Paras 22 to 26, 8 and 13). Umrao v. State of Haryana, (2006) 10 SCC 136: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 482: AIR 2006 SC 2152: 2006 Cri LJ 2798.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-5-2006]

[8449] — Ss. 325 and 326 r/w S. 34 — Assertion of pre-emption rights resulting in injuries — Plea of self-infliction whether tenable — Weakness of evidence whether strengthened by clear motive —

Lower Courts' error in not assessing the case as a whole on the evidence — Appeal dismissed. Ajit Singh v. State of Punjab, (1970) 3 SCC 197: 1971 SCC (Cri) 15.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.M. Sikri and K.S. Hegde, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-1970]

[8450] — Ss. 325 and 326 r/w S. 34 — Causing grievous injuries — Whether those injuries resulted in death or cause of death was some other factor could not be conclusively found — On facts, held, trial court rightly convicted accused persons under Ss. 325 and 326 r/w S. 34 instead of under Ss. 302/34 — Sentence of 7 years' RI under Ss. 326/34 and 5 years' RI under Ss. 325/34 imposed by trial court should be reduced to 4 years' RI

The first doctor who had examined the deceased in the Civil Hospital had deposed in the cross-examination that none of the injuries, either individually or collectively, appeared to be dangerous to life. The doctor who had last attended the injuries in the Medical College had stated that the injured was initially given blood of Group A but subsequently blood of that group went out of stock and, therefore, he was given blood of Group O+. The witness further deposed that he could not say if the patient died because of blood reaction or because of injuries suffered by him but he did depose that there was fear in his mind about blood reaction and, therefore, he gave medicines to prevent it. Under these circumstances, the Sessions Judge concluded that the possibility of the injured having died because of blood reaction cannot be ruled out though the doctor conducting post-mortem had deposed the cause of death as rupture of liver on account of injuries. The view taken by the Sessions Judge is a plausible view and, therefore, it is not possible to accept the contention that the respondents deserved to be convicted for offence under Sections 302/34 IPC. They were rightly convicted for offence under Sections 325 and 326 read with Section 34 IPC by the Sessions Judge. (Para 13)

The ends of justice would be met if each of the respondents are sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for a period of four years instead of seven years and five years as directed by the Sessions Court. (Para 15). State of Haryana v. Mange Ram, (2003) 1 SCC 637: 2003 SCC (Cri) 401: AIR 2003 SC 558.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and K.G. Balakrishnan, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-12-2002]

[8451] — Ss. 325 and 452 — Permission to compound offence of S. 325, Indian Penal Code granted by Supreme Court under S. 320(2), CrPC resulting in acquittal of the accused for that offence in view of S. 320(8), CrPC — Offence under S. 452, IPC being non-compoundable, conviction under that provision maintained but sentence reduced to the period already undergone — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 320(2) & (8) and 386. Rajinder Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), 1980 Supp SCC 337: 1981 SCC (Cri) 277: AIR 1980 SC 1200.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N.L. Untwalia and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-5-1980]

— S. 325 r/w S. 34 See also S. 307 or S. 325 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 326 and 325 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 341, 326, 504, and 506 r/w S. 34 and Ss. 324 and 325 r/w S. 34

[8452] — S. 325 r/w S. 34 — Scuffle — When common intention arises — Appreciation of evidence

Special leave is limited to the question of law whether S. 325, IPC can be applied read with S. 34, IPC to all or any of the appellants. Section 34 can be invoked even where evidence shows that the meeting of the accused was at the spur of the moment. Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 216, referred to

Held :

Though originally the concerted attack was on Phusa, the common intention on the part of Bhima and Krishna to inflict grievous injuries on Harnarayan can be inferred when they aimed blows on his head, which ultimately resulted in his death. But no such inference can be drawn in respect of the attack on Kalawati as she just came to the scene of the scuffle, when the blows were being exchanged. In her case, the person who hit her alone will be liable under S. 325, IPC It was further held that with reference to the lathi blows inflicted on Ramswarup in the melee when the appellants also were injured, there is no material from which common intention to cause him grievous injury can be inferred, nor was there evidence as to who caused the injury.

Application of S. 34 depends upon the circumstances of each case and the evidence pertaining to the incidents. Bhima v. State of Haryana, (1969) 1 SCC 64.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.C. Shah, V. Ramaswami and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1968]

— S. 325 r/w S. 147 See also Ss. 304, 325 r/w Ss. 147 and 149

— S. 325 r/w S. 149 See also Ss. 147, 148, 302, 307, 323 and 325 r/w 149

See also Ss. 148, 302, 149, 325 r/w S. 149 and S. 323 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 302, 148, 324 and 325 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 302 and 325 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 304, 325 r/w Ss. 147 and 149

See also Ss. 367, 147 and 325 r/w S. 149

[8453] — S. 325 r/w S. 149 — Sentence — Apportionment of — 6 years' RI awarded for constructive liability under — Held, notwithstanding such liability, the sentencing process will take note of the conspectus of circumstances including the absence of overt act, age and antecedents of the offender — Accused appellants of young age, committing no overt acts and instead some of them receiving injuries for which the prosecution offering no explanation — Held, relevant for sentence — One of the accused being only 16 years' old, deprived of the compassionate trial process due to absence of Children Act in the State — He, having already undergone 5 months' imprisonment, must be released forthwith — Sentence of the remaining accused reduced to 2 years' RI. Ram Prasad Sahu v. State of Bihar, (1980) 1 SCC 74: 1980 SCC (Cri) 84: AIR 1980 SC 83: 1980 Cri LJ 10.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and R.S. Pathak, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1979]

— Ss. 325/34 See also Ss. 34 and 302/34 and 325/34

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 326, 325/34 and Ss. 323/34

[8454] — Ss. 325/34 — Minor indiscretions of youth — Condonation of — Right to appointment — Condonation of minor indiscretions of youth — Desirability — Respondent's candidature for post of Head Constable cancelled on ground that he had concealed his involvement in criminal case under Ss. 325/34 IPC when he was aged about 20 years — Held, young people often commit indiscretions and approach should be to condone such indiscretions rather than branding them as criminals for rest of their lives — Besides, it was not a serious offence and hence, more lenient view should be taken — Impugned judgment holding cancellation of his candidature illegal calls for no interference (Paras 8 to 12). Commr. of Police v. Sandeep Kumar, (2011) 4 SCC 644.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-3-2011]

Morris v. Crown Office, (1970) 2 QB 114: (1970) 2 WLR 792: (1970) 3 All ER 1079 (CA), approved

Victor Hugo: Les Miserables, Lord Denning: Due Process of Law, considered [8455] — Ss. 325/34 — R.P.F. pursuing appellants on suspicion of possession of opium — Appellants assaulting policeman causing loss of tooth — Question of ownership of opium not relevant. Dharamvir v. State of M.P., (1974) 4 SCC 150: 1974 SCC (Cri) 352: AIR 1974 SC 1156: 1974 Cri LJ 812.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and A. Alagiriswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-8-1973]

[8456] — Ss. 325/34 or Ss. 302/149, 302/148 — Five accused beating deceased with sticks causing his death — Incident occurring suddenly without any prior meeting of minds between the accused persons — None of the eyewitnesses claiming to have seen the entire incident from start to end — Most of the injuries sustained on the non-vital part of the body and since after falling down deceased was shifting his position 2-3 blows also landed on his skull — Nature of motive and injuries indicating accuseds' intention to give a thrashing and not to kill him — In the circumstances held, conviction under Ss. 148, 149 and 302 not sustainable — In absence of any evidence showing when and by whom the fatal injury was caused to the deceased, none could be convicted substantively for offence of murder with the aid of S. 34 — Hence conviction altered to that under Ss. 325/34 — Besides, for causing injuries to deceased's brother who tried to save the deceased conviction under Ss. 323/34 confirmed. Deoka v. State of Maharashtra, 1993 Supp (1) SCC 447: 1993 SCC (Cri) 237.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi, V. Ramaswami and M.M. Punchhi, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-7-1991]

[8457] — Ss. 325/34 or 304 Pt. I — Infliction of injuries resulting in death — Out of thirteen external injuries on the dead body, eleven found on lower legs and arms — Intention to cause death or intention to cause such injuries as would be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death not found on the part of the accused by High Court — Agreeing with High Court's view, held, intention of accused appellants was to cause grievous hurt — Hence appellants must be convicted under Ss. 325/34 and not under S. 304 Part I — Sentence of imprisonment altered to that already undergone — Sentence of fine of Rs 7000 also imposed on each appellant — Amount realised as fine to be paid to parents of the deceased. Parusuraman v. State of T.N., 1992 Supp (1) SCC 429: 1992 SCC (Cri) 292: AIR 1993 SC 141.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and M.M. Punchhi, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-9-1991]

[8458] — Ss. 325/34 and 304 Pt. II — Fight between two groups — Accused inflicting stick blows — Deceased dying after a week — Held, in the circumstances, accused are liable to be convicted under Ss. 325/34 and not under S. 304 Pt. II. Halke v. State of M.P., 1998 SCC (Cri) 953: AIR 1994 SC 951: 1994 Cri LJ 1220.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-7-1992]

[8459] — Ss. 325/109, 302/109 & 302/34 — Conviction under Ss. 325/109 in absence of separate charge — Sustainability — A-1 and A-2 convicted under Ss. 302/34 and sentenced to life imprisonment whereas A-3 convicted under Ss. 302/109 — Sentence of A-1 commuted by State and appeal preferred by A-2 dismissed by Supreme Court — On appeal being preferred by A-3, conviction under Ss. 302/109 converted into that under Ss. 325/109 — Held, conviction of A-3 under Ss. 325/109 cannot be sustained — Principal offender having been convicted under Ss. 302/34, A-3 alone cannot be convicted under Ss. 325/109 for which no separate charge framed against him — Even otherwise offence under S. 109 not made out by evidence on record (Para 4). Shivananda Mundodi v. State of Karnataka, (2006) 9 SCC 191: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 616.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.K. Sema and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-11-2005]

— Ss. 325/149 See also Ss. 147, 447, 325/149 and 304 Pt. II/149

See also Ss. 149, 302/149, 325/149, 323/149 and 452

See also Ss. 149, 302/149, 325/149 and 324/149

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 307/149 and 325/149

See also Ss. 326/149 and 325/149

[8460] — Ss. 325/149 — Enhancement of sentence

The High Court was justified in enhancing the sentence of 3 years' RI under Ss. 325/149, IPC to 7 years' RI when a brutal attack was made by several persons in a fit of superstition relating to suspected sorcery. The circumstances in which the attack was made calls for a deterrent sentence. Dasrath Gond v. State of Orissa, AIR 1955 SC 583: 1955 Cri LJ 1297.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Vivian Bose, B. Jagannadhadas and B.P. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1955]

[8461] — Ss. 325/149, 148 and 302/149 — Multiple injuries caused with iron rods, tyre lever and axe — Injuries not sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature nor likely to cause death — No attempt made by them to cause serious injury on any vital part of the body — Held, in the circumstances of the case, accused persons are liable to be convicted under Ss. 325/149 and not Ss. 302/149 — Sentence reduced to the period already undergone and a fine of Rs 10,000 to be paid to the widow of the deceased by way of compensation. G.S. Walia v. State of Punjab, (1998) 5 SCC 150: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1283: AIR 1998 SC 2857.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-1998]

[8462] — Ss. 325/149, 323/149 and 147 — Compounding of offences under — Compounding of compoundable offences — Where after conviction confirmed by High Court, appellant made an application for compounding before Supreme Court and such application was endorsed by complainant-informant, and occurrence dated back to 1987, in the interests of justice permission for compounding accorded; conviction and sentence set aside — CrPC, 1973, S. 320 (Para 2). Ramphal v. State of M.P., (2000) 9 SCC 61: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1162.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.B. Pattanaik and U.C. Banerjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-1-2000]

— S. 326 See also S. 34

See also Ss. 34, 302/34, 307 and 326

See also Ss. 34/302 and 326

See also Ss. 96 to 106

See also Ss. 143, 147, 341, 307, 326 and 149

See also Ss. 148, 302/34, 307, 324 and 326

See also S. 149

See also Ss. 153-A, 201, 302, 326, 324, 419 and 436

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also S. 302 and Ss. 147, 148, 324, 326, 307 and 302 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 302, 302/149 and 326, 326/149

See also S. 302 or S. 304 Pt. I and S. 326 or S. 324

See also Ss. 302, 307 and 326

See also S. 304 Pt. II r/w S. 149, S. 148 and S. 326 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 307, 323, 326 and 447

See also Ss. 307 and 326

See also Ss. 307, 326 and 34

See also Ss. 308/34, 323/34, 324, 325 and 326

See also Ss. 320 and 326

See also Ss. 320, 326 and 324

See also Ss. 320 Seventhly, 326 and 324

See also Ss. 320 Eighthly and 326

See also Ss. 321, 322, 324 and 326

See also Ss. 323 and 326

See also Ss. 324, 325 and 326

See also Ss. 324 and 326

See also Ss. 324, 326 and 452

See also Ss. 325 and 326 or Ss. 302/149, Ss. 307/149 and 148

See also Ss. 326/149 and 325 and 326

See also Ss. 341, 326, 504, and 506 r/w S. 34 and Ss. 324 and 325 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER, 'C.12. Hurt, grievous or not, with or without dangerous weapons or means (Ss. 319 to 338)', in Vol. 2

[8463] — S. 326 — Age of offender — Juvenile offender — No State law to deal with such offenders — Accused, aged 12 years, found guilty under S. 326 Indian Penal Code — Punishment to be imposed — Emphasis is on reformatory nature of the punishment that should be imposed on such accused. Hiralal Mallick v. State of Bihar, (1977) 4 SCC 44: 1977 SCC (Cri) 538: AIR 1977 SC 2236: 1977 Cri LJ 1921.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer[1] and P.K. Goswami[2], JJ. [Date of decision: 16-8-1977]

[8464] — S. 326 — Appeal against conviction — Conviction and sentence of imprisonment upheld but sentence of fine reduced by Supreme Court — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374 and 386 — Constitution of India, Art. 134. Labh Singh v. State of Punjab, 1990 Supp SCC 20: 1990 SCC (Cri) 602.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-1-1990]

[8465] — S. 326 — Bail in case of offence under — Grant of, where trial delayed — Grievous hurt by dangerous weapons or means — Bail in case of — Appellant-accused having been in jail for about one year pending appeal against their conviction and punishment of 3 years' imprisonment, and there being no likelihood of the appeal being heard in near future, bail granted — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 437 and 439. Ganpat Shankar Mhatre v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 12 SCC 279.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Venkatarama Reddi and A.K. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-2005]

[8466] — S. 326 — Causing grievous injury — FIR as well as eyewitnesses clearly stating that appellant inflicted injury with his weapon on the victim — Medical evidence affirming that the injury was grievous in nature and was inflicted by a sharp-edged weapon — Appellant's plea of exercise of right of self-defence rightly rejected by High Court — On facts held, appellant was rightly convicted under S. 326 — But in the peculiar facts and circumstances, sentence reduced from 3 years to 2 years' RI but fine enhanced from Rs 100 to Rs 3000 which shall be paid over to the injured victim by way of compensation — In case of default of payment of fine within a period of one month he should suffer further imprisonment for a period of six months (Paras 23 and 24). Preetam Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (2003) 12 SCC 594.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu and P. Venkatarama Reddi, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-11-2003]

[8467] — S. 326 — Compounding of offence — Offence under S. 326 IPC, held, not compoundable — High Court rightly refused to grant permission to compound the same — CrPC, 1973, S. 320(9)

Sub-section (9) of Section 320 specifically provides that "no offence shall be compounded except as provided by this section". In view of the aforesaid legislative mandate, only the offences which are covered by Table 1 or Table 2 provided under Section 320 can be compounded and the rest of the offences punishable under IPC cannot be compounded. (Para 11). Bankat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 1 SCC 343: 2005 SCC (Cri) 316: AIR 2005 SC 368: 2005 Cri LJ 646: (2005) 2 Mah LJ 707.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-2004]

Ram Lal v. State of J&K, (1999) 2 SCC 213: 1999 SCC (Cri) 123; Surendra Nath Mohanty v. State of Orissa, (1999) 5 SCC 238: 1999 SCC (Cri) 998, followed

Mahesh Chand v. State of Rajasthan, 1990 Supp SCC 681: 1991 SCC (Cri) 159; Y. Suresh Babu v. State of A.P., (2005) 1 SCC 347, held, per incuriam

Ram Pujan v. State of U.P., (1973) 2 SCC 456: 1973 SCC (Cri) 870, distinguished

Distinguished in Dhananjay v. State of Bihar, (2007) 14 SCC 768*

[8468] — S. 326 — Compounding of offence under — Offence under S. 326 IPC, held, is not compoundable under S. 320 CrPC — However, having regard to the facts of the case that the occurrence had taken place on 24-12-1979 on a trivial issue and that the complainant and the accused are close relations who are now living amicably, the sentence of 18 months' rigorous imprisonment reduced to the period already undergone by appellant — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Jalaluddin v. State of U.P., (2002) 9 SCC 561: 2001 Cri LJ 4944.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Saghir Ahmad and Doraiswamy Raju, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-4-2000]

[8469] — S. 326 — Compounding of offences — Non-compoundable offences — Conviction under S. 326 IPC — Petitioners cannot be acquitted straightaway in spite of settlement between parties — Held, some of non-compoundable offences under Ss. 498-A, 326, etc. IPC can be made compoundable by introducing a suitable amendment in the statute — Law Commission of India could examine whether a suitable proposal can be sent to the Union Government in this regard — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Ramgopal v. State of M.P., (2010) 13 SCC 540.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and T.S. Thakur, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-7-2010]

[8470] — S. 326 — Conviction and sentence under Ss. 302/34 set aside and conviction under S. 326 and sentence of 3 years' RI imposed on the basis of concession on behalf of the respondent State which on facts appearing to be proper. Punjab Singh v. State of Haryana, 1984 Supp SCC 233: 1984 SCC (Cri) 484: AIR 1984 SC 1233: 1984 Cri LJ 921.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and Ranganath Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-3-1984]

[8471] — S. 326 — Conviction confirmed — Pursuant to long enmity, accused persons armed with firearms, entered house of S — Appellant J fired a shot at S — Four dying declarations recorded during investigation — Trial court found that accused persons had not been properly identified — Due to long enmity, false implication was possible — Accused were accordingly acquitted — High Court maintained the acquittal of four of the accused but reversed acquittal of appellant J — Eyewitnesses' account of several persons including wife of deceased — Dying declarations recorded before several independent persons including an Executive Magistrate — Conviction of appellant upheld — No fault could be found with conviction — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386(a) (Paras 3 and 5 to 7). Jabar Singh v. State of M.P., (2010) 11 SCC 742.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and C.K. Prasad, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-8-2010]

[8472] — S. 326 — Death as a result of multiple injuries — Co-accused acquitted — Apart from fractures by blunt weapons, incised injuries also found on the body of the deceased — According to prosecution case accused-appellant inflicted barchi blows on upper part of right arm of the deceased — But no incised wound found on that part of the body — Moreover the incised wounds found to be non-fatal — Hence he could at best be convicted under S. 326 or 324 — His conviction under S. 302 therefore altered to S. 326 and his sentence reduced to the period of more than 5 years' imprisonment already undergone. Rattan Singh v. State of Punjab, 1988 Supp SCC 456: 1988 SCC (Cri) 708: AIR 1988 SC 2147: 1988 BLJR 459.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and K. Jagannatha Shetty, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-1988]

[8473] — S. 326 — Free fight — Accused inflicting only one injury with a sharp-edged weapon — He could not be held responsible for fatal injury inflicted by other accused — His conviction under S. 326 upheld. Amrik Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 320: 1994 SCC (Cri) 387: 1993 Cri LJ 2857.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-1993]

[8474] — S. 326 — Grievous hurt — Testimony of son that accused seen coming out of deceased's house with blood-stained balua — Son not questioned in cross-examination — Conviction upheld. Prasad Mahato v. State of Bihar, 1994 SCC (Cri) 55: AIR 1993 SC 2477: 1993 Cri LJ 3136.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-2-1993]

[8475] — S. 326 — Grievous hurt — Blow on head with an axe

A blow on the head with an axe which penetrates half an inch into the head is likely to endanger life and hence is a grievous hurt. Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 216: (1955) 1 SCR 1083: 1955 Cri LJ 572, 578.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.K. Mukherjea, S.R. Das and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-1954]

[8476] — S. 326 — Grievous hurt — Serious burn injuries caused by acid pouring — No leniency to accused in such cases — Original sentence, on facts, restored — Appellant suffering serious burn injuries on head, face, neck, eyes and chest due to acid pouring by Respondent 1 — Accused convicted under S. 326 and sentenced to three years' RI with fine and default stipulation — However, High Court reducing sentence to the period already undergone, which was only thirty-five days, while increasing fine — Sustainability — Held, interference by High Court in such heinous crime, not proper — Accused is a person of criminal inclinations and no leniency is called for, for such persons, otherwise people cannot go around in life peacefully — Hence, judgment of High Court set aside (Paras 5 and 6). Vishwambhar Narayan Jadhav v. Mallappa Sangramappa Mallipatil, (2007) 15 SCC 600.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-2008]

[8477] — S. 326 — Grievous hurt by dangerous weapon — Ingredients of the section — What is dangerous weapon would depend upon facts of each case, having regard to the weapon's size, sharpness, etc. — Stone used for hitting the victim on his head and face causing lacerated wound over left posterior parietal region of head and fracture of the left upper second incisor tooth involving pulp and root — Medical evidence established that the injuries suffered by the victim covered by expression "grievous hurt" under S. 320 — But having regard to the size of the stone used, held, it was not covered by the expression "dangerous weapon" — Therefore, accused liable to be convicted under S. 325 instead of S. 326

The prosecution case was that while PW 1 was walking along a public road, the appellant hit him on his head and face with a stone causing injuries. The doctor who examined the injured noticed following injuries: (1) Lacerated wound over the left posterior parietal region of the head. (2) Fracture of the left upper second incisor tooth involving the pulp and the root. The trial court convicted the appellant under Section 326 IPC and sentenced him to 2 years' RI. The Addl. Sessions Judge upheld the conviction, and sentence. The High Court dismissed the revision application under Section 397 r/w Section 401 CrPC.

Disposing of the appeal,

Held :

"Grievous hurt" has been defined in Section 320 IPC. Some hurts which are not like those hurts which are mentioned in the first seven clauses, are obviously distinguished from a slight hurt, may nevertheless be more serious. Thus a wound may cause intense pain, prolonged disease or lasting injury to the victim, although it does not fall within any of the first seven clauses. Before a conviction for the sentence of grievous hurt can be passed, one of the injuries defined in Section 320 must be strictly proved, and the eighth clause is no exception to the general rule of law that a penal statute must be construed strictly. (Paras 14 and 15)

There is no such thing as a regular or earmarked weapon for committing murder or for that matter a hurt. Whether a particular article can per se cause any serious wound or grievous hurt or injury has to be determined factually. In this case, the evidence of the doctor (PW 5) clearly shows that the hurt or the injury that was caused was covered under the expression "grievous hurt" as defined under Section 320 IPC. The inevitable conclusion is that a grievous hurt was caused. (Para 17)

The expression "any instrument which, used as a weapon of offence, is likely to cause death" used in Section 326 has to be gauged taking note of the heading of the section. The heading of the section provides some insight into the factors to be considered. What would constitute a "dangerous weapon" would depend upon the facts of each case and no generalisation can be made. It is not that in every case a stone would constitute a dangerous weapon. It would depend upon the facts of the case. In some provisions e.g. Sections 324 and 326 the expression "dangerous weapon" is used. In some other more serious offences the expression used is "deadly weapon" (e.g. Sections 397 and 398). The facts involved in a particular case, depending upon various factors like size, sharpness, would throw light on the question whether the weapon was a dangerous or deadly weapon or not. That would determine whether in the case Section 325 or Section 326 would be applicable. In the instant case considering the size of the stone which was used, as revealed by material on record, it cannot be said that a dangerous weapon was used. Therefore, the conviction is altered to Section 325 IPC. (Paras 16 and 17). Mathai v. State of Kerala, (2005) 3 SCC 260: 2005 SCC (Cri) 695: AIR 2005 SC 710: 2005 Cri LJ 898.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-1-2005]

State of U.P. v. Indrajeet, (2000) 7 SCC 249: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1338, relied on [8478] — S. 326 — Non-compoundable offence — Compromise in — Relevance of — Held, though compromise cannot be recorded in such a case, but the effect of compromise can be taken into consideration while awarding the sentence — Appellants convicted under S. 326 IPC and sentenced to two years' RI — Compromise petition filed — Appellants in custody for about five months — Held, ends of justice would be met if sentence reduced to period already undergone — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 320 and 354 (Para 4). Jetha Ram v. State of Rajasthan, (2006) 9 SCC 255: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 561.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-7-2005]

[8479] — S. 326 — Non-compoundable offence — Settlement between parties — Held, conviction would stand, sentence reduced to that already undergone and accused directed to pay compensation to the complainant — CrPC, 1973, S. 320. Shah Noor v. State of A.P., (1982) 3 SCC 511: 1983 SCC (Cri) 107.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.P. Sen, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-1981]

[8480] — S. 326 — Nose cutting — Sentence

Since there was grave provocation for the accused who could naturally feel extremely hurt by the victim's conduct in seducing the former's wife and thereafter living in the same vicinity, the ends of justice would be amply met if the accused are sentenced to three years rigorous imprisonment. The sentence of eight years is too severe in these circumstances. Modi Ram v. State of M.P., (1972) 2 SCC 630: 1973 SCC (Cri) 45: AIR 1972 SC 2438: 1972 Cri LJ 1521.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, I.D. Dua and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-8-1972]

[8481] — S. 326 — On facts, conviction upheld — No law point laid down. Thathanna v. State of A.P., AIR 1994 SC 652: 1994 Cri LJ 632.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and N. Venkatachala, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-10-1993]

[8482] — S. 326 — Plea of leniency — Case of acid throwing by appellant on complainant due to enmity between landlord (appellant's father) and tenant (complainant) regarding tenancy — Conviction of appellant under S. 326 IPC with sentence of 4 years' RI, while his father acquitted — Incident 30 years old — Complainant filing affidavit absolving appellant — Nothing stated against appellant regarding his indulgence in any criminal activity — Nothing on record to suggest that injuries were very serious, endangering life of complainant — Appellant already undergoing one year of sentence before being released on bail on the basis of order passed by Supreme Court — Herein, notice was issued limited to question of sentence alone, hence, merits of conviction not considered — In the facts and circumstances of the case, leaning in favour of leniency, sentence limited to the period undergone (Paras 10 and 11). Radhey Shyam v. State of U.P., (2008) 14 SCC 558: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 862: 2009 Cri LJ 1107.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Tarun Chatterjee and V.S. Sirpurkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-11-2008]

[8483] — S. 326 — Sentence — Accused, a school teacher, offence committed in heat of moment and lapse of 13 years since commission of the offence considered for reducing sentence of one year's RI to imprisonment till rising of the Court and fine of Rs 5000

Having regard to the facts that the appellant was a school teacher, he had acted in the heat of the moment and the incident occurred about 13 years back, it would not be desirable to send him back to jail. Therefore, the sentence of RI for one year awarded by the High Court should be reduced to imprisonment till the rising of the court and payment of a fine of Rs 5000 or in default, to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of six months. The amount of fine shall be paid to the complainant by way of compensation. Naib Singh v. State of Punjab, (1986) 4 SCC 401: 1986 SCC (Cri) 475: AIR 1986 SC 2192: 1986 Cri LJ 2061.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-9-1986]

[8484] — S. 326 — Sentence — Causing injury with an axe on forehead resulting in fracture — Conviction under S. 326 proper — Sentence of one year's RI not excessive. A.C. Gangadhar v. State of Karnataka, 1998 SCC (Cri) 1477: AIR 1998 SC 2381.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1998]

[8485] — S. 326 — Sentence — Occurrence taking place about 14 years back and accused persons already undergoing imprisonment for a year or so — Sentence reduced to the period already undergone. G. Satyanarayana Reddy v. State of A.P., 1994 Supp (2) SCC 287: 1994 SCC (Cri) 1239.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.M. Sahai and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-5-1994]

[8486] — S. 326 — Sentence — Both hands of the victim almost maimed by shots fired by the accused appellant — Sentence of 3 years and fine of Rs 500 imposed by High Court — No error of law in the High Court's judgment — Supreme Court refused to take a lenient view on the question of sentence. Gurdeep Singh v. State of Rajasthan, 1980 Supp SCC 432: 1981 SCC (Cri) 360: AIR 1979 SC 1432.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-2-1979]

[8487] — S. 326 — Sentence — Causing injury with an axe on forehead resulting in fracture — Conviction under S. 326 proper — Sentence of one year's RI not excessive. A.C. Gangadhar v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 14 SCC 710.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-4-1998]

[8488] — S. 326 — Sentence — Fact of compromise can be taken into account even though offence non-compoundable. Ram Pujan v. State of U.P., (1973) 2 SCC 456: 1973 SCC (Cri) 870: AIR 1973 SC 2418: 1973 Cri LJ 1612.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy, H.R. Khanna and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-7-1973]

Held, in Surendra Nath Mohanty v. State of Orissa, (1999) 5 SCC 238 in para 8 that that the course adopted in this case was not in accordance with law.

[8489] — S. 326 — Sentence — Mitigating circumstances — Old age — Accused aged 71 years o the date of occurrence and had undergone imprisonment for quite some time — Sentence of 3 years' R.I. reduced to the period already undergone. Kishan Chand v. State of Punjab, AIR 1994 SC 32: 1994 Cri LJ 19.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and R.C. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-2-1992]

[8490] — S. 326 — Sentence for offence under, r/w S. 27, Arms Act — High Court altering sentence of five years' RI and fine of Rs 2000 to period of custody already undergone (63 days) and enhancing fine to Rs 25,000 — Held, High Court erred in doing so — Custodial sentence, in light of enhanced fine, however, raised only to 18 months, and of the Rs 25,000 fine Rs 10,000 awarded to victim-complainant — CrPC, 1973, S. 357 — Victim-complainant awarded part of the fine — Constitution of India — Art. 136 — Arms Act, 1959, S. 27

The trial court found the respondent-accused guilty of the offence punishable under Section 326 IPC and Section 27 of the Arms Act. He was sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for five years and to pay a fine of Rs 2000 with default stipulation for the offence relatable to Section 326 IPC. He was also sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year in respect of the offences under the Arms Act. On appeal, however, the High Court while upholding the conviction reduced the sentence to the period of custodial sentence already undergone. The fine was, however, enhanced to Rs 25,000. The appellant complainant/victim was before the Supreme Court by special leave.

Allowing the appeals,

Held :

When the factual scenario as noted by the trial court, and the principles of law as noted above are considered, the inevitable conclusion is that the High Court was not justified in reducing the custodial sentence. Taking into account the enhanced fine as imposed by the High Court which admittedly had been paid, it would be appropriate to fix the custodial sentence at eighteen months. The accused-Respondent 1 shall surrender to custody forthwith to serve the remainder of sentence. The custodial sentence has been fixed taking note of the peculiar facts of the case. Out of the fine deposited a sum of Rs 10,000 shall be paid to the appellant. (Paras 9 and 10). Surjit Singh v. Nahara Ram, (2004) 6 SCC 513: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1801: AIR 2004 SC 4122.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and C.K. Thakker, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-8-2004]

Friedman: Law in Changing Society, relied on

State of M.P. v. Ghanshyam Singh, (2003) 8 SCC 13: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1935, relied on [8491] — S. 326 — Sentence under — Reduction of — Appellant sentenced to 3 years' RI by High Court — Trial court considered the compromise between the parties and directed the other accused to be released on executing a bond — Incident took place about two decades back — Appellant already undergone about six months' imprisonment — In these circumstances, imposing a fine of Rs 2000, sentence of imprisonment reduced to period already undergone (Para 5). Sattan Sahani v. State of Bihar, (2002) 7 SCC 604: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1811.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu and P. Venkatarama Reddi, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-10-2002]

[8492] — S. 326 — Sentence under — Reduction of — Settlement arrived at between parties — On facts, sentence reduced to period of about 4 months already undergone — CrPC, 1973, S. 320 — Settlement in respect of offence under S. 326 IPC. Ram Ekbal Upadhya v. State of Bihar, (2001) 10 SCC 233.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-11-2000]

[8493] — S. 326 — Sole testimony of victim suffering from substantial infirmities and inconsistencies — Held, conviction cannot be sustained. Sudhir v. State of M.P., (1985) 1 SCC 559: 1985 SCC (Cri) 123: AIR 1985 SC 515: 1985 Cri LJ 795.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and V. Balakrishna Eradi, J. [Date of decision: 24-1-1985]

[8494] — Ss. 326 and 34 — Suspension of sentence pending appeal and release of appellants on bail — Discretion of High Court — Scope and manner of exercise of — Considerations involved — Held, High Court has to consider each case on the basis of (i) nature of the offence, (ii) manner in which occurrence had taken place, and (iii) whether in any manner bail granted earlier had been misused — High Court has ample power and discretion to suspend sentence, but that discretion has to be exercised judiciously depending on the facts and circumstances of each case — No straitjacket formula can be applied in exercising the discretion — Facts and circumstances of each case will govern the exercise of judicial discretion — Considering the fact position in its entirety, Supreme Court suspending sentence pending appeal and directing release of appellants on bail — Constitution of India, Art. 136 — CrPC, 1973, S. 389

Disposing of the appeal,

Held :

When an appeal is preferred against conviction in the High Court, the High Court has ample power and discretion to suspend the sentence, but that discretion has to be exercised judiciously depending on the facts and circumstances of each case. While considering the suspension of sentence, each case is to be considered on the basis of nature of the offence, manner in which occurrence had taken place, whether in any manner bail granted earlier had been misused. In fact, there is no straitjacket formula which can be applied in exercising the discretion. The facts and circumstances of each case will govern the exercise of judicial discretion while considering the application filed by the convict under Section 389 CrPC. (Para 14)

In the present case, the appellants were on bail during the pendency of the case before the Sessions Court. The Sessions Court has acquitted most of the accused persons after trial except the appellants who were convicted under Section 326 read with Section 34 IPC and sentenced to four years' rigorous imprisonment with a fine of Rs 2000. It is not the case of the other side, that, when the accused were on bail they had indulged themselves in any offence either under the provisions of the Penal Code or any other statute. It is also not the case of the prosecution that when the appellants were on bail they had either jumped the bail or were any way responsible for prolonging the proceedings before the Sessions Court, and it is also not the case of the other side that they would abscond and would not be available to undergo the sentence if the appellate court affirms the order passed by the Sessions Court. (Paras 23 and 13)

Taking into consideration an overall view of the matter and in particular the offence alleged and sentence imposed and further taking into consideration the acquittal of the other accused persons, who were also charge-sheeted for the same offences as that of the appellants and further taking into consideration the conduct of the appellants during the trial before the Sessions Court when they were on bail, the High Court could have suspended the sentence and granted bail to the appellants. Therefore, interference with the discretion exercised by the High Court would be justified under Article 136 of the Constitution. The sentence is suspended and the appellants are directed to be released on bail on each one of them executing a bond with two solvent sureties to the satisfaction of the trial court. (Para 24). Angana v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 3 SCC 767: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 742: AIR 2009 SC 1669: 2009 Cri LJ 1538.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Tarun Chatterjee and H.L. Dattu, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-2009]

Takht Singh v. State of M.P., (2001) 10 SCC 463: 2003 SCC (Cri) 800; Kashmira Singh v. State of Punjab, (1977) 4 SCC 291: 1977 SCC (Cri) 559; Babu Singh v. State of U.P., (1978) 1 SCC 579: 1978 SCC (Cri) 133; Emperor v. H.L. Hutchinson, AIR 1931 All 356; Bhagwan Rama Shinde Gosai v. State of Gujarat, (1999) 4 SCC 421: 1999 SCC (Cri) 553; Suresh Kumar v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2001) 10 SCC 338: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1043, relied on

Kishori Lal v. Rupa, (2004) 7 SCC 638: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2021; Vasant Tukaram Pawar v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 5 SCC 281: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1052; Sidhartha Vashisht v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2008) 5 SCC 230: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 571; Gomti v. Thakurdas, (2007) 11 SCC 160: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 644, considered

[8495] — Ss. 326 and 39 — Voluntarily causing grievous hurt — Mens rea — Accused adulterating liquor with methyl alcohol, a poisonous substance — Consumption of liquor resulting in death and permanent loss of eyesight of several persons — Accused pleading that they had no knowledge that the effect of consumption of the adulterated liquor would be so injurious — Held, contention not sustainable — Adulteration itself an illegal act under Kerala Abkari Act — Having regard to the percentage of methyl alcohol, the poisonous substance, in the liquor, it is clear that the persons responsible for mixing the same had knowledge that consumption of the liquor was likely to cause very serious adverse effects — Fact that all the consumers were not adversely affected not material (Para 26). E.K. Chandrasenan v. State of Kerala, (1995) 2 SCC 99: 1995 SCC (Cri) 329: AIR 1995 SC 1066: 1995 Cri LJ 2060: (1995) 1 Crimes 421.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1995]

[8496] — Ss. 326 and 120-B — Sentence — Enhancement of — Liquor tragedy — Deterrence and retribution principles applied — Partners of a firm in conspiracy with a chemist adulterating liquor with methyl alcohol, a poisonous substance and supplying the same to shops and sub-shops — Consumption of such liquor resulting in death of 70 persons, total loss of eyesight of 24 persons and minor injuries to others — Held on facts, enhancement of sentences called for — Plea of the chemist for non-enhancement on ground of his now being an old man of 72 years, completely deaf and financially weak not acceptable — Sentence enhanced to the maximum i.e. life imprisonment (Paras 46 to 52). E.K. Chandrasenan v. State of Kerala, (1995) 2 SCC 99: 1995 SCC (Cri) 329: AIR 1995 SC 1066: 1995 Cri LJ 2060: (1995) 1 Crimes 421.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1995]

[8497] — Ss. 326, 143, 148 r/w S. 149 — Sustainability of conviction under — Sentence to be imposed — Effect of protraction of proceedings — Accused-appellants (A-1 to A-18) alleged to have formed an unlawful assembly and brutally assaulted V (deceased, who later succumbed to the injuries) and PWs 1, 3 and 10 — PWs managing to escape from their clutches and leaving V at the place of occurrence in injured condition — Evidence of eyewitness (PW 2) and injured witnesses found credible and fully establishing the prosecution case against A-1 to A-5 — Discrepancies in their evidence found minor and insignificant — No discernible reason found for false implication — However, participation of accused-appellants A-6 to A-18 not established by satisfactory and cogent evidence connecting them with the commis- sion of the offences — Hence, while acquitting accused-appellants A-6 to A-18, conviction of accused-appellants A-1 to A-5 under S. 326 r/w S. 149 maintained — However, considering the fact that the incident took place on 4-11-1986, nature of injuries suffered by the deceased and PWs and the physical, mental and financial hardships suffered by the accused-appellants in prosecuting the legal battle in different courts for the past about 20 years, sentence of 5 years' RI reduced to 1 year's RI each, while the amount of fine reduced to Rs 5000 each from Rs 10,000 each — Mitigating circumstances or factors (Paras 13, 16, 17 and 18). Venkategowda v. State of Karnataka, (2006) 13 SCC 203: (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 610: (2006) 48 AIC 47 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.K. Mathur and L.S. Panta, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-11-2006]

[8498] — Ss. 326, 148 and 302 — Fatal injuries caused by unlawful assembly — Conviction for murder when not possible — Multiple injuries caused to the deceased by members of unlawful assembly — Charge against the appellants stating that their common object was to assault the deceased and commit rioting with deadly weapons — Absence of evidence to show who caused fatal injuries to the deceased — Held, in the circumstances, High Court rightly convicted them under S. 326. Rewa Ram v. Teja, (2008) 8 SCC 346.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-3-1998]

[8499] — Ss. 326, 302, 34, 149, 147 & 148 — Dispute originating from a trivial exchange of abuse between two groups — Deceased, though not the main target of attack, knifed to death, while his brother, the main target, sustaining grievous injuries — Prosecution evidence discrepant as to whether A-1 or A-2 fatally stabbed the deceased but established that they acted in unison — Other accused, either unarmed or having sticks, only standing at some distance at the time of the stabbing, but contributing in causing grievous hurt to deceased's brother — Held, on facts A-1 and A-2 shared common intention of causing grievous hurt and not death and hence to be convicted under S. 326 read with S. 34 and also under S. 148 — Other accused, held, had common object to cause grievous hurt and hence to be convicted under S. 326 read with S. 149 and also under S. 147 — Sentence reduced to the period already undergone. Nammu v. State of M.P., 1980 Supp SCC 23: 1979 SCC (Cri) 1025: AIR 1979 SC 1755: 1979 Cri LJ 1329.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria, P.N. Shinghal and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-1979]

[8500] — Ss. 326 and 302/34 — Appellant causing grievous injury on the head of the deceased by a kudali — Other two accused against whom the allegation was that they also inflicted injuries on the deceased acquitted — Absence of evidence to prove that the injury inflicted by the appellant resulted in death of the victim — Held, in the circumstances, appellant is liable to be convicted under S. 326 and not under S. 302. Roopa Ram v. State of Rajasthan, 1999 SCC (Cri) 1316: 1999 Cri LJ 2901.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1998]

[8501] — Ss. 326 and 307 — Grievous hurt — Sentence — Relative seriousness of offences under Ss. 307 and 326 — Alteration of conviction from S. 307 to S. 326 — Effect on sentence — Trial court convicting respondent-accused under S. 307 and sentencing them to RI for 5 years and fine of Rs 1000 each — High Court in appeal filed thereagainst altering conviction to S. 326 and reducing sentence to period undergone which was four months and three months respectively, and in lieu of imprisonment imposing fine of Rs 3500 each with default stipulation — Considerations weighing therefor being (i) offence was committed in year 1996, and (ii) alteration in conviction — Held, any inordinate delay in conclusion of a criminal trial undoubtedly has a highly deleterious effect on society generally, and particularly on two sides to the case — Sometimes victim may suffer even more than accused — Hence, no reason to give all benefits on account of delay in trial to accused alone — In the instant case there was nothing to indicate that appellants or prosecution were responsible for delay in trial — Hence, High Court was not right in substituting custodial sentence of respondents to only fines of Rs 3500 — Further, it would be a mistake to think that as a rule all offences falling under S. 326 would be less serious than offences falling under S. 307 IPC and would consequently attract lighter sentence — Offence under S. 326 may be actually more serious than another falling under S. 307 IPC — From injuries suffered by victim it was evident that though respondents did not intend to kill him altogether, they surely wanted to leave him crippled for a lifetime — Therefore, High Court was not right in letting them off on period undergone — Accordingly RI for 2 years in addition to fine of Rs 3500 imposed out of which Rs 6000 directed to be paid to victim — Constitution of India, Art. 21 (Paras 2, 3 and 12 to 16). Mangal Singh v. Kishan Singh, (2009) 17 SCC 303: AIR 2009 SC 1535.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Tarun Chatterjee and Aftab Alam, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-2008]

[8502] — S. 326 or S. 307 or Ss. 323 & 324 — Appropriate conviction and sentence — Benefit of doubt — Doubt as to whether accused while inflicting two knife injuries, on chest and shoulder deliberately causing simple or grievous injuries — Injured however, remaining in hospital for 15 days — On facts, held, accused should be held guilty under S. 326 IPC simpliciter and not under Ss. 307 or 323 and 324 — Accused having undergone one year's imprisonment in 1987 (when he was 25 years old), his sentence reduced to period already undergone

A reading of the injuries would indicate that though the general condition of the victim was very bad yet there was no categorical statement in the medical certificate issued by the doctor, PW 1 that the injuries were in fact dangerous to life. It is doubtful as to whether it was a deliberate omission or an oversight but whatsoever it may be the benefit must accrue to the accused. Furthermore, the case would not fall under Sections 323 or 324 IPC because of the statement of the victim that as he had remained in hospital for fifteen days due to the injuries caused to him, this made out a case of grievous hurt. Accused RK alone should thus be held guilty under Section 326 IPC simpliciter. As RK had undergone sentence of one year when he was a young man of 25 years in 1987 and was now in his middle years, his sentence must be reduced to the period already undergone. (Paras 12 and 13). Neelam Bahal v. State of Uttarakhand, (2010) 2 SCC 229.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-2009]

[8503] — Ss. 326 and 320 — For conviction under S. 326, requirements of S. 320 IPC must be satisfied — Accused-appellant inflicted only one bhala-blow — Said act was likely to cause death of the injured person — On facts, held, offence attracted conviction under S. 326 IPC (Para 4). Sattan Sahani v. State of Bihar, (2002) 7 SCC 604: 2002 SCC (Cri) 1811.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Rajendra Babu and P. Venkatarama Reddi, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-10-2002]

[8504] — Ss. 326 and 320 Secondly & Eighthly — Grievous hurt — Hurt to be grievous need not be such which endangers life — Requirement endangering life mentioned in cl. Eighthly cannot be read in other clauses of S. 320 — Where due to consumption of liquor adulterated with methyl alcohol, a poisonous substance, supplied by accused, 24 persons lost their eyesight permanently, held, the hurt must be regarded as 'grievous' because of cl. secondly of S. 320. E.K. Chandrasenan v. State of Kerala, (1995) 2 SCC 99: 1995 SCC (Cri) 329: AIR 1995 SC 1066: 1995 Cri LJ 2060: (1995) 1 Crimes 421.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1995]

Govt. of Bombay v. Abdul Wahab, (1945) 47 Bom LR 998: AIR 1946 Bom 38, distinguished

[8505] — Ss. 326, 323 & 324 r/w S. 149 — Appeal against acquittal — Reappreciation of evidence and interference with the findings of acquittal — When called for — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 378 and 386

While deciding an appeal against acquittal, the power of the appellate court is no less than the power exercised while hearing appeals against conviction. In both types of appeals, the power exists to review the entire evidence. However, one significant difference is that an order of acquittal will not be interfered with by an appellate court, where the judgment of the trial court is based on evidence and the view taken is reasonable and plausible. It will not reverse the decision of the trial court merely because a different view is possible. The appellate court will also bear in mind that there is a presumption of innocence in favour of the accused and the accused is entitled to get the benefit of any doubt. Further, if it decides to interfere, it should assign reasons for differing with the decision of the trial court. (Para 8)

In the instant case the High Court had not interfered in the matter in a routine manner merely because a different view was possible. The High Court had interfered rightly, because the trial court unreasonably disbelieved the evidence of six eyewitnesses on insufficient grounds, and had also assigned reasons for interfering with acquittal. Hence, judgment of the High Court was well justified. (Para 16). Kallu v. State of M.P., (2006) 10 SCC 313: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 546: AIR 2006 SC 831: 2006 Cri LJ 799.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and R.V. Raveendran, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2006]

Bhim Singh v. State of Haryana, (2002) 10 SCC 461: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1469, relied on [8506] — Ss. 326, 323 and 324 r/w S. 149 — Unlawful assembly of 27 persons, including the appellants, armed variously, alleged to have assaulted S (PW 4) and when the womenfolk (PWs 6, 7, 9 and 10) ran to save him they were also beaten up — Testimony of PW 3 (a neighbour and an eyewitness) read with evidence of PWs 4, 6, 7, 9 and 10 clearly establishing the identity of the appellants as the assailants — Neither S nor the womenfolk were armed while the appellants fully armed had entered S's house shouting "kill/hit" — Evidence of eyewitnesses also making it clear that but for a police van intervening at that time, there was likelihood of S and the womenfolk sustaining more injuries — Longstanding enmity between the victim and the appellants established — Cross-complaint by the defence not material since none of them were injured — Held, in such circumstances the appellants were rightly held guilty by the High Court — Further held, mere fact that there was enmity between the two groups cannot be a ground to reject the clear evidence of eyewitnesses (Paras 9 to 15). Kallu v. State of M.P., (2006) 10 SCC 313: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 546: AIR 2006 SC 831: 2006 Cri LJ 799.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and R.V. Raveendran, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-1-2006]

[8507] — Ss. 326 and 324 — Conviction and sentence under — Prosecution case that Appellant 1 stabbed PW 3 with a knife and Appellants 2 to 4 assaulted him with bamboo clubs and iron rod — Trial court taking the view that prosecution proved beyond reasonable doubt guilt of the accused appellants — Trial court convicting Appellant 1 under S. 326 and sentencing him to one year's RI and Appellants 2 to 4 under S. 324 and sentencing them to 3 months' simple imprisonment — Appeal against the said conviction and sentence dismissed by appellate court — On examination of evidence, held, prosecution has proved beyond reasonable doubt that appellants had attacked and caused injuries to PW 3 — Hence, conviction upheld — Appellant 3 already died and Appellants 2 and 4 had already served out the sentence — Since Appellant 1 suffering from 60% disability in both lower limbs, diabetes and acute bronchitic attacks and since his wife deserted him and he having two small children with an aged mother, it will be sufficient if the sentence of Appellant 1 is reduced to that already undergone by him (Para 10). R. Seetharam v. State of Karnataka, (2001) 9 SCC 59: 2002 SCC (Cri) 127: AIR 2001 SC 1091: 2001 Cri LJ 1451.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.B. Shah and S.N. Variava, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-2-2001]

[8508] — S. 326 or S. 324 — Conviction under S. 326 — Propriety — Whether the injury in question was grievous — Assault by using sword — As per the wound certificate, there was an incised wound measuring 3" x 1" over the left hand and the nerve of the middle finger, index finger and the fourth finger was cut — Said injury stated by doctor to be grievous — No fracture to bone of finger — Victim neither suffered severe body pain during the space of twenty days nor was unable to follow his ordinary pursuits for that period — Also, no case that there was permanent privation of sight of either eye, permanent privation of hearing of either ear or privation of any member or joint or destruction or permanent impairing of the power of any member or joint — Held, the said injury was not a grievous hurt falling under S. 320 IPC — Doctor's opinion was erroneous — Conviction altered from S. 326 to S. 324 IPC (Paras 6 and 7). Avinash Shetty v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 13 SCC 375.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and Dr. Ar. Lakshmanan, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-9-2004]

[8509] — Ss. 326, 324 and 307 — Single sickle-blow leading to death two years later because of ulcers caused by the injury — Appropriate sentence — High Court by impugned judgment altering conviction from under S. 307 and sentence of seven years' RI to conviction under S. 326 and three years' RI — Single blow given on back of deceased with sickle who died nearabout two years later — Doctor opining that death of deceased was not due to direct result of said injury but because of "ulcers" which were indirect outcome of the injury — Appellant undergoing about 15 months of imprisonment in terms of order of High Court — Appellant had been prosecuting present case for last more than 14 years in various courts and in that process he undoubtedly had undergone mental agony and financial sufferings — Hence, justice would be subserved if the sentence imposed by High Court reduced to sentence already undergone by appellant (Paras 5, 11, 13 and 14). Ramdas v. State of M.P., (2009) 4 SCC 57: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 65: 2009 Cri LJ 1136: (2009) 74 AIC 14 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: L.S. Panta and B. Sudershan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-1-2009]

[8510] — Ss. 326 and 325 — On facts, though a sharp-edged weapon like phawra (spade) was used but since blunt side was used causing lacerated wound or contusion, the offence fell under S. 325 and not S. 326 — Offence allowed to be compounded. Ganga Prasad v. State of U.P., (1987) 2 SCC 232: 1987 SCC (Cri) 345.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and M.M. Dutt, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-1987]

[8511] — Ss. 326, 325 and 149 — Corroborated testimony of interested eyewitnesses — Evidentiary value — Case under Ss. 326, 325 and 149 IPC — Accused persons, armed with weapons, chasing the victim entering his house and according to eyewitnesses assaulting and killing him and carrying the dead body by dragging the same — Two police constables, on being informed, running after the assailants and apprehending some of them — In such circumstances although the eyewitnesses had enmity with the accused and could therefore be said to be interested witnesses, their testimony having been corroborated by the evidence of the constables, held, ought not to have been discarded by the High Court. Lakhiya Devi v. Girja Yadav, (1999) 1 SCC 203: 1999 SCC (Cri) 26: AIR 1998 SC 2395.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-7-1998]

[8512] — Ss. 326, 325 and 324 — Sentence — Mitigating circumstances — Free fight — Occurrence started at the spur of moment — Some of the accused persons also receiving injuries — In the circumstances of the case sentence of imprisonment reduced. Amrik Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (1) SCC 320: 1994 SCC (Cri) 387: 1993 Cri LJ 2857.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and N.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-1993]

[8513] — Ss. 326 and 325 r/w S. 34 — Appeal against conviction — Method of disposal — Reappreciation of the evidence by the appellate court itself, held, essential — It cannot proceed to dispose of the appeal upon appraisal of evidence by the trial court alone, particularly when the appeal has been already admitted and placed for final hearing — Disposal of criminal appeal in contravention to the said procedure, if permitted, held, would amount to negation of valuable right of appeal of an accused — Since the High Court disposed of the appeal without reappraising the evidence independently, matter remitted to it for disposal afresh — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374 and 386

The High Court did not consider any evidence and disposed of the appeal by simply saying that after reappreciation of the evidence and rescrutiny of the records, it did not find any error apparent in the finding of the trial court. (Para 4)

It is well settled that in a criminal appeal, a duty is enjoined upon the appellate court to reappraise the evidence itself and it cannot proceed to dispose of the appeal upon appraisal of evidence by the trial court alone, especially when the appeal has been already admitted and placed for final hearing. Upholding such a procedure would amount to negation of valuable right of appeal of an accused, which cannot be permitted under law. Hence, the impugned order passed by the High Court is fit to be set aside. (Para 4). Rama v. State of Rajasthan, (2002) 4 SCC 571: AIR 2002 SC 1814.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.B. Shah and B.N. Agrawal, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-4-2002]

[8514] — Ss. 326, 325/34 and Ss. 323/34 — Illicit relationship between the victim and a female relative of the accused persons — Accused persons taking the victim inside a room and belabouring him, inflicting 5 injuries — Conjointly, K husband of the said female, removing the eyeballs of the victim from the sockets and thereby blinding him — In view of clear and natural version of the victim courts below not justified in convicting K alone and acquitting the remaining three accused — All the accused convicted under Ss. 325/34 and Ss. 323/34 — K, who went beyond the common intention, is liable to be convicted under S. 326 — His conviction enhanced from 2 years' RI to 10 years' RI. State of U.P. v. Kamal Haldhar, 1998 SCC (Cri) 894.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-11-1997]

[8515] — S. 326 or Ss. 326/34 — Application of Act to offences punishable with imprisonment for life — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, Ss. 4 and 6

Probation of Offenders Act is intended to carry out the object of keeping away from the unhealthy atmosphere of jail life where normally one has to mix with hardened criminals, those found guilty of the commission of comparatively less serious offences by providing for dealing with them more leniently with a view to their reformation, under Ss. 3, 4 and 6 of the Act as the case may be. An offence punishable under S. 326, IPC or under S. 326, read with S. 34, IPC, being punishable with imprisonment for life, does not fall within the ambit of the Probation of Offenders Act. Jagdev Singh v. State of Punjab, (1974) 3 SCC 412: 1973 SCC (Cri) 977: AIR 1973 SC 2427: 1973 Cri LJ 1614.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-4-1973]

[8516] — Ss. 326 and 335 — Courts below convicting accused under S. 326, for cutting nose of two persons, overlooking element of provocation borne out by the fully corroborated evidence of accused — Accepting accused's evidence, Supreme Court, therefore, altered the conviction to S. 335, IPC. Dhondey v. State of U.P., (1972) 4 SCC 729: AIR 1972 SC 1273: 1972 Cri LJ 871.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.S. Hegde and A.N. Grover, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-1971]

[8517] — Ss. 326 and 450 r/w S. 34 — Appreciation of evidence — Absence of direct evidence regarding manner in which two persons killed — Conviction by the trial court on the basis of statement of one of the deceased who died after about 10 days of the incident — Witnesses in whose presence the said statement allegedly made stating before the court that no such statement was given by the deceased — Held, in the circumstances of the case, the High Court rightly acquitted the accused persons. State of Karnataka v. Narayan Babu Sanadi, 1998 SCC (Cri) 1480: AIR 1999 SC 848.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-7-1998]

[8518] — Ss. 326 and 452 — Sentence — Fine only — Adequacy of sentence — Out of three accused tried for trespassing and causing injuries, only appellant-accused convicted under Ss. 326 and 452 with confinement till rising of court and fine with default stipulation, which was confirmed by appellate court — In revision, High Court holding that in view of specific provisions of S. 326 relating to imposition of custodial sentence, trial court could not have imposed only fine — Accordingly, while maintaining conviction, it enhanced the sentence, imposing two years' RI in addition to fine imposed — Sustainability — Question whether custodial sentence imposed by trial court i.e. confinement till rising of the court, was adequate or not — Held, in instant case, fine amount was deposited and amount directed to be paid to PW 2 (the victim) was paid — Hence, considering this fact and also long passage of time, it would be appropriate to restrict period of sentence to the period already undergone (Paras 8 and 9). George Pon Paul v. Kanagalet, (2009) 13 SCC 478: (2009) 79 AIC 134 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-4-2009]

— S. 326 r/w S. 34 See also S. 304 Pt. II r/w Ss. 34, 147, 148, 326 r/w S. 34 and S. 307 r/w S. 34

See also S. 304 Pt. II r/w S. 34 and S. 326 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 307 and 326 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 325 and 326 r/w S. 34

[8519] — S. 326 r/w S. 34 — Compensation — Offence under S. 326 r/w S. 34 — Held, out of the fine amount, if realised, a sum of Rs 4000 be paid to each of the injured as compensation — Fine collected payable as compensation — CrPC, 1973, S. 357 (Para 16). Bankat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 1 SCC 343: 2005 SCC (Cri) 316: AIR 2005 SC 368: 2005 Cri LJ 646: (2005) 2 Mah LJ 707.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-2004]

[8520] — S. 326 r/w S. 34 — Conviction under — Propriety of — Appellant (Accused 2) giving elbow-blow to the deceased — Held, prosecution failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that appellant caused fracture of 3rd and 4th ribs of the deceased, particularly, in view of the fact that Accused 4 had also given fist-blows to the deceased — No common intention to commit murder — Quarrel took place all of a sudden and at that time appellant was unarmed — On facts, held, it could not be said that the appellant shared common intention with Accused 3 who gave spade handle-blow on the head of the deceased — Proper conviction of appellant, held, could be under S. 323 IPC — Sentence of 8 months already undergone by him held to be more than sufficient for the said offence (Para 6). Ramasamy Gounder v. State of T.N., (2002) 10 SCC 251.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.B. Shah and Ashok Bhan, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-9-2001]

[8521] — S. 326 r/w S. 34 — Reversal of acquittal by High Court — Sustainability — Five accused alleged to have assaulted the deceased and other PWs with lathi and axe — Deceased succumbing to the injuries in hospital — Whereas trial court doubted the credibility of so-called eyewitnesses, PWs 3, 4, 6, 7, 8 and 10 who were relatives of the deceased High Court concluded that the evidence of PWs regarding the presence and participation of the accused in the occurrence was reliable and truthful — Victims of assault would not normally spare the real culprits and falsely implicate innocent accused persons — Evidence of PWs clearly showing that the deceased was lying injured at the spot where the accused persons were present and they assaulted PWs 3, 7 and 8 when they went to rescue him — Further, their houses were at a very short distance and it was quite natural that on hearing the alarm they had rushed to the place of occurrence — Moreover, though some exaggeration in evidence of PW 10 (informant) was discernible but reading the same carefully along with the evidence of PWs 3, 7 and 8 lends support to the prosecution case — Non-examination of doctor who examined the injured PWs and deceased initially not fatal since homicidal death was not disputed — Reason for absence of incised wound when weapon of assault was alleged to be axe rightly noted by High Court that axes which are generally used in villages for cutting trees and branches are not so sharp like swords or knives, and when used on the head, can also cause lacerated injuries — Besides the accused were also armed with lathis — High Court found the appellants guilty, but considering the manner of assault and the surrounding factors, convicted them for offence punishable under S. 326 r/w S. 34 IPC — Impugned judgment does not suffer from any infirmity to warrant interference — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386 and 378. Mukul Mahto v. State of Jharkhand, (2008) 15 SCC 648: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1146: AIR 2009 SC 335.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-10-2008]

Ch. Madusudhana Reddy v. State of A.P., 1994 SCC (Cri) 275, followed

[8522] — S. 326 r/w S. 34 — Sentence under — Reduction — Courts below imposing imprisonment for one year and fine of Rs 500 with default stipulation — Considering that parties settled their dispute outside the court, 10 years elapsed from the date of the incident and accused had already undergone several months' imprisonment, held, reduction of custodial sentence to period already undergone and imposition of fine of Rs 5000 with default stipulation would be proper (Para 16). Bankat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 1 SCC 343: 2005 SCC (Cri) 316: AIR 2005 SC 368: 2005 Cri LJ 646: (2005) 2 Mah LJ 707.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 25-11-2004]

[8523] — S. 326 r/w S. 34 — Sentence under — Sentence of imprisonment for three years on two counts directed by High Court to run consecutively — Offence committed of serious nature — Hence, prayer to direct the sentence to run concurrently, rejected — However, sentence reduced from three years to two years on two counts and directed to run consecutively — Thus, sentence reduced from six to four years — CrPC, 1973, S. 427 — Sentence to run consecutively or concurrently — Consideration for (Para 4). Ram Lal v. State of Haryana, (2003) 9 SCC 242.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and P. Venkatarama Reddi, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-5-2003]

[8524] — S. 326 r/w S. 34 or S. 302 r/w S. 34 — Determination of -– Accused N armed with katarna while other two accused armed with lathis alleged to have administered several blows with their respective weapons on deceased causing severe injuries resulting in his death — Considering the fact that appellant-accused was holding only a stick High Court holding him not guilty under S. 302 r/w S. 34 — However, it noticing that he had caused lacerated wounds and therefore, knowledge which could be inferred from the said acts was that he intended to cause grievous hurt, imposing sentence of 10 years' RI — Held, no interference with impugned judgment called for — However, considering peculiar circumstances sentence reduced to 5 years' RI (Paras 6, 8 and 9). Prabhu v. State of M.P., (2008) 17 SCC 381: AIR 2009 SC 745: (2009) 74 AIC 84 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-12-2008]

Mathai v. State of Kerala, (2005) 3 SCC 260: 2005 SCC (Cri) 695, relied on [8525] — S. 326 r/w S. 34 & S. 325 — Deadly weapon — Scope — Human teeth are not deadly weapons even though injuries caused were grievous — Conviction altered to one under S. 325 r/w S. 34 IPC. Shakeel Ahmed v. State, Delhi, (2004) 10 SCC 103: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1759.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-7-2001]

— S. 326 r/w S. 120-B See Ss. 326/335, S. 326 r/w S. 120-B and S. 342

— S. 326 r/w S. 148 See also Ss. 307, 325 and 326 r/w Ss. 149 and 148

— S. 326 r/w S. 149 See also Ss. 147, 148, 323 and 324, 326 r/w 149 and 34

See also Ss. 147, 148, 341, 504, 506, 324, 326 r/w S. 149

See also S. 302 and S. 326 r/w S. 149 and S. 148

See also S. 302 r/w Ss. 149, 143, 147, 148, 323, 324, 325 and S. 326 r/w S. 149

See also S. 302 r/w S. 149, S. 300 Thirdly and S. 326 r/w S. 149

See also S. 304 Pt. II r/w S. 149, S. 148 and S. 326 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 307, 325 and 326 r/w Ss. 149 and 148

[8526] — S. 326 r/w S. 149 — Credibility of witness — Held, there was no reason why an injured witness would leave out his real assailants and unnecessarily implicate others falsely — Hence, there was no ground to disbelieve and discard the evidence of injured witness PW 6 regarding the assault on him by the eight accused in question (Para 46). Chikkarangaiah v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 17 SCC 497: 2009 Cri LJ 4667: (2010) 1 ECrN 427 (SC): (2009) 82 AIC 233 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-2010]

[8527] — S. 326 r/w S. 149 — Grievous hurt — Allegation as to assault on victim by clubs, sticks and stones — Conviction under S. 326 r/w S. 149, confirmed — Common object of all accused was to cause grievous injury to victim PW 6 — End result of attack was that PW 6 was grievously injured with fractures and was bedridden for fifteen days at hospital concerned — No contradictions or omissions elicited in cross-examination of PW 6 with respect to identification of accused — Evidence of PW 6 regarding the incident found reliable and corroborated by evidence of an eyewitness — Held, in view of the entire facts and circumstances of the case, conviction of accused under S. 326 r/w S. 149 IPC by High Court, was proper — Hence, not liable to be interfered with [Paras 38 to 53(ii)]. Chikkarangaiah v. State of Karnataka, (2009) 17 SCC 497: 2009 Cri LJ 4667: (2010) 1 ECrN 427 (SC): (2009) 82 AIC 233 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dalveer Bhandari and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-9-2010]

— Ss. 326/34 See also Ss. 34 and 326/34
See also Ss. 34/302 and 326/34
See also Ss. 149, 326/34, 324/34, 427/34, 450 and 392, 395 and 397
See also Ss. 302/34 and 326/34
See also Ss. 302/34, 326/34 and 323/34
See also Ss. 302/34, 449 and 326/34
See also Ss. 304 Pt. II and 326/34
See also Ss. 320 Eighthly and 326/34 or 302

[8528] — Ss. 326/34 — Appreciation of evidence — Sentence — Assault of deceased by several persons including appellant — Appellant alleged to have caused injuries to deceased with a stick — Appellant and others convicted by trial court under S. 302 r/w S. 34 IPC — High Court, however, altering the conviction to one under S. 326 r/w S. 34 IPC and sentencing appellant to three years' RI while imposing longer terms on other convicted persons — In the dying declaration of the deceased appellant mentioned as a participant — Besides this the eyewitnesses also deposing about the participation of the appellant specifically as well as generally — Held, in this state of evidence it cannot be held that the High Court erred in convicting the appellant under S. 326 r/w S. 34, merely because there was only one blunt weapon injury on the deceased — Constructive liability of the appellant cannot be ruled out on this argument — Also the High Court committed no error in distinguishing his case from the other two convicted accused insofar as the imposition of sentence was concerned due to the formidable weapons used by the other accused — There was therefore no scope for further reducing the sentence imposed on the appellant. Bishwanath Singh v. State of Bihar, 1997 SCC (Cri) 212: 1995 Cri LJ 2626.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-1-1995]

[8529] — Ss. 326/34 — Offence under — Benefit of doubt — When warranted — It not being certain if co-accused (N, sister of assaulting accused RK) aware about knife (weapon of offence) carried by RK — N playing a tenuous role in quarrel and no overt act being ascribed to her — Only when quarrel reaching a certain pitch, RK taking out his knife and striking victim which resulted in offence under S. 326 IPC — Effect — On facts, N, held, is entitled to benefit of doubt (Paras 11 and 14). Neelam Bahal v. State of Uttarakhand, (2010) 2 SCC 229.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.S. Bedi and Deepak Verma, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-2009]

[8530] — Ss. 326/34 — Sentence — Mitigating factors like burden of maintaining widow and minor children of brother besides his own family, considered — Sentence further reduced from 3 years' RI to that already undergone

The incident had taken place as far back as on August 27, 1981. The accused is a cultivator and has already suffered the agony of the case in the trial court for more than one year and for more than 10 years in the High Court and the Supreme Court. The co-accused ('L'), the real brother of the appellant, died in Jan. 1992. The burden of looking after the widow and three minor children of 'L' has fallen on the shoulders of the appellant apart from the burden of his own wife and three minor children. The appellant remained in jail for 52 days during the trial and is now continuing in jail after having surrendered on February 28, 1992 during the pendency of the appeal before the Supreme Court

Held :

In view of the entire facts and circumstances of the case, justice would be met if the appellant is awarded a sentence of imprisonment of the period already undergone by him for the offence under Ss. 326/34. The appellant is also sentenced to pay a fine of Rs 3000 (as awarded by High Court) and in default of payment of fine to undergo further rigorous imprisonment for six months. Out of the aforesaid fine, if realised, Rs 2000 and Rs 1000 shall be paid to the two victims (viz. 'P' and 'A' respectively) by way of compensation. Pashora Singh v. State of Punjab, 1993 Supp (2) SCC 33: 1993 SCC (Cri) 387: AIR 1993 SC 1256: 1993 Cri LJ 1053: (1993) 1 An WR 25 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and N.M. Kasliwal, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1992]

[8531] — Ss. 326/34 — Two appellants holding hands of deceased while another person on being instigated by his father inflicting dagger below resulting in death of the deceased — Appellants having no weapons at the time of the incident nor they attacking the deceased nor expressing their intention to cause death of the deceased — No evidence indicating any preconcert of mind of all the four accused persons — Circumstances showing absence of intention on the part of the appellants to participate in the act of murder — However, having regard to appellants' act of holding hands of deceased thereby facilitating the other accused to inflict the fatal wound, held, appellant at least shared the common intention with the main accused to cause grievous hurt — Hence appellants' conviction under Ss. 302/34 altered to that under

Ss. 326/34 — Appellants having served nine years' of their substantive sentence and being still in jail their sentence of imprisonment reduced to the period already undergone. Harbans Nonia v. State of Bihar, 1993 Supp (1) SCC 485: 1993 SCC (Cri) 257: AIR 1992 SC 125.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1991]

[8532] — Ss. 326/34 and 147 and 148 — Conviction and sentence — Accused 1 to 4 convicted under Ss. 326/34 and accused 5 to 7 convicted under Ss. 147 and 148 — Conviction based on dying declaration and testimony of a witness — Dying declaration found to be voluntary and testimony of the witness found to be trustworthy — No interference with conviction called for — But in the circumstances and in view of long lapse of time sentence of accused 1 to 4 reduced from 3 years' to 18 months' RI. Purshothaman v. State of T.N., 1987 Supp SCC 247: 1988 SCC (Cri) 46.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and V. Balakrishna Eradi, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1987]

[8533] — Ss. 326/34 and 302/34 — Caste rivalry — Armed mob burning bus killing four and another person who intervened — Six out of 30 convicted — Testimony of witnesses belonging to of one faction — Should be scrutinised with great care and caution and examined in the light of the earliest statement, medical evidence and other surrounding circumstances — Where FIR is the earliest statement, it is of importance in appreciating evidence of such witnesses, though it is not a substantive evidence — When no overt act attributed by the witnesses to some of the accused persons in a mass attack, held, they would be entitled to benefit of doubt — But when part played by other accused specifically mentioned in FIR and that is the consistent version of the witnesses which is corroborated by medical evidence also, held, prosecution case against them can be safely accepted — Accordingly conviction and sentences under Ss. 302/34 IPC awarded to accused 15, 16 and 26 set aside but those under Ss. 326/34 IPC awarded to accused 18, 24 and 28 confirmed — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 157. Ladha Shamji Dhanani v. State of Gujarat, 1993 Supp (1) SCC 20: 1993 SCC (Cri) 97: AIR 1992 SC 956.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and R.C. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1992]

[8534] — Ss. 326/34 & 302/34 — High Court converting conviction under Ss. 302/34 to that under Ss. 326/34 — On facts, High Court's verdict upheld as there was lack of motive and common intention to cause death. State of Punjab v. Surjan Singh, (1976) 1 SCC 588: 1976 SCC (Cri) 106: AIR 1976 SC 1130: 1976 Cri LJ 845.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and P.K. Goswami, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-11-1975]

[8535] — Ss. 326/34 and 302/34 — Opinion of the doctor who conducted post-mortem examination that injuries of the deceased were medically interfered with and the death was caused due to pus in brain — Nothing on record to indicate that any external factor contributed to the formation of pus — Held, finding of the High Court that the death was not direct result of the injuries caused by the accused not correct — That apart, in view of the opinion of other doctor that the injuries found on the abdomen of the deceased was a grievous injury conviction under Ss. 326/34 justified. Bhagwan Singh v. State of Bihar, 1998 SCC (Cri) 252: AIR 1998 SC 119.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-11-1997]

[8536] — Ss. 326/34 or 302/34 — Murderous assault — Main accused found to have inflicted injuries by a gupti on the vital parts of the body of the deceased and accordingly convicted under S. 302 — Co-accused also armed with a knife and a party to the attack on deceased — But no blood stain found on the knife recovered from the place of occurrence — High Court on a dispassionate analysis finding that common intention to cause death of deceased could not be attributed to the co-accused in absence of sufficient material — Held, High Court took a very reasonable and sympathetic view in convicting the co-accused under S. 326/34 and sentencing him to imprisonment for the period already undergone by him — Hence no interference of Supreme Court called for — Constitution of India, Art. 134. Prakash v. State of M.P., (1992) 4 SCC 225: 1992 SCC (Cri) 853: AIR 1993 SC 65.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and G.N. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-8-1992]

Prakash v. State of M.P., Criminal Appeal No. 222 of 1977; State of M.P. v. Shibboo, Criminal Appeal No. 714 of 1976, affirmed

[8537] — Ss. 326/34 & 323/34 — Where accused only asserted their supposed or bona fide claim to the property resulting in free fight, intention to cause grievous hurt not inferred. Ram Rattan v. State of U.P., (1977) 1 SCC 188: 1977 SCC (Cri) 85: AIR 1977 SC 619: (1977) 2 SCR 232.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: P.N. Bhagwati, V.R. Krishna Iyer and S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-11-1976]

— Ss. 326/149 See also Ss. 147, 148, 302/149 and 324/149, 326/149

See also Ss. 147 and 326/149

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 302, 302/149 and 326, 326/149

[8538] — Ss. 326/149 — Appeal — Non-application of mind — Casual disposal of appeal — In appeal by A-1 to A-3 against conviction under Ss. 326/149, without adverting to contentions of appellants held that since S. 149 was invoked acquitted accused would be equally and vicariously liable though noting that State had not filed appeal against such "illegal acquittal" — Held, High Court had not applied its mind to the various contentions and disposed of the appeal in a casual manner — Matter remitted for fresh disposal — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 374, 386 and 389 (Paras 3 to 6). Huchappa v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 14 SCC 497: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 846: AIR 2008 SC 1806: (2008) 65 AIC 120 (SC): 2008 Cri LJ 2596.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-4-2008]

[8539] — Ss. 326/149 — Conviction under justified when one of raiders was armed with a gupti and did cause grievous injuries resulting in death of one of the victims — All the raiders rightly convicted in conformity with S. 149. Mahesh Chandra v. State of U.P., (1979) 1 SCC 294: 1978 SCC (Cri) 607.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Jaswant Singh, P.S. Kailasam and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-9-1978]

[8540] — Ss. 326/149 — Sentence — Convict aged about 80 years and in jail for about 2 years — In the circumstances sentence reduced to the period of imprisonment already undergone. S.P. Sinha v. State of Maharashtra, 1993 Supp (1) SCC 658: 1993 SCC (Cri) 684: AIR 1992 SC 1751.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jayachandra Reddy and R.C. Patnaik, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-4-1992]

[8541] — Ss. 326/149 — Sentence — Conviction for being members of a crowd which chased the deceased — One accused merely chasing while another, a boy of 15 years, also holding the deceased at the time of infliction of the fatal injury — Having regard to the age and absence of any overt act on the part of the former accused, his sentence reduced to 2 years' RI. Sushil Chowdhary v. State of Bihar, (1979) 4 SCC 765: 1980 SCC (Cri) 179: AIR 1980 SC 1716.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.R. Krishna Iyer and P.N. Shinghal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-9-1979]

[8542] — Ss. 326/149, 147 and 148 — Sentence — Reduction of — Occurrence took place in 1986 — Accused-appellants acquitted by trial court in 1987 — But acquittal set aside by High Court and appellants convicted under Ss. 326/149, 147 and 148 and awarded maximum sentence of 4 years under Ss. 362/149 in 1992 — After appellants surrendered, they were directed to be released on bail — Nothing brought to Supreme Court's notice to show that after their release on bail they acted in any manner prejudicial to law and order — Keeping all these factors in view, held, it would serve ends of justice if appellants are not now sent back to jail — Therefore substantive sentence of imprisonment of the appellants is reduced to the period already undergone by them for the various offences for which they were convicted — But each of them directed to pay fine in addition to the sentence of imprisonment already undergone. Habbalappa Dundappa Katti v. State of Karnataka, (2002) 10 SCC 197: AIR 2002 SC 485.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand, C.J. and R.C. Lahoti and Shivaraj V. Patil, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-2-2001]

[8543] — Ss. 326/149 and 325 and 326 — Multiple injuries inflicted with torches, knife, iron rod, cycle chain etc. on non-vital parts of deceased's body found to be cumulatively sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death — Having regard to the type of weapons used and nature and seat of injuries, held, accused persons cannot be said to have shared common object of causing such bodily injuries on the deceased as were likely to cause his death or were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause his death — Accused would be liable for their individual acts — Those who used torch, iron rod and cycle chain to be convicted under S. 325 and sentenced to 2 years' RI but one who caused grievous injuries with knife to be convicted under S. 326 and sentenced to 3 years' RI with fine of Rs 500. Subran v. State of Kerala, (1993) 3 SCC 32: 1993 SCC (Cri) 583: 1993 Cri LJ 1387: (1993) 2 Crimes 15.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M.N. Venkatachaliah, C.J. and B.P. Jeevan Reddy and Dr. A.S. Anand, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1993]

[8544] — Ss. 326/149 and 325/149 — Sentence under — Quantum of — Accused persons assaulting the victim and killing him — However, the trial court finding their common object to be beating, and not causing death, of the victim — Trial court sentencing one the accused persons to 4 years' RI under S. 325 read with S. 149 and the rest, to 8 years' RI under S. 326 read with S. 149 — Case coming up before Supreme Court over 22 long years after the occurrence — In view of such long lapse of time, while upholding the order of conviction passed by the trial court, sentence of those convicted under S. 326 read with S. 149, reduced to five years' RI. Lakhiya Devi v. Girja Yadav, (1999) 1 SCC 203: 1999 SCC (Cri) 26: AIR 1998 SC 2395.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and V.N. Khare, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-7-1998]

[8545] — Ss. 326/149 or Ss. 352/149 — Unlawful assembly formed only to cause assault on the deceased P — Some of the accused entered the house while appellants stayed outside the house — Grievous injuries caused by those who entered the house due to which P died — Appellants did not take part in the assault on the deceased, nor was any grievous injury caused to anyone by them — Held, in the absence of any material to the contrary, those members of the original unlawful assembly who only shared the common object of assaulting P could not be attributed with the subsequent change in the common object of some of the members of the assembly who entered the house of P and caused grievous injuries to him — Hence, the appellants were liable to be punished only under S. 352 r/w S. 149 and not under S. 326 r/w S. 149 (Paras 3 and 8). Bhimrao v. State of Maharashtra, (2003) 3 SCC 37: 2003 SCC (Cri) 727: AIR 2003 SC 1493: 2003 Cri LJ 1204.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-2003]

— Ss. 326/322 See also Ss. 96, 97, 99 Fourthly, S. 320 Eighthly and Ss. 326/322

[8546] — Ss. 326/335, S. 326 r/w S. 120-B and S. 342 — Custodial violence and atrocities — Infliction of grievous hurt — Conviction confirmed — Premeditated act (cutting off victim's penis) — Inference of — Defence of grave and sudden provocation under S. 335 — Plea of, rejected — Victim J's penis cut off (bobbitted) by accused Constable K with a barber's razor in police station while accused ASI S held him, on J's admission that he was having affair with accused B's wife — B being a relative of K — Held, there cannot be said to be grave and sudden provocation so as to attract S. 335, rather it was a premeditated act — Normally, policemen do not carry sharp-edged weapons like razors which K was carrying — Moreover, S was not related to either B or his wife and hence, there was no justifiable ground for sudden provocation on his part at all — Furthermore, evidence revealing that J was subjected to third-degree methods while he was locked up in police station from 2-2-1994 to 5-2-1994, without being produced before Magistrate — Contention of S that his presence at police station was not established rejected, since his presence there was proved vide testimony of J — Hence, S. 326 and not S. 335 applicable — K convicted under S. 326 and sentenced thereunder to 5 years' RI and under S. 342 to six months' RI, with a fine of Rs 50,000, while acquittal of S set aside and he convicted under S. 326 r/w S. 120-B and sentenced thereunder to 3 years' RI and under S. 342 to six months' RI, with a fine of Rs 50,000 — K to suffer default imprisonment of six months' RI and S one year's RI on non-payment of fine — Fine to be paid as compensation to J — Constitution of India — Art. 22(2) — CrPC, 1973, S. 57 (Paras 13 to 15 and 25 to 27)

The victim J was an employee of accused B and was also residing in B's house. B suspected that J was having illicit affair with his wife and eldest daughter. Constable K was relative of B. On 2-2-1994 at about 8 p.m. J was carrying a bottle of liquor when K met him and snatched the bottle. In ensuing scuffle, the bottle fell down and broke. K then took J to police station where accused SHO Sh allegedly slapped him. J was locked in police station from 2-2-1994 to 5-2-1994 and beaten without producing him before Magistrate. He was repeatedly questioned about his illicit relationship. On 5-2-1994, J admitted that he had relations with B's wife whereupon accused ASI S held him by the neck while K chopped off J's penis with a razor. J was taken to a hospital. An FIR was registered under Sections 307/326, 343 and 120-B IPC.

B died during pendency of trial. The trial court convicted K under Sections 326, 308, 323 and 343, Sh was convicted under Sections 323 and 343, while S was convicted under Sections 326/114, 308/114 and 120-B IPC. In appeal, the High Court acquitted Sh and S and reduced sentence of K to period undergone for offence under Section 326, while conviction under Section 343 was altered to Section 342. Hence, instant appeal.

Allowing the appeal, the Supreme Court held as above. CBI v. Kishore Singh, (2011) 6 SCC 369.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Markandey Katju and T.S. Thakur, JJ. [Date of decision : 25-10-2010]

[8547] — Ss. 326/335 and 326 r/w 120-B and 342 — Fine converted as compensation to victim — Strict default stipulations made, to compel payment of fine — Three policemen convicted for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to a person illegally confined in police station — Apart from sentencing them to imprisonment, fine also imposed on them — Fine of Rs 50,000 imposed on constable cutting off penis of victim with default stipulation of six months' RI; Rs 50,000 fine with default stipulation of one year's RI imposed on ASI who held victim while his penis was being cut off; and Rs 10,000 fine imposed on SHO with default stipulation of one month's SI — Fine, held, to be paid to victim as compensation — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 357 and 30 (Paras 25 to 27)

The victim J was an employee of accused B and was also residing in B's house. B suspected that J was having illicit affair with his wife and eldest daughter. Constable K was relative of B. On 2-2-1994 at about 8 p.m. J was carrying a bottle of liquor when K met him and snatched the bottle. In ensuing scuffle, the bottle fell down and broke. K then took J to police station where accused SHO Sh allegedly slapped him. J was locked in police station from 2-2-1994 to 5-2-1994 and beaten without producing him before Magistrate. He was repeatedly questioned about his illicit relationship. On 5-2-1994, J admitted that he had relations with B's wife whereupon accused ASI S held him by the neck while K chopped off J's penis with a razor. J was taken to a hospital. An FIR was registered under Sections 307/326, 343 and 120-B IPC.

B died during pendency of trial. The trial court convicted K under Sections 326, 308, 323 and 343, Sh was convicted under Sections 323 and 343, while S was convicted under Sections 326/114, 308/114 and 120-B IPC. In appeal, the High Court acquitted Sh and S and reduced sentence of K to period undergone for offence under Section 326, while conviction under Section 343 was altered to Section 342. Hence, instant appeal.

Allowing the appeal, the Supreme Court held as above. CBI v. Kishore Singh, (2011) 6 SCC 369.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Markandey Katju and T.S. Thakur, JJ. [Date of decision : 25-10-2010]

— S. 327 See also Ss. 149, 302/149, 327, 336, 449 and 147

— S. 328 See also Ss. 302, 201, 328 and 120-B

See also Ss. 302 and 328

[8548] — S. 328 — Circumstantial evidence — Test of — When enough to sustain a conviction

As a proposition of law and commonsense, it is true that unlike direct evidence the indirect light circumstances may throw, may vary from suspicion to certitude and care must be taken to avoid subjective pitfalls of exaggerating a conjecture into a conviction.

Every evidentiary circumstance is a probative link, strong or weak, and must be made out with certainty. Link after link, forged firmly by credible testimony may form a strong chain of sure guilt binding the accused. Each link taken separately may just suggest but when hooked on to the next and on again may manacle the accused inescapably. Only then can a concatenation of incriminating facts suffice to convict a man. Short of that is insufficient.

The circumstances against the accused were:

(a) The accused bore grudge against the doctor, the victim.

(b) He took about 12 or 13 minutes to comply with the request for aspirin.

(c) He trembled when asked searching questions by the other doctor.

(d) He falsely denied stock of strychnine, the poison in question.

(e) He did not show any anxiety to save the victim out of the calamity.

(f) He took a false plea of denial in the committal courts modified in the Sessions Court to present a plausible defence.

Held :

The guilt of the accused to be conclusively proved. Dharm Das Wadhwani v. State of U.P., (1974) 4 SCC 267: 1974 SCC (Cri) 429: AIR 1975 SC 241: (1974) 3 SCR 607: 1974 Cri LJ 1249.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.R. Khanna and V.R. Krishna Iyer, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-3-1974]

[8549] — S. 328 — Death of prisoner in jail caused by administering poisoned laddus and tea — Accused entering jail as a visitor by giving the name of deceased's brother and passing on laddus and tea to deceased — Deceased complaining to jail authorities and doctor that he became sick immediately after taking laddus and tea given by accused — Held, evidence conclusive to establish guilt — Since deceased complained of sickness only after eating laddus and not after consumption of alcohol — Presence of alcohol in his stomach not a material factor to detract truth of prosecution case against accused — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 8. Balkar Singh v. State of Punjab, 1989 Supp (2) SCC 158: 1990 SCC (Cri) 42.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Natarajan and Kuldip Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1989]

[8550] — S. 328 — Liquor adulterated with methyl alcohol supplied by accused to shops and sub-shops — Consumption of such liquor resulting in permanent loss of eyesight of 24 persons — In the circumstances held, accused caused liquor to be taken by the affected persons and hence conviction under S. 328 justified (Para 30). E.K. Chandrasenan v. State of Kerala, (1995) 2 SCC 99: 1995 SCC (Cri) 329: AIR 1995 SC 1066: 1995 Cri LJ 2060: (1995) 1 Crimes 421.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-1-1995]

[8551] — Ss. 328, 300 Fourthly, 302 and 304 — Ingredients of S. 328 — Prosecution must prove by direct, reliable and cogent evidence that the accused administered poison, etc. himself or by means of another with necessary intent and mens rea — Death by consuming adulterated arrack purchased from a retail shop — Arrack depot from where arrack supplied to the retail shops controlled and managed by A-1 — Sample taken from the said depot found to be adulterated with poisonous substance methyl alcohol — Applicability of S. 302 or S. 304 ruled out by lower courts on finding that A-1 had no mens rea — Held, on such finding conviction under S. 328 not sustainable

In order to prove offence under S. 328 the prosecution is required to prove that the substance in question was a poison, or any stupefying, intoxicating or unwholesome drug, etc., that the accused administered the substance to the complainant or caused the complainant to take such substance, that he did so with intent to cause hurt or knowing it to be likely that he would thereby cause hurt, or with the intention to commit or facilitate the commission of an offence. It is, therefore, essential for the prosecution to prove that the accused was directly responsible for administering poison etc. or causing it to be taken by any person, through another. In other words, the accused may accomplish the act by himself or by means of another. In either situation direct, reliable and cogent evidence is necessary. Now on that basis it has to be seen whether A-1 had any role to play in directly administering to or causing to be taken the poisonous liquor by the deceased, who had purchased and consumed liquor from a retail shop, with intent to cause hurt to him or knowing it to be likely that it would cause hurt to him.

In the present case the trial court observed that it cannot be said that the accused or any of them knew that arrack mixed with small quantity of methyl alcohol (2.64% as found by the chemical analyst) was likely to cause death or serious bodily injury that is likely to cause death. On this finding applicability of S. 302 or even that of S. 304 IPC has been ruled out. This finding on the fact situation is open to doubt. If the finding be correct that the accused did not have guilty knowledge of causing death or of likelihood of causing death or of serious bodily injury likely to cause death, how could the guilty knowledge stop in that slide or grading not coming down to take within its arms hurt also. The act of the accused in adulterating liquor per se, as the law then stood sans amendments, would not attract the provision of S. 328 of IPC unless there is positive evidence that A-1 administered the poisoned liquor directly or caused it to be taken by the deceased indirectly with necessary intent and mens rea. This view of the trial Judge as confirmed by the High Court does not appear to be sound in the backdrop of the death actually occurring. But since it has taken that view it cannot stop short of hurt and so must slip down to a fall downright. Important links in the prosecution case on this particular aspect remain otherwise missing. A-1 would thus have to be acquitted of the charge under S. 328 IPC in carrying out the findings of the High Court to their logical end. Joseph Kurian v. State of Kerala, (1994) 6 SCC 535: 1995 SCC (Cri) 20: AIR 1995 SC 4.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-10-1994]

— Ss. 328/34 See also S. 302 and Ss. 328/34

— S. 330 See also Ss. 166, 330, 331 and 304 Pt. II

See also Ss. 220, 330 and 331

See also Ss. 302/34, 330, 348 and 201

See also Ss. 304 Pt. II, 330, 201, 218/34 and 161

See also Ss. 307 and 330

See also* Ss. 299-304 — CULPABLE HOMICIDE AND MURDER, 'C.15. Police atrocities/ Custodial violence/death', in Vol. 2

[8552] — S. 330 — Charge under — Dropping of — Case of custodial death — Whether, on facts, trial court and High Court justified in dropping charge under, since death of the deceased took place while he was in custody — On facts, held, prima facie a case was made out for framing of charge under S. 330 — Hence, while restoring order of trial court framing charges against accused persons under S. 304 Pt. II IPC, directions for framing charges under S. 330 also issued

In the fact situation, the question is whether the trial court as well as the High Court were justified in dropping the charge under Section 330 IPC since the death of the deceased took place while he was in custody. The important question is whether a prima facie case can be said to have been made out for a charge to be framed under Section 330 IPC. Since the cause of death has been shown to be asphyxia on account of detention of the deceased in unhygienic conditions despite his respiratory problems and the injuries to the ribs and mouth of the deceased could possibly have been caused by the attempts made by the doctor at the hospital to resuscitate the deceased, who had been brought to the hospital in a comatose condition, with the body showing no signs of pulse, respiration or blood pressure, prima facie a case is made out for framing of charge under Section 330 IPC. The sheet showing the progress and treatment of the deceased on arrival at the hospital also corroborates the same and it also mentions the fact that cardiopulmonary resuscitation was immediately started and the patient was also put on mechanical ventilator as part of the attempts at resuscitation. Apart from indicating that the patient had died of asphyxia, the medical opinion does not give any reason for such asphyxia and even in reply to the queries made on behalf of the investigating authorities the reply received, as to the cause of death, was that it had occurred due to asphyxia, but as to how it had occurred was under investigation. (Para 40)

In this regard, the materials submitted by the investigating authority in its final report under Section 173 CrPC do establish the fact that the deceased had been kept in a room which was highly unsuitable for a person suffering from respiratory problems. In fact, as was indicated by the Senior Scientist of the mobile unit of the District Police Force, the condition of the room where the deceased had been detained was completely unsuitable for a patient of asthma as it was filled with dust and cobwebs which was sufficient to trigger an asthmatic attack which could have caused asphyxia which ultimately led to R's death. (Para 41)

While restoring the order of the trial court framing charge against the accused persons under Section 304 Part II IPC, it is directed that charges be also framed against the accused persons under Section 330 IPC. (Para 42). Indu Jain v. State of M.P., (2008) 15 SCC 341: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 996: AIR 2009 SC 976: 2009 Cri LJ 951.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Altamas Kabir and Markandey Katju, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-10-2008]

[8553] — S. 330 — Inquiry Commission set up to go into an incident of rioting which took place on death of a person as a result of injuries sustained by him in police custody — Criminal case also initiated against the police officer alleged to be responsible for the death — High Court convicting the police officer under S. 330 IPC — In appeal before Supreme Court, findings of the Inquiry Commission that there was no reliable and independent material to hold that the deceased was ill treated in police custody and the injuries might have been suffered by him prior to his arrest, held, not binding on the Supreme Court when it arrived at a contrary conclusion on its own independent assessment of evidence. Sham Kant v. State of Maharashtra, 1992 Supp (2) SCC 521: 1992 SCC (Cri) 765: AIR 1992 SC 1879: 1992 Cri LJ 3243.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-5-1992]

[8554] — S. 330 — Police assaulting one V (arrested in a murder case) in lock-up room — V died by hanging himself in police station — Conviction of police personnel — Propriety — Statement of PW 13 (Police driver) that arrest of V was made by police constables A-2 to A-5 on direction of A-1, who was in charge of police station at the relevant time — PW 1 (brother of V) had seen police assaulting V with sticks — Witnesses were subjected to a lengthy cross-examination but nothing could be elicited to discredit the creditworthiness of the statement-in-chief — Held, conviction of A-1 to A-5 based on said evidence was proper — High Court's order upheld (Paras 7 to 9). Sanganagouda A. Veeranagouda v. State of Karnataka, (2005) 12 SCC 468.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.K. Sema and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2005]

[8555] — S. 330 — Third degree treatment by police to extort confession — Two persons while in police custody in connection with a theft case tortured inhumanly by appellant Police SI and his men to get clue to the case — Seeing their deteriorating physical condition, period of police custody cut short and judicial remand obtained — After their release on bail, complaint regarding the police atrocities lodged by them in Magistrate's court and while being brought out of the court room one of them collapsed — Surviving victim deposing in detail about the entire happenings which took place during the police custody — Despite incisive and searching cross-examination nothing tangible brought out to discredit his testimony — His testimony corroborated by other witnesses as well as medical evidence — High Court finding the appellant guilty of offence under S. 330 and sentencing him to 9 months' RI with fine of Rs 2000 and in default 4 months' RI — Held, High Court arrived at a proper and just conclusion that the prosecution made out a case under S. 330 against the appellant and no interference therewith called for. Sham Kant v. State of Maharashtra, 1992 Supp (2) SCC 521: 1992 SCC (Cri) 765: AIR 1992 SC 1879: 1992 Cri LJ 3243.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 15-5-1992]

[8556] — Ss. 330 and 331 — Complaint of death due to torture in police custody — Appreciation of evidence — Post-mortem examination — Register containing original entries regarding — Admissibility — Held, High Court erred in holding that in the absence of the original post-mortem report such register could not be taken note of — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 35, 45, 65 and 64 — Register containing original entries regarding post-mortem report — Admissibility (Paras 29 and 12). Shakila Abdul Gafar Khan v. Vasant Raghunath Dhoble, (2003) 7 SCC 749: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1918: AIR 2003 SC 4567.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-9-2003]

Vijender v. State of Delhi, (1997) 6 SCC 171: 1997 SCC (Cri) 857, distinguished

[8557] — Ss. 330 and 331 — Custodial death or police torture — Evidence and proof of — Generally ocular or other direct evidence not available — Police officials alone can explain the circumstances in which a person in their custody died — Exaggerated adherence to and insistence upon establishment of proof beyond every reasonable doubt improper — Court must adopt a realistic rather than a narrow technical approach — Need to make changes in law, keeping in view recommendations of Law Commission in its 113th Report, stressed — Constitution of India, Art. 21

Rarely in cases of police torture or custodial death, direct ocular evidence of the complicity of the police personnel would be available. Generally speaking, it would be police officials alone who can only explain the circumstances in which a person in their custody had died. Bound as they are by the ties of brotherhood, it is not unknown that the police personnel prefer to remain silent and more often than not even pervert the truth to save their colleagues — and the present case is an apt illustration — as to how one after the other police witnesses feigned ignorance about the whole matter. (Para 16)

The exaggerated adherence to and insistence upon the establishment of proof beyond every reasonable doubt, by the prosecution, ignoring the ground realities, the fact-situations and the peculiar circumstances of a given case, as in the present case, often results in miscarriage of justice and makes the justice delivery system suspect. In the ultimate analysis the society suffers and a criminal gets encouraged. Tortures in police custody, which of late are on the increase, receive encouragement by this type of an unrealistic approach of the courts because it reinforces the belief in the mind of the police that no harm would come to them if an odd prisoner dies in the lock-up because there would hardly be any evidence available to the prosecution to directly implicate them with the torture. The courts must not lose sight of the fact that death in police custody is perhaps one of the worst kind of crimes in a civilised society, governed by the rule of law and poses a serious threat to an orderly civilised society. Torture in custody flouts the basic rights of the citizens recognised by the Indian Constitution and is an affront to human dignity. Police excesses and the maltreatment of detainees/undertrial prisoners or suspects tarnishes the image of any civilised nation and encourages the men in 'Khaki' to consider themselves to be above the law and sometimes even to become law unto themselves. Unless stern measures are taken to check the malady, the foundations of the criminal justice delivery system would be shaken and the civilization itself would risk the consequence of heading towards perishing. The courts must, therefore, deal with such cases in a realistic manner and with the sensitivity which they deserve, otherwise the common man may lose faith in the judiciary itself, which will be a sad day. (Para 17)

Though Sections 330 and 331 of the Indian Penal Code make punishable those persons who cause hurt for the purpose of extorting the confession by making the offence punishable with sentence up to 10 years of imprisonment, but the convictions, as experience shows us, have been very few because the atrocities within the precincts of the police station are often left without any ocular or other direct evidence to prove who the offenders are. Disturbed by this situation the Law Commission in its 113th Report recommended amendments to the Indian Evidence Act so as to provide that in the prosecution of a police officer for an alleged offence of having caused bodily injuries to a person while in police custody, if there is evidence that the injury was caused during the period when the person was in the police custody, the court may presume that the injury was caused by the police officer having the custody of that person during that period unless the police officer proves to the contrary. The onus to prove the contrary must be discharged by the police official concerned. Keeping in view the dehumanising aspect of the crime, the flagrant violation of the fundamental rights of the victim of the crime and the growing rise in the crimes of this type, where only a few come to light and others don't, the Government and the legislature must give serious thought to the recommendation of the Law Commission and bring about appropriate changes in the law not only to curb the custodial crime but also to see that the custodial crime does not go unpunished. The courts are also required to have a change in their outlook and attitude, particularly in cases involving custodial crimes and they should exhibit more sensitivity and adopt a realistic rather than a narrow technical approach while dealing with the cases of custodial crime so that as far as possible within their powers, the guilty should not escape so that the victim of the crime has the satisfaction that ultimately the majesty of law has prevailed. (Para 18). State of M.P. v. Shyamsunder Trivedi, (1995) 4 SCC 262: 1995 SCC (Cri) 715.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-5-1995]

[8558] — Ss. 330 and 331 — Police atrocities — Alarming increase in cases of torture, assault and death in police custody and non-availability of direct evidence in such cases normally, noticed with concern — Further noticed, exaggerated adherence to and insistence of proof beyond every reasonable doubt by the prosecution and sometimes by the courts in such cases often results in miscarriage of justice — Custodial torture, held, violates the basic rights of citizens — Therefore, the courts advised to deal with such cases in a realistic manner and with the sensitivity they deserve so that the truth may be found and the guilty may not escape — Moreover, the Government and the Legislature directed to give serious thought to the recommendation in Law Commission's 113th Report to amend the Evidence Act to provide that injury received by a person during police custody may be presumed to have been caused by the police officer having the custody of that person during that period — However, it should be carefully examined whether the allegations of custodial violence are genuine or false and designed to gain undeserved benefit — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 101 and 114 — CrPC, 1973, Ch. V (Ss. 41 to 60) — Arrest — Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 1948, Art. 5 — Constitution of India, Arts. 21, 20(3) and 22 (Paras 1 to 8). Shakila Abdul Gafar Khan v. Vasant Raghunath Dhoble, (2003) 7 SCC 749: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1918: AIR 2003 SC 4567.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-9-2003]

[8559] — Ss. 330 and 331 — Police atrocities — Third degree method adopted by police to extort confession — Violates human rights — Exemplary compensation can be awarded to the victim in appropriate cases — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 24 — Constitution of India, Art. 21

Per majority

In cases of police brutality and atrocities, committed, in utter disregard and in all breaches of humanitarian law and universal human rights as well as in total negation of the constitutional guarantees and human decency, the Supreme Court is committed to uphold human rights even as a part of long standing heritage and as enshrined in our constitutional law. This perspective needs to be kept in view by every law-enforcing authority because the recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of the citizens is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world. If the human rights are outraged, then the court should set its face against such violation of human rights by exercising its majestic judicial authority.

The Constitution as well as the statutory procedural law and law of Evidence condemn the conduct of any official in extorting a confession or information under compulsion by using any third degree methods. If it is shown to the court that a confession has been extorted by illegal means such as inducement, threat or promise as contemplated under S. 24 of the Evidence Act the confession thus obtained from an accused person would become irrelevant and cannot be used in a criminal proceeding as against the maker. Sections 330 and 331 of the Indian Penal Code provide punishment to one who voluntarily causes hurt or grievous hurt as the case may be to extort the confession or any information which may lead to the detection of an offence or misconduct.

The oppressive behaviour and the most degrading and despicable practice adopted by some of the police officers is much depressing, though no general and sweeping condemnation can be made. Courts have frequently dealt with cases of atrocity and brutality practised by some overzealous police officers resorting to inhuman, barbaric, archaic and drastic method of treating the suspects in their anxiety to collect evidence by hook or by crook and wrenching a decision in their favour. We remorsefully like to state that on few occasions even custodial deaths caused during interrogation are brought to our notice. The Supreme Court on several occasions has awarded exemplary compensation to the victims at the hands of the police officials which can be testified by a series of pronouncements of the Supreme Court.

Per K. Ramaswamy, J.

The expression "life or personal liberty" in Art. 21 of the Constitution includes right to live with human dignity which would include guarantee against torture and assault by the State. Article 21 guarantees protection against torture and assault by the State while a person is in custody. It is a legitimate right of the police to arrest a suspect on receiving some credible information or material, but the arrest must be in accordance with law and the interrogation should not be accompanied with torture or use of third degree methods. The interrogation and investigation should be in true sense purposeful to make the investigation effective. Torture or beating of arrested person in the lock-up is generally carried on behind the closed doors and no member of the public is permitted to be there and instances are not wanting that even the family members of the arrested persons are not allowed to meet the suspect.

Custodial interrogation exposes the suspect to the risk of abuse of his person or dignity as well as distortion or manipulation of his self-incrimination in the crime. No one should be subjected to physical violence of the person as well as to torture. Infringement thereof undermines the peoples' faith in the efficacy of criminal justice system. Interrogation in police lock-up are often done under conditions of pressure and tension and the suspect could be exposed to great strain even if he is innocent, while the culprit in custody to hide or suppress may be doubly susceptible to confusion and manipulation. A delicate balance has, therefore, to be maintained to protect the innocent from conviction and the need of the society to see the offender punished. Equally everyone has right against self-incrimination and a right to be silent under Art. 20(3) which implies his freedom from police or anybody else. But when the police interrogates a suspect, they abuse their authority having unbridled opportunity to exploit his moral position and authority inducing the captive to confess against his better judgment. Silence on the part of the frightened captive seems to his ears to call for vengeance and induces a belief that confession holds out a chance to avoid torture or to get bail or a promise of lesser punishment. The resourceful investigator adopts all successful tactics to elicit confession. Kartar Singh v. State of Punjab, (1994) 3 SCC 569: 1994 SCC (Cri) 899: 1994 Cri LJ 3139.

Bench Strength 5. Coram: S. Ratnavel Pandian[1], M.M. Punchhi[1], K. Ramaswamy[2], S.C. Agrawal[1] and R.M. Sahai[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1994]

[8560] — Ss. 330, 342 and 306 — Compensation for custodial death — Entitlement to relief, prior to adjudication of question of custodial death — Petitioner's son allegedly committing suicide inside police lock-up — FIR lodged, police officials concerned arrested, charge-sheet for offences under Ss. 330, 342 and 306 IPC filed, cognizance taken by court and bail applications rejected — Held, no compensation can be granted in the absence of any adjudication on the issue as to whether there was custodial death — Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 1948, Art. 5 — CrPC, 1973, S. 197 — Constitution of India, Arts. 32, 21 and 22

The petitioner lodged an FIR for the custodial death of his son. The police alleged that the deceased who had been arrested for the theft of some mobile phone committed suicide inside the lockup. Allegedly attempts by the petitioner to have an impartial post-mortem of the body of the deceased were thwarted by the police who was insisting on the theory of the suicide by hanging with the help of a shirt. It was alleged that the external injuries all over the body of the deceased were not explained and in fact the post-mortem report itself was not accurate as compared with the photographs. The petitioner and his other family members gave a statement setting out the facts.

Pursuant to notice issued in this case, the State filed its response that an FIR had been registered and certain police officials had been charged for commission of offences punishable under Sections 330, 342 and 306 IPC. Sanction for prosecution had been given and the charge-sheet had been filed. The accused persons had surrendered before the CJM and their bail applications had been rejected. Cognizance of the aforesaid offences had been taken. It was submitted that the police after investigation had not found any evidence of murder and, therefore, the charge-sheet had been filed accordingly. Counsel for the petitioner submitted that it was a clear case of custodial torture and death and by giving a colour of Section 306 IPC, an attempt was being made to protect the erring police officials. It was also stated that the compensation should be paid.

Disposing of the petition in the terms below,

Held :

No compensation can be granted in the absence of any adjudication on the issue as to whether there was custodial death. In view of the fact that sanction for prosecution had been granted, charge-sheet had been filed and cognizance had been taken, no further direction at present is necessary. If at any point of time, evidence surfaces before the court concerned to show that some other offences appear to have been committed, necessary orders can be passed. (Paras 14 and 15). Dalbir Singh v. State of U.P., (2009) 11 SCC 376: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1388: AIR 2009 SC 1674: 2009 Cri LJ 1543: (2009) 75 AIC 115 (SC): (2009) 2 All LJ 661: (2009) 1 APLJ 110 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-2-2009]

Shakila Abdul Gafar Khan v. Vasant Raghunath Dhoble, (2003) 7 SCC 749, relied on

— S. 331 See also Ss. 166, 330, 331 and 304 Pt. II

See also Ss. 220, 330 and 331

See also Ss. 330 and 331

[8561] — Ss. 331/34 — Sentence — Police Head Constable causing grievous hurt to extort confession — Having regard to severity and cruelty of beating four years' RI imposed by High Court not unduly severe — The fact that co-accused had already served out their sentence and were no longer in jail cannot be taken into consideration. Sidram Basawanneppa Hugar v. State of Bombay, Criminal Appeal No. 126 of 1956.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: B.P. Sinha, Syed Jafer Imam and K. Subba Rao, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-3-1958]

— S. 332 See also Ss. 99, 186 and 332

See also Ss. 149 and 332

See also Ss. 302, 307, 325, 332 and 333

See also Ss. 353, 332 and 333

See also Ss. 395, 216, 224, 147, 201 and 332

[8562] — S. 332 — Sentence — Sentence of 3 months' RI reduced to 29 days already undergone and unexpired portion of the sentence converted into a fine of Rs 1500 in addition to the fine of Rs 500 already imposed. Narayan Singh Nathu Singh v. Natvarlal Harilal Thakkar, (1981) 4 SCC 507: 1981 SCC (Cri) 859.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.D. Koshal and E.S. Venkataramiah, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-3-1981]

[8563] — Ss. 332 and 323 — Assault having no real nexus or causal connection or consequential relation with the performance of duty by the complainant as public servant — No evidence to show that intent of the assailants was to prevent or deter the complainant from discharge of his duty — Conviction altered to that under S. 323 — Fine of Rs 200 to be paid to the complainant. D. Chattaiah v. State of A.P., (1979) 1 SCC 128: 1978 SCC (Cri) 569: AIR 1978 SC 1441: 1978 Cri LJ 1473.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: R.S. Sarkaria and P.S. Kailasam, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-7-1978]

[8564] — Ss. 332, 353, 504 and 506 — Reasoned order/Speaking order — Necessity of — High Court summarily dismissing revision petition by a non-speaking order — Unsustainability — Held, reasons introduce clarity in an order — On plainest consideration of justice, High Court ought to have set forth its reasons, howsoever brief, in its order, indicative of an application of its mind — Absence of reasons rendered High Court's judgment unsustainable — CrPC, 1973, S. 397 r/w S. 401 (Paras 2, 9 and 11). Jagtamba Devi v. Hem Ram, (2008) 3 SCC 509: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 103: 2008 Cri LJ 1623.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P. Sathasivam, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-2-2008]

State of Punjab v. Bhag Singh, (2004) 1 SCC 547, followed

[8565] — Ss. 332 and 392 — Accused acquitted in a trial under S. 7, Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act, 1946 — Subsequent trial under Ss. 332 and 392, IPC — S. 403(2), CrPC, 1898 applies and the trial is not barred

Three bullock carts belonging to the appellants carrying rice and ghee while crossing a river on the Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh border were seized by the police and were brought back to Madhya Pradesh. When they reached a jungle the police constable was beaten and the goods were forcibly carried away by the appellants. The appellants were first charged under S. 7, Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act for exporting rice and ghee from Madhya Pradesh to another State in contravention of S. 7. Although they were convicted by the Magistrate they were acquitted on appeal by the Sessions Judge. Later, on the same facts they were charged under Ss. 332 and 392, IPC.

Held :

Neither S. 236, CrPC which deals with a case where there is a doubt as to which offence has been committed nor S. 237, CrPC which entitles the Court to convict a person of an offence which he is shown to have committed although he was not charged with it, applies. Sub-section (2) of S. 403 furnishes a complete answer to the contention raised on behalf of the appellants. The appellants were not tried again for the same offence as contemplated under S. 403(1) but for a distinct offence as contemplated by sub-section (2). It is true that in order to sustain the charge under Ss. 332 and 392, IPC, the Court had to consider whether the seizure was legal and was made by a public servant in the discharge of his duty but once that was found against the appellants the further question to be determined was as to whether they committed the offence of robbing the Head Constable of the goods lawfully seized and whether they voluntarily caused hurt to him while he was acting in the discharge of his duties as a public servant. Kunjilal v. State of M.P., AIR 1955 SC 280: (1955) 1 SCR 872: 1955 Cri LJ 730.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, Ghulam Hasan and N.H. Bhagwati, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-10-1954]

— S. 333 See also Ss. 302, 307, 325, 332 and 333

See also Ss. 307 and 333

See also Ss. 353, 332 and 333

[8566] — S. 333 — Offence, held, made out where the accused tried to enter the cabin of the complainant driver's bus despite his objection and abused and kicked him causing grievous injury — Driver was, in stopping the accused, discharging his duties as a public servant even though the bus was standing still — However, punishment of 1 year's RI not justified — Reduced to six months only and fine remitted. Manumiya v. State of Gujarat, (1979) 4 SCC 717: 1980 SCC (Cri) 157: AIR 1979 SC 1706: 1979 Cri LJ 1384.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-2-1979]

[8567] — Ss. 333, 506 Pt. II — Sentence — Accused giving fist blow to the victim, an Assistant Surgeon in Govt. hospital resulting in dislocation of his tooth — Benefit of probation cannot be extended — However, in view of the fact that the occurrence took place 14 years ago sentence reduced to the period already undergone with a fine of Rs 50,000 to be paid to the victim. Siyasaran v. State of M.P., 1995 Cri LJ 2126.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-1994]

— S. 333 r/w S. 34 See also S. 307 r/w S. 34 and S. 333 r/w S. 34

[8568] — S. 334 — Voluntarily causing hurt on provocation — Sentence — Reduction of — Sentence exceeding statutory maximum — One year's RI with a fine of Rs 500 with the default stipulation imposed by High Court — Held, since maximum sentence permissible for offence under S. 334 is one month, sentence awarded by High Court reduced to one month while maintaining the fine amount with default stipulation (Paras 7 and 8). Ahmed Ali v. State of Tripura, (2009) 6 SCC 704: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 12: (2009) 79 AIC 132 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-4-2009]

— S. 335 See also Ss. 326 and 335

[8569] — S. 335 — Voluntarily causing grievous hurt on provocation — Sentence — Reduction of — Two years' RI and a fine of Rs 1000 with default stipulation awarded by High Court to the accused — Accused was stated to be of tender age at the time of the occurrence — Maximum sentence permissible for offence under S. 335 is four years — Held, sentence reduced to three months while maintaining the fine amount with default stipulation (Para 8). Ahmed Ali v. State of Tripura, (2009) 6 SCC 704: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 12: (2009) 79 AIC 132 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-4-2009]

— S. 336 See also Ss. 149, 302/149, 327, 336, 449 and 147

See also Ss. 302/149, 325/149, 324/149, 323/149, 336 and 148

See also Ss. 304 Pt. II, 326, 324 and 429 and 304-A, 336, 337 and 338

See also Ss. 304-A, 336 and 337

— Ss. 336/34 See also Ss. 376/34 and 336/34

— S. 337 See also Ss. 279 and 337

See also Ss. 304 Pt. II, 326, 324 and 429 and 304-A, 336, 337 and 338

See also S. 304-A

[8570] — Ss. 337 and 338 — Trial court acquitting the accused but High Court convicting him under, and imposing sentence of 6 months' SI and fine of Rs 1500 — As a special case Supreme Court exempting the accused from surrendering to the sentence and suggesting enhancement of fine to Rs 5000 waiving the imprisonment after hearing the respondent as well as the victim — Accused accepting the suggestion. Ram Kishan v. UT, Delhi, 1987 Supp SCC 60: 1987 SCC (Cri) 624.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Ranganath Misra and M.M. Dutt, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-11-1986]

[8571] — Ss. 337, 338 and 304-A — Negligent or rash driving — Onus of proof — Negligent or rash driving of truck — Held, has to be established by the prosecution and cannot be automatically presumed on the basis of res ipsa loquitur — Mere driving of the truck at a "high speed", held, did not lead to the inference that negligent or rash driving had caused the accident resulting in death of, and injuries to, a number of persons — Hence, in absence of evidence to establish "negligence" or "rashness" in driving, order of acquittal passed by High Court, held, called for no interference

The respondent was driving a truck which turned turtle, resulting in the death of 15 persons and injuries to 18 persons. The trial court and the appellate court held the respondent guilty under Sections 337, 338 and 304-A IPC on the ground that he was driving the truck at a "high speed". The said courts did not record any finding as to negligent or rash driving by the respondent but relied on the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. However, the High Court acquitted the respondent of all the offences. Dismissing the State's appeal,

Held :

Merely because the truck was being driven at a "high speed" does not bespeak of either "negligence" or "rashness" by itself. None of the witnesses examined by the prosecution could give any indication, even approximately, as to what they meant by "high speed". "High speed" is a relative term. It was for the prosecution to bring on record material to establish as to what it meant by "high speed" in the facts and circumstances of the case. Criminality is not to be presumed, subject of course to some statutory exceptions. There is no such statutory exception pleaded in the present case. In the absence of any material on the record, no presumption of "rashness" or "negligence" could be drawn by invoking the maxim "res ipsa loquitur". There being no evidence on the record to establish "negligence" or "rashness" in driving the truck on the part of the respondent, it cannot be said that the view taken by the High Court in acquitting the respondent is a perverse view. Hence, the same calls for no interference. State of Karnataka v. Satish, (1998) 8 SCC 493: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1508.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and S.B. Majmudar, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1996]

— S. 338 See also Ss. 40, 304-A and 338

See also Ss. 304 Pt. II, 326, 324 and 429 and 304-A, 336, 337 and 338

See also S. 304-A

See also Ss. 337 and 338

See also Ss. 337, 338 and 304-A

[8572] — S. 338 — Professional negligence — Mistake committed by doctor — When amounts to negligence — Surgery — Need of post-operative institutional care — Cataract operations conducted by surgeon in eye camp organised by voluntary social organisation — Patients developing post-operative infection of intra ocular cavities causing complete damage to the operated eyes — Liability of the surgeon — In case of contamination in saline bought and used by the surgeon to irrigate the eyes during the surgery, 'product liability' of the manufacturer and the surgeon's liability if he fails to conduct tests before mass use of the saline — Whether guidelines laid down by government on the basis of which permission to organise the eye camp was granted followed, a considering factor — Questions involving technical matters for professional medical assessments and based on evidence, not examined on merits in proceedings under Art. 32 and no final opinion expressed against the doctor and his team in view of pendency of case under S. 338 against them — Constitution of India, Arts. 32 and 21

The necessity of maintenance of the highest standards of aseptic and sterile conditions at places where Ophthalmic surgery — or any surgery — is conducted cannot be overemphasised. It is not merely on the formulation of the theoretical standards but really on the professional commitment with which the prescriptions are implemented that the ultimate result rests. Governments, States and Union, incur enormous expenditure of public money on health care. But, the standards of cleanliness and hygiene in public hospitals unfortunately, leave greatly to be desired. The maintenance of sterile, aseptic conditions in hospitals to prevent cross-infections should be ordinary, routine and minimal incidents of maintenance of hospitals. Purity of the drugs and medicines intended for man-use would have to be ensured by prior tests and inspection. But, owing to a general air of cynical irreverence towards values that has, unfortunately, developed and to the mood of complacence with the continuing deterioration of standards, the every concept of standards and the imperative of their observance tend to be impaired. This is a disturbing feature. The remedy lies in a ruthless adherence to the virtue of method and laying down practical procedures in the minutest of detail and by exacting — not merely expecting — strict adherence to these procedures.

The law recognises the dangers which are inherent in surgical operations. Mistakes will occur on occasions despite the exercise of reasonable skill and care. Where the operation is a race against time, the Court will make greater allowance for mistakes on the part of the surgeon or his assistants, taking into account the 'Risk-benefit' test. However, a mistake by a medical practitioner which no reasonably competent and a careful practitioner would have committed is a negligent one.

How far the lack of intensive post-operative institutional care contributed to the infection or the aggravation of its effects is a matter which cannot be decided in these proceedings. These are technical matters for professional medical assessments. But the guidelines prescribed by government do not, prima facie, seem to encourage such compliance in regard to the imperatives of post-operative care.

The explanation of the doctors appears to be that the infection occurred despite all precaution. The drift of the explanation is that the saline, used to irrigate the eyes during surgery to maintain turgidity of the operational surface, which was purchased from a reputed manufacturer might be the source of the contamination. If that be so, the question of the liability of the manufacturer for what is called "product liability" and the further questions whether in such cases of mass use, a pre-test for safety and purity of the article was necessary and whether failure to do so would be actionable would arise. These questions are necessarily to be answered on evidence. In these proceedings neither the Court had full evidence nor does the scope of the proceedings permit such findings to be recorded conclusively. A.S. Mittal v. State of U.P., (1989) 3 SCC 223: 1989 SCC (Cri) 539: AIR 1989 SC 1570.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Ranganath Misra and M.N. Venkatachaliah, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-5-1989]

Jackson and Powell on 'Professional Negligence', 1982 edn., p. 232; Street on Torts (1983, 7th edn., p. 126); Charlsworth and Percy on 'Negligence', p. 546, referred to

— S. 339 See also Ss. 95 and 339

See also Ss. 220, 339, 340 and 166

See also Ss. 341 and 339

[8573] — S. 339 — Applicability — Allegation under S. 339 of wrongful restraint by co-sharer preventing him from enjoying his property — Maintainability — Held, right of a co-sharer to enjoy the joint family property is a civil right — Such a right, if denied by the other co-sharers for one reason or the other, must be enforced by taking recourse to the remedies available under the civil laws — Criminal proceedings cannot be taken recourse to for enforcing such a civil right — Specific Relief Act, 1963, Ss. 5, 6 and 34 (Paras 9 and 10). Rajinder Singh Katoch v. Chandigarh Admn., (2007) 10 SCC 69: (2007) 4 KLT 877: (2007) 60 AIC 194 (SC): (2007) 144 DLT 241.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

[8574] — S. 339 — Criminal proceedings not appropriate to enforce right of co-sharer to enjoy joint family property — Applicability — Allegation under S. 339 IPC of wrongful restraint by co-sharer preventing him from enjoying his property — Maintainability — Held, right of a co-sharer to enjoy the joint family property is a civil right — Such a right, if denied by the other co-sharers for one reason or the other, must be enforced by taking recourse to the remedies available under the civil laws — Criminal proceedings cannot be taken recourse to for enforcing such a civil right — Criminal proceedings not appropriate to enforce right of co-sharer to enjoy joint family property — Specific Relief Act, 1963, Ss. 5, 6 and 34 (Paras 9 and 10). Rajinder Singh Katoch v. Chandigarh Admn., (2007) 10 SCC 69: (2007) 4 KLT 877: (2007) 60 AIC 194 (SC): (2007) 144 DLT 241.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-2007]

[8575] — S. 339 Exception thereto and S. 341 — Wrongful restraint — Significance of the word "voluntary" in S. 339 — Held, connotes direct physical restraint — There should be restriction on normal movement of a person — Where accused persons had taken only a decision on behalf of a limited company to get a road repaired and repair might have caused some inconvenience but not physical obstruction to first respondent, held, no offence was committed under Ss. 339 and 341

Appellants were Managing Director and Directors of a limited company which owned a villa. The villa was occupied by first respondent. The appellants as Managing Director and Directors took a decision on behalf of the Company to get the access road leading to villa repaired through a contractor. First respondent was opposed to this decision and therefore when repair work was started by spraying tar on the road, he went to police station with the complaint that appellants and other persons who were involved in repair of road should be stopped from doing this. Police authorities too instructed appellants to stop work but they did not stop, and proceeded with repair of access road. First respondent subsequently initiated criminal proceedings against Managing Director and Directors of the Company, and also against Architect, on the ground that they had committed offence of wrongful restraint under Sections 339 and 341, Penal Code, 1860, because first respondent and his family members were obstructed due to alleged illegal repair of road.

Appellants moved the High Court under Section 482 CrPC, for quashing of criminal proceedings against them but High Court rejected their petition.

One of the issues before the Supreme Court was whether appellants in their capacity as office-holders of a limited company, were criminally liable under Sections 339 and 341, Penal Code, even though they did not physically obstruct first respondent.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

It is one thing to say that the Company had asked Accused 6 (Architect) to do construction but only because Accused 1 to 5 were its Directors, the same would not be sufficient to fasten any criminal liability on them for commission of an offence under Section 341 IPC or otherwise. The word "voluntary" in Section 339 connotes that obstruction should be direct. The obstruction must be a restriction on normal movement of a person. It should be physical one. The accused persons should have common intention to cause obstruction. Appellants were not at the site. They did not carry out any work. No overt act or physical obstruction on their part is attributed. In spite of the fact that road was under construction, the first respondent was not obstructed inasmuch as he was able to go to police station three times. It cannot therefore be said in a situation of this nature that Managing Director and Directors of the Company and Architect have committed an offence under Section 341 IPC. (Paras 11, 14 and 15). Keki Hormusji Gharda v. Mehervan Rustom Irani, (2009) 6 SCC 475: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1113: 2009 Cri LJ 3733: (2009) 78 AIC 108 (SC): (2009) 150 Comp Cas 70.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Cyriac Joseph, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-5-2009]

— S. 340 See also Ss. 220, 339, 340 and 166

[8576] — S. 340 — Damages for — Prosecution if on facts malicious — Test to determine — Prosecution launched by police officers under instructions from State Government, even though ultimately failing, held, could not be said to be malicious or without reasonable or probable cause — The test is whether the prosecutor had not acted honestly believing the person concerned to be guilty and not the result of the criminal trial — On facts the prosecution for alleged violation of Assam Foodgrains (Licensing and Control) Order, 1961, although ending in acquittal, held, was not malicious — Constitution of India, Art. 21 — Essential Commodities Act, 1955, S. 3 — Noti. N.S.O. 696(E) dated 30-9-1977 — Assam Foodgrains (Licensing and Control) Order, 1961

On 1-10-1977 the appellant's stock of paddy and rice was seized and the appellant was arrested for allegedly violating the Assam Foodgrains (Licensing and Control) Order, 1961. The seized stock was sold. The criminal prosecution launched against the appellant ended in discharge on the ground that the Assam Control Order of 1961 was not in force at the time of search, seizure and arrest of the appellant on 1-10-1977 but that it had expired on 30-9-1977. The appellant filed a suit against the State and certain police officers for damages towards mental pain, social and public humiliation, wrongful confinement and expenses incurred in defending the criminal cases (hereinafter "non-pecuniary damages") as well as for the value of the seized stock (hereinafter "pecuniary damages"). The High Court held the defendants to be guilty of malicious prosecution, abuse of power and unauthorised action and granted relief only in regard to pecuniary damages but, on the ground of vagueness of pleadings and evidence, dismissed the suit in respect of non-pecuniary damages. The plaintiff filed the instant appeal for non-pecuniary damages. The defendants did not file any appeal in regard to the amount decreed for pecuniary damages. Opposing the appeal, the respondent-defendants contended that the finding of the High Court in regard to the prosecution being without reasonable and probable cause or that it was malicious etc. was not correct and that hence no decree could be passed for the non-pecuniary damages. On the other hand, the appellant-plaintiff contended that the decree for pecuniary damages was based on the same finding and that neither the decree for pecuniary damages nor the adverse findings regarding absence of reasonable and probable cause, malice etc. were questioned by the respondents by way of an appeal or by cross-objections and that therefore the said findings could not be attacked by the respondents under Order 41 Rule 22 as amended in 1976. That the findings on which the decree for pecuniary damages was based had become final and operated as res judicata.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

The notification of the Central Government dated 30-9-1977 [S.O. 696(E)], Ministry of Agriculture & Irrigation [Gazette of India Part II Sec. 3(ii), Extra.] dated 30-9-1977 no doubt states that "in exercise of power conferred by Section 3 of the Essential Commodities Act, 1955 (Act 10 of 1955), the Central Government hereby rescinds the Assam Foodgrains (Licensing and Control) Order, 1961 w.e.f. 1-10-1977". The search, seizure and arrest operations were conducted on 1-10-1977 but, as noticed by the trial court, the Assam Government had issued a Wireless Message No. 363773 dated 30-9-1977 to various officers that the Government of India's procurement policy dated 29-9-1977 did not state that the existing restriction on movement of paddy/rice was withdrawn w.e.f. 1-10-1977 as reported in the press. Moreover, mentioning that the 1961 order had not been repealed, the message directed them to continue to enforce the said order.

The record also shows that this was communicated to officers lower down on 3-10-1977. This aspect was not given due importance by the High Court. (Para 25)

Newspaper reports regarding the Central Government decision could not be any basis for the respondents to stop action under the Assam Control Order of 1961. The presumption of genuineness attached under Section 81 of the Evidence Act to newspaper reports cannot be treated as proof of the facts stated therein. The statements of fact in newspapers are merely hearsay. (Para 26)

Now if the police officers of the Assam Government acted upon the instructions of the Assam Government and proceeded to apply the Control Order even on 1-10-1977, they cannot be said to have acted without reasonable or probable cause. The remedy of suit for damages for false imprisonment is part of the law of torts in India. Under the law of torts the defendant can claim to be judged not of the real facts but of those which he honestly, and however erroneously, believes. (Para 27)

The question is not whether the plaintiff was ultimately found guilty but the question is whether the prosecutor acted honestly and believed that the plaintiff was guilty. In prosecutions initiated by police officers, the fact that they did so upon advice or instruction of superior officers is one of the relevant facts unless it is proved that the particular police officer did not himself honestly believe that the plaintiff was guilty of an offence. (Para 28)

The High Court was wrong in concluding that there was absence of reasonable and probable cause because the action, in view of the notification of the Central Government, was unauthorised or illegal. Illegality does not by itself lead to such a conclusion. As to the contention that the appellant and the owners of paddy showed permits to Defendants 2 and 3, there is not sufficient pleading on this aspect. In any case no question was put when Defendant 2 was cross-examined. The 3rd defendant was asked and he denied the suggestion. Therefore, the plea of showing permits has not been properly substantiated. (Paras 29 and 30)

The finding of the High Court regarding malice or the absence of reasonable and probable cause cannot be accepted, notwithstanding the fact that such a finding was the basis for granting pecuniary damages which decree has become final. If that be so, the respondents can sustain the dismissal of the suit in regard to the non-pecuniary damages. (Para 31). Ravinder Kumar Sharma v. State of Assam, (1999) 7 SCC 435: AIR 1999 SC 3571.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Jagannadha Rao and M. Srinivasan, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-9-1999]

Nishambhu Jana v. Sova Guha, (1984-85) 86 CWN 685; Tej Kumar Jain v. Purshottam, AIR 1981 MP 55, approved

ADM, Jabalpur v. Shivakant Shukla, (1976) 2 SCC 521, 579; Glinski v. McIver, 1962 AC 726, 776: (1962) 1 All ER 696, relied on [8577] — S. 340 — Registry must place before the Court for orders cases of very serious nature and importance forthwith — Delay of two and a half months in placing before the Court a letter containing complaint of illegal confinement of a lady against her wishes strongly deprecated — Matter directed to be placed before Chief Justice for taking suitable action against the concerned officials responsible for the delay — Constitution of India, Art. 32. Nilima Priyadarshini v. State of Bihar, 1987 Supp SCC 732: 1988 SCC (Cri) 138: AIR 1987 SC 2021.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.P. Thakkar and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-3-1987]

[8578] — S. 340-A — Order of termination passed under R. 7(2)(b) after the bus driver of the State Roadways, having caused an accident resulting in death of one person and injury to another, was convicted under S. 340-A IPC — Such order, although preceded by an order of reduction of pay following the passing of an award by Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal for a huge amount against the State Roadways for the same accident, held, did not attract the bar under Art. 20(2) — Constitution of India, Art. 20(2) — Haryana Civil Services (Punishment and Appeal) Rules, 1987, Rr. 7(2)(b) & 7(1)

The respondent was a bus-driver under Haryana Roadways. In an accident caused by his rash and negligent driving, one person died and another was injured. An award passed by the Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal in that matter resulted in the loss of a huge sum to the State. Consequently, a departmental enquiry under Rule 7 of the Haryana Civil Services (Punishment and Appeal) Rules, 1987 (for short "the Rules") was initiated against him and ultimately by an order dated 12-3-1990 punishment of reduction of pay to the minimum of the pay scale was imposed on him. On account of causing the same accident, he was convicted by a court under Section 340-A IPC. Based on that conviction, the Department by an order dated 17-9-1992 terminated his services. His suit challenging the termination order, though initially unsuccessful, was in second appeal decreed by the High Court only on the ground that an employee could not be punished twice for the same offence in view of Article 20(2).

Allowing the State's appeal,

Held :

The High Court was not right in equating the departmental enquiries held on different grounds to prosecution in a criminal case. The High Court also has failed to see that the two orders passed against the respondent were on different grounds and were on different cause of actions. (Para 4)

In the present case, the first order was passed on 12-3-1990 reducing the pay to the minimum of time scale under Rule 7(1) of the Rules. The second order terminating his services was passed on 17-9-1992 under Rule 7(2)(b). When a major penalty is proposed to be imposed upon a person on the ground of conduct which led to his conviction on a criminal charge compliance with the provisions contained in Rules 7(1) and (2) is not required. Rule 7 itself makes a distinction in regard to the punishment to be imposed depending on the grounds. (Para 5)

Therefore, there was no question of the respondent suffering a double jeopardy. The aid of Article 20(2) was wrongly taken. That article does not get attracted to the facts of the present case. The High Court committed a serious error in holding that the respondent was prosecuted and punished for the same offence twice. (Para 7). State of Haryana v. Balwant Singh, (2003) 3 SCC 362: 2003 SCC (L&S) 279: AIR 2003 SC 1253: (2003) 2 LLN 349: (2003) 2 LLJ 527.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Shivaraj V. Patil and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-3-2003]

(2000) 3 SCT 617 (P&H), reversed

Union of India v. P.D. Yadav, (2002) 1 SCC 405: 2002 SCC (L&S) 149, followed

— S. 341 See also Ss. 120-B, 364-A and 341

See also Ss. 120-B, 384, 388, 342, 341, 193, 201, 218, 466 and 420

See also Ss. 143, 147, 148, 341, 323, 324 and 302 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 143, 147, 341, 307, 326 and 149

See also Ss. 147, 148, 341 and 302 r/w S. 149

See also S. 149 [Ss. 302/149 and 307/149] and S. 148 and S. 341

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 307 and 341

See also Ss. 339 Exception thereto and S. 341

See also Ss. 342 and 341

See also Ss. 396, 506, 341 and 379

See also Ss. 447, 341, 323 and 427

See also S. 498-A and Ss. 406, 341, 323 & 120-B

See also S. 498-A and Ss. 406, 341, 323 & 120-B and Ss. 3 & 4, Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961

[8579] — Ss. 341, 323, 504/34 and 120-B — Quashing of criminal proceedings — Cognizance taken long after a period of three years — Occurrence on 24-9-1994 — Cognizance taken by CJM on 4-2-2000 — Proceedings, held on facts, clearly barred by S. 468(2) CrPC — High Court erred in not quashing the same under S. 482 CrPC — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 482, 190, 468(2) and 473

There is no dispute that cognizance was taken of the offences by the learned Magistrate long after a period of three years. The Magistrate condoned the delay on the ground that the proceedings were stayed by the High Court till 5-10-1999. On 11-11-1994, further proceedings had been specifically stayed but by the order dated 6-2-1995, the order dated 11-11-1994 was modified in effect to vacating the earlier order staying further proceedings. This position is abundantly clear by a bare perusal of the orders dated 11-11-1994 and 6-2-1995. When the order of 11-11-1994 was specifically modified, there was no reason to understand the orders otherwise. It was not correct for the learned Magistrate to say that there was stay of further proceedings till 5-10-1999 in the face of order dated 6-2-1995 read with the order dated 11-11-1994. (Para 12)

No other reason or ground is given in the order of the Magistrate to condone the delay under Section 473 of the Code. If the discretion is exercised on relevant considerations, possibly no fault could be found with such discretion. The High Court although noticed in the impugned order as to the effect of the order dated 6-2-1995 and found that there was an error committed by the Magistrate but took the view that it was not a serious one. Added to this, the proceedings are of the year 1994. Having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case, the CJM as well as the High Court committed serious error in upholding taking cognizance when it is clearly barred by Section 468(2) of the Code. (Para 12)

Thus, the impugned order is set aside and the criminal proceedings are quashed. (Para 13). Ramesh Chandra Sinha v. State of Bihar, (2003) 7 SCC 254: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1613: AIR 2003 SC 3635.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Shivaraj V. Patil and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 18-8-2003]

[8580] — Ss. 341, 323 and 506 — Existence of prima facie case upon inquiry — Magistrate initially not entertaining private complaint but later entertaining it because: (1) Sessions Court in revision finding prima facie case and directing further inquiry and High Court in revision clarifying that the inquiry should be under S. 398, and (2) Magistrate on holding such further inquiry by recording depositions of three witnesses finding that allegations were supported by evidence — High Court not interfering under S. 482 by holding that there was concurrent finding that complaint revealed a prima face case — Held, High Court committed no error in declining to interfere under S. 482 — Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, Ss. 3(1)(x) and (2)(vii) — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 482, 398 and 274

The High Court by the impugned order held that since the two courts below had concurrently held that a prima facie case under Sections 341, 323 and 506 IPC and Sections 3(1)(x) and 2(vii) of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 had been made out against the petitioner (the appellant herein) it was not a fit case in which the proceedings before the Magistrate could be quashed.

Dismissing the appeal,

Held :

The High Court committed no error in declining to interfere under Section 482 CrPC. So long as the Magistrate was satisfied that a prima facie case had been made out, he was competent to issue summons to the accused. A plain reading of the complaint filed by the complainant in the instant case makes out a case against the accused. Not only that, the depositions of the three witnesses examined by the complainant in support of his complaint also support the allegations made in the complaint. The Magistrate was, therefore, justified in taking cognizance against the appellant and the co-accused. (Paras 7 and 1)

Inasmuch as the Magistrate in the instant case summoned the witnesses and examined them afresh, he may have gone beyond what was legally necessary to do but that is no reason to hold that the recording of evidence by the Magistrate as a part of the further enquiry directed by the High Court would vitiate the proceedings before him or the conclusion drawn on the basis of any such enquiry. The High Court clarified that the direction issued by Sessions Judge was a direction for a further enquiry to be conducted by the CJM under Section 398 CrPC. (Paras 9 and 4)

The complaint which was first dismissed by CJM was returned by Sessions Court for further inquiry on ground that it revealed a prima facie case. That direction did not necessarily oblige the Magistrate to record any further evidence in the case. The nature of the inquiry was in the discretion of the Magistrate which may or may not have included recording of further evidence on behalf of the complainant. The Magistrate could without recording any further evidence in the matter reappraise the averments made in the complaint and the material already on record to determine whether a prima facie case was made out against the accused persons. (Para 9). Subrata Das v. State of Jharkhand, (2010) 10 SCC 798.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and T.S. Thakur, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-10-2010]

[8581] — Ss. 341, 326, 504, & 506 r/w S. 34 and Ss. 324 & 325 r/w S. 34 — Part allowing of appeal against acquittal — Approach — High Court upholding acquittal for offences under Ss. 341, 326, 504 and 506 r/w S. 34 IPC and setting aside acquittal for offences under Ss. 324 and 325 r/w S. 34 IPC without assigning distinct reason — PWs 1 to 3 were attacked and injured with stones and wooden sticks and PW 1 was threatened due to past hostility — High Court in an appeal against acquittal partly allowed the appeal by simply observing that benefit of doubt could not be given because the inconsistencies and contradictions were minor and there was past hostility between the parties — Matter therefore, remanded to High Court for proper appreciation of evidence — Constitution of India, Art. 136 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 386 and 376

The appellant-accused along with others attacked a couple (PWs 1 and 3) and their coolie (PW 2) with stones and wooden sticks. The complainant also threatened to kill the husband (PW 1, complainant). The prosecution examined two doctors (PWs 4 and 5). The Magistrate acquitted all the accused along with the appellant-accused by finding discrepancies in medical and ocular evidence and contradictions in the deposition of witnesses. The High Court allowed the appeal under Section 378 CrPC by relying on medical certificate, past hostility (due to long standing civil dispute), and by observing that the inconsistencies and contradictions were minor and that it was a case of extenuating circumstance and not a case where benefit of doubt could have been given. By the impugned order the High Court upheld the acquittal for offences under Sections 341, 326, 504 and 506 read with Section 34 IPC and set aside the acquittal and recorded conviction for offences under Sections 324 and 325 read with Section 34 IPC without assigning any reason.

Allowing the appeal,

Held:

In a brief order, the High Court partly allowed the appeal, but there was no reasoning or basis as to what weighed with the High Court in confirming the order of acquittal recorded in favour of the appellant-accused for offences (under Sections 341, 326, 504 and 506 read with Section 34 IPC) and for setting aside the order of acquittal and ordering conviction of the accused for the offences punishable under Sections 324 and 325 read with Section 34 IPC. The High Court was exercising appellate power as the first appellate court. It was, therefore, expected of the High Court to consider the evidence of the prosecution witnesses, particularly because the three eyewitnesses (PWs 1 to 3) were also injured witnesses. The High Court failed to discharge its duty of exercising appellate power as a regular court of appeal. The order passed by the High Court, therefore, deserves to be set aside by remitting the matter for fresh disposal in accordance with law. (Paras 15 to 17). Manjunath Ganesh Hegde v. State of Karnataka, (2008) 14 SCC 555: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1129: (2009) 73 AIC 263 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: C.K. Thakker and D.K. Jain, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-11-2008]

[8582] — Ss. 341 and 339 — 'Wrongful restraint' — Accused standing so close in front of a woman that she had to move backward — Held, act does not constitute offence under S. 341

(See facts under S. 354 IPC)

Regarding the offence of wrongful confinement punishable under Section 342 IPC there is not an iota of material in the FIR; and so far as the offence under Section 341 IPC is concerned, the only allegation relating to the same is that the respondent stood in front of the appellant in such a manner that she had to move backward. From such act alone it cannot be said that he "wrongfully restrained" her within the meaning of Section 339 IPC to make him liable under Section 341 IPC. (Para 18). Rupan Deol Bajaj v. Kanwar Pal Singh Gill, (1995) 6 SCC 194: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1059: AIR 1996 SC 309.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1995]

[8583] — Ss. 341 and 339 — Wrongful restraint — Complainant in occupation of a room as licensee in the campus of a school — Accused, Principal Manager of school, locking the door after revoking the licence — Civil Court refusing to grant injunction in favour of the complainant describing her as a trespasser — Held, the complainant being a trespasser had no right to proceed in the direction in question and therefore, action of the accused did not amount to wrongful restraint — Material on record not showing that the accused had in any way appropriated or stolen the belongings of the complainant which were in the room and therefore no damages can be awarded for the same. Vijay Kumari Magee v. S.M. Rao, (1996) 7 SCC 148: 1996 SCC (Cri) 236: AIR 1996 SC 1058.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and B.L. Hansaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1996]

[8584] — Ss. 341, 342, 363, 392 and 504 r/w S. 34 — FIR and investigation — Interference by Chief Minister of State (CM) — Invalidity and unwarrantedness — FIR alleging illegal moneylending under 1946 Bombay Act — CM and his PS instructing Collector and police station concerned respectively not to lodge FIR and not to initiate action on any complaint lodged against an MLA and his family members and to seek legal opinion from Government Pleader — Said instructions and interference, held (per curiam), illegal, unwarranted, against equality and social justice — CM should have understood necessity of implementing Moneylenders Act and ground realities that many farmers were committing suicide due to atrocities of moneylenders — Said instructions therefore, condemned and set aside — Exemplary costs of Rs 10 lakhs imposed on State — Bombay Moneylenders Act, 1946 (31 of 1947), S. 32-B — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 155 to 159

The Collector in his order dated 5-6-2006 to the District Superintendent of Police referred to the meeting and instructions of the Chief Minister on 1-6-2006 and accordingly directed that if any complaint is received against a specified MLA or his family members, the said matter/complaint be placed for decision before the District Anti-Moneylending Committee and the said Committee should obtain the legal opinion of the District Government Pleader and then only take decision on the same and take appropriate legal action accordingly.

A complaint was lodged by Respondent 1 against the said MLA/family members under Sections 341, 342, 363, 392, 504 read with Section 34 IPC and Section 32-B of the Bombay Moneylenders Act, 1946. Station diary entry of the police station concerned where complaint had been lodged revealed that PS to the Chief Minister telephoned twice to the police station and directed that no action should be taken as instructed by the Chief Minister and that no offence should be registered.

The High Court after examining the provisions of the Bombay Moneylenders Act and also the materials on record held that the letter dated 5-6-2006 and the telephonic message recorded in the station diary entry exhibited gross abuse of power by the authority concerned and struck down both the communications.

Dismissing the appeal with costs of Rs 10 lakhs, Held :

Per A.K. Ganguly, J. (for Singhvi, J. and himself)

The instruction of the Chief Minister to the Collector in their meeting dated 1-6-2006 as reflected in the Collector's order dated 5-6-2006 to the District Superintendent of Police has no warrant in law and is unconstitutional and is quashed. The order of the High Court is affirmed. Such instructions should not have come from the Chief Minister of a State which is governed under a Constitution which resolves to constitute India into a socialist, secular, democratic republic. The Chief Minister's instructions are so incongruous and anachronistic, being in defiance of all logic and reason, that it deeply disturbs the conscience. The same is condemned in no uncertain terms. (Paras 47 and 46)

If the information lodged with the police discloses cognizable offence, the police shall record the same in accordance with and under Section 154 CrPC. The police officer's power to investigate in case of a cognizable offence without order of the Magistrate is statutorily recognised under Section 156 CrPC. The police officer in charge of a police station, on the basis of information received or otherwise, can start investigation if he has reasons to suspect the commission of any cognizable offence. This is subject to Section 157 provisos (a) and (b) CrPC which leave discretion with the police officer in charge of police station to consider if the information is not of a serious nature, he may depute a subordinate officer to investigate and if it appears to the officer-in-charge that there does not exist sufficient ground, he shall not investigate. (Paras 29 and 30)

The law does not accord any special treatment to any person in respect of any complaint having been filed against him when it discloses the commission of any cognizable offence. It is a vital component of the rule of law. (Para 31)

The direction of the then Chief Minister to give special treatment to the MLA concerned and his family about registering of complaint filed against them is totally unwarranted in law. The way interference was caused first from the office of the Chief Minister by his Private Secretary by two telephone calls on 31-5-2006 and the manner in which the District Collector was summoned by the Chief Minister on the very next day i.e. 1-6-2006 for giving instructions to specially treat any complaints filed against the said MLA and his family has no precedent either in law or in public administration. (Paras 31 and 28)

From the affidavit filed by the Police Inspector concerned it is clear that 34 cases were filed against the said MLA and his family in respect of allegation of moneylending. From the communication of the Collector containing the instructions of the then Chief Minister, it is clear that the Chief Minister was aware of the various complaints. Even then the Chief Minister passed an order for special treatment in favour of the said family which is unknown to law and which is not available to other similarly placed persons. The Chief Minister was acting solely on political considerations to screen the family of the said MLA from the normal process of law. (Paras 32 to 34 and 20)

The argument that some of the cases in which complaints were filed against the family of the said MLA, were investigated and charge-sheets were filed, is a poor consolation and does not justify the issuing of the wholly unauthorised and unconstitutional instructions to the Collector. It is not known in how many cases investigation has been totally scuttled in view of the impugned directions. Records disclosed in this case show that out of 74 cases only in seven cases were charge-sheets filed and the rest of the cases were either compromised or withdrawn. How can poor farmers sustain their complaints in the face of such directions and how can the subordinate police officers carry on investigation ignoring such instructions of the Chief Minister? Therefore, the instructions of the Chief Minister have completely subverted the rule of law. (Paras 40 and 41)

The Chief Minister of the State of Maharashtra was expected to know that the farmers of the State specially those in the Vidarbha region are going through a great deal of suffering and hardship in the hands of moneylenders. (Para 31)

This being the ground reality, the Chief Minister of the State who holding a position of great responsibility as a high constitutional functionary, certainly acted beyond all legal norms by giving the impugned directions to the Collector to protect members of a particular family who are dealing in moneylending business, from the normal process of law. This amounts to bestowing special favour to some chosen few at the cost of the vast number of poor people who as farmers have taken loans and who have come to the authorities of law and order to register their complaints against torture and atrocities by the moneylenders. The instructions of the Chief Minister will certainly impede their access to legal redress and bring about a failure of the due process. (Para 38)

The aforesaid action of the Chief Minister is completely contrary to and inconsistent with the constitutional promise of equality and also the Preambular resolve of social and economic justice. As the Chief Minister of the State, he had taken a solemn oath of allegiance to the Constitution but the directions which he gave are wholly unconstitutional and seek to subvert the constitutional norms of equality and social justice. (Para 39)

Per G.S. Singhvi, J. (supplementing)

The instructions given by the Chief Minister to District Collector were ex facie ultra vires the provisions of the Act which do not envisage any role of the Chief Minister in cases involving violation of the provisions of the Act and amounted to an unwanted interference with the functioning of the authorities entrusted with the task of enforcing the Act enacted for regulating, controlling transactions of moneylending and protecting unsuspecting borrowers against oppression and harassment at the hands of unscrupulous moneylenders. The District Anti-Moneylending Committee was constituted by the Government of Maharashtra for protecting the farmers against unscrupulous moneylenders and not for protecting the wrong-doers, but in total disregard of the scheme of the Act, the Chief Minister gave instructions which had the effect of frustrating the object of the legislation enacted for protection of the farmers. (Para 71)

The camouflage of sophistry used by the Chief Minister in the instructions given by him and the affidavit filed before the Supreme Court is clearly misleading. The message to the authorities was loud and clear i.e. they were not to take the complaints against the family concerned seriously and not to proceed against them. The District Magistrate, the District Superintendent of Police and officers subordinate to them were bound to comply with the same in their letter and spirit. They could disregard those instructions at their own peril and none of them was expected to do so. (Para 70). State of Maharashtra v. Sarangdharsingh Shivdassingh Chavan, (2011) 1 SCC 577.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.S. Singhvi[2] and A.K. Ganguly[1], JJ. [Date of decision: 14-12-2010]

Lalita Kumari v. Govt. of U.P., (2008) 14 SCC 337: (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 812, distinguished

[Ed.: See also Criminal Procedure Code, 1973, Ss. 155 to 159, '(5) Refusal to investigate or Improper investigation — Monitoring of investigation and Role of court', pp. 404 et seq. in Vol. 16; and

S. 154, '(4)(i) — Powers, Role and Duty of police in respect of FIR — Generally', pp. 367 et seq. also in Vol. 16, Complete Digest of Supreme Court Cases, 2nd Edn.]

— S. 341 r/w S. 149 See also Ss. 147, 148, 341, 504, 506, 324, 326 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 302, 307, 326, and 341 r/w Ss. 148 and 149

[8585] — Ss. 341/149/34 — Appeal before High Court against acquittal by trial court — Held, even if High Court disagreed with the conclusion of the trial court, it was not justified in remanding the case for retrial after a lapse of six years, particularly in view of the offences alleged being of trivial nature (under S.341, Indian Penal Code and S. 36-AD of Banking Regulation Act, 1949) committed pursuant to a call of strike — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 482, 386 and 378

The High Court should have directed the dropping of the proceedings in exercise of its inherent powers under S. 482, CrPC even if it disagreed with the view taken by the trial court with regard to the gist of the offence punishable under S. 341, IPC, having regard to the inordinate delay of nearly six years that had ensued after the judgment of acquittal, the nature and magnitude of the offences alleged to have been committed by the appellants and the difficulties that may have to be encountered in securing the presence of witnesses in a case of this nature nearly 7 years after the incident. A fresh trial nearly seven years after the alleged incident is bound to result in harassment and abuse of judicial process. The termination of the criminal proceedings in that way would secure the ends of justice as it would bring about reconciliation between the management and the employees and also put an end to a stale criminal proceeding in which the public had no longer sufficient interest. S. Guin v. Grindlays Bank Ltd., (1986) 1 SCC 654: 1986 SCC (Cri) 64: AIR 1986 SC 289: 1986 Cri LJ 255: (1986) 1 LLN 471.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: E.S. Venkataramiah and R.B. Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-12-1985]

S. Veerabadran Chettiar v. E.V. Ramaswami Naicker, 1959 SCR 1211: AIR 1958 SC 1032: 1958 Cri LJ 1565, followed

— S. 342 See also Ss. 120-B, 384, 388, 342, 341, 193, 201, 218, 466 and 420

See also Ss. 120-B r/w 326, 342, 417, 465, 473, 506 and 307

See also Ss. 148, 365, 342, 323, 324 and 302/149

See also Ss. 218, 323 and 342

See also under Ss. 299 to 304

See also Ss. 302, 364, 342 and 201

See also Ss. 323 and 342

See also Ss. 326/335, S. 326 r/w S. 120-B and S. 342

See also Ss. 330, 342 and 306

See also Ss. 364-A, 342 and 120-B

See also Ss. 375 and 376

See also Ss. 376, 375, 148, 452, 149, 342, 323, 366 and 506

See also Ss. 376, 375, 148, 452, 149, 342, 323 and 506

See also Ss. 376 and 342

See also S. 376 and proviso thereto and Ss. 342, 363 and 366

See also Ss. 376/149, 375, 148, 452, 342, 323, 366 and 506

See also Ss. 384, 365, 342 and 120-B

See also Ss. 397 and 342

See also Ss. 461, 379, 403, 342, 166 and 167

See also Ss. 498-A, 342, 506 and 406 r/w S. 34

[8586] — S. 342 — Expression "any offence under the Indian Penal Code" in S. 562(1-A) CrPC, 1898 — Covers an offence under S. 342, IPC — Offence referred not confined to those sections of IPC where property is directly or indirectly involved — S. 562(1-A) is capable of dealing with all offences punishable with not more than 2 years' imprisonment. Akarapu Katta Mallu v. Purna Chandra Rao, AIR 1967 SC 1363: (1967) 2 SCR 309: (1967) 2 MLJ (SC) 65: 1967 Cri LJ 1212.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, V. Bhargava and G.K. Mitter, JJ. [Date of decision: 16-12-1966]

[8587] — S. 342 — Wrongful confinement — Conviction of SHO of police station therefor, restored — Sh was SHO of police station where J was locked up from 2-2-1994 to 5-2-1994 and subjected to third-degree measures (amongst other acts of torture, J*'s penis was cut off) without producing him before Magistrate — Evidence also indicating that* Sh was present at police station when J was brought there and had also slapped him — Held, Sh being SHO must have been aware of activities in police station and was also guilty of omitting to produce J before Magistrate within 24 hours of arrest, as required — Hence, Sh guilty under S. 342 and sentenced to six months' SI and fine of Rs 10,000 with default stipulation of one month's SI — CrPC, 1973, S. 57 — Constitution of India — Art. 22(2) (Paras 17, 18 and 27)

The victim J was an employee of accused B and was also residing in B's house. B suspected that J was having illicit affair with his wife and eldest daughter. Constable K was relative of B. On 2-2-1994 at about 8 p.m. J was carrying a bottle of liquor when K met him and snatched the bottle. In ensuing scuffle, the bottle fell down and broke. K then took J to police station where accused SHO Sh allegedly slapped him. J was locked in police station from 2-2-1994 to 5-2-1994 and beaten without producing him before Magistrate. He was repeatedly questioned about his illicit relationship. On 5-2-1994, J admitted that he had relations with B's wife whereupon accused ASI S held him by the neck while K chopped off J's penis with a razor. J was taken to a hospital. An FIR was registered under Sections 307/326, 343 and 120-B IPC.

B died during pendency of trial. The trial court convicted K under Sections 326, 308, 323 and 343, Sh was convicted under Sections 323 and 343, while S was convicted under Sections 326/114, 308/114 and 120-B IPC. In appeal, the High Court acquitted Sh and S and reduced sentence of K to period undergone for offence under Section 326, while conviction under Section 343 was altered to Section 342. Hence, instant appeal.

Allowing the appeal, the Supreme Court held as above. CBI v. Kishore Singh, (2011) 6 SCC 369.

Bench Strength 2. Coram : Markandey Katju and T.S. Thakur, JJ. [Date of decision : 25-10-2010]

Matthew, 5, Mark 9.50 and Luke 14.34-35, referred to

[8588] — S. 342 — "Wrongful confinement" — Essential ingredients to constitute offence of — Appellant R bringing the victim C at night to the house of A-4 under a false pretext — Daughter of C was already taken to the house of A-4 by R — In this way R making it compulsory for C to go to the said house — A-2 closing the door of the house from outside — Thus, forcing C to remain in the house with A-4 and R — C was able to come out of the house on the next day — Held, R guilty of offence under S. 342

The essential ingredients of the offence "wrongful confinement" are that the accused should have wrongfully confined the complainant and such restraint was to prevent the complainant from proceeding beyond certain circumscribed limits beyond which he/she has a right to proceed. (Para 10)

It is established by the evidence on record that the victim was taken to A-4's place by the appellant in the night of the date of occurrence and she was able to come out of the confinement on the next day. Thus, the factual scenario clearly establishes commission by the appellant of the offence punishable under Section 342 IPC. (Para 10). Raju Pandurang Mahale v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 4 SCC 371: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1259: AIR 2004 SC 1677: 2004 Cri LJ 1441.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-2004]

Shyam Lal Sharma v. State of M.P., (1972) 1 SCC 764: 1972 SCC (Cri) 470, relied on [8589] — S. 342 — Wrongful confinement — Explained — Not restricted to public servants

Section 342, IPC is not confined to offences against public servants but is a general section and makes a person who wrongfully restrains another guilty of the offence under that section.

Wrongful confinement is a wrongful restraint in such a manner as to prevent that person from proceeding beyond certain circumscribed limits and this offence has nothing to do with the illegality of the investigation or search. Shyam Lal Sharma v. State of M.P., (1972) 1 SCC 764: 1972 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 1972 SC 886: (1972) 3 SCR 422: 1972 Cri LJ 638: 1973 ALJ 366.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1972]

[8590] — Ss. 342 and 302 — Suspension of sentence pending appeal and release on bail — Factors that may be considered — Murder trial — Appellant nearly 70 years old and in jail for nearly one year, and on bail during trial — He directed to be released on bail on his furnishing the stipulated security — However, clarified that release of Appellant 1 was only directed on considering his age and not on consideration of merits of the case — CrPC, 1973, S. 389 (Paras 2, 7 and 8). Anil Ari v. State of W.B., (2009) 11 SCC 363: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1377: AIR 2009 SC 1564: 2009 Cri LJ 1328: (2009) 75 AIC 107 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-2009]

Kishori Lal v. Rupa, (2004) 7 SCC 638: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2021; Vasant Tukaram Pawar v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 5 SCC 281: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1052; Gomti v. Thakurdas, (2007) 11 SCC 160: (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 644, relied on [8591] — Ss. 342 and 341 — Conviction and sentence under — An Assistant Sub-Inspector of Police sentenced under S. 342 with six years' R.I. for confining some persons illegally — Correctness of charge contested — Charge contained no date — No independent evidence of wrongful confinement — Evidence of restraint established — Conviction altered to that under S. 341 with a fine of Rs 250. Raja Ram v. State of Haryana, (1971) 3 SCC 945: 1972 SCC (Cri) 193.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: M. Hidayatullah, C.J. and A.N. Ray and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 26-3-1970]

[8592] — Ss. 342, 343 and 366 — Several persons variously charged for abduction and wrongful confining of the prosecutrix against her will — For several days she was taken openly from place to place — Her testimony showing she never protested even once to anyone despite opportunity to do so — Her testimony not natural and not acceptable — Convictions therefore not maintainable. Hari Ram v. State of Rajasthan, 1991 Supp (2) SCC 475: 1991 SCC (Cri) 1071.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi, V. Ramaswami and M. Fathima Beevi, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1991]

[8593] — Ss. 342 & 353 — Illegality of search would not justify wrongful confinement of public officer or prevent discharge of his duties

An obstruction during the course of an irregular search not conducted in conformity with the provisions of S. 165, Criminal Procedure Code, might be justified, but that is no warrant for further preventing a public servant from discharging his duties. That constitutes an offence.

To say merely because the search was illegal the obstruction would be justified and those who caused it would be entitled to take law into their hands would result in conferring licence and afford them an unwarranted excuse to commit each and every criminal act.

Obstruction to search is to the act of the person conducting the search. It is a defensive act, but where search has ended and the persons conducting the search have left the premises, to bring them back and make them do things against their will is not an obstruction to an act, but a compulsion to make them act. Shyam Lal Sharma v. State of M.P., (1972) 1 SCC 764: 1972 SCC (Cri) 470: AIR 1972 SC 886: (1972) 3 SCR 422: 1972 Cri LJ 638: 1973 ALJ 366.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: P. Jaganmohan Reddy and H.R. Khanna, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1972]

See also AIR 1960 SC 210: 1960 Cri LJ 286

[8594] — Ss. 342, 389, 469, 471 and 120-B — Sanction for prosecution of appellant police officer for conducting a search without warrant (though other procedures followed) — Need for — Search of residential premises of R-2 conducted by police team headed by appellant on basis of report received by appellant as to commission of dacoity, in which R-2's son was implicated, with a view to arrest the said son — Alleging that search was motivated and was for purpose of humiliating and harassing R-2 and his son, as no search warrant had been obtained, complaint filed by R-2 — Whereupon, Magistrate taking cognizance of offences under Ss. 342, 389, 469, 471 and 120-B IPC against appellant, without sanction under S. 197 having been obtained — Order of Magistrate upheld by High Court — Sustainability — Held, High Court was not justified in holding that S. 197 was not applicable — It only focussed on absence of search warrant and totally ignored other relevant aspects, which had a determinative role in the issue — Hence order of Magistrate taking cognizance set aside — CrPC, 1973, S. 197 (Paras 21 and 22). Rakesh Kumar Mishra v. State of Bihar, (2006) 1 SCC 557: (2006) 1 SCC (Cri) 432: AIR 2006 SC 820: 2006 Cri LJ 808: (2006) 38 AIC 13 (SC): (2006) 1 KLJ 405: (2006) 2 KLT 26.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Arijit Pasayat and G.P. Mathur, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-1-2006]

Bakhshish Singh Brar v. Gurmej Kaur, (1987) 4 SCC 663: 1988 SCC (Cri) 29; P. Arulswami v. State of Madras, (1967) 1 SCR 201: AIR 1967 SC 776: 1967 Cri LJ 665; B. Saha v. M.S. Kochar, (1979) 4 SCC 177: 1979 SCC (Cri) 939; Matajog Dobey v. H.C. Bhari, (1955) 2 SCR 925: AIR 1956 SC 44; R. Balakrishna Pillai v. State of Kerala, (1996) 1 SCC 478: 1996 SCC (Cri) 128; State of H.P. v. M.P. Gupta, (2004) 2 SCC 349: 2004 SCC (Cri) 539; State of Orissa v. Ganesh Chandra Jew, (2004) 8 SCC 40: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2104; S.K. Zutshi v. Bimal Debnath, (2004) 8 SCC 31: 2004 SCC (Cri) 2096, relied on

— S. 342 r/w S. 34 See also Ss. 302, 307, 323 and 342 r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 302 and 342 r/w S. 34

— S. 342 r/w S. 120-B See also Ss. 365, 384, 342 r/w S. 120-B and S. 120-B

— S. 342 r/w S. 149 See also Ss. 302, 143, 147, 148, 341 and 342 r/w 149

— Ss. 342/34 See also Ss. 375 Thirdly, 376/34 and 342/34

See also Ss. 376(2)(g), 376/34 and 342/34

See also Ss. 376/34 and 342/34

— Ss. 342/365 See also Ss. 120-B and 342/365

— S. 343 See also Ss. 342, 343 and 366

See also Ss. 376, 302, 304, 120-B, 354, 312, 343, 201, 506, 109 and 34

— Ss. 343/120-B See also Ss. 365, 364-A, 343/120-B and 346/120-B

See also Ss. 365/120-B, 343/120-B and 346/120-B

— S. 344 See also Ss. 366-A, 372, 376 and 344

— S. 346 See also Ss. 376, 346 and 366

— Ss. 346/120-B See also Ss. 365, 364-A, 343/120-B and 346/120-B

See also Ss. 365/120-B, 343/120-B and 346/120-B

[8595] — Ss. 347, 161, 167, 385 and 511 — Inherent power — Quashing of criminal proceedings to prevent the abuse of process of court and secure the ends of justice — Grounds for — Mala fide criminal proceedings on vague assertions due to private and personal grudge of Respondent 1 (complainant) against appellant-accused — Respondent 1 arrested on account of the FIR lodged by appellants for theft of electricity — Respondent 1 instituting complaint case for bribery to wreak vengeance on the raiding party members (appellants) of the Bihar State Electricity Board — Complaint case lodged in February after Respondent 1 (complainant) was released on bail — Respondent 1 (complainant) not specifying date when the bribery was demanded by the appellants — Respondent 1 (complainant) not showing reason as to why he did not choose to proceed against one of the four co-accused (appellants) initially named — Institution of complaint case on account of private and personal grudge, held, is a fit case under Category (7) of Bhajan Lal case, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 for quashing a complaint case in exercise of powers under S. 482 CrPC to prevent the abuse of process of court and secure the ends of justice — Constitution of India, Art. 226 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 482, 154 and 157

On the basis of an FIR lodged by the raiding party of Bihar State Electricity Board, Respondent 1 was arrested for committing theft of electricity. After being released on bail on 7-1-1994, Respondent 1 filed a complaint case before the Magistrate on 11-2-1994 against the appellants and R (all members of the raiding party) alleging that they had demanded illegal gratification. Interestingly, no date of such demand was indicated in the complaint. When the Judicial Magistrate took the cognizance of the offences punishable under Sections 347, 161, 167, 385 and 511 IPC, the appellants and R filed petitions before the High Court questioning correctness of the order. The High Court dismissed the application filed by R while the application filed by appellants was pending. R moved the Supreme Court in SLP (Crl.) No. 3045 of 1996.

Supreme Court granted stay on 23-9-1996 and, therefore, proceedings before the trial court remained stayed. The special leave petition was disposed of on 17-7-1997. Since a statement was made before the Supreme Court by the complainant that he did not want to proceed against the petitioner in the special leave petition but he would like to continue the proceedings so far as the others are concerned, the proceedings were accordingly quashed qua the petitioner in the SLP. So far as the present appellants are concerned the High Court by the impugned order held that the Supreme Court had interfered because of the concession made and, therefore, no case for interference was made out.

Allowing the appeal,

Held :

Where a criminal proceeding (relating to cognizable offences) is manifestly attended with mala fides and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge it would come within Category (7) of rarest of rare cases as laid down in Bhajan Lal case, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 where the High Court may exercise its power under Section 482 CrPC to prevent abuse of process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. The backgrounds clearly show that the proceedings instituted were mala fide, based on vague assertions and were initiated with mala fide intents and constitute sheer abuse of process of law. No reason was shown before the High Court as to why the complainant chose not to proceed against one of the four persons initially named. The High Court did not attach importance to the fact that the complaint was lodged in February 1994 and there was no date indicated as to when the alleged demand was made. The cases at hand fit in with Category (7) of Bhajan Lal case, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335. (Paras 7, 8 and 5). Baijnath Jha v. Sita Ram, (2008) 8 SCC 77: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 428: AIR 2008 SC 2778.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-6-2008]

R.P. Kapur v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 866: (1960) 3 SCR 388; State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335: 1992 SCC (Cri) 426, applied

State of Karnataka v. M. Devendrappa, (2002) 3 SCC 89, relied on

[8596] — Ss. 347, 386 and 365 — Sentence — High Court enhancing the sentence to 3 years' Rigorous Imprisonment under S. 347, IPC and to 8 years' Rigorous Imprisonment under S. 386, IPC and awarding 7 years' rigorous imprisonment under S. 365, IPC — High Court justified in enhancing the sentences

The Sessions Judge held that the accused was guilty of a grave and heinous crime and it is surprising that he should have sentenced the accused to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year under S. 347, 2 years under S. 365 and 3½ years under S. 386, IPC, and direct the sentences to run concurrently. When the Sessions Judge gave such disproportionately lenient sentences it was the duty of the High Court to rectify such an obvious error. The learned Judges of the High Court rightly enhanced the sentence imposed on the appellant. Deep Chand v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1961 SC 1527: (1962) 1 SCR 662: (1961) 2 Cri LJ 705, 709: (1962) 2 MLJ 1 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-3-1961]

— S. 348 See also Ss. 302/34, 330, 348 and 201

See also Ss. 302/34, 348 and 201/34

[8597] — S. 348 — Assistant Commissioner of Police refusing to grant bail unless a condition, which could not be legally imposed, was fulfilled — His prosecution under S. 348 — Sanction is necessary. Somchand Sanghvi v. Bibhuti Bhusan Chakravarty, AIR 1965 SC 588: (1964) 6 SCR 275: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 499.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-1-1964]

[8598] — S. 348 — Public servant illegally exercising his discretion as a public servant — Sanction is necessary — Assistant Commr. of Police refusing to grant bail unless a condition which could not be legally imposed, was fulfilled — His prosecution under S. 348 IPC — Sanction is necessary — CrPC, 1898, S. 197

Complainant lodged a complaint against the appellant under S. 120-B and S. 420 IPC. He was arrested and produced before the Assistant Commissioner of Police who refused to release him on bail unless he paid Rs 5, 000.00 to the complainant. The appellant after his release preferred a complaint against the Assistant Commissioner of Police under Ss. 348 and 220 IPC and S. 13-C Calcutta Police Act. Process was issued against him under S. 348 IPC alone. High Court quashed the process on the ground that before the Assistant Commissioner could be proceeded against sanction under S. 197 CrPC was necessary. Appellant appealed to the Supreme Court.

Held :

Whether a person charged with an offence should or should not be released on bail was a matter within the discretion of the respondent and if while exercising a discretion he acted illegally by saying that bail would not be granted unless the appellant did something which the appellant was not bound to do, the respondent cannot be said to have acted otherwise than in his capacity as a public servant. For this reason the sanction of the appropriate authority for the respondent's prosecution was necessary under S. 179 CrPC. Somchand Sanghvi v. Bibhuti Bhusan Chakravarty, AIR 1965 SC 588: (1964) 6 SCR 275: (1965) 1 Cri LJ 499.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Subba Rao and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 21-1-1964]

[8599] — S. 348 — Wrongful confinement by police personnel — One V, who was arrested on direction of A-1 (officer-in-charge of police station) on 19-10-1988 at 9.30 a.m., died by hanging himself in police station on 20-10-1988 at about 5.30 p.m. — V not produced before nearest Magistrate within 24 hours of his arrest, as required by CrPC — Held, the accused police personnel (including A-1) were guilty of offence under S. 348 — Contention that duty to produce the accused before the nearest Magistrate was of IO and not of A-1, rejected (Para 10). Sanganagouda A. Veeranagouda v. State of Karnataka, (2005) 12 SCC 468.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: H.K. Sema and P.P. Naolekar, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2005]

— S. 349 See also Ss. 353 and 349

[8600] — Ss. 349 and 353 — Resisting search, inspection and seizure of books of account etc. on a surprise visit by Sales Tax officials — Shirt of sales tax peon torn in scuffle — Held, amounted to use of force punishable under Ss. 349 and 353, IPC — Also act of snatching the account books was punishable under S. 26(1)(h) — Choosing to prosecute under the graver offence out of the two was not a colourable exercise of power — Bihar Sales Tax Act, 1947 (19 of 1947), Ss. 26(1)(h) and 17

Merely holding books found lying in the premises for perusing them cannot properly be regarded as seizure because seizure implies doing something over and above holding an article in one's hand. According to the Shorter Oxford Dictionary, seizure, among other things, means "...confiscation or forcible taking possession (land or goods); a sudden and forcible taking hold". Chandrika Sao v. State of Bihar, AIR 1967 SC 170: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 419: (1964) 14 STC 398: 1967 Cri LJ 261.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1962]

[8601] — S. 351 — "Assault" — Meaning and scope — Infliction of injury — Not necessary — Conviction under — Acquittal by High Court — Propriety — Accused-respondents (all armed) surrounding the deceased and assaulting him — On facts, held, assembly was patently unlawful — Common object established — Plea that eyewitnesses stated about assaults by five persons, but there was only one injury on deceased, held, unacceptable in view of the definition of "assault" in S. 351 IPC — Rejection of evidence of eyewitnesses (PWs 3 and 5) by High Court, held on facts, not proper — It passed the judgment more on surmises and conjectures than analysing the evidence on record — Hence, acquittal set aside — Conviction by trial court restored (Paras 8 and 19). Chanakya Dhibar v. State of W.B., (2004) 12 SCC 398.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-12-2003]

— S. 352 See also Ss. 302, 34, 352 and 323

See also Ss. 354 and 352

[8602] — S. 352 — Offence under, is a minor offence and is included in the offence under S. 354

The offence under Section 352 need not be taken notice of for the offence under Section 354 IPC includes the ingredients of the former. In other words, Section 352 IPC constitutes a minor offence in relation to the other. Rupan Deol Bajaj v. Kanwar Pal Singh Gill, (1995) 6 SCC 194: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1059: AIR 1996 SC 309.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1995]

[8603] — S. 352 — Sentence — Accused adding insult to injury — Requires maximum punishment

Accused being a railway officer of some status it was his duty to behave fairly and courteously to passengers. His conduct in forcibly trying to occupy the seat occupied by a lady passenger and her baby and assaulting her when she resisted, calls for censure, and where in the trial he has added insult to injury in casting aspersions on her character he must be awarded the maximum sentence permissible under S. 352. Ram Dass v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 711: 1954 Cri LJ 1793, 1796.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1954]

— S. 353 See also Ss. 21, 353 and 355

See also Ss. 96, 100, 147, 353, 447 and 307 r/w S. 145

See also Ss. 100, 147, 353, 447 and 307 r/w S. 149

See also Ss. 186 and 353

See also Ss. 302, 307, 147 to 149 and 353

See also Ss. 302/149, 307/149, 353 and 379

See also Ss. 307 and 353

See also Ss. 332, 353, 504 and 506

See also Ss. 342 and 353

See also Ss. 349 and 353

[8604] — S. 353 — Accused alleged to have pushed the Food Inspector — Charge not corroborated — Accused also acquitted of the charge under Prevention of Food Adulteration Act — But in view of concurrent findings of the lower courts, con- viction under S. 353 confirmed — However, the substantive sentence as well as fine imposed on the accused by the lower courts set aside — Accused directed to be released on bond of good behaviour. Bhagirath v. State of M.P., 1981 Supp SCC 70: 1982 SCC (Cri) 131(2).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.V. Chandrachud, C.J. and V.D. Tulzapurkar, J. [Date of decision: 15-1-1980]

[8605] — S. 353 — Sentence — Two months' imprisonment out of total period of 6 months already undergone by appellant-bus conductor — In view of long lapse of time and chances of loss of job, appellant released on benefit of Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 on furnishing bond and a surety — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958. B.S. Narayanan v. State of A.P., 1987 Supp SCC 172: 1987 SCC (Cri) 791.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and M.M. Dutt, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-1-1987]

[8606] — Ss. 353, 34 and 120-B — Bail — Grant of — Relevant considerations for reiterated — Held, the same are (1) nature of accusation, severity of punishment in case of conviction and nature of supporting evidence, (2) reasonable apprehension of tampering with witness and apprehension of threat to complainant, (3) prima facie satisfaction of the court in support of the charge — Reasons to be given while granting bail — Respondents booked under Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967, Arms Act, 1959 and Penal Code, 1860 — Bail granted by High Court observing that charge-sheet did not disclose as to what were the imputations of acts done by respondents under Arms Act and other offences but relevant considerations as stated above, not kept in view — High Court's bail order set aside — Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967, Ss. 10, 13, 18 and 20 — Arms Act, 1959, Ss. 3 and 4 — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 437 and 439 (Paras 5 and 8). State of Maharashtra v. Dhanendra Shriram Bhurle, (2009) 11 SCC 541: (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1480: AIR 2009 SC 1706: (2009) 76 AIC 197 (SC): 2009 Cri LJ 1546: (2009) 2 All LJ 124.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and A.K. Ganguly, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-2009]

Ram Govind Upadhyay v. Sudarshan Singh, (2002) 3 SCC 598: 2002 SCC (Cri) 688; Puran v. Rambilas, (2001) 6 SCC 338: 2001 SCC (Cri) 1124; Kalyan Chandra Sarkar v. Rajesh Ranjan, (2004) 7 SCC 528: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1977; Gurcharan Singh v. State (Delhi Admn.), (1978) 1 SCC 118: 1978 SCC (Cri) 41; Lokesh Singh v. State of U.P., (2008) 16 SCC 753, relied on [8607] — Ss. 353, 332 and 333 — Sentence — Inspectors of Municipal Corporation, without serving prior notice, demanding immediate payment of milk tax from appellant and trying to seize his buffalo under misconception about the mode of action under the Delhi Municipal Corporation Act — Appellant not refusing to pay but pleading that he had no ready money — Appellant to prevent them from seizing his buffalo giving a blow on the nose of one of the Inspectors resulting in bleeding and fracture — High Court sentencing him to R.I. for one year on each count and also imposing fine of Rs 400 — Held, sentence excessive. Kesho Ram v. Delhi Admn., (1974) 4 SCC 509: 1974 SCC (Cri) 545: AIR 1974 SC 1158: (1974) 3 SCR 827: 1974 Cri LJ 814: 1974 MLJ (Cri) 567.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.H. Beg and R.S. Sarkaria, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-4-1974]

[8608] — Ss. 353 and 349 — Force — Interpretation and meaning of — Assistant Superintendent of Commercial Taxes paying surprise visit to shop of accused — Officer finding two sets of account books — Accused snatching account books from his hands — Held, action of accused amounted to use of force — Accused, held, guilty under S. 353

The Assistant Supdt. of Commercial Taxes while paying a surprise visit to the shop of accused and finding that two sets of account books were kept started looking into those books. The appellant (accused) snatched away both the books and passed them over to one of his servants who made them over to another servant who was on the upper floor. When Assistant Supdt. directed the orderly peon to recover the books the accused prevented him to go to the place where the account books had been taken and in the scuffle the shirt of the peon was torn.

Held :

One person can be said to have used force against another if he causes motion, change of motion or cessation of motion to that other. By snatching away the books which the officer was holding the appellant necessarily caused a jerk to the hand or hands of the officer in which he was holding the books. His act, therefore, may be said to have caused motion to the officer's hand or hands. Further, the natural effect of snatching the books from the hand or hands of the officer would be to affect the sense of feeling of the hand or hands of the officer. There is no doubt that the action of the appellant amounts to use of force as contemplated by S. 349, IPC.

Mere use of force, however, is not enough to bring an act within the terms of S. 353, IPC. It has further to be shown that force was used intentionally to any person without that person's consent in order to commit an offence or with the intention or with the knowledge that the use of force will cause injury, fear or annoyance to the person against whom the force is used.

Under S. 17 of the Sales Tax Act, 1947 and R. 50 of the rules framed under the Act, the Assistant Supdt. of Commercial Taxes was entitled to pay a surprise visit to the shop of the accused and was also entitled to examine the account books. He was, therefore, lawfully in possession of the account books when he took them up in the shop and started perusing them. The appellant had no justification in law to snatch the books of accounts from him. To feel annoyed at this action of the appellant would be the natural reaction of the officer and, therefore, the appellant's act must be held to amount to use of criminal force.

The accused is guilty under S. 353, IPC. Chandrika Sao v. State of Bihar, AIR 1967 SC 170: 1963 Supp (1) SCR 419: (1964) 14 STC 398: 1967 Cri LJ 261.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: Syed Jafer Imam, N. Rajagopala Ayyangar and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-9-1962]

— S. 353 r/w S. 34 See also Ss. 302, 307 and 353 r/w S. 34

[8609] — Ss. 353/34 and 438/34 — Vessel on high seas exhibiting "not under command" lights and not flying any flag indicating its nationality — Indian Naval Officers demanding boarding of the vessel but the accused refusing the same — Indian Naval Officers firing warning shots to make them surrender and divert their attention for facilitating the boarding operation — Accused firing retaliatory shots — Held, in the facts and circumstances of the case, the accused used criminal force against the Indian Naval Officers with intent to prevent or deter them from discharging their duty and, therefore, they are liable to be punished under Ss. 353/34 — Held, further that finding of the Designated Judge that the accused's vessel was hit by a shot fired by an Indian Naval Officer and, therefore, caught fire and got destroyed is against the weight of evidence on record — Circumstances establishing that the accused themselves destroyed their ship in order to avoid detection of the true state of affairs and consequential action and thereby committed offence under Ss. 338/34 — Acquittal of accused under Ss. 353 and 438 set aside — Prosecution failed to establish offences under TADA or Explosives Act or Arms Act — U.N. Convention on Law of Seas, 1982, Arts. 91, 92 and 110. State v. V. Jayachandra, (1997) 10 SCC 70: 1997 SCC (Cri) 783.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.N. Ray and G.T. Nanavati, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-3-1997]

— S. 354 See also Ss. 302 and 354 and Ss. 376/511

See also Ss. 304 Pt. II, 300 Exceptions 1 and 4, 201 and 34 and S. 354

See also Ss. 323, 506, 427, 354 and 452

See also Ss. 355 and 354

See also Ss. 375 and 376

See also Ss. 448 and 354

See also Ss. 452, 354, 323, 506 Pt. II r/w S. 34

See also Ss. 452, 451 and 354

See also Ss. 457 and 354

[8610] — S. 354 — Approach to be followed by Court while dealing with a case under — Nature and ingredients of offence under — Nature of intention and knowledge required to make out the offence — Existence of such intention or knowledge how to be ascertained — Status of victim of molestation and indignation under S. 354 CrPC, 1973, as witness

A charge under Section 354 is one which is very easy to make and is very difficult to rebut. A careful approach has to be adopted by the Court while dealing with a case alleging outrage of modesty. The essential ingredients of the offence under Section 354 IPC are as under:

(i) that the person assaulted must be a woman;

(ii) that the accused must have used criminal force on her, and

(iii) that the criminal force must have been used on the woman intending thereby to outrage her modesty.

There is no abstract conception of modesty that can apply to all cases. (Paras 8 and 9)

In order to constitute the offence under Section 354 mere knowledge that the modesty of a woman is likely to be outraged is sufficient without any deliberate intention of having such outrage alone for its object. Knowledge and intention are essentially things of the mind and cannot be demonstrated like physical objects. The existence of intention or knowledge has to be culled out from various circumstances in which and upon whom the alleged offence is alleged to have been committed. A victim of molestation and indignation is in the same position as an injured witness and her testimony should receive the same weight. (Paras 9 and 10)

In the instant case after careful consideration of the evidence, the trial court and the High Court have found the accused guilty. (Para 10). Vidyadharan v.

State of Kerala, (2004) 1 SCC 215: 2004 SCC (Cri) 260: AIR 2004 SC 536: (2004) 1 KLT 105: 2004 Cri LJ 605: (2004) 2 MPLJ 251.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-11-2003]

[8611] — S. 354 — Assault or criminal force on a woman with intent to outrage her modesty — Test to determine whether modesty of woman outraged, assaulted or insulted — Meaning of word "modesty" — Case-law referred to in this regard (Paras 41 to 43). Tarkeshwar Sahu v. State of Bihar (Now Jharkhand), (2006) 8 SCC 560: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 556.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2006]

[8612] — S. 354 — Criminal assault on a school-going girl aged 9 years — Her evidence corroborated by her father and other witnesses — Absence of explanation by the accused as to why a young girl and her father would implicate himself falsely — Conviction maintained. S.I. (Jem) Pramodh Singh v. State of J&K, AIR 1995 SC 1964: 1995 Cri LJ 3620.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-1-1995]

[8613] — S. 354 — Falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus — Applicability — Held, though not applicable in India but evidence led by the parties must be appreciated keeping in view the entirety of the situation — On facts, since the evidence of the prosecution witnesses was found by the trial court to be incorrect and unreliable, the statements of the said witnesses with regard to commission of an offence under S. 354 IPC should have been considered by it, keeping in view the extent of falsity in their statements — Moreover, they having failed to substantiate the other allegations and having implicated three persons falsely, their statements should have been accepted with a pinch of salt and keeping in view the admitted animosity between the parties

The doctrine "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" is not applicable in India but the evidence led by the parties must be appreciated keeping in view the entirety of the situation. The trial Judge came to the conclusion that most of the statements made by PW 2 and PW 3 were incorrect and no reliance could be placed thereon. The statements of the said witnesses with regard to commission of an offence by the appellant under Section 354 IPC should have been considered keeping in view the extent of falsity in their statements. PW 2 and PW 3 not only failed to substantiate the allegations as regards commission of offences under Sections 323, 504, 506 read with Section 34 IPC but also implicated the three persons falsely. The statements of the said witnesses should have been accepted with a pinch of salt and keeping in view the admitted animosity between the parties. The background of the case vis-à-vis continuous animosity between the complainant and her husband, on the one hand, and the appellant and his other tenants could not have been lost sight of by the learned trial Judge. (Para 20). Pandurang Sitaram Bhagwat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 9 SCC 44: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1198: AIR 2005 SC 643: 2005 Cri LJ 880.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-2004]

[8614] — S. 354 — Gravity of offence and persistent offensive conduct and behaviour of the accused are factors against grant of probation under — Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, S. 4. Chander Kala v. Ram Kishan, (1985) 4 SCC 212: 1985 SCC (Cri) 491: AIR 1985 SC 1268: 1985 Cri LJ 1490.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V.D. Tulzapurkar, D.A. Desai and A.P. Sen, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-1985]

[8615] — S. 354 — Nature of offence under S. 3(1)(xi), SC & ST Act — Comparison with offence under S. 354 — Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, S. 3(1)(xi)

As rightly observed by the courts below, Section 3(1)(xi) of the Act which deals with assaults or use of force to any woman belonging to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe with the intent to dishonour or outrage her modesty is an aggravated form of the offence under Section 354 IPC. The only difference between Section 3(1)(xi) and Section 354 is essentially the caste or the tribe to which the victim belongs. If she belongs to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe, Section 3(1)(xi) applies. The other difference is that in Section 3(1)(xi) dishonour of such victim is also made an offence. (Para 10). Vidyadharan v. State of Kerala, (2004) 1 SCC 215: 2004 SCC (Cri) 260: AIR 2004 SC 536: (2004) 1 KLT 105: 2004 Cri LJ 605: (2004) 2 MPLJ 251.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-11-2003]

[8616] — S. 354 — New allegations and overt acts attributed to the accused at the trial which were not mentioned in the FIR — Held, should not have been believed where the FIR had been filed after due deliberation, the complainant being a mature educated woman — On facts, no offence under S. 354, Indian Penal Code made out. K. Lakshmana Rao v. Public Prosecutor, State of A.P., (1979) 4 SCC 638: 1980 SCC (Cri) 147: AIR 1979 SC 1324: 1979 Cri LJ 1067.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 30-1-1979]

[8617] — S. 354 — Offence under — Essential ingredients — "Modesty" — Meaning of — "Outrage to modesty of a woman", what constitutes — Knowledge that modesty is likely to be outraged, held, is sufficient to constitute the offence without any deliberate intention having such outrage alone for its object

The essential ingredients of the offence punishable under Section 354 IPC are that the person assaulted must be a woman, and the accused must have used criminal force on her intending thereby to outrage her modesty. (Para 13)

Modesty can be described as the quality of being modest; and in relation to woman, "womanly propriety of behaviour; scrupulous chastity of thought, speech and conduct". It is the reserve or sense of shame proceeding from instinctive aversion to impure or coarse suggestions. (Para 14)

What constitutes an outrage to female modesty is nowhere defined. The essence of a woman's modesty is her sex. The culpable intention of the accused is the crux of the matter. The reaction of the woman is very relevant, but its absence is not always decisive. Modesty in this section is an attribute associated with female human beings as a class. It is a virtue which attaches to a female owing to her sex. The act of pulling a woman, removing her dress coupled with a request for sexual intercourse, is such as would be an outrage to the modesty of a woman, and knowledge, that modesty is likely to be outraged, is sufficient to constitute the offence without any deliberate intention having such outrage alone for its object. (Para 13). Aman Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2004) 4 SCC 379: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1266: AIR 2004 SC 1497: 2004 Cri LJ 1399.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 10-2-2004]

See also (2004) 4 SCC 371

[8618] — S. 354 — Offence under — Proof of — Corroboration of evidence — Complainant wife's conduct of immediately narrating the incident to her husband and lodging FIR on the same day, held on facts, corroborated her version against accused. Chander Kala v. Ram Kishan, (1985) 4 SCC 212: 1985 SCC (Cri) 491: AIR 1985 SC 1268: 1985 Cri LJ 1490.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: V.D. Tulzapurkar, D.A. Desai and A.P. Sen, JJ. [Date of decision: 1-5-1985]

[8619] — S. 354 — Outraging modesty of woman — Complainant PW 1, a trainee-officer, molested by appellant (Collector of Customs and Excise) when she was in his chamber — Conviction of appellant — Propriety — No reason to file false complaint against appellant — Fact that on the night of the incident PW 1 called her superior and informed him about the incident, probabilising the prosecution case — Contention that much time was taken for filing the complaint, not sustainable — Minor contradictions, not serious in nature — Evidence of PW 1 found reliable — Held, High Court rightly convicted the appellant for offence punishable under S. 354 (Para 8)

The case against the appellant, who was the Collector of Customs and Excise, was initiated on the basis of information furnished by PW 1, the complainant, who was a member of the Indian Revenue Services and who was undergoing training as a Probationary Officer. PW 1 alleged that she was molested by the appellant while she was in his chamber. According to her, the accused led her to his chamber and switched on a VCR and displayed a film relating to seizure of some contraband gold. When this film was being viewed, the complainant was seated on a sofa and the appellant was standing behind. Suddenly, the appellant caught hold of her hand and pushed her down in the sofa. Though PW 1 wanted to get out of the room, the appellant caught hold of her and pushed her down and put the entire weight of his body on her and made a statement that he wanted to have sexual relationship with her. PW 1 came out of the room and wanted to get back to her hostel. But, when she came to the exit point and desired to have a taxi, the appellant came and pushed her inside the official car which was standing there at that place. Because of insistence of PW 1 she was dropped at the railway station. It was alleged that while PW 1 was in the car the appellant touched her body and thereby outraged her modesty. PW 1 thereafter reached her room in the hostel. She telephonically contacted PW 10, the Director General of National Academy of Customs, Excise and Narcotics and gave the details of the entire incident that had happened in the office. She also informed her husband who was working at Hyderabad. The written complaint in the present case was filed by PW 1 after two days of the incident. The trial court acquitted the appellant. But in appeal, the High Court convicted him under Section 354 IPC and sentenced him to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of six months and to pay a fine of Rs 25,000.

Dismissing the appeal, the Supreme Court decided as above. Satyaendra Dayal Khare v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 12 SCC 485.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and D.M. Dharmadhikari, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-8-2005]

[8620] — S. 354 — Outraging the modesty of a woman — Conviction by the trial court — Propriety — Trial court disbelieving the other allegations made by the complainant and acquitting all the accused of all charges framed against them but convicting the appellant-accused alone under S. 354 on ground that ordinarily a lady would not "put her character at stake" and falsely implicate a person — Held, such approach by the trial court may not be wrong but cannot be universally applied — Each case has to be determined on the touchstone of the factual matrix thereof — That ordinarily a woman by making false allegation of acts committed against her would not "put her character at stake", Rule not of universal application

The approach of the trial court that ordinarily a lady would not "put her character at stake" may not be wrong but cannot be applied universally. Each case has to be determined on the touchstone of the factual matrix thereof. The law reports are replete with decisions where charges under Sections 376 and 354 IPC have been found to have been falsely advanced. (Para 16). Pandurang Sitaram Bhagwat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 9 SCC 44: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1198: AIR 2005 SC 643: 2005 Cri LJ 880.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-2004]

[8621] — S. 354 — Outraging the modesty of a woman — Culpable intention as an ingredient — Has to be proved like any other ingredient — But in absence of direct evidence, can be inferred from attending circumstances — Slapping on the posterior of a woman, considered along with other overtures in the sequence of events, held, prima facie involved requisite intention on the part of the accused

(See facts in the other note under S. 354 IPC)

The contention that the other ingredient of Section 354 viz. intention to outrage the modesty of respondent was lacking in this case cannot be accepted. It is true that if intention or knowledge is one of the ingredients of any offence, it has got to be proved like other ingredients for convicting a person. But, those ingredients being states of mind may not be proved by direct evidence and may have to be inferred from the attending circumstances of a given case. Since, however, the present case is at the incipient stage, it has to be ascertained, only prima facie, whether the respondent had the requisite intention. The sequence of events indicates that the slapping was the finale to the earlier overtures of the respondent, which considered together, constitute the requisite culpable intention. Even presuming that he had no such intention he must be attributed with such knowledge, as the alleged act was committed by him in the presence of a gathering comprising the elite of the society — as the names and designations of the people given in the FIR indicate. Moreover, there is nothing in the FIR to indicate, even remotely, that the indecent act was committed by the respondent accidentally or by mistake or it was a slip. Thus apart from the offence under Section 354 IPC — an offence under Section 509 IPC has been made out on the allegations contained in the FIR as the words used and gestures made by the respondent were intended to insult the modesty of the appellant. (Para 17). Rupan Deol Bajaj v. Kanwar Pal Singh Gill, (1995) 6 SCC 194: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1059: AIR 1996 SC 309.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1995]

[8622] — S. 354 — Outraging the modesty of a woman — Essentials to constitute offence of — Held, intention to outrage modesty of a woman or knowledge that the act of the accused would result in outraging her modesty is the gravamen of the offence — The reaction of the woman is very relevant, but its absence is not always decisive — Appellant forcibly taking prosecutrix/victim (aged about 12 years) to his gumti with intention of committing illicit intercourse — But, before he could do anything, hearing alarm raised by prosecutrix, the father of prosecutrix and other villagers assembling there and rescuing the prosecutrix — Held, offence committed squarely covered under S. 354 — Hence, appellant convicted thereunder — Sentenced to 2 years' RI

So far as the offence under Section 354 IPC is concerned, intention to outrage the modesty of a woman or knowledge that the act of the accused would result in outraging her modesty is the gravamen of the offence. The essence of a woman's modesty is her sex. The culpable intention of the accused is the crux of the matter. The reaction of the woman is very relevant, but its absence is not always decisive. (Paras 39 and 40)

Therefore, on evaluation of the entire evidence and documents on record, the appellant is clearly guilty of the offences under Sections 366 and 354 IPC. He is sentenced to undergo five years' imprisonment under Section 366 IPC and two years' RI under Section 354 IPC. (Para 59). Tarkeshwar Sahu v. State of Bihar (Now Jharkhand), (2006) 8 SCC 560: (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 556.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dalveer Bhandari, JJ. [Date of decision: 29-9-2006]

[8623] — S. 354 — Outraging the modesty of a woman — Offence of — Conviction — Propriety — Animosity between both parties — False implication — Complainant (PW 2) and her husband (PW 3) tenants in house of the appellant — Due to quarrels between other tenants of appellant on one hand and PWs 2 and 3 on the other, appellant asking PW 3 to vacate the tenanted premises — Allegation that when PW 2 was watching TV with her two sons, appellant entering her room, embracing her from back side and touching her breasts — Appellant and three others charged for offences under Ss. 354, 323, 504 and 506 r/w S. 34 IPC — Prosecution failing to substantiate allegations as regards commission of offences under Ss. 323, 504 and 506 r/w S. 34 — Acquittal of all the accused in relation to all the said charges except conviction of appellant under S. 354 — Discrepancy as to place and manner of occurrence of offence alleged — In view of the above facts, held, it was not safe to rely upon the prosecution case — Appellant entitled to benefit of doubt — Hence, acquitted

The strained relationship between the parties is not in dispute. If the contention of the first informant and her husband to the effect that they had already taken a decision to shift from the tenanted premises is believed, there does not appear to be a plausible reason as to why the appellant and three other accused would trespass into the house and assault them. The trial court disbelieved the prosecution case as regards: (i) threatening of the first informant and her husband by the accused persons, (ii) hurling abuses at them, and (iii) assaulting them by bricks and stones. (Paras 14 and 15)

The exact place of occurrence and the manner in which the purported offence of outraging the modesty was committed by the appellant, furthermore, materially differ. Whereas PW 2 asserted that the appellant came inside the house and embraced her from the back, when she was watching TV sitting; PW 4 (son of PW 2) stated that the incident took place when she was proceeding towards the kitchen. The said discrepancy even if ordinarily could not have been the basis of passing a judgment of acquittal, but in this case, the conduct of both PW 2 and PW 3 being suspect, it would not be safe to rely on a part of their statements as prosecution witnesses. (Para 21). Pandurang Sitaram Bhagwat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 9 SCC 44: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1198: AIR 2005 SC 643: 2005 Cri LJ 880.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-2004]

[8624] — S. 354 — Outraging the modesty of a woman — Test to determine — 'Modesty' — Meaning — Feminine decency and dignity — Slapping on the posterior of a woman in public gaze, having regard to sequence of events, held, prima facie amounted to outraging her modesty

The appellant, a lady IAS Officer belonging to Punjab Cadre then working as Special Secretary, Finance lodged a complaint on 29-7-1988 with the IG Police U.T. of Chandigarh alleging commission of offences under Sections 341, 342, 352, 354 and 509 IPC by the respondent, the DG Police, Punjab which was treated as an FIR. According to the appellant, in the evening of 18-7-1988 she along with her husband had gone to the residence of their colleague in response to an invitation for dinner, where other senior government officers and their wives were also present. The party had been arranged in the lawn where ladies were sitting in a separate group. Around 10 p.m. the respondent walked across to and sat in the ladies' circle. The appellant, who was then talking with some other ladies, was requested by the respondent to come and sit near him as he wanted to talk to her about something. When in response the appellant went to sit in a chair next to him, the respondent suddenly pulled that chair close to his chair. Feeling a bit surprised, when she put that chair at its original place and was about to sit down, the respondent again pulled the chair close to his chair. Realising something was wrong, she immediately left the place and went back to sit with other ladies. After about 10 minutes, the respondent came and stood in front of her so close that his legs were about 4" from her knees. He then by an action with the crook of his finger asked her to "get up immediately" and come along with him. When she strongly objected to his behaviour and asked him to go away from there he repeated his earlier command which shocked the ladies present there. Being apprehensive and frightened she tried to leave the place but could not as he had blocked her way. Finding no other alternative when she drew her chair back and turned backwards, he slapped her on the posterior in the full presence of the ladies and guests. On the basis of the FIR, a case was registered.

Held :

The allegations contained in the FIR constitute offences under Section 354 IPC. (Para 29)

The word 'modesty' has not been defined in the Indian Penal Code. From the dictionary meaning of 'modesty' and the interpretation given to that word by the Supreme Court in Major Singh case it appears that the ultimate test for ascertaining whether modesty has been outraged is the action of the offender such as could be perceived as one which is capable of shocking the sense of decency of a woman. When the above test is applied in the present case, keeping in view the total fact situation, it must be held that the alleged act of the respondent in slapping the appellant on her posterior amounted to "outraging of her modesty" for it was not only an affront to the normal sense of feminine decency but also an affront to the dignity of the lady — "sexual overtones" or not, notwithstanding. (Paras 14 and 15). Rupan Deol Bajaj v. Kanwar Pal Singh Gill, (1995) 6 SCC 194: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1059: AIR 1996 SC 309.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. A.S. Anand and M.K. Mukherjee, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-10-1995]

State of Punjab v. Major Singh, AIR 1967 SC 63: 1967 Cri LJ 1: 1966 Supp SCR 286, relied on

Shorter Oxford English Dictionary (3rd Edn.); Webster's Third New International Dictionary of the English language; Oxford English Dictionary (1933 Edn.), relied on

[8625] — S. 354 — Right to privacy — Woman of easy virtue equally entitled to — Constitution of India, Art. 21

Even a woman of easy virtue is entitled to privacy and no one can invade her privacy as and when he likes. So also it is not open to any and every person to violate her person as and when he wishes. She is entitled to protect her person if there is an attempt to violate it against her wish. She is equally entitled to the protection of law. (Para 8). State of Maharashtra v. Madhukar Narayan Mardikar, (1991) 1 SCC 57: 1991 SCC (Cri) 1: AIR 1991 SC 207: (1991) 1 LLJ 269: (1991) 1 SLJ 164: (1991) 1 SLR 140.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K. Jagannatha Shetty and A.M. Ahmadi, JJ. [Date of decision: 23-10-1990]

[8626] — S. 354 — Sentence of six months' RI imposed under — Reduction of — Incident took place about 13 years back — Accused who was a government servant continuing in suspension — Considering these facts and the nature of offence, held, sentence of two months already undergone by the accused would be sufficient to meet the ends of justice — However, fine of Rs 25,000 imposed by High Court, maintained (Para 9). Satyaendra Dayal Khare v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 12 SCC 485.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and D.M. Dharmadhikari, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-8-2005]

[8627] — Ss. 354 and 10 — Outraging woman's modesty — Reaction of woman concerned not relevant — Accused causing injury to the private part of a female child giving vent to his unnatural lust — Held, guilty under S. 354

Per Mudholkar, J.

When any act is done to or in the presence of a woman is clearly suggestive of sex according to the common notions of mankind that act must fall within the mischief of S. 354, Penal Code.

When the action of the accused in interfering with the vagina of the child was deliberate he must be deemed to have intended to outrage her modesty and is guilty under S. 354, Penal Code.

The words used in the section are that the act has to be done "intending to outrage or knowing it to be likely that he will thereby outrage her modesty". This intention or knowledge is the ingredient of the offence and not the woman's feelings.

Per Bachawat, J.

The essence of a woman's modesty is her sex. The modesty of an adult female is writ large on her body. Young or old, intelligent or imbecile, awake or sleeping, the woman possesses a modesty capable of being outraged. Whoever uses criminal force on her with intent to outrage her modesty commits an offence punishable under S. 354. The culpable intention of the accused is the crux of the matter. The reaction of the woman is very relevant, but its absence is not always decisive, as for example, when the accused with a corrupt mind stealthily touches the flesh of a sleeping woman. She may be an idiot, she may be under the spell of anaesthesia, she may be sleeping, she may be unable to appreciate the significance of the act, nevertheless the offender is punishable under the section. Where the victim is a baby seven-and-a-half months' old, she has not yet developed a sense of shame and has no awareness of sex. Nevertheless, from her very birth she possesses the modesty which is the attribute of her sex.

The accused is guilty under S. 354, Penal Code.

Per A.K. Sarkar, C.J. (dissenting)

In order that a reasonable man may think that an act was intended or must be taken to have been known likely, to outrage modesty, he has to consider whether the woman concerned had developed a sense of modesty and also the standard of that modesty. Without an idea of these he cannot decide whether the alleged offender intended to outrage the woman's modesty or his act was likely to do so.

To say that every female of whatever age is possessed of modesty capable of being outraged seems to be laying down too rigid a rule which may be divorced from reality. There obviously is no universal standard of modesty.

A female child of 7½ months is not possessed of womanly modesty. If she had not, there could be no question of the respondent having intended to outrage her modesty or having known that his act was likely to have that result.

The accused was not guilty under S. 354, Penal Code. State of Punjab v. Major Singh, AIR 1967 SC 63: 1966 Supp SCR 286: 1967 Cri LJ 1.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: A.K. Sarkar, C.J.[1] and J.R. Mudholkar[2] and R.S. Bachawat[3], JJ. [Date of decision: 28-4-1966]

Girdhar Gopal v. State, AIR 1953 MB 147: 1953 Cri LJ 964; Soko v. Emperor, AIR 1933 Cal 142: 34 Cri LJ 308; Chempa Pasin v. Emperor, AIR 1928 Pat 326: 29 Cri LJ 325, overruled

AIR 1963 Punj 443: 1963 (2) Cri LJ 300, reversed

[8628] — Ss. 354, 323, 504 and 506 — Revision — Refusal by High Court to exercise revisional jurisdiction on ground that no question of law had arisen therein — Legality — Held, was not justified as in terms of S. 397, the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order may fall for consideration of the revisional court — Hence, in revision filed by the appellant challenging his conviction under S. 354 IPC, the High Court should have tested the prosecution case from the angle that the trial Judge had acquitted all the three accused who were said to have shared a common intention with the appellant not only in relation to the offences under Ss. 323, 504 and 506 IPC but also in relation to offence under S. 354 — CrPC, 1973, S. 397 (Para 22). Pandurang Sitaram Bhagwat v. State of Maharashtra, (2005) 9 SCC 44: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1198: AIR 2005 SC 643: 2005 Cri LJ 880.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and S.B. Sinha, JJ. [Date of decision: 17-12-2004]

[8629] — Ss. 354 and 352 — Conviction for offence under S. 354 — Requirements of

Where in a trial for an offence under S. 354, IPC an assault is proved, the next question is whether he did so with intent to outrage the modesty of the complainant, or with the knowledge that it would be outraged. The story of a person trying to outrage the modesty of two women in the presence of two gentlemen is so unnatural, that there must be clear and unimpeachable evidence before it can be accepted.

Having gone through the entire evidence the Supreme Court held that the accused was not guilty of an offence under S. 354 but under S. 352 for assault. Ram Dass v. State of W.B., AIR 1954 SC 711: 1954 Cri LJ 1793, 1794.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: N.H. Bhagwati, B. Jagannadhadas and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 24-2-1954]

[8630] — Ss. 354 and 352 — Police atrocities — Compensation to victims — Police officers taking petitioners to police station for doing some work without labour charges — On demand they were beaten and one of them succumbed to injuries — One female also stripped of her clothes and thrashed in police station — Directions made for payment of compensation to victims and family of deceased — This amount to be recovered out of salaries of guilty officers after giving them opportunity to show-cause — Constitution of India, Art. 32. People's Union for Democratic Rights v. Police Commr., (1989) 4 SCC 730: 1990 SCC (Cri) 75.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.L. Oza and K.N. Saikia, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-1-1989]

[8631] — Ss. 354 and 376 — Outraging modesty (or rape) of a village girl — Testimony of the victim normally acceptable

Normally, in a village no woman would come forward, unless it is true, with a plea that her modesty was outraged. By such statement, her very honour was at stake. Coming as she does from a cloistered society her whole future would become bleak. When it has not been shown that there was any enmity between her and the accused, characterisation that her evidence does not inspire confidence is wrong. State of T.N. v. Karuppusamy, 1993 Supp (1) SCC 78: 1993 SCC (Cri) 123.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.M. Ahmadi and S. Mohan, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-3-1992]

[8632] — Ss. 354 and 376/511 — Child abuse — Framing of charge — Whether there was sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused — Test to be applied — Court not debarred from looking into any material produced by the accused at that stage — Hearing of accused not confined to oral arguments — Accusation by wife against her husband that he molested their infant child — Wife's attitude towards her husband found to be vengeful — In the circumstances of the case, possibility of the wife manipulating child's genitals in order to concoct medical evidence against the accused cannot be ruled out — Proceedings and charge framed by the Sessions Judge quashed and accused discharged — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 227, 228, 239, 240 & 226 and 482

The appellant and his wife Anita were living in New York ever since their marriage. Before and after the birth of the children relationship between husband and wife was far from cordial. Husband alleged that his wife, in conspiracy with her father, had siphoned off a whopping sum from his bank deposits in India by forging his signature. He also alleged that his wife is suffering from some peculiar psychiatric condition. He approached a court at New York for securing custody of his children. On 31-10-1992 his wife left his house with the children and then filed a complaint with Saffolk Country Police Station (United States) alleging that her husband had sexually abused Nikita who was then aged four. United States police at the local level moved into action, but after conducting detailed investigation concluded that the allegations of incestuous abuse were untrue. The appellant's wife returned to India with her children. In the meanwhile Family Court at New York has ordered that custody of the children be given to the husband and a warrant of arrest was issued against Anita for implementation of the said order. The appellant's wife came back to India and lodged an FIR on 14-8-1993 against her husband who had returned to India on 12-7-1993 and had filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for securing the custody of the children. On the basis of the FIR filed by the wife a case was charge-sheeted by the police. The Sessions Judge framed charges on two counts. First count in the charge was that appellant had outraged the modesty of his minor daughter aged about 3 years sometime during March and July 1991 at New Delhi by fondling with her vagina and also by inserting a bottle into it and thereby committed the offence under Section 354 of the IPC. Second count in the charge was that he made an attempt to commit rape on the said infant child (time and place being the same) and thereby committed the offence under Section 376 read with Section 511 of the IPC. Allowing the appeal by the special leave

Held :

Consideration which should weigh with the Sessions Court at the stage of framing of charge have been well designed by Parliament through Section 227 CrPC. Section 228 contemplates the stage after the case survives the stage envisaged in the former section. When the court is of opinion that there is ground to presume that the accused has committed an offence the procedure laid down therein has to be adopted. When those two sections are put in juxtaposition with each other the test to be adopted becomes discernible: Is there sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused? It is axiomatic that the standard of proof normally adhered to at the final stage is not to be applied at the stage where the scope of consideration is where there is "sufficient ground for proceeding".

An incidental question which emerges in this context is whether the Sessions Judge can look into any material other than those produced by the prosecution. Section 226 of the Code obliges the prosecution to describe the charge brought against the accused and to state by what evidence the guilt of the accused would be proved. The next provision enjoins on the Sessions Judge to decide whether there is sufficient ground to proceed against the accused. In so deciding the Judge has to consider (1) the record of the case, and (2) the documents produced therewith. He has then to hear the submissions of the accused as well as the prosecution on the limited question whether there is sufficient ground to proceed. What is the scope of hearing the submissions? Should it be confined to hearing oral arguments alone?

Similar situation arises under Section 239 of the Code (which deals with trial of warrant cases on police report). In that situation the Magistrate has to afford the prosecution and the accused an opportunity of being heard besides considering the police report and the documents sent therewith. At these two stages the Code enjoins on the court to give audience to the accused for deciding whether it is necessary to proceed to the next stage. It is a matter of exercise of judicial mind. There is nothing in the Code which shrinks the scope of such audience to oral arguments. If the accused succeeds in producing any reliable material at that stage which might fatally affect even the very sustainability of the case, it is unjust to suggest that no such material shall be looked into by the court at that stage. Here the 'ground' may be any valid ground including insufficiency of evidence to prove the charge.

The object of providing such an opportunity as is envisaged in Section 227 of the Code is to enable the court to decide whether it is necessary to proceed to conduct the trial. If the case ends there it gains a lot of time of the court and saves much human efforts and cost. If the materials produced by the accused even at that early stage would clinch the issue, why should the court shut it out saying that such documents need be produced only after wasting a lot more time in the name of trial proceedings. Hence, the Sessions Judge would be within his powers to consider even materials which the accused may produce at the stage contemplated in Section 227 of the Code.

But when the Judge is fairly certain that there is no prospect of the case ending in conviction the valuable time of the court should not be wasted for holding a trial only for the purpose of formally completing the procedure to pronounce the conclusion on a future date. Most of the Sessions Courts in India are under heavy pressure of workload. If the Sessions Judge is almost certain that the trial would only be an exercise in futility or a sheer waste of time it is advisable to truncate or snip the proceedings at the stage of Section 227 of the Code itself.

In the instant case the complaint made by the wife with the New York police that her husband committed sexual offences against her 18 months' old female child was investigated by the New York police who found the complaint bereft of truth hook, line and sinker. The present charge is that the appellant committed such offences against the same child at New Delhi sometime during March to July 1991. There is now no case of what happened in United States. The Sessions Judge should have noted that appellant's wife has not even remotely alleged in the complaint filed by her on 19-3-1993 before CAW Cell, New Delhi that the appellant has done anything like that while he was in India. Even the other complaint petition (on which basis the FIR was prepared) is totally silent about a case that the appellant did anything against his daughter anywhere in India.

Her attitude to the appellant, even dehors the allegation involving the child, was vengeful. The Court can take into account the assertion of the petitioner that the present story involving the child was concocted by his wife to wreak her vengeance by embroiling him in serious criminal cases in India so that he could be nailed down here and prevent him from going back to USA.

Even overlooking all the inherent infirmities shrouding the testimony of a tiny tot speaking about what her father did when she was aged 3 and even ignoring the appellant's persistent submission that the little child was briskly tutored by her mother to speak to the present version, there is no reasonable prospect of the Sessions Court relying on such a testimony to reach the conclusion that the prosecution succeeded in proving the offence charged beyond all reasonable doubt.

Therefore, the proceedings and the charge framed by the Sessions Judge are quashed and the appellant is discharged. Satish Mehra v. Delhi Admn., (1996) 9 SCC 766.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 31-7-1996]

Doubted in State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi, (2003) 2 SCC 711, 715

Finally overruled in State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi, (2005) 1 SCC 568*

Held, overruled in Bharat Parikh v. CBI, (2008) 10 SCC 109: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 609*

[8633] — Ss. 354, 452, 323, 506 Pt. II r/w S. 34 — Outraging modesty of a tribal woman — Appreciation of evidence — Plea based on inferiority of tribal people that they live in torn clothes or no proper clothes, held, is not admissible — Mentality of persons who regard tribal people as inferior or sub-humans is totally unacceptable in modern India (Para 13). Kailas v. State of Maharashtra, (2011) 1 SCC 793.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2011]

[8634] — Ss. 354, 452, 323, 506 Pt. II r/w S. 34 — Outraging modesty of a tribal woman — Need for harsher punishment and special protection to tribals, stressed — Surprise expressed over State Government not preferring appeal for imposition of harsher punishment — Surprise expressed over setting aside of conviction on hypertechnical grounds for offences under SC & ST Act — But said acquittal not interfered with as no appeal preferred thereagainst — Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, S. 3

Instances like the present one deserve total condemnation and harsh punishment. The parade of a naked tribal woman on the village road in broad daylight is shameful, shocking and outrageous. (Paras 31 and 12)

It is surprising that the State Government did not file any appeal for enhancement of the punishment awarded by the Additional Sessions Judge. (Para 12)

It is surprising that the conviction of the accused under the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 was set aside on hypertechnical grounds that the caste certificate was not produced and investigation by a police officer of the rank of Deputy Superintendent of Police was not done. These appear to be the only technicalities and hardly a ground for acquittal, but since no appeal has been filed against that part of the High Court judgment, it need not be gone into. (Para 8). Kailas v. State of Maharashtra, (2011) 1 SCC 793.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Markandey Katju and Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-1-2011]

[8635] — Ss. 354 and 509 — Compensation awarded to the victim lady against the person found guilty of offences under Ss. 354 and 509 IPC — Disposal of amount on refusal of victim to accept the same — The victim lady refusing to accept the amount of compensation and requesting the same to be given to any women's organisation engaged in doing service for the cause of women —

Relief — Since the amount was lying in the court deposit with the High Court, the matter left to the Chief Justice of High Court to deal with that amount in an appropriate manner as requested by the said lady — CrPC, 1973, S. 357 (Para 7). Kanwar Pal Singh Gill v. State, (2005) 6 SCC 161: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1420: AIR 2005 SC 3104: 2005 Cri LJ 3443.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-2005]

[8636] — Ss. 354 and 509 — Infraction of person of lady outraging her modesty despite her objection, with culpable intention — Conviction under, held on facts, was justified — Senior police officer (DGP in the present case) despite objection from a lady gently slapping her on her posterior in the presence of guests at a dinner party — By doing so with culpable intention, held, he committed the offence under Ss. 354 and 509 IPC — Since immediately thereafter the victim reported the matter to various officers present there and pursued the matter with other authorities including the Chief Secretary and the Governor and after 10 days lodged an FIR with the police but finding those efforts to have gone in vain her husband filed a complaint with the CJM after a period of three/four months, such delay, held, not fatal to the maintainability of the complaint — Moreover, in view of the concurrent findings of fact recorded by two courts and affirmed by High Court in revision, held, High Court's order upholding the conviction could not be set aside on mere assertion by the accused that the whole incident was falsely foisted on him with ulterior motives — CrPC, 1973, S. 190

On 18-7-1988, a senior IAS officer invited some IAS and IPS officers, advocates and journalists for a dinner at 8.30 p.m. at his residence. Ladies were sitting in a semi-circle slightly away from the male guests. The appellant accused, who was the then DGP of the State of Punjab, allegedly came and occupied a chair which was lying vacant at the place where the ladies were sitting. On the pretext of some intended talks the accused asked the prosecutrix to sit near him and when she intended to do so the accused pulled the chair close to his chair and on resistance from the prosecutrix repeated that act. The prosecutrix then returned to her original seat. The accused again reached there and despite objection from the prosecutrix, pressed her to accompany him. Moreover, the accused blocked her way. The prosecutrix then tried to get away from the place whereupon the accused slapped on the posterior of the prosecutrix in the presence of other guests. The prosecutrix then made a complaint to the host who got the accused gently removed from that place. She thereafter brought the matter to the notice of the Chief Secretary with the request to take suitable action against the accused. She also met the Advisor to the Governor, the Secretary to the Governor as well as the Governor with the same purpose. On 29-7-1988, she gave a written complaint to the police and a case was registered but no further step was taken. After about four months, the husband of the prosecutrix filed a complaint before the CJM. The complaint culminated in conviction of the accused under Sections 354 and 509, IPC. He was sentenced to undergo a sentence of imprisonment and to pay fine but the appellate court directed the accused to be released on probation in lieu of custodial sentence. However, it enhanced the amount of fine to Rs 50,000. The High Court upheld the conviction but enhanced the fine further to Rs 2,00,000, the entire of which was directed to be given to the prosecutrix. The present cross appeals were filed against that judgment.

Denying the correctness of the findings, the appellant accused contended that the entire case was falsely foisted on him. Much emphasis was laid by him on the delay of three months in the filing of the complaint.

On the other hand the complainant in her cross appeal solicited enhancement of the appeal. Moreover, she submitted that the amount of compensation awarded in her favour should instead be given to any women's organisation engaged in doing service for the cause of women.

Dismissing both the appeals, but referring the matter of disposal of the compensation to the High Court,

Held :

Although there was some delay in filing the complaint before the Magistrate, but that by itself was not sufficient to reject the complaint put forward by the prosecutrix. It is important that she recounted the entire incident immediately to the Chief Secretary and other officers and raised objections and also sought for stringent action against the accused. When she failed in all these attempts, she and her husband filed a criminal complaint before the Chief Judicial Magistrate. There is nothing to suggest that the prosecutrix acted in connivance with some others and that she hatched a conspiracy to malign the accused. If the whole incident is viewed in correct perspective, it is clear that the behaviour of the accused on the date of the incident was not consistent with the high standard expected of a top-ranking police officer. The findings of the various courts is to the effect that the accused gently slapped on the posterior of the prosecutrix in the presence of some guests. This act on the part of the accused would certainly constitute the ingredient of Section 354 IPC. It is proved that the accused used criminal force with the intent to outrage the modesty of the complainant and that he knew fully well that gently slapping on the posterior of the prosecutrix in the presence of other guests would embarrass her. Knowledge can be attributed to the accused that he was fully aware that touching the body of the prosecutrix at that place and time would amount to outraging her modesty. Had it been without any culpable intention on the part of the accused, nobody would have taken notice of the incident. The prosecutrix made such a hue and cry immediately after the incident and the reaction of the prosecutrix is very much relevant to take note of the whole incident. The accused being a police officer of the highest rank should have been exceedingly careful and failure to do so and by touching the body of the complainant with culpable intention he committed the offence punishable under Sections 354 and 509 IPC. In view of the findings of fact recorded by the two courts and affirmed by the High Court in revision, the order of the High Court cannot be set aside on mere assertion by the accused that the whole incident was falsely foisted on him with ulterior motives. (Para 4)

As regards the appeal filed by the complainant, it is relevant that the incident happened in 1988. Despite the accused holding a high position in the State police, the various courts found him guilty of the offence punishable under Sections 354 and 509 IPC and that by itself is setting a model for others and would enhance the faith in the judicial system. The accused has completed the period of probation. There was no occasion for any complaint or violation of any of the terms of the bond. At this juncture, it would not be just and proper to resort to any other punishment. (Para 6). Kanwar Pal Singh Gill v. State, (2005) 6 SCC 161: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1420: AIR 2005 SC 3104: 2005 Cri LJ 3443.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-2005]

[8637] — Ss. 354 and 509 — Quantum of sentence under — Propriety — Senior police officer (DGP in the present case) found guilty under Ss. 354 and 509 for gently slapping on the posterior of a lady in the presence of guests at a dinner party — Sessions Court enhancing the sentence of fine to Rs 50,000 but altering the sentence of imprisonment and directing the accused instead to be released on probation — High Court enhancing the fine to Rs 2,00,000 — Incident about 17 long years old — Accused completing the period of probation without violating any terms of the bond — In such circumstances, the appeal of the prosecutrix seeking enhancement of the punishment rejected — CrPC, 1973, S. 360

As regards the appeal filed by the complainant, it is relevant that the incident happened in 1988. Despite the accused holding a high position in the State police, the various courts found him guilty of the offence punishable under Sections 354 and 509 IPC and that by itself is setting a model for others and would enhance the faith in the judicial system. The accused has completed the period of probation. There was no occasion for any complaint or violation of any of the terms of the bond. At this juncture, it would not be just and proper to resort to any other punishment. (Para 6). Kanwar Pal Singh Gill v. State, (2005) 6 SCC 161: 2005 SCC (Cri) 1420: AIR 2005 SC 3104: 2005 Cri LJ 3443.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.G. Balakrishnan and B.N. Srikrishna, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-7-2005]

[8638] — Ss. 354 and 511 — Intercourse — When takes place — Genital of appellant-accused penetrating genital of prosecutrix and blood oozing from her private parts — Doctor, after examining the prosecutrix finding superficial laceration just at the bottom of labia majora and labia minora, hymen torn, and vaginal orifice admitting one finger with difficulty — Submission by accused that offence under S. 354 or S. 511 made out, and not S. 376 — Held, "intercourse" envisaged under S. 375 means sexual connection — On facts held, act of the accused fell well within the purview of the provision — Hence, accused guilty of commission of actual rape and not of outraging modesty of woman or attempt to rape (Paras 3, 8, 9, 10 and 11). Ramkripal v. State of M.P., (2007) 11 SCC 265: (2007) 54 AIC 131 (SC): 2007 Cri LJ 2302.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Dr. Arijit Pasayat and S.H. Kapadia, JJ. [Date of decision: 19-3-2007]

Raju Pandurang Mahale v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 4 SCC 371: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1259, relied on

[8639] — S. 354 r/w S. 34 — Offence under S. 354 — Essential ingredients — "Modesty" — Meaning — "Outrage the modesty of a woman", what constitutes — Knowledge that modesty is likely to be outraged, held, sufficient to constitute the offence without any deliberate intention having such outrage alone for its object — Appellant R bringing the victim C at night to the house of A-4 under a false pretext — A-2 locking the door of the house from outside — Thus, forcing C to remain in house with A-4 and R — C forcibly made to consume liquor by R and A-4 — Rape committed on C

by A-4 in presence of R — Nude photographs taken by A-3 — In view of the above, held, R guilty of offence under S. 354 — S. 34 also rightly pressed into service

Section 354 IPC makes penal the assault or use of criminal force on a woman to outrage her modesty. The essential ingredients of offence under Section 354 IPC are:

(a) That the assault must be on a woman.

(b) That the accused must have used criminal force on her.

(c) That the criminal force must have been used on the woman intending thereby to outrage her modesty. (Para 11)

Modesty is defined as the quality of being modest; and in relation to a woman, "womanly propriety of behaviour; scrupulous chastity of thought, speech and conduct". It is the reserve or sense of shame proceeding from instinctive aversion to impure or coarse suggestions. (Para 13)

What constitutes an outrage to female modesty is nowhere defined. The essence of a woman's modesty is her sex. The culpable intention of the accused is the crux of the matter. The reaction of the woman is very relevant, but its absence is not always decisive. Modesty in this section is an attribute associated with female human beings as a class. It is a virtue which attaches to a female owing to her sex. The act of pulling a woman, removing her saree, coupled with a request for sexual intercourse, is such as would be an outrage to the modesty of a woman; and knowledge, that modesty is likely to be outraged, is sufficient to constitute the offence without any deliberate intention having such outrage alone for its object. (Para 12)

In Rupan Deol Bajaj case, (1995) 6 SCC 194, it was observed that the ultimate test for ascertaining whether modesty has been outraged is whether the action of the offender is such as could be perceived as one which is capable of shocking the sense of decency of a woman. When the above test is applied in the present case, keeping in view the total fact situation, the inevitable conclusion is that the acts of the accused-appellant and the concrete role he consistently played from the beginning proved combination of persons and minds as well and as such amounted to "outraging of her modesty" for it was an affront to the normal sense of feminine decency. It is further to be noted that Section 34 has been rightly pressed into service in the case to fasten guilt on the accused-appellant, for the active assistance he rendered and the role played by him, at all times sharing the common intention with A-4 and A-2 as well, till they completed effectively the crime of which the others were also found guilty. (Para 15). Raju Pandurang Mahale v. State of Maharashtra, (2004) 4 SCC 371: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1259: AIR 2004 SC 1677: 2004 Cri LJ 1441.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 11-2-2004]

Rupan Deol Bajaj v. Kanwar Pal Singh Gill, (1995) 6 SCC 194: 1995 SCC (Cri) 1059, followed

Shorter Oxford Dictionary (3rd Edn.); Oxford English Dictionary (1933 Edn.); Webster's Third New International Dictionary, referred to

— S. 355 See also Ss. 21, 353 and 355

[8640] — Ss. 355 and 354 — Acquittal of co-accused — Appellant convicted while co-accused acquitted — Co-extensive and identical evidence found against two accused but one accused acquitted on benefit of doubt while the other (appellant) convicted — There being no difference between the cases of the two accused, the accused must also be acquitted — Constitution of India — Art. 14. Ram Chander v. State of Punjab, 1983 SCC (Cri) 316.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.C. Gupta and O. Chinnappa Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 3-4-1981]

See also 1987 Supp SCC 65: 1987 SCC (Cri) 631

— S. 359 See also Ss. 364, 359 and 362

[8641] — S. 359 — Intention for kidnapping — Factors for ascertaining — Held, the intention for which a person is kidnapped must be gathered from circumstances attending prior to, at the time of and subsequent to the commission of the offence — A kidnapping per se may not lead to any inference as to for what purpose or with what intent the person was kidnapped (Para 13). Badshah v. State of U.P., (2008) 3 SCC 681: (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 712: 2008 Cri LJ 1950: (2008) 3 All LJ 524: (2008) 65 AIC 183 (SC).

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and H.S. Bedi, JJ. [Date of decision: 12-2-2008]

[8642] — Ss. 359 to 363 — Inaction of police to record FIRs, and in cases FIR recorded on court directions, apathy to investigate the case — Notice issued by Supreme Court on PIL in regard to — Such an instance brought to the notice of the Court — In order to curb this malady, the Court proposing to issue stringent directions pinning responsibility on police authorities to act promptly, or else to face contempt/disciplinary proceedings including suspension — Notices therefore issued to all State Govts./UTs and DGs of Police/Commissioners of Police for ascertaining their views before issuing directions — Constitution of India, Arts. 21 and 14 — Contempt of Courts Act, 1971, S. 2(b) — CrPC, 1973, Ss. 154(1), 154(2), 154(3), 157(1), 190(1)(a) and 200 (Paras 4 to 8).

Lalita Kumari v. Govt. of U.P., (2008) 7 SCC 164: (2008) 2 SCC (L&S) 401: (2008) 3 SCC (Cri) 17: (2008) 4 KLT 130.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: B.N. Agrawal and G.S. Singhvi, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-7-2008]

— S. 360 See also Ss. 359 to 363

— S. 361 See also Ss. 359 to 363

See also Ss. 363, 361 and 366

See also Ss. 366 and 361

[8643] — S. 361 — Object

The object of this section seems as much to protect the minor children from being seduced for improper purposes as to protect the rights and privileges of guardians having the lawful charge or custody of their minor wards. The gravamen of this offence lies in the taking or enticing of a minor under the ages specified in this section, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian without the consent of such guardian. State of Haryana v. Raja Ram, (1973) 1 SCC 544: 1973 SCC (Cri) 428: AIR 1973 SC 819: (1973) 2 SCR 728: 1973 Cri LJ 651.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, Y.V. Chandrachud and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-10-1972]

See also (1973) 2 SCC 413, 421: 1973 SCC (Cri) 835

[8644] — S. 361 — Object of, restated — Necessary requirements for applicability of said section — Held, the gravamen of the offence under S. 361 lies in the taking or enticing of a minor under the ages specified in this section, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian without the consent of such guardian — It is only the guardian's consent which takes the case out of the purview of S. 361 — Consent of the minor who is taken or enticed is wholly immaterial — Taking or enticing need not be shown to have been by means of force or fraud — Persuasion by accused which creates willingness on the part of the minor to be taken out of the keeping of the lawful guardian, held, is enough to attract S. 361

The object of Section 361 seems as much to protect the minor children from being seduced for improper purposes as to protect the rights and privileges of guardians having the lawful charge or custody of their minor wards. The gravamen of this offence lies in the taking or enticing of a minor under the ages specified in this section, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian without the consent of such guardian. The words "takes or entices any minor ... out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor" in Section 361, are significant. On plain reading of this section it is clear that the consent of the minor who is taken or enticed is wholly immaterial; it is only the guardian's consent which takes the case out of its purview. Nor is it necessary that the taking or enticing must be shown to have been by means of force or fraud. Persuasion by the accused person which creates willingness on the part of the minor to be taken out of the keeping of the lawful guardian would be sufficient to attract the section. (Para 7). Parkash v. State of Haryana, (2004) 1 SCC 339: 2004 SCC (Cri) 290: AIR 2004 SC 227: 2004 Cri LJ 595.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-2003]

State of Haryana v. Raja Ram, (1973) 1 SCC 544: 1973 SCC (Cri) 428; Thakorlal D. Vadgama v. State of Gujarat, (1973) 2 SCC 413: 1973 SCC (Cri) 835, relied on [8645] — S. 361 — Complaint alleging kidnapping of minor girl by her own father lodged by girl's maternal grandfather with whom she was living in view of strained relations between the girl's parents — Magistrate directing the father of the girl to hand over the child to police for restoration of her custody to the complainant otherwise police would register a case against him and proceed to declare him a proclaimed offender — Petition filed under S. 482 by the father — Held, High Court justified in quashing the order of the Magistrate on the finding that the father, being the natural guardian of the child, could not be charged with the offence of kidnapping. Chandrakala Menon v. Vipin Menon (Capt.), (1993) 2 SCC 6: 1993 SCC (Cri) 485: (1993) 1 Crimes 556: (1993) 1 BLJR 536.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Kuldip Singh and B.P. Jeevan Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 14-1-1993]

[8646] — S. 361 — Expression "takes or entices any minor ... out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor" — Word "keeping" used therein, meaning of — Held, connotes the idea of charge, protection, maintenance and control — Further, the guardian's charge and control, held, is compatible with the independence of action and movement of the minor, the guardian's protection and control of the minor being available, whenever necessity arises (Para 7). Parkash v. State of Haryana, (2004) 1 SCC 339: 2004 SCC (Cri) 290: AIR 2004 SC 227: 2004 Cri LJ 595.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Doraiswamy Raju and Arijit Pasayat, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-12-2003]

[8647] — S. 361 — "Kidnapping a minor from lawful guardianship — "Enticement" — Whether necessary to prove any active part played by accused immediately prior to the minor leaving her lawful guardian — Held, if the accused played some role at any stage by which he either solicited or persuaded the minor to abandon the legal guardianship, that is sufficient to hold him guilty (Para 8). Moniram Hazarika v. State of Assam, (2004) 5 SCC 120: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1545: 2004 Cri LJ 2553.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-4-2004]

S. Varadarajan v. State of Madras, AIR 1965 SC 942: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 33, followed

[8648] — S. 361 — Kidnapping a minor from lawful guardianship — "Enticement" — What amounts to — Promise of marriage made to PW 2 (a minor girl) by accused — PW 2 leaving the house of her lawful guardian on the basis of — Held, said promise amounted to enticement (Para 5). Moniram Hazarika v. State of Assam, (2004) 5 SCC 120: 2004 SCC (Cri) 1545: 2004 Cri LJ 2553.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: N. Santosh Hegde and B.P. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 13-4-2004]

[8649] — S. 361 — Kidnapping of minor girl for illicit relations — Where earlier allurements proved, the fact that on day of occurrence she left home and joined the accused voluntarily is no defence

The statutory language suggests that if the minor leaves her parental home completely uninfluenced by any promise, offer or inducement emanating from the guilty party, then the latter cannot be considered to have committed the offence as defined in S. 361, IPC. But if the guilty party has laid a foundation by inducement, allurement or threat, etc. and if this can be considered to have influenced the minor or weighed with her in leaving her guardian's custody or keeping and going to the guilty party, then prima facie it would be difficult for him to plead innocence on the ground that the minor had voluntarily come to him. If he had at an earlier stage solicited or induced her in any manner to leave her father's protection, by conveying or indicating or encouraging suggestion that he would give her shelter, then the mere circumstance that his act was not the immediate cause of her leaving her parental home or guardian's custody would constitute no valid defence and would not absolve him. The question truly falls for determination on the facts and circumstances of each case.

In the present case there is ample material showing earlier allurements and even of the appellant's participation in the formation of prosecutrix's intention and resolve to leave her father's house. The conviction was therefore proper. Thakorlal D. Vadgama v. State of Gujarat, (1973) 2 SCC 413: 1973 SCC (Cri) 835: AIR 1973 SC 2313: (1974) 1 SCR 178: 1973 Cri LJ 1541.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-5-1973]

S. Varadarajan v. State of Madras, (1965) 1 SCR 243: AIR 1965 SC 942: 1965 (2) Cri LJ 33, distinguished [8650] — S. 361 — Lawful guardianship — What is — Father having custody of minor child by virtue of stay granted by High Court against order passed by lower court in favour of mother — Held, on facts, father was having lawful custody of child until any further order was passed by court of competent jurisdiction — Clarified, law in India shall be governed by provisions of IPC and not 1993 US Act — International Parental Kidnapping Crime Act, 1993 (US) — Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, S. 25 (Paras 115 and 111). Bhavesh Jayanti Lakhani v. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 9 SCC 551.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-8-2009]

[8651] — S. 361 — Taking, enticing — Meanings of — Educated girl on the verge of attaining majority accompanying the accused to Sub-Registrar's office — Getting agreement of marriage registered there without any inducement or threat — Keen desire on her part to become wife of accused — Insistence of marriage coming from her own side — Accused, held, not guilty of taking her away out of keeping of her guardian

Taking or enticing away a minor out of the keeping of a lawful guardian is an essential ingredient of the offence of kidnapping.

In the present case the girl herself telephoned the appellant to meet her in his car at a certain place, went up to that place and finding him waiting in the car got into that car of her own accord. No doubt, she says that she did not tell the appellant where to go and that it was the appellant himself who drove the car to one and other places. Further, she has stated that she had decided to marry the appellant. There is no suggestion that the appellant took her to the Sub-Registrar's office and got the agreement of marriage registered there (thinking that this was sufficient in law to make them man and wife) by force or blandishments or anything like that. On the other hand the evidence of the girl leaves no doubt that the insistence of marriage came from her side. The appellant, by complying with her wishes can by no stretch of imagination be said to have taken her out of the keeping of her lawful guardian. After the registration of the agreement both the appellant and the girl lived as man and wife and visited different places. There is no suggestion in girl's evidence, who had attained the age of discretion and was on the verge of attaining majority that she was made by the appellant to accompany him by administering any threat to her or by any blandishments. The fact of her accompanying the appellant all along is quite consistent with her own desire to be the wife of the appellant in which the desire of accompanying him wherever he went of course was implicit. In these circumstances there is nothing from which an inference could be drawn that the appellant had been guilty of taking away the girl out of the keeping of her father.

The minor girl just about to reach majority, left her father's protection knowingly and voluntarily joined the accused. In this case the accused cannot be said to have taken her away from the keeping of her lawful guardian. Something more has to be shown in a case of this kind and that is some kind of inducement held out by the accused person or an active participation by him in the formation of the intention of the minor to leave the house of the guardian.

It would be sufficient that though no active part was played by the accused immediately prior to the minor leaving the father's protection he had at some earlier stage solicited or persuaded the minor to do so.

No doubt the part played by the accused could be regarded as facilitating the fulfilment of the intention of the girl. That part falls short of an inducement to the minor to slip out of the keeping of her lawful guardian and is, therefore, not tantamount to 'taking'.

While Ss. 497 and 498, IPC are meant essentially for the protection of the rights of the husband, S. 361 and other cognate sections of the Indian Penal Code are intended more for the protection of the minors and persons of unsound mind themselves than of the rights of the guardians of such persons.

The word 'taking' occurring in Ss. 497 and 498 of the Penal Code should be given a wide interpretation so as to effectuate the object underlying these provisions. There is no reason for giving to that word a wide meaning in the context of the provisions of S. 361 and cognate sections. S. Varadarajan v. State of Madras, AIR 1965 SC 942: (1965) 1 SCR 243: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 33, 36,.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: K. Subba Rao, M. Hidayatullah and J.R. Mudholkar, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-9-1964]

R. v. Christian Olifir, (1866) 10 Cox C.C. 402; R. v. James Jarvis (1903) 20 Cox C.C. 249; State v. Harbansing Kisansing, AIR 1954 Bom 339, approved

Nura v. Rex, AIR 1949 All 710: 51 Cri LJ 29; Chathu v. Govindan Kutty, AIR 1958 Ker 121: ILR 1957 Ker 591: 1958 Cri LJ 637; Rajappan v. State, ILR 1960 Ker 481: 1960 Ker LT 273, overruled

1963 MWN 636, reversed

Followed in (1970) 3 SCC 211: 1971 SCC (Cri) 29

[8652] — S. 361 — Words "takes" and "entices" — Meaning

The expression used in S. 361, IPC is "Whoever takes or entices any minor". The word 'takes' does not necessarily connote taking by force and it is not confined to use of force, actual or constructive. These words merely mean "to cause to go", "to escort" or "to get into possession". No doubt it does not mean physical taking, but not necessarily by use of force or fraud. The word "entice" seems to involve the idea of inducement or allurement by giving rise to hope or desire in the other. This can take many forms, difficult to visualise and describe exhaustively; some of them may be quite subtle, depending for their success on the mental state of the person at the time when inducement is intended to operate. This may work immediately or it may create continuous and gradual but imperceptible impression culminating after some time, in achieving its ultimate purpose of successful inducement. The two words 'takes' and 'entices' are intended to be read together so that each takes to some extent its colour and content from the other. Thakorlal D. Vadgama v. State of Gujarat, (1973) 2 SCC 413: 1973 SCC (Cri) 835: AIR 1973 SC 2313: (1974) 1 SCR 178: 1973 Cri LJ 1541.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.K. Mathew and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-5-1973]

[8653] — S. 361 — Words "takes or entices any minor....out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor" — "Keeping" — Connotation of these words — Consent of minor immaterial — Persuasion can be given beforehand

The words "takes or entices any minor...out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor" in S. 361, are significant. The use of the word "keeping" in the context connotes the idea of charge, protection, maintenance and control: further the guardian's charge and control appears to be compatible with the independence of action and movement in the minor, the guardian's protection and control of the minor being available, whenever necessity arises.

On plain reading of this section the consent of the minor who is taken or enticed is wholly immaterial. It is only the guardian's consent which takes the case out of its purview. Nor is it necessary that the taking or enticing must be shown to have been by means of force or fraud. Persuasion by the accused person which creates willingness on the part of the minor to be taken out of the keeping of the lawful guardian would be sufficient to attract the section. The consent or willingness of the minor to accompany the accused is immaterial and it would be equally so even if the proposal to go with the accused had emanated from her.

From English decisions it may be stated that forwardness on the part of the girl would not avail the person taking her away from being guilty of the offence in question and that if by moral force a willingness is created in the girl to go away with the former, the offence would be committed unless her going away is entirely voluntary. Inducement by previous promise or persuasion was held in some English decisions to be sufficient to bring the case within the mischief of the statute. Broadly the same is the position under the Indian law.

In case of kidnapping where the evidence established beyond doubt that the prosecutrix (the minor) had been solicited and persuaded by the accused to leave her father's house for being taken to another place, it was not at all necessary for the accused to have himself gone to the house of the prosecutrix to bring her from there on midnight in question. It was sufficient if he had earlier been soliciting or persuading her to leave her father's house to go with him. State of Haryana v. Raja Ram, (1973) 1 SCC 544: 1973 SCC (Cri) 428: AIR 1973 SC 819: (1973) 2 SCR 728: 1973 Cri LJ 651.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: J.M. Shelat, Y.V. Chandrachud and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 27-10-1972]

English cases discussed and summarised in (1973) 2 SCC 413, 421: 1973 SCC (Cri) 835

[8654] — Ss. 361 and 363 — Age of prosecutrix — Medical evidence that she was between 17 and 18 years at the time of the occurrence — Finding of courts below that the prosecutrix was below 18 years — Held, in the circumstances of the case finding of courts below needs no interference — She cannot be held to be above 18 by taking into account margin of error of six months. Kuldeep K. Mahato v. State of Bihar, (1998) 6 SCC 420: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1460: AIR 1998 SC 2694.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-8-1998]

[8655] — Ss. 361, 363, 363-A, 366A and 375 — Age of accused — Determination of — Evidence regarding — Entries in school register and admission form, maintained in the course of regular official duty and existing ante litem motam, held, reliable under S. 35, Evidence Act, more so where the school is a reputed public school — Subsequent change in the date of birth by an affidavit with the motive to get some benefit such as admission in higher class, appearance in examination etc. will not affect the authenticity of the original school entries — Horoscope not reliable — Absence of birth entry in municipal records or village Chowkidar's register also not material — Rajasthan Children Act, 1970 (16 of 1970) — Evidence Act, 1872, S. 35

Ordinarily the oral evidence can hardly be useful to determine the correct age of a person, and the question, therefore, would largely depend on the documents and the nature of their authenticity. Oral evidence may have utility if no documentary evidence is forthcoming. Even the horoscope cannot be reliable because it can be prepared at any time to suit the needs of a particular situation. Similarly, failure to register date of birth in the municipal record or village Chowkidar's register would not be of much relevance. It is common knowledge that in villages people are not very vigilant in reporting either births or deaths and, therefore an omission of this type cannot be taken to be a most damaging circumstance to demolish the case of the appellant regarding his actual date of birth.

Entries in school register and admission form regarding date of birth constitute good proof of age. There is no legal requirement that the public or other official book should be kept only by a public officer but all that is required under S. 35 of the Evidence Act is that it should be regularly kept in discharge of official duty. In the present case the entries in the school register were made ante litem motam. Moreover, the school where the documents were maintained was an English Public School enjoying good reputation of authenticity and the record maintained by it was unimpeachable and authentic and could not be suspected or presumed to be tampered with. At the time when the age of the appellant was first mentioned in the admission form, there was absolutely no dispute about the date of birth or for that matter the exact date on which he was born and there could not have been any motive on the part of the parents of the accused to give a false date of birth because it was his first admission to a school at a very early age. If there had been any element of suspicion in giving the date of birth, the admission register and the scholar's register would have been corrected by the Headmistress of the school.

The circumstance that when the accused-appellant was admitted in the school no transfer certificate had been taken by itself is not sufficient to dislodge the case of the appellant unless a transfer certificate was taken and it had shown that the date of birth given there did not tally with the documents.

It is also not uncommon for parents sometimes to change the age of their children in order to get some material benefit either for appearing in examination or for entering a particular service which would be denied to a child as under the original date of birth he would be either underaged or ineligible. Therefore, rejecting the date entered in the original school register merely on the ground of subsequent change made by the father of the accused by an affidavit would be taking a very artificial and technical view of the matter. Umesh Chandra v. State of Rajasthan, (1982) 2 SCC 202: 1982 SCC (L&S) 200: 1982 SCC (Cri) 396: AIR 1982 SC 1057: 1982 Cri LJ 994.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali, D.A. Desai and A. Varadarajan, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-4-1982]

Abdul Majid v. Bhargavan, AIR 1963 Ker 18: ILR (1962) 2 Ker 65, approved

[8656] — Ss. 361, 363-A and 375 — Age — Principle for determination of for eligibility where age on a particular date specified — Day of birth to be included as a whole day — Legal day commences at 12 o'clock at midnight — Expression "must not have attained the age of 28 years on the first day of January next following the last date fixed for receipt of application" in R. 11-B of Rajasthan State and Subordinate Services (Direct Recruitment by Competitive Examination) Rules, 1962 — Interpretation of — Majority Act, 1875, S. 4 — I.A.S. (Appointment by Competitive Examination) Regulations, 1955, R. 4 — U.P. General Clauses Act, 1904 (1 of 1904), S. 4(11-C)

In absence of any express provision, while calculating a person's age, the day of his birth must be counted as a whole day and any specified age in law is to be computed as having been attained on the day preceding the anniversary of his birthday. A legal day commences at 12 o'clock midnight and continues until the same hour the following night. The above principle is in consonance with S. 4 of the Indian Majority Act.

The object and intent in making R. 11-B was to prescribe the age limits upon which the eligibility of a candidate for direct recruitment to the Rajasthan Administrative Service and other allied services is governed. The expression "must not have attained the age of 28 years on the first day of January next following the last date fixed for receipt of application" in R. 11-B has to be interpreted by applying the principle stated above and cannot proceed upon a different basis adopted by UPSC while interpreting R. 4 of the I.A.S. (Appointment by Competitive Examination) Regulations, 1955 framed by the Central Government in pursuance of R. 7 of the I.A.S. (Recruitment) Rules, 1954.

The last day fixed for receipt of application in this case, was January 1, 1983. First day of January next following that day would be January 1, 1984. The appellant having been born on January 2, 1956, he had not only attained the age of 28 years but also completed the same at 12 o'clock on the midnight of January 1, 1984. On the next day i.e. on January 2, 1984, the appellant would be one day more than 28 years.

[The court emphasised the need for a provision like the proviso to R. 4 of the I.A.S. (Appointment by Competitive Examination) Regulations, 1955, conferring the power of relaxation on the State Government under certain conditions without which a deserving candidate would be rendered ineligible for appointment and advised the State Government to consider the question of relaxing the upper age limit in the case of appellant in order to mitigate the hardship, if otherwise permissible]. Prabhu Dayal Sesma v. State of Rajasthan, (1986) 4 SCC 59: 1986 SCC (L&S) 731: (1986) 1 ATC 341: 1986 SCC (Cri) 411: AIR 1986 SC 1948: (1986) 2 LLN 745: (1986) 3 SLR 48.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: A.P. Sen and B.C. Ray, JJ. [Date of decision: 28-8-1986]

[8657] — Ss. 361 and 366 — Amendment of S. 361 in 1949 prescribing outside limit of age of a minor girl to be 18 years — Amendment held not retrospective. Ram Devi v. State of U.P., AIR 1955 SC 574: 1955 Cri LJ 1296.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.R. Das, N.H. Bhagwati and T.L. Venkatarama Aiyar, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-2-1955]

[8658] — Ss. 361 and 375 — Determination of — Non-examination of material witness — Non-examination of father on the question of date of birth of his daughter, where birth certificate relied upon by her contained erasers and corrections, held on facts, fatal to her case that she was minor at the relevant time — Question regarding date of birth being one of fact, Supreme Court would not differ from the appreciation of evidence made by High Court in that regard. Enuga Lakshmamma v. Vennapuse Chinna Malla Reddy, (1985) 2 SCC 100: AIR 1985 SC 658.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: V.D. Tulzapurkar and V. Khalid, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-2-1985]

[8659] — Ss. 361, 375 and 376 — Eligibility — Age — Date of birth — Proof of — Entries in scholar's register and secondary school examination records — Held, have no evidentiary value to prove age of a candidate in absence of evidence of any person on whose information the date of birth had been entered in the school records — Representation of the People Act, 1951, Ss. 36 and 80 — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 35 and 74

The entries regarding dates of birth contained in the scholar's register and the secondary school examination have no probative value, if no person on whose information the date of birth of the candidate was mentioned in the school record is examined. The entry contained in the admission form or in the scholar's register must be shown to be made on the basis of information given by the parents or a person having special knowledge about the date of birth of the person concerned. If the entry is made on the basis of the information given by a stranger or by someone else who had no special means of knowledge of the date of birth, such an entry will have no evidentiary value. The truth or otherwise of the facts in issue, namely, the date of birth of the candidate as mentioned in the documents must be proved by admissible evidence i.e. by the evidence of those persons who can vouchsafe for the truth of the facts in issue. No evidence of any such kind was produced by the respondent to prove the truth of the facts, namely, the date of birth of the candidate. In the circumstances the dates of birth as mentioned in the documents have no probative value and the dates of birth as mentioned therein could not be accepted. Birad Mal Singhvi v. Anand Purohit, 1988 Supp SCC 604: AIR 1988 SC 1796.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: E.S. Venkataramiah and K.N. Singh, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-8-1988]

— S. 361 Expln. See also Ss. 363 and 361 Expln.

— S. 362 See also Ss. 96, 100 Fifthly & 362

See also Ss. 302, 362 and 364

See also Ss. 359 to 363

See also Ss. 364, 359 and 362

See also Ss. 364 and 362

[8660] — S. 362 — Abduction by husband — No use of force or deceit — Whether husband abducted his wife

Ordinarily there is no question of abduction when a husband takes his wife with him, but if deceit is played upon her or force is applied, it would be a different matter. Sohan Lal v. State of U.P., (1971) 1 SCC 498: 1971 SCC (Cri) 206: AIR 1971 SC 2064: 1971 Cri LJ 1458.

Bench Strength 3. Coram: S.M. Sikri, C.J. and P. Jaganmohan Reddy and I.D. Dua, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-2-1971]

[8661] — S. 362 — On being persuaded by the accused victim going inside his house and coming properly dressed to accompany the accused — Held, abduction of the victim by the accused not proved. Vinod Chaturvedi v. State of M.P., (1984) 2 SCC 350: 1984 SCC (Cri) 250: AIR 1984 SC 911: 1984 Cri LJ 814.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S. Murtaza Fazal Ali and Ranganath Misra, JJ. [Date of decision: 5-3-1984]

[8662] — Ss. 362 and 302 r/w S. 34 — Abduction and murder — Circumstantial evidence — Two persons were taken away by armed assailants from their house at night and their dead bodies, studded with gunshot injuries, were found next morning lying near their house — Incident took place in the wake of terrorist activities in State of Punjab and inmates of deceased's house were suspected by terrorists as police touts — When the abductors withheld the information which was within their exclusive knowledge as to what happened to the deceased after they were abducted, held, a presumption in the circumstances of the case can be drawn that the abductors were responsible for murder of the deceased — Evidence Act, 1872, Ss. 106 and 114

The following circumstances have been proved against the appellant: (1) The incident happened during a period when Punjab was boiling with terrorist activities. (2) The house of the deceased was treated by the terrorists as the home of police touts against terrorists. (3) The appellant and three others reached the house during the dead of night armed with AK-47 rifles (which are described as "assault rifles") and caught the two sons and even in spite of entreaties made by their mother PW 4, the abductors forcibly took away the two sons into the darkness outside. (4) Within a short while they heard the sound of gunshots. (5) The two abducted sons did not return to the house during that night. (6) On the next morning their dead bodies were spotted on the roadside at a place situated only a short distance away from the house. (7) They were killed with AK-47 rifles as the empties of the bullets of such firearm were lying near the dead bodies. (8) The appellant did not tell the court as to what happened to the two sons after they abducted them.

Held:

The abductors alone could tell the court as to what happened to the deceased after they were abducted. When the abductors withheld that information from the court there is every justification for drawing the inference, in the light of all the preceding and succeeding circumstances adverted to above, that the abductors are the murderers of the deceased. (Para 15)

Section 106 of the Evidence Act is not intended to relieve the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt, but the section would apply to cases where the prosecution has succeeded in proving facts for which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, unless the accused by virtue of special knowledge regarding such facts failed to offer any explanation which might drive the court to draw a different inference. (Para 19)

What is frequently happening during these days has to be kept in mind. Persons are kidnapped in the sight of others and are forcibly taken out of the sight of all others and later the kidnapped are killed. If a legal principle is to be laid down that for the murder of such kidnapped there should necessarily be independent evidence apart from the circumstances enumerated above, the court would be providing a safe jurisprudence for protecting such criminal activities. India cannot now afford to lay down any such legal principle insulating the marauders from their activities of killing kidnapped innocents outside the ken of others. (Para 21)

In this case a note was recovered by the police from the scene of murder which contained the scribbling purported to have been authored by a group styled as "Babbar Khalsa", owning the two murders of the deceased. That note would not help the appellant unless he shows that he has nothing to do with that self-styled "Babbar Khalsa", even assuming that the note was left by the murderers without any intention to mislead the investigation. At any rate, it is not possible to change the conclusion on the strength of the said note. (Para 22)

Therefore, the appellant's conviction and sentence of life imprisonment under Section 302 read with Section 34 is confirmed. Sucha Singh v. State of Punjab, (2001) 4 SCC 375: 2001 SCC (Cri) 717: AIR 2001 SC 1436: 2001 Cri LJ 1734.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: K.T. Thomas and R.P. Sethi, JJ. [Date of decision: 22-3-2001]

State of W.B. v. Mir Mohd. Omar, (2000) 8 SCC 382: 2000 SCC (Cri) 1516, explained and relied on

— S. 363 See also Ss. 302, 323 and 324 r/w 148, 149, 363, 366 and 376

See also Ss. 302, 363, 376 and 201

See also Ss. 302, 376(2)(f), 377, 363 and 201

See also Ss. 359 to 363

See also Ss. 361 and 363

See also Ss. 361, 363, 363-A, 366-A and 375

See also Ss. 366 and 363

See also Ss. 375 and 376

See also Ss. 376, 302, 363 and 366

See also Ss. 376, 363, 366 and 368

See also S. 376 and proviso thereto and Ss. 342, 363 and 366

See also Ss. 377, 363, 376 r/w S. 511

— Ss. 363/109 See Ss. 376, 366 and 363/109

[8663] — S. 363 — "Extradition offence" — Interpretation — Authority competent to determine — Matrimonial dispute relating to custody of child, held, does not constitute an extradition offence — However, if the offence relates purely to kidnapping of a child, without involving any matrimonial dispute (as under S. 363 IPC), it is an extradition offence — Further held, whether a case involves extradition offence, has to be determined by Magistrate — Extradition Act, 1962, S. 2(c) (Paras 47, 82, 111 and 112). Bhavesh Jayanti Lakhani v. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 9 SCC 551.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: S.B. Sinha and Dr. M.K. Sharma, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-8-2009]

[8664] — S. 363 — First appellant the main kidnapper and the two other accused either remained with him or assisted him — Having regard to the circumstances and the role played by each accused, their conviction confirmed but sentence of four years' RI imposed on each of them reduced to three year's RI in case of first appellant and to one years' RI in case of each of the two co-accused. Tannu Lal v. State of U.P., 1981 Supp SCC 47: 1981 SCC (Cri) 675.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: D.A. Desai and A.D. Koshal, JJ. [Date of decision: 2-3-1981]

[8665] — Ss. 363, 361 and 366 — Kidnapping from lawful guardianship and abduction to compel marriage or illicit intercourse — Prosecutrix below 18 years on the date of the occurrence — Appellant carrying her in a tempo to another place and silenced on showing of dagger — Held, in the circumstances, offence of kidnapping made out — Defence plea that she herself came and sat in tempo not maintainable — However, in absence of evidence to indicate that the appellant kidnapped her with the intention to marry her against her will or in order that she may be forced to illicit intercourse conviction under S. 366 cannot be sustained. Kuldeep K. Mahato v. State of Bihar, (1998) 6 SCC 420: 1998 SCC (Cri) 1460: AIR 1998 SC 2694.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: G.T. Nanavati and S.P. Kurdukar, JJ. [Date of decision: 6-8-1998]

[8666] — Ss. 363 & 361 Expln. — Kidnapping from lawful guardianship — "Lawful guardian" — Meaning and scope of — Kidnapping of a minor girl from her school — Held, as per Expln. to S. 361, "lawful guardian" includes any person lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of such minor or other person — In the instant case, the school had been lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of the minor girl — Hence, the offence under S. 363 was complete when the accused took the said girl away from her school (Para 4). Sajjan Kapar v. State of Bihar, (2005) 9 SCC 426.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: Y.K. Sabharwal and Brijesh Kumar, JJ. [Date of decision: 7-8-2003]

S. Varadarajan v. State of Madras, AIR 1965 SC 942: (1965) 1 SCR 243: (1965) 2 Cri LJ 33, distinguished on facts

[8667] — Ss. 363, 364, 365, 386 and 387 — Kidnapping of a four-year-old boy for ransom — Boy seen in the company of the accused persons at several places and never returned home — Evidence of eyewitnesses found to be natural and trustworthy — They correctly identifying the accused persons in the identification parade as well as in the court — No inordinate delay in holding test identification parade — Recovery of shirt of the boy at the instance of one of the accused — Letter demanding ransom sent by the kidnappers under fictitious name to the father of the boy establishing that the boy had been kidnapped from the lawful guardianship of his parents — Admission of guilt by one of the accused in another letter sent to the father of the boy — Contents of the letter establishing the role played by him and also indicating that the boy had been killed — Held, in the circumstances of the case, accused persons rightly convicted by the High Court. Radha Ballabh v. State of U.P., 1995 Supp (3) SCC 119: 1995 SCC (Cri) 797.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.M. Punchhi and K. Jayachandra Reddy, JJ. [Date of decision: 4-5-1995]

[8668] — Ss. 363 and 366 — Applicability of — Acquittal under S. 363 and conviction under S. 366, held, cannot stand together

Section 361 makes the 'taking' of a minor girl out of the keeping of the lawful guardian without the consent of such guardian an offence. Under S. 363, for such an offence, a person may be punished with imprisonment of either description which may extend to seven years. Section 366 is merely an aggravated form of the offence under S. 363. If a person kidnaps a minor girl with the intention that she may be compelled, or knowing it to be likely that she will compelled, to marry any person against her will, he may be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years and also with fine. The basic condition for the applicability of S. 366, Indian Penal Code, is that the person charged under that section should have committed the offence of kidnapping. When a person is acquitted under S. 363, it is manifest that he cannot be committed under S. 366. As in the present case the appellant was acquitted under S. 363, the High Court erred in convicting him under S. 366, Indian Penal Code. The acquittal under S. 363 and the conviction under S. 366 cannot stand together. Girja Lal v. State of Bihar, Criminal Appeal No. 201 of 1957.

Bench Strength 4. Coram: P.B. Gajendragadkar, A.K. Sarkar, K. Subba Rao and Vivian Bose, JJ. [Date of decision: 20-5-1958]

[8669] — Ss. 363 and 366 — Kidnapping of a girl with intent to seduce her to illicit intercourse — Lower courts giving convincing and cogent reasons for recording the conviction of the appellant — Held, in the circumstances, no interference by the Supreme Court with conviction of the appellant under S. 366 is called for — However, he could not be convicted under S. 363 which is a minor offence in relation to S. 366 — In facts and circumstances of the case particularly the fact that the appellant has already suffered a substantial period of imprisonment his sentence reduced from four years' RI to the period already undergone. Rajendra v. State of Maharashtra, 1997 SCC (Cri) 840.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M.K. Mukherjee and K.T. Thomas, JJ. [Date of decision: 8-5-1997]

[8670] — Ss. 363, 366, 368 & 376 — Age of girl — Proof of — Certified copies of school certificate and affidavits of the girl and her father amount to evidence under the Act — But report of contents of the medical report not before the Court would be hearsay and therefore inadmissible. Mohd. Ikram Hussain v. State of U.P., AIR 1964 SC 1625: (1964) 5 SCR 86: (1964) 2 Cri LJ 590: (1964) All Cri R 252.

Bench Strength 2. Coram: M. Hidayatullah and K.C. Das Gupta, JJ. [Date of decision: 9-10-1963]

